PREFACE

This new edition of the North Carolina Code is submitted to the legal profession in all confidence that its merits will be recognized and that it will be accorded the same gratifying reception as the Codes of 1927 and 1931. Modern one volume codes are becoming more and more popular and it is believed that a work of this nature, incorporating as it does in one volume the entire body of the statute law, completely annotated with a thorough and accurate index, will prove of inestimable value to the bench and bar of the State.

The plan of the work is simple and requires no detailed explanation. New laws are inserted in their logical places with figures or letters in parentheses following the section numbers of the Consolidated Statutes. And this numbering applies to the Revenue and Machinery Acts of 1935 which supersede earlier enactments. The annotations include all direct constructions from the state reports beginning with volume 1 and concluding with page 285 of volume 208; and in a few instances cases from other jurisdictions have been used. The same standard of skillful editorial work which contributed to the popularity of the former editions of the North Carolina Code is maintained throughout this volume. Special attention is directed to the editors' notes, pointing out the changes effected by amendatory acts. It is believed that these notes will prove invaluable and will save the lawyer from laborious comparisons.

CHAPTER 1

ADMINISTRATION

Art. 1. Probate Jurisdiction

§ 1. Clerk of superior court has probate jurisdiction.—The clerk of the superior court of each county has jurisdiction, within his county, to take proof of wills and to grant letters testamentary, letters of administration with the will annexed, and letters of administration in cases of intestacy, in the following cases:

Cross Reference.—As to appellate review of exercise of power of clerk in appointing administrators or executors, see § 4139 and the note thereto. As to review of clerk's power in removing executors and administrators, see § 31 and the note thereto.

Character of Duties.—The powers and jurisdiction exercised by the clerk pursuant to this section are not those of a servant or ministerial officer or acting as and for the superior court, but those of an independent tribunal of original jurisdiction. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4, followed in In re Styers, 202 N. C. 715, 164 S. E. 123.

Summary Proceedings.—The proceedings of the clerk in respect to the exercise of his probate jurisdiction are summary in their nature. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4, 5, 9.

Jurisdiction Exclusive. — Jurisdiction to appoint an administrator of a deceased person, who has died intestate, and to issue letters for the administration of his estate is conferred by this section exclusively upon the clerk of the Superior Court of the county in which decedent was domiciled at or immediately previous to his death. Bank v. Commissioners of Yancey, 195 N. C. 678, 680, 681, 143 S. E. 252.

When Jurisdiction Presumed.—Where it is admitted that the plaintiff was regularly appointed administrator, it will be presumed that the clerk acted within his jurisdiction. Vance v. Southern R. Co., 138 N. C. 460, 50 S. E. 860.

More than One Appointment.—When letters of administration are once issued to a person who qualified, the powers of the clerk in that respect are exhausted and the subsequent appointment of another person, before the first appointment is revoked, is void. In re Bowman's Estate, 121 N. C. 373, 28 S. E. 404.

Collateral Attack.—When the clerk under this section has general jurisdiction of the subject matter of the inquiry, a decree appointing an executor or administrator may not be collaterally attacked. Batchelor v. Overton, 158 N. C. 395, 74 S. E. 20; Fann v. North Carolina R. Co., 155 N. C. 136, 71 S. E. 81; Tyer v. Blades Lumber Co., 188 N. C. 268, 124 S. E. 305. But where jurisdictional facts were lacking, it can be so attacked. Reynolds v. Lloyd Cotton Mills, 177 N. C. 412, 99 S. E. 240, and cases cited. And see Vance v. Southern R. Co., 138 N. C. 460, 462, 50 S. E. 860, where the court, after stating that jurisdiction is presumed, declares: "We do not mean to say that the validity of the letters cannot be questioned collaterally the existence of such assets and their proper situs being jurisdictional matter."

The facts very generally recognized as jurisdictional are stated in this section and where on application for letters of administration, these facts appear of record, the question of the qualification of the appointee cannot be collaterally assailed. Holmes v. Wharton, 194 N. C. 470, 472, 140 S. E. 93, citing Wharton v. Ins. Co., 178 N. C. 135, 100 S. E. 266. The only exception to this rule is that it may be shown collaterally that the person for whom an administrator has been appointed is not in fact dead, but is still living. Hines v. Foundation Co., 196 N. C. 322, 325, 145 S. E. 612. In such case, the order making the appointment being void, may be attacked collaterally. Holmes v. Wharton, 194 N. C. 470, 473, 140 S. E. 93, citing Clark v. Homes, 189 N. C. 703, 128 S. E. 20.

Evidence that deceased was not domiciled in the county of the clerk as required by subsec. 1, of this section was inadmissible in an action for wrongful death. Holmes v. Wharton, 194 N. C. 470, 140 S. E. 93.

The burden of proof to show jurisdictional facts rests upon the person applying for letters. Reynolds v. Lloyd Cotton Mills, 177 N. C. 412, 99 S. E. 240.

1. Where the decedent at, or immediately previous to, his death was domiciled in the county of such clerk, in whatever place such death may have happened.

In General.—Where the facts stated in this subsection exist, a grant in any county other than that prescribed by the subsection is absolutely void. Johnson v. Corpenning, 39 N. C. 216; Collins v. Turner, 4 N. C. 541.

Domicile.—Reynolds v. Lloyd Cotton Mills, 177 N. C. 412, 99 S. E. 240, contains an excellent discussion of "domicile" as distinguished from "residence," "inhabiting," etc.

Change of County Lines.—The county referred to in this subsection is the county at the time of the death of the decedent, and not the one subsequently formed by a change of county lines. Hannon v. Southern Power Co., 173 N. C. 520, 92 S. E. 353.

2. Where the decedent at his death had his fixed place of domicile in more than one county, the clerk of any such county has jurisdiction.

3. Where the decedent, not being domiciled in this state, died out of the state, leaving assets in the county of such clerk, or assets of such decedent thereafter come into the county of such clerk.

Assets.—If the assets are bona notabelia (chattels or goods of sufficient value to be accounted for) they are sufficient to convey jurisdiction to the clerk. Hyman v. Gaskins, 27 N. C. 267. The value of chattels sufficient to be accounted for has varied at different times, but was finally established at five pounds in 1603.—Ed. Note.

The time and manner of bringing the assets into the jurisdiction is immaterial. Shields v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 119 N. C. 380, 25 S. E. 951.

4. Where the decedent, not being domiciled in this state, died in the county of such clerk, leaving assets in the state, or assets of such decedent thereafter come into the state.

Provided, that in all cases where the clerk of the superior court is interested in an estate, the judge of the superior court resident in the district or the judge of the superior court holding the courts of the county by regular or special assignment shall have jurisdiction to take proof of wills and grant letters testamentary, letters of administration with the will annexed and letters of administration in cases of intestacy, to audit and approve the accounts of executors and administrators, to make orders and to do any and all things in connection with the administration of estates which the clerk of the superior court might or could have done, had he not been interested in the estate. (Rev., s. 16; Code, s. 1374; C. C. P., s. 433; R. C., s. 46, s. 1; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 115; 1931, c. 165.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added the proviso to this section.

Death by Wrongful Act Sufficient Asset.—Where a nonresident is killed in this state, the cause of action for death by wrongful act is sufficient under this section, as a basis for the grant of letters in the county where the injury and death occurred. Vance v. Southern R. Co., 138 N. C. 460, 50 S. E. 860; Fann v. North Carolina Co., 155 N. C. 136, 71 S. E. 81. See notes to sections 160, 161.

§ 2. Exclusive in clerk who first gains. — The clerk who first gains and exercises jurisdiction under this chapter thereby acquires sole and exclusive jurisdiction over the decedent's estate.

Domicile in Two Counties.—The provisions of this section apply even though the decedent at the time of his death was domiciled in both counties. And the jurisdiction first acquired cannot be collaterally impeached. Tyer v. Blades Lumber Co., 188 N. C. 274, 124 S. E. 306.

Superior Court to Determine Proper Grant.—Where two clerks of different counties have granted letters to different parties, and the judgments granting them have been respectively affirmed by the superior court, that court will determine which of the letters were properly granted. Tyer v. Blades Lumber Co., 188 N. C. 274, 124 S. E. 306.

Art. 2. Necessity for Letters and Their Form

§ 3. Letters must issue; immediate rights of family.—No person shall enter upon the administration of any decedent's estate until he has obtained letters therefor, under the penalty of one hundred dollars, one-half to the use of the informer and the other half to the state; but nothing herein contained shall prevent the family of the deceased from using so much of the crop, stock and provisions on hand as may be necessary, until the widow's year's support is assigned therefrom, as prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 1; Code, s. 1522; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 93.)

Penalty Not Incurred by Mere Possession.—To incur the penalty provided by this section, something more must be done than the mere taking of the property. Such taking may make the taker an executor de son tort, but it would not make him incur the penalty unless he entered upon the administration of the estate without first obtaining letters therefor. Administration implies management, not the mere holding the possession of property. Currie v. Currie, 90 N. C. 553, 556.

§ 4. Executor de son tort.—Every person who receives goods or debts of any person dying intestate, or any release of debt due the intestate, upon a fraudulent intent, or without such valuable consideration as amounts to the value or thereabout, is chargeable as executor of his own wrong, so far as such debts and goods, coming to his hands, or whereof he is released, will satisfy. (Rev., s. 2; Code, s. 1494; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 67; 43 Eliz., c. 8.)

Claim under Fraudulent Conveyance.—One who sets up a claim to goods of an intestate under a fraudulent conveyance, and thereby injures the sale of them, does not render himself an executor de son tort. Barnard v. Gregory, 14 N. C. 223. But under such a conveyance, which is void as to creditors, he will be liable to the creditors of the estate as an executor de son tort. Norfleet v. Riddick, 14 N. C. 221; McMorine v. Storey, 20 N. C. 83.

Time of Intermeddling.—One who intermeddles with goods of a decedent may be subject to liability as an executor de son tort although letters of administration afterwards issue. If administration is committed to him it entitles him to retain. But an intermeddling after a grant of administration does not make an executor de son tort, because he is answerable to the administrator. Norfleet v. Riddick, 14 N. C. 221; McMorine v. Storey, 20 N. C. 83.

A fraudulent donee of personalty which he has in his possession after the donor's death, is answerable as executor de son tort. Sturdivant v. Davis, 31 N. C. 365.

Purchaser of Exempt Property.—A purchaser of property exempt from execution under the Homestead Act cannot be held liable as executor de son tort. Winchester v. Gaddy, 72 N. C. 115.

Intermeddling under Colorable Right.—An intermeddling for which there is a colorable right will not make a wrongful executorship. Turner v. Child, 12 N. C. 25.

Bailee, etc., of Fraudulent Donee.—If a fraudulent donee of goods disposes of them to another who accepts them bona fide upon a purchase, or even to keep for the donee, the vendee or bailee would not be an executor de son tort. Bailey v. Miller, 27 N. C. 444.

An infant of tender years cannot be executor de son tort nor be sued as such. See Bailey v. Miller, 27 N. C. 444.

Character of Title.—It is not the paper title merely that makes one an executor of his own wrong, but it is the disposition, or possession and occupation of the effects. Bailey v. Miller, 27 N. C. 444.

§ 5. Form of letters.—All letters must be issued in the name of the state, and tested in the name of the clerk of the superior court, signed by him, and sealed with his seal of office, and shall have attached thereto copies of the section of this chapter requiring an inventory to be filed within three months, and of the section requiring annual accounts to be filed. (Rev., s. 36; Code, ss. 1399, 2172; C. C. P., ss. 471, 478; 1871-2, c. 46.)

For accounts to be filed, see section 105 and the note thereto.

Art. 3. Right to Administer

§ 6. Order in which persons entitled.—Letters of administration, in case of intestacy, shall be granted to the persons entitled thereto and applying for the same, in the following order:

Public Administrators.—See section 20, and notes thereto.

Effect of Appointment Out of Order.—The appointment as administrator of a person other than the one designated by the statute is not void, though the proper person has not renounced; but it may be set aside in favor of such proper person provided he has not waived his right to administer. Garrison v. Cox, 95 N. C. 353.

Where the executor dies, the next of kin, in the order named in the statute, or his appointee, is entitled to administration with the will annexed, in preference to the highest creditor. Little v. Berry, 94 N. C. 433.

1. To the husband or widow, except as hereinafter provided.

For appointment of widow under twenty-one, see note to section 8 par. 1.

Estoppel against Widow.—Though the widow has a prior right to administration than a brother of the decedent, where it appears that at the time the letters were duly granted to the brother she has shown no disposition to set up her right before the clerk, the appointment of the brother will stand. Tyer v. Blades Lumber Co., 188 N. C. 268, 124 S. E. 305.

2. To the next of kin in the order of their degree, to one or more of them, at the discretion of the clerk.

Clerk's Discretion. — Where there are several persons entitled in equal degree to administer, the clerk may select the one who in his discretion is most fit. Garrison v. Cox, 95 N. C. 353.

Right Not Absolute or Exclusive. — The right of the next of kin to letters of administration is not absolute and exclusive; and if the next of kin does not apply for letters of administration or fail to give bond, some other person may be appointed. Stoker v. Kendall, 44 N. C. 242.

Next of Kin Best Qualified.—The next of kin of a deceased person, after the widow, have the right, amongst themselves, of administration; but this right is not vested in one more than another, and the degree of propinquity does not give a legal priority. The court should select from the class, the person best qualified to take care of the estate. Atkins v. McCormick, 49 N. C. 274.

Between brothers, administration will be committed to the one most interested to execute it faithfully. Moore v. Moore, 12 N. C. 352.

Illiteracy of Next of Kin.—If none of the next of kin can read or write, it is proper for the clerk to refuse to appoint any one of them. In re Saville, 156 N. C. 172, 72 S. E. 220.

Appointee of Next of Kin.—When the next of kin resides abroad, it is in the power and is the duty of the court to grant administration to the appointee of such next of kin. Smith v. Munroe, 23 N. C. 345. See Ritchie v. McAuslin, 2 N. C. 220.

3. To the most competent creditor who resides within the state, and proves his debt on oath before the clerk.

Creditor Postponed to Next of Kin.—If administration cannot be granted to the nearest of kin owing to some incapacity, it shall be granted to the next after him, qualified to act, and the creditor shall be postponed, if such next of kin claims the right to administer within the time prescribed. Carthey v. Webb, 6 N. C. 268.

Assignee after Death Not a Creditor.—An assignment of debts of a person after his death does not make the assignee such a creditor as to entitle him to administer the estate of the deceased. Pearce v. Castrix, 53 N. C. 71.

4. To any other person legally competent.

(Rev., s. 3; Code, s. 1376; C. C. P., s. 456; R. C., c. 46, ss. 2, 3; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 115.)

Possessor of Insurance Policy.—The possession of a policy of life insurance authorizes the possessor to administer on the estate of the assured, a nonresident. Page v. Life Ins. Co., 131 N. C. 115, 42 S. E. 543. See Shields v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 119 N. C. 380, 25 S. E. 951.

§ 7. Husband to administer to wife; right in surplus.—If any married woman dies wholly or partially intestate, the surviving husband shall be entitled to administer on her personal estate and shall hold the same, subject to the claims of her creditors and others having rightful demands against her, to his own use, except as hereinafter provided. If the husband dies after his wife, but before administering, his executor or administrator or assignee shall receive the personal property of the said wife, as a part of the estate of the husband, subject as aforesaid, and except as provided by law. (Rev., s. 4; Code, s. 1479; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 32.)

Exclusive Right to Administer.—The statute of distribution does not apply to the estate of feme covert dying intestate, and the husband is entitled to administer for his own benefit. Any other person administering is in equity considered as a trustee for the husband with respect to the residue after payment of debts. Hoppiss v. Eskridge, 37 N. C. 54.

Wife Intestate or Testate.—A husband has right to administer the estate of wife, whether she dies intestate or leaves a will without naming an executor. In re Meyer's Estate, 113 N. C. 545, 18 S. E. 689.

Transfer of Right.—He may transfer this right to another by appointment, or may cause another to be associated with him. And the right is not affected by the filing and probating in common form of a writing purporting to be the will of the wife. In re Meyer's Estate, 113 N. C. 545, 18 S. E. 689.

Realty under Equitable Conversion.—Where a wife devised real property under circumstances which by the doctrine of equitable conversion is reduced to personalty, her husband after her death is, under this section, entitled to the estate as personalty, subject to demands of creditors. McIver v. McKinney, 184 N. C. 393, 399, 114 S. E. 399.

Death of Husband before Administering.—If the husband dies after his wife, without having administered, there is no authority to appoint an administrator upon her estate. In such a case the representative of the husband is to administer the wife's estate. Wooten v. Wooten, 123 N. C. 219, 31 S. E. 491.

Partial Intestacy as to Damages for Wrongful Death.—Where a wife dies by wrongful death the recovery therefor is not a part of her personal assets. And where she has left a will disposing of all her property and naming another executor, her husband may not administer upon the theory that the wife died "partially intestate" as to damages recoverable for wrongful death. Hood v. American Tel., etc., Co., 162 N. C. 92, 77 S. E. 1094.

Wife's Estate in Remainder for Benefit of Husband.—Where wife, a remainderman in personal property after a life estate, dies before the life tenant, her administrator upon the death of life tenant will be entitled to such property for the benefit of her husband. Colson v. Martin, 62 N. C. 125.

Husband's Administrator as against Wife's Administrator.—Where a legacy is given to a trustee for the use of a married woman who dies without receiving the same, the personal representative of the husband (the husband surviving the wife, but dying before receiving the legacy in his wife's favor) is entitled to the legacy as against the wife's administrator. Coleman v. Hallowell, 54 N. C. 204.

Husband Entitled to Annuity Payable to Wife.—Where the beneficiary of an annuity dies intestate before the death of the testator, leaving a husband, the bequest which vests an interest in such beneficiary shall be paid to her husband. In re Shuford's Will, 164 N. C. 133, 80 S. E. 420.

Husband Becoming Non Compos Mentis.—Where a husband has qualified as the administrator of his deceased wife but removed on account of his since becoming non compos mentis, the administrator of the wife, de bonis non, and guardian of the husband, is entitled to her assets to be held by him for the benefit of the husband. Neill v. Wilson, 146 N. C. 242, 59 S. E. 674.

Applied in Bank v. Gilmer, 116 N. C. 684, 701, 22 S. E. 2, for the protection of creditors where there was an unfulfilled verbal executory contract that property was to be held in trust for children.

Cited in In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N. C. 334, 335, 148 S. E. 456.

§ 8. Disqualifications enumerated. — The clerk shall not issue letters of administration or letters testamentary to any person who, at the time of appearing to qualify—

1. Is under the age of twenty-one years.

A widow under 21 is not eligible to appointment as administratrix. The court may, however, appoint an administrator during her minority and, on arriving at full age, grant her the administration; or it may give the office to her appointee. Wallis v. Wallis, 60 N. C. 78.

2. Is a nonresident of this state; but a nonresident may qualify as executor.

Editor's Note.—Until the revisal of 1905, this subsection disqualified "an alien who is a nonresident of this state." And prior to 1868 there was no disqualification imposed upon aliens or nonresidents. It was formerly held that if a nonresident administrator took the oath and gave the bond required by law, he was not included in the disqualifications of this section. See Moore v. Eure, 101 N. C. 11, 16, 7 S. E. 471.

Nonresident Executor.—It is not a valid defense to a suit brought by an executor, that such executor was a nonresident. Batchelor v. Overton, 158 N. C. 395, 74 S. E. 20.

Nonresident Disqualified as Administrator.—A nonresident cannot be appointed an administrator; nor, having been appointed in the state of his intestate's residence, can he sue in the courts of this state. Hall v. Southern R. Co., 146 N. C. 345, 348, 59 S. E. 879.

Public administrator cannot be removed at the instance of nonresidents who have no right of appointment as administrator in consequence of not having the right to administer upon the estate in this state. Boynton v. Heartt, 158 N. C. 488, 74 S. E. 470.

Appointee of Nonresident Kin.—But a nonresident next of kin may appoint a resident, and it is within the power as well as the duty of the court to grant administration to the appointee. Smith v. Munroe, 23 N. C. 345; Ritchie v. McAuslin, 2 N. C. 220.

3. Has been convicted of a felony.

4. Is adjudged by the clerk incompetent to execute the duties of such trust by reason of drunkenness, improvidence or want of understanding.

Illiteracy as Incompetency.—Under this provision a person who can not write or read, and has no experience in keeping accounts or in settling estates, is "incompetent." Stephenson v. Stephenson, 49 N. C. 472.

5. Fails to take the oath or give the bond required by law.

Collateral Attack for Mere Irregularity.—When, in disregard of the requirements of this subsection, letters are issued to a foreign executor, this is a mere irregularity and cannot be collaterally attacked in an action by the executor. Batchelor v. Overton, 158 N. C. 395, 74 S. E. 20. In other words the defect is not jurisdictional so as to render the grant of letters absolutely void.—Ed. Note.

6. Has renounced his rights to qualify. (Rev., s. 5; Code, ss. 1377, 1378, 2162; C. C. P., s. 457.)

§ 9. Effect of disqualification of person entitled.—Where an executor named in the will, or any person having a prior right to administer, is under the disqualification of nonage, or is temporarily absent from the state, such person is entitled to six months, after coming of age or after his return to the state, in which to make application for letters testamentary, or letters of administration. (Rev., s. 6; Code, ss. 1379, 2165; C. C. P., ss. 452, 460; R. C., c. 46, s. 12.)

During Widow's Minority.—The court may appoint an administrator during a widow's minority and, on her arriving at full age, grant her the administration. Wallis v. Wallis, 60 N. C. 78.

Application after Lapse of Six Months.—If those entitled to administration apply for letters at any time prior to the appointment of a public administrator, even though six months' period has elapsed, they will have priority to administer unless otherwise disqualified. In re Bailey's Will, 141 N. C. 193, 53 S. E. 844.

§ 10. Divorce a vinculo or felonious slaying is forfeiture.—When a marriage is dissolved a vinculo, the parties respectively, or when either party is convicted of the felonious slaying of the other, or of being accessory before the fact of such felonious slaying, the party so convicted shall thereby lose all his or her right to administer on the estate of the other, and to a distributive share in the personal property of the other, and every right and estate in the personal estate of the other. (Rev., s. 7; Code, s. 1480; 1889, c. 499; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 42.)

Editor's Note.—In Owens v. Owens, 100 N. C. 240, 6 S. E. 794, it was held that a widow convicted as accessory before the fact to her husband's murder and confined in prison is entitled to dower. But this rule has in terms been abrogated by the provisions of this section, as to the right of the wife to administer and obtain her distributive share.

Where a husband has taken out a policy of life insurance on his own life with his wife as beneficiary and has feloniously killed his wife and then himself, under this section and sections 137, 2522, his heirs may not claim under him the proceeds of the policy since the law will not allow a man or those claiming under him to benefit by his own wrong, and the proceeds of the policy are descendible to the next of kin of the wife and not to his heirs at law. Parker v. Potter, 200 N. C. 348, 157 S. E. 68.

§ 12. Husband's conduct forfeiting rights in wife's estate.—If any husband shall separate himself from his wife, and be living in adultery at her death, or if she has obtained a divorce a mensa et thoro, and shall not be living with her husband at her death, or if the husband has abandoned his wife, or has maliciously turned her out of doors, and shall not be living with her at her death, he shall thereby lose all his right and estate of whatever character in and to her personal property, and all right to administer on her estate. (Rev., s. 9; Code, s. 1482; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 45.)

Failure to Provide Support Tantamount to Abandonment.—Where the husband made his wife leave, or where she had to leave because he would not give her anything to eat, it was held that his conduct amounted to abandonment. High v. Bailey, 107 N. C. 70, 12 S. E. 45.

§ 13. Executor may renounce.—Any person appointed an executor may renounce the office by a writing signed by him, and on the same being acknowledged or proved to the satisfaction of the clerk of the superior court, it shall be filed. (Rev., s. 10; Code, s. 2163; C. C. P., s. 450.)

Common Law and Present Rule.—At common law an administrator or executor who has qualified and entered upon the performance of his duties had no right to resign his office at his own convenience. Nor can he resign now except for causes specified in the statute or for equivalent causes. McIntyre v. Proctor, 145 N. C. 288, 59 S. E. 39; Washington v. Blunt, 43 N. C. 253.

Must Appear on Record.—Renunciation of executor must appear of record to enable the court to appoint an administrator with the will annexed. Springs v. Irwin, 28 N. C. 27.

Time of Renunciation.—An executor may, by permission of the superior court, renounce all right to the executorship and withdraw from a suit. Sawyer v. Dozier, 27 N. C. 97.

A court of probate may accept this renunciation at any time before the executor intermeddled with the effects of his testator, even after he has proved the will. Mitchell v. Adams, 23 N. C. 298.

The same rule applies to an executor of an executor under a prior will. Mitchell v. Adams, 23 N. C. 298.

But after probate an executor cannot renounce at his own pleasure, and must do so by leave of the court. Mitchell v. Adams, 23 N. C. 298.

Powers of Administrator c. t. a.—After renunciation of the executor, the administrator with the will annexed is competent to exercise his (executor's) powers under the will. Saunders v. Saunders, 108 N. C. 327, 12 S. E. 909.

Revocation of Letters for Cause Only.—The clerk should revoke letters testamentary, where the executor has entered upon performance of his duties, only by reason of some unfitness or unfaithfulness on the part of trustee, and never simply because the parties desire it. McIntyre v. Proctor, 145 N. C. 288, 59 S. E. 39.

Retraction of Renunciation.—A renouncing executor may retract his renunciation at any time before administration granted, and then administer. Any intermeddling with the estate before qualifying is evidence of such retraction. Davis v. Inscoe, 84 N. C. 396.

Renunciation by Some of Several.—Where there are several persons of the same class entitled to administer renunciation by some of them does not affect the rights of those not renouncing to administer. In re Jones' Estate, 177 N. C. 337, 341, 98 S. E. 827.

Right of Reinstatement.—There are decisions that an executor who has renounced can, under some circumstances come in and qualify. See Davis v. Inscoe, 84 N. C. 396, 401; Wood v. Sparks, 18 N. C. 389. But there is no case in which he has renounced with the formalities of this statute and afterwards has qualified, certainly not after the lapse of twenty years. Ryder v. Oates, 173 N. C. 569, 92 S. E. 508.

§ 14. Renunciation of prior right required.—When any person applies for administration, and any other person has prior right thereto, a written renunciation of the person or persons having such prior right must be produced and filed with the clerk. (Rev., s. 11; Code, s. 1378; C. C. P., s. 459.)

Expression of Intent Insufficient.—The mere expressed intent of such person entitled to administration by prior rights, that he would not have anything to do with the administration is no valid renunciation. Williams v. Neville, 108 N. C. 559, 13 S. E. 240.

§ 15. Failure to apply as renunciation.—If any person, entitled to letters of administration, fails or refuses to apply for such letters within thirty days after the death of the intestate, the clerk, on application of any party interested, shall issue a citation to such person to show cause, within twenty days after service of the citation why he should not be deemed to have renounced. If, within the time named in the citation, he neglects to answer or to show cause, he shall be deemed to have renounced his right to administer, and the clerk must enter an order accordingly, and proceed to grant letters to some other person. If no person entitled to administer applies for letters of administration on the estate of a decedent within six months from his death, then the clerk may, in his discretion, deem all prior rights renounced and appoint some suitable person to administer such estate. (Rev., s. 12; Code, s. 1380; C. C. P., s. 460(a); 1868-9, c. 203.)

In General.—The true intent and meaning of this and the previous section is that the persons primarily entitled to administration may have six months after the death of the intestate to assert their rights and comply with the law; and a party wishing to quicken their diligence within that time must do so by citation—he (the latter) may not by obtaining letters within the six months, deprive the party primarily entitled to administration should such party apply for letters before the expiration of six months period. Williams v. Neville, 108 N. C. 559, 562, 13 S. E. 240.

Applicable to Intestacy Only. — The provisions of this section contemplate the cases of intestacy. Hence in cases of testacy where no executor is appointed in the will, the rights of the parties to administer are governed by section 6, without reference to the six months limitation contained in this section. In re Jones' Estate, 177 N. C. 337, 340, 98 S. E. 827.

Renunciation Presumed after Six Months. — After the expiration of six months from the death of the decedent, those entitled to prior rights having failed to apply, all rights of preference may be treated as renounced, and a suitable person to administer upon the estate may be appointed. Hill v. Alspaugh, 72 N. C. 402, 404.

Appointment within Six Months.—If the next of kin in answer to citation, name his appointee, and such person after appointment, fails to qualify, then though six months have not expired, the clerk will be authorized to appoint another. Williams v. Neville, 108 N. C. 559, 13 S. E. 240.

Appointment Not Revoked after Six Months. — If the parties who have precedence to administer fail to apply within six months from the death of the deceased, an appointment by the clerk of a proper person after that period will not be revoked. Withrow v. DePriest, 119 N. C. 541, 26 S. E. 110.

Failure to Apply within Six Months—Public Administrator.—Though it is the duty of the public administrator to apply after six months, if before his appointment at any time even after six months persons prior in rights to administer apply, they are entitled to appointment. In re Bailey's Will, 141 N. C. 193, 53 S. E. 844.

Unreasonable Delay.—No one who has precedence in a claim for letters loses such rights by delay merely, but by unreasonable delay, which is a matter of law. Hughes v. Pipkin, 61 N. C. 4.

Right not Absolute or Exclusive. — The right of next of kin to letters of administration is not absolute and exclusive, but dependent upon their proper and due application therefor and their giving bond and security as the law requires. Stoker v. Kendall, 44 N. C. 242.

Effect of Appointment by Clerk.—Where the clerk has appointed an administrator under this section a debtor of the estate cannot maintain the position that the appointment of a public administrator was necessary to receive payment of the debt. Brooks v. Clement Co., 201 N. C. 768, 161 S. E. 403.

§ 16. Person named as executor failing to qualify or renounce.—If any person appointed an executor does not qualify or renounce within sixty days after the will is admitted to probate, the clerk of the superior court, on the application of any other executor named in the same will, or any party interested, shall issue a citation to such person to show cause why he should not be deemed to have renounced. If, upon service of the citation, he does not qualify or renounce within such time, not exceeding thirty days, as is allowed in the citation, an order must be entered by the clerk decreeing that such person has renounced his appointment as executor.

Where more than one executor is appointed in any last will and testament duly probated in any court of this State, and one or more of such executors shall have qualified before the clerk of such court, and the other executor or executors shall have failed, within thirty days thereafter to qualify or shall have renounced in writing, then the qualifying executor or executors shall be clothed with all the powers, rights and duties, and be subject to all the obligations imposed upon all of said executors, in and by the terms of said will and the laws of this State, in like manner as if the non-qualifying executor or executors had not been named in said will. (Rev., s. 13; Code, s. 2164; C. C. P., s. 451; 1931, c. 183.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added the second paragraph to this section.

Sale by One of Joint Executors.—If one of the joint executors fails to qualify, a sale of lands by the one qualifying is sufficient to pass the estate, without its appearing that the other either has renounced the executorship or refused to join in the sale. Wood v. Sparks, 18 N. C. 389, 390.

Art. 4. Public Administrator

§ 17. Appointment and term.—There may be a public administrator in every county, appointed by the clerk of the superior court for the term of four years. (Rev., s. 18; Code, s. 1389; 1868-9, c. 113; 1925, c. 253.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1925, ch. 253, reduced the number of years, for which a public administrator could be appointed, from "eight" to "four".

Property Right.—His office is a property right which cannot be divested without due process of law. Trotter v. Mitchell, 115 N. C. 190, 20 S. E. 386.

Mistake of Clerk as to Term.—The appointment of public administrator is for the time specified in the section, and is not affected by a mistake of the clerk in stating in the appointment that it was for the unexpired term of his predecessor, or fixing the term of the new appointee for less period. Boynton v. Heartt, 158 N. C. 488, 74 S. E. 470.

Not an Office within Constitutional Prohibition.—A public administrator is not a holder of a public office within the constitutional prohibition against holding more than one office, and hence a quo warranto proceeding will not lie against him simply because he is also holding the office of recorder. State v. Smith, 145 N. C. 476, 59 S. E. 649.

§ 18. Oath.—The public administrator shall take and subscribe an oath (or affirmation) faithfully and honestly to discharge the duties of his trust; and the oath so taken and subscribed must be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court. (Rev., s. 19; Code, s. 1393; 1868-9, c. 113, ss. 2, 5.

§ 19. Bond.—The public administrator shall enter into bond, with three or more sureties, approved by the clerk, in the penal sum of four thousand dollars, payable to the state of North Carolina, conditioned. faithfully to perform the duties of his office, and obey all lawful orders of the clerk or other court touching the administration of the several estates that may come into his hands, and such bond shall be renewed every two years. Whenever the aggregate value of the real and personal property belonging to the several estates in the hands of the public administrator exceeds the one-half of his bond, the clerk shall require him to enlarge his bond in amount so as to cover, at all times, at least the double of such aggregate. (Rev., s. 320; Code, ss. 1390, 1391, 1392; 1868-9, c. 113, ss. 2, 3, 4; 1915, c. 216.

Notice for Failure to Renew Bond. — A public administrator can not be removed for failure to renew his bond without being notified to show cause. Trotter v. Mitchell, 115 N. C. 190, 20 S. E. 386.

Quoted In re Brinson, 73 N. C. 278.

§ 20. When to obtain letters.—The public administrator shall apply for and obtain letters on the estates of deceased persons in the following cases.

1. When the period of six months has elapsed from the death of any decedent, and no letters testamentary, or letters of administration or collection, have been applied for, and issued to any person.

Due Qualification Prerequisite. — A public administrator acquires no rights or interest to administer an estate until he is qualified after the period allowed to the relatives to qualify in the order prescribed. In re Neal's Will, 182 N. C. 405, 109 S. E. 70.

Prior Right of Others after Six Months. — While after the expiration of six months prior rights to administration may be deemed renounced and a public administrator appointed, yet even after lapse of six months, if he is not as yet appointed, persons of prior right to administration may be appointed in preference to him. In re Bailey's Will, 141 N. C. 193, 53 S. E. 844; Hill v. Alspaugh, 72 N. C. 402.

After the expiration of six months, should the public administrator fail to apply, the field is open to the clerk of the superior court to treat all right of preference as renounced and to appoint, in the exercise of his discretion, some suitable person to administer the estate. Brooks v. Clement Co., 201 N. C. 768, 771, 161 S. E. 403.

2. When any stranger, or person without known heirs, shall die intestate in any county.

3. When any person entitled to administration shall request, in writing, the clerk to issue the letters to the public administrator. (Rev., s. 20; Code, s. 1394; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 6.

§ 21. Powers generally and on expiration of term.—The public administrator shall have, in respect to the several estates in his hands, all the rights and powers, and be subject to all the duties and liabilities of other administrators. On the expiration of the term of office of a public administrator, or his resignation, he may continue to manage the several estates committed to him prior thereto until he has fully administered the same, if he then enters into a bond as required by law for administrators. (Rev., s. 21; Code, s. 1395; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 7; 1876-7, c. 239.

Art. 5. Administrator with Will Annexed

§ 22. When letters c. t. a. issue.—If there is no executor appointed in the will or if, at any time, by reason of death, incompetency adjudged by the clerk of the superior court, renunciation, actual or decreed, or removal by order of the court, or on any other account there is no executor qualified to act, the clerk of the superior court shall issue letters of administration with the will annexed to one or more of the legatees named in said will; but if no legatee qualifies, then letters may be issued to some suitable person or persons in the order prescribed in this chapter. (Rev., s. 14; Code, s. 2166; C. C. P., s. 453; 1923, c. 63.)

Editor's Note.—The effect of the amendment of 1923, ch. 63, was to give precedence, with respect to grant of letters c. t. a., to legatees named in the will over other persons entitled to administration under section 6. See 1 N. C. L. R. 315.

Appointment of Trustee Void. — The powers and duties (at least those personal) of an executor named in a will, devolve, upon his renunciation, on the administration with the will annexed, and the appointment by the clerk of a trustee in place of the executor is void. Clark v. Peebles, 120 N. C. 31, 26 S. E. 924; Creech v. Grainger, 106 N. C. 213, 10 S. E. 1032. Council v. Averett, 95 N. C. 131; Hester v. Hester, 37 N. C. 330, he becomes a trustee for all trusts declared in the will as if he had been named executor. Jones v. Jones, 17 N. C. 387.

Powers of Administrator with the Will Annexed.—An administrator cum testaments annexo has all the rights, powers and is subject to the same duties as if he had been named as executor. Smathers v. Moody, 112 N. C. 791, 17 S. E. 532.

Appointment When There is Executor. — An administrator cum testamento annexo cannot be appointed where there is an executor laboring under no disability, until the renunciation by the latter. And an appointment in derogation of this rule is void—not merely voidable. Springs v. Irwin, 28 N. C. 27.

Principle applied in Suttle v. Turner, 53 N. C. 403, 404.

§ 23. Qualifications and bond.—Administrators with the will annexed shall have the same qualifications and give the same bond as other administrators; but the executor of an executor shall not be entitled to qualify as executor of the first testator. (Rev., s. 15; Code, s. 2167; C. C. P., s. 454; 1905, c. 286.)

Art. 6. Collectors

§ 24. Appointment of collectors.—When, for any reason, a delay is necessarily produced in the admission of a will to probate, or in granting letters testamentary, letters of administration, or letters of administration with the will annexed, the clerk may issue to some discreet person or persons, at his option, letters of collection, authorizing the collection and preservation of the property of the decedent. When, for any reason, a delay is necessary in the production of positive proof of the death of any one who may have disappeared under circumstances indicating death of such person, any person interested in the estate of such person so disappearing as heir at law, prospective heir at law, a creditor, a next friend, or any other person or persons interested, either directly or indirectly, in the estate of such person so disappearing, may file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the person so disappearng last resided, or in case such person so disappearing was at the time of his disappearance a nonresident of the State of North Carolina, with the clerk of the superior court of any county in which any property was or might have been located at the time of such disappearance, a petition for the appointment of a collector of the estate of such person so disappearing, or the property of such person so disappearing, located within the county of the clerk to whom application is made, which petition shall set forth the facts and circumstances surrounding the disappearance of such person, and which petition shall be duly verified and supported by affidavit of persons having knowledge of the circumstances under which such person so disappeared, and if from such petition and such affidavits it should appear to the clerk that the person so disappearing is probably dead, then it shall be the duty of the clerk to so find and to issue to some discreet person or persons, at his option, letters of collection authorizing the collection and the preservation of the property of such person so disappearing. (Rev., s. 22; Code, s. 1383; C. C. P., s. 463; R. C., c. 46, s. 9; 1924, c. 43.)

Editor's Note. — That part of this section which provides for the appointment of collectors in case of delay in the production of positive proof of the unknown death of any person, was enacted by the amendment of 1924, ch. 43. As to the effect upon this section of the amendment of 1924, see 3 N. C. L. R. 14.

Appointee in Discretion of Clerk. — It is discretionary with the clerk to appoint as collector either the person named as executor in the writing purporting to be the will, or some other person. In re Little's Will, 187 N. C. 177, 121 S. E. 453.

After a Will Admitted to Probate. — After a will has been admitted to probate in common form and letters testamentary have been issued, the clerk cannot remove the executor and appoint a collector, without a hearing based on notice to show cause why he should not be removed. In re Palmer's Will, 117 N. C. 133, 134, 23 S. E. 104.

Appointment When Proper. — A collector is appointed only when there is no one in rightful charge of the estate, and this section is applicable only to cases where there are difficulties in limine disconnected with controversy or contest over the will, preventing the admission of the will to probate or the issuing of letters testamentary, e. g., protracted absence of witnesses, illness of the executor, etc., also where a caveat is entered at the time the will is offered to probate. In re Palmer's Will, 117 N. C. 133, 134, 23 S. E. 104.

§ 25. Qualifications and bond.—Every collector shall have the qualifications and give the bond prescribed by law for an administrator. (Rev., s. 23; Code, s. 1384; C. C. P., s. 464.)

§ 26. Powers of collectors.—Every collector has authority to collect the personal property, preserve and secure the same, and collect the debts and credits of the decedent, and for these purposes he may commence and maintain or defend suits, and he may sell, under the direction and order of the clerk, any personal property for the preservation and benefit of the estate. He may be sued for debts due by the decedent, and he may pay funeral expenses and other debts. (Rev., s. 24; Code, s. 1385; C. C. P., s. 465; R. C., c. 46, s. 6; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 115.)

Power to Lease Land.—A collector has no power to enter upon and make leases of land. Lee v. Lee, 74 N. C. 70.

§ 27. When collector's powers cease; duty to account.—When letters testamentary, letters of administration or letters of administration with the will annexed are granted, the powers of such collector shall cease, but any suit brought by the collector may be continued by his successor, the executor or the administrator, in his own name. Such collector must, on demand, deliver to the executor or administrator all the property, rights and credits of the decedent under his control, and render an account, on oath, to the clerk of all his proceedings. Such delivery and account may be enforced by citation, order or attachment. (Rev., s. 25; Code, s. 1386; C. C. P., s. 466; R. C., 46, s. 7; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 115.)

Allowance of Counsel Fee. — A collector who resists the claim of the executor is not entitled to an allowance for counsel fees paid by him in such litigation, where the executor prevail in the litigation. Johnson v. Marcom, 121 N. C. 83, 28 S. E. 58.

Art. 7. Appointment and Revocation

§ 28. Facts to be shown on applying for administration.—On application for letters of administration, the clerk must ascertain by affidavit of the applicant or otherwise—

1. The death of the decedent and his intestacy.

Administration of Living Person's Estate. — Grant of administration upon the estate of a living man and a decree for the sale of his lands are void for lack of jurisdiction. Springer v. Shavender, 118 N. C. 33, 23 S. E. 976.

2. That the applicant is the proper person entitled to administration, or that he applies after the renunciation of the person or persons so entitled.

3. The value and nature of the intestate's property, the names and residence of all parties entitled as heirs or distributees of the estate, if known, or that the same cannot, on diligent inquiry, be procured; which of said parties are minors, and whether with or without guardians, and the names and residences of such guardians, if known. Such affidavit or other proof must be recorded and filed by the clerk. (Rev., s. 26; Code, s. 1381; C. C. P., s. 461.)

§ 29. Right to contest application for letters; proceedings. — Any person interested in the estate may, on complaint filed and notice to the applicant, contest the right of such applicant to letters of administration, and on any issue of fact joined, or matter of law arising on the pleadings, the cause may be transferred to the superior court for trial, or an appeal be taken, as in other special proceedings. (Rev., s. 27; Code, s. 1382; C. C. P., s. 462.)

Title of Property Not Question of Fact. — A dispute as to the title of property of the decedent is not such an issue of fact as is required by this section to be transferred to the superior court for trial. In re Tapp's Estate, 114 N. C. 248, 19 S. E. 150.

Collateral Attack after Letters Issued. — Once the letters are issued and appointment made, they cannot be collaterally attacked. Thus in an action by the administrator against defendant for damages for killing the decedent negligently, the legality of his appointment on the ground of residence cannot be raised. Fann v. North Carolina R. Co., 155 N. C. 136, 71 S. E. 81; Batchelor v. Overton, 158 N. C. 395, 74 S. E. 20.

§ 30. Letters of administration revoked on proof of will.—If, after the letters of administration are issued, a will is subsequently proved and letters testamentary are issued thereon; or if, after letters testamentary are issued, a revocation of the will or a subsequent testamentary paper revoking the appointment of executors is proved and letters are issued thereon, the clerk of the superior court must thereupon revoke the letters first issued, by an order in writing to be served on the person to whom such first letters were issued; and, until service thereof, the acts of such person, done in good faith, are valid. (Rev., s. 37; Code, s. 2170; C. C. P., s. 469.)

Applied in Shober v. Wheeler, 144 N. C. 403, 57 S. E. 152.

§ 31. Letters revoked on application of surviving husband or widow or next of kin, or for disqualification or default. — If, after any letters have been issued, it appears to the clerk, or if complaint is made to him on affidavit, that the surviving husband or widow or next of kin in the order of priority set out in subsections one and two of section six of article three of this chapter applies for letters of administration on said estate, and notwithstanding said applicants may have renounced their right to administer, if otherwise qualified, or that any person to whom they were issued is legally incompetent to have such letters, or that such person has been guilty of default or misconduct in the due execution of his office, or that issue of such letters was obtained by false representations made by such person, the clerk shall issue an order requiring such person to show cause why the letters should not be revoked. On the return of such order, duly executed, if the objections are found valid, the letters issued to such person must be revoked and superseded, and his authority shall thereupon cease. (Rev., s. 38; Code, 2171; C. C. P., s. 470; 1921, c. 98.)

Editor's Note. — That part of this section which authorizes the revocation of letters upon the application of the surviving husband or widow or the next of kin, is introduced by the amendment of 1923, ch. 63. Prior to that, revocation was confined to causes of incompetency, default or misconduct of the representative in office.

Power to Revoke Power to Refuse. — The power vested in clerk under this section to revoke letters for good cause carries with it the power to refuse to grant letters for cause for which a revocation would be justified. In re Will of Gulley, 186 N. C. 78, 80, 118 S. E. 839.

Clerk Has Primary and Original Jurisdiction. — The clerk under this section has original and primary jurisdiction of a probate judge to revoke letters, subject to review upon appeal by either party, and to this end he may require issues of fact to be tried by a jury in the superior court. Murrill v. Sandlin, 86 N. C. 54.

Refusal to Disclose Information. — Refusal on the part of the executor named in the will to disclose information as to the amount and nature of personalty coming into his possession, as to other matters relative to his fitness, is a ground for withholding or revoking letters testamentary to him, and granting them to some other person. In re Will of Gulley, 186 N. C. 78, 118 S. E. 839.

Appeal from Order of Clerk.—The powers of the clerk to remove executors and administrators, conferred by this section, are reviewable on appeal to the judge of the Superior Court of the county. Wright v. Ball, 200 N. C. 620, 158 S. E. 192.

Where the Superior Court judge, upon appeal from the order of the clerk of the court in removing executors or administrators of an estate, has exercised his discretion in retaining the cause in the Superior Court instead of remanding it to the clerk, the exercise of this discretion is not reviewable on appeal to the Supreme Court. Wright v. Ball, 200 N. C. 620, 158 S. E. 192.

But the judgment of the clerk is not a final adjudication of the unfitness of such person and is subject to review by the superior court judge, and as to matters of law by the Supreme Court of appeal. In re Will of Gulley, 186 N. C. 78, 118 S. E. 839; In re Battle's Estate, 158 N. C. 388, 74 S. E. 23; Tulburt v. Hollar, 102 N. C. 406, 9 S. E. 430; Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4; Barnes v. Brown, 79 N. C. 401. It is not required that he transfer the cause to the superior court for the trial of the issue. In re Battle, supra.

Necessity of Order to Show Cause. — The clerk cannot appoint a collector, (when the will has been probated and executor qualified) and remove the executor without a hearing based on notice to show cause why he should not be removed. In re Palmer's Will, 117 N. C. 133, 134, 23 S. E. 104. Nor can he remove a public administrator without such notice. Trotter v. Mitchell, 115 N. C. 190, 20 S. E. 386.

Statement of Belief in Affidavit.—A statement in an affidavit for the removal of executor, of a mere belief that he will misapply the funds is not sufficient for removal. It should state the facts or reasons upon which such belief is based. Neighbors v. Hamlin, 78 N. C. 42.

Failure to Discharge Duties — Ground of Removal. — Where the executor becomes bankrupt and is the owner of no property, and has neglected for six years to file an inventory or return of any sort, and has failed to convert the personal property into money, upon application of creditors he may be required to give bond or, in default, be removed. Barnes v. Brown, 79 N. C. 401; for failure to make statement of account. Armstrong v. Stowe, 77 N. C. 360.

Insolvency in Lifetime of Testator. — But an executor will not be removed for insolvency, if such was his condition in the lifetime of his testator and known to him, when there is no evidence of waste or misapplication of funds. In re Knowles' Estate, 148 N. C. 461, 62 S. E. 549.

Poverty of an executor is not of itself a reason for restraining him from administering the estate. There must be some maladministration or some danger of loss from his misconduct or negligence for which he will not be able to answer by reason of his insolvency. Wilkins v. Harris, 60 N. C. 592.

Nor is poverty a ground to require him to give bond as an alternative of giving up his office. Fairbairn v. Fisher, 57 N. C. 390.

Disqualification for Adverse Interest. — Where there is no evidence of bad faith or fraudulent concealment, claiming by the administrator that he owned jointly with the decedent a part of the personal estate of the latter, is not such an adverse interest as to disqualify him in his office. Morgan v. Morgan, 156 N. C. 169, 72 S. E. 206.

Pleading and Procedure. — The application to remove an executor may be made by any person rightfully interested, by petition or motion in writing, or formal complaint, setting forth the grounds of application supported by affidavit. The allegations thus made may be met by a demurrer in a proper case, or by answer. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4, 5, 9.

§ 32. On revocation, successor appointed and estate secured.—In all cases of the revocation of letters, the clerk must immediately appoint some other person to succeed in the administration of the estate; and pending any suit or proceeding between parties respecting such revocation, the clerk is authorized to make such interlocutory order as, without injury to the rights and remedies of creditors, may tend to the better securing of the estate. (Rev., s. 35; Code, s. 1521; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 92.)

Order to Make Return and Settlement. — The removed administrator may be ordered to make immediate return and settlement of the estate in his hands. Until that is done he is within the jurisdiction of the court. In re Brinson, 73 N. C. 278.

See also, Taylor v. Biddle, 71 N. C. 1, where administrator was removed and an administrator de bonis non appointed.

Order to Surrender Funds. — It is proper for the clerk to order the displaced representative to surrender the funds in his possession belonging to the estate. Battle v. Duncan, 90 N. C. 546, 550.

Amount of Bond Dependent on What. — The framers of this section must have contemplated that the amount of bond should depend upon the application and examination of the principal named in it, unless the clerk preferred to examine another person. Williams v. Neville, 108 N. C. 559, 565, 13 S. E. 240.

Upon the examination of the applicant, the clerk may value the property at a higher figure than he had previously done. Williams v. Neville, 108 N. C. 559, 565, 13 S. E. 240.

Effect of Failure to Give Proper Bond. — The mere fact the bond of the representative is not justified before or approved by the clerk does not render the appointment void, or necessarily voidable. The provisions of this section requiring bond are directory and not essential to the appointment. It is only in the exercise of their jurisdictional functions that the clerks must observe these provisions as a condition precedent to the validity of their act. The only effect of noncompliance with these requirements is that the representative may be made to give the proper bond required. Garrison v. Cox, 95 N. C. 353, 357.

Good faith and the exercise of ordinary care and reasonable diligence are all that is required of executors and administrators, and covered by their bond. Moore v. Eure, 101 N. C. 11, 7 S. E. 471; Smith v. Patton, 131 N. C. 396, 42 S. E. 849; Atkinson v. Whitehead, 66 N. C. 296.

Money Received Covered by Bond.—Money applied for by an administrator, and paid to him as such, is received under color of his office and is covered by his bond. Lafferty v. Young, 125 N. C. 296, 34 S. E. 444.

Bond When Not Essential.—The execution of a bond, though incidental, is not an essential condition of an order admitting the plaintiff to prosecute an action as administrator. Hughes v. Hodges, 94 N. C. 56, 61.

Nor is the giving of the bond essential to the efficiency of the act of appointment itself. Howerton v. Sexton, 104 N. C. 75, 86, 10 S. E. 148; Hoskins v. Miller, 13 N. C. 360; Spencer v. Cahoon, 15 N. C. 225; Spencer v. Cahoon, 18 N. C. 27; Garrison v. Cox, 95 N. C. 353, 357.

When a foreign executor was regularly appointed and qualified his failure to give the bond specified by this section is only an irregularity and cannot be collaterally attacked. Batchelor v. Overton, 158 N. C. 395, 74 S. E. 20.

Art. 8. Bonds

§ 33. Bond; approval; condition; penalty.—Every executor from whom a bond is required by law, and every administrator and collector, before letters are issued, must give a bond payable to the state, with two or more sufficient sureties, to be justified before and approved by the clerk, conditioned that such executor, administrator or collector shall faithfully execute the trust reposed in him and obey all lawful orders of the clerk or other court touching the administration of the estate committed to him. Where such bond is executed by personal sureties, the penalty of such bond must be, at least, double the value of all the personal property of the deceased, but where such bond shall be executed by a duly authorized surety company, the penalty in such bond may be fixed at not less than one and one-fourth times the value of all the personal property of the deceased. The value of said personal property shall be ascertained by the clerk by examination, on oath, of the applicant or of some other competent person. If the personal property of any decedent is insufficient to pay his debts and the charges of administration, and it becomes necessary for his executor or administrator to apply for the sale of real estate for assets, and the bond previously given is not double the value of both the real and personal estate of the deceased, such executor (if bond is required of him by law) or administrator shall, before or at the time of filing his petition for such sale, give another bond payable and conditioned as the one above prescribed and with like security, in double the value of the real estate for the sale of which application is made, provided, however, that where such bond shall be executed by a duly authorized surety company, the penalty of said bond need not exceed one and one-fourth times the value of said real estate. (Rev., s. 319; Code, s. 1388; 1870-1, 93; C. C. P., s. 468; 1935, c. 386.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 changed the penalty of the bond as formerly prescribed by the second sentence and added the proviso appearing at the end of the section.

Action May Be Brought on Bond to Recover Amount Due Estate.—Where an administrator, who has not fully administered the estate of his intestate, has died or has been removed from his office, an action may be maintained against his personal representative or against him, as the case may be, and the surety on his bond, to recover the amount due by him to the estate of his intestate, by one who has been duly appointed and has duly qualified as administrator d. b. n. of his intestate. Tulburt v. Hollar, 102 N. C. 406, 9 S. E. 430. The failure to account for and to pay such amount is a breach of the statutory bond. State v. Dunn, 206 N. C. 373, 374, 173 S. E. 900.

Applied in State v. Purvis, 208 N. C. 227.

Cited in Carolina Power & Light Co. v. Reeves, 198 N. C. 404, 405, 151 S. E. 871.

§ 34. When executor to give bond.—Executors shall give bond as prescribed by law in the following cases:

Bankrupt Executor.—When an executor who is no owner of property has become bankrupt and has failed to file an inventory or return, the court (now the clerk) upon application of creditors may require him to give bond or in default remove him. Barnes v. Brown, 79 N. C. 401. But his insolvency known to the testator is no ground for requiring bond. Neighbors v. Hamlin, 78 N. C. 42.

Converting Assets into Money and Notes.—Where an executor converts his real and personal estate into notes and money, so as to lead to a reasonable apprehension that the assets are not sufficiently secure in his hands, it becomes the duty of the court to order that he give bond for the protection of the assets. Gray v. Gaither, 74 N. C. 237.

1. Where the executor resides out of the state. Except in the cases otherwise provided in this chapter, no foreign executor has any authority to intermeddle with the estate, until he has entered into bond, and the bond must be given not later than one year after the death of the testator.

Foreign Executors.—Under this subsection a foreign executor must apply to the clerk of the superior court for ancillary letters of administration and give bond. First Nat. Bank v. Pancake, 172 N. C. 513, 515, 90 S. E. 515.

Owing to the prohibition contained in this subsection, deeds made by foreign executors transferring lands situated in this state, under a power in the will to sell, convey no title until the statutory requirements have been complied with. Glascock v. Gray, 148 N. C. 346, 62 S. E. 433. But by section 38 of this chapter, (enacted subsequently) such conveyances executed under circumstances referred to prior to 1911, are validated by the express terms of that section.

But where such executor has been regularly appointed in all other respects, his failure to give bond under this subsection is only an irregularity and cannot be collaterally attacked in an action brought by him. Batchelor v. Overton, 158 N. C. 395, 396, 74 S. E. 20.

Removal to Federal Court.—A foreign executor will be required to give bond required by this section to remove a cause, instituted against his testate in his lifetime, to the Federal court on the ground of diversity of citizenship. First Nat. Bank v. Pancake, 172 N. C. 513, 514, 90 S. E. 515.

Meaning of Estate.—The use of the words "estate" in this subsection denotes real as well as personal estate. Glascock v. Gray, 148 N. C. 346, 62 S. E. 433.

2. When a man marries a woman who is an executrix, and if the husband in such case fail to give bond, the clerk, on application of any creditor or other party interested in the estate, shall revoke the letters issued to the wife and grant letters of administration with the will annexed to some other person.

Executrix's Remarriage and Wasting the Assets.—Where it appeared that a wife, executrix of her first husband, remarried and was using the estate carelessly and without accounting therefor, it was held proper to require her to account and give bond. Godwin v. Watford, 107 N. C. 168, 169, 11 S. E. 1051.

3. Where an executor, other than such as may have already given bond, obtains an order to sell any portion of the real estate for the payment of debts, as hereinafter provided, the court or clerk to whom application is made shall require, before granting any order of sale, such executor to enter into bond. (Rev., s. 28; Code, s. 1515; R. C., c. 46, ss. 12, 13.)

§ 35. When executor may give bond after one year.—Where a nonresident of the state by will sufficient according to the laws of the state, and duly probated and recorded in the proper county, devises real property situated in this state, the executor acting under the will, if he has not intermeddled with the property devised in the will, and if no letters of administration in this state on the estate have been issued subsequent to the probate of the will, may, after the expiration of one year from the testator's death, give bond in double the value of the property devised, and he shall then be entitled to all the rights, powers and privileges of a resident executor. (1909, c. 825.)

§ 36. No bond in certain cases of executor with power to convey.—Where a citizen or subject of a foreign county or any other state of the United States, by will sufficient according to the laws of this state, and duly probated and recorded in the proper county, devises to his executor, with power to sell and convey, real property situated in this state in trust for a person named in the will, the power being vested in the executor as such trustee, the executor may execute the power without giving bond in this state. (1909, c. 901; 1925, c. 284.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1925, c. 284, citizens of other states of the United States were brought into the operation of this section.

§ 37. No bond where will does not require bond and co-executor a resident.—A nonresident executor appointed under a will which does not require the executor's bond shall not be required to give bond, if a resident of the state is appointed and qualifies as co-executor, unless the clerk of the court of the county where the will is first probated shall, upon the petition of the creditors or beneficiaries of the estate, deem the bond of the nonresident executor necessary for the protection of the creditors or beneficiaries. This section applies to nonresident executors who qualified before its enactment as well as to those qualifying afterwards. (1911, c. 176; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 86.)

Editor's Note.—The only effect of the amendment of 1920, c. 86, was to substitute the words "does not require the executor's bond," near the beginning of this section, for the original words "dispenses with the executor's bond."

§ 38. Certain executor's deeds without bond before 1911 validated.—Where prior to January

first, one thousand nine hundred and eleven, a nonresident executor has sold and conveyed lands in this state under a power in the will of a citizen of another state or of a foreign country, and the will was executed according to the laws of this state and was duly proved and recorded in the state or foreign country where the testator and his family and the executor resided, the sale and conveyance is valid although the executor prior to the execution of the deed had not given bond or obtained letters in this state. (1911, c. 90.)

Constitutionality.—This section validating conveyances therein referred to is not unconstitutional as impairing a vested right. Vaught v. Williams, 177 N. C. 77, 97 S. E. 737.

§ 39. Oath and bond required before letters issue.—Before letters testamentary, letters of administration or letters of collection are issued to any person, he must give the bond required by law and must take and subscribe an oath or affirmation before the clerk, or before any other officer of any state or country authorized by the laws of North Carolina to administer oaths, that he will faithfully and honestly discharge the duties of his trust, which oath must be filed in the office of the clerk. (Rev., s. 29; Code, ss. 1387, 1388, 2169; C. C. P., ss. 467, 468; 1870-1, c. 93; 1923, c. 56.)

Editor's Note.—The part of this section which permits the taking of the oath before any officer of any state or county, was inserted by the act of 1923, ch. 56. See 1 N. C. L. R. 315.

See annotations, ante, to sections 33, 34.

§ 39(a). Oath before notary; curative statute.—In all cases prior to January the first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two, in which any foreign executor qualified or attempted to qualify as such executor by taking and subscribing the oath or affirmation required by law, before a notary public of this or any other state or territory of the United States, instead of taking and subscribing said oath or affirmation before the clerk, and having in all other respects complied with the laws of North Carolina prescribed for and pertaining to the qualification and appointment of foreign executors, such qualification and the letters testamentary issued in all such cases are hereby validated and made legal and binding. In all cases mentioned in this section, wherein such foreign executor has entered upon the discharge of the duties of such office and has performed any duty or exercised the powers and authority of such office regularly and according to law, except for the defect in the qualification and issuance of letters testamentary, then all such acts of any such executor are validated and are declared to be legal and binding. This section shall not affect litigation pending February 10, 1925, nor disturb any vested rights. (1925, c. 19.)

§ 40. Right of action on bond.—Every person injured by the breach of any bond given by an executor, administrator or collector may put the same in suit and recover such damages as he may have sustained. (Rev., s. 30; Code, s. 1516; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 87.)

Only Good Faith Guaranteed.—Bonds of administrators, executors, guardians, etc., guarantee only good faith. Smith v. Patton, 131 N. C. 396, 397, 42 S. E. 849; Moore v. Eure, 101 N. C. 11, 7 S. E. 471.

Action in Whose Name.—Actions upon the bonds of guardians, administrators, executors and collectors must be brought in the name of the state. Norman v. Walker, 101 N. C. 24, 7 S. E. 468.

In fact actions on all bonds payable to the state must be brought in the name of the state. The statute requiring the real party in interest to prosecute does not apply to such actions. Carmichael v. Moore, 88 N. C. 29.

But the objection to the omission to bring in state's name may be obviated by a motion to amend. Wilson v. Pearson, 102 N. C. 290, 291, 9 S. E. 707. Amendment will be allowed even in the Supreme Court. Grant v. Rogers, 94 N. C. 755.

When an administrator dies, no one but an administrator de bonis non of his intestate can call his representative to account for the assets or sue on his bond. Merrill v. Merrill, 92 N. C. 657; State v. Goodman, 72 N. C. 508; Carlton v. Byers, 70 N. C. 691. And the next of kin cannot call for an account or settlement without having an administrator before the court. Lansdell v. Winstead, 76 N. C. 366, 367. (But see the dissenting opinion in Merrill v. Merrill, supra. See also, Neal v. Becknell, 85 N. C. 299, holding that the bond of an administrator whose appointment has been revoked may be sued on by his successor in office or by the next of kin.)

Thus where an administrator sells lands for assets to pay debts, and expends only a part of the fund for that purpose and dies before filing a final account, only an administrator de bonis non (not the next of kin) of his intestate can maintain an action on the bond to recover the unexpended balance. Neagle v. Hall, 115 N. C. 415, 20 S. E. 516; Tulburt v. Hollar, 102 N. C. 406, 9 S. E. 430. But where the administrator refuses to sue creditors may sue, making him a party defendant. Wilson v. Pearson, 102 N. C. 290, 291, 9 S. E. 707.

Breach Not Merged in Judgment.—A judgment for damages on the breach of an administrator's bond does not merge the cause of action. The latter is satisfied only by actual payment. Wilson v. Pearson, 102 N. C. 290, 291, 9 S. E. 707.

Action against Sureties.—An action can be maintained on an administration bond against the sureties before obtaining judgment against the administrator. Chairman of Court v. Moore, 6 N. C. 22; Williams v. Hicks, 5 N. C. 437; Strickland v. Murphy, 52 N. C. 242; Bratton v. Davidson, 79 N. C. 423.

What Constitutes Breach of Bond.—Bonds of administrators, executors, etc., guarantee good faith and reasonable care only. Smith v. Patton, 131 N. C. 396, 42 S. E. 849; Moore v. Eure, 101 N. C. 11, 7 S. E. 471; Atkinson v. Whitehead, 66 N. C. 296; Syme v. Badger, 92 N. C. 706. Executors are not insures. Nelson v. Hall, 58 N. C. 32; Beall v. Darden, 39 N. C. 76.

It is not breach of an administrator's bond to refuse to pay a claim until the same is established by judgment. Gill v. Cooper, 111 N. C. 311, 16 S. E. 316.

Where an administrator pays taxes out of the fund of the estate assessed against his intestate as guardian, it is an improper disbursement and his bond is liable therefor. Worthy v. Brower, 93 N. C. 344. So also where he pays inferior debts. Id.

Where a devastavit is charged the primary liability rests upon the administration bond. But a failure to apply for license to sell land for assets is not of itself a breach of such bond. Hawkins v. Carpenter, 88 N. C. 403.

Where an administrator fails to exhibit in court his final account at the end of two years from his qualification, the distributees may bring suit upon his bond, alleging such failure as a breach of the bond. Bratton v. Davidson, 79 N. C. 423.

An act of administrator done with the concurrence of the creditor will not entitle the latter to charge the former with a devastavit. Cain v. Hawkins, 50 N. C. 192.

Venue of Suit.—An administrator or executor must be sued as such in the county in which he took out letters of administration or letters testamentary, provided he or any one of his sureties lives in that county, whether he is sued upon his bond or simply as administrator or executor. Stanley v. Mason, 69 N. C. 1; Foy v. Morehead, 69 N. C. 512.

§ 41. Rights of surety in danger of loss.—Any surety on the bond of an executor, administrator or collector, who is in danger of sustaining loss by his suretyship, may exhibit his petition on oath to the clerk of the superior court wherein the bond was given, setting forth particularly the circumstances of his case, and asking that such executor, administrator or collector be removed from office, or that he give security to indemnify the petitioner against apprehended loss, or that the petitioner be released from responsibility on account of any future breach of the bond. The clerk shall issue a citation to the principal in the bond, requiring him, within ten days after service thereof, to answer the petition. If, upon the hearing of the case, the clerk deem the surety entitled to relief, he may grant the same in such manner and to such extent as may be just. And if the principal in the bond gives new or additional security, to the satisfaction of the clerk, within such reasonable time as may be required, the clerk may make an order releasing the surety from liability on the bond for any subsequent act, default or misconduct of the principal. (Rev., s. 33; Code, s. 1519; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 90.)

§ 42. On revocation of letters, bond liable to successors.—When the letters of an executor, administrator or collector are revoked, his bond may be prosecuted by the person or persons succeeding to the administration of the estate, and a recovery may be had thereon to the full extent of any damage, not exceeding the penalty of the bond, sustained by the estate of the decedent by the acts or omissions of such executor, administrator or collector, and to full value of any property received and not duly administered. Moneys so recovered shall be assets in the hands of the person recovering them. (Rev., s. 31; Code, s. 1517; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 88.)

See annotations to ante, section 40.

Administrator Must Sue.—The administrator de bonis non must first sue on the bond of a defaulting executor who preceded him, before he can obtain a license to sell the real estate for the payment of the debts. Carlton v. Byers, 70 N. C. 691. But where the preceding administrator is insolvent, his bond lost, and sureties unknown, the administrator de bonis non need not bring suit before he can obtain such license. Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 547, 10 S. E. 701.

Action—By Whom Brought.—The action on the bond of the removed representative must be brought by the administrator de bonis non, and not by the next of kin. Tulburt v. Hollar, 102 N. C. 406, 9 S. E. 430.

§ 43. When new bond or new sureties required.—If complaint be made on affidavit to the clerk of the superior court that the surety on any bond of an executor, administrator or collector is insufficient, or that one or more of such sureties is or is about to become a nonresident of this state, or that the bond is inadequate in amount, the clerk must issue an order requiring the principal in the bond to show cause why he should not give a new bond, or further surety, as the case may be. On the return of the order duly executed, if the objections in the complaint are found valid, the clerk shall make an order requiring the party to give further surety or a new bond in a larger amount within a reasonable time. (Rev., s. 32; Code, s. 1518-9, c. 113, s. 89.)

Mortgage Instead of Bond. — An administrator who is also the heir of the intestate can not satisfy the requirement of an additional bond or security by mortgaging lands of his intestates, as such lands are already liable for the debts. In re Sellars, 118 N. C. 573, 24 S. E. 430.

§ 44. On failure, to give new bond, letters revoked.—If any person required to give a new bond, or further security, or security to indemnify, under the two preceding sections, fails to do so within the time specified in any such order, the clerk must forthwith revoke the letters issued to such person, whose right and authority, respecting the estate, shall thereupon cease. (Rev., s. 34; Code, s. 1520; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 91.)

Notice to Show Cause Essential. — A judgment removing a public administrator for failure to renew his bond, without notice to show cause, is not only irregular but void. Trotter v. Mitchell, 115 N. C. 190, 20 S. E. 386.

Clerk Has Jurisdiction. — The clerks of the superior courts have jurisdiction of proceedings for the removal of executors and administrators. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4.

Art. 9. Notice to Creditors

§ 45. Advertisement for claims.—Every executor, administrator and collector, within twenty days after the granting of letters, shall notify all persons having claims against the decedent to exhibit the same to such executor, administrator or collector, at or before a day to be named in such notice; which day must be twelve months from the day of the first publication of such notice. The notice shall be published once a week for six weeks in a newspaper, if any there be published in the county. If there is no newspaper published in the county, then the notice shall be posted at the courthouse and four other public places in the county. The cost of publishing in a paper shall in no case exceed two dollars and fifty cents. (Rev., s. 39; Code, ss. 1421, 1422; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 29; 1881, c. 278, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1931, c. 64, applicable only to Edgecombe and Nash Counties, amended this section by inserting in line eleven thereof, after the word "county" and immediately before the period, the following: "or in the city or town in which the deceased resided at the time of death," and by inserting in line twelve thereof, after the word "county" and immediately before the comma, the following: "or in the city or town in which the deceased resided at the time of death."

Public Laws 1933, c. 414, made the amendment of 1931, which was applicable in Nash and Edgecombe, applicable in Nash alone.

Time of Presenting Claims. — Before distribution of the estate to the next of kin, it is the duty of the administrator to pay the debts of the estate, provided such debts are presented within twelve months next after publication under this section. As against claims presented after that period he will not be chargeable with any distribution he may have made in good faith. Mallard v. Patterson, 108 N. C. 255, 13 S. E. 93.

Advertisement Essential to Bar Claims. — The mere lapse of time does not bar the creditor's claims against the estate. Only where the advertisement provided under this section has been made does the statute of limitation begin to run. Love v. Ingram, 104 N. C. 600, 10 S. E. 77. But see, Morissey v. Hill, 142 N. C. 355, 55 S. E. 193, where it was held that this section was enacted more for the protection of the representative, and hence a claim would be barred independent of whether the advertisement provided by this section was published or not. To the same effect, see also, Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 2 S. E. 235; but see the dissenting opinion of Judge Merrimon.

Where the administrator neither avers nor proves that he gave the notice required by this section, the objection that the creditor has not shown that he ever presented his claim will not avail. Valentine v. Britton, 127 N. C. 57, 59, 37 S. E. 74; Love v. Ingram, supra. But see, Morissey v. Hill, supra.

§ 46. Proof of advertisement.—A copy of the advertisement directed to be posted or published in pursuance of the preceding section, with an affidavit, taken before some person authorized to administer oaths, of the proprietor, editor or foreman of the newspaper wherein the same appeared, to the effect that such notice was published for six weeks in said newspaper, or an affidavit stating that such notices were posted, shall be filed in the office of the clerk by the executor, administrator or collector. The copy so verified or affidavit shall be deemed a record of the court, and a copy thereof, duly certified by the clerk, shall be received as conclusive evidence of the fact of publication in all the courts of this state. (Rev., s. 40; Code, s. 1423; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 31.)

Necessity of Proof. — When an administrator pleads to a bill the provision of law which prescribes the time of bringing suits against him, he is bound to show by proof that he advertised as required by the statute. Gilliam v. Willey, 54 N. C. 128.

§ 47. Personal notice to creditor.—The executor, administrator or collector may cause the notice to be personally served on any creditor, who shall, thereupon, within six months after personal service thereof, exhibit his claim, or be forever barred from maintaining any action thereon. (Rev., s. 41; Code, s. 1424; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 32; 1885, c. 96.)

See annotations under section 45.

Art. 10. Inventory

§ 48. Inventory within three months.—Every executor, administrator and collector, within three months after his qualification, shall return to the clerk, on oath, a just, true and perfect inventory of all the real estate, goods and chattels of the deceased, which have come to his hands, or to the hands of any person for him, which inventory shall be signed by him and be recorded by the clerk. He shall also return to the clerk, on oath, within three months after each sale made by him, a full and itemized account thereof, which shall be signed by him and recorded by the clerk. (Rev., s. 42; Code, 1396; R. C., c. 46, s. 16; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 8.)

Conclusiveness of Inventory. — An inventory is but prima facie evidence to charge the executor with assets, so as to call on him for proof to rebut it. Hoover v. Miller, 51 N. C. 79. It is prima facie evidence of the solvency of persons owing debts to the estate and described in the inventory. It may be shown that the personal representative made errors in describing and noting the debts. But it seems that it is not evidence against an administrator de bonis non. Grant v. Reese, 94 N. C. 720.

Statement of Doubtful Debts. — Where an executor returns an inventory of debts without stating that some of the debts are doubtful, he will be held responsible for them, unless he can show that there were set offs against them, or that the debtors were insolvent. Graham v. Davidson, 22 N. C. 155. But where he inventories them as "doubtful", prima facie he will not be chargeable with them. Gay v. Grant, 101 N. C. 206, 8 S. E. 99, 106.

Return of Joint Executors. — Either one of joint executors making a joint return of inventory are answerable for what appears thereon, if it does not show what came to the hand of the other alone. Graham v. Davidson, 22 N. C. 155.

Barred of Commissions. — Failure to file an inventory coupled with acts of gross negligence and want of care in the management of the estate held to deprive the personal representative of his right to commissions. Grant v. Reese 94 N. C. 720; Stonestreet v. Frost, 125 N. C. 640, 31 S. E. 836.

Removal from Office. — Where the executor failed to file the inventory required and was also guilty of other acts of mismanagement it was held that he could be required to give bond or be removed from his office. Barnes v. Brown, 79 N. C. 401.

May Be Compelled to Account or File Inventory. — If the personal representative has failed to file his inventory or his accounts, he can be compelled to do so upon application to the clerk of the superior court. Atkinson v. Ricks, 140 N. C. 418, 53 S. E. 230.

Transfer of Funds to Other Jurisdiction. — The inventory required by this section must be filed before the transfer of moneys to another jurisdiction. Grant v. Rogers, 94 N. C. 755, 762.

Cited in In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 172 S. E. 345.

§ 49. Compelling the inventory.—If the inventory and account of sale specified in the preceding section are not returned as therein prescribed, the clerk must issue an order requiring the executor, administrator or collector to file the same within the time specified in the order, which shall not be less than twenty days, or to show cause why an attachment should not be issued against him. If, after due service of the order, the executor, administrator, or collector does not, on the return day of the order, file such inventory or account of sale, or obtain further time to file the same, the clerk shall have power to vacate the office of administrator, executor or collector. And under all proceedings provided for in this section, the defaulting executor, administrator or collector shall be personally liable for the costs of such proceeding to be taxed against him by the clerk of the superior court, or deducted from any commissions which may be found due such executor, administrator or collector upon final settlement of the estate. And the sheriffs of the several counties to whom a process is directed under the provisions of this section shall serve the same without demanding their fees in advance. (Rev., s. 43; Code, s. 1397; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 9; 1929, c. 9, s. 1; 1933, c. 100.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added next to the last sentence to this section. Public Laws 1933, c. 100 added the last sentence of this section as it now reads.

Clerk's Original Jurisdiction. — Under this section the clerk has original jurisdiction to remove the representative for not filing the inventory required. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4, 8.

Clerk Has Power to Remove even Independent of Statute. —The clerk has power of removal for the failure of the administrator to discharge the duties of his office as prescribed by law. And even without invoking the aid of statute the power of removal is inherent in the office at common law, and must of necessity be so to prevent a failure of justice. Taylor v. Biddle, 71 N. C. 1, 5.

§ 50. New assets inventoried.—When further property of any kind, not included in any previous return, comes to the hands or knowledge of any executor, administrator or collector, he must cause the same to be returned, as hereinbefore prescribed, within three months after the possession or discovery thereof; and the making of such return of new assets, from time to time, may be enforced in the same manner as in the case of the first inventory. (Rev., s. 44; Code, s. 1398; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 10.)

§ 51. Trustees in wills to file inventories and accounts.—Trustees appointed in any will admitted to probate in this state, into whose hands assets come under the provisions of the will, shall file in the office of the clerk of the county where the will is probated inventories of the assets and annual and final accounts thereof, such as are required of executors and administrators. The power of the clerk to enforce the filing and his duties in respect to audit and record shall be the same as in such cases. This section shall not apply to any will in which a different provision is made for filing inventories and accounts. (1907, c. 804.)

Art. 11. Assets

§ 52. Distinction between legal and equitable assets abolished.—The distinction between legal and equitable assets is abolished, and all assets shall be applied in the discharge of debts in the manner prescribed by this chapter. (Rev., s. 45; Code, s. 1406; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 14.)

What Constitutes Assets — Rents Liable for Debts. — The rents on devised land may be subjected by the personal representative to the payment of the debts of deceased. Shell v. West, 130 N. C. 171, 41 S. E. 65.

Same—Rent Accruing before and after Death. — Rent due for the occupation of an equitable estate in land, in the lifetime of the cestui que trust, goes to his personal representatives, that accruing after his death goes to his heirs. Fleming v. Chunn, 57 N. C. 422; Rogers v. McKenzie, 65 N. C. 218.

Same — All Chattels Assets. — All the chattels of an intestate are, if the administrator by reasonable diligence might have possessed himself, assets. Gray v. Swain, 9 N. C. 15.

Same—Warrant for Pension Not Asset. — A warrant for a pension issued after death of pensioner does not become a part of his assets, but must be returned to the state for cancellation. In re Smith, 130 N. C. 638, 41 S. E. 802.

Same — Lands as Assets. — Land is not an asset until it is sold and the proceeds received by the personal representative. Wilson v. Bynum, 92 N. C. 718; Fike v. Green, 64 N. C. 665; Edenton v. Wool, 65 N. C. 379; Hawkins v. Carpenter, 88 N. C. 403.

Same — Damages for Death by Wrongful Act. — The right to recover damages for wrongful death rests entirely on statute, and when a recovery is had therefor it is not a part of the personal assets of the deceased. Hood v. American Tel., etc., Co., 162 N. C. 92, 77 S. E. 1094.

Such damages when recovered are not assets of the estate available to creditors. Hines v. Foundation Co., 196 N. C. 322, 145 S. E. 612.

Duration of Homestead Exemptions. — The personal exemptions in Art. X of the Constitution exists only during the life of the "homesteader," and after his death passes to his personal representatives, to be disposed of in a due course of administration. Johnson v. Cross, 66 N. C. 167.

§ 53. Trust estate in personalty.—If any trustee, or any person interested in any trust estate, dies leaving any equitable interest in personal estate which shall come to his executor, administrator or collector, the same estate shall be deemed personal assets. (Rev., s. 46; Code, s. 1403; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 11.)

§ 54. Crops ungathered at death.—The crops of every deceased person, remaining ungathered at his death, shall, in all cases, belong to the executor, administrator or collector, as part of the personal assets, and shall not pass to the widow with the land assigned as dower; nor to the devisee by virtue of any devise of the land, unless such intent be manifest and specified in the will. (Rev., s. 47; Code, s. 1407; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 15.)

The Principle Is Declaratory of the Common Law.—Flynt v. Conrad, 61 N. C. 190, 194.

This section does not control the title to crops not planted at the time of the death of the testator or devisor. Manifestly, in the forum of common sense, a crop could not be a crop until the seed were in the soil. The statute uses the expression, "crops . . . remaining ungathered at his death," etc. An ungathered crop is certainly not an unplanted crop. Carr v. Carr, 208 N. C. 246, 247.

Applied. — Upon the death of a cropper his personal representative is entitled to his share of the crop. Parker v. Brown, 136 N. C. 280, 48 S. E. 657; Thomas v. Lines, 83 N. C. 191.

§ 55. Real estate sold to pay debts is personal assets.—All proceeds arising from the sale of real property, for the payment of debts, as hereinafter provided, shall be deemed personal assets in the hands of the executor, administrator or collector, and applied as though the same were the proceeds of personal estate. (Rev., s. 48; Code, s. 1404; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 12.)

Stamped with Character of Realty. — Proceeds of sale of realty are in fact personalty, although they are stamped with the character of realty to indicate the channel in which they shall go. Lafferty v. Young, 125 N. C. 296, 300, 34 S. E. 444.

§ 56. Surplus of realty sold for debts is real assets.—All proceeds from the sale of real estate, as hereinafter provided, which may not be necessary to pay debts and charges of administration, shall, notwithstanding, be considered real assets, and as such shall be paid by the executor, administrator or collector to such persons as would have been entitled to the land had it not been sold. (Rev., s. 49; Code, s. 1405; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 13.)

See annotations to preceding section; Lafferty v. Young, 125 N. C. 296, 300, 34 S. E. 444.

Proceeds of Sale Held for Heirs. — Proceeds of sale of real estate in the hands of administrator are held, after payment of debts, for the heirs who upon the death of the administrator, may alone proceed against his personal representative. Alexander v. Wolfe, 88 N. C. 398. Such proceeds may not be applied to a judgment for widow's year's allowance. Denton v. Tyson, 118 N. C. 542, 24 S. E. 116.

But where he also holds other proceeds than from the sale of realty, the administrator de bonis non of the estate must join with such heirs in proceeding against the personal representative of the deceased administrator. Alexander v. Wolfe, supra. But see Neagle v. Hall, 115 N. C. 415, 20 S. E. 516, where it was held that only administrator de bonis non of the estate can sue for the unexpended proceeds of realty sold.

§ 57. Personalty fraudulently conveyed recoverable.—If there is not sufficient real and personal assets of the deceased to satisfy all the debts and liabilities of deceased, together with the costs and charges of administration, the personal representative shall have the right to sue for and recover any and all personal property which the deceased may in any wise have transferred or conveyed with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors, and any money or property so recovered shall constitute assets of the estate in the hands of the personal representative for the payment of debts. But if the fraudulent alienee of deceased has sold the property or estate so fraudulently acquired by him to a bona fide purchaser for value without notice of the fraud, then such fraudulent alienee shall be liable to the personal representative for the value of the property and estate so acquired and disposed of. If the whole recovery from any fraudulent alienee of a decedent shall not be necessary for the payment of the debts of decedent and the costs and charges of administration of his estate, the surplus shall be returned to such fraudulent alienee or his assigns. (Rev., s. 50.)

As to fraudulent conveyances, see post, sections 1005-1013.

§ 58. Debt due from executor not discharged by appointment.—The appointing of any person executor shall not be a discharge of any debt or demand due from such person to the testator. (Rev., s. 51; Code, s. 1431; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 40.)

Applies to Executor whether He Acts or Not. — This section applies to an executor who acts as well as to one who does not act under the appointment. Moore v. Miller, 62 N. C. 359.

§ 59. Joint liability of heirs, etc., for debts.—All persons succeeding to the real or personal property of a decedent, by inheritance, devise, bequest or distribution, shall be liable jointly, and not separately, for the debts of such decedent. (Rev., s. 52; Code, s. 1528; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 99.)

Editor's Note. — Not only persons succeeding to the property of the deceased are jointly liable (to the proper extent) for the payment of the debts, but also third persons who purchase the property. See post, section 76.

Purpose of Section. — This and the following sections are intended to limit the liability of heirs, devisees and distributees. Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 160, 2 S. E. 235.

As between Legatees and Devisees. — Acceptance of legacy by the legatee does not discharge the testator's estate from outstanding obligations due to creditors, but is subject thereto to the extent of the legacy. But the lands devised are not so subject until the legacies are exhausted. Badger v. Daniel, 79 N. C. 372.

Proportion of Devisee's Liability. — The whole debt, not exceeding the value of the devise, may be collected from the devisee; but in such a case he is entitled to contribution from the other devisees. That is, each devisee, heir, etc., is, to the extent of his share, a surety. Badger v. Daniel, 79 N. C. 372; Hinton v. Whitehurst, 71 N. C. 66, 68.

Applied in Moffitt v. Davis, 205 N. C. 565, 172 S. E. 317.

§ 60. Extent of liability of heirs, etc.—No person shall be liable, under the preceding section, beyond the value of the property so acquired by him, or for any part of a debt that might by action or other due proceeding have been collected from the executor, administrator or collector of the decedent, and it is incumbent on the creditor to show the matters herein required to render such person liable. (Rev., s. 53; Code, s. 1529; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 100.)

See annotations to preceding section.

The provisions in this section are intended to limit the liability of executors, administrators, next of kin and heirs of decedents, and after reasonable time, to give quiet and repose to the estates of dead men. Moffitt v. Davis, 205 N. C. 565, 567, 172 S. E. 317.

Devisee's Liability.—In an action under this section judgment can be entered against the devisee only to the extent of the property received under the will and no personal judgment can be entered against the devisee. Moffitt v. Davis, 205 N. C. 565, 172 S. E. 317.

§ 61. Judgment against heirs, etc., apportioned; costs.—In any such action the recovery must be apportioned in proportion to the assets or property received by each defendant, and judgment against each must be entered accordingly. Costs in such actions must be apportioned among the several defendants, in proportion to the amount of the recovery against each of them. (Rev., s. 54; Code, s. 1530, 1868-9, c. 113, s. 101.)

Editor's Note. — Sections 102 and 106, prohibit the creation of a lien by the commencement of a suit against the representative, and issuance of execution upon the judgment; thereby protecting the persons liable for the debts from being made to pay inferior debts in the presence of superior claims.

§ 63. Existence of other debts of prior or equal class.—The defendants in such action may show that there are unsatisfied debts of a prior or of the same class with that in suit. If it appears that the value of the property acquired by them does not exceed the debts of a prior class, judgment must be rendered in their favor. If it appears that the value of the property acquired by them exceeds the amount of debts which are entitled to a preference over the debt in suit, the whole amount which the plaintiff shall recover is only such portion of the excess as is a just proportion to the other debts of the same class with that in suit. (Rev., s. 56; Code, s. 1532; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 103.)

Who Are Defendants. — Debts against deceased persons must be sued by civil action against the personal representative. Hence the "defendants" referred to in this section are the executors and administrators. The phrase "the value of property acquired by them," refers to assets in the hands of the representative. Heilig v. Foard, 64 N. C. 710, 712.

§ 64. Debts paid taken as unpaid as against heirs, etc.—If any debts of a prior class to that in which the suit is brought, or of the same class, has been paid by any defendant, the amount, of the debts so paid shall be estimated, in ascertaining the amount to be recovered, in the same manner as if such debts were outstanding and unpaid, as prescribed in the preceding section. (Rev., s. 57; Code, s. 1533; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 104.)

§ 65. Compelling contribution among heirs, etc.—The remedy to compel contribution shall be by petition or action in the superior court or before the judge in term time against the personal representatives, devisees, legatees and heirs also of the decedent if any part of the real estate be undevised, within two years after probate of the will, and setting forth the facts which entitle the party to relief; and the costs shall be within the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 58; Code, s. 1534; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 106.)

Application to Tenants in Common. — This section applies only to contributions sought to be enforced among devisee, and heirs to whom undivided land has descended. It has no application to contributions among tenants in common who claim by descent. Wharton v. Wilkerson, 92 N. C. 408, 414.

Section an Exception to Certain Rule.—The remedy given by this section is an exception to the rule that in actions for contribution, when the amount exceeds $200, the superior court in term has exclusive cognizance. Wharton v. Wilkerson, 92 N. C. 408, 414.

§ 65(a). Payment to clerk of sums not exceeding $300 due and owing intestates.—Where any person dies intestate and at the time of his or her death there is a sum of money owing to the said intestate not in excess of three hundred dollars, such sum may be paid into the hands of the clerk of the superior court, whose receipt for same shall be a full and complete release and discharge for such debt or debts, and the said clerk of the superior court is authorized and empowered to pay out such sum or sums in the following manner: First, for satisfaction of widow's year's allowance, after same has been assigned in accordance with law, if such be claimed; second, for payment of funeral expenses, and if there be any surplus the same to be disposed of as is now provided by law. This section shall apply to the counties of Guilford, Edgecombe, Randolph, Cabarrus, Iredell, Moore, Anson, Watuaga, Wilson, Craven, Cumberland, Johnston, Rutherford, Stanly, Davidson, Currituck, Yadkin, Alexander, Stokes, Clay, Greene, Wayne, Franklin, Macon, Beaufort, Swain, Haywood, Caldwell, Burke, Gates, Rockingham, Graham, Person, Catawba, Dare, Tyrrell, Perquimans, Transylvania, Duplin, Hyde, Pender, Alamance, Lincoln, Chowan, Forsyth, Hoke, Lee, Vance, Robeson, Orange, Davidson, Durham, Wake, Mecklenburg, Harnett, Union, Onslow, Nash, Halifax, Hertford, Pasquotank, Rowan and Martin. (1921, c. 93; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 65; 1924, cc. 15, 58; 1927, c. 7; 1929, cc. 63, 71, 121; 1931, c. 21; 1933, cc. 16, 49; 1935, cc. 69, 96, 367.)

Editor's Note.—This section, enacted in 1921, was subsequently amended by the Act of 1924, whereby the counties of Halifax, Hertford, Mecklenburg and Robeson were added thereto. The Act of 1927 added the counties of Rowan and Martin. The Act of 1929 added the counties of Edgecombe, Randolph, Lincoln, Granville, Chowan, Forsyth, Hoke, Lee, Vance, Davidson, Montgomery and Durham; and also the counties of Mecklenburg and Robeson which had been added by the Act of 1924. The Act of 1931 added the county of Wake.

By Public Laws 1933, cc. 16, 94, Wilson, Onslow and Nash counties were added to the list of those to which the section applies.

The amendment of 1935 made the section applicable in Craven, Orange and Union counties.

Art. 12. Sales of Personal Property

§ 66. Executor or administrator may sell without court order.—Every executor and administrator shall have power in his discretion and without any order, except as hereinafter provided to sell, as soon after his qualification as practicable, all the personal estate of his decedent. (Rev., s. 62; Code, s. 1408; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 16.)

For Application of Proceeds Purchaser Not Responsible.—A purchaser of personalty from the personal representative does not, by virtue of the latter's absolute power to dispose of the personalty, have to see to the proper application of the purchase price. This, even though the decedent has created a particular separate fund for the payment of his debts. But if the purchase be tainted with collusion, he will be held responsible for its proper application. Tyrrell v. Morris, 21 N. C. 559; Bradshaw v. Simpson, 41 N. C. 243; Gray v. Armistead, 41 N. C. 74; Cox v. First Nat. Bank, 119 N. C. 302, 26 S. E. 22.

The purchaser gets good title, unless he purchased mala fide and for the purpose of devastavit. Polk v. Robinson, 42 N. C. 235; Wilson v. Doster, 42 N. C. 231. Where he receives the property in payment of fiduciary's personal debt, the transaction is presumptively mala fide. Hendrick v. Gidney, 114 N. C. 543, 546, 19 S. E. 598; Dancy v. Duncan, 96 N. C. 111, 117, 1 S. E. 455; Wilson v. Doster, supra; Latham v. Moore, 59 N. C. 167.

§ 67. Collector may sell only on order of court.—All sales of personal property by collectors shall be made only upon order obtained, by motion, from the clerk of the superior court, who shall specify in his order a descriptive list of the property to be sold. (Rev., s. 61; Code, s. 1409; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 17.)

§ 68. Sale to be public; notice.—All sales of personal estate by an executor, administrator or collector shall be publicly made, on credit or for cash, after twenty days notification posted at the courthouse and four public places in the county. (Rev., s. 63; Code, s. 1410, 1411; 1868-9, c. 113, ss. 18, 19.)

As to the right of the representative to purchase at the sale, see 6 Encyc. Dig. sections 123, 141, 295.

Provisions Peremptory.—The provisions of this section are peremptory and leave no discretion. Hence a non compliance with them renders the fiduciary liable to persons injured. Pate v. Kennedy, 104 N. C. 234, 10 S. E. 188. But see Wynns v. Alexander, 22 N. C. 58, where it is held that the common law rule on this point is not repealed by this section and that the statute is merely directory. See also, Dickson v. Crawley, 112 N. C. 629, 17 S. E. 158; Cox v. First Nat. Bank, 119 N. C. 302, 305, 26 S. E. 22; Odell v. House, 144 N. C. 647, 648, 57 S. E. 395.

If the fiduciary sells at public sale the price actually obtained is his justification. But if he sells at a private sale, he is liable for the true value without reference to the price obtained. Cannon v. Jenkins, 16 N. C. 422, 427.

If the provision of the section is properly conformed with, the fiduciary will not be held to guarantee the solvency of the purchaser, but will be held liable only for the insufficiency of the bond given for the purchase money. Davis v. Marcum, 57 N. C. 189.

It seems, however, that a private sale of a chose in action if made in good faith, is valid; though it is safer to follow the direction of this section to avoid any personal liability in case the fiduciary fails to obtain as much from the private sale as he would have obtained had he sold at public sale. Dickson v. Crawley, 112 N. C. 629, 632, 17 S. E. 158; Wynns v. Alexander, 22 N. C. 58; Gray v. Armistead, 41 N. C. 74.

Thus, in the absence of fraud or collusion, notes may be sold at private sale. But the burden of proof of fair and full price, in such a case, rests upon the representative Odell v. House, 144 N. C. 647, 57 S. E. 395.

What Constitutes Sale Other Than Public.—Giving a part of the standing crop for hauling the remainder does not, within the meaning of this section, constitute selling otherwise than at public auction. McDaniel v. Johns, 53 N. C. 414.

§ 69. Clerk may order private sale in certain cases; advance bids.—Whenever the executor or administrator of any estate shall be of the opinion that the interests of said estate will be promoted and conserved by selling the personal property belonging to it at private sale instead of selling same at public sale, such executor or administrator may, upon a duly verified application to the clerk of the Superior Court, obtain an order to sell, and may sell, such personal property at private sale for the best price that can be obtained, and shall report such sales to the clerk for confirmation; and upon satisfactory proof that said personal property has been sold for a fair and adequate price, such sale shall be confirmed by clerk.

The said sale or sales of personal property shall not be deemed closed under ten days from the filing of such report; and if in ten days from the filing of such report the sale price is increased by the deposit of ten (10) per cent with the said clerk, the said clerk shall order a new sale thereof. The clerk may in his discretion, require the person making such advance bid to execute a good and sufficient bond in a sufficient amount to guarantee compliance with his said offer. If no advance bid is offered for the property and if no exception is filed thereto within said period of ten (10) days, the same shall be confirmed.

Where the estate consists in whole or in part of perishable property the executor or administrator may sell such perishable property at private sale without order or confirmation by the clerk of the Superior Court. (Rev., s. 64; 1893, c. 346; 1919, c. 66; 1925, c. 267.)

Editor's Note.—The essential changes which were effected in this section aside from its terminology, consist in: (1) the repeal of a specific enumeration of the types and classes of personalty which could be sold at private sale, and the substitution therefor of "personal property" in general; (2) addition thereto the provision with respect to proof and confirmation of sale by the clerk, in the first paragraph; (3) addition thereto of all the provisions contained in the second and last paragraphs of the section. See also, 4 N. C. L. Rev. 19.

Effect of Section upon Discretion of Judge and Clerk.—The provisions of this section do not take away from the clerk, or judge on appeal, the sound discretionary power of determining whether a public or a private sale would best subserve the interests of the parties, or prevent them from authorizing a private sale in proper cases. The section is permissive and not mandatory upon them. In re Brown's Estate, 185 N. C. 398, 117 S. E. 291.

Presumption as to Refusal to Confirm.—In an appeal upon refusal to confirm the sale under this section, the presumption is that there was sufficient evidence to sustain the findings of fact upon which the refusal is based. In re Brown's Estate, 185 N. C. 398, 117 S. E. 291.

§ 70. Clerk must confirm sale on creditor's objection.—When any person interested, either as creditor or legatee, on the day of sale objects to the completion of any sale on account of the insufficiency of the amount bid, title to such property shall not pass until the sale is reported to and confirmed by the clerk. (Rev., s. 63; Code, s. 1411; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 19.)

Fair Sale at Inadequate Price. — In the absence of such objection, where the sale is perfected in all fairness and in compliance with the law, the mere fact that the property was sold to the widow of the decedent at a nominal price where the public would not bid, does not render the administrator liable for the inadequacy of the price. Woody v. Smith, 65 N. C. 116.

Creditor Consenting Estopped.—Where the creditor consents to the sale at an inadequate price at the time of the sale, he cannot thereafter raise the question. Cain v. Hawkins, 50 N. C. 192, 194.

§ 71. Security required; representative's liability for collection.—The proceeds of all sales of personal estate and rentings of real property by public auction or privately shall be secured by bond and good personal security; and such proceeds shall be collected as soon as practicable: otherwise the executor, administrator or collector shall be answerable for the same. (Rev., s. 65; Code, s. 1413; 1893, c. 346, s. 2; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 21.)

Provisions Peremptory.—The provisions of this section are peremptory and leave no discretion in the representative. Hence a noncompliance with them renders him liable. Pate v. Kennedy, 104 N. C. 234, 10 S. E. 188.

What "Real Estate" Includes.—The "real estate" which the representative is authorized to lease under this section has reference to leasehold estates which belonged to the decedent. Reeves v. McMillan, 101 N. C. 479, 7 S. E. 906; Lee v. Lee, 74 N. C. 70.

Mere Bond Not Sufficient.—Taking no other security than the bond of the purchaser constitutes gross laches on the part of the representative. Roseman v. Pless, 65 N. C. 374, 375.

The amount and kind of security to constitute "good security" within the meaning of this section, differs in selling on short credit and in making a permanent investment. Camp v. Smith, 68 N. C. 537, 541.

§ 72. Hours of public sale; penalty.—All public sales or rentings provided for in this chapter shall be between the hours of ten o'clock a. m. and four o'clock p. m. of the day on which the sale or renting is to be made, except that in towns or cities of more than five thousand inhabitants public sales of goods, wares, and merchandise may be continued until the hour of ten o'clock p. m. provided, a certain hour for such sales shall be named and the sale shall begin without [within] one hour after the time fixed, unless postponed as provided by law, or delayed by other sales; and every executor, administrator or collector who otherwise makes any sale or renting shall forfeit and pay two hundred dollars to any person suing for the same. (Rev., s. 66; Code, s. 1414; 1893, c. 346, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 22; 1927, c. 19.)

Editor's Note.—The part of this section which provides for forfeiture, must be construed strictly in accordance with the meaning of the words employed, and must not be extended by implication or construction when the act to be penalized does not clearly fall within the spirit and letter thereof. See Alexander v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 144 N. C. 93, 56 S. E. 697.

The proviso as the hours designated was added by the Public Laws of 1927. The word appearing in brackets was inserted by the Editors as it is believed that it expresses the legislative intent.

Object of Section.—This section was enacted to provide a way for the representative to relieve himself of liability, and realize something from the choses in action which were not collectible but which might have some prospective value. Odell v. House, 144 N. C. 647, 57 S. E. 395.

Application to Private Sales.—The provisions of this section do not apply to private sales. Odell v. House, 144 N. C. 647, 57 S. E. 395.

Provisions Peremptory.—The provisions of this section are peremptory and leave no discretion in the representative. Pate v. Kennedy, 104 N. C. 234, 10 S. E. 188. But for qualification to this rule, see annotations to section 68.

As to validity of selling at private sale, see annotations to section 68.

§ 73. Debts uncollected after year may be sold; list filed.—Every executor, administrator and collector, at any time after one year from the grant of letters, is authorized to sell at public auction, in the manner prescribed in this chapter, all bills, bonds, notes, accounts, or other evidences of debt belonging to the decedent, which he has been unable to collect or which may be deemed insolvent. Before offering such evidences of debt at public sale he shall file with the clerk a descriptive list thereof, and obtain an order of sale therefor from the clerk, and shall make return of the proceeds of such sale as in other cases of assets. (Rev., s. 67; Code, s. 1412; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 20.)

Editor's Note.—This section is merely directory in two respects: (1) In that the representative under it is merely empowered and not directed to sell; (2) in that a purchaser from the representative at a sale made not in compliance with the terms of the statute e. g., a private sale, nevertheless gets good title. See Odell v. House, 144 N. C. 647, 57 S. E. 395.

Purpose of Statute.—This section was enacted to provide a way for the administrator to relieve himself of liability and at the same time realize something on incollectible debts. Odell v. House, 144 N. C. 647, 57 S. E. 395.

Good Faith as to Insolvency.—A finding that the representative sold some of the assets belonging to the estate believing them to be insolvent, will discharge him from liability although they were in fact collectible assets. Weisel v. Cobb, 118 N. C. 11, 22, 24 S. E. 782.

Art. 13. Sales of Real Property

§ 74. Sales of realty ordered, if personalty insufficient for debts.—When the personal estate of a decedent is insufficient to pay all his debts, including the charges of administration, the executor, administrator or collector may, at any time after the grant of letters, apply to the superior court of the county where the land or some part thereof is situated, by petition, to sell the real property for the payment of the debts of such decedent. When there is dower or right of dower in the land petitioned to be sold as aforesaid, the person entitled thereto shall be made a party to said proceeding, and on a decree of sale, the interest of one-third of the proceeds shall be secured and paid to her annually; or in lieu of such annual interest, at her election, the value of her annuity of six per cent, on such third, during her probable life or expectancy, shall be ascertained and paid to her absolutely out of the proceeds: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to deprive the widow from claiming her dower by metes and bounds in her husband's land.

Proceedings for the sale of the real estate of a decedent brought by his personal representative to create assets with which to pay debts must be instituted in the county where the land or some part thereof lies. If the land to be sold consists of one or more contiguous tracts lying in more than one county or consists of two or more separate tracts lying in different counties, proceedings may be instituted in any county in which a part of the land is situate, and the court of such county wherein the proceedings for sale are first brought shall have jurisdiction to proceed to a final disposition of said proceedings as if all of said land were situate in the county where the proceedings were instituted. Where the land to be sold consists of one or more contiguous tracts lying in more than one county, said land shall be advertised in all counties in which any part of said land lies, but the sale shall be conducted at the courthouse door of the county in which the proceeding was instituted. Where the land consists of two or more distinct tracts lying in different counties, each tract shall be advertised in and sold at the courthouse door of the county in which it lies. Certified copies of the proceedings under the seal of the court of the county in which the proceedings were instituted, together with certified copies of the letters testamentary or letters of administration of the personal representative, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of superior court of each county wherein any part of the land lies and shall be recorded in the record of orders and decrees in special proceedings in said office. (Rev., s. 68; Code, s. 1436; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 42; 1923, c. 55; 1935, c. 43.)

Cross Reference.—For a discussion of the effect that a proposed statute of intestate succession would have on this section, see article in 11 N. C. Law Rev. 266, 279.

Editor's Note.—The provisions relating to the widow's dower were inserted by the Public Laws of 1923, ch. 55.

The amendment of 1935 added the last paragraph of the section relating to venue in case of sale.

Rule Prior to This Section.—Before the enactment of this section the lands of the decedent could not be sold for the payment of his debts upon which a judgment quando had been rendered against the administrator. But this section changed this rule. Wilson v. Bynum, 92 N. C. 718.

Nature of Authority. — The authority of the representative under this section is a naked power without title or interest in the estate. He is a mere agent of the court. Floyd v. Herring, 64 N. C. 409, 411.

Land Not Assets until Sold.—Lands are not assets for the payment of the debts until they are sold and the proceeds received by the administrator. Wilson v. Bynum, 92 N. C. 718, 723.

Correlation of This and Section 77.—The provisions of this section and section 77 hinge upon each other. Hence even where it is admitted that a substantial compliance was made with the provisions of the latter section, still it must appear under the provisions of this section that there is an unsettled indebtedness which cannot be paid out of the assets. Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 697, 700, 12 S. E. 254.

May Be Compelled to Sell.—Upon failure of the personal representative to apply for the sale of the lands for the payment of the debts, he may either be compelled by the clerk to do so or the creditor may file a creditor's bill. Whether he will be held liable on his bond for such failure, is a quaere. Wilson v. Bynum, 92 N. C. 718; Yarborough v. Moore, 151 N. C. 116, 65 S. E. 763; Pelletier v. Saunders, 67 N. C. 261; Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 181, 13 S. E. 862; Hobbs v. Cashwell, 152 N. C. 183, 67 S. E. 495; Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 24 S. E. 210.

Who May Sell.—The personal representative is the proper party to sell the homestead of deceased for distribution. Tarboro v. Pender, 153 N. C. 427, 69 S. E. 425, 636.

He has, however, no concern with the realty until a situation justifying a sale thereof under this section exists. Coggins v. Flythe, 113 N. C. 102, 119, 18 S. E. 96; Gilchrist v. Middleton, 108 N. C. 705, 715, 13 S. E. 227.

Amount of Realty Which May be Sold.—This section authorizing the sale of the lands of a decedent is in derogation of the common law and hence the Courts will not deny to an administrator the discretion of selling less land than is ordered to be sold if necessity should not arise for such sale; and, conversely, the administrator will be allowed to continue to sell lands embraced in the license so long as the necessity to raise assets exists. Sledge v. Elliott, 116 N. C. 712, 21 S. E. 797.

Personalty Must Be First Applied. — While the lands may be sold where the personal estate is insufficient, the general rule is that the personalty must be first applied before resorting to the realty; and this, even though the debts are secured by mortgage on realty. Mahoney v. Stewart, 123 N. C. 106, 31 S. E. 384; Sanderson v. Overman, 98 N. C. 235, 3 S. E. 502; Mosely v. Mosely, 192 N. C. 243, 134 S. E. 645, and cases cited; Wadfod v. Davis, 192 N. C. 484, 135 S. E. 353.

Under this section an administrator has the right, and it becomes his duty under certain conditions, to apply for license to sell the real estate of his intestate to make assets with which to pay debts, but it is necessary that the personal property shall first be exhausted. When this has been done and it has been ascertained that the personalty is insufficient to discharge the debts, resort may be had to the realty. The personalty, however, is always the primary fund for the payment of debts. Parker v. Porter, 208 N. C. 31, 34, 179 S. E. 28.

If the personalty has been wasted by the representative, his successor must first resort to his bond before proceeding against the lands. Lilly v. Wooley, 94 N. C. 412; Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 12 S. E. 254. Though not where the former is insolvent, his bond lost, and sureties unknown. Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 547, 10 S. E. 701.

Application of Personal Assets. — This section construed in connection with the second clause of section 79, confers upon the representative the duty and the power to apply for license whenever the insufficiency of personalty, whether before or after an actual application thereof, can be shown. Shields v. McDowell, 82 N. C. 137, 140; Blount v. Pritchard, 88 N. C. 445; Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 697, 12 S. E. 254. See post, section 79.

The cases of Wiley v. Wiley, 63 N. C. 182, and Bland v. Hartsoe, 65 N. C. 204, which contain expressions that no authority exists to decree a sale until the personal estate is actually exhausted, are distinguished in Shields v. McDowell, supra, and the true rule is announced to be that the mere showing of the insufficiency of the personal estate without showing its actual application is sufficient.

Debts Barred. — But a representative cannot sell land to pay debts barred. Robinson v. McDowell, 133 N. C. 182, 45 S. E. 545; and, to an application for license to sell for the payment of debts upon which no judgment is obtained the heirs or devisees may plead the statute of limitations or any other defense. Bevers v. Park, 88 N. C. 456; Syme v. Riddle, 88 N. C. 463; Proctor v. Proctor, 105 N. C. 222, 10 S. E. 1036; Speer v. James, 94 N. C. 417, 418; Person v. Montgomery, 120 N. C. 111, 26 S. E. 645.

But if a judgment has been previously obtained for such debt the heirs or devisees are concluded thereby (except where fraud and collusion can be shown) and they cannot now plead any defense which could be, but was not plead by the representative. Long v. Oxford, 108 N. C. 280, 13 S. E. 112. See also, Woodlief v. Bragg, 108 N. C. 571, 13 S. E. 211; Lassiter v. Upchurch, 107 N. C. 411, 12 S. E. 63; Proctor v. Proctor, 105 N. C. 222, 10 S. E. 1036; Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 547, 10 S. E. 701; Smith v. Brown, 101 N. C. 347, 7 S. E. 890. (But see contra, Person v. Montgomery, 120 N. C. 111, 26 S. E. 645; apparently contra, Tilley v. Bivins, 112 N. C. 348, 16 S. E. 759.)

Even in such a case, however, the heirs or devisees may show that the personalty has not been administered, or remedies against representative's bond for devastavit have not been exhausted. Smith v. Brown, supra.

Removal to Proper County. — A petition filed in the wrong county may, upon application, be removed to the proper county. See Manufacturing Co. v. Brower, 105 N. C. 440, 11 S. E. 313.

"May Apply to Superior Court, etc." — The phrase "may * * * apply to the superior court" as used in this section means "shall apply to the clerk of that court." Pelletier v. Saunders, 67 N. C. 261. It is the duty of the representative to apply. Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 13 S. E. 862. But the jurisdiction of the clerk is not exclusive. The order of sale may be obtained from the judge of the superior court. Johnson v. Futrell, 86 N. C. 122. Doubtful expression as to the soundness of this last announced rule is found in Moore v. Ingram, 91 N. C. 376.

"At Any Time."—The phrase "at any time" presupposes an application without undue delay. Pelletier v. Saunders, 67 N. C. 261; Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 13 S. E. 862.

Same — Homestead of Minors. — But the homestead of a minor child of a testator cannot be sold durante minoriate of such child. Bruton v. McRea, 125 N. C. 206, 34 S. E. 397; Hinsdale v. Williams, 75 N. C. 430. The child, however, who was made a party must have claimed homestead rights, otherwise he cannot subsequently claim as against the purchaser of the land. Dickens v. Long, 112 N. C. 311, 17 S. E. 150.

Proper Venue. — The proper venue to make the application provided by this section, is the superior court of the county where the land or some part thereof is situated. Ellis v. Adderton, 88 N. C. 472, 477.

County in Which Application Must Be Filed. — It is in the Superior Court of the county where the land or some part thereof lies, and not in the Superior Court of the county where the decedent was domiciled and administration granted, that the application for sale must be filed. Though formerly it could be filed in the county last referred to. Ellis v. Adderton, 88 N. C. 472, 477.

When Application Filed. — The application may be filed at any time after the administrator ascertains that there is an insufficiency of assets, and before he can possibly convert the personal estate into money and make an application of it to the debt. Blount v. Pritchard, 88 N. C. 446.

Notice to Creditors. — No notice to creditors is required to be given under this section. Thompson v. Cox, 53 N. C. 311.

Not Applicable to Executor Authorized to Sell. — The provisions of this section do not apply where the executor has, under the will, full power to sell the realty. It applies only to cases where otherwise the creditor would be compelled to resort to a scire facias against the heirs. Wiley v. Wiley, 61 N. C. 131.

Sale though Parties Not in Esse. — The application for sale may be made notwithstanding the existence of devises to parties not in esse. Carraway v. Lassiter, 139 N. C. 145, 51 S. E. 968.

The Federal District Court has jurisdiction of a bill in equity by the United States to subject to payment of a judgment land situated in this state which had descended to the heirs of the judgment debtor, there being no personal assets. United States v. Minor, 254 Fed. 57.

Converting into Creditor's Suit. — When proceedings for the sale of land are instituted under this section by the representative, they cannot be converted into a creditor's suit. Brittain v. Dickson, 111 N. C. 529, 531, 16 S. E. 326.

Presumption of Regularity. — The regularity of the proceedings under this section will be presumed. Wadford v. Davis, 192 N. C. 484, 485, 135 S. E. 353.

Creditor Attacking Debt as Fraudulent. — A judgment creditor of a devisee desiring to attack a debt set forth in the petition to sell land, as being fraudulent must do so in the same proceedings, and not by independent action. Wadford v. Davis, 192 N. C. 484, 135 S. E. 353.

Parties and Their Defenses. — In proceedings to sell land heirs and devisees are necessary parties. They may resist the sale by showing sufficient personal assets, or that the debts are not due by the estate. In such a case the usual course is to refer the matter for determination. Person v. Montgomery, 120 N. C. 111, 113, 26 S. E. 645.

Enforcement by Creditor. — It is only after the personal representative fails to perform his duty to sell the land under this section that the creditor can enforce the sale. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 525, 24 S. E. 210.

Sale for Secured or Lien Debts. — Even though the debts are secured by a mortgage upon land, they must be paid out of personalty first; and only in the event this latter proves insufficient that a sale of the land under this section is authorized. Moseley v. Moseley, 192 N. C. 243, 134 S. E. 645.

The creditor who has a judgment against the debtor which constitutes a lien upon the land, is not, after the death of the latter, permitted to sell the land under execution. Personalty is the primary source to satisfy the debt, and in case of its insufficiency the sale of the land may be effected by the procedure prescribed in this section. Tuck v. Walker, 106 N. C. 285, 288, 11 S. E. 183; Baker v. Carter, 127 N. C. 92, 94, 37 S. E. 81.

Nature of Proceedings. — A proceeding to sell the land under this section is a special proceeding before the clerk who has original and exclusive jurisdiction of the matter. If, however, equities are involved in the case upon which the superior court acquires jurisdiction of a part, it will determine the whole matter. Baker v. Carter, 127 N. C. 92, 94, 37 S. E. 81.

§ 75. When court may order rental.—Such executor, administrator or collector, in lieu of asking for an order for the immediate sale of real estate, may ask for an order authorizing him to rent out the same for a term of not exceeding three years, and if it appears to the court that the best interests of the heirs at law and devisees of the deceased will be promoted by granting such order and that it is probable that the rents derived from the real estate during the term will be sufficient to pay off and discharge the debts and the costs of the administration, the superior court may, with the consent of the creditors, make such order upon such terms as may be best for the heirs at law, devisees and creditors of the estate; or if it is made to appear to the court that such executor, administrator or collector is able to borrow sufficient money with which to pay off and discharge all valid and just claims against the estate of the deceased, then the court shall have the power to authorize said executor or administrator to borrow money for the purpose of paying off and discharging such claims and authorizing him to rent the real estate for a term not exceeding three years and to apply the rents to the repayment of the money thus borrowed, and the said estate shall be and remain liable for the payment of such sums as may be borrowed under such order of the court to the same extent and no further as the estate was liable for the indebtedness of the deceased to pay off and discharge the debt for which the said sums were borrowed. All orders made by the court pursuant to this section shall be approved by the judge residing in or holding the courts of the district in which such county is situated.

In lieu of renting said property or borrowing on the general credit of the estate, as hereinbefore authorized, the said executor, or administrator, may apply by petition, verified by oath, to the Superior Court, showing that the interest of the beneficiaries of the estate, for which he is executor or administrator, would be materially promoted by mortgaging the said estate, in whole or in part to secure funds to be used for the benefit of said estate, setting out the application to be made of the proceeds of said loan and if all or a part of its creditors have agreed to accept an amount less than the full amount of their debt that fact shall appear, which proceeding shall be conducted as in other cases of special proceedings; and the truth of the matter alleged in the petition having been ascertained by satisfactory proof, a decree may thereupon be made that a mortgage be made by such executor, or administrator, in his representative capacity, in such way and on such terms as may be most advantageous to the interest of said estate; but no mortgage shall be made until approved by the judge of the court, nor shall the same be valid unless the order or decree therefor is confirmed and directed by the judge and the proceeds of the mortgage shall be exclusively applied and secured to such purposes and on such trusts as the judge shall specify: Provided, the proceeds from said sale shall be used exclusively for the discharge of all existing creditors, except such as shall file a writing in said cause agreeing to other terms set out in said writing.

The said executor or administrator shall not mortgage the property of said estate for a term of years in excess of the term fixed by the court in its decree. The word "mortgage" wherever used herein, shall be construed to include "deeds of trust." (Acts 1913, c. 49, s. 1; 1927, c. 222, s. 1.)

§ 76. Lands conveyed by heir within two years sold.—All conveyances of real property of any decedent made by any devisee or heir at law within two years of the death of the decedent, shall be void as to the creditors, executors, administrators and collectors of such decedent but such conveyances to bona fide purchasers for value and without notice, if made after two years from the death of the decedent, shall be valid even as against creditors. Provided, that if the decedent was a non-resident, such conveyances shall not be valid unless made after two years from the grant of letters. Rev., s. 70; Code, s. 1442; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 105; 1935, c. 355.)

As to who are bona fide purchasers, see Vendor and Purchaser, 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 189; Deeds, 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 435; Lis Pendens, 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 900.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 made the limitation begin to run from the death of the decedent rather than from the grant of letters. The proviso as to nonresidents is new.

Only Purchaser without Notice Protected. — Prior to 1869, a purchaser from the heirs after 2 years of the grant of letters, even though with notice of the existence of the debts, obtained a good title under this section. Brandon v. Phelps, 77 N. C. 44. It is noteworthy to observe that under the present section he must be a bona fide purchaser —without notice. Hooker v. Yellowley, 128 N. C. 297, 38 S. E. 889. For example actual notice of insolvency was held to invalidate purchaser's title. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 19 S. E. 351. But a judgment against the representative is not notice of insolvency. Id. Nor proceedings for dower alleging insolvency are such notice. Lee v. Giles, 161 N. C. 541, 77 S. E. 852.

Of course, even a purchaser with notice from a purchaser without notice shall be protected. Arrington v. Arrington, supra.

Heirs Liable for the Price. — The heirs having sold the land, even after 2 years of the grant of letter, are liable to the creditor for the price received, and for the whole price, not for aliquot shares of the debt. Hinton v. Whitehurst, 71 N. C. 66; Davis v. Perry, 96 N. C. 260, 1 S. E. 610; Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 166, 2 S. E. 235.

Conditionally Void. — The conveyances under this section, are only conditionally void, i. e., contingent upon the personal estate proving insufficient to pay the debts. Davis v. Perry, 96 N. C. 260, 1 S. E. 610. See also First Nat. Bank v. Zollicoffer, 199 N. C. 620, 623.

Conveyances of real property within two years from the grant of letters are only void as to creditors and personal representatives, and as to them, only in case the personal assets are insufficient to pay the debts and costs of administration; they are not void—they never cease to operate as to the parties to them. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co. v. Buckner, 201 N. C. 78, 81, 159 S. E. 1.

Voidable Merely. — A conveyance to a purchaser not for value is not, under this section, ipso facto void, but at the most merely voidable. Gilbert v. Hopkins, 204 Fed. 196, 202.

Purchaser after, from a Purchaser before Two Years. — If the land is sold within the two years, and after the two years have expired resold by the vendee to a purchaser for value without notice, the latter gets good title. Murchison v. Whitted, 87 N. C. 465.

Sale Consummated after Two Years. — But where land is sold for partition within the two years, though the deed is executed after, the conveyance is void. McArtan v. McLauchlin, 88 N. C. 391.

Agreement Consummated after Two Years. — An agreement by the heir for the sale of land, though entered into before the expiration of two years, if consummated after such time is valid as against creditors of the estate. Donoho v. Patterson, 70 N. C. 649.

To What Extent Purchaser Protected. — The purchaser for value contemplated by this section is, with respect to consideration paid by him, to be assimilated to a purchaser for value under the statute of 13 Eliz.; (N. C. Code of 1927, section 1009) viz. he need not have paid all of the purchase money. The test of "purchaser for value" is not the same under this section with the test in certain equity cases where the purchaser is protected pro tanto, i. e., to the extent of his payment before he receives notice. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 166, 19 S. E. 351. Hence even a purchaser upon credit is a "purchaser for value." Arrington v. Arrington, supra; Beasley v. Bray, 98 N. C. 266, 3 S. E. 497.

Deed of trust creditor is a purchaser for value within the meaning of this section. Francis v. Reeves, 137 N. C. 269, 272, 49 S. E. 213.

A deed conveying the timber on the land descended falls within the perview of this section. Camp Mfg. Co. v. Liverman, 128 N. C. 52, 38 S. E. 27.

§ 77. Lands conveyed in fraud of creditors sold.—The real estate subject to sale under this chapter shall include all the deceased may have conveyed with intent to defraud his creditors, and all rights of entry and rights of action and all other rights and interest in lands, tenements and hereditaments which he may devise, or by law would descend to his heirs: Provided, that lands so fraudulently conveyed shall not be taken from any one who purchased them for a valuable consideration and without a knowledge of the fraud. (Rev., s. 72; Code, s. 1446; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 51.)

For fraudulent conveyances, see section 1005.

Conveyance Must Be by the Deceased. — Where A in embarrassed circumstances purchased land from B, and caused A to convey to his (B's) son, it was held that the land could not be sold for the payment of A's debts. Rhem v. Tull, 35 N. C. 57.

Conveyance to Wife and Children. — Property conveyed by the decedent to his wife and children without consideration in fraud of his creditors while insolvent may, under this section be recovered and sold by the administrator on behalf of the creditors. Webb v. Atkinson, 122 N. C. 683, 29 S. E. 949; Webb v. Atkinson, 124 N. C. 447, 32 S. E. 737.

Relation of Section 74 to This Section. — The provisions of this and section seventy-four hinge together. Hence a compliance with both is necessary. Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 697, 12 S. E. 254.

Conveyance Must Be in Fraud of Creditors. — Under this section lands conveyed cannot be sold unless it can be shown that they were conveyed in fraud of creditors. McCaskill v. Graham, 121 N. C. 190, 28 S. E. 264.

Innocent Purchasers Protected. — Under this section an administrator cannot be compelled to sell property fraudulently conveyed and in the hands of an innocent purchaser. Harrington v. Hatton, 129 N. C. 146, 39 S. E. 780.

§ 78. Effect of bona fide purchase from fraudulent grantee.—When an executor, administrator or collector files his petition to sell lands which have been fraudulently conveyed, and of which there has been a subsequent bona fide sale, whereby he cannot have a decree of sale of the land, the court may give judgment in favor of such executor, administrator or collector for the value of the land, against all persons who may have fraudulently purchased the same; and if the whole recovery is not necessary to pay the debts and charges, the residue shall be restored to the person of whom the recovery was made. (Rev., s. 73; Code, s. 1447; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 52.)

§ 79. Contents of petition for sale.—The petition, which must be verified by the oath of the applicant, shall set forth, as far as can be ascertained:

The Purpose of Requisites in Application. — The personal estate, in law, is the primary fund and land is the secondary fund for the payment of debts, and the design of the act giving authority to the personal representative to sell and administer on the proceeds of lands in the requisites prescribed to a petition for a license to sell, evidently is to inform the Court of the condition of the estate with reference to its debts and the value and application of the personal estate, so that it may be seen that the personal estate is insufficient to pay the debts. If a petition be drawn in accordance with these requirements so as to show the insufficiency of the personal fund, the necessity to resort to the real estate to supply the deficiency will then be apparent. Shields v. McDowell, 82 N. C. 137, 139.

As the purpose of this section is to enable the court to see whether a sale is necessary, a petition which simply states that the personal estate "is wholly insufficient to pay intestate's debts," without setting forth the value of the personal estate, is defective. McNeill v. McBryde, 112 N. C. 408, 411, 16 S. E. 841.

Statement "as Far as Can Be Ascertained."—The main and essential fact to be stated in the petition is, that there is an insufficiency of assets to pay the debts, and that the court may know this, the statute requires a statement of the amount of the debts and the value of the personal estate; but these statements are not required to be made with exact particularity, but only "as far as can be ascertained," for these quoted words used in this section, according to grammatical construction qualify each of the sub-divisions of this section. Blount v. Pritchard, 88 N. C. 446, 448.

Indebtedness Must Be Ascertained. — The fact that this section requires an oath to be made implies that the indebtedness ought to be ascertained, approximately at least, to show the necessity of a resort to the land. Williams v. McNair, 98 N. C. 332, 336, 4 S. E. 131, 133.

The petition must show by a direct allegation or by implication the requirements of this section. Clement v.

Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 697, 12 S. E. 254; Shields v. McDowell, 82 N. C. 137.

Burden of proof that the conveyance was fair and for a full consideration is upon the grantee. Webb v. Atkinson, 122 N. C. 683, 689, 29 S. E. 949.

Fraudulent Grantee's Rights as Creditor.—Where the wife is the fraudulent grantee and the creditor of her husband, in proceedings to set aside the conveyance to her, under this section, she is entitled to her pro rata claim out of the proceeds of the land the same as the other creditors are. Nadal v. Britton, 112 N. C. 188, 16 S. E. 915.

Salable Interest.—Every interest in real estate, whether legal or equitable is subject to sale. Mannix v. Ihrie, 76 N. C. 299; Waugh v. Blevins, 68 N. C. 167.

Only Debtor's Interest Subject to Sale.—Under this section only the interest of the deceased debtor in land which he may have conveyed in fraud of creditors, is subject to sale. Heck v. Williams, 79 N. C. 437; Egerton v. Jones, 107 N. C. 284, 290, 12 S. E. 434.

The petition need not show that the bond of the former administrator was sued on and exhausted. Monger v. Kelly, 115 N. C. 294, 20 S. E. 374. But see, Lilly v. Wooley, 94 N. C. 412; Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 12 S. E. 254, which declare that such bond must have been exhausted.

Allegation that the assets of the decedent are insufficient to pay the debts, and that a sale of property fraudulently conveyed is necessary, is held sufficient. Sullivan v. Field, 118 N. C. 358, 24 S. E. 735.

A petition which fails to state the value of the personal estate and the application thereof is defective and demurrable. McNeill v. McBryde, 112 N. C. 408, 16 S. E. 841. But see Blount v. Pritchard, 88 N. C. 445, where it is said that license may be granted even where there has been no application of the personalty, though where there has been an application the petition must so state.

Verification of Application.—In Stradley v. King, 84 N. C. 635, where the application for the sale of land was not verified by the administrator's oath, and the guardian for the infant defendant had not answered, the court said with regard to verification: "While we consider the statutory requirement that the petition for an order of sale of the decedent's lands shall be supported by oath and that an answer be put in on behalf of infant defendants, directory, and its nonobservance not fatal to the validity of the decree of sale made without, yet this departure from the statute, followed by the precipitate action of the Court in confirming the sale on the very day when it was reported and without opportunity afforded for objection, in our opinion warrants the order which reopens the case for such defenses as the infant defendants may be able to set up."

1. The amount of debts outstanding against the estate.

2. The value of the personal estate, and the application thereof.

3. A description of all the legal and equitable real estate of the decendent, with the estimated value of the respective portions or lots.

4. The names, ages and residences, if known, of the devisees and heirs at law of the decedent. (Rev., s. 77; Code, s. 1437; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 43.)

§ 80. Heirs and devisees necessary parties.—No order to sell real estate shall be granted till the heirs or devisees of the decedent have been made parties to the proceeding, by service of summons, either personally or by publication, as required by law: Provided, that in any proceedings for the sale of land to make assets, when there are heirs of said decedent, or there may be heirs of said decedent whose names and residences are unknown, and it is desired to make all unknown heirs of said decedent parties to said proceedings, and the personal representative shall make such representation in his petition, then all unknown heirs of the said decedent shall be made party defendants in the same as the unknown heirs of said decedent naming him, and as thus denominated and under this name all said unknown heirs shall be served with summons by publication as now regularly provided by law for Superior Court, and upon such service being had, the service of summons by publication in the court shall appoint some discreet person as guardian ad litem, for said unknown heirs, and summons shall issue to him as such. Said guardian ad litem shall file answer for said unknown heirs, and defend for them, and he may be paid such sum as the court may fix, to be paid as other costs out of the estate. Upon the filing of the answer by said guardian ad litem, all said unknown heirs shall be before the court for the purposes of the action to the same extent as if each had been served with summons by name, and any claim that they may make to said real estate so sold shall be transferred to the funds in the hands of the personal representative to the same extent as other distributees of said estate and no further. This proviso shall apply to actions now pending, and all the proceedings to sell land for assets heretofore had, where unknown heirs have been summoned by publication, are hereby validated. (Rev., s. 74; Code, s. 1438, c. 113, s. 44; 1924, c. 3, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The proviso with regard to method of service of process upon unknown heirs, and the appointment of guardian ad litem to represent them, was introduced by the amendment of 1924, ch. 3, sec. 1.

"It has been held by the Supreme Court that generally the designation of the parties to an action as 'the heirs of M.' is insufficient. Kerlee v. Corpening (1887), 97 N. C. 330, 2 S. E. 664. Provision has been made for the joinder of unknown parties in a special proceeding for partition, C. S., secs. 3218, 3245; Thompson v. Rospigliosi (1913), 162 N. C. 145, 77 S. E. 113, and for the sale of estates subject to contingent interest, C. S., sec. 1744; Ryder v. Oates (1917), 173 N. C. 569, 92 S. E. 508, and this amendment makes the same practice apply in the sale of land for assets. The Code of Civil Procedure provides for the service of summons by publication upon unknown parties who are interested in real estate as the subject of a civil action, and in actions to foreclose mortgages on real estate; C. S., sec. 484, 6, 7, and the same rules of procedure apply in special proceedings; C. S., sec. 752, so that the case of unknown parties seems to be provided for under the general law. It places the question beyond controversy, however, to have it specially provided for in the cases mentioned." 3 N. C. L. R. 15.

All Heirs Necessary Parties.—An heir who was not made a party, or served, may subsequently assail the validity of the decree and proceed against the purchaser. Dickens v. Long, 109 N. C. 165, 13 S. E. 841. See also, Webb v. Atkinson, 122 N. C. 683, 29 S. E. 949.

As to him, whether he be an adult or an infant, the decree is absolutely void, not merely voidable, and can be collaterally attacked. Card v. Finch, 142 N. C. 140, 54 S. E. 1009. Harrison v. Harrison, 106 N. C. 282, 11 S. E. 356. Nor would the fact that he had knowledge of the sale and took no steps to prevent cure the lack of service. Id.

Applies to Infant Parties as Well.—This section applies to making heirs and devisees parties, as well as adults. Perry v. Adams, 98 N. C. 167, 3 S. E. 729; Stancill v. Gay, 92 N. C. 462; Harrison v. Harrison, 106 N. C. 282, 283, 11 S. E. 356.

§ 81. Adverse claimant to be heard.—When the land, which is sought to be sold, is claimed by another person under any pretense whatsoever, such claimant shall be admitted to be heard as a party to the proceeding, upon affidavit of his claim, and if the issue be found for the petitioner he shall have his writ of possession and order of sale accordingly. (Rev., s. 76; Code, s. 1441; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 47.)

Issue as to Title.—Where the order of sale is granted without determining an issue of title raised under this section, the order is void, and the title of the purchaser with notice of such issue is voidable. Perry v. Peterson, 98 N. C. 63, 3 S. E. 834.

Any person who claims to be the owner of the land has the right to be made a party and to have an inquiry made as to his title. Gibson v. Pitts, 69 N. C. 155.

Claims of Undivided Interest.—One who claims an undivided interest in lands sought to be sold to pay debts, may be properly made a party to the proceedings. McKeel v. Holloman, 163 N. C. 132, 79 S. E. 445.

§ 82. Upon issues joined, transferred to term.—When an issue of law or fact is joined between the parties, the course of the procedure shall be as prescribed in such cases for other special proceedings. (Rev., s. 78; Code, s. 1440; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 46.)

Issue of Law Submitted to Judge.—Where a demurrer is filed to the petition filed before the clerk, the issue of law thereby raised must, under this section, be certified to the judge at chambers. Then the judge must transmit his decision thereon to the clerk; it is error for him to direct an order of sale after overruling the demurrer. Jones v. Hemphill, 77 N. C. 42.

Procedure.—The rulings or decisions of the clerk must be transferred for trial to the next succeeding term of the Superior Court, if determinative issues arise on the pleadings; and if there be issues of law or material questions of fact decided by the clerk, they may be reviewed by the judge at term or in chambers, or appeal taken. In passing upon these questions of fact, the court may act on the evidence already received, or may require the production of other evidence. Mills v. McDaniel, 161 N. C. 112, 76 S. E. 551.

§ 83. Order granted, if petition not denied.—As soon as all proper parties are made to the proceeding, the clerk of the superior court before whom it is instituted, if the allegation in the petition are not denied or controverted, shall have power to hear the same summarily, and to decree a sale. (Rev., s. 79; Code, s. 1443; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 48.)

Capacity of the Clerk.—The clerk of the Superior Court, for the purpose of decreeing a sale in case provided by this section represents and is the court, and has authority to exercise the discretionary powers conferred. Tillett v. Aydlett, 90 N. C. 551, 553.

§ 84. Notice of sale as on execution.—Notice of sale under this proceeding shall be the same as for the sale of real estate by sheriffs on execution: Provided, however, that in case a re-sale of such real property shall become necessary under such proceeding, that such real property shall then be re-sold only after notice of re-sale has been duly posted at the courthouse door in the county for fifteen days immediately preceding the re-sale and also published at any time during such fifteen day period once a week for two successive weeks of not less than eight days in some newspaper published in the county, if a newspaper is published in the county, but if there be no newspaper published in said county the notice of re-sale must be posted at the courthouse door and three other public places in the county for fifteen days immediately preceding the re-sale. (Rev., s. 81; Code, s. 1445; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 50; 1933, c. 187.)

Editor's Note.—All of the proviso, now appearing in this section, was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 187.

§ 85. Court fixes extent and terms; title on confirmation.—The court may decree a sale of the whole or any specified parcel of the premises in such a manner, as to size of lots, place of sale, terms of credit, and security for payment of purchase money, as may be most advantageous to the estate, and may also authorize and empower the petitioner or any commissioner appointed by the court to subdivide the land in question, or any part thereof, in such manner as he may deem proper and for the best interest of the state, and in making such division, to dedicate to the public such parts thereof as he may find necessary for public streets, alleys and highways, and to sell such premises, either in bulk or in separate lots, with such streets, alleys, and highways excepted or reserved; but no sale, whether public or private, shall be concluded until reported to and approved and confirmed by the court. When any order for a public sale hereunder has been made or may hereafter be made by the court and the personal representative of a decedent, a commissioner or any other person is or has been appointed by the court to make such sale the provisions of section 2591 shall apply and the provisions of section 763 shall not apply. Upon the coming in of the report of the sale and the confirmation thereof, title shall be made by such person, and at such time as the court may prescribe, and in all cases where the persons in possession have been made parties to the proceeding, the court may grant an order for possession. (Rev., s. 80; Code, s. 1444; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 49; 1917, c. 127, s. 1; 1935, c. 72.)

Editor's Note.—The 1935 amendment inserted the next to the last sentence of the section relating to the nonapplicability of section 2591.

Discretion. — This section confers upon the court a large power of discretion; but this discretion as to the quantity to be sold and the manner of selling is not an arbitrary one, but a sound legal discretion. Tillett v. Aydlett, 90 N. C. 551; Tillett v. Aydlett, 93 N. C. 15.

When Entitled to Possession.—The purchaser is not entitled to an order for possession if the defendants are not in possession when the order of sale is made. Macon v. Wyatt, 117 N. C. 129, 23 S. E. 169.

Confirmation Necessary.—Before a purchaser at a judicial sale can be held to his bid, the sale must be confirmed by the court, and then in the same proceedings a rule issued to show cause why he should not be compelled to comply with his bid. An independent action for damages does not lie against him. Hudson v. Cobb, 97 N. C. 260, 1 S. E. 688.

Conversely, the purchaser acquires no rights under such sale until confirmation—until then he being considered as a mere proposer. The bid may be rejected in the sound discretion of the court at any time before confirmation. Harrell v. Blythe, 140 N. C. 415, 53 S. E. 232.

Confirmation of the sale is a condition precedent to the exercise of the executor's right to convey title. Joyner v. Futrell, 136 N. C. 301, 47 S. E. 649.

Confirmation is also necessary to divest the title out of the party applying for the order of sale, and to validate the commissioner's deed to the purchaser. Foushee v. Durham, 84 N. C. 56.

Inadequacy of the bid or its being for the benefit of the administrator, warrant the exercise of the discretion to reject the bid. Harrell v. Blythe, 140 N. C. 415, 53 S. E. 232; Shearin v. Hunter, 72 N. C. 493.

After Confirmation.—After the confirmation of the sale, however, the jurisdiction of the court is at an end, and the biddings under such sale may not be opened. Thompson v. Cox, 53 N. C. 311, 312. Nor can the order to collect and make title be revoked. Evans v. Singletary, 63 N. C. 205.

Nor can the decree be collaterally attacked after confirmation of the sale; for it then becomes final and can only be assailed, in the absence of substantial irregularity, in a direct and independent proceeding. McLaurin v. McLaurin, 106 N. C. 331, 10 S. E. 1056; Coffin v. Cook, 106 N. C. 376, 11 S. E. 371.

Unsigned Decree of Sale.—It is not essential to the validity of the decree that it should be signed. Sledge v. Elliott, 116 N. C. 712, 21 S. E. 797.

Decree Not Conclusive of Debts.—The decree of the sale is not conclusive of the debts recited by the personal representative in his application for the sale of the land. Latta v. Russ, 53 N. C. 111.

Setting Aside Decree and Confirmation.—A decree and confirmation of sale will not be set aside as against bona fide purchasers, at the instance of infant heirs not served with process, if not made within a reasonable time, and in the absence of a valid defense to the sale. Glisson v. Glisson, 153 N. C. 185, 69 S. E. 55.

After decree of sale and the confirmation the judgment is final and can only be set aside in a direct proceeding for that purpose. Smith v. Gray, 116 N. C. 311, 21 S. E. 200.

Recital of Authority in the Deed.—When the representative exercises the power of sale conferred under an order of the court, but fails to recite in the deed the source of his authority, the implication is that he exercised the power so conferred. Coffin v. Cook, 106 N. C. 376, 11 S. E. 371.

§ 86. Court may order private sale; terms; sale reopened.—If it is made to appear to the court by petition and by satisfactory proof that it will be more for the interest of said estate to sell such real estate by private sale, the court may authorize said petitioner, or any commissioner appointed by the court, to sell the same at private sale, either in whole or in part, for cash in hand, or upon deferred payments, with interest from date of sale, in such a manner as to size of lots, place of sale, terms of credit and security for payment of purchase money as shall be fixed in the order of sale, and if upon a time sale the deferred payments to be secured by mortgage or deed of trust upon the property, or by the retention of the title thereto until the purchase money is paid. When any order for private sale has been or may hereafter be made by any superior court of the state, the provisions of section 2591, chapter, Mortgages and Deeds of Trust, not inconsistent with this section shall apply; and the court may also, upon motion of any person interested in the proceeds of such sale, filed in writing within ten days from the date and report of said sale, together with satisfactory proof that said real property has not been sold for its real value, require the sale to be reopened, and thereupon the court may issue an order for the sale of such premises at public sale, as required by section 2591, chapter, Mortgages and Deeds of Trust, and in such order the court may require such premises to be sold in such parcels and on such terms as to the court may seem most advantageous to the estate. (1917, c. 127, s. 2; 1927, c. 16.)

See annotation under the preceding section.

Editor's Note. — The Public Laws of 1927 c. 16, omitted from this section the restriction limiting deferred payments to a period of two years, and added the provision as to the manner of sale.

§ 87. Undevised realty first sold.—When any part of the real estate of the testator descends to his heirs by reason of its not being devised or disposed of by the will, such undevised real estate shall be first chargeable with payment of debts, in exoneration, as far as it will go, of the real estate that is devised, unless from the will it appears otherwise to be the wish of the testator. (Rev., s. 69; Code, s. 1430; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 39.)

Principle applied in Camp Mfg. Co. v. Liverman, 123 N. C. 7, 31 S. E. 346.

Will Not Be Disturbed. — By virtue of this section a decree for the sale of the land should direct a sale in such a way as to disturb as little as practicable the will of the testator. Tillett v. Aydlett, 90 N. C. 551, 553.

§ 88. Specifically devised realty; contribution.—If, upon the hearing of any petition for the sale of real estate to pay debts, under this chapter, the court decrees a sale of any part that may have been specifically devised, the devisee shall be entitled to contribution from other devisees, according to the principles of equity in respect to contribution among legatees. And the children and issue provided for in this chapter shall be regarded as specific devisees in such contribution. (Rev., s. 86; Code, s. 1535; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 107.)

§ 89. Under power in will, sales public or private.—Sales of real property made pursuant to authority given by will, unless the will otherwise directs, may be public or private, and on such terms as, in the opinion of the executor, are most advantageous to those interested therein. (Rev., s. 84; Code, s. 1503; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 75.)

§ 90. Where executor with power dies, power executed by survivor, etc.—When any or all of the executors of a person making a will of lands to be sold by his executors die, fail or for any cause refuse to take upon them the administration; or, after having qualified, shall die, resign, or for any cause be removed from the position of executor; or when there is no executor named in a will devising lands to be sold, in every such case such executor or executors as survive or retain the burden of administration, or the administrator with the will annexed, or the administrator de bonis non, may sell and convey such lands; and all such conveyances which have been or shall be made by such executors or administrators shall be effectual to convey the title to the purchaser of the estate so devised to be sold. (Rev., s. 82; Code, s. 1493; 1889, c. 461.)

Effect of Section on Common Law Rule.—At common law an executor had no control over realty, and hence a power conferred upon him by the will to sell the realty did not pass upon his death to the administrator d. b. n. c. t. a. But this section has changed the common law rule in this respect. Creech v. Grainger, 106 N. C. 213, 219, 10 S. E. 1032.

Sale by Administrator c. t. a.—The case of an administration with the will annexed where no executors were appointed is (at present) both within the letter and the spirit of this section. Hence where a testator empowers his executor to sell lands, but fails to designate any executor, the administrator c. t. a. can, under this section exercise that right. Hester v. Hester, 37 N. C. 330, 339.

Waiving Condition of Option.—Under this section, one of the two executors may not, in the absence of express power, waive the condition of time of an option given by them for the purchase of lands. Trogden v. Williams, 144 N. C. 192, 204, 56 S. E. 865.

Applied to sale by administrator c. t. a, and administrator d. b. n. c. t. a. in Saunders v. Saunders, 108 N. C. 327, 331, 12 S. E. 909; Orrender v. Call, 101 N. C. 399, 7 S. E. 878. Applied to sale by surviving executor in Simpson v. Simpson, 93 N. C. 373.

§ 91. Death of vendor under contract, representative to convey.—When any deceased person has bona fide sold any lands, and has given a bond or other written contract to the purchaser to convey the same, and the bond or other written contract has been duly proved and registered in the county where the lands are situated, if within the state, or, if not in the state, shall be proved before the clerk of the superior court and registered in the county where the obligee lives or obligor died, his executor, administrator or collector may execute a deed to the purchaser conveying such estate as shall be specified in the bond or other written contract; and such deed shall convey the title as fully as if it had been executed by the deceased obligor: Provided, that no deed shall be made but upon payment of the price, if that be the condition of the bond or other written contract. (Rev., s. 83; Code, s. 1492; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 65; 1874-5, c. 251.)

Editor's Note.—Before the enactment of this section, the heirs of the vendor were the proper persons on whom the purchaser had the right to call for the conveyance. See Earle v. McDowell, 12 N. C. 16. Osborn v. McMillan, 50 N. C. 109; Twitty v. Lovelace, 97 N. C. 54, 2 S. E. 661.

Formerly this section applied only to cases where the vendor had executed a bond. It did not extend to agreements to convey made upon other considerations. Hodges v. Hodges, 22 N. C. 72.

Registration and Payment Prerequisites.—Unless the contract for the sale is proved and registered and the purchase money is paid in full, a deed made by the representative is inoperative. Taylor v. Hargrove, 101 N. C. 145, 7 S. E. 647.

Not Applicable to Restore Lost Deeds.—This section does not apply to cases where a deed is executed in performance of the condition of the bond to convey, but is lost after the death of the vendor and before its registration. Hodges v. Hodges, 22 N. C. 72.

Equitable Defense Against Bond.—Where the representative in compliance with this section executes the deed to the purchaser, any equitable defense against the bond may be set up against such deed. McCraw v. Gwin, 42 N. C. 55.

Remedy of Heirs for Purchase Money. — It was formerly held that the heirs may not enjoin the representative from making a deed, upon the ground that the purchase money had not been paid. Their remedy is to call the representative to account for the money, or call for specific performance of the contract. White v. Hooper, 59 N. C. 152, 154. (But now see the proviso at the end of section.)

Showing of Consideration.—The person claiming under the contract must, under this section, show that there was a valuable consideration therefor, and such other circumstances as would be equivalent to a payment of that consideration. Lindsay v. Coble, 37 N. C. 602.

Heirs as Necessary Parties.—In an action brought by the personal representative of an obligor in a bond for title to subject the land to the payment of the purchase money, the heirs of the obligor are necessary parties. But if the bond referred to in this section is proved and registered and the section has been complied with, in proceedings for the sale of such land the presence of the heirs is perhaps, not necessary. Grubb v. Lookabill, 100 N. C. 271, 6 S. E. 390.

Bilateral Contracts Contemplated. — This section contemplates only contracts of conveyance of a bilateral nature. Hence where the optionee of a vendor dies before the option is exercised the representative has under this section, no power to convey; and the optionee's remedy is against the heir or the devisees. Mizell v. Dennis Simmons Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 68, 93 S. E. 436.

Warranty of Title. — This section empowers the representative to convey only such interest as the vendor could sell. Hence where the vendor contracts to sell his interest in the land, the representative cannot be expected to warrant the title of the land. Twitty v. Lovelace, 97 N. C. 54, 2 S. E. 661.

Deed Inoperative. — A deed executed by the representative before the contract for sale has been proven and registered and the purchase money paid in full, is inoperative. Taylor v. Hargrove, 101 N. C. 145, 7 S. E. 647.

§ 92. Title in representative for estate, he or successor to convey.—When land is conveyed to a personal representative for the benefit of the estate he represents, he may sell and convey same upon such terms as he may deem just and for the advantage of said estate; which sale shall be public, after due advertisement, as for judicial sales, unless the conveyance is made to the party entitled to the proceeds. If such land is not conveyed by such personal representative during his life or term of office, his successor may sell and convey such land as if the title had been made to him: Provided, if the predecessor has contracted in writing to sell said lands, but fails to convey same, his successor in office may do so upon payment of the purchase price. (Rev., s. 71; 1905, c. 342.)

§ 92(a). Validation of sales of real estate made in good faith to obtain assets to pay debts.—In all cases where real property devised upon contingent remainder, executory divise, or other limitation, shall have been sold and conveyed for a fair price in good faith by the executor named in said will, or by an administrator with the will annexed, for the purpose of making assets with which to pay the debts of said estate, under the mistaken belief that said will authorized such sale, and the proceeds of such sale shall have been applied to the payment of the indebtedness of such estate, and it shall be made to appear in any action brought by the purchaser of said land, or those claiming under such purchaser, that such executor, or other personal representative would have been entitled in a proper proceeding brought for that purpose to an order of court to sell said land for the purpose of making assets with which to pay the indebtedness of such estate, then such sale so made by such executor, or other representative, shall be valid and binding upon all such contingent remaindermen, executory devisees, or other person, who would have taken such property under said will upon the contingency or contingencies therein mentioned, notwithstanding said sale shall have been made by such executor or other personal representative without obtaining such order of the court. And in any such action instituted by the purchaser of such land, or those claiming under him, for the purpose of removing a cloud from the title thereto all contingent remaindermen, executory devisees, or other persons entitled to claim under any limitation in said will, if in being, and known to be residents of this state, shall be made parties defendant to such action, and served with summons as in other civil actions; all nonresidents, or persons whose names and residences are unknown, shall be served with summons by publication as now required by law, or such service in lieu of publication as now provided by law. In cases where the contingent remainder, executory devise, or other limitation will, or may, go to minors, or persons under other disabilities, or to persons not in being, or whose names and residences are not known, or who may in any contingency become interested in said land, but because of such contingency cannot be ascertained, the judge of the superior court shall, in any such action brought for the purpose aforesaid, after due inquiry of persons who are in no way interested in or connected with such proceedings, designate and appoint some discreet person as guardian ad litem to represent such contingent remaindemen, or executory devisees, upon whom summons shall be served in such action as provided by law for other guardians ad litem, and it shall be the duty of such guardian ad litem to defend such action, and when counsel is needed to represent him, to make this known to the judge, who shall by an order give instructions as to the employment of counsel and the payment of fees. And all contingent remaindermen, executory devisees, or other persons, who may be entitled to claim a contingent interest in said land, whether known or unknown, in being or not in being, shall be conclusively bound by any final judgment entered in such action, if made parties thereto, and represented therein in the manner hereinbefore provided: Provided, however, that this law shall not apply to any sale of land made in which the executor or other personal representative shall have been either directly or indirectly the purchaser thereof. (1923, c. 70, s. 1.)

For a review of this act in the North Carolina Law Review, see 1 N. C. L. R. 315.

Validity, Operation and Effect. — This statute is curative and retrospective, and is constitutional, legal, and does not interfere with or destroy vested rights. A retrospective law, as in the case of this statute, curing defects in acts that have been done, or authorizing or confirming the exercise of powers, is valid in those cases in which the Legislature originally had authority to confer the power or to authorize the act. Charlotte Consol. Const. Co. v. Brockenbrough, 187 N. C. 65, 77, 121 S. E. 7.

§ 92(b). Presumption; burden of proof. — Where the purchaser of any lands made under the circumstances narrated in the preceding section, or any person holding or claiming the same under or through such purchaser, shall have been in the peaceable possession thereof for more than twenty years without any adverse claim having been asserted to the same by any person claiming under such will, and the records of the administration of the said estate do not affirmatively show what disposition has been made of the proceeds of the sale of such land, then it shall be presumed, prima facie, that the proceeds of the sale of the said land have been applied to the payment of the necessary indebtedness of the said estate and the cost of the administration thereof, and the burden of proof to the contrary shall be upon the defendants in said action. (1923, c. 70, s. 2.)

See note under § 92a.

§ 92(c) Application of two preceding sections.—Sections 92(a) and 92(b) shall apply only to sales of lands made under the circumstances narrated in those sections, occurring prior to January 1, 1925. (1923, c. 70, s. 3; 1925, c. 48.)

See note under § 92a.

Editor's Note. — Prior to the act of 1925, ch. 48, the application of the two preceding sections was confined to sales occurring prior to February 24, 1923.

Editor's Note.—As stated in 9 N. C. Law Rev. 404, the preamble of the act indicates that it is to apply where no order of court was obtained or where the court proceedings authorizing and confirming the sales have been lost without being recorded. As to its constitutionality against the charge of disturbing vested rights, see Charlotte Const. Co. v. Brockenbrough, 187 N. C. 65, 121 S. E. 7. As to validation of sales of real estate devised upon limitation made prior to January 1, 1925, see §§ 92(a)-92(c).

Editor's Note.—The wording of this section as it appears in the published act is somewhat confusing. The words in brackets could well be omitted and there is other faulty wording. But it seems clear not only that recitals in the deeds that the sale was made under order of court are to be presumed to be prima facie correct, but also those to the effect that the proceeds have been applied to the payment of the debts and costs of administration. See 9 N. C. Law Rev. 404.

§ 92(f). Application of two preceding sections.—Sections 92(d) and 92(e) shall only apply to sales by administrators made prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred twenty, and shall not apply to pending litigation nor to any pending or unsettled administration or estate. (1931, c. 146, s. 3; 1935, c. 31.)

Editor's Note.—This act became effective March 21, 1931.

By the amendment of 1935 the section was made applicable to sales prior to 1920 rather than to 1900 as formerly provided.

§ 92(g). Validation of sales of real estate by administrators d. b. n. prior to qualification.—In all cases, prior to January first, nineteen hundred thirty-one, where a sale of real estate has been made by an administrator de bonis non of a deceased trustee in a deed in trust, and such administrator de bonis non advertised and conducted such sale prior to his qualification as administrator de bonis non of the deceased trustee, but qualified as such before the execution of the trustee's deed made pursuant to such sale, said sale and deed shall be valid and as effectual as though such advertisement and sale had occurred after the qualification of such administrator de bonis non. (1935, c. 381.)

Art. 14. Proof and Payment of Debts of Decedent

§ 93. Order of payment of debts.—The debts of the decedent must be paid in the following order:

The intention of the Legislature is that the assets of a decedent shall be administered, as far as may be done, in one proceeding upon proper safeguards, for the benefit of all the creditors. Atkinson v. Ricks, 140 N. C. 418, 421, 53 S. E. 230.

Design of Section. — This section was only designed to recognize priorities among the creditors of the deceased and to establish the order of payment between claimants who have valid debts against the deceased. It was never intended to create a liability which did not otherwise exist. Bower v. Daugherty, 168 N. C. 242, 84 S. E. 265.

Recognizing priority of classes, this section provides for the administration of assets for the benefit of all the creditors according to definite and established rules. Farmville Oil, etc., Co. v. Bourne, 205 N. C. 337, 339, 171 S. E. 368.

Strict Construction. — This section being in derogation of the equity of a pro rata distribution, should be strictly construed so as not to confer a priority over other creditors unless clearly called for. Baker v. Dawson, 131 N. C. 227, 228, 42 S. E. 588.

The fees of a referee taxed against an administrator are not a preferred debt under this section. Cobb v. Rhea, 137 N. C. 295, 49 S. E. 161.

This section creates no preference for payment on bank stock out of the assets of the estate of a deceased stockholder and none results from the application of the pertinent principles of equity. Hood v. Darden, 206 N. C. 566, 174 S. E. 460.

Duty of Representative. — To carry out the order designated by this section is a duty of the representative. State v. Oliver, 104 N. C. 467, 10 S. E. 709.

Testator Can Not Change Statutory Priority.—A testator may not so dispose of his estate as to avoid the payment of his debts in accordance with the priorities fixed by this section. First Security Trust Co. v. Lentz, 196 N. C. 398, 145 S. E. 776.

Cited in Statesville v. Jenkins, 199 N. C. 159, 163, 154 S. E. 15; Brown v. Brown, 199 N. C. 473, 154 S. E. 731.

First class. Debts which by law have a specific lien on property to an amount not exceeding the value of such property.

A deed of trust executed to secure a debt which by law had a specific lien on property, as provided by the first class, has priority over the payment of taxes provided for eo nomine in the third subdivision of the statute. Farmville Oil. etc., Co. v. Bourne, 205 N. C. 337, 339, 171 S. E. 368.

The lien of a docketed judgment, which is eo nomine put in the fifth class, is not such a "specific lien on property," unless made so by its terms, as to come within the first class mentioned in the statute. Stewart v. Doar, 205 N. C. 37, 38, 169 S. E. 804.

Applied in State v. Oliver, 104 N. C. 467, 10 S. E. 709.

Second class. Funeral expenses.

Editor's Note. — The burial expenses, from the nature of things, are not an indebtedness of the deceased, for they accrue after his death; nor are they cost of administration. Yet from necessity they are chargeable upon the assets in preference to other claims hereinafter enumerated, both at common law and under our statute.

Expenses of Debtor Only. — The funeral and medical expenses referred to in this subdivision and subdivision 6 means those of the debtor, and not of his wife, child or tenants. Baker v. Dawson, 131 N. C. 227, 42 S. E. 588.

See subsequent case, Bowen v. Daugherty, 168 N. C. 242, 84 S. E. 265, where it was held that the husband's estate is liable for the funeral expenses of his predeceased wife, in preference to the beneficiaries under his will.

Third Party Paying. — The provisions of this subdivision enures to the benefit of one who after having paid such expenses as a matter of affection and duty wants to recover the same from the estate. Ray v. Honeycutt, 119 N. C. 510, 26 S. E. 127.

Third class. Taxes assessed on the estate of the deceased previous to his death.

This section has no application to the payment of assessments made against land by a municipality for the purpose of improving streets. Saluda v. County of Polk, 207 N. C. 180, 184, 176 S. E. 298; High Point v. Brown, 206 N. C. 664, 667, 175 S. E. 169.

Method of Collecting Taxes. — Section 7985 construed in the lights of this subdivision of this section indicates that the ordinary methods of collecting taxes by a sheriff do not apply to collection of taxes from a decedent's estate. Sherrod v. Dawson, 154 N. C. 525, 529, 70 S. E. 739.

Relation to and Effect of § 7980.—The General Assembly by enacting § 7980, providing that taxes assessed against land be paid from the proceeds of a foreclosure sale, did not intend to abolish the method definitely prescribed by this section for administerng the estate of a person deceased or to modify the statutory direction as to the order in which the decedent's debts should be paid. Farmville Oil, etc., Co. v. Bourne, 205 N. C. 337, 339, 171 S. E. 368.

Fourth class. Dues to the United States and to the state of North Carolina.

Fifth class. Judgments of any court of competent jurisdiction within this state, docketed and in force, to the extent to which they are a lien on the property of the deceased at his death.

Judgments Paid Out of Personalty. — The provision of this clause does not mean that the judgment shall be paid out of the realty of the decedent upon which it has become a lien. When a debtor dies against whom there is a judgment docketed his land descends to his heirs or vests in his devisees, and his personal property vests in his administrator or executor, just as if there was no judgment against him, and the whole estate is to be administered just as if there were no judgment, that is to say, the personal property must be sold if necessary and all the personal assets collected, and out of these personal assets all the debts must be paid, if there be enough to pay all, as well docketed judgments as others. The reason for this mode of administration is that, although a lien on land exists, the judgment should be paid out of the personal estate, if any, in exoneration of the land for the benefit of the heir or devisee. Lee v. Eure, 82 N. C. 428.

When Priorities Determined. — The priorities among several judgment heirs which are dependent upon the date of their respective recordation, are to be determined as they existed at the death of the debtor, after which they remain unaffected by lapse of time until barred by the statute of limitations or by executions issued upon the judgment. Tarbors v. Penders, 153 N. C. 427, 430, 69 S. E. 425, 636; Mauney v. Holmes, 87 N. C. 431; Galloway v. Bradfield, 86 N. C. 163, 166; Farmville Oil, etc., Co. v. Bourne, 205 N. C. 337, 171 S. E. 368.

Expired Judgment Lien. — The expiration of the judgment lien terminates the authority of the representative to pay such lien. The judgment lien must be in force at the time of payment. Matthews v. Peterson, 150 N. C. 132, 134, 63 S. E. 721, 722.

Statute of Limitations not Affected. — The fact that under this subdivision judgments docketed and in force, which have become a lien upon decedent's property at the date of his death, have priority over certain other claims, does not stop the running of the statute of limitation upon such judgments. Daniel v. Laughlin, 87 N. C. 433, 436.

Application of Proceeds under a Consent Judgment to Sell Land. — Where a consent judgment provides that a commissioner appointed for the purpose sell certain lands of a deceased person, and pay the net proceeds to the administratrix of the deceased to pay the debts of his estate, the distribution of these proceeds are thereunder to be made under the provisions of this section, and a judgment ordering them to be paid to a lien of a judgment creditor on the lands of the estate, adjudging it a prior lien, is reversible error. First National Bank v. Mitchell, 191 N. C. 190, 131 S. E. 656.

Application to Funds in Administrator's Hands. — The provision of this clause applies to funds in the administrator's hands. Matthews v. Peterson, 150 N. C. 134, 135, 63 S. E. 721.

Extent of the Lien. — If the real estate upon which the judgment is a lien is of less value than the amounts of the judgment, then the extent of the lien under this subdivision is the value of the land only. Jerkins v. Carter, 70 N. C. 500, 501. And if, in such a case a part of the lien has been paid out of the personalty (which is first liable for the payment) the extent of the lien is the difference between the value of the land and amount paid out of the personalty. It is not the difference between the amount of the lien and the amount paid from the personalty. Murchison v. Williams, 71 N. C. 137.

Applied. — In Murchison v. Williams, 71 N. C. 137, 138.

Sixth class. Wages due to any domestic servant or mechanical or agricultural laborer employed by the deceased, which claim for wages shall not extend to a period of more than one year next preceding the death; or if such servant or laborer was employed for the year current at the decease, then from the time of such employment; for medical services within the twelve months preceding the decease.

See note Baker v. Dawson, 131 N. C. 227, 42 S. E. 588, under class 2 of this section.

Seventh class. All other debts and demands. (Rev., s. 87; Code, s. 1416; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 24.)

§ 94. No preference within class.—No executor, administrator or collector shall give to any debt any preference whatever, either by paying it out of its class or by paying thereon more than a pro rata proportion in its class. (Rev., s. 88; Code, ss. 1417, 1418; 1868-9, c. 113, ss. 25, 26.)

Editor's Note. — The prohibition embodied in this section is against the representative. Hence a solvent person in his lifetime may by his will make preferences in favor of persons who would otherwise be postponed. But as upon his death his effects and property vest in his representative who must pay the debts first, if the estate is insolvent the representative cannot assent to the payment of preferences before the payment of prior debts as prescribed in the preceding section. The result is that preferences made by an insolvent decedent are rendered ineffective for all purposes. See Moore v. Byers, 65 N. C. 242.

Paying by Honest Mistake. — If the representative pays a debt belonging to an inferior class in preference to a superior debt, even though he does it through an honest mistake, he is chargeable for the same. Maye v. Albritton, 42 N. C. 62.

§ 95. When payment out of class held valid.— Where any executor or administrator has paid any debt of his testator or intestate before all the debts of higher dignity have been paid and satisfied, and the estate of such testator or intestate was at the time of such payment solvent, but has since been rendered insolvent by the emancipation of the slaves, or the insolvency of the debtors of the estate, or other cause, without any fault or want of diligence on the part of the executor or administrator, or when any creditor has refused to accept payment of his debt in Confederate currency, and such currency was afterwards used by the executor or administrator in payment of debts of the estate, or it became of no value by the termination of the war, in all such cases payments thus made shall be deemed and held valid in law, and shall be allowed to such executor or administrator in all suits by creditors of the estate seeking to charge such executor or administrator with assets of the estate or with devastavit thereof, without regard to the dignity of the debt thus paid, or on which such suit may be brought. (Rev., s. 96; Code, s. 1496; 1869-70, c. 150.)

Section Declaratory of Existing Law. — Even in the absence of this section the principle which it inculcates would hold true under legal and equitable principles. Coggins v. Flythe, 113 N. C. 102, 114, 18 S. E. 96.

§ 96. Debts due representative not preferred.— No property or assets of the decedent shall be retained by the executor, administrator or collector in satisfaction of his own debt, in preference to others of the same class; but such debt must be established upon the same proof and paid in like manner and order as required by law in case of other debts. (Rev., s. 89; Code, s. 1420; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 28.)

§ 97. Debts not due rebated.—Debts not due may be paid on a rebate of interest thereon for the time unexpired. (Rev., s. 90; Code, s. 1419; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 27.)

§ 98. Affidavit of debt may be required.—Upon any claim being presented against the estate, the executor, administrator or collector may require the affidavit of the claimant or other satisfactory evidence that such claim is justly due, that no payments have been made thereon, and that there are no offsets against the same, to the knowledge of the claimant; or if any payments have been made, or any offsets exist, their nature and amount must be stated in such affidavit. (Rev., s. 91; Code, s. 1425; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 33.)

§ 99. Disputed debt may be referred.—If the executor, administrator or collector doubts the justness of any claim so presented, he may enter into an agreement, in writing, with the claimant, to refer the matter in controversy, whether the same be of a legal or equitable nature, to one or more disinterested persons, not exceeding three, whose proceedings shall be the same in all respects as if such reference had been ordered in an action. Such agreement to refer, and the award thereupon, shall be filed in the clerk's office where the letters were granted, and shall be a lawful voucher for the personal representative. The same may be impeached in any proceeding against the personal representative for fraud therein: Provided, that the right to refer claims under this section shall extend to claims in favor of the estate as well as those against it. (Rev., s. 92; Code, s. 1426; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 34; 1872-3, c. 141.)

Purpose of Section. — The section was intended to create an expeditious and inexpensive mode by which controversies between executors, administrators or collectors and claimants against the estate of testators and intestates may be settled and determined. State v. Potter, 107 N. C. 415, 12 S. E. 55.

Effect of Agreement to Arbitrate. — An agreement to arbitrate and to award under this section is competent evidence to prove the indebtedness of the estate. Such an agreement is, where there is no fraud or collusion, binding upon the heirs even though they were not parties to the proceedings. Lassiter v. Upchurch, 107 N. C. 411, 12 S. E. 63.

Finding as Judgment. — The finding of arbitrators under this section is equivalent to a judgment, and the proceedings in which it is rendered can be impeached only for fraud or collusion. Lassiter v. Upchurch, 107 N. C. 411, 12 S. E. 63.

Not Applicable to Creditor's Suit under Sec. 110. — The proceedings authorized by this section are between a creditor and the personal representative, and have no application to creditor's bill under section 110 instituted to take the administration into the hands of the court. Dunn v. Beaman, 126 N. C. 766, 36 S. E. 172.

When Action on Claim against Executor Barred.—Where a claim against an executor is rejected by him in writing and is not referred in accordance with the provisions of this section, an action thereon is barred if not brought within six months after the rejection of the claim by the executor. See § 100. Batts v. Batts, 198 N. C. 395, 151 S. E. 868.

Thus, while § 93 classifies funeral expenses as a debt of the estate, the amount due therefor cannot be regarded as a legacy in this State, and where a husband who has paid the funeral expenses of his wife makes claim therefor upon her executor and the claim is rejected, and is not referred in accordance with this section, an action on the claim is barred by his failure to bring it within six months from the time of its rejection by the executor. Batts v. Batts, 198 N. C. 395, 151 S. E. 868.

§ 100. Disputed debt not referred, barred in six months.—If a claim is presented to and rejected by the executor, administrator or collector, and not referred as provided in the preceding section, the claimant must, within six months after due notice in writing of such rejection, or after some part of the debt becomes due, commence an action for the recovery thereof, or be forever barred from maintaining an action thereon. (Rev., s. 93; Code, s. 1427; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 35; 1913, c. 3, s. 1.)

Strictly Construed. — The language of this section is positive and explicit, and must be enforced in accordance with the plain meaning of its terms. Morrisey v. Hill, 142 N. C. 355, 358, 55 S. E. 193.

Counterclaim Barred. — A claim barred under this section can not be pleaded even by way of counterclaim, in an action by the representative against the claimant, and this, regardless of the fact that the general notice provided for in section 45 had not been given. Morrisey v. Hill, 142 N. C. 355, 55 S. E. 193.

§ 101. If claim not presented in twelve months, representative discharged as to assets paid.—In an action brought on a claim which was not presented within twelve months from the first publication of the general notice to creditors, the executor, administrator or collector shall not be chargeable for any assets that he may have paid in satisfaction of any debts, legacies or distributive shares before such action was commenced; nor shall any costs be recovered in such action against the executor, administrator or collector. (Rev., s. 94; Code, s. 1428; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 37.)

The purpose of this section is to relieve administrators, executors and collectors from liability for assets they may pay or distribute to a person or persons entitled to have the same as to claims not presented within the prescribed time, and as well to facilitate and encourage the prompt settlement of the estates of deceased persons. Mallard v. Patterson, 108 N. C. 255, 259, 13 S. E. 93.

Administrator May Hold Funds for Twelve Month Period.—Under this section a bank, acting as an administrator, has a legal right to hold the funds of the estate for one year after appointment and to refuse to settle claims of heirs during this period. Security Nat. Bank v. Bridgers, 207 N. C. 91, 176 S. E. 295.

§ 103. When costs against representative allowed.—No costs shall be recovered in any action against an executor, administrator or collector, unless it appears that payment was unreasonably delayed or neglected, or that the defendant refused to refer the matter in controversy, in which case the court may award such costs against the defendant personally, or against the estate, as may be just. (Rev., s. 97; Code, s. 1429; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 38.)

The purpose of this section is to urge the representatives to an early and prompt settlement of claims against the deceased, and to protect the estate, when proper diligence was used, from cost needlessly incurred by the creditors in prosecuting their claims. May v. Darder, 83 N. C. 239.

Exception to Secs. 1241-1243.—This section forms an exception to sections 1241-1243 which are general provisions as to cost. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 50 S. E. 630.

Unreasonable Delay or Neglect. — Where an action was brought within fifty-two days of the qualification of the administrator, it was held that payment had not been "unreasonably delayed or neglected" within the meaning of this section. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 207, 50 S. E. 630. A fortiori the same rule was applied, in May v. Darden, 83 N. C. 239; when the suit was instituted twenty days after appointment.

From the opinion in Morris v. Morris, 94 N. C. 613, 618, it appears that the intestate died in December 1882 and letters were issued sometime in 1883, prior to July 19th when suit was commenced. It would seem from the rule stated in the third headnote of the case that this did not constitute unreasonable delay.

Appeal for Cost. — Although the general rule is that an appeal lies from a judgment for cost only, there is an exception to this rule in favor of fiduciaries, inferred from this section. May v. Darden, 83 N. C. 239.

Not Applicable When Funds Misapplied. — In proceedings to subject to representative to liability for misapplication of the funds, as distinguished from proceedings to recover a debt out of the estate, this section does not apply, and the representative is chargeable with the cost. Valentine v. Britton, 127 N. C. 57, 59, 37 S. E. 74.

Burden of Proof. — The burden is on the plaintiffs to show that they are entitled to recover cost under this section. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 207, 50 S. E. 630.

Land Chargeable with Cost. — In proceedings by the creditor to subject the land to the payment of debts, the land is subject to the payment of the cost, wherever the representative can be charged with the cost under the circumstances referred to in this section. Long v. Oxford, 108 N. C. 280, 13 S. E. 112.

§ 104. Obligations binding heirs collected as other debts.—Bonds and other obligations in which the ancestor has bound his heirs shall not be put in suit against the heirs or devisees of the deceased but shall be paid as other debts of the same class in the manner provided in this chapter. (Rev., s. 98; Code, s. 1404; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 12.)

Art. 15. Accounts and Accounting

§ 105. Annual Accounts.—Every executor, administrator and collector shall, within twelve months from the date of his qualification or appointment, and annually, so long as any of the estate remains in his control, file, in the office of the clerk of the superior court, an inventory and account, under oath, of the amount of property received by him, or invested by him, and the manner and nature of such investment, and his receipts and disbursements for the past year in the form of debit and credit. He must produce vouchers for all payments. The clerk may examine on oath such accounting party, or any other person, concerning the receipts, disbursements or any other matter relating to the estate; and, having carefully revised and audited such account, if he approve the same, he must endorse his approval thereon, which shall be deemed prima facie evidence of correctness. (Rev., s. 99; Code, s. 1399; C. C. P., s. 478; 1871-2, c. 46.)

The word "accounts" as used in this section means "a statement in writing of debts and credits, or of receipts and payments; a list of items of debts and credits, with their respective dates." It does not include the idea of payment and settlement. State v. Dunn, 134 N. C. 663, 668, 46 S. E. 949.

Prima Facie Evidence Only. — The sworn account referred to in this section, is only prima facie evidence. It is not conclusive as against any person adversely interested. The statute merely shifts the burden of proof. Allen v. Roster, 107 N. C. 278, 282, 12 S. E. 134. Turner v. Turner, 104 N. C. 566, 571, 10 S. E. 606; In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 172 S. E. 345.

And the representative himself is not estopped to impeach the account. Bean v. Bean, 135 N. C. 92, 47 S. E. 232.

Transfer of Funds to Other Jurisdiction. — The administrator in this state of the estate of a nonresident dying in his own state, before transferring the funds to the state of the domicile must comply with the provisions of this section. Grant v. Rogers, 94 N. C. 755, 762.

Ex Parte Proceeding. — The jurisdiction for auditing accounts conferred upon the clerk by this section is an ex parte jurisdiction of examining the accounts and vouchers of such persons, and does not conclude parties interested or affect suits inter partes upon the same matter. Heilig v. Foard, 64 N. C. 713; Bean v. Bean, 135 N. C. 92, 93, 47 S. E. 253; Grant v. Hughes, 94 N. C. 231.

Meaning of "Auditing Accounts". — The provisions as to auditing the accounts of executors, administrators, have reference to the duty of examining the accounts to see that the account of charges correspond with the inventories, passing upon the voucher and striking a balance after allowing commissions. Heilig v. Foard, 64 N. C. 713.

§ 106. Clerk may compel account.—If any executor, administrator or collector omits to account, as directed in the preceding section, or renders an insufficient and unsatisfactory account, the clerk shall forthwith order such executor, administrator or collector to render a full and satisfactory account, as required by law, within twenty days after service of the order. Upon return of the order, duly served, if such executor, administrator or collector fail to appear or refuse to exhibit such account, the clerk may issue an attachment against him for a contempt and commit him till he exhibit such account, and may likewise remove him from office. And the sheriffs of the several counties to whom a process is directed under the provisions of this section shall serve the same without demanding their fees in advance. (Rev., s. 100; Code, s. 1400; C. C. P., s. 479; 1933, c. 99.)

Editor's Note.—The last sentence of this section as it now reads was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 99.

Original Jurisdiction.—Under this section the clerk has original jurisdiction to remove. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 8.

Applied in In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 172 S. E. 345.

§ 107. Vouchers presumptive evidence. — Vouchers are presumptive evidence of disbursement, without other proof, unless impeached. If lost, the accounting party must, if required, make oath to that fact, setting forth the manner of loss, and state the contents and purport of the voucher. And this section shall apply to guardians, collectors, trustees and to all other persons acting in a fiduciary character. (Rev., s. 101; Code, s. 1401; C. C. P., s. 480.)

Independent of this section receipts of living persons are not strictly legal evidence to show a full administration. Drake v. Drake, 82 N. C. 443.

What the Vouchers Must Show. — This section makes vouchers presumptive evidence of disbursements actually made, but not their nature, purpose and necessity. When these latter do not appear upon the vouchers to make them presumptive evidence they should state with reasonable particularity the purpose, the particular account upon which they were made, the time, etc., so as to make it appear that the expenditure or disbursement was a proper one. McLean v. Breese, 109 N. C. 564, 566, 13 S. E. 910.

Proof of Handwriting.—Under this section only when the voucher is relied on as presumptive evidence that the handwriting of the person signing the voucher need be proven. Costen v. McDowell, 107 N. C. 546, 549, 12 S. E. 432.

Presumptive Though Not Primary Evidence.—While this section makes the vouchers presumptive proof, it by no means provides that they shall be primary evidence, and therefore actual payment may still be established in the same way as before the enactment of this section when the receipts of living persons were not strictly legal evidence to show a full administration. Costen v. McDowell, 107 N. C. 546, 549, 12 S. E. 432; Drake v. Drake, 82 N. C. 443, 445.

§ 108. Gravestones authorized.—It is lawful for executors and administrators to provide suitable gravestones to mark the graves of their testators or intestates, and to pay for the cost of erecting the same, and the cost thereof shall be paid as funeral expenses and credited as such in final accounts. The cost thereof shall be in the sound discretion of the executor or administrator, having due regard to the value of the estate and to the interests of creditors and needs of the widow and distributees of the estate. Where the executor or administrator desires to spend more than one hundred dollars for such purpose he shall file his petition before the clerk of the court, and such order as will be made by the court shall specify the amount to be expended for such purpose. (Rev., s. 102; 1905, c. 444; 1925, c. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The last clause of this section as it formerly stood provided that the order be approved by the resident judge of the district. This was omitted by the act of 1925.

§ 109. Final accounts.—An executor or administrator may be required to file his final account for settlement in the office of the clerk of the superior court by a citation directed to him, at any time after two years from his qualification, at the instance of any person interested in the estate, but such account may be filed voluntarily at any time; and, whether the accounting be voluntary or compulsory, it shall be audited and recorded by the clerk. (Rev., s. 103; Code, s. 1402; C. C. P., s. 481.)

Jurisdiction.—Formerly the probate court had jurisdiction to make the representative account. Rowland v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 110, 112. Under this section the clerk of the superior Court has jurisdiction. McNeill v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 52, 54, 11 S. E. 265.

Ex Parte Proceeding No Estoppel.—The auditing by the clerk, whether under this or under the section preceding the last, is an ex parte proceeding, and does not work an estoppel upon the parties as a judgment in inter parte proceedings would. In this respect this and the section just referred to are alike. Bean v. Bean, 135 N. C. 92, 93, 47 S. E. 232.

Presumption of Correctness of Account.—When ex parte accounts are filed under this section, they are, as a matter of law, to be taken as correct until shown to be erroneous. Turner v. Turner, 104 N. C. 566, 572, 10 S. E. 606.

Auditing a Judicial Act.—The phrase "audit an account" means something more than the statement of an account by an unauthorized person. It means the act of a court, and therefore obligatory. Rowland v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 110, 112. Hence the auditing under this section must be performed by the clerk, and not by one of his ministerial officers for a clerk for his judicial functions can have no deputy. Id.

Auditing and Appeal Therefrom.—This section, which directs that the probate judge shall "audit" the account, implies that he shall pursue the usual course which has been formed to be just and convenient in such cases. Consequently an appeal may not be had from the decision of the probate judge upon every question collaterally arising in the course of his investigation, in view of the inconveniences incident to such practice peculiar to common law action of account now superceded by the more expeditious proceedings in equity. Rowland v. Thompson, 64 N. C. 714, 717.

Limitation for Action Against Representative.—An action against an administrator or executor is barred in ten years after the two years allowed under this section, even though no express demand is made by any party interested for the settlement of the estate. Edwards v. Lemmond, 136 N. C. 329, 332, 48 S. E. 737.

Cited in In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 172 S. E. 345.

§ 110. Creditor's special proceeding for accounting.—Any creditor of a deceased person may, within the times prescribed by law, prosecute a special proceeding or a civil action before the judge in his own name and in behalf of himself and all other creditors of the deceased without naming them, against the personal representative of the deceased, to compel him to an account of his administration, and to pay the creditors what may be payable to them respectively. (Rev., s. 104; Code, s. 1448; 1871-2, c. 213; 1876-7, c. 241, s. 6.)

The purpose of this section was to unite all the creditors in one special proceeding, in order to bring the personal representative to an account after two years and to compel an application of the assets by payment to the creditors whose debts have been ascertained. Graham v. Tate, 77 N. C. 120, 125.

Other Creditors May Come In.—Where a creditor has instituted a special proceeding under this section, all or any of the creditors not designated by name are at liberty to come in and share the benefits of the suit. Every creditor has an inchoate interest in the suit, and is, in an essential sense, a party to the action. Dobson v. Simonton, 93 N. C. 268.

Process or General Notice Essential.—Unless personally served with notice, or unless a general notice is published as prescribed by section 114, creditors are not bound by special proceedings instituted under this section by another creditor. Hester v. Lawrence, 102 N. C. 319, 8 S. E. 915.

Summons and Complaints Necessary. — Special proceedings under this section must be by summons and complaint in the first instance. But creditors subsequently coming in need not file a complaint unless their claim is denied. Isler v. Murphy, 76 N. C. 52.

Enjoining Creditor.—A creditor who chooses not to come in, and resorts to an independent action, may be enjoined by the court as soon as the decree for an account is rendered in the main suit. Dobson v. Simonton, 93 N. C. 268, 270.

Creditor's Suit Distinguished.—A special proceeding under this section differs from a creditor's bill is that in the latter case all the creditors may make themselves parties, while in the former case they are required to do so. Patterson v. Miller, 72 N. C. 516.

Mere Filing of Claim.—The mere filing by a creditor of a claim with the clerk gives him a standing in the court, and is all that is required of him unless the claim is contested. Warden v. McKinnon, 94 N. C. 378.

Equitable Character of Proceedings.—The special proceedings under this section are of equitable character. Hence the court may in the same proceedings make the heirs and the next of kin parties, and compel the latter to account for the personalty received by him, or may order the realty to be sold for the payment of the debts. Warden v. McKinnon, 94 N. C. 378; Devereux v. Devereux, 81 N. C. 12.

Stops Running of Statute of Limitations. — Proceedings

under this section instituted by one creditor not only prevent the running of the statute of limitations as to the claim of that creditor, but also of those in whose behalf they are instituted. Dobson v. Simonton, 93 N. C. 268, 271.

Personal Judgment Against Representative.—It is intimated that in special proceedings under this section the clerk has jurisdiction to render a personal judgment against the representative where the latter has committed devastavit, as well as a judgment in his representative capacity. Hester v. Lawrence, 102 N. C. 319, 325, 8 S. E. 915.

Termination of Special Proceedings.—Special proceedings commenced under this section are not terminated by being let off the docket, but continue until all the debts are discharged and there is a final judgment. When so dropped from the docket, they may be brought forward on a motion. Warden v. McKinon, 94 N. C. 378.

Nor the termination of collateral issues, such as on contested claims, terminate such proceedings. Id.

Concurrent Jurisdiction of Courts.—The act of 1876-77, ch. 241, sec. 6, which embodied also this section, which provided that action against the personal representative may be brought originally to the Superior Court at term time, and stipulated for the repeal of conflicting laws, is not in conflict with the jurisdiction of the Probate Court, (before the clerk) and the jurisdiction is concurrent. Hence the court first acquiring jurisdiction of the controversy will retain it.

Thus, where under this section special proceedings were instituted by a creditor, in the Superior Court, and the representative thereafter instituted proceedings in the Probate Court (before the clerk) for the sale of land, it was held that the Superior Court had acquired jurisdiction of the matter and the representative could be restrained from further proceeding in the Probate Court. Haywood v. Haywood, 79 N. C. 42, 43; Pegram v. Armstrong, 82 N. C. 326.

Remedy against Settlement before Payment of Debts.—If an administrator should file a petition for the settlement of the estate before he has paid the debts the remedy of the creditor is by a creditor's bill in accordance with this section, or an action upon the administration bond. They cannot seek to be made parties to the settlement proceedings, Carlton v. Byers, 93 N. C. 302, 304; or to a petition by the representative to sell land for the payment of debts. Dickey v. Dickey, 118 N. C. 956, 24 S. E. 715.

Allegations as to Exhaustion of Personalty.—Whether the suit be by the representative to set aside fraudulent conveyances of the decedent, under section 77, or by the creditor under this section or under the general equity jurisdiction of the court, allegations and proof of the exhaustion or insufficiency of the personalty are necessary. Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 697, 12 S. E. 254; Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 181, 13 S. E. 862.

Effect of Irregularities.—Where, under this section, the court has jurisdiction of the person and subject matter, mere irregularities in the proceedings will not render them void, no objection being made as to such irregularities. Brooks v. Brooks, 97 N. C. 136, 1 S. E. 487.

Thus where the plaintiff does not in terms purport to see for himself and all other creditors in the absence of objection, the proceedings are not void. Id.

Jurisdiction of Judge in Term.—The proceedings under this section are exceptions to the rule that the judge in term has no jurisdiction over the settlement of intestate's estate. Moore v. Ingram, 91 N. C. 376, 379.

Each Complaint Distinct Proceeding.—In proceedings under this section each complaint of the several creditors constitutes a distinct proceeding to be proceeded in separately. Graham v. Tate, 77 N. C. 120.

Motion to Issue Execution.—In view of the remedy given to the creditors under this section and other sections of this chapter, a motion for leave to issue execution against the estate of a decedent cannot be allowed. Cowles v. Hall, 113 N. C. 359, 18 S. E. 329.

The cost of proceedings under this section are determined by the same provisions as are applicable to other proceedings. Patterson v. Miller, 72 N. C. 516, 518.

Nature of Superior Court's Jurisdiction.—Under this section the Superior Court has original jurisdiction over proceedings instituted against the representative. Bratton v. Davidson, 79 N. C. 423.

Correlation of Sec. 99 to This Section.—The proceedings authorized by section 99 are between a creditor and the representative, and have no application to situations arising under this section whose primary object is to take the administration into the hands of the court. Dunn v. Beaman, 126 N. C. 766, 36 S. E. 172.

Special Proceedings or Civil Action Optional.—Originally this section authorized the creditor to bring a "special proceeding" (which is always before the clerk of the court) and did not provide for "civil action." But the amendment of 1876-77 inserted the words "civil action." The effect of the amendment was to give the creditor an option to bring his action either before the clerk or at a regular term of the Superior Court. See Clement v. Cozart, 107 N. C. 695, 698, 12 S. E. 254.

Cited in In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 172 S. E. 345; Buchanan v. Oglesby, 207 N. C. 149, 176 S. E. 281.

§ 111. Rules which govern creditor's proceeding.—The special proceeding shall be governed by the rules of practice prescribed for special proceedings, except so far as the same are modified by this chapter. (Rev., s. 105; Code, s. 1449; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 2.)

Summons and Complaint.—As the proceedings under the preceding section are not ex parte proceedings, within the contemplation of section 759, but are adverse within the meaning of section 753, they must, under the provisions of this section, be commenced by summons and complaint. Isler v. Murphy, 76 N. C. 52, 53.

The creditors subsequently coming in, however, need not file a new complaint, unless their claim is denied. Id.

§ 112. When and where summons returnable.—The summons in said special proceeding shall be returnable before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which letters testamentary or of administration were granted, and on a day not less than forty nor more than one hundred days from the issuing thereof. (Rev., s. 106; Code, s. 1450; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 3.)

Effect of Irregularity in the Time of Return.—Notwithstanding the irregularity in the time of the return as required by this section, the proceedings are valid unless objected to. Brooks v. Brooks, 97 N. C. 136, 141, 1 S. E. 487.

§ 113. Clerk to advertise for creditors.—On issuing the summons, the clerk shall advertise for all creditors of the deceased to appear before him on or before the return day and file the evidences of their claims. (Rev., s. Code, s. 1451; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 4.)

Failure to Publish Assignable on Appeal.—Failure to publish as required by this and the succeeding section, is an error which may be assigned by the representative in an appeal from a judgment of the clerk to the Superior Court in term, even though no exception on this ground has been taken before the clerk. Hester v. Lawrence, 102 N. C. 319, 8 S. E. 915.

It is the duty of the clerk to advertise as directed by statute. Warden v. McKinnon. 94 N. C. 378, 388.

The proceedings, however, are not void for lack of advertisement (which is considered as a mere irregularity), unless objected to. Brooks v. Brooks, 97 N. C. 136, 12 S. E. 487.

The mode of advertisement under this section is regulated by the provisions of the next section. Hester v. Lawrence, 102 N. C. 319, 8 S. E. 915.

§ 114. Publication of advertisement.—The advertisement shall be published at least once a week for not less than four weeks in some newspaper which may be thought by the clerk the most likely to inform all the creditors, and shall also be posted at the courthouse door for not less than thirty days. If, however, the estate does not exceed three thousand dollars in value, and the creditors are supposed by the clerk all to reside within the county or to be known, publication in a newspaper may be omitted, and in lieu thereof the advertisement shall be posted at four public places in the county, besides the courthouse door. Proof of personal service on a creditor or that a copy of the advertisement was sent to him by mail at his usual address shall be as to him equivalent to publication. (Rev., s. 108; Code, s. 1452; 1903, c. 134; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 5.)

See annotations under the preceding section.

Advertisement Both Published and Posted.—The advertisement under this section must be both published in a newspaper, and posted at the court house door. Hester v. Lawrence, 102 N. C. 319, 8 S. E. 915.

§ 115. Creditors to file claims and appoint agent.—The creditors of the deceased on or before the required day shall file with the clerk the evidences of their demands, and every creditor on filing such claim shall endorse thereon or otherwise name some person or place within the town in which the court is held, upon whom or where notices in the cause may be served or left; otherwise he shall be deemed to have notice of all motions, orders and proceedings in the cause filed or made in the clerk's office. (Rev., c. 109; Code, c. 1453; 1871-2, 213, c. 6.)

§ 116. Proof of claims.—If the evidence of the demand is other than a judgment, or some writing signed by the deceased, it shall be accompanied by the oath of the creditor, or, if he be nonresident or infirm or absent, or in any other proper case, of some witness of the transaction, or of some agent of the creditor, that to the best of his knowledge and belief the claim is just, and that all due credits have been given. (Rev., s. 110; Code, s. 1454; 1871-2, c. 213, c. 7.)

§ 117. Representative to file claims; notice to creditors.—On the day of his appearance the personal representative shall on oath give to the clerk a list of all claims against the deceased of which he has received notice or has any knowledge, with the names and residences of the claimants to the best of his knowledge and belief; and if any person so named has failed to file evidence of his claim, the clerk shall immediately cause a notice requiring him to do so to be served on him, which may be done by posting the same directed to him as his usual address. (Rev., s. 111; Code, s. 1455; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 8.)

§ 118. Clerk to exhibit to representative claims filed.—On the day fixed for the appearance of the personal representative, the clerk shall exhibit to him a list of all the claims filed in his office, with the evidences thereof. (Rev., s. 112; Code, s. 1456; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 9.)

§ 119. If representative denies claim, creditor notified.—Within five days thereafter the defendant shall state in writing on said list, or on a separate paper, which of said claims he disputes in whole or in part. The clerk shall then notify the creditor, as above provided, that his claim is disputed, and the creditor shall thereupon file in the office of the clerk a complaint founded on his said claim, and the pleadings shall be as in other cases. (Rev., s. 113; Code, s. 1457; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 10.)

Each Complaint Distinct Proceeding.—Where, under this section, the claims of two or more creditors have been disputed and the issue joined upon the complaints sent to the superior court in pursuance of the succeeding section, the complaint of each creditor constitutes a distinct proceeding to be proceeded separately so as to "let each tub stand on its own bottom." Graham v. Tate, 77 N. C. 120, 124.

§ 120. Issues joined; cause sent to superior court.—If the issues joined be of law, the clerk shall send the papers to the judge of the superior court for trial, as is provided for by chapter on Civil Procedure in like cases. If the issue shall be of fact, the clerk shall send so much of the record as may be necessary to the next term of the superior court for trial. (Rev., s. 114; Code, s. 1458; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 11.)

Title of the Proceeding.—When, under this section, issues upon several complaints have been sent to the superior court, although the title of the cause should be in the name of the creditors who instituted the special proceedings, it is proper to make a further title setting out the name of the creditor upon whose complaint the issues are raised. Graham v. Tate, 77 N. C. 120, 124.

For example: x, (the original creditor) v. y. (administrator). Issues on the complaint of z. In this way the complaint of the several creditors will be kept separate and unnecessary confusion avoided.

§ 121. When representative personally liable for cost.—If any personal representative denies the liability of his deceased upon any claim evidenced as is provided in this chapter, and the issue is finally decided against him, the costs of the trial shall be paid by him personally, and not allowed out of the state, unless it appears that he had reasonable cause to contest the claim and did so bona fide. (Rev., s. 1459; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 12.)

See annotation under sec. 103.

Correlation of This and Section 110.—This section applies to cases where the administrator unreasonably denies a claim filed under section 110. Valentine v. Britton, 127 N. C. 57, 59, 37 S. E. 74.

§ 122. Court may permit representative to appear after return day.—If the personal representative fails to appear on the return day, the clerk or judge of the superior court may permit him afterward to appear and plead on such terms as may be just. (Rev., s. 116; Code, s. 1460; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 13.)

§ 123. Clerk to state account.—Immediately after the return of the day the clerk or judge shall proceed to hear such evidence as shall be brought before him, and to state an account of the dealings of the personal representative with the estate of his deceased according to the course of his court. (Rev., s., 117; Code, s. 1461; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 14.)

§ 124. Exception to report; final report and judgment.—After the clerk has stated the account and prepared his report, he shall notify all the parties to examine and except to the same. Any party may then except to the same in whole or in part. The clerk shall then pass on the exceptions and prepare and sign his final report and judgment, of which the parties shall have notice. (Rev., s. 118; Code, s. 1462; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 15.)

§ 125. Appeal from judgment; security for costs.—Any party may appeal from final judgment of the clerk to the judge of the superior court in term time, on giving an undertaking with surety, or making a deposit, to pay all costs which shall be recovered against him. If any creditor appeals and gives such security, his appeal shall be deemed an appeal by all who are damaged by the judgment, and no other creditor shall be required to give any undertaking. (Rev., s. 119; Code, s. 1464; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 17.)

§ 126. Papers on appeal filed and cause docketed.—On an appeal the clerk shall file his report and judgment and all the papers in his office as clerk of the superior court, and enter the case on his trial docket for the next term. (Rev., s. 120; Code, s. 1465; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 18.

§ 127. Prior creditors not affected by appeal may docket judgments.—If the exceptions and questions, from the decision on which the appeal is taken, affect only the creditors in one or more classes, the creditors in the prior classes by the leave of the clerk, or of the judge of the superior court, may docket their judgments and issue execution thereon. (Rev., s. 121; Code, s. 1466; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 19.)

§ 128. Judgment where assets sufficient to pay a class.—If upon taking the account it is admitted, or is found, without appeal, that the defendant has assets sufficient, after the deduction of all proper costs and charges, to pay all the claims which have been presented of any one or more of the classes, the clerk shall give judgment in favor of the creditor whose debts of such classes have been admitted, or adjudged by any competent court; and if any claim in any preferred class is in litigation, the amount of such claim, with the probable cost of the litigation, shall be left in the hands of the personal representative, and not carried to the credit of any subsequent class until the litigation is ended. (Rev., s. 122; Code, s. 1467; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 20.)

§ 129. Judgment where assets insufficient to pay a class.—If the assets are insufficient to pay in full all the claims of any class, the amounts thereof having been found or admitted as aforesaid, the clerk may adjudge payment of a certain part of such claims, proportionate to the assets applicable to debts of that class. (Rev., s. 123; Code, s. 1468; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 21.)

§ 130. Contents of judgment; execution.—All judgments given by a judge or clerk of the superior court against a personal representative for any claim against his deceased shall declare—

1. The certain amount of the creditor's demand.

2. The amount of assets which the personal representative has applicable to such demand. Execution may issue only for this last sum with interest and costs. (Rev., s. 124; Code, s. 1469; 1871-2, s. 213, s. 22.)

§ 131. When judgment to fix with assets.—No judgment of any court against a personal representative shall fix him with assets, except a judgment of the judge or clerk, rendered as aforesaid, or the judgment of some appellate court rendered upon an appeal from such judgment. All other judgments shall be held merely to ascertain the debt, unless the personal representative pleading expressly admits assets. (Rev., s. 125; Code, s. 1470; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 23.)

Principle applied in Grant v. Bell, 91 N. C. 495; Holmes v. Foster, 78 N. C. 35.

An absolute judgment against the representative neither fixes the defendant with assets nor disturbes the order of administration. It merely ascertains the debt sued on. Dunn v. Barnes, 73 N. C. 273, 277.

§ 132. Form and effect of execution.—All executions issued upon the order or judgment of the judge or clerk or of any appellate court against any personal representative, rendered as aforesaid, shall run against the goods and chattels of the deceased, and if none, then against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of the representative. And all such judgments docketed in any county shall be a lien on the property for which execution is adjudged as fully as if it were against him personally. (Rev., s. 126; Code, s. 1471; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 24.)

§ 133. Report is evidence of assets only at date.—The account and report and adjudication by the judge, clerk or any appellate court shall not be evidence as to the assets except on the day to which adjudication relates. (Rev., s. 127; Code, s. 1472; 1871-2, 213, s. 25.)

§ 134. Creditor giving security may show subsequent assets.—Any creditor may afterwards, on filing an affidavit by himself or his agent that he believes that assets have come to the hands of the personal representative since that day, and on giving an undertaking, with surety, or making a deposit for the costs of the personal representative, sue out a summons against him alleging subsequent assets, and the proceedings thereon shall be as hereinbefore prescribed, so far as the same may be necessary. (Rev., s. 128; Code, s. 1473; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 26.)

§ 135. Suits for accounting at term.—In addition to the remedy by special proceeding, actions against executors, administrators, collectors and guardians may be brought originally to the superior court at term time; and in all such cases it is competent for the court in which said actions are pending to order an account to be taken by such persons as said court may designate, and to adjudge the application or distribution of the fund ascertained, or to grant other relief, as the nature of the case may require. (Rev., s. 129; Code, ss. 215, 1511; 1876-7, c. 241, s. 6.)

In Nature of Bill in Equity.—A suit by the beneficiaries under a will to have the executor account for mismanagement of the estate is in the nature of a bill in equity to surcharge and falsify the executor's account. Thigpen v. Farmers' Banking, etc., Co., 203 N. C. 291, 165 S. E. 720.

Extent of Jurisdiction.—The jurisdiction and the powers of the court in actions of this nature is very comprehensive as to the purposes contemplated by them. Hence the court is vested with all powers, such as the power to grant injunctions, appoint receivers, etc., to affectuate a just and equitable settlement of the controversy. Godwin v. Watford, 107 N. C. 168, 171, 11 S. E. 1051.

Under this section the superior court has jurisdiction to entertain suits brought not only by creditors but also by any party interested in the proper administration of an estate. It may bring the creditors in as defendants and protect the right of the parties by the appointment of a receiver. Fisher v. Trust Co., 138 N. C. 91, 98, 50 S. E. 592.

In an action instituted under this section to declare trust and to adjudge the liability of certain lands to the payment of legacies, the superior court (and also the supreme court) once having acquired jurisdiction of the controversy may retain the cause and incidentally grant the application of the personalty. Devereux v. Devereux, 81 N. C. 12, 18.

An action for the breach of representatives bond and for an account may under this section, be brought before the Superior court in term, without first seeking an account in the probate court. State v. Davidson, 79 N. C. 423.

The venue of an action under this section is the county of decedent's last domicile where the will is probated. No objection, however, as to the wrong venue can be raised on an appeal if not raised in the court below. Devereux v. Devereux, 81 N. C. 12, 18.

Concurrent Jurisdiction.—This section was construed in Haywood v. Haywood, 79 N. C. 42; Fisher v. Trust Co., 138 N. C. 91, 50 S. E. 592; Pegram v. Armstrong, 82 N. C. 326; Bratton v. Davidson, 79 N. C. 423, 425, and other cases, in all of which it is held that concurrent original jurisdiction with the probate court is conferred on the Superior Court in a civil action to settle estates and subject real estate to the payment of debts. Shober v. Wheeler, 144 N. C. 403, 409, 57 S. E. 152; Pegram v. Armstrong, 82 N. C. 326; State v. Davidson, 79 N. C. 423. The jurisdiction of the clerk of the Superior Court in such cases is not exclusive but concurrent with that of the Superior Court. State v. McCanless, 193 N. C. 200, 204, 136 S. E. 371.

Power of Judge in Term. — The expression in Moore v. Ingram, 91 N. C. 376, that "the judge in term has no jurisdiction over the settlement of intestates' estate" was made by inadvertence and only with reference to the situation presented in that case, not with reference to this section which confers this jurisdiction in express terms. Tillett v. Aydlett, 93 N. C. 15, 22.

§ 136. Proceedings against land, if personal assets fail.—If it appears at any time during, or upon, or after the taking of the account of a personal representative that his personal assets are insufficient to pay the debts of the deceased in full, and that he died seized of real property, it is the duty of the judge or clerk, at the instance of any party, to issue a summons in the name of the personal representative or of the creditors generally, to the heirs, devisees and others in possession of the lands of the deceased, to appear and show cause why said lands should not be sold for assets. Upon the return of the summons the proceeding shall be as is directed in other like cases. (Rev., ss. 130, 131; Code, ss. 1474, 1475; 1871-2, c. 213, ss. 27, 28.)

Cross Reference.—For a discussion of the effect that a proposed statute of intestate succession would have on this and the following section, see article in 11 N. C. Law Rev. 266, 279.

Necessity of Summons.—In a case falling under the provisions of this section it is unnecessary for the clerk to issue the summons referred to in this section, where the parties are all in court. Dickey v. Dickey, 118 N. C. 956, 958, 24 S. E. 715.

Exhaustion of Personalty. — Whether the proceedings to sell the real estate be under this or section 110, it is essential that the insufficiency of the personalty be made to appear. Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 181, 13 S. E. 862.

Art. 16. Distribution

§ 137. Order of distribution.—The surplus of the estate, in case of intestacy, shall be distributed in the following manner, except as hereinafter provided:

Cross Reference.—As to inheritance under insurance policy where insured has killed beneficiary and himself, see note to § 10.

In General. — At early common law the king took all the personalty. Afterwards the crown passed this prerogative to the church, which took all the personalty except the reasonable parts for the widow and the children, and the church officials claimed to dispose of it in pios usus. They were neither accountable for it nor required to pay the debts of the estate. By statute 13 Ed. III. (A. D. 1358) the churchmen were required to appoint an administrator who should be next of blood kin, and this relationship was computed by the civil law, and not by the common law, which was used in computing relationship in the descent of land. Subsequently by statute 21 Henry VIII (A. D. 1530) the administrator was appointed by the ordinary and was required to be the widow or next of kin, or both, who after paying the intestate's debts and the reasonable parts for the widow and children retained the surplus in their own right until the statutes of 22-23 and 29 Charles II, which required the surplus to be distributed among the next of kin in the manner provided in those statutes which became known as the Statute of distribution.

Under the English statutes 22, 23, and 29, Charles II, the mother as well as the father succeeded to all the personal effects of their children who died intestate and without wife or issue, to the exclusion of brothers and sisters of the deceased. And this is the law now in this state.

For an analysis of this section and the classification of the interest of the various classes of distributees thereunder, see Wells v. Wells, 158 N. C. 330, 333, 74 S. E. 114.

Correlation of This and Section 189. — This section as to inheritance of the father and mother, etc., dying without leaving husband, wife or child, and section 189 depriving the parent of the care, custody and services of the child in case of abandonment are not in pari materia. Avery v. Brantley, 191 N. C. 396, 397, 131 S. E. 721.

Distribution under Equitable Conversion. — While this section, as its subject matter implies, concerns the distribution of decedent's personalty, under circumstances which bring in the application of the doctrine of equitable conversion even realty or its proceeds is subject to the order of distribution prescribed under this section as if it had been personalty. McIver v. McKinney, 184 N. C. 393, 114 S. E. 399.

Wife Dissenting from the Will. — Even though a husband die testate, leaving a will in which he has provided for the wife, if she dissents from the will as to her, her husband has died intestate and she is entitled to her distributive right in accordance with this section, as if he had left no will. Hunter v. Husted, 45 N. C. 97. See annotations under Sec. 4097.

Per Capita or Per Stirpes.—Where a fund consist of personalty and the claimants at the death of the intestate, were and now are all in equal degree the next of kin of the intestate, the distribution under this section must be per capita. Representation in the distribution of this kind of property, when allowed, is restored to only when it is necessary to bring the claimants to equality of position as next of kin. Ellis v. Harrison, 140 N. C. 444, 53 S. E. 299.

Husband as Next of Kin. — The husband of a deceased wife is not her next of kin so as to be entitled to a distributive share as such, within the perview of this section. Peterson v. Webb, 39 N. C. 56.

Illegitimate Child.—See note under § 140.

Cited in In re Estate of Pruden, 199 N. C. 256, 257, 154 S. E. 7.

1. If there are not more than two children one-third part to the widow of the intestate, and all the residue by equal portions to and among the children of the intestate and such persons as legally represent such children as may then be dead.

2. If there are more than two children, then the widow shall share equally with all the children and be entitled to a child's part.

"Child's Part" Interpreted. — The phrase "child's part" as used in this section refers to the personal estate of the intestate, not to the real estate. McKrow v. Painter, 89 N. C. 438, 440.

3. If there is no child nor legal representative of a deceased child, then one-half the estate shall be allotted to the widow, and the residue be distributed equally to every of the next of kin of the intestate, who are in equal degree, and to those who legally represent them.

See Editor's Note, supra.

Intestate's Mother His Next of Kin. — When an intestate leaves no children, but a widow, a mother and sisters, the distribution of his estate is governed by this subdivision, and his mother is his next of kin and entitled to share equally in his personalty with his widow. His sisters are one degree farther than his mother. Wells v. Wells, 158 N. C. 330, 74 S. E. 114.

Representation among Collateral Relations. — This subsection changes the former rule under the Revised Code of 1854, so as to allow representation among collateral relations as to personalty to the same extent as in the descent of real property; and where the aunts and uncles of the deceased must take the children of those who have died they may take the part of the personalty their parents would have taken if living. Moore v. Rankin, 172 N. C. 599, 601, 90 S. E. 759.

Reason Where Terms are Plain. — The terms of this subsection is plain and it is the duty of the court to observe them, even if it (the court) cannot supply the legislative reason therefor. Wells v. Wells, 156 N. C. 246, 72 S. E. 311.

4. If there is no widow, the estate shall be distributed, by equal portions, among all the children, and such persons as legally represent such children as may be dead.

5. If there is neither widow nor children, nor any legal representative of the children, the estate shall be distributed equally to every of the kin of the intestate, who are in equal degree, and those who legally represent them.

See Editor's Note, supra.

Mother as Next of Kin. — If there are no children, no widow of an intestate, there is no one in equal degree with the mother; and she as the next of kin is entitled to the personal estate of her son, under this subdivision. Wells v. Wells, 158 N. C. 330, 333, 74 S. E. 114.

Extent of Representation among Collaterals. — Under the former law (Rev. Code, ch. 64 sec. 2.) it was held, in cases falling under this subsection, that among collateral kindreds no representative after brother's and sister's children shall be allowed to share in the distribution. See Nelson v. Blue, 63 N. C. 659; Johnson v. Chesson, 59 N. C. 146. But the provision upon which this conclusion is based no more appears. Ed. Note.

The father and mother of an intestate under this subsection are next of kin of equal degree. Davis v. Railroad Co., 136 N. C. 115, 120, 48 S. E. 591.

Brother and Children of Deceased Brother—Husband of Deceased Niece.—The estate of the intestate descends to his surviving brother and the children of his deceased brother living at his death, who are entitled to the distribution of the estate as his next of kin, as also the husband of a deceased niece who was living at the death of the intestate, under the facts of this case. In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N. C. 334, 148 S. E. 456.

6. If, in the lifetime of its father and mother, a child dies intestate, without leaving husband, wife or child, or the issue of a child, its estate shall be equally divided between the father and mother. If one of the parents is dead at the time of the death of the child, the surviving parent shall be entitled to the whole of the estate. The terms "father" and "mother" shall not apply to a step-parent, but shall apply to a parent by adoption: Provided, that a parent, or parents, who has willfully abandoned the care, custody, nurture and maintenance of such child to its kindred, relative or other person, shall forfeit all and every right to participate in any part of said child's estate under the provisions of this section.

Editor's Note. — Prior to the amendment of 1915, (Pub. Laws, 1915, c. 37) this section entitled the father to the whole estate of his deceased child, to the exclusion of the mother. Hence it was formerly held that the mother of a deceased child in the lifetime of the father, may not recover for the mutilation of the child's body. Floyd v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 167 N. C. 55, 83 S. E. 12. By the Public Laws of 1927, c. 231, the proviso to this section was added.

Father as Unworthy Beneficiary. — Notwithstanding the provisions of section 189 depriving a father who has abandoned his child of his services, etc., a father who has adandoned his minor child shall under this section, be entitled to his distributive share of the damages recovered for the wrongful death of such child. Avery v. Brantley, 191 N. C. 396, 131 S. E. 721; 5 N. C. L. R. 72.

Natural and Adopting Parents. — Natural parents, in case of adoption, are allowed to prevail over adopting parents in the distribution of a child's estate. Edwards v. Yearby, 168 N. C. 663, 85 S. E. 19; 5 N. C. L. R. 73.

Right of Divorced Husband to Share in Recovery for Death of His Child. — Where the husband has abandoned his wife and infant child, and the wife has obtained a divorce, and while still an infant a recovery is had for its wrongful death by her mother, who has again married, and has qualified as administratrix of her infant child, under the provisions of this clause of this section, casting the inheritance upon the father and mother under stated conditions when both are living, the father is entitled to half the money recovered by the mother for the wrongful death of their infant child, though under a separate statute he has lost the right to its care and custody by a former adjudication of the court in the wife's action for divorce. Avery v. Brantley, 191 N. C. 396, 131 S. E. 721.

Right of Action for Mutilation of Child's Dead Body. — A father's relation to his minor child and the consequent duties imposed on him by law clothes him with a preferential right of action over the mother of the child to bring an action to recover damages for the mutilation of its dead body, and the provisions of this section do not affect the result. Stephenson v. Duke University, 202 N. C. 624, 163 S. E. 698.

Distributee of Proceeds of War Risk Insurance Policy. —Where the mother of a deceased soldier was dead at the time of his death, but his father was living, and the soldier had no wife or child or issue of a child at the time of his death; it was held that under this section the proceeds of a war risk insurance policy vested in the father as sole distributee under the intestate laws of this State. In re Hall, 205 N. C. 241, 243, 171 S. E. 61.

Funds Due under Policy as Assets of Estate.—Where a soldier having a war risk insurance policy died intestate, leaving his father and mother surviving him as sole heirs at law, and where neither had received as beneficiary in the war risk insurance policy any installment from the government during his or her life, it was held that the whole fund in contemplation of law was assets of the estate of the dead soldier, to be distributed immediately to the estates of his father and mother. The fact that one beneficiary lived longer than the other and hence entitled to receive more money in installments from the government, has nothing to do with the right of property as distributee. The intestate law of this State pegged that right at the death of the soldier. In re Estate of Reid, 206 N. C. 102, 103, 173 S. E. 49.

In McCullough v. Smith, 293 U. S. 228, 231, 55 S. Ct. 157, it was held that unpaid installments which accrued under a war risk insurance policy in favor of the father and mother of the deceased soldier as beneficiaries during their lives became the property of their respective estates. Also that installments which accrued to the assured during his lifetime, and the commuted value of the installments payable subsequent to the mother's death, became the property of his estate, thereby reversing In re Estate of Reid, 206 N. C. 102, 173 S. E. 49, which held that the installments which accrued to the beneficiaries—father and mother—during their lives should be treated as parts of the estate of the insured.

7. If there is no child nor legal representative of a deceased child nor any of the next of kin of the intestate, then the widow, if there is one, shall be entitled to all the personal estate of such intestate.

8. If a married woman die intestate leaving one child and a husband, the estate shall be equally distributed between the child and husband; if she leaves more than one child and a husband, the estate shall be distributed in equal portions and the husband shall receive a child's part, the child or children of any child or children of the intestate, who have died prior to the mother, to represent his, her, or their parent in such distribution. (Rev., s. 132; Code, s. 1478; R. C., c. 64, s. 1; R. S., c. 64, s. 1; 1893, c. 82; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 53; 1913, c. 166; 1915, c. 37; 1921, c. 54; 1927, c. 231.)

Editor's Note. — The provision at the end of this clause, that the child of the intestate's child shall represent his parent in the event such parent dies before the intestate's mother, is added by the act of 1921, ch. 54.

Husband's Note Set up As a Counterclaim. — Where a husband is under this clause entitled to his distributive part in the personal property of his deceased wife, and she had a certain amount of money deposited in a bank since becoming insolvent and in a receiver's hands, he may not successfully set up this interest under the provisions of section 521, as a counterclaim against his note, in an action by the receiver therein, until his wife's administrator has accounted for his trust or distributed the assets of his intestate's estate. Williams v. Williams, 192 N. C. 405, 135 S. E. 39.

Husband Entitled to His Distributive Share Only. — In Kilpatrick v. Kilpatrick, 176 N. C. 182, 96 S. E. 988, it was held that under this section as amended by the laws of 1923, the administrator of the wife may recover from the husband notes made payable to the wife and husband in consideration of the sale of her real property, and that the husband was entitled only to his distributive share through the administration.

§ 138. Advancements to be accounted for.— Children who shall have any estate by the settlement of the intestate, or shall be advanced by him in his lifetime, shall account with each other for the same distribution of the estate in the manner as provided by the second rule in the chapter entitled Descents, and shall also account for the same to the widow of the intestate in ascertaining her child's part of the estate. (Rev., s. 133; Code, s. 1483; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 54.)

an irrevocable gift in presenti of money or property, real or personal, by a parent to a child to enable the latter to anticipate the inheritance or succession of the property of the former to the extent of the gift. Thompson v. Smith, 160 N. C. 256, 257, 75 S. E. 1010.

Creature of Statute Law.—Advancements are the creatures of statute law. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 458, 26 S. E. 38.

Advancement a Matter of Intention. — The question whether a transfer of property from a parent to the child was a gift, loan or advancement is to be settled by the intention of the parent and surrounding circumstances at the time of the transfer, which may be shown by parol evidence. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 26 S. E. 38.

Consideration and Presumption of Advancement. — Where a valuable and adequate consideration is recited, the presumption is against the conveyance being an advancement, and the burden to overcome this presumption is upon him who alleges it to be an advancement. Kiger v. Terry, 119 N. C. 456, 26 S. E. 38.

Presumption of Advancement Rebuttable. — The presumption is that property transferred or money paid by the parent is prima facie an advancement. But, this presumption being prima facie, is rebuttable by parol even where there is recital of consideration in deed, by a showing that the parent had a contrary intention at the time. The rule is not altered by this section. Thompson v. Smith, 160 N. C. 256, 75 S. E. 1010; Hollister v. Attmore, 58 N. C. 373; Harper v. Harper, 92 N. C. 300, 301.

Advancements by the Mother. — The original statute (1 Rev. Stat. ch. 64, sec. 2.) which provides for the accounting of advancements used the pronouns "he" and "she", and under this terminology it was held that the statute applied to advancements made by the mother as well as by the father. Daves v. Haywood, 54 N. C. 253, 256. The present section uses the words "advanced by him in his lifetime." It is believed that the construction put upon the original statute would still hold true. Ed. Note.

But gifts made to the grandchildren are not so required. Daves v. Haywood, 54 N. C. 253; Skinner v. Wynne, 55 N. C. 41.

Return of Advancements as to the Widow. — Before the act of 1784, advancements were not required to be brought into the hotchpot for the benefit of the widow. But since that act, the policy of equality between the widow and the children as well as between the children themselves, is pronounced by the express terms of this section. Davis v. Duke, 1 N. C. 526, 527. This principal is applied in Eller v. Lillard, 107 N. C. 486, 491, 12 S. E. 462.

Dying Seized of Land Not a Prerequisite.—The advancements are to be accounted for even though the intestate has not died seized of any real estate. Headen v. Headen, 42 N. C. 159.

§ 139. Children advanced to render inventory; effect of refusal.—Where any parent dies intestate, who had in his or her lifetime given to, or put in the actual possession of, any of his or her children any personal property of what nature or kind soever, such child shall cause to be given to the administrator or collector of the estate an inventory, on oath, setting forth therein the particulars by him or her received of the intestate in his or her lifetime. In case any child who had, in the lifetime of the intestate, received a part of the estate, refuses to give such inventory, he shall be considered to have had and received his full share of the deceased's estate, and shall not be entitled to receive any further part or share. (Rev., ss. 134, 135; Code, ss. 1484, 1485; 1868-9, c. 113. ss. 55, 56.)

Restricted Meaning of Section. — The general words of this section requiring the child to give an inventory of "any personal property of what nature or kind soever" have uniformly been held to have a restricted meaning, in that every gift of personal property by a donor is not necessarily an advancement. Bradsher v. Cannady, 76 N. C. 445, 446.

§ 140. Illegitimates next of kin to mother and to each other.—Every illegitimate child of the mother dying intestate, or the issue of such illegitimate child deceased, shall be considered among her next of kin, and such shall be entitled to a share of her personal estate as prescribed in this chapter. Illegitimate children, born of the same mother, shall be considered legitimate as between themselves and their representatives, and their personal state shall be distributed in the same manner as if they had been born in lawful wedlock. And in case of the death of any such child or his issue, without leaving issue, his estate shall be distributed among his mother and all such persons as would be in his next of kin if all such children had been born in lawful wedlock. (Rev., ss. 136, 137; Code, ss. 1486, 1487; 1868-9, c. 113, ss. 57, 58.)

Cross Reference.—For a discussion of the effect that a proposed statute of intestate succession would have on this section, see article in 11 N. C. Law Rev. 266, 294.

Editor's Note. — At common law bastards were incapable of being heirs, and no inheritable blood flows in their veins; hence, in the absence of other persons lawfully entitled to the property, the property escheated to the lord. They were considered the c h i l d r e n of nobody, and consequently could have no ascending heirs, but only the issue of their own body. The reason of this rule was the uncertainty of the bastard's paternity. But this has been changed in this state in cases where there is no such uncertainty.

Brothers and Sisters of Bastard's Mother Do Not Inherit.—Under this section the mother and brothers and sisters of a bastard may inherit from him, but the rule extends no further, and the brothers and sisters of the bastard's mother may not inherit from him. Sharpe v. Carson, 204 N. C. 513, 168 S. E. 829.

Distributive Share of a Bastard's Niece. — Where a bastard died intestate leaving the daughter of a bastard brother, born of the same mother, his next of kin and a widow, it was held that the widow was entitled only to one-third of the personal estate and the daughter of his bastard brother to two-thirds. Coor v. Starling, 54 N. C. 243. This decision however, now seems to be subject to the modifications in the amount of widow's distributive share under section 137. Ed. Note.

Inheritance from Father of Mother who Predeceased Him.—An illegitimate child may not inherit as heir at law from her deceased grandfather, dying intestate, through her legitimate mother who predeceased him, under this section and section 137, clauses 4 and 5. In re Estate of Bullock, 195 N. C. 188, 141 S. E. 577, citing Waggoner v. Miller, 26 N. C. 480; Wilson v. Wilson, 189 N. C. 85, 126 S. E. 181; Wallace v. Wallace, 181 N. C. 158, 106 S. E. 501; and distinguishing Skinner v. Wynne, 55 N. C. 41.

Conflict of Laws.—In the case of Kenny v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 167 N. C. 14, 82 S. E. 968, an action was brought to recover damage for wrongful death under the Federal employers liability act which made the "next of kin," in the absence of other specified persons, the distributee of the decedent. It was held that the persons included in the phrase "next of kin" are to be determined by the laws of this state; and hence, the half brothers and sisters of the illigitimate child deceased were his "next of kin" within the meaning of this section, and entitled to their respective distributive shares as such.

§ 141. Allotment to after-born child in real estate.—The share of an after-born child in real estate shall be alloted to him out of any land not devised, if there is enough for that purpose; and if there is none undevised, or not enough, then the whole share, or the deficiency, as the case may be, shall be made up of the lands devised; and so much thereof shall be taken from the several devisees according to the respective values as near as may be convenient, as will make the proper share of such child. (Rev., 138; Code, s. 1536; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 108.)

§ 142. Allotment to after-born child in the personal property.—The share of an after-born child in the personal estate shall be paid and delivered to him out of any such estate not bequeathed, if there is enough for that purpose: and if there is none undisposed of, or not enough, then the whole share or the deficiency, as the case may be, shall be made up from the estate bequeathed; and so much shall be taken from the several legacies, according to their respective values, as will make the proper share of such child. (Rev., s. 139; Code, s. 1573; 1868-9, c. 11, s. 109.)

Child Not en Ventre Sa Mere. — Before a child can be entitled to a distributive share under the statute of distribution in general, it must appear that he was either in being or en ventre sa mere at the time of the death of the intestate. Thus a half brother of the intestate born ten months and a half after her death is not entitled to a distributive share, though born before distribution. Grant v. Bustin, 21 N. C. 77.

Contributions as of What Time. — Contribution to make up the share of a child born after the execution of his father's will, must be made by the legatees in proportion to their respective interests under the will, dated as of the time when the estate was settled, or should have been settled, by the executor, bearing interest from such time. Johnson v. Chapman, 54 N. C. 130.

§ 143. Allotment of personalty from proceeds of realty.—If, after satisfaction of the child's share of real estate out of undevised lands, there is a surplus of such lands, and there is no personal estate undisposed of, or not enough to make up his share of such estate, then the surplus of undevised land, or as much as be necessary, shall be sold and the proceeds applied to making up his share of personal estate. And if, after satisfaction of the child's share of personal estate out of property undisposed of by the will, there is a surplus of such property, then the surplus thereof shall be applied, as far as it will go, in exoneration of land, both devised and descended; and the same shall be set apart and secured as real estate to such child, if an infant, non compos, or feme covert. (Rev., s. 140; Code, s. 1538; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 110.)

§ 145. After-born child on allotment deemed devisee or legatee.—An after-born child after such decrees shall be considered and deemed in law a legatee and devise as to his portion shall be styled as such in all legal proceedings, and shall be liable to all the obligations and duties by law imposed on such: Provided, that all judgments or decrees bona fide obtained against the devisees and legatees previously to the preferring of any petition, and which were binding upon or ought to operate upon the lands and chattels devised or bequeathed, shall be carried into execution and effect notwithstanding, and the petitioner shall take his portion completely subject thereto: Provided further, that any suit instituted against the devisees and legatees previously to such petition shall not be abated or abatable thereby nor by the decree thereon, but shall go on as instituted and the judgment and decree, unless obtained by collusion, be carried into execution; but on the filing of the petition, during the pendency of such suit, the petitioner, by guardian, if an infant, may become a defendant in the suit. (Rev., s. 142; Code, s. 1540; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 112.)

§ 146. Before settlement executor may have claimants' shares in estate ascertained.—In case no petition is filed within two years, as herein prescribed, the executor or administrator with the will annexed, before he shall pay or deliver the legacies in the will given, or before paying to the next of kin of the testator any residue undisposed of by the will, shall call upon the legatees, devisees, heirs and next of kin, and the said afterborn child, by petition in the superior court to litigate their respective claims, and shall pray the court to ascertain the share to which said child shall be entitled, and to apportion the shares and sums to which the legatees, devisees, heirs or next of kin shall severally contribute toward the share to be alloted to said child, and the court shall adjudge and decree accordingly. (Rev., s. 143; Code, s. 1541; 1868-9, c. 113; s. 113.)

§ 147. Legacy or distributive share recoverable after two years.—Legacies and distributive shares may be recovered from an executor, administrator or collector by petition preferred in the superior court, at any time after the lapse of two years from his qualification, unless the executor, administrator or collector shall sooner file his final account for settlement. The suit shall be commenced and the proceeding therein conducted as prescribed in other cases of special proceedings. (Rev., s. 144; Code, s. 1510; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 83.)

What Court Has Jurisdiction. — Under this section the Probate Court (i. e., the clerk of the Superior Court) has exclusive jurisdiction of proceedings for the recovery of legacies and distributive share. When, however, a specific pecuniary legacy has been asserted to by the executor it becomes a debt and must be recovered by action brought to the regular term of the Superior Court. Hendrick v. Mayfield, 74 N. C. 626, 632.

Proof of Assets. — While under this section a petition may be filed before the clerk of the Superior Court for the recovery of legacies, etc., and prosecuted as in other cases of special proceedings; but, unless the personal representative has assented to the legacy or the admission of assets is otherwise made to appear, a recovery can be had only upon proof that assets have either come or should have come into his hands applicable to the payment of the legacy. Unless this is done a judgment in legatee's favor is reversible error. York v. McCall, 160 N. C. 276, 278, 76 S. E. 884.

Jurisdiction in Special Proceeding. — Under this section the superior court has original jurisdiction by special proceedings for the recovery of legacies, etc. But where an action is brought for the same to the regular term of the superior court, the defect is cured by the act of 1870, 1871, ch. 108, (Bot. Rev. ch. 57, secs. 425, 426.) Bell v. King, 70 N. C. 330.

Section Exclusive Remedy. — This section in effect supersedes section 481 of the Code of Civil Procedure (§§ 109, 2183 of the Code of 1927) and is the only and exclusive remedy to recover a distributive share of an estate. Williams v. Williams, 71 N. C. 427.

Applied in Security Nat. Bank v. Bridgers, 207 N. C. 91, 176 S. E. 295.

§ 148. Payment to clerk after one year discharges representative pro tanto.—It is competent for any executor, administrator or collector, at any time after twelve months from the date of letters testamentary or of administration, to pay into the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where such letters were granted, any moneys belonging to the legatees or distributees of the estate of his testator intestate, and such payment shall have the effect to discharge such executor, administrator or collector and his sureties on his official bond to the extent of the amount so paid. (Rev., s. 145; Code, s. 1543; 1881, c. 305, s. 1.)

The purpose of this section is to provide a safe public depository for such moneys and the exoneration of the personal representative. Ex parte Cassidey, 95 N. C. 225, 228.

Provisions Directory. — The provisions of this section are directory, and not mandatory. Moore v. Eure, 101 N. C. 11, 15, 7 S. E. 471; Thomas v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 342, 448, 10 S. E. 520.

Clerk's Responsibility. — Moneys paid to the clerk under this section, do not pass into the jurisdiction of the superior court, but the clerk receives and is chargeable with them, not, however, by virtue of his duties in connection with the court as a clerk, but as a safe public depository. Ex parte Cassidey, 95 N. C. 225, 227.

He receives them by virtue of his office as a clerk, and hence (his bond covering all moneys coming into his hands by virtue or color of his office) he is liable upon his bond. Presson v. Boone, 108 N. C. 78, 84, 12 S. E. 897, see Thomas v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 342, 10 S. E. 520.

Deposit of Moneys of Heirs. — The deposit authorized by this section refers to moneys belonging to the legatees or distributees of the estate. It does not refer to funds belonging to the heirs, such as proceeds of realty after payment of debts, which by the term of sec. 56 are considered as realty belonging to the heirs or devisees. Thomas v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 342, 348, 10 S. E. 520.

Liability for Interest.—Where funds belonging to a minor are paid into the hands of the clerk of the Superior Court by an administrator under the provisions of this section, discharging the administrator and his sureties from liability in regard thereto, it is not required by §§ 153 and 956 that the clerk invest the funds, upon interest, unless so directed, the clerk being liable for such funds as an insurer, and the clerk and his sureties are not liable for the amount of interest the funds would have drawn if they had been so invested, but if the funds are actually invested by the clerk he is liable for the interest actually received therefrom, since a fiduciary will not be allowed to make a personal profit out of funds committed to his custody. Williams v. Hooks, 199 N. C. 489, 154 S. E. 828.

Where on appeal there is no agreed statement of fact or finding as to whether a deceased clerk of court invested and received interest, for which his estate must account, on a sum paid into his hands under the provisions of this section, the case will be remanded for a specific finding in regard thereto. Williams v. Hooks, 199 N. C. 489, 490, 154 S. E. 828.

§ 149. On payment clerk to sign receipt.—It is the duty of the clerk, in the cases provided for in the preceding section, to receive such money from any executor, administrator or collector, and to execute a receipt for the same under the seal of his office. (Rev., 146; Code, s. 1544; 1881, c. 305, s. 3.)

See annotations under preceding section.

Recovery of Moneys Paid into Clerk's Office.—A similar proceeding as provided in section 135 and 147 may be maintained against the clerk either by special proceedings or civil action in the superior court, in cases where the representative has paid the money in his hands into the office of the clerk under the preceding section. Ex parte Cassidey, 95 N. C. 225, 228.

Art. 17. Settlement

§ 150. Representative must settle after two years. — No executor, administrator, or collector, after two years from his qualification, shall hold or retain in his hands more of the deceased's estate than amounts to his necessary charges and disbursements and such debts as he shall legally pay; but all such estate so remaining shall, immediately after the expiration of two years, be divided and be delivered and paid to the person to whom the same may be due by law or the will of the deceased; and the clerk of the superior court in each county shall require settlement of the balance in hand due distributees as shown by the final account of any administrator, executor, or guardian, and shall audit same: Provided, that the several clerks of the superior courts of this State may, in their discretion, for good cause shown, extend the time for the final settlement of any administrator or executor; provided, that nothing herein contained shall relieve any such administrator or executor of the duty of administering and distributing such funds and property in his hands as may be available for such purposes; provided, further, that any party having an interest in any such estate may, within ten days from the entry of an order extending the time for final settlement, appeal from such order to the resident or presiding judge of the district, which appeal shall be heard as is now or may hereafter be prescribed by law for the hearing of other appeals from the clerk. (Rev., s. 147; Code, s. 1488; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 59; 1919, c. 69; 1933, c. 188; 1935, c. 377.)

Editor's Note. — The allowance of two years in this section is intended as a maximum limitation beyond which the representative may not retain any part of the estate; it is not a permissive limitation for a period of two years. It is based upon the supposition that many estates which are complicated cannot be settled in less time. Hence where there are no debts due from the estate, the representative will not be permitted to suspend the settlement for a period of two years. See Turnage v. Turnage, 42 N. C. 127.

By the 1935 amendment the proviso added by the 1933 amendment giving the clerk power to extend the time was changed and the two provisos at the end of the section were added.

The general policy of the laws regarding the settlement of the estate which is more specifically expressed in this section is that the personal representative shall regularly prepare the estate in his hands for final distribution immediately after the lapse of two years next after his qualification. The dissenting opinion in Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 156, 164, 2 S. E. 235.

Settlement within Two Years. — This section merely marks an utmost limit of time which the representative must settle; it does not authorize him to withhold settlement for that length of time (two years) where there is no justification therefor. Hence the parties interested may call on him to account within that period. Snow v. Boylston, 185 N. C. 321, 117 S. E. 14; see sec. 156.

Time of Final Account and Settlement. — The final account always precedes the settlement, for without it there is no way of telling what is due. Self v. Shugart, 135 N. C. 185, 196, 47 S. E. 484.

Settlement before Expiration of Two Years. — The provision making it obligatory on personal representatives to settle the estate at the end of two years does not authorize them to defer the settlement without necessity until that time. The allowance of two years is intended as an indulgence to them. Hence an action may be brought by the parties interested before the expiration of that time where there is no necessity of deferring settlement. Clements v. Rogers, 91 N. C. 63, 65. See post sec. 156.

Statute of Limitation. — After ten years from the expiration of the two years' period prescribed by this section, an action for settlement against the personal representative will be barred by the statute of limitation. Edwards v. Lemmond, 136 N. C. 329, 330, 48 S. E. 737.

Cited in In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 172 S. E. 345.

§ 150(1). Extension of time for final accounts when funds are in closed banks.—Where as much as twenty-five per cent of the estate of any decedent is represented by deposits in a bank or trust company in course of liquidation, the personal representative of such decedent shall, in the discretion of the clerk of the superior court, have ninety days after the payment of the final dividend in which to file his final account. The several clerks of the superior court of this State may, in their discretion, upon good cause shown, extend the time for the final settlement of any executor or administrator; Provided, that this act shall not relieve any personal representative of the duty of administering and distributing other funds and property in his hands, as now required by law. (1935, c. 244.)

§ 151. Representative may retain claim undue or in litigation.—If, on a final accounting before the judge or clerk, it appears that any claim exists against the estate which is not due, or on which suit is pending, the judge or clerk shall allow a sum sufficient to satisfy such claim, or the proportion to which it may be entitled, to be retained in the hands of the executor, administrator or collector, for the purpose of being applied to the payment when due or when recovered, with the expense of contesting the same. The order allowing such sum to be retained must specify the amount and nature of the claim. (Rev., s. 148; Code, s. 1489; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 60.)

No Allowance for Contingent Liabilities. — Claims for which an allowance will be made to the representative, within the contemplation of this section, are such claims as are existing and capable of being ascertained and not a mere contingent liability which may never ripen into a cause of action, such as the contingent liability of a surety or co-security on an administration bond. Adams v. Durham, etc., R. Co., 110 N. C. 325, 14 S. E. 857.

§ 152. After final account representative may petition for settlement.—An executor, administrator or collector, who has filed his final account for settlement, may, at any time thereafter, file his petition against the parties interested in the due administration of the estate, in the superior court of the county in which he qualified, or before the judge in term time, setting forth the facts, and praying for an account and settlement of the estate committed to his charge. The petition shall be proceeded on in the manner prescribed by law, and, at the final hearing thereof, the judge or clerk may make such order or decree in the premises as shall seem to be just and right. (Rev., s. 150; Code, s. 1525; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 96.)

Payment of Debt Necessary. — The personal representative should pay all debts before beginning a proceeding under this section. Carlton v. Byers, 93 N. C. 302, 304.

Allegations of Petition. — Where the petition filed under this section does not state that the personal representative has filed a final account or that he has the funds ready in hand for distribution, the petition will be dismissed. Moore v. Rankin, 172 N. C. 599, 602, 90 S. E. 759. Self v. Shugart, 135 N. C. 185, 196, 47 S. E. 484.

Cited in In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N. C. 334, 148 S. E. 456.

§ 153. Payment into court of fund due absent defendant or infant.—When any balance of money or other estate which is due an absent defendant or infant without guardian is found in the hands of an executor, administrator or collector who has preferred his petition for settlement, the court or judge may direct such money or other estate to be paid into court, to be invested upon interest, or otherwise managed under the direction of the judge, for the use of such absent person or infant. (Rev., s. 151; Code, s. 1526; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 97; 1893, c. 317.)

As to seemingly implied repeal of this section in part, see note under § 962(a).

§ 154. Procedure where person entitled unheard of for seven years.—When the party entitled to the money has not been heard of for seven years or more, the fund shall be distributed among the next of kin of the absent deceased person as prescribed by statute, in the following manner: An administrator shall be appointed and made a party to a special proceeding in which a verified petition shall be filed setting forth the facts, with names of the parties entitled, and such other evidence as may be required by the clerk in whose office said fund was deposited, and the proceedings conducted as other special proceedings; and the order disposing of the fund shall be approved and confirmed by the judge, either at term or at chambers. (Rev., s. 151; Code, s. 1526; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 97; 1893, c. 317.)

§ 155. Parties to proceeding for settlement.—In all actions and proceedings by administrators or executors for a final settlement of their estates and trusts, whether at the instance of distributees, legatees or creditors or of themselves, if the personal representative dies or is removed pending such actions or proceedings, the administrator de bonis non or administrator with the will annexed, as the case may be, shall be made party as provided in other cases, or in such way as the court may order, and the action or proceeding shall be conducted to its end, and such judgment shall be rendered on the confirmation of the report, or upon the terms of settlement, if any shall be agreed upon by the parties, as will fully protect and discharge all parties to the record. (Rev., s. 154; 1893, c. 206.)

§ 156. When legacies may be paid in two years.—It is the power of the judge or court, on petition or action, within two years from the qualification of an executor, administrator or collector, to adjudge the payment in full or partially, of legacies and distributive shares, on such terms as the court deems proper, when there is no necessity for retaining the fund. (Rev., s. 155; Code, s. 1512.)

Expiration of Two Years Not Prerequisite. — The provision of this section is only a legislative affirmance of the law as it existed before the code. The allowance of two years to the representative is intended as an indulgence; it does not authorize him to defer the settlement until the expiration of that time, without necessity. Clements v. Rogers, 91 N. C. 63, 65.

It follows that in a petition filed against the representative for settlement absence of allegation that two years have elapsed since his qualification is immaterial, where it is alleged that the estate is solvent and that there is no reason why the representative should further retain the fund. Leonard v. Leonard, 107 N. C. 168, 170, 11 S. E. 1051.

Call for Account within Two Years. — The representative may be called upon by the legatees or the next of kin to account for the distributive shares and legacies even before the expiration of two years from the time of grant of administration. Hobbs v. Craige, 23 N. C. 332. See Editor's Note to section 150.

§ 157. Commissions allowed representatives.—Executors, administrators and collectors shall be entitled to a commission not exceeding five per cent upon the amount of receipts and expenditures which shall appear to be fairly made in the course of administration, and such allowance may be retained out of the assets against creditors and all other persons claiming an interest in the estate. In determining the allowance the trouble and time expended in the management of the business shall be considered; but in sales of land for payment of debts commissions shall not be allowed on any large amount of the proceeds than the sum actually applied in payment of debts.

Such commissions are authorized and directed to be allowed by the clerk of the superior court when the final account of the representative entitled is filed for settlement, or by any judge of the superior court or commissioner appointed by the said court to take and state an account of the assets of any decedent in the hands of his representative upon a plea of fully administered. Nothing in this section shall prevent any executor, administrator or collector from retaining a reasonable sum for necessary charges and disbursements in the management of the estate. (Rev., s. 149; Code, s. 1524; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 95; 1869-70, c. 189.)

Object of Compensation. — The compensation is allowed to the representative in order to reward him not only for his time, labor and trouble but also for the responsibility incurred, and the fidelity with which he discharged the duties of his trust. It should not, however, be allowed where due to his neglect the estate has suffered loss. Kelly v. Odum, 139 N. C. 278, 280, 51 S. E. 953.

This same rule applies to the allowance of necessary charges and disbursements referred to in the last clause of this section—such as counsel fees. Id. For example where he resists a claim which has been adjudged against him in a prior litigation. Johnson v. Marcom, 121 N. C. 83, 28 S. E. 58.

Not Entitled at All Events. — The representative is not, under this section, entitled to commission at all events. He must have earned them by a just and reasonable discharge of his duties. It must appear that the "receipts and expenditures" referred to have been fairly made in the course of administration. The law will not allow compensation to one who disregards its commands. Grant v. Reese, 94 N. C. 720.

Commission on Specific Property Administered. — Specific articles inventoried merely by an executor and delivered to the legatee, are not "receipts," within the meaning of this section, upon which a commission is to be calculated. It may be proper, in estimating the commission, to take into consideration the trouble of managing such articles, but the value of such articles is not to be the basis of such commutation. Walton v. Avery, 22 N. C. 405, 412.

Appeal on Commission under 5%. — Notwithstanding the fact that the amount of commissions allowed in a given case has not exceeded 5% on the receipts and disbursements, the allowance is reviewable upon appeal for inadequacy or excessiveness. It cannot strictly be said that the lower court has exclusive discretion within the limit of 5%. Bank v. Bank, 126 N. C. 531, 537, 36 S. E. 39.

Similarity in Terms of This and Sec. 3902. — That part of this section which specifies the amount of commission allowance is practically identical in terms with section 3902. Bank v. Bank, 126 N. C. 531, 537, 36 S. E. 39.

Order for Commissions Final Judgment. — An order allowing commissions is a final judgment upon which an appeal may be taken. Bank v. Bank, 126 N. C. 531, 36 S. E. 39.

Commission on Both Receipts and Disbursements. — Commissions may be allowed to the representative on both receipts and disbursements, as separate acts. Bank v. Bank, 126 N. C. 531, 540, 36 S. E. 39.

Counsel Fees as Necessary Charges. — Besides commissions, the representative is allowed to retain his expenses for necessary charges and disbursements in the settlement of the estate. Among these necessary charges fees paid to counsel are embraced. Hester v. Hester, 38 N. C. 9; Love v. Love, 40 N. C. 201; Fairbairn v. Fisher, 58 N. C. 385, 387.

Dower as an "Interest in the Estate". — Manifestly, a claim of dower is an "interest" in the estate. Hence the wording of this section lends direct support to a judgment giving priority to commissions due executors, reasonable attorney's fees and costs. Parsons v. Leak, 204 N. C. 86, 92, 167 S. E. 563.

Applied in In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 172 S. E. 345.

§ 158. Liability and compensation of clerk.—Every clerk of the superior court who may be intrusted with money or other estate in such case shall be liable on his official bond for the faithful discharge of the duties enjoined upon him by the judge in relation to said estate, and he may receive such compensation for his service as the judge may allow. (Rev., s. 152; Code, s. 1527; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 98.)

Art. 18. Action by and against Representative

§ 159. Action survives to and against representative.—Upon the death of any person, all demands whatsoever, and right to prosecute or defend any action or special proceeding, existing in favor of or against such person, except as hereinafter provided, shall survive to and against the executor, administrator or collector of his estate. (Rev., s. 156; Code, s. 1490; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 63.)

As to abatement of action see section 461.

Editor's Note.—The rule of the common law is that a person's right of action dies with the person. But great changes in this respect have been wrought by legislation and the decisions of the courts, and the maxim actio personalis moritur cum persona has thereby lost much of its vitality. As to pure torts to person, feeling or reputation, it still retains its ancient force and vigor, but it does not now apply to torts committed to property, personal or real. As to the first kind of property, it was repealed by the act, 4 Edward III, ch 7, and as to the second kind by 3 and 4 William IV, ch. 42. These provisions have been substantially adopted by our legislature. See Mast v. Sapp, 140 N. C. 533, 536, 53 S. E. 350.

It was formerly held that this section did not change the common law rule that a right of action sounding in tort for personal injuries does not survive the tort feasor or the injured person where the injury did not cause death, in view of the express terms of section 162, which then declared inter alia, that injuries to person, not causing death to the injured party shall not survive, see Watts v. Vanderbilt, 167 N. C. 567, 83 S. E. 813; Harper v. Commissioners, 123 N. C. 118, 31 S. E. 384; Bolick v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 370, 50 S. E. 689. Strauss v. Wilmington, 129 N. C. 99, 39 S. E. 772.

So also, under the same provision, it was held that an action against a telegraph company for mental anguish caused by failure to deliver a telegram abates upon the death of the plaintiff under sec. 461, and does not survive. Morton v. Western Union Tel. Co., 130 N. C. 299, 302, 41 S. E. 484.

But this provision of section 162 no more exists. The inference, therefore, is that such actions, at least those based on a tangible physical injury do survive, under the broad provisions of this section, irrespective of whether the injury has caused death or not; and that the provisions of section 162 specifying the actions which will not survive are limited to actions therein designated. See Fuguay v. A. & W. Ry. Co., 199 N. C. 499, 500.

As to those actions which are not based on a tangible physical injury, however, such as for mental anguish, etc., this last conclusion is somewhat doubtful, in view of the analogy between such actions and actions for libel and slander which by express terms of section 162 are still declared not to survive.

Relation of Revival and Survival.—The general rule is that wherever an action can be revived against the representative, it will also survive against him. Butner v. Keelhn, 51 N. C. 60.

Vindictive Damages.—Though the cause of action for trespass may survive against the representative of the trespasser, no vindictive damages may be recovered in such action. Rippey v. Miller, 33 N. C. 247.

Applied in Baird Co. v. Boyd, 41 F. (2d) 578.

§ 160. Death by wrongful act; recovery not assets; dying declarations.—When the death of a person is caused by a wrongful act, neglect or default of another, such as would, if the injured party had lived, have entitled him to an action for damages therefor, the person or corporation that would have been so liable, and his or their executors, administrators, collecters or successors, shall be liable to an action for damages, to be brought within one year after such death, by the executor, administrator or collector of the decedent; and this notwithstanding the death, and although the wrongful act, neglect or default, causing the death, amounts in law to a felony. The amount recovered in such action is not liable to be applied as assets, in the payment of debts or legacies, except as to burial expenses of the deceased, but shall be disposed of as provided in this chapter for the distribution of personal property in case of intestacy.

In all actions brought under this section the dying declarations of the deceased as to the cause of his death shall be admissible in evidence in like manner and under the same rules as dying declarations of the deceased in criminal actions for homicide are now received in evidence. (Rev., s. 59; Code, ss. 1498, 1500; 1868-9, c. 113, ss. 70, 72, 115; R. C., c. 46, ss. 8, 9; 1919, c. 29; 1933, c. 113.)

I. IN GENERAL.

See note under § 567.

For critical appraisal of this section, see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 263.

Editor's Note. — Under the common law there was no civil action for the wrongful death of a human being. Although the harshness of this doctrine was obvious it was not until 1846 that the English Parliament passed the statute known as Lord Campbell's Act (9 & 10 Vict., c. 93) which made such actions possible.

The wrongful death acts in the different states in this country are generally based upon Lord Campbell's Act, although there are distinct differences. The English Statute seems to have been especially designed to aid the families of the deceased but in regard to the North Carolina Act the Supreme Court in Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 965, 36 S. E. 191, says: "This section unlike Lord Campbell's Act does not regard the family relation and is not for the purpose of "Compensating the families of persons killed by accident."

The exception as to burial expenses to the exemption of the amount from payment of debts was inserted by Public Laws 1933, c. 113.

Not a Common-Law Right. — The right of recovery for death by wrongful act did not exist at common law, and rests entirely upon this section. Broadnax v. Broadnax, 160 N. C. 432, 76 S. E. 216; Hall v. Southern R. Co., 149 N. C. 108, 110, 62 S. E. 899; Harper v. Commissioners, 123 N. C. 118, 119, 31 S. E. 384; Hinnant v. Tidewater Power Co., 189 N. C. 120, 121, 126 S. E. 307.

Purpose of Section. — The purpose of this section was to withdraw claims of this kind from the effect and operation of the maxim actio personalis moritur cum persona, and to continue, as the basis of the claim of his estate the wrongful injury to the person resulting in death. Mitchell v. Talley, 182 N. C. 683, 109 S. E. 882.

It Is Similar to the Georgia Statute.—The wrongful death statute of Georgia is not so dissimilar from this section in scope, meaning, and practical application as to deprive the trial courts of this state of jurisdiction to hear and determine a cause for the negligent killing in the state of Georgia of a resident of this state. Rodwell v. Camel City Coach Co., 205 N. C. 292, 171 S. E. 100.

Creates New Cause of Action. — The cause of action for personal injuries ceases with the death of the injured party and the action under this section is not a survival of the former but an entirely new action. Harper v. Commissioners, 123 N. C. 118, 119, 31 S. E. 384; Bolick v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 370, 50 S. E. 689; Taylor v. Cranberry, etc., Iron Co., 94 N. C. 526.

It creates a new cause of action, however, only in the sense that at common law the right did not survive to the personal representative. Mitchell v. Talley, 182 N. C. 683, 109 S. E. 882.

Liberal Construction. — This section is not penal but remedial in its nature, and it should be given such construction as will effectuate the intention of the legislature in enacting it. Hall v. Southern R. Co., 149 N. C. 108, 62 S. E. 899; Vance v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 460, 464, 50 S. E. 860.

Writ of Attachment May Issue. — A writ of attachment will issue under section 798 ch. 4 to enforce the right created by this section. Mitchell v. Talley, 182 N. C. 683, 109 S. E. 882.

A Property Right. — This section gives clear indication of the purpose of the Legislature to impress upon the right of action the character of property as a part of the intestate's. Neill v. Wilson, 146 N. C. 242, 245, 59 S. E. 674.

Decedent Fully Compensated before Death. — Where the injured party has received in his lifetime full compensation for the injury which resulted in his death, a right of action arising from the same injury will not lie after his death for further damages for the benefit of his estate. Edwards v. Interstate Chemical Co., 170 N. C. 551, 87 S. E. 635.

What Constitutes a Cause of Action. — It is entirely immaterial for the purpose of establishing a cause of action under the provisions of this section whether the act was wanton or cruel. Facts showing a legal duty and neglect thereof on the part of defendant with a resulting injury to the plaintiff are sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Catlett, 177 Fed. 71, 74.

For a discussion of the right of husband or wife to recover damages for the loss of consortium by reason of injury or death, see Note, 3 N. C. L. R. 98.

Cited in Hawkins v. Rowland Lumber Co., 198 N. C. 475, 476, 152 S. E. 169; Harper v. Bullock, 198 N. C. 448, 449, 152 S. E. 405; Wilson v. Clement Co., 207 N. C. 541, 543, 177 S. E. 797.

II. LIMITATION OF THE ACTION.

In General.—The limitation of the section is stated in Devis v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 200 N. C. 345, 157 S. E. 11.

Condition Affecting Cause. — The provision that the action must be brought within one year is not a statute of limitation but is a condition affecting the cause of action itself. Trull v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 151 N. C. 545, 547, 66 S. E. 586. See also Mathis v. Camp Mfg. Co., 204 N. C. 434, 435, 168 S. E. 515; Curlee v. Duke Power Co., 205 N. C. 644, 647, 172 S. E. 329.

Hence it must be alleged and proved by the plaintiff to make out a cause of action and is not required to be pleaded as a statute of limitations. Bennett v. North Carolina R. Co., 159 N. C. 345, 74 S. E. 883; Hatch v. Alamance R. Co., 183 N. C. 617, 112 S. E. 529; Hanie v. Penland, 193 N. C. 880.

The requirement that the action shall be brought within one year is a condition annexed to the right of action and not to the person of the defendant and it must be shown by the plaintiff that he has complied therewith, and it is not necessary for the defendant to plead it as a statute of limitations. Neely v. Minus, 196 N. C. 345, 145 S. E. 771.

Provision as to Time Strictly Construed. — This provision requiring suit to be brought within one year after the death must be strictly complied with. Taylor v. Cranberry Iron, etc., Co., 94 N. C. 525, 526. And no explanation as to why the action was not brought within such time can avail. Id. Best v. Kinston, 106 N. C. 205, 10 S. E. 997. Therefore, the fact that no administrator was appointed does not vary the rule. Best v. Kinston, 106 N. C. 205, 10 S. E. 997.

Applies to Nonresident Defendant.—The provision that the action must be brought within one year applies with full force whether the defendant be a resident or a nonresident. Neely v. Minus, 196 N. C. 345, 347, 145 S. E. 771, citing McGuire v. Lumber Co., 190 N. C. 806, 131 S. E. 274.

After Nonsuit. — A new action under this section may be commenced within one year after a nonsuit, as provided in sec. 415. Neekins v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 131 N. C. 1, 2, 42 S. E. 333; Trull v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 151 N. C. 545, 548, 66 S. E. 586. See also Swainey v. Great Atlantic, etc., Tea Co., 204 N. C. 713, 715, 169 S. E. 618; Jones v. Bagwell, 207 N. C. 378, 388, 177 S. E. 170.

This section, construed with § 415, extends the time within which the action must be brought in case of nonsuit to the extreme limit of two years, and where the defendant has, under the Federal statutes, removed the cause from the State to the Federal Court, and there taken a nonsuit, and has commenced his action again in the State court, the fact that the second action between the same parties, upon the same subject-matter, was commenced in the State court more than one year after the date of the death does not bar the plaintiff's right of action. Brooks v. Suncrest Lumber Co., 194 N. C. 141, 138 S. E. 532, citing Fleming v. R. R., 128 N. C. 80, 38 S. E. 253.

After Discontinuance.—Where there is a break in the continuity in the issuance of alias and pluries summonses in a civil action to recover damages for a wrongful death there is a discontinuance, and service of a summons thereafter commences a new action, and if issued more than one year after the wrongful death of the action will be dismissed. Neely v. Minus, 196 N. C. 345, 145 S. E. 771. See note under § 481.

Conflict of Laws.—This section confers a right not existing at common law, and the provision that the action be brought within one year is a condition annexed to the cause of action and also a statute of limitation in regard thereto, and an action brought against a resident defendant by a nonresident plaintiff for a wrongful death occurring in another State is controlled by our statute prescribing the time within which such action can be brought and not a general statute of the State in which the death occurred which allows a longer period. Tieffenbrun v. Flannery, 198 N. C. 397, 151 S. E. 857.

III. PARTIES TO THE ACTION.

Action against Estate of One Causing Wrongful Death.— Where a person is alleged to have caused the death of another by his wrongful act, neglect, or default, and suit has been brought against him and is pending at his death, within one year after the wrongful death caused by him, an action will lie against the executor and administrator of the deceased defendant under the provisions of this section. Tonkins v. Cooper, 187 N. C. 570, 122 S. E. 294.

Where Deceased Is an Infant. — Under this section the administrator may sue for the death of an infant a few months old. Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 965, 36 S. E. 191; Davis v. Railroad Co., 136 N. C. 115, 116, 48 S. E. 591.

Action by Administrator of Child against Parents.—An unemancipated child living with his parents may not maintain an action in tort against them, nor can the administrator of the child recover damages against them for the child's wrongful death, as this section gives a right of action for wrongful death only where the injured party, if he had lived, could have maintained such action. Goldsmith v. Samet, 201 N. C. 574, 160 S. E. 835.

Joinder of Employer with Employee.—The right to maintain an action for the wrongful death of a deceased rests exclusively upon this section, and where the death is caused by the negligence of an employee while acting within the scope of his authority the employer may be joined as a defendant under the doctrine of respondent superior. Brown v. Southern R. Co., 202 N. C. 256, 162 S. E. 613.

Action by Administrator of Employee Who Has Received Workman's Compensation.—When an administratrix of a deceased employee who has received compensation for the employee's death under the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act is thereby barred from prosecuting any other remedy for the injury, she may, under this section, pending the hearing before the Industrial Commission, institute an action against a third person whose negligent acts caused the death of the intestate. Phifer v. Berry, 202 N. C. 388, 163 S. E. 119.

Suit Must Be Brought by Personal Representative — The personal representative of the deceased, his executor or administrator, etc., can alone maintain an action for damages for his wrongful death under the provisions of this section. Hanes v. Southern Pub. Utilities Co., 191 N. C. 13, 16, 131 S. E. 402; Hood v. American Tel., etc., Co., 162 N. C. 70, 71, 77 S. E. 1096.

Nature of Suit. — The statute requires the suit to be brought by the administrator in his official and not in his private or individual capacity. He must sue as administrator. Hall v. Southern R. Co., 146 N. C. 345, 348, 59 S. E. 879.

Under this section an administrator sues in his own right and not en autre droit. Christian v. Railroad Co., 136 N. C. 321, 322, 48 S. E. 743.

Hence under this section an action cannot be maintained by a widow as such, but must be brought by the personal representative of the deceased. Bennett v. North Carolina R. Co., 159 N. C. 345, 74 S. E. 883; Howell v. Commissioners, 121 N. C. 362, 28 S. E. 362; Craig v. Suncrest Lumber Co., 189 N. C. 137, 126 S. E. 312, 313.

Nor can a husband as such sue for the wrongful death of his wife. Hood v. American Tel., etc., Co., 162 N. C. 70, 77 S. E. 1096. A father cannot maintain an action in his individual capacity for the death of his son. Killian v. Southern R. Co., 128 N. C. 261, 38 S. E. 873. Nor for the wrongful death of his daughter resulting from seduction. Scarlett v. Norwood, 115 N. C. 284, 285, 20 S. E. 459.

Appointment of Administrator. — A cause of action under this section is sufficient for the appointment of an administrator. Vance v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 460, 464, 50 S. E. 860. But where a deceased has left a will disposing of all his property and therein naming an executor, the right of action against a defendant for his wrongful death must be by the executor named. Hood v. American Tel., etc., Co., 162 N. C. 70, 93, 77 S. E. 1096.

Foreign Administrator Cannot Sue. — A foreign administrator cannot bring an action under this section. Hall v. Southern R. Co., 149 N. C. 108, 62 S. E. 899. Therefore when an administrator does not qualify in this state until after the commencement of the suit and the expiration of one year from the death of his intestate he cannot bring the action. Id. Vance v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 460, 50 S. E. 860.

IV. DISTRIBUTION OF RECOVERY.

In General. — With reference to the disposition of the recovery this section materially differs from the English statute and the statute in most of the states which generally provide for designated classes, such as the wife, the children. Furthermore, in some states the measure of damages is made to depend upon who takes the benefit of the recovery. In this state the measure of damages is not determined by such considerations, but is, in all cases, dependent upon considerations of fair and just compensation for the pecuniary injury resulting from such death. Ed. Note.

The damages when recovered are not to be simply distributed, but disposed of as provided in case of intestacy and the complaint need not allege that intestate left next-of-kin. Warner v. Western, etc., R. Co., 94 N. C. 250, 255, 257.

Existence of Beneficiaries Immaterial. — The existence of persons who will be entitled to the recovery under section 137 is not a condition precedent to the right to bring the action. The purpose of the section is to give the action irrespective of who may become beneficiaries of the recovery. Warner v. Western, etc., R. Co., 94 N. C. 250, 258.

Rights of Distributees Fixed. — Under this section the rights of the distributees are fixed as of the time when the intestate died. Neill v. Wilson, 146 N. C. 242, 245, 59 S. E. 674.

Not Assets of Deceased's Estate. — The provision that the recovery is not to be applied as assets in the payment of debts or legacies extends to creditors of the intestate and not to creditors of the distributees. Neill v. Wilson, 146 N. C. 242, 245, 59 S. E. 674.

Damages for a wrongful death are not assets of the estate available to creditors, and are to be disposed of according to the canons of descent and distribution. Hines v. Foundation Co., 196 N. C. 322, 145 S. E. 612.

Not Subject to Widow's Year's Support. — The damages recovered are not subject to the widow's year's support, as such support is not provided for "in this chapter" as specified by the section. Broadnax v. Broadnax, 160 N. C. 432, 76 S. E. 216.

Recovery Held in Trust. — The administrator holds the amount recovered in trust for those that may be entitled thereto as distributees. Avery v. Brantley, 191 N. C. 396, 399, 131 S. E. 721; Baker v. Raleigh, etc., 91 N. C. 308.

When Recovery Goes to University. — In action under this section for damages for negligently causing the death of the intestate, if there be no next-of-kin who are entitled to the recovery, under the statute of distributions, the recovery goes to the University. Warner v. Western, etc., R. Co., 94 N. C. 250.

Father as Unworthy Beneficiary. — Notwithstanding the provisions of section 189 depriving a father who has abandoned his child of his services, etc., a father who has abandoned his minor child shall, under this section, be entitled to his distributive share of the damages recovered for the wrongful death of such child. Avery v. Brantly, 191 N. C. 396, 131 S. E. 721, 5 N. C. L. R. 72.

Law of This State Governs. — Where a person was domiciled in another state and was killed in this state, and an administrator sues in this state, the funds recovered must be distributed under the laws of this state, though a prior administration had been taken out in the state of his domicile. Hartness v. Pharr, 133 N. C. 566, 45 S. E. 901. See Hall v. Southern R. Co., 146 N. C. 345, 350, 59 S. E. 879.

Recovery under Federal Employer's Liability Act.—In an action to recover damages under the Federal Employer's Liability Act, this state statute does not apply as to the distribution of the recovery. Horton v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 175 N. C. 472, 473, 95 S. E. 883. Overruling In re Stone, 173 N. C. 208, 91 S. E. 852.

V. ADMISSION OF DECLARATIONS.

Rule of Evidence Changed. — This is a general statute changing the rule of evidence, in which no one has a vested interest and which the law-making power can extend, alter or repeal at will. Williams v. Randolph, etc., R. Co., 182 N. C. 267, 273, 108 S. E. 915. And this change is valid and constitutional. Tatham v. Andrews Mfg. Co., 180 N. C. 627, 105 S. E. 423.

Applies to Prior Cases. — The amendment of 1919 to this section, enlarging the rule of the admissibility of evidence of dying declarations to instances of wrongful death, does not change any vested rights, and is applicable in cases where such death was caused before its passage. Williams v. Randolph, etc., R. Co., 182 N. C. 267, 108 S. E. 915.

What Declarations Permitted. — This section permits in evidence such declarations of the act of killing and circumstances immediately attendant on the act, which constitutes a part of the res gestae, and uttered when the declarant was in actual danger of death, and full apprehension thereof, and when the death accordingly ensued. Tatham v. Andrews Mfg. Co., 180 N. C. 627, 105 S. E. 423.

The dying declarations of a deceased person for whose death an action has been brought under this section are competent as evidence, provided the preliminary facts are made to appear. Southwell v. R. R., 189 N. C. 417, 127 S. E. 361. Otherwise they are not admissible. Holmes v. Wharton, 194 N. C. 470, 475, 140 S. E. 93.

Declarations Must Have Been Voluntary. — In case of the admission of dying declarations, as in criminal actions for homicide, the dying declarations of one whose wrongful death has been caused to be admissible upon the trial in an action to recover damages for his wrongful death, must have been voluntarily made while the declarant was in extremis or under a sense of impending death, and confined to the act of killing and the attendant circumstances forming a part of the res gestae. Dellinger v. Elliott Building Co., 187 N. C. 845, 123 S. E. 78.

§ 161. Damages recoverable for death by wrongful act.—The plaintiff in such action may recover such damages as are a fair and just compensation for the pecuniary injury resulting from such death. (Rev., s. 60; Code, s. 1499; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 71; R. C., c. 1, s. 10.)

Mental Anguish Not to Be Considered. — Where the plaintiff brings an action, under this section, as administrator of his son, his recovery is limited to the value of the life and he is not entitled to any damages for mental anguish in this form of action, nor for the loss of the services of his child. Byrd v. Express Co., 139 N. C. 273, 51 S. E. 851.

Evidence as to Number of Children Inadmissible. — In an action for death under this section, evidence of the number of children left by the deceased is inadmissible as irrelevant and calculated to mislead the jury. Kesler v. Smith, 66 N. C. 154.

Annuity Act Not to Be Considered. — In estimating the damages under this section the court should not permit the jury to consider the provisions of sec. 1791 (the Annuity Act) for the purpose of ascertaining the present value of intestate's life. Poe v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 525, 54 S. E. 406.

No "Hard and Fast Rule" Prescribed. — "This court has not prescribed any 'hard and fast rule' by which to bind the jury in making the estimate of what sum should be given or to require them to make the assessment of damages in any particular way." Poe v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 525, 528, 54 S. E. 406.

Nature and Quantum of Damages Recoverable. — It is well settled that no damages are to be allowed as a solatium or a punishment. Kesler v. Smith, 66 N. C. 154, 157; Bradley v. Ohio River, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 972, 974, 30 S. E. 8; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Catlett, 177 Fed. 71; Collier v. Arrington, 61 N. C. 356.

This section restricts the recovery for malpractice to compensatory damages. Gray v. Little, 127 N. C. 304, 37 S. E. 270.

In an action for wrongful death under this section the jury may consider evidence of the plaintiff's intestate's age, habits, industry skill, means and business, and the admission of testimony that the deceased had a 200-acre farm, a comfortable home, and a plenty for his family to eat and wear, was not error. Hicks v. Love, 201 N. C. 773, 161 S. E. 394.

The reasonable expectation of pecuniary advantage from the continuance of the life of the deceased must, in all cases, guide the jury in determining the quantum of damages, to which end evidence as to the age, habits, industry, business, etc., of the deceased is indispensable. Burton v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 82 N. C. 505.

The instruction for the determination of the quantum of damages must be so specific as to contain an explanation of the consideration to be given to the whole evidence in fixing the worth of the life. An error due to such a defect will not be cured by judges reducing the amount of damages assessed. Burton v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 82 N. C. 505.

"In estimating the pecuniary value of this child to her next of kin, the jury could take into consideration all the probate or even possible benefits which might result to them from her life, modified, as in their estimation they should be, by all the chances of failure and misfortune." Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 969, 36 S. E. 191.

The correct rule touching the quantum of damages is the reasonable expectation of pecuniary advantage from the continuance of the life of the deceased. Kesler v. Smith, 66 N. C. 154.

The measure of damages for the wrongful killing of a mother of children is the value of her labor or the amount of her earnings if she had lived out her expectancy, without regard to the number of her children and the intellectual and moral training she might have given them. Bradley v. Ohio River, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 972, 30 S. E. 8.

"It has been held by this court, in several similar cases, that the statute does not limit the recovery to the actual pecuniary loss proved on the trial." Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 969, 36 S. E. 191.

Under the State statute the jury assesses the value of the life of the decedent in solido, which is disbursed under the statute of distributions. Horton v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 175 N. C. 472, 477, 95 S. E. 883; Carpenter v. Ashville Power, etc., Co., 191 N. C. 130, 131 S. E. 400.

In ascertaining the net earnings the jury should deduct only the reasonably necessary personal expenses of the deceased, taking into consideration his age, manner of life, business calling or profession, etc., and the amount spent for his family, or those dependent upon him, should not be deducted. Carter v. Railroad, 139 N. C. 499, 52 S. E. 642.

The total amount or net accumulated income, upon which the compensation is based, must be ascertained as of the time when, according to his expectancy, the intestate would have died in due course of nature; but this total may be composed of many annual incomes of different amounts. The present value of that sum, whatever it may be, is what the jury should allow in the way of damages. Poe v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 525, 528, 54 S. E. 406.

The age, health, strength, skill, industry, habits, and character of the deceased are elements of importance to be considered in fixing the amount of compensation. Burton v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 82 N. C. 505; Poe v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 525, 528, 54 S. E. 406.

In such an action the value of the life before twenty-one as well as after twenty-one years of age is recoverable. Gurley v. Southern Power Co., 172 N. C. 690, 695, 90 S. E. 943.

The court can not instruct the jury in any case, when death by the wrongful act of the defendant is shown, that upon any state of facts it is their duty to render a verdict against the plaintiff, as "the reasonable expectation of pecuniary advantages from the continuance of the life of the deceased," is necessarily an inference of fact from all of the evidence and can only be drawn by the jury. Carter v. Railroad, 139 N. C. 499, 52 S. E. 642.

The meaning of damages, in the case of the wrongful death of a child is the same as in the case of an adult. The difficulty is in the application. Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 36 S. E. 191. See Gurley v. Southern Power Co., 172 N. C. 690, 695, 90 S. E. 943.

The damages recoverable for the wrongful death of another negligently caused, is the net present pecuniary worth of the deceased, to be ascertained by deducting the probable cost of his own living and his ordinary or usual expenses, from the probable gross income derived from his own exertions, based upon his life expectancy. Carpenter v. Asheville Power, etc., Co., 191 N. C. 130, 131 S. E. 400; Purnell v. Rockingham R. Co., 190 N. C. 573, 130 S. E. 313; Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 967, 36 S. E. 191.

In estimating damages under this section, the question is, did the relatives suffer any pecuniary loss by reason of the fact that the deceased failed to live out his expectancy, and in determining it the jury must take into consideration the entire life, character, habits, health, capacity, etc., of the deceased. Carter v. Railroad, 139 N. C. 499, 52 S. E. 642.

In an action for death under this section it is competent to prove the age, strength, health, skill, industry, habits and character of the deceased, with a view to arrive at his pecuniary worth to his family. Kesler v. Smith, 66 N. C. 154.

Stated in Wise v. Hollowell, 205 N. C. 286, 290, 171 S. E. 82.

Cited in Hines v. Foundation Co., 196 N. C. 322, 145 S. E. 612.

§ 162. Actions which do not survive.—The following rights of action do not survive:

1. Causes of action for libel and for slander, except slander of title.

2. Causes of action for false imprisonment and assault and battery.

3. Causes where the relief sought could not be enjoyed, or granting it would be nugatory, after death. (Rev., s. 157; Code, s. 1491; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 64; 1915, c. 38.)

As to abatement of actions, see section 461.

Editor's Note.—This section formerly contained an additional provision to the effect that "injuries to person, where such injury does not cause the death of the injured party" shall not survive. But this provision has been omitted by the amendment of 1915, ch. 38. See Editor's Note under section 159.

§ 163. Right of action survives to successor.—Executors and administrators shall have actions in like manner as the first testator or intestate might have had against any person, his executors and administrators, in all cases, except where such actions, being commenced, are not allowed by statute to be revived on the death of any party. (Rev., s. 158; Code, s. 1497; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 69; 1905, c. 286.)

Application to Administrator d. b. n.—The provisions of this section apply to suits brought by administrator de bonis non, as well as to original administrator, and are mandatory. There is no middle ground. Rogers v. Gooch, 87 N. C. 442.

§ 164. To sue or defend in representative capacity.—All actions and proceedings brought by or against executors, administrators or collectors, upon any cause of action or right to which the estate is the real party in interest, must be brought by or against them in their representative capacity. (Rev., s. 160; Code, s. 1507; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 79.)

Heirs and Next of Kin as Parties.—The heirs and next of kin have no right to be made parties to an action or account against the personal representative, although they allege collusion between the plaintiff and the representative. Byrd v. Byrd, 117 N. C. 523, 23 S. E. 324.

§ 165. Service on or appearance by one binds all.—In actions against several executors, administrators or collectors they are all to be considered as one person, representing the decedent; and if the summons is served on one or more, but not all, the plaintiff may proceed against those served, and if he recovers, judgment may be entered against all. (Rev., s. 161; Code, s. 1508; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 81.)

§ 166. When creditors may sue on claim; execution in such action.—An action may be brought by a creditor against an executor, administrator or collector on a demand at any time after it is due, but no execution shall issue against the executor, administrator or collector on a judgment therein against him without leave of the court, upon notice of twenty days and upon proof that the defendant has refused to pay such judgment its ratable part, and such judgment shall be a lien on the property of the defendant only from the time of such leave granted. (Rev., s. 162; Code, s. 1509; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 82.)

Any Court May Entertain the Suit.—In construing this section, it was decided at a very early day after its enactment that any court having jurisdiction of the amount sued for could entertain the suit of the creditor so far as to establish his claim and give him judgment therefor. Heilig v. Foard, 64 N. C. 710; Vaughn v. Stephenson, 69 N. C. 212; Shields v. Payne, 80 N. C. 291, 293; Hoover v. Berryhill, 84 N. C. 133, 134.

Court to Grant Leave.—The court which, under this section, may grant leave to issue execution is the court which has jurisdiction of probate matters, and no other court. Vaughan v. Stephenson, 69 N. C. 212, 214.

Jurisdiction for Breach of Contract.—The superior court in term has, under this section, jurisdiction of an action by a creditor against an administrator for breach of a contract made by his intestate. Shields v. Payne, 80 N. C. 291.

§ 167. Service by publication on executor without bond.—Whenever process may issue against an executor who has not given bond, and the same cannot be served upon him by reason of his absence or concealment, service of such process may be made by publication in the manner prescribed in other civil actions. (Rev., s. 163; Code, s. 1523; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 94.)

§ 168. Execution by successor in office.—Any executor, administrator or collector may have execution issued on any judgment recovered by any person, who preceded him in the administration of the estate, or by the decedent, in the same cases and the same manner as the original plaintiff might have done. (Rev., s. 164; Code, s. 1513; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 84.)

§ 169. Action to continue, though letters revoked.—In case the letters of an executor, administrator or collector are revoked, pending an action to which he is a party, the adverse party may, notwithstanding, continue the action against him in order to charge him personally. If such party does not elect so to do, within six months after notice of such revocation, the action may be continued against the successor of the executor, administrator or collector in the administration of the estate, in the same manner as in case of death. (Rev., s. 165; Code, s. 1514; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 85.)

Art. 19. Representative's Powers, Duties and Liabilities

§ 170. Representative may maintain appropriate suits and proceedings.—Executors, administrators or collectors may maintain any appropriate action or proceeding to recover assets, and to recover possession of the real property of which executors are authorized to take possession by will; and to recover for any injury done to such assets or real property at any time subsequent to the death of the decedent. (Rev., s. 159; Code, s. 1501; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 73.)

Recovery of Realty by Administrator d. b. n. c. t. a.—Where an executor is entitled, under this section, to the possession of the land, his successor, an administrator de bonis non, cum testamento annexo is entitled to the same rights and remedies as his predecessor in office. Smathers v. Moody, 112 N. C. 791, 795, 175 S. E. 532.

§ 171. Representative may purchase for estate to prevent loss.—At any auction sale of real property belonging to the estate, the executor, administrator or collector may bid in the property and take a conveyance to himself as executor, administrator or collector for the benefit of the estate when, in his opinion, this is necessary to prevent a loss to the estate. (Rev., s. 85; Code, s. 1505; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 77.)

In Sale of Realty Only.—This section authorizes the representatives to bid at the sale of realty only. Hence the non-statutory rule that a representative cannot bid at his own sale applies in sales of personalty. Woody v. Smith, 65 N. C. 116, 118.

who, as rightful executors or as executors in their own wrong, or as administrators, shall waste or convert to their own use any estate or assets of any person deceased, shall be chargeable in the same manner as their testator or intestate might have been. (Rev., s. 167; Code, s. 1495; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 68.)

§ 174. Nonresident executor or guardian to appoint process agent.—A nonresident qualifying in the state as an executor or guardian shall at the time of his qualification appoint in writing a resident agent in the county of his qualification, on whom may be served citations, notices, and all processes required by law to be served on such executor or guardian. The executor or guardian shall file the appointment with the clerk in the county of his qualification, and the clerk shall record it in the record book immediately after the record of qualification, and shall properly index it in the record book. All citations, notices, and processes served on such process agent shall be as effective as if served on the executor or guardian, but the return date shall not be sooner than ten days from the date of the issuance of the citation, notice, or process. No letters shall be granted to an executor nor shall a guardian be permitted to qualify, unless the process agent is named simultaneously with the application for letters or for qualification. (1917, c. 198, ss. 1, 2, 3.)

§ 175. Executor or guardian removing from state; to appoint process agent.—When a resident executor or guardian removes from the state, he shall, before removing or within thirty days thereafter, appoint a process agent in the manner as provided in the case of a nonresident, and upon failure to make the appointment within thirty days, the clerk shall remove him and appoint an administrator with the will annexed, or a new guardian, as the case may be. (1917, c. 198, s. 4.)

§ 176. Nonresident's failure to obey process ground for removal.—The clerk may remove any nonresident executor or guardian who fails or refuses to obey any citation, notice or process served on the process agent appointed as provided in the preceding two sections, and appoint a resident. (1917, c. 198, s. 5.)

§ 176(a). Power to renew obligation; no personal liability.—In all cases where a decedent is the maker or one of the makers, a surety or one of the sureties, an endorser or one of the endorsers, a guarantor or one of the guarantor's of any note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money which is due or past due at the death of said decedent, or shall thereafter become due prior to the settlement of the estate of said decedent, the administrator, executor or collector of said decedent's estate is hereby authorized and empowered to execute as such administrator, executor or collector a new note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money, in the same capacity as decedent was obligated for the same amount or less but not greater than the sum due on the original obligation which shall be in lieu of the original obligation of the decedent, whether made payable to the original holder or another, and is authorized and empowered to renew said note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money from time to time, and said note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money so executed by said administrator, executor or collector shall be binding upon the estate of said decedent to the same extent and in the same manner and with the same effect that the original note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money so executed by the decedent was binding upon his estate: Provided, the time for final payment of the note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money, or any renewal thereof by said administrator, executor or collector shall not extend beyond a period of two years from the qualification of the original administrator, executor or collector as such upon the estate of said decedent: Provided, however that if it shall be made to appear to the court that it is for the best interest of the estate that said time for final payment extend for a longer period than two years, then the court in its discretion may empower and authorize the administrator, executor or collector of said estate to renew the note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money, or any renewal or extension thereof by said administrator, executor or collector for such period as the court may deem best or for a period of time not exceeding two years: Provided, further that when the time for final settlement of the estate of said decedent has been extended from year to year for a longer period by order of the clerk of the superior court, approved by the resident judge of the superior court, such note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money or any renewal thereof by the said administrator, executor or collector may likewise be extended but not beyond the period authorized by the court for the final settlement of the estate of said decedent. The executor of any note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money mentioned in this section by the administrator, executor or collector of the decedent shall not be held or construed to be binding upon said administrator, executor or collector personally. (1925, c. 86; 1933, cc. 161, 196, 498.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, cc. 161, 196, 498, inserted the words "a guarantor or one of the guarantor's" near the beginning of the section, and added the provisos giving the administrator power to extend and renew obligations. The part of this section beginning with words "unless it shall be made to appear," and continuing to the end of the first sentence, does not apply in Mecklenburg and Pamlico counties. See § 2 of the Act of 1933.

For a descriptive survey of the 1933 amendment to this section, see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 264.

For review of statute, see 4 N. C. L. R. 18, discussing ch. 86 of the Acts of 1925.

§ 176(b). Continuance of farming operations of deceased persons. — When any person shall die while engaged in farming operations, his executor or administrator shall be authorized to continue such farming operations until the end of the current calendar year; and/or to any crop or crops which may be harvested after the end of said year; provided, that only the net income from such farming operations shall be assets of the estate, and any indebtedness incurred in connection with such farming operations shall be a preferred claim as to any heir, legatee, devisee, distributee, general or unsecured creditor of said estate. Nothing herein contained shall limit the powers of an executor under the terms of a will. (1935, c. 163.)

Art. 20. Construction and Application of Chapter

§ 177. Where no time specified, reasonable time allowed; extension.—If no length of notice, or no time for the doing of an act, is stated in this chapter, the time shall be reasonable, and in any case it may be enlarged by the clerk from time to time, or by the judge of the superior court, on application to him or on appeal to him from the clerk. (Rev., s. 169; Code, s. 1463; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 16.)

§ 178. Powers under will not affected.—Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to affect the discretionary powers, trusts and authorities of an executor or other trustee acting under a will, provided creditors be not delayed thereby nor the order changed in which by law they are entitled to be paid. (Rev., s. 170; Code, s. 1415; 1868-9, c. 113, s. 23; R. C., c. 46, ss. 12, 13.)

§ 179. Chapter applies to administrations since 1869.—This chapter shall apply only to cases where the grant of letters of collection or of probate or of administration shall have issued on or after the first day of July, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, except in case of administrations de bonis non upon estates where the former letters of administration or letters testamentary were granted prior to the first of July, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, in all which cases estates shall be administered, closed up and settled according to the law as it existed just prior to the first of July, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine. (Rev., s. 173; Code, s. 1476; 1871-2, c. 213, s. 1872-3, c. 179.)

Judgments against Representatives.—A judgment by default against an administrator appointed prior to July, 1869, rendered in an action begun in 1882, conclusively fixes him with assets, as the case is governed by the laws as it existed prior to the first mentioned date. Brown v. McKee, 108 N. C. 387, 392, 13 S. E. 8.

A docketed judgment against an administrator in his representative capacity, where administration was granted before July 1, 1869, creates no lien upon his land. Williams v. Green, 80 N. C. 76.

Applied in Brandon v. Phelps, 77 N. C. 45; Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 547, 10 S. E. 701.

§ 180. Cases pending at adoption of constitution of 1868.—All cases for the sale of real estate for assets heretofore in the county courts, in which final orders for collection and application or distribution of purchase money and making titles were not made before the adoption of the present constitution, may, at the instance of any person interested, be transferred, as other cases, to the superior court of the county where such proceeding was pending, and such court shall have full authority to make all necessary orders to complete the same. (Rev., s. 171; Code, s. 1542; 1871-2, c. 161.)

§ 181. Administrations prior to 1869.—This chapter shall apply to the estates of such deceased persons only whereof original administration has been granted subsequent to the first day of July, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, and all estates whereon administration was granted prior to the said first day of July, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, shall be dealt with, administered and settled according to the law as it existed just prior to said date, and it is hereby declared that such is the true intent and meaning of this chapter: Provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the application of this chapter so far as it relates only to the courts having jurisdiction of any action or proceeding for the settlement of an administration or to the practice and procedure therein. If any person shall have bona fide administered any estate or any part of the estate of any deceased person whereof original administration was granted prior to the first day of July, under the said act of one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight and one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, he shall not be deemed guilty of a devastavit. (Rev., ss. 168, 172; Code, ss. 1433, 1434; 1869-70, c. 53, ss. 1, 2.)

Applied in Glover v. Flowers, 95 N. C. 57; Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 547, 550, 10 S. E. 701; Little v. Duncan, 89 N. C. 416.

CHAPTER 2

ADOPTION OF MINORS

§§ 182-191. Repealed by Public Laws 1935, c. 243, codified as §§ 191(1)-191(12).

§ 191(1). Petition for adoption and change of name.—Any proper adult person or husband and wife, jointly, who have legal residence in North Carolina may petition the superior court of the county in which he or they have legal residence or the county in which the child resides, or of the county in which the child had legal residence when it became a public charge, or of the county in which is located any agency or institution operating under the laws of this State having guardianship and custody of the child, for leave to adopt a child and for a change of the name of such child: Provided, that in every instance the child shall have been an actual resident of this state for a period of at least one year. Such petition for adoption shall be filed in duplicate on standard form to be supplied by the state board of charities and public welfare, one form to be held in the files of the said superior court, and the other to be sent to said state board of charities and public welfare. (1935, c. 243.)

Editor's Note.—Section 2 of c. 243 of the Acts of 1935 provides that pending litigation shall not be affected.

§ 191(2). Use of true name of child unnecessary; identification.—It shall not be necessary in the petition for adoption or other papers, except the report on investigation of the conditions and antecedents of the child, to give the true or legal name of the child to be adopted, but it shall be competent to name or identify the child to be adopted by such name as may be presented in the petition of adoption, and the adoption proceedings shall not be invalidated by reason thereof. In every case, however, the true name of the child proposed to be adopted shall be set forth in, and made known to the court through, the report upon the conditions and antecedents of the child to be made by the superintendent or superintendents of public welfare or duly authorized representative of a child-placing agency as hereinafter provided. (1935, c. 243.)

§ 191(3). Investigation of conditions and antecedents of child and of suitableness of foster home.—Upon the filing of a petition for the adoption of a minor child the court shall instruct the county superintendent of Public Welfare, or a duly authorized representative of a child-placing agency, licensed by the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare, to investigate the conditions and antecedents of the child for the purpose of ascertaining whether he is a proper subject for adoption, and to make appropriate inquiry to determine whether the proposed foster home is a suitable one for the child; or the court may instruct the superintendent of public welfare of one county to make an investigation of the conditions and antecedents of the child and the superintendent of public welfare of another county or counties to make any other part of the necessary investigation. The county superintendent or superintendents of public welfare or the duly authorized representative of such agency described hereinbefore shall make a written report of his or their findings, on a standard form supplied by the state board of charities and public welfare, for examination by the court of adoption. (1935, c. 243.)

§ 191(4). Parents or guardian necessary parties; release of rights to child.—The parents or surviving parent or guardian, or the person or persons having charge of such child, or with whom it may reside, must be a party or parties of record to this proceeding: Provided, that when the parent, parents, or guardian of the person of the child has signed a release of all rights to the child, the person, agency, or institution to which said rights were released shall be made a party to this proceeding and it shall not be necessary to make the parent, parents or guardian parties. (1935, c. 243.)

Editor's Note.—The case treated under this section was decided under the section that appeared in Michie's Code of 1931 as § 183, the provisions of which were substantially similar to this section.

Noncompliance Deprives Clerk of Jurisdiction.—In Truelove v. Parker, 191 N. C. 430, 123 S. E. 295, it it said: "Upon the record in this case it is held that neither the father nor the mother of the child was a party to the proceeding within the contemplation of the statute, and that the clerk had no jurisdiction of their person, (consequently) he had no jurisdiction of the subject-matter." See note of this case in 5 N. C. Law Rev. 67.

§ 191(5). Tentative approval and order of adoption; completion of adoption within two years.—Upon the examination of the written report of the Superintendent of Public Welfare or of a duly authorized representative of said agency described hereinbefore and with the consent of the parent or parents if living or of the guardian, if any, or of the person with whom such child resides, or who may have charge of such child, except in cases hereinafter provided for, the Court, if it be satisfied that the petitioner is a proper and suitable person and that the child is a proper subject for adoption and that the adoption is for the best interests of the child, may tentatively approve the adoption and issue an order giving the care and cutody of the child to the petitioner. Within two years thereafter, but not earlier than one year from date of such order, the Court, at its discretion, may complete the adoption by an order granting letters of adoption and effect of adoption shall be retroactive to date of application. During this interval the child shall remain the ward of the Court and shall be subject to such supervision as the Court may direct. Upon making the interlocutory order the written report of the investigation made by the Superintendent or Superintendents of Public Welfare or representative of the child-placing agency described hereinbefore shall be forwarded by the Clerk of the Superior Court to the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare. Upon receipt of the same the said Board shall cause said report to be recorded in a book to be kept for that purpose, which book shall be properly indexed showing the name of the child, the names of its natural parents, the names of its adoptive parents, and the new legal name, if any, given to said child; and said Board shall also cause the original report to be permanently indexed and filed. Neither the original report nor the record thereof in the aforesaid book shall be made public, nor shall any information concerning the contents of either of them be disclosed by any person except upon order of a Judge of the Superior Court, made upon application of any party requiring such information, and when in the opinion of the said Judge it may be to the interests of the said child or to the public to have such information disclosed. It shall be a misdemeanor for any person having charge of the said report or record to allow said report or records to be examined by anyone or to give any information concerning the contents of either except upon order of a Judge of the Superior Court as herein provided. (1935, c. 243.)

Editor's Note.—The case treated under this section was decided under the section that appeared in Michie's Code of 1931 as § 184, the provisions of which were substantially similar to this section.

Collateral Attack.—The failure to observe the statutory requirements as to notice and consent is not a mere irregularity which is immune from collateral attack, for they are jurisdictional and without them as a general rule, a valid order of adoption cannot be made. Truelove v. Parker, 191 N. C. 430, 437, 132 S. E. 295. See note on this case in 5 N. C. Law Rev. 67 et seq.

§ 191(6). Relation of parent and child established; right of inheritance.—Such order granting letters of adoption, when made upon a standard form supplied by the state board of charities and public welfare, shall have the effect forthwith to establish the relation of parent and child between the petitioner and the child during the minority or for the life of such child, according to the prayer of the petition, with all the duties, powers and rights belonging to the relationship of parent and child, and in case the adoption be for the life of the child, and the petitioner die intestate, such order shall have the further effect to enable such child to inherit the real estate and entitle it to the personal estate of the petitioner in the same manner and to the same extent such child would have been entitle to if such child had been the actual child of the person adopting it. The child shall not inherit and be entitled to the personal estate if the petitioner especially sets forth in his petition such to be his desire and intention. Any proceedings conducted under this section to which the adopting parent shall be a party shall be binding upon such party, regardless of lack of jurisdiction as to the other persons or any irregularities in the proceedings. (1935, c. 243.)

Editor's Note.—The cases treated under this section were decided under the section that appeared in Michie's Code of 1931 as § 185 and the section that appeared in the 1933 Supplement to the 1931 Code as § 191(5), the provisions of which were substantially similar to this section.

Strictly Construed.—As statutes, such as this section, are in derogation of the common law, they must not be construed to enlarge or confer any rights not clearly given. Edwards v. Yearby, 168 N. C. 663, 665, 85 S. E. 19; Grimes v. Grimes, 207 N. C. 778, 780, 178 S. E. 573.

Time Relationship Begins.—Whether the section created the parental relation from the date of the order, or whether it is retroactive and the relation reverts back to the birth of the child was queried in King v. Davis, 91 N. C. 142.

Right of Inheritance.—This section has reference to cases of the intestacy of persons standing in loco parentis, and does not apply where the property is disposed of by will. King v. Davis, 91 N. C. 142; Sorrell v. Sorrell, 193 N. C. 439, 137 S. E. 306.

A child adopted under this section does come within the terms of a devise to "heirs lawfully begotten." Love v. Love, 179 N. C. 115, 101 S. E. 562.

A deed to the grantor's daughter conveyed the lands to be held, with remainder over as designated thereinafter, with habendum to her for her natural life then over to any child or children she may leave surviving her in fee, qualified by the expression, "should any child or children born unto her predecease her the other such children should take in fee," with an ultimate and further contingent limitation over. It was held that a child adopted by the grantee after the death of the grantor, no other child having been born, is excluded as against the ultimate takers of the blood of the grantor provided by the deed. Tankersley v. Davis, 195 N. C. 542, 142 S. E. 765.

Same—Adopting Parent Does Not Inherit.—This section confers the right of inheritance on the adopted child only, and not on the adopted father. So where the adopted child dies seized of realty, without brothers or sisters, the law confers it upon the natural rather than the adopted father. Edwards v. Yearby, 168 N. C. 663, 85 S. E. 19. This case contains an excellent review of similar statutes in other states. Ed. Note.

It gives no power to the adopted child to inherit through the adoptive parent, or from any source other than the "estate of the petitioner." It limits the right to inherit to the property of the adoptive parent, and it cannot be construed to give the adopted child the right to inherit from his father's ancestors or other kindred, or to be a representative of them. Grimes v. Grimes, 207 N. C. 778, 780, 178 S. E. 573.

The effect of the adoption is simply to create a personal status between the adoptive parent and the child adopted, so that the adopted child may inherit from the adoptive parent such estate of the adoptive parent as such parent, during his lifetime, might voluntarily have given to such child. Grimes v. Grimes, 207 N. C. 778, 780, 178 S. E. 573.

§ 191(7). Change of name; report to bureau of vital statistics; entry on birth certificate. — For proper cause shown the court may decree that the name of he child shall be changed to such name as may be prayed in the petition: Provided, that whenever the name of any child is so changed, the court shall immediately report such change to the bureau of vital statistics of the state board of health, authorizing said bureau to enter change of name on the original birth certificate of the child and to issue upon request a certificate of birth bearing the new name of a child as shown in the decree of adoption, the name of the foster parents of said child, age, sex, date of birth, but no reference in any certified copy of the birth certificate shall be made to the adoption of the said child. However, original registration of birth shall remain a part of the record of the said bureau of vital statistics. The provisions of this section shall apply to all minors heretofore adopted in accordance with the laws existing at the time of such adoptions in as full a manner as to adoptions hereunder. (1935, c. 243.)

§ 191(8). Surety bond required of petitioner where child with estate is without guardian. — When the court grants the petitioner the custody of the child, if the child is an orphan and without guardian and possesses any estate, the court shall require from the petitioner such bond as is required by law to be given by guardians. (1935, c. 243.)

§ 191(9). Recordation of adoption proceedings; revocation of adoption order; distribution of copies.—All papers, except the report upon the conditions and antecedents of the child and consent of natural parents or guardian to the adoption, shall be recorded in the book or books in which other special proceedings are recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court in the county in which the adoption is made, and may be revoked at any time by the court for good cause shown. On issuing such order granting letters of adoption, the clerk of the superior court of the county in which order is issued shall send copy of such order to the state board of charities and public welfare and likewise a copy of revocation of order to said board to be held as a permanent record. (1935, c. 243.)

Editor's Note.—Section 190 of Michie's Code of 1931 provided for the restoration of the parent's right to custody of a child after such right had been forfeited by abandonment. Under that section it was held in Newsome v. Bunch, 142 N. C. 19, 54 S. E. 785, that where the court, in habeas corpus proceedings for the custody of a child, found that there had been no abandonment, it was error to order a restoration of the child without considering the interest or welfare of the child as prescribed by that section. This case was remanded by the supreme court with a direction to the court below to make a finding as to whether the child's interests would be prejudiced, the lower court found that, under the circumstances, no prejudice would result from the restoration, and the supreme court affirmed this decision in 144 N. C. 15.

§ 191(10). Abandonment or unfitness of parents deemed forfeiture of rights. — In all cases where the parent or parents of any child have wilfully abandoned the care, custody, nurture and maintenance of the child to kindred, relatives or other persons, and in all cases where a court of competent jurisdiction has declared the parent or parents or guardians unfit to have the care and custody of such child, such parent or parents or guardian shall be deemed to have forfeited all rights and privileges with respect to the care, custody and services of such child, and upon finding of such fact by the court, shall not be necessary parties to any action or proceeding under this chapter. (1935, c. 243.)

Editor's Note.—The cases treated under this section were decided under the section that appeared in Michie's Code of 1931, as § 189, the provisions of which were substantially similar to this section.

Abandonment Judicially Determined. — The existence of abandonment as ground for an adoption without parental consent must be judicially determined. Truelove v. Parker, 191 N. C. 430, 439, 132 S. E. 295.

Abandonment Must Be Willful.—Where there was evidence in behalf of the defendant father tending to show that the plaintiff took possession of his children against his will and prevented him from performing his parental duty—as well as evidence to the contrary—, it was held that when the jury found for the defendant, the case did not fall within the meaning of this section. Howell v. Solmon, 167 N. C. 588, 83 S. E. 609. Wilfully as employed in this section means "purposely and deliberately in violation of law. State v. Whitner, 93 N. C. 590.

In the case of In re Jones, 153 N. C. 312, 69 S. E. 217, this section is cited and the statement is made that there was no abandonment shown of an illegitimate child.

Intention to Forego Parental Duties.—To constitute abandonment by a parent of its child, so as to deprive him of the right to prevent the adoption of the child, there must be some conduct on the part of the parent which evinces a purpose to forego the parental duties. Truelove v. Parker, 191 N. C. 430, 132 S. E. 295.

Construed with Other Sections.—This section is not in pari materia with section 137, as to inheritance of the father and mother, dying without leaving husband, wife or child; nor is it in pari materia with section 160, as to death by wrongful act. Avery v. Brantley, 191 N. C. 396, 131 S. E. 721.

Death by Wrongful Act.—This section does not deprive the parent of the right to recover for the wrongful death of the child. Avery v. Brantley, 191 N. C. 396, 399, 131 S. E. 721.

Stated in In re Osborne, 205 N. C. 716, 721, 172 S. E. 491.

§ 191(11). Past adoption proceedings validated.—All proceedings for the adoption of minors in courts of this State are hereby validated and confirmed, and the orders and judgments therein are declared to be binding upon all parties to said proceedings and their privies and all other persons, until the orders or judgments shall be vacated as provided by law. (1935, c. 243.)

§ 191(12). Procuring custody of child by forfeiting parents declared crime.—Any parent whose rights and privileges have been forfeited as provided by the second preceding section who shall procure the possession and custody of such child, with respect to whom his rights and privileges are forefeited, otherwise than by law provided, shall be guilty of a crime, and shall be punished as for abduction. (1935, c. 243.)

CHAPTER 2a.

AERONAUTICS

Art. 1. Municipal Airports

§ 191(a). Definition.—Airport or landing field for the purposes of this and the section following is defined as any plot of land or water formally set aside, and designated as a place where aircraft may land or take off. (1929, c. 87, s. 1.)

§ 191(b). Cities and towns authorized to establish.—The governing body of any city or town in this state is hereby authorized to acquire, establish, construct, own, control, lease, equip, improve, maintain, operate, and regulate airports or landing fields for the use of airplanes and other aircraft, either within or without the limits of such cities and towns and may use for such purpose or purposes any property suitable therefor that is now or may at any time hereafter be owned or controlled by such city or town. (1929, c. 87, s. 2.)

§ 191(c). Counties included. — The governing body of any county in this state is hereby authorized to acquire, establish, construct, own, control, lease, equip, improve maintain, operate, and regulate airports or landing fields for the use of airplanes and other aircraft within or without the limits of such counties, and may use for such purpose or purposes any property suitable therefor that is now or may at any time hereafter be owned or controlled by such county. (1929, c. 87, s. 3.)

§ 191(d). Joint airport established by cities and towns and counties.—The governing bodies of any city, town and county in this state are hereby authorized to jointly acquire, establish, construct, own, control, lease, equip, improve, maintain, operate, and regulate airports or landing fields for the use of airplanes and other aircraft within or without the limits of such cities, towns and counties, and may use for such purpose or purposes any property suitable therefor that is now or may at any time hereafter be jointly owned or controlled by such city, town and county. (1929, c. 87, s. 4.)

§ 191(e). Airport declared public purpose; eminent domain.—Any lands acquired, owned, controlled, or occupied by such cities, towns, and/or counties, for the purposes enumerated in sections two, three and four hereof, shall and are hereby declared to be acquired, owned, controlled and occupied for a public purpose, and such cities, towns and/or counties shall have the right to acquire property for such purpose or purposes under the power of eminent domain as and for a public purpose. (1929, c. 87, s. 5.)

§ 191(f). Acquisition of sites; appropriation of moneys.—Private property needed by a city, town and/or county for an airport or landing field may be acquired by gift or devise or shall be acquired by purchase if the city, town and/or county is or are able to agree with the owners on the terms thereof, and otherwise by condemnation, in the manner provided by law under which the city, town and/or county is or are authorized to acquire real property for public purposes, other than street purposes, or if there be no such law, in the manner provided for and subject to the provisions of the condemnation law. The purchase price, or award for property acquired for an airport or landing field may be paid for by appropriation of moneys available therefor, or wholly or partly from the proceeds of the sale of bonds of the city, town and/or county, as the governing body and/or bodies of such city, town and/or county shall determine. (1929, c. 87, s. 6.)

§ 191(g). Airports already established declared public charge; regulations and fees for use of.—The governing body or bodies of a city, town and/or county which has or have established an airport or landing field, and acquired, leased, or set apart real property for such purpose, may construct, improve, equip, maintain, and operate the same. The expenses of such construction, improvement, maintenance, and operation shall be a city, town and/or county charge as the case may be. The governing body or bodies of a city, town and/or county may adopt regulations and establish fees or charges for the use of such airport or landing field. (1929, c. 87, s. 7.)

§ 191(h). Appropriations for, each year to be raised, how.—The governing body or bodies of a city, town and/or county to which this act is applicable, having power to appropriate, individually or jointly, money therein, are hereby authorized to annually appropriate and cause to be raised by taxation in such city, town and/or county or may use from the net proceeds derived from the operation, by such city, town or county, of any public utility a sum sufficient to carry out the provisions of this act in such proportion and upon such pro-rata basis as may be determined upon by a joint board to be appointed by and from the governing body or bodies of the city, town and/or the county or individually as the case may be. Provided, nothing herein shall be construed to permit the governing bodies of any county, city or town to issue bonds under the provisions of this act without a vote of the people. (1929, c. 87, s. 8.)

§ 191(i). Constitutional parts of act upheld.—If any part or parts of this act shall be held to be unconstitutional, such unconstitutionality shall not affect the validity of the remaining parts of this act. The General Assembly expressly declares that it would have passed the remaining parts of this act, if it had known that such part or parts thereof would be declared unconstitutional. (1929, c. 87, s. 9.)

Art. 2. State Regulation

§ 191(j). Definition of terms.—In this act "aircraft" includes balloon, airplane, hydroplane, and every other vehicle used for navigation through the air. A hydroplane while at rest on water and while being operated on or immediately above water shall be governed by the rules regarding water navigation; while being operated through the air otherwise than immediately above water, it shall be treated as an aircraft. "Aeronaut" and "airman" includes aviator, pilot, balloonist, and every other person having any part in the operation of aircraft while in flight. "Passenger" includes any person riding in an aircraft but having no part in its operation. (1929, c. 190, s. 1.)

§ 191(m). Lawfulness of flight.—Flight in aircraft over the lands and waters of this State is lawful, unless at such a low altitude as to interfere with the then existing use to which the land or water, or the space over the land or water, is put by the owner, or unless so conducted as to be imminently dangerous to persons or property lawfully on the land or water beneath. The landing of an aircraft on the lands or waters of another, without his consent, is unlawful, except in the case of a forced landing. For damages caused by a forced landing, however, the owner or lessee of the aircraft or the aeronaut shall be liable as provided in section five. (1929, c. 190, s. 4.)

See 8 N. C. Law Rev. 281, 282.

§ 191(n). Damage on land.—The owner of every aircraft which is operated over the lands or waters of this State is absolutely liable for injuries to persons or property on the land or water beneath, caused by the ascent, descent, or flight of the aircraft, or the dropping or falling of any object therefrom, whether such owner was negligent or not, unless the injury is caused in whole or in part by the negligence of the person injured, or of the owner or bailee of the property injured. If the aircraft is leased at the time of the injury to person or property, both owner and lessee shall be liable, and they may be sued jointly, or either or both of them may be sued separately. An aeronaut who is not the owner or lessee shall be liable only for the consequences of his own negligence. The injured person, or owner or bailee of the injured property, shall have a lien on the aircraft causing the injury to the extent of the damage caused by the aircraft or objects falling from it. (1929, c. 190, s. 5.)

§ 191(o). Collision of aircraft.—The liability of the owner of an aircraft, to the owner of another aircraft, or to aeronauts or passengers on either aircraft, for damage caused by collision on land or in the air shall be determined by the rules of law applicable to torts on land. (1929, c. 190, s. 6.)

§ 191(p). Jurisdiction over crimes and torts.—All crimes, torts, and other wrongs committed by or against an aeronaut or passenger while in flight over this State shall be governed by the laws of this State; and the question whether damage occasioned by or to an aircraft while in flight over this State constitutes a tort, crime or other wrong by or against the owner of such aircraft shall be determined by the laws of this State. (1929, c. 190, s. 7.)

§ 191(q). Jurisdiction over contracts.—All contractual and other legal relations entered into by aeronauts or passengers while in flight over this State shall have the same effect as if entered into on the land or water beneath. (1929, c. 190, s. 8.)

§ 191(r). Dangerous flying a misdemeanor.—Any aeronaut or passenger who, while in flight over a thickly inhabited area or over a public gathering within this State, shall engage in trick or acrobatic flying, or in any acrobatic feat, or shall except while in landing or taking off, fly at such a low level as to endanger the persons on the surface beneath, or drop any object except loose water or loose sand ballast, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars ($500.00) or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both. (1929, c. 190, s. 9.)

§ 191(s). Hunting from aircraft a misdemeanor.—Any aeronaut or passenger who, while in flight within this State, shall intentionally kill or attempt to kill any birds or animals shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine of not more than fifty dollars ($50.00) or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, or both. (1929, c. 190, s. 10.)

§ 191(t). Qualifications of operator; federal license.—The public safety requiring, and the advantages of uniform regulation making it desirable, in the interest of aeronautical progress, that a person engaging within this State in operating aircraft, in any form of aerial navigation for which a license to operate aircraft issued by the United States Government would then be required if such aerial navigation were interstate, should have the qualifications necessary for obtaining and holding such a license, it shall be unlawful for any person to engage in operating aircraft within the State, in any such form or aerial navigation, unless he have such Federal license. (1929, c. 190, s. 11.)

§ 191(u). Possession and exhibition of license certificate.—The certificate of the license, herein required, shall be kept in the personal possession of the licensee when he is operating aircraft within this State and must be presented for inspection upon the demand of any passenger, any peace officer of this State, or any official, manager or person in charge of any airport or landing field in this State upon which he shall land. (1929, c. 190, s. 12.)

§ 191(v). Aircraft; construction, design and airworthiness; federal registration.—The public safety requiring, and the advantages of uniform regulation making it desirable, in the interest of aeronautical progress, that aircraft to be operated within this State should conform, with respect to design, construction and airworthiness, to standards then prescribed by the United States Government with respect to aerial navigation of aircraft subject to its jurisdiction, it shall be unlawful for any person to operate an aircraft within this State unless it is registered pursuant to the lawful rules and regulations of the United States Government then in force, if the circumstances of such aerial navigation are of a character that such registration would be required in the case of interstate aerial navigation. (1929, c. 190, s. 13.)

§ 191(w). Penalties.—A person who violates any provision of sections eleven, twelve or thirteen of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars ($100.00), or by imprisonment for not more than ninety days, or both; provided, however, that acts or omissions made unlawful by sections eleven, twelve, or thirteen of this act shall not be deemed to include any act or omission which violates the laws or lawful regulations of the United States. (1929, c. 190, s. 14.)

§ 191(x). Jurisdiction of State over crimes and torts retained.—Provided that this article shall not be construed as a waiver of jurisdiction of the courts of the State of North Carolina over any crime or tort committed within the State of North Carolina, and provided, further, that the General Assembly of North Carolina may at any time amend, regulate or control any of the powers which may be assumed by the United States Department of Commerce under this act. (1929, c. 190, s. 15.)

Art. 3. Stealing, Tampering with, or Operating While Intoxicated

§ 191(y). Stealing of aircraft made crime of larceny.—Any person who, under circumstances not constituting larceny shall, without the consent of the owner, take, use or operate or cause to be taken, used or operated, an airplane or other aircraft or its equipment, for his own profit, purpose or pleasure, steals the same, is guilty of larceny and is punishable accordingly. (1929, c. 90, s. 1.)

§ 191(z). Tampering with aircraft made crime.—Any person who shall without the consent of the owner, go upon or enter, tamper with or in any way damage or injure any airplane or other aircraft shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punishable by fine of not more than one hundred ($100.00) dollars or imprisonment of not more than sixty days, or both, in the discretion of the court and it shall not be necessary to conviction hereunder to show wilful or malicious intent. (1929, c. 90, s. 2.)

§ 191(aa). Operation of aircraft while intoxicated made crime.—Any person who operates an airplane or other aircraft, whether on the ground or in the air while in an intoxicated condition, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by fine not to exceed one hundred dollars or by imprisonment not to exceed sixty days, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1929, c. 90, s. 3.)

§ 191(bb). Serious bodily injury caused by operation of aircraft while intoxicated made felony.—Any person who, operating an airplane or other aircraft whether on the ground or in the air while in an intoxicated condition, does serious bodily injury to another shall be guilty of a felony. (1929, c. 90, s. 4.)

ALIENS

§ 192. Rights as to real property.—It is lawful for aliens to take both by purchase and descent, or other operation of law, any lands tenements or hereditaments, and to hold and convey the same as fully as citizens of this state can or may do, any law or usage to the contrary notwithstanding. (Rev., s. 182; Code, s. 7; 1870-1, c. 255.)

§ 193. Contracts validated.—All contracts to purchase or sell real estate by or with aliens, heretofore made, shall be deemed and taken as valid to all intents and purposes. (Rev., s. 183; Code, s. 8; 1870-1, c. 255, s. 2.)

§ 193(b). "Alien" construed.—The word "alien" as used in the sections shall be construed to mean any person more than sixteen years of age who is not a citizen of the United States. (Acts, 1927, c. 185, s. 2.)

§ 193(c). Regulation. — Every alien residing within the State of North Carolina shall, within ninety days after the ratification of this act, register with the clerk of the Superior Court of the county in which such alien resides; and every alien entering the State of North Carolina after this act goes into effect shall, if remaining within the State for a longer period than ninety days, register with the clerk of the Superior Court of the county into which he or she has come to reside within such ninety days.

At the time of registering every alien shall give the following information:

1. Name.
2. Nationality.
3. Date of birth.
4. Previous nationality (if any).
5. Profession or occupation.
6. Address of residence.
7. Names and addresses of five persons who have known the registrant for the longest period.
8. Address of last residence outside of North Carolina.
9. Government or military service.
10. Names and dates of birth of all children under sixteen years of age.
11. Must present a passport with proper vise admitting such alien into the United States under the United States statute, treaty, or regulation in force at the date of entrance into the United States.

12. Must furnish two passport-size photographs, one of which shall be retained by the clerk for his record, and the other attached to the registration certificate of such alien and stamped with the official seal of the clerk of the Superior Court.

The above questions shall be answered under oath. (Acts, 1927, c. 185, s. 3.)

§ 193(e). Secretary of state to have books printed and distribute to clerks.—The Secretary State shall have printed and distribute to the several clerks of the Superior Court a sufficient number of small booklets suitable for the above registration, and which shall be numbered ad seriatim and known as the Alien Registration Certificates.

Upon registration the clerk of the Superior Court shall present to each alien a certificate containing the information required under section 193(c). (Acts, 1927, c. 185, s. 5.)

§ 193(f). Failure to register.—Failure to register, or altering a registration certificate, shall be a misdemeanor punishable by fine or imprisonment or both, in the discretion of the court. (Acts, 1927, c. 185, s. 6.)

§ 193(g). Fee.—A registration fee of one dollar shall be paid. (Acts, 1927, c. 185, s. 7.)

§ 193(h). Report of unlawful entry.—Whenever any court discovers that an alien has not made a lawful entrance into the United States, the matter shall be reported to the Secretary of State North Carolina, who is hereby directed to report same to the proper authorities of the United States government. (Acts, 1927, c. 185, s. 8.)

ATTORNEYS AT LAW

Art. 1. Licenses and Qualifications of Attorney; Unauthorized Practice of Law

§ 194. Examination; scope; issuance of license.—No person shall practice law without first obtaining license so to do from the superior court. All examinations shall be in writing, and based upon such course of study, and conducted under such rules, as the court may prescribe. All applicants who satisfy the court of their competent knowledge of the law and upright character shall receive license to practice in all the courts of the state: Provided, however, any person duly licensed to practice law in another state may be licensed to practice law in this state without examination, if attorneys who are licensed in this state may be licensed without examination in the state from which he comes, upon said applicant furnishing to the superior court a certificate from a member of the court of last resort of such state that he is duly licensed to practice law therein, and that he has been actively engaged in the practice of law for five years or more, and is of good moral character and a proper person to be licensed to practice law, together with a certificate from two practicing attorneys of such state, practicing in said court of last resort, as to the applicant's good moral character, whose signature shall be attested by the clerk of said court, and upon said application satisfying the court that he is bona fide resident and citizen of North Carolina, or intends immediately to become such: Provided further, that said applicant shall be required to deposit with the clerk of the Supreme court the same amount required of applicants who stand the examination. (Rev., s. 207; Code, s. 17; R. C., c. 9, s. 1; 1818, c. 963, s. 3; 1907, c. 70; Sess. 1920, c. 44.)

Editor's Note.—Admission by examination is now regulated by § 215(10) which makes no reference to attorneys for the state but apparently gives law examiners authority to provide for their admission.

Constitutionality. — This section, and the following sections of this article, are not unconstitutional as an unwarranted exercise of judicial power prohibited by sec. 8 of the Declaration of Rights, nor as an unlawful attempt to deprive the court of its inherent power to direct and control the conduct of the attorneys who are its officers. In re Applicants for License, 143 N. C. 1, 55 S. E. 635.

The establishment by the legislature of the qualifications for admission to the bar is a valid exercise of the police power, Id.

Upright Character. — The Revisal of 1905 made no provision concerning the upright character of the applicant, this requirement was added by the act of 1907—in view of the holding of In re Applicants for License, 143 N. C. 1, 55 S. E. 635, that an investigation into the moral character of the applicant was no longer permitted or required. This case contained two strong dissenting opinions by Brown, J. and Clark, C. J. See also Baggett v. Grady, 154 N. C. 342, 70 S. E. 618.

In the case of In re Matter of Ebbs, 150 N. C. 44, 56, 63 S. E. 190, the court says: "We had occasion in In re Applicants for License, 143 N. C. 1, 55 S. E. 635; to consider the question of our power to refuse to license applicants who were shown to be of bad moral character, and the extent to which it was subject to legislative control. The subject was carefully considered and the opinion of a majority of the court expressed in the able and exhaustive opinion of Mr. Justice Hoke. The Legislature promptly amended the statute, restoring to the court the power to pass upon the moral character of applicants. Laws 1907, ch. 70." In the Matter of Ebbs, 150 N. C. 44, 56, 63 S. E. 190.

Same — What Constitutes. — The upright character named by this section and the Rules of Court, is such as would qualify the applicant to practice a profession as an officer of the court, that has a widespread influence upon the people of the community, and such as the applicant enjoys among those with whom he has lived, and not alone a want of bad character, or one that is a bit indifferent. In re Applicants for License, 191 N. C. 235, 131 S. E. 661.

Where an applicant to obtain license to practice law from the Supreme Court admits that at a prior time his character was such as to have then disqualified him, he must make it appear that he has since lived such a life as to restore the character upon which a license should now be issued, which has not been done in the instant case. In re Applicants for License, 191 N. C. 235, 131 S. E. 661.

Where the application for license to practice law is resisted under the statute and Rule of the Supreme Court, the applicant must show that his character is of that quality of "uprightness" that entitles him to his license. In re Applicants for License, 191 N. C. 235, 131 S. E. 661.

Non Resident Attorneys.—See note to secs. 197 and 202.

§ 196. Conditions precedent to examination.—Before being allowed to stand an examination each applicant must comply with the following conditions:

1. He must be at the time twenty-one years of age, or will arrive at that age before the time for the next examination.

2. He must file with the clerk of the court a certificate of good moral character signed by two attorneys who practice in that court. An applicant must be a bona fide resident of North Carolina, or a non-resident student in an approved law school in North Carolina. (Rev., s. 208; Code, s. 18; R. C., c. 9, s. 2; 1777, c. 115, s. 8; 1929, c. 168, s. 1; 1935, c. 33, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The second sentence of subsection 2 of this section formerly read: "An applicant from another state may have such certificate signed by any state officer of the state from which he comes." The act of 1929 struck out the words quoted and inserted in lieu thereof the words now appearing in such second sentence.

Subdivision 3 of this section relating to fees was repealed by c. 33 of the Acts of 1935 and such fees are now provided for in § 215(10)a.

Moral Character.—See notes to sec. 194.

§ 197. Oaths taken in open court.—Attorneys before they shall be admitted to practice law shall in open court before a justice of the supreme or judge of the superior court, take the oath prescribed for attorneys, and also the oaths of allegiance to the state, and to support the constitution of the United States, prescribed for all public officers, and the same shall be entered on the records of the court; and, upon such qualification had, and oath taken, may act as attorneys during their good behavior. (Rev., s. 209; Code, s. 19; R. C., c. 9, s. 3; 1777, c. 115, s. 8.)

Non-Resident Attorneys. — As this section requires the oath of allegiance to the state, it debars a citizen of another state from obtaining a license required by sec. 194, and a non-resident attorney does not acquire the right to practice habitually in this state by having been previously allowed, through the curtesy of the courts, to appear in special cases. Manning v. Roanoke, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 824, 828, 28 S. E. 963.

This state extends no preference to nonresident lawyers over those living here. And such an attorney in the state to practice in the Federal Court is not privileged from service of summons. Greenleaf v. Bank, 133 N. C. 292, 45 S. E. 638.

Aliens. — See notes to sec. 202.

§ 198. Persons disqualified.—No clerk of the superior or supreme court, nor deputy or assistant clerk of said courts, nor register of deeds, nor sheriff nor any justice of the peace, nor county commissioner shall practice law. Persons violating this provision shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not less than two hundred dollars. This section shall not apply to Confederate soldiers. (Rev., ss. 210, 3641; Code ss. 27, 28, 110; 1870-1, c. 90; 1883, c. 406; 1871-2, c. 120; 1880, c. 43; C. C. P., s. 424; 1919, c. 205; 1933, c. 15.)

Editor's Note.—Registers of deeds were, by Public Laws 1933, c. 15, added to the list of these excluded from practice. For act permitting attorneys to act as justices of the peace in Burke County, see Public Laws 1933, c. 135.

Chapter 214 of the Acts of 1935 provides that it shall not be unlawful for any attorney residing in Madison County to act as a justice in said county, and when duly elected or appointed such appointment shall not disqualify from the practice of law, provided he shall not appear as counsel in any litigation that was or may be before him as justice.

What Constitutes Practicing Law. — To constitute a practicing of law, within the prohibition of this section, it is necessary that the person charged with its violation shall have customarily or habitually held himself out to the public as a lawyer, or that he demanded compensation for his services as such. State v. Bryan, 98 N. C. 644, 4 S. E. 522.

The fact that a person on one occasion acted as an attorney for a party to an action, is some evidence for the jury to consider, but is not conclusive of the question. Id.

§ 199. Officers of inferior courts disqualified in certain cases.—No judge or prosecuting attorney of any recorder's, municipal, or county court shall appear in any other court on behalf of the defendant in a criminal action, where such criminal action has been tried in the court of such officer. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars. This section shall not apply to Iredell County. (1917, c. 213.)

§ 199(a). Corporations and persons other than members of State Bar prohibited from practicing law; exceptions. — It shall be unlawful for any corporation or any person or association of persons, except members of the Bar of the State of North Carolina admitted and licensed to practice as attorneys at law, to appear as attorney or counsellor-at-law in any action or proceeding in any court in this State or before any judicial body or the North Carolina Industrial Commission; to maintain, conduct, or defend the same, except in his own behalf as a party thereto; or, by word, sign, letter, or advertisement, to hold out himself, or themselves, as competent or qualified to give legal advice or counsel, or to prepare legal documents, or as being engaged in advising or counselling in law or acting as attorney or counsellor-at-law, or in furnishing the services of a lawyer or lawyers; and it shall be unlawful for any person or association of persons except members of the Bar, for a fee or any consideration, to give legal advice or counsel, perform for or furnish to another legal services, or, for or without a fee or any consideration, to prepare directly or through another for another person, firm or corporation, any will or testamentary disposition, or instrument of trust serving purposes similar to those of a will, except life insurance trusts, or, for a fee or any consideration, to organize corporations or prepare for another person, firm or corporation, any other legal document. Provided, that nothing herein shall prohibit any person from conferring with a person, firm or corporation with respect to the creation of a fiduciary relationship, or from coöperating with a licensed attorney of another in preparing any such legal document, if such attorney maintains his own place of business and is not an officer of a corporation represented by such person; or from drawing a will for another in an emergency wherein the imminence of death leaves insufficient time to have the same drawn and its execution supervised by a licensed attorney at law. (1931, c. 157, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The act from which this section was codified became effective April 1, 1931, and provided that it should not apply to or affect "litigation now pending in any court." As to officers disqualified to practice law, see §§ 198, 199.

ing entitled to do any of the foregoing acts, by or through any person orally or by advertisement, letter or circular: Provided, that the foregoing shall not prevent a corporation from employing an attorney in regard to its own affairs or in any litigation to which it may be a party. Provided, further, that the above provisions of this act shall not be construed to prohibit a person or corporation acting in a fiduciary capacity from transacting the necessary clerical business incidental to the routine or usual administration of estates, trusts, guardianships, or other similar fiduciary capacities, such as offering wills for probate in common form, securing authority to expend principal as guardian or trustee, filing accounts, preparing and filing tax returns of every nature, and other such administrative acts, where no special compensation is charged for such service and no compensation whatever is charged or received other than the usual commissions allowed by the court for administering the trust, or provided for by the instrument creating the trust or other fiduciary relationship. And provided, further, that nothing herein shall prohibit any insurance company from causing to be defended, or prosecuted, or from offering to cause to be defended, through lawyers of its own selection, the insured in policies issued or to be issued by it, in accordance with the terms of such policies; and shall not prohibit one such licensed attorney at law from acting for several common carriers and/or other corporations and/or associations or any of its subsidiaries pursuant to arrangement between said corporations and/or associations. (1931, c. 157, s. 2.)

§ 199(c). Exacting fee for conducting foreclosures prohibited to all except licensed attorneys.—It shall be unlawful to exact, charge, or receive any attorney's fee for the foreclosure of any mortgage under power of sale, unless the foreclosure is conducted by a licensed attorney at law of North Carolina, and unless the full amount charged as attorney's fee is actually paid to and received and retained by such attorney, without being directly or indirectly shared with or rebated to any one else, and it shall be unlawful for any such attorney to make any showing that he has received such a fee unless he has received the same, or to share with or rebate to any other person, firm, or corporation such fee or any part thereof received by him; but such attorney may divide such fee with another licensed attorney at law maintaining his own place of business and not an officer or employee of the foreclosing party, if such attorney has assisted in performing the services for which the fee is paid, or resides in a place other than that where the foreclosure proceedings are conducted, and has forwarded the case to the attorney conducting such foreclosure. (1931, c. 157, s. 3.)

§ 199(d). Solicitors, upon application, to bring injunction or criminal proceedings. — The solicitor of any of the superior courts shall, upon the application of any member of the Bar, or of any bar association, of the State of North Carolina, bring such action in the name of the State as may be proper to enjoin any such person, corporation, or association of persons who it is alleged are violating the provisions of this act, and it shall be the duty of the solicitors of this State to indict any person, corporation, or association of persons upon the receipt of information of the violation of the provisions of this act. (1931, c. 157, s. 4.)

§ 199(f). Unlawful for any one except attorney to appear for creditor in insolvency and certain other proceedings.—It shall be unlawful for any corporation, or any firm or other association of persons, or for any individual other than an attorney duly licensed to practice law, to appear for another in any bankruptcy or insolvency proceeding, or in any action or proceeding for or growing out of the appointment of a receiver, or in any matter involving an assignment for the benefit of creditors, or to present or vote any claim of another, whether under an assignment or transfer of such claim or in any other manner, in any of the actions, proceedings or matters hereinabove set out. (1931, c. 208, s. 2.)

§ 199(g). Violation of preceding section a misdemeanor.—Any individual, corporation, or firm or other association or person violating any provision of the preceding section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1931, c. 208, s. 3.)

As to unlawful solicitation of claims of creditors in insolvency, etc., proceedings, see § 1653(a).

Art. 2. Relation to Client

§ 200. Authority filed or produced if requested.—Every attorney who claims to enter an appearance for any person shall, upon being required so to do, produce and file in the clerks' office of the court in which he claims to enter an appearance, a power or authority to that effect signed by the person or some one of them for whom he is about to enter an appearance, or by some person duly authorized in that behalf, otherwise he shall not be allowed so to do: Provided, that when any attorney claims to enter an appearance by virtue of a letter to him directed (whether such letter purport a general or particular employment), and it is necessary for him to retain the letter in his own possession, he shall, on the production of said letter setting forth such employment, be allowed to enter his appearance, and the clerk shall make a note to that effect upon the docket. (Rev., s. 213; Code, s. 29; R. C., c. 31, s. 57 [16].)

Cross References. — For a complete treatment of the general subject attorney and client, including the office of attorney, retainer and authority, duties and liabilities and compensation and lien, discussed in detail, see 2 N. C. Enc. Dig. 109 et seq.; 13 N. C. Eve. Dig. 206 et seq. As to general and specific appearances, see sec. 401.

Unaffected by Subsequent Legislation. — The rule of practice, prescribed by this section, not being inconsistent with the present system is still in force. Hollingsworth v. Harman, 83 N. C. 153, 154.

Sufficiency of Writing. — The power of attorney which a lawyer may be required to file, pursuant to this section, is some writing addressed to him by the client or an agent for the client. Therefore, letters written by the client to third persons expressing qualification because of the employment of a particular attorney will not suffice to supply the want of power. Day v. Adams, 63 N. C. 254.

A power of attorney, signed by the purchaser of a note, in the name of the payee, is sufficient authority under this section for an attorney at law to appear in a cause in court, although the agent has no written authority to make the power. Johnson v. Sikes, 49 N. C. 70.

A power of attorney, given by a married woman, under this section, to dismiss an action need not be registered. Hollingsworth v. Harman, 83 N. C. 153, 154.

Time of Demand for Authority. — In Reece v. Reece, 66 N. C. 377 it is held that the defendant has the right, because of this section, to demand the authority at the return term of a summons.

If the demand for the power of attorney be made at the return term, it is the practice and within the discretion of the judge to extend the time; if, however, such demand is not made at the proper time, and before the right to appear has been recognized it comes too late, unless there be peculiar circumstances tending to excuse the party for not making it in apt time. Reece v. Reece, 66 N. C. 377.

After an attorney has entered an appearance and has been recognized by the court as attorney in the cause, no written authority can be required of him at a subsequent time. This evidently means that the opposite party shall not call in question his authority, unless he does so within the time and in accordance with the provision of this section. New Bern v. Jones, 63 N. C. 606, 607; Day v. Adams, 63 N. C. 254, 256.

When Client Present. — If a written authority be required under this section the attorney must produce the same, even if his client is present at the bar of the court. Day v. Adams, 63 N. C. 254, 256.

Authority to Dismiss Action. — Upon special appearance of the attorneys whose property has been attached by the wife, for the purpose of dismissing the action, the court should, on motion made, require them to file their written authority under this section. Walton v. Walton, 178 N. C. 73, 100 S. E. 176.

§ 201. Failure to file complaint, attorney liable for costs.—When a plaintiff is compelled to pay the costs of his suit in consequence of a failure on the part of his attorney to file his complaint in proper time, he may sue such attorney for all the costs by him so paid, and the receipt of the clerk may be given in evidence in support of such claim. (Rev., s. 214; Code, s. 22; R. C., c. 9, s. 5; 1786, c. 253, s. 6.)

Power of Courts to Compel Payment. — This section is not exhaustive, and the courts have power to order counsel to pay costs of cases in which they have been guilty of gross negligence (even of a kind not included in this section) such conduct being a sort of contempt. Ex parte v. Robins, 63 N. C. 309.

§ 202. Fraudulent practice, attorney liable in double damages.—If any attorney commits any fraudulent practice, he shall be liable in an action to the party injured, and on the verdict passing against him, judgment shall be given for the plaintiff to recover double damages. (Rev., s. 215; Code, s. 23; R. C., c. 9, s. 6; 1743, c. 37.)

Aliens Prevented from Practicing. — In Ex parte Thompson, 10 N. C. 355, 362, the court said "No one should be presented to the public under the panoply of such a license (to practice law), against whom an injured suitor would not have the full benefit of such legal remedy as the laws of the state provide, in the event of fraudulent or negligent practice." Hence the court reasoned that an alien could not be admitted to practice, as actions under this section would be removable to the United States courts.

Presumption of Fraud. — The relation of attorney and client is one of a fiduciary character, and gives rise to a presumption of fraud when the former, in dealing with the latter, obtains an advantage. Egerton v. Logan, 81 N. C. 172.

Art. 3. Arguments

§ 203. Court's control of argument.—In all trials in the superior courts there shall be allowed two addresses to the jury for the state or plaintiff and two for the defendant, except in capital felonies, when there shall be no limit as to number. The Judges of the Superior Court are authorized to limit the time of argument of Counsel to the jury on the trial of actions, civil and criminal as follows: To not less than one hour on each side in misdemeanors and appeals from Justices of the peace; to not less than two hours on each side in all other civil actions and in felonies less than capital; in capital felonies, the time argument of Counsel may not be limited otherwise than by consent, except that the court may limit the number of those who may address the jury to three Counsel on each side. Where any greater number of addresses or any extension of time are desired, motion shall be made, and it shall be in the discretion of the judge to allow the same or not, as the interests of justice may require. In jury trials the whole case as well of law as of fact may be argued to the jury. (Rev., s. 216; 1903, c. 433; 1927, ch. 52.)

Cross References. — As to argument and conduct of counsel in criminal cases generally, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. p. 150 et seq.; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 616 et seq., in civil cases see 11 N. C. Enc. Dig. 967 et seq.; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 623 et seq. As to argument of counsel as ground for reversal, see 1 N. C. Enc. Dig. 459.

Discretion of Court. — The trial judge has a large discretion in controlling and directing the argument of counsel, but, under this section, this does not include the right to deprive a litigant of the benefit of his counsel's argument when it is confined within proper bounds and is addressed to the material facts of the case. Puett v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 332; Irvin v. Southern R. Co., 164 N. C. 5, 17, 80 S. E. 78.

Arguing Law and Fact. — It is reversible error for the trial judge not to permit attorneys to argue law to the jury and to apply therein the decisions of the court as provided by this section. Howard v. Western Union Tel. Co., 170 N. C. 495, 87 S. E. 313.

Failure to charge upon a certain point is reversible error especially after counsel has argued the whole case "as well of law as of fact" as is permitted by this section. Nichols v. Fibre Co., 190 N. C. 1, 128 S. E. 471. It is the duty of the trial judge to instruct the jury upon the law, and he may correctly tell them to disregard the law as argued to them by counsel. Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Banking Co., 191 N. C. 500, 132 S. E. 468.

Same—Reading and Commenting on Reported Cases. — As counsel have the right under this section to argue "the whole case as well as law as of fact," they may read to the jury reported cases and comment thereon; but the facts contained in the cases cannot be read as evidence of their existence in another case. Horah v. Knox, 87 N. C. 483.

Reading Dissenting Opinion as Law of Case.—It is not permissible for counsel, in his argument to the jury, to read a dissenting opinion by a Justice of the Supreme Court as the law of the case over the defendant's objection, and where this has been done a new trial will be awarded on the defendant's exception thereto. It is the duty of the trial court, either to direct counsel not to read the dissenting opinion or to plainly and unequivocally instruct that the dissenting opinion had no legal bearing upon the case. Conn v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 201 N. C. 157, 159 S. E. 331.

Limitation of Argument under Former Section. — See State v. Miller, 75 N. C. 73.

Art. 6. North Carolina State Bar

§ 215(1). Creation of North Carolina state bar as an agency of the state.—There is hereby created as an agency of the state of North Carolina, for the purposes and with the powers hereinafter set forth, the North Carolina state bar. (1933, c. 210, s. 1.)

For a review of this section and those immediately following, see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 191.

§ 215(2). Membership and privileges. — The membership of the North Carolina state bar shall consist of two classes, active and honorary.

The active members shall be all persons who shall have heretofore obtained, or who shall hereafter obtain, a license or certificate, which shall at the time be valid and effectual, entitling them to practice law in the state of North Carolina. No person other than a member of the North Carolina state bar shall practice in any court of the state, except foreign attorneys as provided by statute.

The honorary members shall be (a) the chief justice and associate justices of the supreme court of North Carolina; (b) the judges of the superior courts of North Carolina; (c) all former judges of the above-named courts resident in North Carolina, but not engaged in the practice of law; (d) judges of the district courts of the United States and of the circuit court of appeals resident in North Carolina.

Only active members shall be required to pay annual membership fees, and shall have the right to vote. A member shall be entitled to vote at all annual or special meetings of the North Carolina state bar, and at all meetings of and elections held by the bar of each of the judicial districts in which he resides: Provided, that if he desires to vote with the bar of some district in which he practices, other than that in which he resides, he may do so upon filing with the resident judge of the district in which he desires to vote, and with the resident judge of the district in which he resides (and, after the North Carolina state bar shall have been organized as hereinafter set forth, with the secretary-treasurer of the North Carolina state bar), his statement in writing that he desires to vote in such other district: Provided, however, that in no case shall he be entitled to vote in more than one district. (1933, c. 210, s. 2.)

§ 215(3). Government.—The government of the North Carolina state bar shall be vested in a council of the North Carolina state bar, hereinafter referred to as the "council," consisting of one councillor from each judicial district of the state, to be appointed or elected as hereinafter set forth, and the officers of the North Carolina state bar, who shall be ex officio members during their respective terms of office. Notwithstanding any provisions of this act as to the voting powers of members, the council shall be competent to exercise the entire powers of the North Carolina state bar in respect of the interpretation and administration of this article, the acquisition, lease, sale, or mortgage of property, real or personal, the seeking of amendments hereto, and all other matters, except as otherwise directed or overruled, as in section sixteen hereof provided. The councillors elected shall serve as follows: Those elected from the first, fourth, seventh, tenth, thirteenth, sixteenth, and nineteenth districts shall serve for one year from the date of their elections; those elected from the second, fifth, eighth, eleventh, fourteenth, seventeenth, and twentieth districts shall serve for two years from the date of their election; and those elected from the third, sixth, ninth, twelfth, fifteenth, and eighteenth districts shall serve for three years from the date of their election: Provided, that upon the election of successors to the councillors first elected, the term of office and the period for which such councillors are elected shall be three years from the date of election.

All councillors elected from any additional judicial districts shall be elected for a term of three years.

Neither a councillor nor any officer of the council or of the North Carolina state bar shall be deemed as such to be a public officer as that phrase is used in the constitution and laws of the state of North Carolina. (1933, c. 210, s. 3.)

proceedings shall take place as though the meeting had been called by the judge as aforesaid. Any clerk to whom any such notice shall be delivered to be posted shall immediately post the same and shall write upon the said notice the exact date and time when the same is so posted. In case more than one notice shall be posted hereunder by different groups of attorneys, that posted first in point of time shall prevail and be deemed to be the notice provided for under this article. Pending the organization of the council as hereinafter provided, notification of the election of each councillor shall be sent within five days after such election by the secretary of the district bar to the clerk of the supreme court of North Carolina; but after the organization of the council such notices shall be sent to its secretary-treasurer. In case neither the judge nor any two members shall call a meeting as aforesaid, a councillor for the said district, residing therein, shall be named at a meeting of such members of the council as shall have been elected in accordance herewith, to serve until such district bar shall be organized under the provisions of this article (except as to the time for calling meetings), either on the call of the judge of the district court or of two members of the bar, and shall have elected a councillor to serve for the unexpired term of the councillor so named. (1933, c. 210, s. 4.)

§ 215(5). Change of judicial districts.—In the event that a new district shall hereafter be carved out of an existing district, the councillor for the old district shall remain in office and continue to represent the district constituting that portion of the old district in which he resides or with which he has elected to be affiliated; and within thirty days after the division of the old district shall have become effective, or so soon thereafter as practicable, the same procedure shall be followed for the organization of the North Carolina state bar, constituting the remaining and unrepresented portion of the old district, and for the election of a councillor to represent the same, as is prescribed by section 215(4); and if a new district or more than one new district shall be formed by a recombination or reallocation of the counties in more than one existing district, the same procedure shall be followed as is prescribed by section 215(4), in said new district, or in each of them if there be more than one, within thirty days after the election or appointment of the judge or judges thereof; but in that event the office of councillor for each of the old districts the counties in which shall have been so recombined into or reallocated to such new district or districts shall cease, determine, and become vacant so soon as the bar or bars of such new district, or all of such new districts if there shall be more than one, shall have been organized and shall have elected a councillor or councillors therefor, but not earlier: Provided, that if at such time any councillor whose office shall thus become vacant be actually serving upon a committee before which there is pending any trial of a case of professional misconduct or malpractice, he shall, notwithstanding the election of a new councillor, continue to serve as councillor for the purpose of trying such case until judgment shall have been rendered therein. (1933, c. 210, s. 5.)

§ 215(6). Compensation of councillors. — The members of the council and members of committees when actually engaged in the performance of their duties, including committees sitting upon disbarment proceedings, shall receive as compensation, not exceeding ten ($10.00) dollars per day for the time spent in attending meetings, together with an expense allowance as follows: For subsistence—hotel and meals—not exceeding four dollars per day; for transportation, actual mileage, except when using personally owned automobiles, in which case a sum not exceeding five cents per mile of travel. The council shall determine per diem, subsistence and mileage to be paid. Such allowance as may be fixed by the council shall be paid by the secretary-treasurer of the North Carolina state bar upon certified statements presented by each member. (1933, c. 210, s. 6; 1935, c. 34.)

Editor's Note.—The part of this section following the colon was added by the 1935 amendment. The provision requiring that the members be "actually engaged in the performance of their duties" was also added.

§ 215(7). Organization of council; publication of rules, regulations and by-laws.—Upon receiving notification of the election of a councillor for each judicial district, or, if such notification shall not have been received from all said districts, within one hundred and twenty (120) days after this article shall have gone into effect, the clerk of the supreme court of North Carolina shall call a meeting of the councillors of whose election he shall have been notified, to be held in the city of Raleigh not less than twenty days nor more than thirty days after the date of said call; and at the meeting so held the councillors attending the same shall proceed to organize the council by electing officers, taking appropriate steps toward the adoption of rules and regulations, electing councillors for judicial districts which have failed to elect them, and taking such other action as they may deem to be in furtherance of this article. The regular term of all officers shall be one year, but those first elected shall serve until the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five. The council shall be the judge of the election and qualifications of its own members. When the council shall have been fully organized and shall have adopted such rules, regulations and by-laws, not inconsistent with this article, as it shall deem necessary or expedient for the discharge of its duties, the secretary-treasurer shall file with the clerk of the supreme court of North Carolina a certificate, to be called the "certificate of organization," showing the officers and members of the council, with the judicial districts which the members respectively represent, and their post office addresses, and the rules, regulations and by-laws adopted by it; and thereupon the chief justice of the supreme court of North Carolina, or any judge thereof, if the court be then in vacation, shall examine the said certificate and, if of opinion that the requirements of this article have been complied with, shall cause the said certificate to be spread upon the minutes of the court; but if of opinion that the requirements of this article have not been complied with, shall return the said certificate to the secretary-treasurer with a statement showing in what respects the provisions of this article have not been complied with; and the said certificate shall not be again presented to the chief justice of the supreme court or any judge thereof, until any such defects in the organization of the council shall have been corrected, at which time a new certificate of organization shall be presented and the same course taken as hereinabove provided, and so on until a correct certificate showing the proper organization of the council shall have been presented, and the organization of the council accordingly completed. Upon (a) the entry of an order upon the minutes of the court that the requirements of this article have been complied with, or (b) if for any reason the chief justice or judge should not act thereon within thirty days, then, after the lapse of thirty days from the presentation to the chief justice or judge, as the case may be, of any certificate of organization hereinabove required to be presented by the secretary-treasurer, without either the entry of an order or the return of said certificate with a statement showing the respects in which this article has not been complied with, the organization of the council shall be deemed to be complete, and it shall be vested with the powers herein set forth; and the certificate of organization shall thereupon forthwith be spread upon the minutes of the court. A copy of the certificate of organization, as spread upon the minutes of the court, shall be published in the next ensuing volume of the North Carolina Reports. The rules and regulations set forth in the certificate of organization, and all other rules and regulations which may be adopted by the council under this article, may be amended by the council from time to time in any manner not inconsistent with this article. Copies of all such rules and regulations adopted subsequently to the filing of the certificate of organization, and of all amendments so made by the council, shall be certified to the chief justice of the supreme court of North Carolina, entered by it upon its minutes, and published in the next ensuing number of the North Carolina Reports: Provided, that the court may decline to have so entered upon its minutes any of such rules, regulations and amendments which in the opinion of the chief justice are inconsistent with this article. (1933, c. 210, s. 7.)

§ 215(8). Officers and committees of the North Carolina state bar. — The officers of the North Carolina state bar shall be a president, a vice-president, and a secretary-treasurer, who shall be deemed likewise to be the officers, with the same titles, of the council. Their duties shall be prescribed by the council. The president and vice-president shall be elected by the members of the North Carolina state bar at its annual meeting, and the secretary-treasurer shall be elected by the council. All officers shall hold office for one year and until their successors are elected and qualified. The officers need not be members of the council. (1933, c. 210, s. 8.)

§ 215(9). Powers of council. — Subject to the superior authority of the general assembly to legislate thereon by general laws, and except as herein otherwise limited, the council is hereby the discipline, disbarment and restoration of attorneys practicing law in this state: Provided, that from any order suspending an attorney from the practice of law and from any order disbarring an attorney, an appeal shall lie, as of right in the manner hereinafter provided, to the superior court judge regularly holding the courts of the county wherein the attorney involved resides. The council shall have power to administer this article; to formulate and adopt rules of professional ethics and conduct; to publish an official journal concerning matters of interest to the legal profession, and to do all such things necessary in the furtherance of the purposes of this article as are not prohibited by law. (1933, c. 210, s. 9; 1935, c. 74, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The words "and restoration" were inserted by the amendment of 1935.

In State v. Hollingsworth, 206 N. C. 739, 175 S. E. 99, construing former § 205, it was held that the court was without authority to set aside a judgment of disbarment on motion, especially since the enactment of this and subsequent sections.

§ 215(10). Admission to practice. — The provisions of the law now obtaining with reference to admission to the practice of law, as amended, and the rules and regulations prescribed by the supreme court of North Carolina with reference thereto, shall continue in force until superseded, changed or modified by or under the provisions of this article.

For the purpose of examining applicants and providing rules and regulations for admission to the bar including the issuance of license therefor, there is hereby created the board of law examiners, which shall consist of seven members of the bar, elected by the council of the North Carolina state bar, who need not be members of the council. No teacher in any law school, however, shall be eligible. The members of the board of law examiners elected from the bar shall each hold office for a term of three years: Provided, that the members first elected shall hold office, two for one year, two for two years, and two for three years.

The secretary of the North Carolina state bar shall be the secretary of the board, and serve without additional pay. The board of law examiners shall elect a member of said board as chairman thereof, who shall hold office for such period as said board may determine.

The examination shall be held in such manner and at such times as the board of law examiners may determine, but no change in the time or place shall become effective within one year from the date upon which the change is determined.

The board of law examiners subject to the approval of the council, shall by majority vote, from time to time, make, alter and amend such rules and regulations for admission to the bar as in their judgment shall promote the welfare of the state and the profession: Provided, that any change in the educational requirements for admission to the bar shall not become effective within two years from the date of the adoption of such change.

All such rules and regulations, and modifications, alterations and amendments thereof, shall be recorded and promulgated as provided in section 215(7) in relation to the certificate of organization and the rules and regulations of the council. (1933, c. 210, s. 10; c. 331; 1935, c. 61.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935, this section provided for a member of the supreme court to act as a member of the board of law examiners. The amendment of 1935 struck out this provision and changed the number of members of the bar serving on the board from six to seven. The amendment also struck out all references to fees of applicants and to compensation of the board. These subjects are now provided for in sections 215(10) a to c.

§ 215(10)a. Fees of applicants. — All applicants for examination before the board of law examiners for license to practice law in North Carolina, shall pay a filing fee of one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) and shall deposit with the secretary of the board of law examiners the sum of twenty-two and 0/100 ($22.00) dollars, of which sum two dollars shall be a deposit to pay for license, if issued. Any applicant who shall fail to pass examination shall receive a refund of twelve dollars from said twenty-two dollars deposit. (1935, c. 33, s. 1.)

§ 215(10)b. Pay of board of law examiners. — Each member of the board of law examiners, for his services in connection with each examination, including the member of the supreme court selected and commissioned for the special purpose of serving on said board of law examiners, shall receive the sum of fifty ($50.00) dollars, together with an expense allowance as follows: For subsistence—hotel and meals—not exceeding four dollars per day; for transportation, actual mileage, except when using personally owned automobiles, in which case a sum not exceeding five cents per mile of travel. (1935, c. 33, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The words "including the member of the supreme court selected and commissioned for the special purpose of serving on said board of law examiners" were probably inadvertently inserted by the legislature because by the 1935 amendment to § 215(10) a member of the supreme court no longer acts as a member of the board of law examiners.

§ 215(10)c. Surplus received from applicants directed to supreme court library.—After the payment of all expenses incurred in connection with each examination held by the board of law examiners and expenses of said board at such meetings as may be necessary for the performance of its additional duties the said board of law examiners shall cause to be paid at the end of each fiscal year of the State of North Carolina to the supreme court of north carolina for its use in connection with the maintenance of its library, such surplus then remaining with said board of law examiners from fees received from applicants for examination. (1935, c. 33, s. 3.)

§ 215(11). Discipline and disbarment. — The council or any committee of its members appointed for that purpose shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine all complaints, allegations, or charges of malpractice, corrupt or unprofessional conduct, or the violation of professional ethics, made against any member of the North Carolina state bar; may administer the punishments of private reprimand, suspension from the practice of law for a period not exceeding twelve months, and disbarment as the case shall in their judgment warrant, for any of the following causes: 1. Commission of a criminal offense showing professional unfitness; 2. Detention without a bona fide claim thereto of property received or money collected in the capacity of attorney; 3. Soliciting professional business; 4. Conduct involving willful deceit or fraud or any other unprofessional conduct; may invoke the processes of the courts in any case in which they deem it desirable to do so; and shall formulate rules of procedure governing the trial of any such person. Such rules shall provide for notice of the nature of the charges and opportunity to be heard; for a complete record of the proceedings for purposes of appeal, and, in the event that the penalty adjudged be suspension from the practice, or disbarment, for an appeal, as of right to the superior court judge regularly holding the courts of the county wherein the attorney involved resides on the record made before the council, or the committee, as the case may be; upon appeal to the judge of the superior court, the accused shall have the right to have his cause heard by a jury. From the decision of the superior court judge hearing the appeal or the jury, the council (or committee) and the accused attorney shall each have the right of appeal to the supreme court of North Carolina. Trials shall be held in the county in which the accused member resides: Provided, however, that the committee conducting the hearing shall have power to remove the same to any county in which the offense, or part thereof, was committed, if in the opinion of such committee the ends of justice or convenience of witnesses require such removal. In hearings before the council (or committee) and in all appeals the procedure shall conform as near as may be to the procedure now provided by law for hearings upon the report of referees in references by consent. (1933, c. 210, s. 11.)

Editor's Note.—The cases treated under this section were decided under those sections which appeared in Michie's Code of 1931 as §§ 204 and 205, the provisions of which were substantially similar to this section.

Constitutionality. — This section, and the other sections of this article, taken from the act of 1871, are constitutional. Ex parte Schenck, 65 N. C. 353.

The aforesaid act does not take away any of the inherent rights which are absolutely essential in the administration of justice. Id.

Civil Action. — Proceedings brought under this section are of a civil nature. In the Matter of Ebbs, 150 N. C. 44, 63 S. E. 190.

Not an "Enabling Act." — The act of 1871, upon which this and the other sections of this article are based, failed to provide any power to take the place of the power formerly invested in the courts, and so is a disabling statute. Kane v. Haywood, 66 N. C. 1; In the Matter of Ebbs, 150 N. C. 44, 63 S. E. 190.

Indictment Necessary. — By a proper construction of this section, the court is shorn of its power to disrobe an attorney, except in the single instance where he has been indicted for some criminal offense, showing him unfit to be trusted in the discharge of the duties of his profession, and upon such indictment has either been convicted or plead guilty. Kane v. Haywood, 66 N. C. 1, 2.

Conviction or Confession of Guilt. — The words "conviction" and "confession," as used in the section, must be construed to convey the idea that the party has been convicted by a jury or has in open court declined to take issue by the plea of not guilty, and confessed himself guilty. Kane v. Haywood, 66 N. C. 1, 2.

So the admission of an attorney in an answer to a rule to show cause why he should not be attached for contempt for failure to pay money into court, not being voluntary, is not a confession in open court as contemplated by this section. Id.

Same — Conviction in Foreign State. — This section does not confer upon the court the power to disbar an attorney because he has been "convicted" in the courts of another state or of the United States. In the Matter of Ebbs, 150 N. C. 44, 63 S. E. 190.

Nature of Offense. — Under the acts of 1871, upon which this action was originally based, conviction of a "criminal offense" showing untrustworthiness was sufficient basis for disbarment; but by the act of 1907 conviction of a "felony" was necessary; construing these provisions together the court, in State v. Johnson, 171 N. C. 799, 88 S. E. 437, holds that the two provisions are consistent and reconcilable (a view evidently adopted by the revision commission of 1920, as the section now contains the language of both provisions), and further stated that the conviction of a criminal offense—the sale of liquor prior to the national prohibition law and a fortiori since the law —is sufficient grounds for disbarment as showing the attorney unfit for practice. See also State v. Johnson, 174 N. C. 345, 93 S. E. 847.

Confession of a Felony.—A plea of guilty to an indictment charging defendant with wilfully, feloniously, secretly, and maliciously giving aid and assistance to his codefendant by manufacturing evidence, altering and destroying original records in the office of the Commissioner of Revenue, etc., was held a confession of a felony, and ground for disbarment if defendant is a practicing attorney under former section 205. State v. Harwood, 206 N. C. 87, 173 S. E. 24.

Fine and imprisonment is not the appropriate remedy to be applied to an attorney who, by reason of moral delinquency or other cause, has shown himself to be an unworthy member of the profession. Kane v. Haywood, 66 N. C. 1, 3.

§ 215(12). Concerning evidence and witness fees.—In any investigation of charges of professional misconduct the council and any committee thereof shall have power to summon and examine witnesses under oath, and to compel their attendance, and the production of books, papers, and other documents or writings deemed by it necessary or material to the inquiry. Each summons or subpoena shall be issued under the hand of the secretary-treasurer or the president of the council or the chairman of the committee appointed to hear the charges, and shall have the force and effect of a summons of subpoena issued by a court of record, and any witness or other person who shall refuse or neglect to appear in obedience thereto, or to testify or produce the books, papers, or other documents or writings required, shall be liable to punishment for contempt either by the council or its committee, but with the right to appeal therefrom. Depositions may be taken in any investigations of professional misconduct as in civil proceedings; but the council or the committee hearing the case may, in its discretion, whenever it believes that the ends of substantial justice so require, direct that any witness within the state be brought before it. Witnesses giving testimony under a subpoena before the council or any committee thereof or by deposition shall be entitled to the same fees as in civil actions.

In cases heard before the council or any committee thereof, if the party shall be convicted of the charges against him, he shall be taxed with the cost of the hearings: Provided, however, that such bill of costs shall not include any compensation to the members of the council or committee before whom the hearings are conducted. (1933, c. 210, s. 12.)

§ 215(13). Rights of accused person. — Any person who shall stand charged with an offense cognizable by the council or any committee thereof shall have the right to invoke and have exercised in his favor the powers of the council and its committees in respect of compulsory process for witnesses and for the production of books, papers, and other writings and documents, and shall also have the right to be represented by counsel. (1933, c. 210, s. 13.)

§ 215(14). Designation of prosecutor; compensation.—Whenever charges shall have been preferred against any member of the bar, and the council shall have directed a hearing upon the charges, it shall also designate some member of the bar to prosecute said charges in such hearings as may be held, including hearing upon appeals in the superior and supreme courts. The council may allow the attorney performing such services at its request such compensation as it may deem proper. (1933, c. 210, s. 14.)

§ 215(15). Records and judgments and their effect.—In the case of persons charged with an offense cognizable by the council or any committee thereof, a complete record of the proceedings and evidence taken before the council or any committee thereof shall be made and preserved in the office of the secretary-treasurer, but the council may, upon sufficient cause shown and with the consent of the person so charged, cause the same to be expunged and destroyed. Final judgments of suspension or disbarment shall be entered upon the judgment docket of the superior court of the county wherein the accused resides, and also upon the minutes of the supreme court of North Carolina; and such judgment shall be effective throughout the state.

Whenever any attorney has been deprived of his license, the council, in its discretion, may restore said license upon due notice being given and hearing had and satisfactory evidence produced of proper reformation of the licentiate before restoration. (1933, c. 210, s. 15; 1935, c. 74, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 struck out the words "under the provisions of this article" after the word "license" in line two of the second paragraph.

§ 215(16). Annual and special meetings.—There shall be an annual meeting of the North Carolina state bar, open to all members in good standing, to be held at such place and time after such notice (but not less than thirty days) as the council may determine, for the discussion of the affairs of the bar and the administration of justice; and special meetings of the North Carolina state bar may be called, on not less than thirty days' notice, by the council, or on the call, addressed to the council, of not less than twenty-five per cent of the active members of the North Carolina state bar; but at special meetings no subjects shall be dealt with other than those specified in the notice. Notice of all meetings, whether annual or special, may be given by publication in such newspapers of general circulation as the council may select, or, in the discretion of the council, by mailing notice to the secretary of the several district bars or to the individual active members of the North Carolina state bar. The North Carolina state bar shall not take any action in respect of any decision of the council or any committee thereof relating to admission, exclusion, discipline or punishment of any person or other action, save after notice in writing of the action of the council or committee proposed to be directed or overruled, which notice shall be given to the secretary-treasurer thirty days before the meeting, who shall give, by mail, at least fifteen days notice to the members of the North Carolina state bar, and unless at the meeting two-thirds of the members present and voting shall favor the motion to direct or overrule. At any annual or special meeting ten per cent of the active members of the bar shall constitute a quorum; but there shall be no voting by proxy. (1933, c. 210, s. 16.)

of July of each year, beginning with and including the year nineteen hundred and thirty-four, pay to the secretary-treasurer, in respect of the calendar year in which such payment is herein directed to be made, an annual membership fee of three dollars; and in every case the member so paying shall notify the secretary-treasurer of his correct postoffice address. The said membership fee shall be regarded as a service charge for the maintenance of the several services prescribed in this article, and shall be in addition to all fees now required in connection with admissions to practice, and in addition to all license taxes now or hereafter required by law. The said fee shall not be prorated: Provided, that no fee shall be required of an attorney licensed after this article shall have gone into effect until the first day of July of the second calendar year (a "calendar year" for the purposes of this article being treated as the period from January first to December thirty-first) following that in which he shall have been licensed; but this proviso shall not apply to attorneys from other states admitted on certificate. The said fees shall be disbursed by the secretary-treasurer on the order of the council. The secretary-treasurer shall annually, at a time and in a law magazine or daily newspaper to be prescribed by the council, publish an account of the financial transactions of the council, in a form to be prescribed by it. The secretary-treasurer shall compile and keep currently correct from the names and postoffice addresses forwarded to him and from any other available sources of information a list of members of the North Carolina state bar and furnish to the clerk of the superior court in each county, not later than the first day of October of each year, a list showing the name and address of each attorney for that county who has complied with the provisions of this article, and thereafter shall notify the clerk of the name and address of any additional attorney resident in that county who shall have complied with the provisions of this article. The names and addresses of such attorneys so certified shall be kept available to the public. The commissioner of revenue is hereby directed to supply the secretary-treasurer, from his record of license tax payments, with any information for which the secretary-treasurer may call in order to enable him to comply with this requirement. (1933, c. 210, s. 17.)

§ 215(18). Saving as to North Carolina bar association. — Nothing in this article contained shall be construed as affecting in any way the North Carolina bar association, or any local bar association. (1933, c. 210, s. 18.)

BANKS

Art. 1. Definitions

§ 216. Superseded by § 217(a).

See the editor's note under secs. 216(a), 217(a).

§ 216(a). "Bank," "surplus," "undivided profits," and other words defined.—The following definitions shall be applied to the terms used in this chapter:

The term "bank" shall be construed to mean any corporation, partnership, firm, or individual receiving, soliciting, or accepting money or its equivalent on deposit as a business: Provided, however, this definition shall not be construed to include building and loan associations, Morris plan companies, industrial banks or trust companies not receiving money on deposit.

The term "surplus" means a fund created pursuant to the provisions of this chapter by a bank from its net earnings or undivided profits which, to the amount specified and by any additions thereto set apart and designated as such, is not available for the payment of dividends, and cannot be used for the payment of expenses or losses so long as such bank has undivided profits.

The term "undivided profits" means the credit balance of the profit and loss account of any bank.

The term "net earnings" means the excess of the gross earnings of any bank over the expenses and losses chargeable against such earnings during any dividend period.

The term "time deposits" means all deposits, the payment of which cannot be legally required within thirty days.

The term "demand deposits" means all deposits, the payment of which can be legally required within thirty days.

The term "insolvency" means: (a) when a bank cannot meet its deposit liabilities as they become due in the regular course of business; (b) when the actual cash market value of its assets is insufficient to pay its liabilities to depositors and other creditors; (c) when its reserve shall fall under the amount required by this act, and it shall fail to make good such reserve within thirty days after being required to do so by the commissioner of banks; (d) whenever the undivided profits and surplus shall be inadequate to cover losses of the bank, whereby an impairment of the capital stock is created. (1921, c. 4, s. 1; 1927, c. 47, s. 1; 1931, c. 243, § 5.)

Editor's Note.—In 1921 the legislature passed this act which was intended, it would seem, to supplement the provisions of chapter five of the Consolidated Statutes by enlarging the corporation commission's powers of supervision over banks and making more specific regulations for the business of banking. This statute does not supersede or repeal any of chapter five of the Consolidated Statutes except those provisions which are in conflict with or repugnant to it. Mr. Justice Adams, in speaking of the effect of the banking act of 1921 in Litchfield v. Roper, 192 N. C. 202, 205, 134 S. E. 651, said: "A revision or codification of statutes as generally understood signifies a written expression of the entire body of the law on the particular subject; but, where the scheme of the revision is intended as a continuation of existing laws together with such changes as are necessary to make them more effective or to harmonize them, the revised laws will not usually operate as a repeal. The mere enactment of a part of a former statute will not necessarily repeal the part which is not included in the subsequent act. * * * After comparing the act of 1921 with chapter 5 of the Consolidated Statutes we are by no means convinced that the later statutes were intended by the Legislature as a repeal of the old law." He construed the act of 1921 as a supplement to the prior law.

In many instances the provisions of sections in the Consolidated Statutes are re-enacted in full in this new law, and in others the terms of the Consolidated Statutes are so clearly repugnant as to be incapable of application. In all such cases the sections of the Consolidated Statutes are omitted from this compilation, and wherever the new law controls to the exclusion of the old, the old is omitted, a full explanation being made in editor's notes to the new law and referred to from the old. Occasionally, all the terms of a prior section are either superseded by or repeated in the new section except for a phrase, clause or sentence. In such cases the old section is not repeated but the phrase, clause or sentence is set out in an editor's note under the new section with an explanation of the effect, etc., and a reference made to it from the old section. Editor's notes are placed under each section pointing out the old section corresponding to it and the effect of the new statute when taken in conjunction with the old.

It should be borne in mind that in many instances this act is a copy of the National Banking Act and that in such cases the constructions of the National Act by the courts of the United States are persuasive authority as to the proper construction of this act in such cases.

There is no section in the prior law which corresponds to this section although various terms are defined here and there throughout the law.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" in the last sentence of this section. See §§ 221(o), 221(s), and notes thereto.

The definition of "insolvency" of a bank as set forth in this section is correct. State v. Shipman, 202 N. C. 518, 163 S. E. 657.

Art. 2. Creation

§ 217. Superseded by §§ 217(b) (c) (d).

See the editor's note under sec. 217(b), (c), (d).

§ 217(a). How incorporated.—Any number of persons, not less than five, who may be desirous of forming a company and engaging in the business of establishing, maintaining, and operating banks of discount and deposit to be known as commercial banks, or engaging in the business of establishing, maintaining, and operating offices of loan and deposits to be known as savings banks, or of establishing, maintaining, and operating banks having departments for both classes of business, or operating banks engaged in doing a trust, fiduciary, and surety business, shall be incorporated in the manner following and in no other way; that is to say, such persons shall, by a certificate of incorporation under their hands and seals set forth:

1. The name of the corporation; no name shall be used already in use by another existing corporation organized under the laws of this state or of the congress, or so nearly similar thereto as to lead to uncertainty or confusion.

2. The location of its principal office in this state.

3. The nature of its business, whether that of a commercial bank, savings bank, trust company, or a combination of two or more or all of such classes of business.

4. The amount of its authorized capital stock which shall be divided into shares of ten, twenty, twenty-five, fifty or one hundred dollars each; the amount of capital stock with which it will commence business, which shall not be less than twenty-five thousand dollars in cities or towns of three thousand population or less; nor less than thirty thousand dollars in cities and towns whose population exceeds three thousand, but does not exceed ten thousand; nor less than fifty thousand dollars in cities and towns whose population exceeds ten thousand but does not exceed twenty-five thousand; nor less than one hundred thousand dollars in cities and towns having a population of more than twenty-five thousand; the population to be ascertained by the last preceding national census: Provided that this subsection shall not apply to banks organized and doing business prior to its adoption. Provided further, that fractional shares may be issued for the purpose of complying with the requirements of § 221(k).

5. The names and postoffice addresses of subscribers for stock, and the number of shares subscribed by each; the aggregate of such subscriptions shall be the amount of the capital with which the company will commence business.

6. Period, if any limited for the duration of the company. (1921, c. 4, s. 2. 1927, c. 47, s. 2. 1929 c. 72).

As to power to issue non par bank stock, sec. 1167(a) et seq.

Editor's Notes.—With the exception of a few changes which will be pointed out, this section is a substantial reenactment of C. S. Sec. 216.

Formerly three or more persons could incorporate for the purpose of establishing and operating banks.

There was a provision in subsection 2 that no branch office or business could be established and maintained without the approval of the corporation commission. This requirement has not been done away with but an entire section providing for the establishment of branches has been inserted (sec. 220r.) so that such a provision in this section would be superfluous.

The next changes came in the provision as to the amount each share of stock should represent; in raising the minimum capital stock and the population of the cities and towns in which such minimum might be maintained; and in changing the minimum of capital stock in cities and towns having a certain population. The Act of 1929 inserted in lines two and three of paragraph four the words: "ten, twenty, twenty-five."

The prior provision requiring that if more than one class of stock was created, the certificate must describe the different classes and state the terms upon which each was created, was not inserted in this section.

The proviso at the end of the fourth subsection of this section was added by the 1927 amendment.

The word "corporation" appearing in the sixth subsection of the prior section was changed to the word "company" as used in this section.

Cited in Cocke v. Hood, 205 N. C. 832, 170 S. E. 637.

§ 217(b). Certificate of incorporation; how signed, proved, and filed.—The certificate of incorporation shall be signed by the original incorporators, or a majority of them, and shall be proved or acknowledged before an officer duly authorized under the laws of this state to take proof or acknowledgment of deeds, and shall be filed in the office of the secretary of the state. The secretary of state shall forthwith transmit to the commissioner of banks a copy of said certificate of incorporation, and shall not issue or record the same until duly authorized so to do by the commissioner of banks as hereinafter provided. (1921, c. 4, s. 3; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — The first sentence of this section is identical in meaning with the first part of C. S. sec. 217. However the latter part of this section makes a radical departure from the provisions of the prior section. Formerly it was the duty of the secretary of state to record the certificate in the corporation book in his office if the certificate was in accordance with law, and then, upon the payment of the required fees, it became his duty to issue two certified copies of the certificate of incorporation and probate, one to be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court and the other in the office of the corporation commission (now the commissioner of banks). Under this arrangement the secretary did not have power to inquire into the facts and circumstances connected with the formation of the proposed corporation and pass upon the bona fide character thereof. His power was limited to inspecting the certificate to ascertain if it complied with the requirements of the law. Nor did the corporation commission or any other officer or agency have power to inquire into the good faith etc., of the incorporators. Thus, it was not necessary for the Secretary of State to transmit a copy of the certificate to the corporation commission and await its action upon the merits of the certificate before issuing the certified copies to the superior court clerk and the corporation commission (now the commissioner of banks). Thus, under the prior law, upon the performance of the ministerial duties of inspecting the certificate and issuing the copies, the proposed corporation became a corporate entity. This and the two following sections seem to supersede C. S. sec. 217.

§ 217(c). Preliminary examination.—Upon receipt of a copy of the certificate of incorporation of the proposed bank, the commissioner of banks shall at once examine into all the facts connected with the formation of such proposed corporation including its location and proposed stockholders, and if it appears that such corporation, if formed, will be lawfully entitled to commence the business of banking, the commissioner of banks shall so certify to the secretary of state, who shall thereupon issue and record such certificate of incorporation. But the commissioner of banks may refuse to so certify to the secretary of state, if upon examination and investigation he has reason to believe that the proposed corporation is formed for any other than legitimate banking business, or that the character, general fitness, and responsibility of the persons proposed as stockholders in such corporation are not such as to command the confidence of the community in which said bank is proposed to be located; or that the public convenience and advantage will not be promoted by its establishment, or that the name of the proposed corporation is likely to mislead the public as to its character or purpose; or if the proposed name is the same as one already adopted, or appropriated by an existing bank in this state, or so similar thereto as to be likely to mislead the public. (1921, c. 4, s. 4; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 56, s. 1; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — There was no section in the prior banking laws corresponding to this section. As was stated in the editor's note under the preceding section, the proposed corporation was entitled to become a body corporate upon filing a certificate, conforming to the requirements of the law, with the secretary of state, and no investigation into the purposes, qualifications, etc., of the incorporators was necessary.

§ 217(d). Certificate of incorporation, when certified.—Upon receipt of such certificate from the commissioner of banks, the secretary of state shall, if said certificate of incorporation be in accordance with law, cause the same to be recorded in his office in a book to be kept for that purpose, and known as the corporation book, and he shall, upon the payment of the organization tax and fees, certify under his official seal two copies of the said certificate of incorporation and probates, one of which shall forthwith be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the principal office of said corporation in this state shall or is to be located, in a book to be known as the record of incorporations, and the other certified copy shall be filed in the office of the commissioner of banks, and thereupon the said persons shall be a body politic and corporate under the name stated in such certificate. The said certificate of incorporation, or a copy thereof, duly certified by the secretary of state or the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the same is recorded, or by [the clerk of] the commissioner of banks, under their respective seals, shall be evidence in all courts and places, and shall, in all judicial proceedings, be deemed prima facie evidence of the complete organization and incorporation of the company purporting thereby to have been established. The charter of any bank which fails to complete its organization and open for business to the public within six months after the date of filing its certificate of incorporation with the secretary of state shall be void: Provided, however, the commissioner of banks may for cause extend the limitation herein imposed. (1921, c. 4, s. 5; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — With the exception of the requirement that the secretary must await the receipt mentioned before issuing the certified copies, and the last sentence and the proviso which were added by the present act, this section is identical with the similar provisions of C. S. sec. 217. The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section. It seems that the words "the clerk of" in brackets would have been omitted under a less haphazard method of amendment. See sec. 221(s) and note thereto.

Who May Take Advantage of Defect in Organization.—A defect in the organization of a bank because of a failure to begin business within the specified time can be taken advantage of only by a direct proceeding by the state for that purpose. Boyd v. Redd, 120 N. C. 335, 27 S. E. 35. This case was decided under the law prior to this section. The time limit within which to begin business was incorporated in the charter.—Ed. Note.

So it was held in the Boyd case that such a failure could not affect the validity of whatever lien a bank had upon the shares of stock of a stockholder indebted to it. [Only in case of a debt previously contracted in good faith may a bank purchase or receive pledge of its own stock under the present law. See sec. 220(t).]

§ 217(e). Payment of capital stock.—The capital stock of every bank shall be fully paid in, in cash, before it shall be authorized by the commissioner of banks to commence business and the full payment in cash of the capital stock shall be certified to the commissioner of banks under oath by the president and cashier of the said bank. Provided, that the stock sold by any bank in process of organization, or for an increase of the capital stock, shall be accounted for to the bank in the full amount paid for the same. No commission or fee shall be paid to any person, association, or corporation for selling such stock. The commissioner of banks shall refuse authority to commence business to any bank if commissions or fees have been paid, or have been contracted to be paid by it, or by any one in its behalf, to any person, association, or corporation for securing subscriptions for or selling stock in such bank. (1921, c. 4, s. 6; 1927, c. 47, s. 3; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

As to the similar provision relating to industrial banks, see § 225(e).

Editor's Note. — The corresponding section of the former law, C. S. sec. 218, was confined to the subject-matter now contained in the first sentence. However it was provided that at least one half of the capital stock which should not be less than $5,000 should be paid in. The section also contained provisions regulating the payment of the balance. While the $5,000 provision was not inserted in the section as re-enacted in 1921, the requirement that only one-half of the capital stock need be paid in was not changed until the 1927 amendment, and this was the only change made by the amendment. Prior to the 1927 enactment the section, and this applies to the prior law as well, contained provisions regulating the payment of the balance of the capital stock. There is no occasion for such provisions since the 1927 amendment and they were therefore omitted by it. C. S., sec. 218 is clearly superseded, being in conflict with the present law.

The remaining part of the section is new with the act of 1921, and is intended to prevent a payment of commissions to the promoters for the sale of stock, or an impairment of capital by reserving a part of the sum paid in as compensation for the sale of stock. Thus the proviso requires that the full amount for which the stock was sold shall be accounted for to the bank, and the following sentences specifically provides that no commissions shall be paid for the sale of stock. The authority to commence business is denied if the provisions are violated.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 217(f). Statement filed before beginning business.—Before such company shall begin the business of banking, banking and trust, fiduciary, or surety business, there shall be filed with the commissioner of banks a statement under oath by the president or cashier, containing the names of all the directors and officers, with the date of their election or appointment term of office, residence, and postoffice address of each, the amount of capital stock of which each is the owner in good faith and the amount of money paid in on account of the capital stock. Nothing shall be received in payment of capital stock but money. (1921, c. 4, s. 7; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — This section is identical in meaning with the first two sentences of sec. 219 of the Consolidated Statutes. Section 217(g) covers the subject matter of the remaining part of sec. 219, except for one sentence which is repeated in the Editor's Note to sec. 217(g), and therefore section 219 is omitted from this code. See the editor's note under sec. 216(a).

§ 217(g). Authorized to begin business.—Upon filing of such statement, the commissioner of banks shall examine into its affairs, ascertain especially the amount of money paid in on account of its capital. The name and place of residence of each director, the amount of capital stock of which each is the owner in good faith, and whether such corporation has complied with all the provisions of law required to entitle it to engage in business. If upon such examination it appears to the commissioner of banks that it is lawfully entitled to commence the business of banking, banking and trust, fiduciary, or surety business, he shall give to such corporation a certificate signed by [the chairman of] the commissioner of banks, attested by [the secretary of] the commissioner of banks, that such corporation has complied with all the provisions of the law required to be complied with, before commencing the business of banking, and that such corporation is authorized to commence business. (1921, c. 4, s. 8; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — This section covers the same subject-matter as the latter part of section 219 of the Consolidated Statutes, except for the last sentence of sec. 219 which reads as follows: "The corporation commission may withhold from any such corporation its certificate authorizing the commencement of business whenever it has reason to believe that the stockholders have formed the same for any other purpose than the legitimate objects contemplated by this chapter." Under the construction placed upon the banking act by the Supreme Court, and in view of the purpose of this section, it would seem that this sentence was not repealed but is in full force and effect.

This section requires a stricter investigation than was formerly required. Under the prior law, an examination into the affairs of the organization was discretionary in the discretion of the commission it was necessary; now it is made a duty. This strictness is further manifested by the fact that the prior law did not enumerate, as does this section, the particulars to which especial attention should be given.

It is apparent that the period after the word "capital" in the fifth line should be a comma and that the first letter of the word "the" immediately following, should be a small letter so that there would be but one sentence in the section down through the word "business" in the tenth line.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" or "commission" wherever these words appeared in this section. However, this lazy method of amending sometimes leads to the confusion if carried out literally, and it seems that the words in brackets would have been stricken by a more carefully drawn amendment. See § 221(s) and note thereto.

§ 217(h). Transactions preliminary to beginning business.—No such corporation shall transact any business except such as is incidental and necessarily preliminary to its organization until it has been authorized to do so by the commissioner of banks. (1921, c. 4, s. 9; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — There was no express provision corresponding to this section in the prior law.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 217(i). Increase of capital stock.—A corporation doing business under the provisions of this chapter may increase its capital stock as provided by law for other corporations. (1921, c. 4, s. 10.)

As to the manner of increasing the capital stock of corporations generally, see sec. 1131.

Editor's Note. — While there was no express provision in the prior law which corresponds to this section, section 236 of the Consolidated Statutes provided that the general corporation law so far as applicable and not inconsistent with the banking laws should apply to banks, and it is probable that under that section the capital stock could be increased just as it is under this section.

§ 217(j). Decrease of capital stock.—A corporation doing business under the provisions of this chapter may reduce its capital stock in the manner provided for other corporations: Provided, that no bank shall reduce its capital stock to an amount less than the minimum required by law. Such reduction shall not be valid or warrant the cancellation of stock certificates until it has been approved by the corporation commission. Such approval shall not be given except upon a finding by the commissioner of banks that the security of existing creditors of the corporation will not be impaired. (1921, c. 4, s. 11; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

As to manner of decreasing stock of corporations generally, see sec. 1161.

Editor's Note. — While there was no corresponding section in the prior law, it is very probable that a bank could decrease its stock under the provisions of sec. 236 of the Consolidated Statutes which made applicable all the general corporation law which was not in conflict with the banking laws.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 217(k). Consolidation of banks.—A bank may consolidate with or transfer its assets and liabilities to another bank. Before such consolidation or transfer shall become effective, each bank concerned in such consolidation or transfer shall file, or cause to be filed, with the commissioner of banks, certified copies of all proceedings had by its directors and stockholders, which said stockholders' proceedings shall set forth that holders of at least two-thirds of the stock voted in the affirmative on the proposition of consolidation or transfer. Such stockholders' proceedings shall also contain a complete copy of the agreement made and entered into between said banks, with reference to such consolidation or transfer. Upon the filing of such stockholders' and directors' proceedings as aforesaid, the commissioner of banks shall cause to be made an examination of each bank to determine whether the interest of the depositors, creditors, and stockholders of each bank are protected, and that such consolidation or transfer is made for legitimate purposes, and his consent to or rejection of such consolidation or transfer shall be based upon such examination. No such consolidation or transfer shall be made without the consent of the commissioner of banks, The expense of such examination shall be paid by such banks. Notice of such consolidation or transfer shall be published for four weeks before or after the same is to become effective, at the discretion of the commissioner of banks, in a newspaper published in a city, town or county in which each of said banks is located, and a certified copy thereof shall be filed with the commissioner of banks. In case of either transfer or consolidation the rights of creditors shall be preserved unimpaired, and the respective companies deemed to be in existence to preserve such rights for a period of three years. (1921, c. 4, s. 12; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — While there is no statutory provision in the prior law corresponding to this section nor any regulating the consolidation of corporations generally, the subject was probably governed by the common law. See 3 Enc. Dig. 632, 13 Enc. Dig. 501.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

Presumption of Approval by Corporation Commission.— Where under the provisions of this section a State bank under jurisdiction of the Corporation Commission has transferred its assets to another State bank, the latter assuming the former's liabilities under a consolidation agreement, it will be presumed that the Corporation Commission had notice or knowledge of the transaction coming within the scope of its duties, and had approved of the transaction as the statute requires. Corporation Commission v. Stockholders, 199 N. C. 586, 155 S. E. 445.

§ 217(l). Consolidated banks deemed one bank.—In case of consolidation when the agreement of consolidation is made, and a duly certified copy thereof is filed with the secretary of state, together with a certified copy of the approval of the commissioner of banks to such consolidation, the banks, parties thereto, shall be held to be one company, possessed of the rights, privileges, powers and franchises of the several companies, but subject to all the provisions of law under which it is created. The directors and other officers named in the agreement of consolidation shall serve until the first annual meeting for election of officers and directors, the date for which shall be named in the agreement. On filing such agreement, all and singular, the property and rights of every kind of the several companies shall thereby be transferred and vested in such new company, and be as fully its property as they were of the companies parties to the agreement. (1921, c. 4, s. 13; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

See note to preceding section.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 217(m). Reorganization.—Whenever any bank under the laws of this state or of the United States is authorized to dissolve, and shall have taken the necessary steps to effect dissolution, it shall be lawful for a majority of the directors of such bank, upon authority in writing of the owners of two-thirds of its capital stock, with the approval of the commissioner of banks, to execute articles of incorporation as provided in this chapter, which articles, in addition to the requirements of law, shall further set forth the authority derived from the stockholders of such national bank or state bank, and upon filing the same as hereinbefore provided for the organization of banks, the same shall become a bank under the laws of this state, and thereupon all assets, real and personal, of the dissolved national or state bank shall by operation of law be vested in and become the property of such state bank, subject to all liabilities of such national or state bank not liquidated under the laws of the United States or this State before such reorganization. (1921, c. 4, s. 14; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — This section is identical in its provisions to C. S. sec. 235, the prior law, except that the references to state banks in the last six lines of this section have been inserted.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 217(m) 1. Reorganization of closed banks.— The board of directors of any banking institution whose aggregate property (in the opinion of such board) shall not be sufficient in amount to pay its debts or which (in the opinion of such board) may be unable to pay its debts in the ordinary course of business as they mature or which may be in the possession of the commissioner of banks for liquidation, or which shall be without authority to conduct an unrestricted banking business, may formulate and propose a plan of reorganization. Such reorganization may provide for the continuance of the business of such existing institution, the formation of a new banking institution, state or national, or other corporations, or the consolidation of two or more banking institutions and may provide for the transfer of all or a part of the assets of the existing institution to such new or consolidated institution or corporation or to trustees, for such consideration in money, securities or evidences of debt or interest of any kind approved by such board. (1933, c. 271, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Sections 217(m)1 to 217(m)13 only apply to plans of reorganization presented prior to Jan. 1st, 1935.

Where a plan for the reorganization of a bank was proposed and approved as provided by this section, but was later abandoned, in a suit to enjoin the reorganization on the ground that this section is unconstitutional, it was held that no reorganization was contemplated and that whether this section is constitutional is a moot or academic question. In re Independence Trust Co., 206 N. C. 12, 173 S. E. 53.

§ 217(m) 2. Approval by commissioner of banks; certification to clerk of superior court.—The plan of reorganization shall be filed with the commissioner of banks. He shall make such study and investigation of said plan as he may deem necessary; and no hearing before him shall be required. If the commissioner approves the plan, he shall cause a written outline under his hand and seal thereof to be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the existing banking institution has its principal place of business, and shall at the same time deliver to the said clerk of the superior court at least one hundred copies of such outline which shall be available for inspection. The commissioner of banks shall also promptly file one hundred copies of such outline in the office of the clerk of the superior court of each county in which the banks shall have a place of business. The said outline shall, among other things, contain a statement of the amount due depositors and other creditors of the existing institution, as shown on its books as of the close of business on the last day on which it was open for unrestricted banking business or, if it still be open for such business, on the day next preceding the date of filing of the said outline with the commissioner of banks. (1933, c. 271, s. 2.)

§ 217(m) 3. Notice of reorganization; objections.—The commissioner of banks shall cause to be published, at least once a week for two weeks, in at least one newspaper in every county in which the institution maintains an office or place of business a notice briefly summarizing the plan of reorganization, stating where the outline has been filed in accordance with section 217(m) 2, and admonishing all stockholders, depositors, creditors and other interested persons to file with the clerk of the superior court of the county where the principal place of business of the institution is located, within thirty days from the date of first publication, any objection which they or any of them may have to said plan of reorganization. If there is no daily newspaper published in any county in which such bank has an office or place of business, it will be sufficient for such publication to be made in a daily newspaper generally circulating in said county. The affidavits of the publishers of the respective newspapers in which said notices are published, when filed in the office of the clerk of superior court of the county where the principal office of the institution is located, shall be prima facie evidence of compliance with this section. (1933, c. 271, s. 3.)

§ 217(m) 4. Notice of plan to stockholders, depositors and creditors. — The commissioner of banks shall also require the banking institution filing said plan to cause a copy of the published notice to be mailed or sent, within seven days from the first date of publication, to all stockholders, depositors and other creditors of such banking institution at their respective addresses shown on the records of the institution. The president or other proper officer of such banking institution shall file in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the principal office of the institution is located a certificate to the effect that copies of such notice have been mailed; and said certificate shall be prima facie proof that the provisions of this section have been complied with. Any failure of any particular stockholder, depositor, creditor or other interested party to receive such notice shall not affect the validity of the reorganization. (1933, c. 271, s. 4.)

§ 217(m) 5. Filing objections to reorganization; determination of value of claims of objectors.—Any depositor, creditor, stockholder or other interested person who shall not approve the plan, may, within thirty days from the first publication of the notice provided for by section 217(m) 3, file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the principal place of business of said banking institution is located an objection to said plan and an application for the ascertainment of the fair liquidating value of his claim, stock or other interest. At the end of the period within which such objections and application must be filed, the judge of the superior court, resident in the district in which said county is located (or if such judge be not available, the judge holding the courts of such district) shall determine the present cash value of the interest of each party filing such objection on the basis of a judicial liquidation of said institution. (1933, c. 271, s. 5.)

§ 217(m) 6. Payment of claims thus valued; apportionment of assets to objectors. — The court may order such liquidating value paid in cash or, in lieu thereof, paid in kind. In the event such payment is ordered in kind, assets divisible in kind shall be so apportioned. With respect to assets indivisible in kind, the court may apportion said assets by allotting to the objecting party securities or certificates of interest issued by the institution or by a corporation or by a trustee, such securities or certificates of interest to reasonably and fairly represent the share of such non-assenting party in such indivisible assets. The entire amount allotted to such non-assenting parties shall be delivered and paid to the commissioner of banks as receiver for liquidation for the benefit of the non-assenting parties. (1933, c. 271, s. 6.)

§ 217(m) 7. Reorganization binding on all unless objected to by one-third of interested parties. —If, within said period of thirty days, less than thirty-three and one-third percent in interest of the depositors and other creditors of such banking institution (as shown on the outline filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court as provided in section 217(m) 2) shall file such objection and application with the clerk of the said superior court, the plan of reorganization shall be binding upon all such depositors and other creditors as fully as if they had assented to said plan. If, within said period of thirty days, less than thirty-three and one-third per cent in interest of the stockholders of said institution shall have made objection and application to the said clerk of the superior court, said plan shall be binding upon all stockholders as fully as if they had assented to said plan. No stockholders, depositors, or other parties in interest in said banking institution shall, however, be subjected by such plan of reorganization to any personal liability without their express consent. (1933, c. 271, § 7.)

§ 217(m) 8. Rights of objectors preserved.—The provisions of section 217(m) 7 shall not deprive the objecting stockholders, depositors, creditors and other interested parties of the right of valuation of their interest as provided in sections 217(m) 5 and 217(m) 6. Such valuation shall not, however, postpone or delay consummation of such reorganization plan. If the same is consummated prior to the expiration of said thirty-day period, the reorganized or new institution shall be liable and responsible for the performance of the decree in said proceedings. Such reorganized or new institution may, however, at any time within seven days after such decree, abandon said plan of reorganization as it applies to any particular institution and restore said property to such institution. (1933, c. 271, s. 8.)

§ 217(m) 9. Two or more banks may reorganize together; branch banks allowed; subscription to capital stock.—Any one or more banking institutions, for the purpose of continuing all or a portion of its business or segregating its new from its old depositors, or for the purpose of otherwise promoting the interest of its stockholders, depositors, creditors and other interested parties, may, with the approval of the commissioner of banks, organize one or more new banking institutions, either state or national, with such capital and upon such terms as the board of directors of such existing institutions may determine. Any such banking institution which may take part in the organization of such new banking institution and any other banking institution with similar approval, may subscribe to the capital stock of such new banking institution and pay for said subscription with its funds or assets, and thereafter hold and exercise all the rights of stockholders. (1933, c. 271, s. 9.)

§ 217(m) 10. Stockholders not relieved.—Nothing contained in sections 217(m)1-217(m)13 shall be construed to relieve any stockholder of any banking institution, who is such of record at the time of the passage of such sections, from the liability imposed by law. (1933, c. 271, s. 10.)

§ 217(m) 11. Trust business preserved upon reorganization; transfer of trust estates. — If, pursuant to any plan of reorganization provided for under this article, the trust business of any banking institution be transferred to a new or other banking institution, state or national, having authority to act in fiduciary capacities, such plan of reorganization, upon being consummated and carried into effect, shall operate to transfer to such new or other banking institution and its successor or successors any and all appointments of the transferor banking institution in any fiduciary capacity, whether made by order of any court, or independently of any court, including all appointments of such transferor banking institution in any fiduciary capacity made by any will or other instrument executed prior to the said plan of reorganization being consummated and carried into effect, as effectually as if said new or other banking institution had been appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction as successor to the transferor banking institution in each fiduciary capacity in which said transferor banking institution had theretofore been acting, or to which it might have been appointed by will or other instrument theretofore executed. If a new banking institution is organized pursuant to any plan of reorganization provided for under this law, or, in case of a national bank if reorganized under the provisions of the act of congress of March 9, 1933, known as the "bank conservation act," any of said existing banking institutions subscribing to its capital stock may transfer to such institution all its existing trust estates and property held in a fiduciary capacity, and all the appointments of the transferor institution in any fiduciary capacity, whether made by order of any court or independently of any court, including all appointments of such transferor institution in any fiduciary capacity made by any will or other instrument executed prior to said transfer, as effectively as if said new institution had been appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction as successor to the transferor institution in each fiduciary capacity in which said transferor institution had theretofore been acting or to which it might have been appointed by will or other instrument theretofore executed. (1933, c. 271, s. 11; c. 499.)

§ 217(m) 12. Rules and regulations. — The commissioner of banks, with the approval of the advisory banking commission, shall have the power to make and promulgate from time to time such rules and regulations as he may deem necessary or advisable to carry out the provisions of this law. (1933, c. 271, s. 12.)

§ 217(m) 13. Purpose and intent of statute; time limit for reorganization. — This law is enacted in view of the banking emergency which has arisen and which has been accompanied by wide-spread unemployment, decreased values, untimely withdrawals of deposits, and other conditions beyond the control of the state; and the purpose of this law is to serve the welfare of the state as a whole and the depositors and creditors of banking institutions, and to promote justice, prevent distress and discrimination, and to establish an orderly method of reconstruction and further to carry out the purposes of sections 220(gg), 222(l)-222(n), 222(o) 1, 264(a)-264(l). Therefore, this law shall apply only to plans of reorganization presented to the commissioner of banks for approval prior to January 1, 1935. (1933, c. 271, s. 13.)

§ 217(n). Consolidation of banks with building and loan insurance corporations.—Banking corporations, with the approval of the commissioner of banks, and in conformity with such requirements and regulations as he may prescribe, and building and loan and insurance corporations, with the approval of the insurance commissioner, and in conformity with such requirements and regulations as he may prescribe may merge and consolidate under the provisions of § § 1224 (a) et seq. (1925, c. 77, s. 2; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

§ 217(o). Consolidation of state banks or trust companies with national banking associations.—Any bank or trust company incorporated under the laws of North Carolina may be consolidated with any national banking association, or associations, under the charter of such national banking association or under a new charter issued to such consolidated association, upon such terms and conditions as may be lawfully agreed upon, provided that the laws of North Carolina governing the consolidation of State banks shall be first complied with as to the consolidation of such bank or trust company. When such consolidation shall have been affected and approved, as provided by law, all the rights, franchises and interests of such bank or trust company so consolidated with the national banking association, or national banking associations, in and to every species of property, real, personal and mixed, and choses in action thereto belonging, shall be deemed to be transferred to and vested in such national banking association into which it is consolidated, without any deed or other transfer, and the said consolidated national banking association shall hold and enjoy the same and all rights of property, franchises and interests, including the right of succession as trustee, executor, administrator, or in any other fiduciary capacity, in the same manner, and to the same extent, as was held and enjoyed by such bank or trust company so consolidated. In case of such consolidation the rights of creditors of such bank or trust company shall be preserved unimpaired and all lawful debts and liabilities of such bank or trust company shall be deemed to have been assumed by such consolidated national banking association. (1929, c. 148, s. 1.)

See note under § 217(p.).

§ 217(p). Fiduciary powers and liabilities of merged banks or trust companies. — Whenever any bank or trust company, organized under the laws of North Carolina or the acts of Congress, and doing business in this State, shall consolidate or merge with any other bank or trust company doing business in this State, as provided by the laws of North Carolina or the acts of Congress, all and every the then existing fiduciary rights, powers, duties and liabilities of such consolidating or merging banks and/or trust companies, including the rights, powers, duties and liabilities as executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, and/or any other fiduciary capacity, whether under appointment by order of court, will, deed, or other instrument, shall, upon the effective date of such consolidation or merger, vest in, devolve upon, and thereafter be performed by, the consolidated or merged bank or trust company. (1931, c. 207.)

Editor's Note.—This statute, independent in form, is actually an amendment of §§ 217(o) and 4145. The first of these applies only when a state bank consolidates with and becomes a national bank. The other applies only when the original bank has been named executor or trustee in a will. The new statute covers both grounds, and, in addition, the cases where the original fiduciary was so constituted by order of court or by deed. N. C. Law Rev. 398.

Art. 3. Dissolution and Liquidation

§ 218(a). Voluntary liquidation.—A bank may go into voluntary liquidation and be closed, and may surrender its charter and franchise as a corporation of this state by the affirmative votes of its stockholders owning two-thirds of its stock, such vote to be taken at a meeting of the stockholders duly called by resolution of the board of directors, written notice of which, stating the purpose of the meeting, shall be mailed to each stockholder, or in case of his death, to his legal representative or heirs at law, addressed to his last known residence ten days previous to the date of said meeting. Whenever stockholders shall by such vote at a meeting regularly called for the purpose, notice of which shall be given as herein provided, decide to liquidate such bank, a certified copy of all proceedings of the meeting at which said action shall have been taken, verified by the oath of the president and cashier, shall be transmitted to the commissioner of banks for his approval. If the commissioner of banks shall approve the same, he shall issue to the said bank, under his seal, a permit for such purpose. No such permit shall be issued by the commissioner of banks until said commissioner of banks shall be satisfied that provision has been made by such bank to satisfy and pay off all depositors and all creditors of such bank. If not so satisfied, the commissioner of banks shall refuse to issue a permit, and shall be authorized to take possession of said bank and its assets and business, and hold the same and liquidate said bank in the manner provided in the chapter. When the commissioner of banks shall approve the voluntary liquidation of a bank, the directors of said bank shall cause to be published in a newspaper in the city, town, or county in which such bank is located, a notice that the bank is closing up its affairs and going into liquidation, and notify its depositors and creditors to present their claims for payment. When any bank shall be in process of voluntary liquidation, it shall be subject to examination by the commissioner of banks, and shall furnish such reports from time to time as may be called for by the commissioner of banks. All unclaimed deposits and dividends remaining in its hands of such bank shall be subject to the provisions of this chapter as hereinafter provided. Whenever the commissioner of banks shall approve it, any bank may sell and transfer to any other bank, either State bank or national bank, all of its assets of every kind including stockholders' liability upon such terms as may be agreed upon and approved by the commissioner of banks by two-thirds vote of its board of directors. A certified copy of the minutes of any meeting at which such action is taken, under the oath of the president and cashier, together with a copy of the contract of sale and transfer, shall be filed with the commissioner of banks. The purchasing bank may institute suit against the stockholders in the name of the selling bank as plaintiff at any time within three years from the date of the sale and transfer and judgment in the action shall be a lien against each stockholder for the amount of stock liability. Whenever voluntary liquidation shall be approved by the commissioner of banks or the sale and transfer of the assets of any bank shall be approved by the commissioner of banks, a certified copy of such approval under seal of the commissioner of banks, filed in the office of the secretary of state, shall authorize the cancellation of the charter of such bank, subject, however, to its continued existence, as provided by this act and the general law relative to corporations. (1921, c. 4, s. 15; 1927, c. 47, s. 4; 1929, c. 73; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

For article discussing the statutory changes made in the North Carolina banking law, see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 194 et seq.

Editor's Note.—Though it has been thought that this section was superseded by § 218(c) it would seem that the amendment of the section by the Public Laws of 1929 was legislative recognition that it had not been superseded. It is therefore set out as amended.

While there was no specific provision in the prior banking law which corresponded to this section, dissolution was probably effected under secs. 1182 et seq. the general corporation law, by virtue of sec. 236, providing that where applicable and not inconsistent with the banking laws the general corporation law should apply.

The 1927 amendment added the last four sentences to this section. The language used in the latter part of the first sentence added is somewhat obscure. Rather than reading "as many be agreed upon and approved by the commissioner of banks by two-thirds vote of its Board of Directors," it should read "as may be agreed upon by two-thirds vote of its board of directors and approved by the commissioner of banks."

It has been the policy of the legislature to continue the corporate existence upon a dissolution for a period of three years for the purpose of winding up the affairs of the corporation and to bring and defend suits. See sec. 1193, which is referred to in the last sentence of this section. The provisions of this section are in keeping with this general policy.

When Receiver Has Title to Assets. — Upon the appointment of a receiver under the statute, whether voluntary or by act of the Commission, the title to all of its assets vest in the receiver to be administered for the benefit of its depositors, etc., alike, and where the directors are individually sued for having published false statements as to its solvency, and in the bank's report to the Corporation Commission, without alleging any damage peculiar to himself therefrom, as distinguished from a loss among the creditors generally, the action is maintainable only by the receiver or upon his refusal to so act upon application. Douglass v. Dawson, 190 N. C. 458, 130 S. E. 195. The corporation commission would probably have title under the present law. See sec. 218(c). This case is not applicable to a suit by a depositor for damage or loss incurred because of a violation of § 224(g). Bayne v. Powell, 192 N. C. 389, 391, 118 S. E. 118.

Enforcement of Statutory Liability of Stockholders by Bank Purchasing Another Bank for Purpose of Liquidation.—Under the provisions of this section, either a state or national bank may purchase the assets of another bank, including the statutory liability of the stockholders of the selling bank, upon such terms as are agreed upon and approved by the Corporation Commission, and suit on the statutory liability of the stockholders of the selling bank may be instituted in the name of the purchasing bank to the use of the selling bank within three years from the date of the transfer, and § 218(c) does not repeal this section, as amended, and is inapplicable when the liquidation is under its provisions, and the amendment of the act of 1921 by chapter 73, Public Laws of 1929, being only to correct a typographical error, does not affect the right of action accruing prior to its enactment, it being significant only as legislative construction that the act of 1921 was not repealed by the act of 1927. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. v. Roscower, 199 N. C. 653, 155 S. E. 560.

Approval of Stockholders Not Necessary for Sale to Bank. —For a valid sale of assets to another bank the approval of the stockholders of the selling bank is not required by this section and the section is not invalid for that reason. Planters' Sav. Bank v. Earley, 204 N. C. 297, 299, 168 S. E. 225.

As to individual liability of stockholders see § 219(a) and annotations thereunder.

§ 218(b). Commissioner of banks may take charge, when.—The commissioner of banks may forthwith take possession of the business and property of any bank to which this chapter is applicable whenever it shall appear that such bank:

1. Has violated its charter or any laws applicable thereto;

2. Is conducting its business in an unauthorized or unsafe manner;

3. Is in an unsafe or unsound condition to transact its business;

4. Has an impairment of its capital stock;

5. Has refused to pay its depositors in accordance with the terms on which such deposits were received;

6. Has become otherwise insolvent;

7. Has neglected or refused to comply with the terms of a duly issued lawful order of the commissioner of banks;

8. Has refused, upon proper demand, to submit its record, affairs, and concerns for inspection and examination to a duly appointed or authorized examiner of the commissioner of banks;

9. Its officers have refused to be examined upon oath regarding its affairs.

Such banks may, with the consent of the commissioner of banks, resume business upon such terms and conditions as may be approved by him. (1921, c. 4, s. 16; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — There was no section in the prior law which corresponded to this section. It was true however that the bank examiner could take possession where so authorized by the corporation commission and hold it until a receiver could be appointed. See C. S. sec. 253.

This section is certainly modified by sec. 218(c), subsection (1), as amended in 1927, if not totally superseded by it. This is also true as to the effect of sec. 218(p) upon the provision as to resuming business.

See 3 N. C. Law Rev. 79, discussing this section.

Commissioner May Be Restrained from Taking Control of Assets of Reorganized Bank Where Assets Sufficient to Pay Claims.—Where a banking corporation, organized and doing business under the laws of this State, and for that reason subject to the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Banks, has transferred, assigned and conveyed all its assets to another banking corporation, also organized and doing business under the laws of this State, in consideration of the agreement of the latter corporation to pay and fully discharge the claims of all the depositors and other creditors of the former corporation, and the Commissioner of Banks had consented to such transfer, assignment and conveyance (section 217(k), Corporation Commission v. Stockholders, 199 N. C. 586, 155 S. E. 445), but thereafter, before the latter corporation has fully performed its agreement with the former corporation, files notice that he has taken into his possession the former corporation, under the provisions of this section, for purposes of liquidation, the said former corporation, its depositors, and stockholders may restrain the Commissioner of Banks from taking into his possession the assets of the former corporation, which are then in the possession of the latter corporation, upon showing that said assets are sufficient in value for the payment in full of the claims of all its depositors and other creditors. Pending the trial of the issue involving the value of said assets, the Commissioner of Banks may also be restrained from levying and collecting assessments on the stockholders of the former corporation, because of their statutory liability. Stanly Bank, etc., Co. v. Hood, 206 N. C. 543, 545, 174 S. E. 503.

§ 218(c). Liquidation of banks, when commissioner to take possession. — (1) Whenever any State bank shall neglect or refuse for a period of sixty days to make a report to the commissioner of banks, as he may demand, or shall, after demand under seal of the commissioner of banks fail, neglect or refuse to comply with any of the rules, regulations or requirements of the commissioner of banks, or the provisions of the banking law, or if at any time the commissioner of banks shall find a bank subject to the supervision of the commissioner of banks, in an insolvent, unsafe or unsound condition to transact the business for which it was organized, or in an unsafe, or unsound condition to continue its business, or if such institution shall neglect or refuse to correct any irregularity which may be called to the attention of the president, cashier or board of directors, by the commissioner of banks, or any of his assistants; then, in either of such events, the commissioner of banks, through the commissioner of banks, or any duly authorized agent of the commissioner of banks, appointed under seal of the commissioner of banks, shall forthwith take possession of such bank, and all of its assets and business and shall retain possession thereof until such bank shall be authorized by the commissioner of banks to resume business, or its affairs shall be fully liquidated as herein provided, or possession thereof shall have been surrendered under order of a judge of the Superior Court under the provisions of this section.

(2) Voluntary Liquidation.—Any bank may place its assets and business under the control of the commissioner of banks for liquidation by resolution of a majority of its directors upon notice to the said commissioner of banks, and, upon taking possession of said bank, the commissioner of banks, or duly appointed agent, shall retain possession thereof until such bank shall be authorized by the commissioner of banks to resume business or until the affairs of said bank shall be fully liquidated as herein provided, and no bank shall make any general assignment for the benefit of its creditors save and except by surrendering possession of its assets to the commissioner of banks, as herein provided. Whenever any bank for any reason shall suspend operations for any length of time, said bank shall, immediately upon such suspension of operations, be deemed in the possession of the commissioner of banks and subject to liquidation hereunder.

(3) Notice of Seizure to Court Bar to Attachment, Etc., Transfers Void.—When the commissioner of banks, through the commissioner of banks, or duly appointed agent, shall take possession of any bank under paragraph (1) or (2) hereof he shall, within forty-eight hours, file with the Clerk of the Superior Court in the county where said bank is located, a notice of his action which shall state the reason therefor; and such notice shall be deemed the equivalent of a summons and complaint against said bank in an action in the Superior Court except that it shall not be necessary to make service thereof, and the taking possession of any bank shall thereupon date from the time when such authority was exercised and from and after such time all assets and property of such bank, of whatever nature shall be deemed to be in possession of the commissioner of banks, and the exercise of such authority shall operate as a bar to any attachment, or other legal proceeding, against such bank or its assets and, after such exercise of authority, no lien shall be acquired, in any manner binding or affecting any of the assets of such bank and every transfer or assignment made thereafter by such bank, or by its authority, of the whole or any part of its assets, shall be null and void; and the commissioner of banks shall be submitted in place of the bank in all actions in the State or Federal Courts, pending at the time of the exercise of such authority.

(4) Notice to Banks, Corporation and Persons Holding Assets, Liens Not to Accrue.—On taking possession of the assets and business of any bank, as in this section authorized by the commissioner of banks, the commissioner of banks, or duly appointed agent, shall forthwith give notice, by mail or otherwise, of such action to all banks or other persons or corporations holding, or having in possession, any assets of such bank. No bank or other person or corporation shall have a lien or charge for any payment, advance or clearance made, or liability incurred against any of the assets of said bank after possession has been taken as provided under this section, except as hereinafter provided.

(5) Permission to Resume Business.—After the commissioner of banks has taken possession of any bank, he may permit such bank to resume business upon such conditions as may be approved by the commissioner of banks, but such conditions shall be fully stated in writing and a copy thereof shall be filed with the clerk of the Superior Court in the action pending against said bank.

(6) Remedy by Bank for Seizure; Answer to Notice; Injunction, etc., Appeal. — Whenever any bank, of whose assets and business the commissioner of banks has taken possession as aforesaid, except where possession is taken under paragraph (2) hereof, shall deem itself aggrieved thereby, it may at any time within ten (10) days after the filing of the notice with the clerk of the Superior Court, file an answer to said notice and may also upon notice to the commissioner of banks, apply to the resident or the presiding judge of the district for an injunction to enjoin further proceedings by the said commissioner of banks, and the said judge may cite the said commissioner of banks to show cause within ten days thereafter why further proceedings should not be enjoined, and after hearing the allegations and proof of the parties with respect to the condition of said bank, may dismiss such application for injunction or may enjoin further proceedings under this section by the commissioner of banks [or commissioner of banks]. If the judge shall enjoin further action of the commissioner of banks and permit the reopening of the bank, he shall have authority to require of the bank such surety bond as he may deem necessary to insure its solvency, payable to the commissioner of banks for the sole benefit of the general creditors of the bank, and upon such terms as said judge may deem proper. Either party shall have the right to appeal to the Supreme Court as in other actions.

(7) Collection of Debts and Claims; Sale or Compromise of Debts, Claims; Commissioner Succeeds to All Property of Bank.—Upon taking possession of the assets and business of any bank by the commissioner of banks, the commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, is authorized to collect all moneys due such bank, and to do such other acts as are necessary to conserve its assets and property, and shall proceed to liquidate the affairs thereof, as hereinafter provided. The commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, shall collect all debts due and claims belonging to such bank, by suit, if necessary; and, by motion in the pending action, and upon authority of an order of the presiding or resident judge of the district may sell, compromise or compound any bad or doubtful debt or claim, and may upon such order, sell the real and personal property of such bank on such terms as the order may provide or direct, except that, where the sale is made under power contained in any mortgage or lien bond or other paper wherein the title is retained for sale and the terms of sale set out, sale may be made under said authority. Upon the motion made, the bank or any person interested, may be heard, but the judge hearing the motion shall enter his order as in his discretion will best serve the parties interested.

Upon taking possession of any bank under this act, the commissioner of banks and/or the duly appointed agent shall have the possession and the right to the possession of all the property, assets, choses in actions, rights and privileges of the said bank, including the right to resign the trust or exercise the power in all mortgages, deeds of trust, and all other papers executed to secure the payment of money in any form in which the said bank shall have been named as trustee and/or pledgee, and such property rights and privileges shall vest in the said Commissioner and/or duly appointed liquidating agent absolutely, for the purpose of liquidating, and sales and conveyance of the same, together with any and all other incidental rights, privileges, and powers necessary and convenient for the enjoyment of the right of conveyance and sale and for the exercise of the same. The officers and directors of any bank, or any bank that is in liquidation as provided by law, shall not hereafter exercise any powers herein declared to be vested in the North Carolina Commissioner of Banks, and/or the duly appointed liquidating agent.

(8) Bond of Commissioner of Banks, Surety, Condition, Penalty Minimum. — Upon taking possession of any bank, the commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, shall execute and file a bond payable to the State of North Carolina, with some surety company as surety thereon, with the clerk of the Superior Court of the county where the bank is located, conditioned upon the faithful performance of all duties imposed by reason of the liquidation of such bank by the said commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, or any agent or assistant assisting in the liquidation of the said bank the penal sum of said bond to be fixed by order of the commissioner of banks, which in no case shall be less than five thousand ($5,000) dollars. Any person interested, by motion in the pending action, shall be heard by the resident or presiding judge as to the sufficiency of the bond; the judge hearing the motion may thereupon fix the bond; provided, that where such bank under this section is taken possession of by the commissioner of banks, he may, in his discretion with the approval of the advisory commission to the commissioner of banks, appoint as his agent with the powers, duties and responsibilities of such agent under this section, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any corporation or agency established under and by virtue of the laws of the United States of America, which is established for the purposes for which the said Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was created under the banking act of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three enacted by congress; and provided further that such appointment may be made when and only when the liabilities of such bank to its depositors are insured by said corporation or agency, either in whole or in part. In the event of such appointment such corporation or agency, with the approval of the commissioner of banks, may serve as such agent without giving the bond required under all other circumstances in this subsection.

(9) Inventory Necessary.—Within thirty days after the filing of the notice of the taking possession of any bank in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court, the commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, shall make and state an inventory of the assets and liabilities of the said bank, and shall file one copy thereof with the clerk of the Superior Court in the pending action and shall keep one copy on file in the said bank. Such inventory shall be open for inspection during the usual banking hours, provided, that nothing herein shall require said bank to remain open unnecessarily.

(10) Notice and Time for Filing Claims; Copies Mailed.—Notice shall be given by advertisement for four weeks in a newspaper published in said county; if no newspaper is published in said county, then in some newspaper having a general circulation in said county, calling on all persons who may have claims against the bank to present the same to the commissioner of banks at the office of the bank, and within the time to be specified in the notice, not less, however, than ninety (90) days from the date of the first publication. A copy of this notice shall be mailed to all persons whose names appear as creditors upon the books of the bank. Affidavit by the commissioner of banks, or agent mailing the notice, to the effect that said notice was mailed shall be conclusive evidence thereof.

(11) Power to Reject Claims; Notice; Affidavit of Service; Action on Claim. — If the commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, doubts the justice and validity of any claim or deposit, he may reject the same and serve notice of such rejection upon the claimant or depositor, either personally or by registered mail, and an affidavit of the service of such notice shall be filed in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court the pending action, and shall be conclusive evidence of such notice. Any action or suit upon such claim so rejected must be brought by the claimant against the commissioner of banks in the proper court of the county in which the bank is located within ninety days after such service, or the same shall be barred. Objections to any claim or deposit not rejected by the commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, may be made by any person interested by filing such objection in the pending action and by serving a copy thereof on the commissioner of banks, or duly appointed agent, and the commissioner of banks or duly appointed agent, after investigation, shall either allow such objection and reject the claim or deposit, or disallow the objection. If the objection is not allowed and the claim or deposit not rejected, the commissioner of banks or duly appointed agent, shall file a notice to this effect in the pending action; and within ten days thereafter, the person filing objection by motion in the pending action, a copy of which notice shall be served upon the person whose claim or deposit is objected to, may present to the court the question of the validity of said claim or deposit; and the questions of law and issues of fact shall thereupon be determined as in other civil actions.

(12) List of Claims Presented and Deposits; Copies; Proviso.—Upon the expiration of the time fixed for presentation of claims, the chief state bank examiner, or the duly appointed agent, shall make a full and complete list of the claims presented and of the deposits as shown, including and specifying any claims or deposits which have been rejected by him, and shall file one copy in the office of the clerk of the superior court in the pending action, and shall keep one copy on file with the inventory in the office of the bank for examination. Any indebtedness against any bank which has been established or recognized as a valid liability of said bank before it went into liquidation, for which no claimant has filed claim, and/or any liability for which claim has been filed and disapproved, shall be listed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the bank is located, by the liquidating agent, and the dividends accruing thereto shall be paid into the said office and shall be held for a period of three months after said liquidation is completed, and shall then be paid to the escheator of the University of North Carolina. Any claim which may be presented after the expiration of the time fixed for the presentation of claims in the notice hereinbefore provided shall, if allowed, share pro rata in the distribution only of those assets of the bank in the hands of the corporation commission, and undistributed at the time the claim is presented: Provided, that when it is made to appear to the judge of the superior court, resident or presiding in the county, that the claim could not have been filed within said period, said judge may permit those creditors or depositors who subsequently file their claim to share as other creditors.

(13) Assessment on Stockholders; Copy of Levy to Clerk; Force of Judgment; When Payment Due; etc.—After the expiration of thirty days from the date of the filing of the notice of the taking possession of any bank, in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court, the commissioner of banks may levy an assessment equal to the stock liability of each stockholder in the bank, and shall file a copy of such levy in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court, which shall be recorded and indexed as judgments, and shall have the force and effect of a judgment of the Superior Courts of this State; and the same shall become due and payable immediately, and if not paid execution may at the instance of the commissioner of banks issue against the stockholder delinquent, and actions on said assessment may be instituted against any non-resident stockholders in the same manner as other actions against non-residents of the State. Any stockholder may appeal to the Superior Court from the levy of assessment; the issue raised by the appeal may be determined as other actions in the Superior Court. At any time before the determination of said appeal such stockholder may petition the resident or presiding judge to relieve his property of the lien, pending the determination of the question raised by said appeal; and such relief may be granted in the discretion of the judge hearing the petition and upon such terms as he may fix. The rights of levy and assessment herein given shall not affect the right of the commissioner of banks to enforce the liability of legal or equitable owners of stock not named in the certificate and the liability transferers of stock as provided in section two hundred and nineteen (d). All sums collected under the levy shall become immediately available as general assets of the bank for distribution as other assets; Provided, however, that whenever the expenses of liquidation have been paid and all of the liabilities to depositors and other creditors shall have been discharged, the money then remaining in the hands of the commissioner of banks shall be applied pro rata to the repayment of the amounts paid in by the stockholders.

(14) Declaration of Dividends; Order of Preference in Distribution.—At any time after the expiration of the date fixed by the commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, for the presentation of claims against the bank, and from time to time thereafter, the commissioner of banks, out of the funds in his hands, after the payment of expenses and priorities, may declare and pay dividends to the depositors and other creditors of such bank in the order now or hereafter provided by law; and a dividend shall be declared when and as often as the funds on hand subject to the payment of dividends shall be sufficient to pay ten (10) per centum of all claims entitled to share in such dividends. In paying dividends and calculating the same, all disputed claims and deposits shall be taken into account, but no dividend shall be paid upon such disputed claims and deposits until the same shall have been finally determined. The following shall be the order and preference in the distribution of the assets of any bank liquidated hereunder: (1) Taxes and fees due the commissioner of banks for examination or other services; (2) wages and salaries due officers and employees of the bank, for a period of not more than four months; (3) expenses of liquidation; (4) certified checks and cashier's checks in the hands of a third party as a holder for value and amounts due on collections made and unremitted for or for which final actual payment has not been made by the bank; (5) amounts due creditors other than stockholders. The word "asset" used herein shall not be deemed to include bailments or other property to which such banks has no title. Provided, that when any bank, or any officer, clerk, or agent thereof, receives by mail, express or otherwise, a check, bill of exchange, order to remit, note, or draft for collection, with request that remittance be made therefor, the charging of such item to the account of the drawer, acceptor, indorser, or maker thereof, or collecting any such item from any bank or other party, and failing to remit therefor, or the non-payment of a check sent in payment therefor, shall create a lien in favor of the owner of such item on the assets of such bank making the collection, and shall attach from the date of the charge, entry or collection of any such funds. A statement of all dividends paid shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court in the pending action, and said statements shall show the expenses deducted and the disputed claims and deposits considered in determining said dividend.

(15) Deposit of Funds Collected.—All funds collected by the commissioner of banks, in liquidating any bank, shall be deposited from time to time in such bank or banks as may be selected by him, and shall be subject to the check of the commissioner of banks. The payment of interest on the net average of such sums on deposit shall be controlled by the governor and council of state, who shall have full power and authority to determine for what periods of time payment of interest on such deposits shall or shall not be required, and to fix the rate of interest to be paid thereon.

(16) Employment of Local Attorneys; Expert Accountants and Other Experts; Compensation.—The commissioner of banks, for the purpose of liquidating banks as herein provided, shall employ such liquidating agents, competent local attorneys, accountants and clerks as may be necessary to properly liquidate and distribute the assets of said bank, and shall fix the compensation for all such agents, attorneys, accountants and clerks, and shall pay the same out of the funds derived from the liquidation of the assets of said bank: Provided, that all expenditure for the purpose herein provided shall be approved by the resident or presiding judge in the pending action at such time as the same may be reported, and such charges shall be a proper charge and lien on the assets of such bank until paid.

(17) Unclaimed Dividends Trust.—The unclaimed dividends remaining in the hands of the commissioner of banks for six months after the order for final distributions shall be held in trust for the several depositors and creditors of the liquidated bank; and the money so held by him shall be paid over to the persons respectively entitled thereto as and when satisfactory evidence of their right to the same is furnished. In case of doubtful or conflicting claims the commissioner of banks shall have authority to apply to the superior court of the county, by motion in the pending action, for an order from the resident or presiding judge of the superior court directing the payment of the moneys so claimed. When issues of facts are raised by said motion, the same may, upon request of any claimant, be submitted to the jury for determination as other issues of fact are determined. The interest earned on the unclaimed dividend so held shall be applied toward defraying the expenses incurred in the distribution of such unclaimed dividends. The balance of interest, if any, shall be deposited and held as other funds of the banking department to the credit of the commissioner of banks.

(18) Report by Commissioner of Banks.—If the assets of any bank when fully collected by the commissioner of banks are not more than sufficient to pay the depositors and creditors of said bank, the commissioner of banks after he shall have fully distributed as herein provided the sums so collected, then he shall cause to be filed in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court in the pending action a full and complete report of all his transactions in said liquidation; and the filing of such report shall act as a full and complete discharge of the commissioner of banks from all further liabilities by reason of the liquidation of the bank.

(19) Action by Commissioner of Banks after Full Settlement.—Whenever the commissioner of banks shall have paid all the expenses of liquidation and shall have paid to each and every depositor and creditor of such bank, whose claims shall have been duly proven and allowed, the full amount of such claims, and shall have made proper provision for unclaimed and unpaid deposits, and disputed claims and deposits, and shall have in hand other assets of said bank, he shall, through the commissioner of banks, call a meeting of the stockholders of said bank by giving notice thereof by publication once a week for four weeks in a newspaper published in said county, or if no newspaper is published in said county, then in a newspaper having general circulation in said county, and by mailing a copy of such notice to each stockholder addressed to him at his address as the same shall appear upon the books of the bank. Affidavit of the officer mailing the notice herein required and of the printer as to the publication shall be conclusive evidence of notice hereunder. At such meeting any stockholders may be represented by proxy and the stockholders shall elect, by a majority vote of the stock present, an agent or agents who shall be authorized to receive from the commissioner of banks all the assets of said bank, then remaining in his hands; and the commissioner of banks shall cause to be transferred and delivered to the said agent, or agents, all such assets of said bank. The commissioner of banks shall thereupon cause to be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court in the pending actions a full and complete report of all his transactions, showing the assets of said bank so transferred, together with the name of the agent or agents receipting for the same; and the filing of such report shall act as a full and complete discharge of the commissioner of banks from all further liabilities by reason of the liquidation of the bank. Such agent, or agents, shall convert the assets coming into his hands, or their hands, into cash, and shall make distribution to the stockholders of said bank as herein provided. Such agent, or agents, shall file semi-annually a report of all transactions with the superior court of the county in which the bank is located, and with the commissioner of banks, and shall be allowed for such services such fees not in excess of five per cent, as may be fixed by the court. In case of death, removal or refusal to act, of any agent or agents elected by the stockholders, the commissioner of banks shall, upon report of such action on the part of such agent or agents to the superior court of the county in which the bank is located, turn over to said superior court for the stockholders of said bank, all the remaining assets of the bank, file his report and be discharged from any and all further liability to the stockholders as herein provided. Said assets, when turned over to the superior court hereunder, shall remain in the hands of the superior court until such time as, by order of Court or by action of the stockholders, distribution shall be provided for.

(20) Annual Report of Commissioner of Banks; Items in Report of; Publication. — The commissioner of banks shall file, as a part of his annual report to the governor, a list of the names of the banks so taken possession of and liquidated; and the commissioner of banks shall, from time to time, compile and make available for public inspection, reports showing the condition of each and all the banks so taken possession of; and the annual report of the commissioner of banks shall show the sum unclaimed and unpaid deposits, with respect to each bank and shall show all depositories of all sums coming into the hands of the commissioner of banks under the provisions of this section.

(21) Compensation of Commissioner of Banks. —The commissioner of banks, for his services rendered in connection with the liquidation of banks hereunder, shall be entitled to actual expenses incurred in connection with the liquidation of each bank, including therein a reasonable sum for the time of the bank examiners and other agents of the commissioner of banks, which expenses shall be a prior lien on the assets of such bank so liquidated until paid in full; and the commissioner of banks shall have authority to prescribe reasonable rules and regulations for fixing such expenses.

(22) Exclusive Manner of Liquidation.—No bank created under the banking act or the industrial banking act, and under the supervision of the commissioner of banks, shall be liquidated in any other way or manner than that provided herein.

(23) Application of Act.—The applicable provisions of this act shall apply to all banks which on the date of the ratification of this act have suspended operations or are in the process of liquidation but for which no permanent receiver has been appointed by the court.

(24 Liquidation by Commissioner of Banks of All Banks in Receivership Required.—On and after the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six, the provisions of this act shall apply to all banks included in the definition or classification of banking institutions under this chapter, and/or any amendment thereto, which at said time shall be in receivership in the State courts; and the said banks shall be liquidated exclusively in accordance with the provisions of this act and by said banking commissioner. The liquidation of said banks shall be made strictly in accordance with the terms of this section and the words "competent local attorneys," as set forth in subsection sixteen shall be defined to be any attorney or attorneys resident of the county in which the bank is being liquidated. (1921, c. 4, s. 17; 1927, c. 113; 1931, c. 243, s. 5, cc. 385, 405; 1933, c. 175, s. 2, c. 546; 1935, c. 81, s. 4, c. 231, s. 1, c. 277.)

As to enforcement of stockholder's liability by purchasing bank, see section 218(a).

Editor's Note. — Prior to the 1927 Amendment, the Supreme Court held in Litchfield v. Roper, 192 N. C. 202, 205, 134 S. E. 651, that this section did not supersede or repeal the provisions of C. S. section 239, 240, but that it was supplemental to those sections and should be construed in conjunction with them.

But in amending and reenacting this section, the act of 1927 seems to have left no doubt that not only are sections 239, 240 of the consolidated statutes repealed by it, but also section 253 secs. 218(a), 218(d), 218(e), at least a part of 218(f) and the portion of section 244 relating to receivers, for an entirely new scheme of liquidation is provided which must be followed to the exclusion of all others—the appointment of receivers and the assessment of stockholders by the court being done away with by it. However, there seems to have been legislative recognition that sections 218(e) and 240 were not superseded by the 1927 amendment of this section.

Prior to this amendment the superior court had exclusive jurisdiction over the affairs of an insolvent bank incorporated under the laws of this state. See Trust Co. v. Leggett, 190 N. C. 362, 131 S. E. 752. It was therefore the duty of the court to ascertain the amount of liability and assess the stockholders. By virtue of the amendment these duties, and all the others formerly performed by the court as well, were devolved upon the corporation commission.

Prior to the amendment it was held that a justice of the peace had no jurisdiction over an action of the receiver to collect an overpayment of dividends to a stockholder, where the amount of indebtedness had not been fixed by the superior court. Trust Co. v. Leggett, supra.

Public Laws of 1931-1933-1935.—This section was amended three times by Public Laws 1931, ch. 405, reenacted subsection (16), ch. 385, effective May 11, 1931, and excepting pending litigation, added the second paragraph to subsection (7), and provided that "the powers herein granted shall be in addition to and not in derogation of any existing acts ratified at this session of the General Assembly." This chapter provided that the first sentence of the added paragraph should be inserted before the last sentence of the former section, but it seemed to fit better after such sentence, and has been so placed in this Code.

Chapter 243 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" and "chief state bank examiner" formerly appearing in this section. As stated in note to sec. 221(s), this wholesale substitution of titles presents difficulties in this and other sections. The instances of substitution for "chief state bank examiner" in the subsections of this section are, excluding headings: (1), fourth, sixth and eighth instances; (2), (7), second and third instances; (3), (4), (5), (10), (15), second instance; (8) first and second instances; (9) one instance; (11) all instances except second; (12), (14), first instance; (20) third instance. Such substitution was also made in the heading of subsection (8), and in the bracketed portion of subsection (6).

By c. 546 of Public Laws 1933 subsection (12) of this section was amended by the addition of the second sentence relating to dividends on unclaimed deposits in closed banks. Prior to the Amendment of 1933, P. L. c. 175, s. 2, subsection 15, required a deposit a net average of three per cent per annum.

For an act regulating the time limit of liquidation of banks in Rutherford County, see Public Laws 1933, c. 567. As to act, applicable only in Buncombe County, providing that stockholders of closed banks shall be required to pay only one assessment, see Acts 1933, c. 27, p. 21.

The proviso at the end of subsection (8) of this section was added by the 1935 amendment. The act also added subsection (24) in its entirety. §§ 2-5½ of the amendatory act provide for the procedure by receivers in charge of liquidation in effecting the change required by subsection (24).

In General.—To remedy the defects in the procedure under the former statutes, sub-section 13 of this section was enacted. It is the only provision of this section, directly affecting stockholders of insolvent banking corporations, as individuals. Corporation Comm. v. Murphey, 197 N. C. 42, 44, 147 S. E. 667.

The functions of the Commissioner of Banks are not limited to the provisions of this section, and the courts of equity have inherent power to permit the Commissioner of Banks to exercise the functions of a chancery receiver in matters which are not inconsistent with his statutory duties. Blades v. Hood, 203 N. C. 56, 164 S. E. 828.

Constitutionality—Notice—Appeal.—Subsection 13 of this section is constitutional and valid, and is not in contravention of the Due Process Clause of the Federal Constitution or the Law of the Land Clause of the State Constitution, since under its provisions the statutory liability of a stockholder of an insolvent bank is not enforceable by execution under the order of the Corporation Commission until after he has been given notice and an opportunity to be heard in the course and practice of our courts, and an appeal has the effect of staying execution until his defense has been determined before a jury. Corporation Comm. v. Murphey, 197 N. C. 42, 147 S. E. 667, citing Coffin Bros. & Co. v. Bennett, 277 U. S. 29, 48 Sup. Ct. Rep., 422, and cited in Darden v. Coward, 197 N. C. 35, 36, 147 S. E. 671. See also 8 N. C. Law Rev. 285.

Section is constitutional and the superior court is not deprived of its constitutional jurisdiction. In re Independence Trust Co., 206 N. C. 12, 17, 173 S. E. 53.

Notice of the insolvency of the corporation is sufficient notice to each stockholder of his liability to the assessment. Bernheimer v. Converse, 206 U. S. 516, 51 L. Ed. 1163. Though doubtless, in the administration of this section, the Commission will, as a matter of practice, give actual, personal notice to each stockholder, by mail or otherwise, before the assessment is made, and also before execution is issued to enforce the assessment. Corporation Comm. v. Murphey, 197 N. C. 42, 47, 147 S. E. 667.

An assessment made against a stockholder who prior to the assessment had been adjudged insane, without notice being served on his committee or guardian is void and can be attacked by his administrator after his death. Hood v. Holding, 205 N. C. 451, 455, 171 S. E. 633.

The correpsonding section of the general corporation law is not applicable to banks, see Sec. 1186.

Does Not Affect Right to Restrain Commission.—The jurisdiction of the Superior Courts of this State, in a proper case, to restrain the Commissioner of Banks, is not affected by the provisions of this section. The Commissioner of Banks is an administrative officer of the State, and in the performance of his duties as prescribed by statute, is subject to the jurisdiction of the Superior Courts, in the exercise of their equitable jurisdiction. Stanly Bank, etc., Co. v. Hood, 206 N. C. 543, 546, 174 S. E. 503; Hood v. Burrus, 207 N. C. 560, 178 S. E. 362.

When the commissioner is made a party, he succeeds to the rights of the bank in the litigation pending and comes into the pending case for the purpose of protecting the rights of creditors in the recovery, not for the purpose of asserting a new and independent cause of action. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. People's Bank, 72 F. (2d) 932, 936.

Necessity of Closing Bank's Doors. — Among other powers conferred by statute, the Corporation Commission may, without taking possession of the business and property of a state bank, upon its appearing to the commission to be in imminent danger of insolvency, direct upon what conditions its officers may continue in its management and control, and thus, upon the banks complying therewith, avoid losses to depositors, creditors, and stockholders, necessarily incident to the closing of its doors. Taylor v. Everett, 188 N. C. 247, 124 S. E. 316.

Liability Contractual. — The liability of a stockholder in addition to the par value he has paid, is contractual, under sections 237 and 219(a), and the amount of his liability when the bank had become insolvent and in the hands of a receiver prior to the 1927 amendment, was determinable in the original action brought for the liquidation of the bank and the issuance of summons duly served under order of court. Greenville Banking etc., Co. v. Leggett, 191 N. C. 362, 131 S. E. 752; Corp., Comm. v. Farmers, etc., Bank, 192 N. C. 366, 135 S. E. 48.

Same — For Benefit of Creditors. — The statutory liability of the stockholders is created exclusively for the benefit of corporate creditors. It is not to be numbered among the assets of the corporation, and the corporation has no right or interest in it. Hill v. Smathers, 173 N. C. 642, 649, 92 S. E. 607.

Ostensible Owner Relieved of Assessment.—See note under § 219(d).

Preferences.—It will be noted that under subsection 14 of this section claims against the estate of an insolvent bank for amounts due on collection made and unremitted for, or for which final actual payment has not been made by the bank, are given preference, in the final distribution of the assets of said bank. Braswell v. Citizens Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 229, 233, 148 S. E. 236.

The words "or otherwise" in subsec. 14 of this section, are to be construed in connection with the other parts of the statute, meaning any mode of transportation analogous to those specified in the statute, requiring "remitting" or "sending" the money to the payee of the check. Morecock v. Hood, 202 N. C. 321, 162 S. E. 730.

Where a check was purchased from a bank, which a few days later became insolvent and the bank on which the check was drawn refused to honor it, it was held that the purchaser could not claim a preference under this section. The transaction was that of debtor and creditor. If it were otherwise in every transaction involving the relationship of debtor and creditor, near to a bank's going into liquidation on account of insolvency, it would be claimed a preference—thus destroying the well recognized maxim that "equality is equity." Great Atlantic, etc., Tea Co. v. Hood, 205 N. C. 313, 316, 171 S. E. 344.

It is well settled that the purchase of a bank draft, a cashier's check or a certified check creates the relation of debtor and creditor between the bank and the purchaser, and that the purchaser is not entitled to a preference over other general creditors of the bank from which it was purchased. Id.

Where a depositor drew a draft on his local bank against a general deposit and the payee forwarded the draft to the drawee bank for collection and it was returned with notiec of the banks insolvency, it was held that the drawer's claim was not entitled to a statutory preference under this section for the reason that the bank did not charge the draft to the account of the drawer; and if the bank's failure to return the draft within twenty-four hours after its receipt by mail implied an acceptance under the provisions of sections 3118 and 3119, such acceptance did not ipso facto create a preference. Lamb v. Hood, 205 N. C. 409, 410, 171 S. E. 359.

Where a national bank received a draft for collection and remitted for the collection of the draft a draft drawn on one of its correspondents, but failed before this draft could be paid, it was held that the owner of the draft collected had no lien on the assets of the insolvent bank in the hands of the receiver. There was no augmentation of the assets of the bank as a result of the collection, but merely a shifting of credits, and consequently no basis for the declaration of a trust. Spradlin v. Royal Mfg. Co., 73 F. (2d) 776.

It is clear, that even if this proviso be construed as having relation to solvent banks as distinguished from those in liquidation, it cannot affect national banks. Id.

The lien created, although it is to attach from the date of the charge, entry or collection, arises only upon "failing to remit" or "the non-payment of a check sent in payment;" and it is manifest that a solvent bank will not fail to remit collections or permit a check sent in payment of a collection to remain unpaid. It is only in case of banks which have failed, therefore, that the statute can have any practical application; and the lien which it creates is of such a character that it can be enforced only by a liquidation of the bank. Id.

Same—Cashier's Check.—Where a bank debits an account with the amount of a check drawn by the depositor and issues its cashier's check for the amount but is placed in a receiver's hands before remitting the proceeds to a third person as instructed to do by the depositor, the cashier's check does not constitute a preference as defined by this section. Board of Education v. Hood, 204 N. C. 353, 168 S. E. 522.

If a depositor in a bank takes a cashier's check for his deposit, and thereafter surrenders the cashier's check, purchasing with the proceeds, a draft for the purchase price of Liberty Bonds, and the bank is closed before the draft is paid, such transaction does not constitute a preference as defined by this section. In re Bank of Pender, 204 N. C. 143, 144, 167 S. E. 561.

Same—Draft on Another Bank.—Under subsec. 14 of this section a depositor who presents his check for payment over the counter of a bank which charges his account with the amount thereof and gives him a draft drawn on another bank which he deposits in a third bank, and the draft is returned unpaid, is not entitled to a preference in assets of the bank drawing the draft, the transaction not coming within the provisions of the statute for a preference when a bank receives a check by "mail," express or otherwise . . . with request that remittance be made therefor." Morecock v. Hood, 202 N. C. 321, 162 S. E. 730.

Taxes Held to Constitute Preferred Claim.—A bank, owning the land upon which the bank building was situate, closed its doors and the Commissioner of Banks took possession for purposes of liquidation by virtue of the statute. At the time of closing there was an outstanding mortgage securing an indebtedness of $25,000, all of which was unpaid and in default. The mortgagee took possession of the real estate and collected the rents and thereafter the liquidating agent of the bank listed the real property for taxation. County and town taxes were duly assessed and subsequently the mortgagee duly exercised the power of sale and became the purchaser of the property. It was held that as the bank, the mortgagor, was the real owner it was liable for taxes unpaid at the time of the sale and by subdivision (14) of this section taxes constitute a preferred claim against the assets of the insolvent bank. Hood v. McGill, 206 N. C. 83, 85, 173 S. E. 20.

Payment of Dividends to Clerk of Court.—In In re Bank of Ayden, 206 N. C. 821, 175 S. E. 177, dividends declared by Commissioner were paid to clerk of court to hold for three months, during which time conflicting contentions of creditors and depositors were heard and decided.

Prerequisites to Assessment. — Prior to the 1927 amendment it was held that the liability of the stockholders as fixed by section 219(a) could not be assessed under sections 239, 240 or this section prior to a determination of the amount of the deficiency. The value of the assets and the liabilities must have been determined before the extent of the liabilities of the shareholders could be fixed. Corp. Comm. v. Farmers, etc., Bank, 192 N. C. 366, 370, 135 S. E. 48; Corporation Comm. v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 193 N. C. 113, 116, 136 S. E. 362.

This was true after the passage of sections 239, 240, in 1911. And the decision in Smathers v. Bank, 135 N. C. 410, 47 S. E. 893, is not an authority to the contrary it being decided prior to 1911. Corporation Comm. v. Farmers, etc., Bank, 192 N. C. 366, 370, 135 S. E. 48. As to whether or not the corporation commission must ascertain the value of assets before assessing the stockholders under the 1927 amendment, quere.

When an issue was raised by denial of the receiver's allegation or statement thereof in the original suit for dissolution, an issue of fact was raised for the determination of the jury, or by reference under the provisions of section 753(1), (2). Corporation Comm. v. Farmers, etc., Bank, 192 N. C. 366, 135 S. E. 48; Jordan v. Farthing, 117 N. C. 181, 23 S. E. 244; State v. Askew, 94 N. C. 194; Ely v. Early, 94 N. C. 1. Where an issue was so raised, it is necessary to find the fact involved in the issue in order that the accounting may be had. Corporation Comm. v. Farmers, etc., Bank, 192 N. C. 366, 370, 135 S. E. 48, supra.

Right to Repudiate Subscription for Fraud.—Even if it be conceded that this section undertook to deal solely and exclusively with the methods of distribution of special funds arising from stockholders' assessments, nevertheless, the stockholder has the right to repudiate his stock subscription procured through the fraud of his own corporation, even after insolvency or bankruptcy. Hood v. Martin, 203 N. C. 620, 166 S. E. 793.

Right to Assess Stockholders for Statutory Liability Barred by Lapse of Time.—Where a State bank transfers all its assets to another State bank which assumes the former's liabilities, effecting a consolidation under the provisions of sec. 217(k), and the transferee bank later becomes insolvent, and is taken over by the Corporation Commission as liquidating agent, the right to assess the stockholders of the transferer bank on their statutory liability to cover the deficiency in its assets to pay its liabilities, for which it was liable to the transferee bank under the agreement of consolidation, is barred when the proceedings for the assessment are instituted more than three years after the transfer, in the instant case, sec. 240 is not applicable, no receiver having been appointed for the transferer bank, and the transfer being made before the enactment of this section. As to whether the Corporation Commission had the power to take possession of the transferer bank, quaere? Corporation Commission v. Stockholders, 199 N. C. 586, 155 S. E. 445.

Right of Stockholders to Be Heard. — The individual stockholders must be afforded an opportunity to be heard before assessments are made in order that they be thereafter precluded from contesting the amount. Corporation Comm. v. Farmers, etc., Bank, 192 N. C. 366, 135 S. E. 48.

Appeal from Assessment.—Where an appeal to the Superior Court is taken from an assessment made according to the provisions of this section, ordinarily the only issues of fact which may be raised in the Superior Court are whether the appellant was in fact a stockholder, and if so, the number of shares owned by him. Corporation Comm. v. McLean, 202 N. C. 77, 161 S. E. 854.

The appeal from assessments provided for by this section should be taken "within a reasonable time" and a delay of nineteen or twenty months is too long. In re Citizens' Bank, 208 N. C. 65, 66, 179 S. E. 24.

"Assets" Defined. — Section 239 and 240, providing for the assessment of the stockholders, were a recognition of the distinction between ordinary assets of the corporation and the statutory liability, and was substantially a legislative construction that the former does not include the latter. Hill v. Smathers, 173 N. C. 642, 649, 92 S. E. 607.

The term "assets" is broad enough to cover anything which is now or may be available to pay creditors, but as usually understood it refers to the tangible property of the corporation and not to the liability of stockholders, contingent upon insolvency. It does not include rights and property which do not belong to the corporation, and the current of opinion is that the statutory liability is not for the benefit of the corporation, but is an additional security for creditors. Hill v. Smathers, 173 N. C. 642, 648, 92 S. E. 607.

Personal Liability of Directors as Asset.—The right of action by the bank, and by its receiver (now Bank Examiner or agent) in case of insolvency for loss or depreciation of the bank's assets, due to their wilful or negligent failure to perform their official duties, is one enforceable for the benefit of the bank as well as for its creditors, and where the receiver has sued the shareholders of its stock for their additional or personal liability, the defendants, setting up this defense as an asset of the bank, are entitled to have the officer's or director's liability determined before the amount of their liability by assessment may be fixed. Corporation Comm. v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 193 N. C. 113, 114, 136 S. E. 362.

Individual Liability of Directors as Asset.—See note to section 218(a).

Purchase Price of Sale of Insolvent Bank's Property Must Be Paid to Corporation Commission.—Where the Corporation Commission takes possession of the assets of an insolvent bank under the provisions of this section, it is a statutory receiver and it is required by statute to collect the assets of the bank and to distribute them to the creditors and depositors, and the court having jurisdiction is without power to authorize the sale of an insolvent bank's property in bulk to purchasers under an agreement that the purchasers organize another bank and pay to it the purchase price for distribution to the creditors and depositors and thus relieve the Commission of its duty to collect and distribute the assets. As to whether the court might authorize the sale of the assets in bulk is not decided, though it would seem that under the statutory provision that he shall make such order as in his discretion will best serve the parties interested he has the power to authorize a sale in bulk, which would not be reviewable on appeal except on the ground of abuse of discretion. In re Lafayette Bank & Trust Co., 198 N. C. 783, 153 S. E. 452.

Defense that Bank Stock Was Bought Prior to Enactment of Section.—The statutory liability of the holder of bank stock for the amount equal to the par value of his shares is contractual and exists from the time of the purchase of the stock, and this section does not alter nor enlarge this liability, but has reference only to the procedure to enforce it, and the defense that the stock was bought prior to the enactment of the statute of 1927, and that the statute could have no retroactive effect, is untenable. In re Carolina Bank & Trust Co., 197 N. C. 613, 150 S. E. 118.

(13) in In re Bank of Murphy, 205 N. C. 840, 172 S. E. 181.

§ 218(c) 1. Sale of stocks of defunct banks validated.—All private sales of stocks in resident corporations, joint stock companies and limited partnerships, heretofore made by the commissioner of banks or a duly appointed agent in the course of the liquidation of a defunct bank, where such sale was made by and with the approval of a liquidation board duly selected by the creditors and stockholders of such bank and upon authority of an order of the presiding or resident judge of the district in which the principal office of such bank was located, are hereby in all respects validated, ratified and confirmed. (1935, c. 113.)

Editor's Note.—The terms of this section are covered by subsection (17) of section 218(c), a different scheme being provided for the disposition of dividends and unclaimed deposits remaining in the hands of the commissioner of banks so that this section is repugnant to section 218(c) and superseded by it.

§ 218(e). Statute relating to receivers applicable to insolvent banks. — Article ten, chapter twenty-two of the Consolidated Statutes relating to receivers, when not inconsistent with the provisions of § 218(c), shall apply to liquidation of insolvent banks. (1921, c. 4, s. 19; 1923, c. 148, s. 4; 1931, c. 215.)

Editor's Note.—Since section 218(c) now provides that the duties formerly performed by receivers shall hereafter be performed by the commissioner of banks and his agents, it had been thought that this section was superseded. See note under such section. However, it would seem that the amendment of the section by the Act of 1931 was legislative recognition that it had not been superseded.

Effect in General.—This section serves to confer upon the commissioner of Banks possession and the right to possession of all property, rights, etc., with certain enumerated powers together with such incidental powers as are necessary to a sale of the insolvent bank's assets. Blades v. Hood, 203 N. C. 56, 164 S. E. 828.

§ 218(f). Books, records, etc., disposition of.— All books, papers, and records of a bank which has been finally liquidated shall be deposited by the receiver in the office of the clerk of the superior court for the county in which the office of such bank is located, or in such other place as in his judgment will provide for the proper safekeeping and protection of such books, papers, and records. The books, papers, and records herein referred to shall be held subject to the orders of the commissioner of banks and the clerk of the superior court for the county in which such bank was located. (1921, c. 4, s. 20; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—Section 218(c) as amended substitutes the commissioner of banks and his agents for receivers and there are no longer any receivers appointed in connection with the liquidation of banks. There are no provisions in section 218(c) as amended which correspond to this section.

This section is certainly modified, to the extent that the commissioner of banks or his agents are inserted in the place of receivers. See note to § 218(e).

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 218(g). Appointment of substitute trustees for insolvent banks in certain instruments requiring trustees.—Whenever any bank or trust company created under the laws of this State, which has heretofore been, or shall hereafter be, appointed trustee in any indenture, deed of trust or other instrument of like character, executed to secure the payment of any bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness, has been or shall be by reason of insolvency, or for any other cause provided by law, taken over for liquidation by the corporation commission of this State or by any other legally constituted authority, the powers and duties of such bank or trust company as trustee in any such instrument shall, upon the entry of an order of the Clerk of the superior court appointing a successor trustee, upon a petition as hereinafter provided, immediately cease and determine. (1931, c. 250, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The authority to liquidate banks is now vested in the commissioner of banks. See secs. 221(o) et seq.

§ 218(h). Petition for new trustee; service upon parties interested.—In all cases of such insolvency and liquidation mentioned in the preceding section of this act, the clerk of the superior court of any county in which such indenture, deed of trust or other instrument of like character is recorded shall, and he is hereby fully authorized and empowered so to do, upon the verified petition of any person interested in any such trust, either as trustee, beneficiary or otherwise, which interest shall be set out in said petition, enter an order directing service on all interested parties either personally or by the publication in some newspaper published in the county, or in some adjoining county if no newspaper is published in the county where such application is made, of a notice directed to all persons concerned, commanding and requiring all persons having any interest in said trust, to be and appear at his office at a day designated in said order and notice, not less than thirty days from the date thereof, and show cause why a new trustee shall not be appointed. (1931, c. 250, s. 2.)

§ 218(i). Publication and contents of notice.— Such notice shall be published in the manner required by law for service of summons by publication, and shall set forth the names of the parties to the indenture, deed of trust or other such instrument, the date thereof, and the place or places where the same is recorded. (1931, c. 250, s. 3.)

§ 218(j). Appointment where no objection made.—If, upon the day fixed in said notice, no person shall appear and object to the appointment of a substitute trustee, the clerk shall, upon such terms as he deems advisable to the best interest of all parties, appoint some competent person, or corporation authorized to act as such, substituted trustee, who shall be vested with and shall exercise all the powers conferred upon the trustee named in said instrument. (1931, c. 250, s. 4.)

§ 218(k). Hearing where objection made; appeal from order.—If objection shall be made to the appointment of a new trustee, the clerk shall hear and determine the matter, and from his decision an appeal may be prosecuted as in case of special proceedings generally. (1931, c. 250, s. 5.)

§ 218(l). Registration of final order.—The final order of appointment of such new trustees shall be certified by the clerk of the superior court in which such order is entered and shall be recorded in the office of the register of deeds in the county or counties in which the instrument under which such appointment has been made is recorded, and a minute of the same shall be entered by the register of deeds on the margin of the record where said original instrument is recorded. (1931, c. 250, s. 6.)

§ 218(m). Petition and order applicable to all instruments involved.—The petition and the order appointing such new trustee may include and relate and apply to any number of indentures, deeds of trust or other instruments, wherein the same trustee is named. (1931, c. 250, s. 7.)

§ 218(n). Additional remedy.—Sections 218(g)-218(m) shall be in addition to and not in substitution for any other remedy provided by law. (1931, c. 250, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—As the remedy provided is cumulative, the statute should be read in connection with §§ 2583(a)-2583(h). And see § 218(p). N. C. Law Rev. 403.

§ 218(o). Validation of acts of officers of insolvent banks as trustees in deeds of trust.—Whenever any state bank, prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one, shall have become insolvent and its assets and business been placed in the hands of the corporation commission or taken control of by the corporation commission for liquidation, and the board of directors of said bank shall have thereafter by resolution authorized or directed the officers of said bank or some of them to perform or exercise in the name of the bank as trustee any power or duty of such bank as trustee under any deed in trust to it recorded in any county in this State: Provided, said resolution was passed prior to the eleventh day of May, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one, the performance or exercise of any such power or duty heretofore or hereafter by any officer or officers so authorized shall be effective and binding on all parties concerned as the act of such bank as trustee as aforesaid, to the same extent and in the same manner as if such bank had not become insolvent and its assets and business had not been placed in the hands of the corporation commission or taken control of by the corporation commission for liquidation. (1931, c. 403.)

§ 218(p). Validation of sales by corporation commission under mortgages, etc., to banks being liquidated.—Whenever it appears that either the North Carolina corporation commission, the chief state bank examiner, or any liquidating agent appointed pursuant to the provisions of Public Laws 1927, c. 113 [§ 218(c)], has undertaken to exercise the power of sale set up in any mortgage, deed of trust, or other written instrument for the security of the payment of money in which any bank then in liquidation was named trustee, the said acts including the acts of resigning the trust, of the North Carolina corporation commission and/or chief state bank examiner, and/or liquidating agent appointed as aforesaid, are hereby validated and declared to be of the same force and effect as if done by the bank named as trustee in the mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument. (1931, c. 132.)

Editor's Note.—This section, which validates sales by the commission and its representatives in the course of liquidation of insolvent banks, when the power of sale was originally granted to such a bank before the state took it over, appears to have been intended to overcome the effect of the case of Mitchell v. Shuford, 200 N. C. 321, 156 S. E. 513, which held that the commission had no such authority. In view, however, of this case, and of Booth v. Hairston, 193 N. C. 278, 136 S. E. 879; s. c., 195 N. C. 8, 141 S. E. 480, doubt is cast upon the constitutionality of the validating act. Upon the rehearing of the latter case, Judge Brogden said: "* * * but the power to cure a crippled instrument, having at least a spark of legal life, does not extend to raising a legal corpse from the dead." It is believed, however, that if more emphasis is placed upon the need for a dependable device for translating the security into a satisfaction of the debt, which is all the deed of trust or mortgage amounted to, than upon questions of title or contracts, that the facts of the situation aimed at by the validating act can be distinguished.

Compare this statute with §§ 92(d), 1210(a)-1210(c). The future policy is stated in §§ 218(g) et seq., and in the 1931 Amendment to § 218(c), subsection 7. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 401, 402.

§ 218(p) 1. Commissioner to report to secretary of state certain matters relative to liquidation of closed banks; publication.—The commissioner of banks of the state of North Carolina shall on or before the first day of June, 1933, and on the first day of January and July of each year thereafter file with the secretary of the state of North Carolina a report showing all banks under liquidation in the state of North Carolina, and the names of any and all auditors together with the amounts paid to them for auditing each of said banks, and the names of any and all attorneys employed in connection with the liquidation of said banks together with the amount paid or contracted to be paid to each of said attorneys. If any attorney has been employed on a fee contingent upon recovery said report must state in substance the contract.

Within five days from the receipt of said report the secretary of the state of North Carolina shall cause same to be published one time in some newspaper published in each county in which a bank or banks are under liquidation, if there be a newspaper published in said county. If not, the secretary of the state of North Carolina shall cause a copy of said report to be posted at the courthouse door in said county. (1933, c. 483.)

Art. 3A. Reopening of Closed Banks

§ 218(q). Conditions under which banks may re-open.—No bank or banking institution which has been taken in possession by the commissioner of banks under the provisions of the State banking laws shall be reopened to receive deposits or for the transaction of a banking business unless and until:

(a) The bank has been completely restored to solvency;

(b) The capital stock, if impaired, has been entirely restored in cash;

(c) It shall clearly appear to the commissioner of banks that such bank may be reopened with safety to the public and such reopening is necessary to serve the business interests of the community. (1931, c. 388, s. 1.)

See § 218(b) and note thereto.

§ 218(r). Re-opening of banks already authorized to do so.—The advisory banking commission is authorized to permit the reopening, prior to June first, nineteen hundred and thirty-one, of any bank or banking institution which North Carolina corporation commission has heretofore authorized to reopen; and the provisions of § 218(q) shall not prevent the reopening of such bank or banking institution. (1931, c. 388, s. 2.)

§ 218(s). Supervision of Advisory Banking Commission over deposits and stock of reopened banks.—In the case of any bank or banking institution which has heretofore reopened under authority of North Carolina corporation commission or which shall in the future reopen under the provisions of § 218(r) the advisory banking commission may in its discretion prescribe the terms and conditions under which such bank or banking institution may receive deposits during such period as its capital shall be impaired, and may further prescribe the terms and conditions under which stock of said bank or banking institution may be transferred during said period. (1931, c. 388, s. 3.)

§ 218(t). Existing contracts between banks and depositors unaffected.—Nothing in §§ 218(q)-218(s) shall impair or affect any contracts made by banks and its depositors heretofore reopened under the permission of the state banking department. (1931, c. 388, s. 4.)

trators, guardians, trustees, commissioners, and others, occupying and acting in fiduciary capacities be and they are hereby authorized and empowered to sign in their fiduciary capacities any agreement offered to depositors intended and designed to enable any bank, national or state, doing business in North Carolina prior to March sixth, nineteen hundred and thirty-three, to reopen: Provided the plan for the reopening of such bank has been first approved by the comptroller of the currency in the case of national banks, by the commissioner of banks in the case of state banks, and: Provided further, that such fiduciary first obtain the consent and approval of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such fiduciary was appointed and of the resident judge, or the judge holding the courts of the judicial district in which such county is situate, such consent and approval to be entered upon the original record of the appointment of such fiduciaries in the counties in which such fiduciaries were appointed: Provided, that nothing in this act shall be construed to release the bondsman of any such guardian, ward or other fiduciary signing such release. (1933, c. 267.)

Art. 3B. Sale of Deposits in Closed Banks

§ 218(v). Purchasers may offset against debts due bank.—Any person, firm or corporation, society or organization, by whatsoever name designated, having any moneys or funds on deposit in any bank in Buncombe, Cherokee, Craven, Halifax, Haywood, Henderson, Jackson, Johnston, Macon, Robeson, Rutherford, Sampson, Stanly, Wilson and Transylvania, Alexander, Avery, Beaufort, Bertie, Bladen, Camden, Carteret, Catawba, Chatham, Chowan, Cleveland, Duplin, Edgecombe and all the municipalities therein with the exception of the town of Pine Tops, Gaston, Gates, Hertford, Hoke, Jones, Lee, Lenoir, Lincoln, Mecklenburg, Montgomery, Moore, Nash, New Hanover, Northampton, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt, Polk, Richmond, Rockingham, Scotland, Stokes, Tyrrell, Wayne, Wilkes Counties, North Carolina, that is now closed, which has been closed eighteen months or longer prior to the ratification of the amendment of this section, and which has not paid its depositors and other creditors in full, shall, from and after the ratification of this act, have authority to sell and convey such accounts or deposits to any person, firm or corporation that may desire to purchase same and who owe such closed banks any money, and such person, firm or corporation purchasing such account or deposit shall be entitled to apply such account or deposit to the discharge of any debts owing by them to such closed banks at the full face value of such account or deposit. (Public Local Laws 1933, c. 344; 1933, c. 540, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Public Local Laws 1931, c. 344 applicable only to Buncombe County was amended by Public Laws, c. 540, s. 1, ratified May 15, 1933, so as to apply to the other counties named, and to banks which had been closed eighteen months or longer.

For act applicable only to Robeson County, see Public Laws 1933, c. 541, amending c. 540, s. 2.

Section Held Unconstitutional.—This section allowing purchased claims for deposits to be used at face value to pay debts to certain closed banks was held unconstitutional and void in In re Central Bank, etc., Co., 205 N. C. 822, 172 S. E. 484. And see Edgerton v. Hood, 205 N. C. 816, 172 S. E. 481; Pritchard v. Hood, 205 N. C. 790, 172 S. E. 485.

Art. 4. Stockholders

Editor's Note.—Except for the last sentence, the terms of this section are covered by sections 217(f), (g). The last sentence is quoted in the note under section 217(g). Therefore the terms of this section are not set out in full. See the editor's notes under sections 217(f), (g).

§ 219(a). Stockholders, individual liability of.—The stockholders of every bank organized under the laws of North Carolina, whether under the general law or by special act, shall be individually responsible, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts, and engagements of such corporation, to the extent of the amount of their stocks therein at par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares, except as otherwise provided. The term stockholders, when used in this chapter, shall apply not only to such persons as appear by the books of the corporation to be stockholders, but also to every owner of stock, legal or equitable, although the same may be on such books in the name of another person; but shall not apply to a person who may hold the stock as collateral for the payment of a debt. Such additional liability as is provided in this section shall cease on July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, with respect to any shares which may have been or may hereafter be issued. (1921, c. 4, s. 21; 1933, c. 159; 1935, c. 99, s. 1.)

As to liability of officers under § 224(g) as asset, see note to § 224(g).

Editor's Note.—This section is very similar to C. S. sec. 237, the prior law, except that the words "one for another" were inserted by the 1921 act. This section and sec. 219(c) were formerly included in sec. 237.

Public Laws 1933, c. 159 added the words "except as otherwise provided," appearing at the end of the first sentence of the section.

The amendment of 1935 added the last sentence of this section relating to the time the additional liability shall cease. Sections 2 and 3 of the amendatory act provide for notice to creditors of the release from double liability and for release of securities by the commissioner of banks.

Liability of Directors under Agreement.—The agreement of the directors to make good the impairment of the capital stock of a state bank as a condition precedent to the management of its business by its own officers, and at the instance of the State Bank Examiner, acting according to the power conferred by sec. 218(c) upon the Corporation Commission, renders such directors, as stockholders, liable to the extent of the obligations they have thus assumed, this liability is independent of, and not contemplated by, this section creating an additional liability to the amount of stock held by them in the banking corporation. Taylor v. Everett, 188 N. C. 247, 124 S. E. 316.

Liability Contractual.—The liability of stockholders of a bank, organized under the laws of this State, by virtue of this section, is contractual. Smathers v. Bank, 135 N. C. 410, 47 S. E. 893; Corporation Comm. v. Farmers, etc., Bank, 192 N. C. 366, 369, 135 S. E. 48.

Liability as Asset of Bank.—The term "assets," as applied to a bank, is broad enough to cover anything which is or may be available to pay creditors; but, as usually understood, it refers to the tangible property of the corporation, and not to the liability of stockholders contingent upon insolvency. Hill v. Smathers, 173 N. C. 642, 92 S. E. 607.

But the liability provided by the statute against the stockholders is not considered an asset or right of the corporation. Corporation Comm. v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 193 N. C. 113, 116, 136 S. E. 362.

So as employed in the statute, the term was not intended to include the double liability of stockholders, or else the expression "other assets" would have been used, as such liability is given only for the benefit of creditors and not for the benefit of the corporation. Corporation Comm. v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 193 N. C. 113, 116, 136 S. E. 362.

Same—As Prequisite to Fixing Other Contingent Liabilities.—The word "assets," in a bank receiver's judgment on notes against its former directors who had executed the notes in favor of the bank to relieve the institution of an amount of worthless paper, which judgment suspended execution till plaintiff had proceeded with the collection of the bank's assets and found them insufficient to discharge the bank's obligations, did not include the statutory liability of the bank's stockholders under this section. Hill v. Smathers, 173 N. C. 642, 92 S. E. 607.

But in such a case execution could issue when the receiver had proceeded far enough to ascertain that the assets would be insufficient, though he had not reduced every dollar of the bank's assets to actual cash. Hill v. Smathers, 173 N. C. 642, 92 S. E. 607.

Each shareholder is entitled to have the amount he is chargeable with lawfully determined, and when this has been done, he may pay it and be discharged from further liability without incurring costs in the proceedings. Corporation Comm. v. Farmers, etc., Bank, 192 N. C. 366, 135 S. E. 48.

Perquisites to Fixing Liability.—The shareholders in an insolvent bank in the hands of a receiver may not be assessed by their additional liability to the par value of their shares until the value of the bank's assets in proportion to its debts has been ascertained. Corporation Comm. v. Merchants Banks, etc., Co., 193 N. C. 113, 36 S. E. 362. The term "assets" as here used includes the personal liability of the officers of the bank for a negligent failure to perform their duties. Corp. Comm. v. Bank, etc., Co., supra.

Suit to Enforce Assessed Liability—Costs.—Where the assessments had been duly made against the individual stockholders under sections 239, 240 [now superseded by section 218(c)], the receiver under the order of court could have instituted an independent action against the shareholders in default for its payment, and if successful the costs of this action were taxable against such stockholders, but not those incurred in the original proceeding under the provisions of C. S. 240. Corporation Comm. v. Farmer's, etc., Bank, 192 N. C. 366, 135 S. E. 48.

The statutory liability does not constitute a priority for payment out of the assets of the estate of a deceased stockholder. Hood v. Darden, 206 N. C. 566, 174 S. E. 460.

Entry on Books of Bank as Evidence of Ownership—Rebuttal.—Entry on the books of a bank of the issuance of stock to the defendant sought to be held for his statutory liability is only prima facie evidence that the defendant is such owner, which may be rebutted by his evidence, and a verdict directed against him upon conflicting evidence is reversible error. Corporation Comm. v. Harris, 197 N. C. 202, 148 S. E. 174.

In an action to recover a stockholder's statutory liability under this section, evidence tending to show that he had not subscribed for the stock, had received no dividends nor acted as such owner is sufficient to take the case to the jury in rebuttal of the prima facie case raised by his appearing on the books of the bank as a subscriber to its stock, and alone furnishes no evidence of ratification or estoppel. Corporation Comm. v. Harris, 197 N. C. 202, 148 S. E. 174.

The books of a bank establish, prima facie, who are stockholders therein, and those whose names appear thereon as stockholders are ordinarily liable, upon the bank's becoming insolvent, for the statutory liability imposed upon them by this section. Corporation Comm. v. McLean, 202 N. C. 77, 161 S. E. 854.

Defenses—Misrepresentation as to Solvency.—While upon the issue raised in an action by the receiver of an insolvent bank to enforce individual liability of a shareholder, the defense that the subscription was obtained by the fraudulent representations of an officer of the bank as to its solvency, is available but must be acted upon promptly and with due diligence, the question being one for a jury. Chamberlain v. Trogden, 148 N. C. 139, 61 S. E. 628; Corporation Comm. v. Bank, 193 N. C. 113, 114, 136 S. E. 362.

Same—Transfers.—See § 219(d) and notes thereto.

Claims of depositors cannot be offset against the statutory liability on stock under this section, only dividends on such claims being so applicable, and § 218(v) has no application. Pritchard v. Hood, 205 N. C. 790, 172 S. E. 485.

Return of Assessment to Stockholders.—By reason of the liability under this section, stockholders are not entitled to a return to them of any part of the amounts which they have paid to the commissioner of banks, in discharge of such liability, until all the claims of depositors and other creditors against the bank, including interest, on the amounts of such claims from the date on which the said commission took possession of the assets of the insolvent bank for liquidation, have been paid. Hackney v. Hood, 203 N. C. 486, 489, 166 S. E. 323.

Period of Limitation.—Section 423, under which action must be brought against a stockholder of a bank since becoming insolvent to enforce the additional liability on his shares of stock imposed by this section was by the acts of 1921, extended to an action by the receiver to recover therefor to ten years from the discovery of the condition of the insolvent bank as provided in section 240. Litchfield v. Roper, 192 N. C. 202, 134 S. E. 651. This provision was probably repealed by section 218(c), see editor's note to such section.

When Trustee Liable—Notice to Corporation.—No person who appears upon the records of a bank as a stockholder therein is relieved of personal liability under this section, by virtue of the provisions of section 219(c), unless the said record, or the stock certificate issued to him, shows that he holds the said stock as trustee for a cestui que trust named on the record or in the certificate. American Trust Co. v. Jenkins, 193 N. C. 761, 766, 138 S. E. 139.

Depositors and creditors have a right to look to those whose names appear on the books of the bank as having stock therein for the amount of the statutory liability and a person having stock issued to him in his own name, and it so appears upon the books, cannot escape such liability on this ground that in fact he held said stock as trustee for an undisclosed cestui que trust, and that the officers of the bank knew of the trusteeship. American Trust Co. v. Jenkins, 193 N. C. 761, 138 S. E. 139.

It is immaterial when the rights of depositors and creditors of the bank are involved that its officers had notice of the trusteeship. The liability imposed by statute upon stockholders of a bank is for the benefit of depositors and creditors, and not of the bank. Smathers Western Carolina v. Bank, 155 N. C. 283, 71 S. E. 345. Notice to the bank is not necessarily notice to depositors or creditors. American Trust Co. v. Jenkins, 193 N. C. 761, 766, 138 S. E. 139.

§ 219(a) 1. New state banks to set up surplus fund in lieu of double assessment.—The common stockholders of any bank hereafter organized under the laws of the state of North Carolina shall pay in, in cash, a surplus fund in lieu of the additional liability imposed upon such common stockholders by section 21, chapter 4, Public Laws of 1921 or section 1, chapter 121, Public Laws of 1925 [§§ 219(a) and 225(o) of this Code], which surplus fund shall equal fifty per centum of its common capital stock, and said bank shall from the funds then in its hands purchase bonds of the state of North Carolina or the United States of America equal in face value to fifty per centum of the par value of the common capital stock of such bank, which bonds shall be deposited with a federal reserve bank or other bank approved by the commissioner of banks for such purpose, and such bonds and all bonds substituted or exchanged therefor shall be held by the receiving bank for the sole benefit of the creditors of said depositing bank in case of liquidation. The federal reserve bank or other bank shall issue its receipt therefor in the manner and form to be provided for by the commissioner of banks. The interest on the said bonds shall be invested in bonds of the state of North Carolina or the United States of America until the original investment and subsequent investments shall equal, in face value of such bonds, the total amount of the common capital stock of such bank, after which time the interest on such bonds shall be paid to the bank. Whenever any substitution or exchange is made in the bonds deposited, such substitution or exchange shall be of bonds of the state of North Carolina or the United States of America of equal par value. (1933, c. 159, s. 2; 1935, c. 79, s. 1.)

§ 219(a) 2. Existing banks may make same provision. — Any bank organized and operating under the laws of the state of North Carolina upon the date of the ratification of this act, may provide, in lieu of the additional or double liability of its common stockholders provided in section 21, chapter 4, Public Laws 1921 or section 1, chapter 121, Public Laws 1925 [§§ 219(a) and 225(o) of this Code], a fund for the purpose of purchasing bonds of the state of North Carolina or of the United States of America for deposit as hereinbefore provided for new banks organized under the laws of the state of North Carolina in the following manner:

(a) Whenever the commissioner of banks shall certify that in his opinion its unimpaired common capital and surplus funds equal one hundred and fifty per centum of the par value of its common capital stock, the stockholders at a regular meeting or at a special meeting called for the purpose may, by a majority vote of each class of stockholders voting as a class, approve such action.

(b) Notice of such action on the part of the stockholders shall be published in some newspaper published in the city or town where the bank is located or if no paper is published in the city or town, then in a newspaper published in the county or in a newspaper having general circulation in said county, once each week for a period of ninety days immediately following such action by the stockholders.

(c) Upon completion of the publication herein provided the board of directors may approve such action of the stockholders and thereupon file with the commissioner of banks certified copy of (1) the action of the stockholders, (2) the notice, (3) affidavit of publication, and (4) action of the board of directors.

(d) The commissioner of banks shall, having first determined that the financial condition of such bank will not be weakened by such action, issue his order to the board of directors of the bank, which shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the bank operates, authorizing such action and investment.

The investment, when made, shall be in like manner and for the same purposes as provided herein in the case of the organization of new banks, and shall be held and maintained as in such cases herein provided. (1933, c. 159, s. 3; 1935, c. 79, ss. 1, 2.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added the word "common" wherever it appears in the section preceding the words "stockholders" and "capital stock." The amendment also added the clause at the end of subdivision (a) reading "of each class of stockholders voting as a class."

§ 219(a) 3. Provisions mandatory on banks hereafter organized.—No new bank organized under the laws of the state of North Carolina shall be permitted to operate until it has complied with the provisions hereof. The common stockholders of any bank organized and operating under the laws of the state of North Carolina upon the date of the ratification of this act which shall fully comply with the provisions hereof, shall be by such full compliance relieved of the common stockholders' additional or double liability imposed by section 21, chapter 4, Public Laws of 1921, or section 1, chapter 121, Public Laws of 1925 [§§ 219(a) and 225(o) of this Code]. The compliance herewith shall be deemed to be complete upon the acceptance by the commissioner of banks of the receipt herein provided for. (1933, c. 159, s. 4; 1935, c. 79, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added the word "common" wherever it appears in the section preceding the words "stockholders" and "capital stock."

§ 219(a) 4. Supervision of commissioner of banks.—Any advertisement, on the part of any bank now or hereafter to be organized and operating under the laws of the state of North Carolina, having reference to the surplus fund herein provided for, shall be subject to the approval and regulation of the commissioner of banks. (1933, c. 159, s. 5.)

§ 219(b). Exemption from liability, repealing of.—Any exemption from the individual liability imposed upon stockholders by section 219(a) contained in the charter of any bank incorporated prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and five, is repealed. (1921, c. 4, s. 22.)

Editor's Note.—This section is a re-enactment of C. S. sec. 238 except that a provision was changed from January 1903 to January 1905.

§ 219(c). Executors, trustees, etc., not personally liable.—Persons holding stock as executors, administrators, guardians, or trustees shall not personally be subject to any liabilities as stockholders, but the estate and funds in their hands shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator, intestate, ward, or person interested in such trust fund would be if living and competent to hold stock in his own name. (1921, c. 4, s. 23.)

Editor's Note.—This section is a substantial re-enactment of the latter part of C. S. sec. 237.

Extent of Section.—This provision is held to refer not only to trustees appointed by will, or by order of a court or of a judge, but to any trust relation, however created. But the exemption is limited to cases of express and active trusts, where there is a probability of some estate to respond to the liability; it does not apply where the bank's records show an unincumbered title in the alleged trustee as is contemplated by § 219(a). American Trust Co. v. Jenkins, 193 N. C. 761, 765, 138 S. E. 139.

In Smathers v. Western Carolina Bank, 155 N. C. 283, 71 S. E. 345, it was held that by reason of this statute, a person to whom a certificate for shares of the capital stock in a bank was issued, showing on its face that he held the said shares as trustee for a cestui que trust, also named in the certificate, is not liable personally as a stockholder in an action by the receiver of the bank to recover judgment upon the statutory liability of stockholders. American Trust Co. v. Jenkins, 193 N. C. 761, 764, 138 S. E. 139.

See Corporation Comm. v. Latham, 201 N. C. 342, 343, 160 S. E. 295, following the statement under this catchline in the Code of 1931.

§ 219(d). Transferrer not liable, when.—No person who has in good faith, and without intent to evade his liability as a stockholder, transferred his stock on the books of the corporation to any person of full age, previous to any default in the payment of any debt or liability of the corporation, shall be subject to any personal liability on account of the nonpayment of such debt or liability of the corporation, but the transferee of any stock so transferred previous to any default shall be liable for any such debt or liability of the corporation to the extent of such stock, in the same manner, as if he had been such owner at the time the corporation contracted such debt or liability: Provided, that no transfer of the shares of stock of an insolvent state bank, made within sixty days prior to its suspension, shall operate to release or discharge the assignor thereof, but shall be prima facie evidence that such stockholder assigned the same with knowledge of the insolvency of such bank and with an intent to evade the liability thereon. (1921, c. 4, s. 24.)

Editor's Note.—This section is a substantial re-enactment of sec. 241 of the C. S., the prior law upon the subject. However, the proviso changed the time limit from thirty to sixty days.

Sale as Affecting Liability.—A stockholder is not relieved of his statutory liability by the sale of his stock. He remains subject to such liability so long as the shares of stock stand in his name upon the books of the bank. He can be relieved of such liability only by a transfer of such shares to a purchaser in accordance with the provisions of the statutes. American Trust Co. v. Jenkins, 193 N. C. 761, 767, 138 S. E. 139.

A subscriber to the shares of stock of a bank is not relieved of his statutory liability thereon by selling the stock unless the transfer is made on the books of the bank in accordance with the statute. Corporation Comm. v. Harris, 197 N. C. 202, 148 S. E. 174.

But where one sold his stock in a bank, assigning his shares on the certificate to the purchaser, and sometime thereafter the bank became insolvent, whereupon he was assessed with the shares which still stood in his name on the books of the bank owing to the neglect of the transfer-agent to reissue the shares to the purchaser, such ostensible owner should be relieved of the assessment. Darden v. Coward, 197 N. C. 35, 147 S. E. 671, distinguishing Trust Co. v. Jenkins, 193 N. C. 761, 138 S. E. 139.

See note under § 219(a).

Same—How Transfer Accomplished.—It is required of a person selling shares of stock of a bank to escape personal liability under the provisions of this section to surrender the possession of the shares to be transferred to the proper officials of the bank in order that they may be properly transferred on the books to the purchaser. American Trust Co. v. Jenkins, 193 N. C. 761, 138 S. E. 139.

A transfer of bank stock to an infant does not relieve the transferer of his statutory liability, under this section, an infant being incapable of making a binding contract. In re Goldsboro Sav., etc., Co., 203 N. C. 238, 165 S. E. 705.

Trust Created in Good Faith.—Where the owner of shares of stock in a bank transfers some of his stock to his sons in trust for his grandchildren, but there is nothing on the books of the bank to indicate for whom the trust was created, and the transfer is regularly made in good faith when the bank was solvent, Held: upon the bank becoming insolvent the transferer is not liable under this section for the statutory assessment against the stock. Corporation Comm. v. Latham, 201 N. C. 342, 160 S. E. 295.

Where the owner of bank stock has had the shares transferred on the books of the bank to a trustee for the benefit of a minor, and the transfer is made in good faith when the bank is solvent: Held, the transferer is not liable for the statutory assessment of the stock upon the bank's insolvency, the trustee being of full age and qualified to perform all the duties required of him in his fiduciary capacity. In re Goldsboro Sav., etc., Co., 203 N. C. 238, 165 S. E. 705.

§ 219(e). Stock sold if subscription unpaid.— Whenever any stockholder, or his assignee, fails to pay any installment on the stock, when the same is required by law to be paid, the directors of the bank shall sell the stock of such delinquent stockholder at public or private sale, as they may deem best, having first given the delinquent stockholder twenty days notice, personally or by mail, at his last known address. If no party can be found who will pay for such stock the amount due thereon to the bank with any additional indebtedness of such stockholder to the bank, the amount previously paid shall be forfeited to the bank, and such stock shall be sold, as the directors may order, within thirty days of the time of such forfeiture, and if not sold, it shall be canceled and deducted from the capital stock of the bank. (1921, c. 4, s. 25.)

Editor's Note.—This section is a substantial re-enactment of C. S. sec. 243, the prior law, except that the sale limit allowed the directors was changed from six months to thirty days.

§ 219(f). Impairment of capital; assessments, etc. — The commissioner of banks shall notify every bank whose capital shall have become impaired from losses or any other cause, and the surplus and undivided profits of such bank are insufficient to make good such impairment, to make the impairment good within sixty days of such notice by an assessment upon the stockholders thereof, and it shall be the duty of the officers and directors of the bank receiving such notice to immediately call a special meeting of the stockholders for the purpose of making an assessment upon its stockholders sufficient to cover the impairment of the capital, payable in cash, at which meeting such assessment shall be made: Provided, that such bank may reduce its capital to the extent of the impairment, as provided in section 217 (j). If any stockholder of such bank neglects or refuses to pay such assessment as herein provided, it shall be the duty of the board of directors to cause a sufficient amount of the capital stock of such stockholder or stockholders to be sold at public auction, upon thirty days notice given by posting such notice of sale in the office of the bank and by publishing such notice in a newspaper in the place where the bank is located, and if none therein, a newspaper circulating in the county in which the bank is located, to make good the deficiency, and the balance, if any, shall be returned to the delinquent shareholder or shareholders. If any such bank shall fail to cause to be paid in such deficiency in its capital stock for three months after receiving such notice from the commissioner of banks, the commissioner of banks may forthwith take possession of the property and business of such bank until its affairs be finally liquidated as provided by law. A sale of stock, as provided in this section, shall effect an absolute cancellation of the outstanding certificate or certificates evidencing the stock so sold, and shall make the certificate null and void, and a new certificate shall be issued by the bank to the purchaser of such stock; but in the event the stock of any stockholder be sold as hereinbefore provided, and the said stock when sold fails to bring the amount of the assessment against said stockholder, then, and in such event, the said stockholder shall be personally liable for the difference between the amount of said assessment and the price brought by the sale of said stock. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 56, s. 3; 1925, c. 117; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

As to the amount of reserve required see secs. 220(f), (g).

As to manner of liquidating banks, see sec. 218(c).

Editor's Note.—This section first appeared in the act of 1921, ch. 56, amending the act of 1921, ch. 4. Its provisions are substantially similar to the national banking act which was designed principally for the purpose of strengthening banks whose capital has become impaired. See Elon Banking, etc. v. Burk, 189 N. C. 69, 126 S. E. 163.

The 1925 amendment added the last nine lines, beginning with the word "but" after the semicolon. This was added to overcome the construction placed upon this section by the case cited above. See annotations following in this note.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

Rules of Construction.—This statute creates a new liability and provides a special remedy for its enforcement, viz., the sale of stock if the stockholder fails to pay assessment. This remedy is exclusive and actions or proceedings ordinarily available may not be resorted to. So a personal action against the stockholder for the difference between the price for which the stock sold and the amount of the assessment cannot be maintained. Elon Banking, etc., Co., v. Burke, 189 N. C. 69, 126 S. E. 163.

The effect of the holding that a personal action for the difference cannot be maintained was destroyed by the 1925 amendment which specifically provides for such an action, but the general rules laid down for the construction of this section remain applicable.—Ed. Note.

"Payable in Cash" Construed.—The expression "payable in cash" merely means that the account is presently due, and its payment may be presently enforced, but only by the methods the statute specifies. Elon Banking, etc., Co. v. Burk, 189 N. C. 69, 126 S. E. 163.

As to necessity of making good an impaired reserve, see § 222(i).

Art. 5. Powers and Duties

Editor's Note. — Section 220(a) is the corresponding section in the more recent law. While not all the provisions of this section were repealed in that section, it is a substantial re-enactment, and since the editor's note to it points out the provisions not repealed, this section is not here set out.

§ 220(a). General powers.—In addition to the powers conferred by law upon private corporations, banks shall have the power:

1. To exercise by its board of directors, or duly authorized officers and agents, subject to law, all such powers as shall be necessary to carry on the business of banking, by discounting and negotiating promissory notes, drafts, bills of exchange, and other evidences of indebtedness, by receiving deposits, by buying and selling exchange, coin, and bullion, by loaning money on personal security or real and personal property. Such corporations at the time of making loans or discounts may take and receive interest or discounts in advance.

2. To adopt regulations for the government of the corporation not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state.

3. To purchase, hold, and convey real estate for the following purposes:

(a) Such as shall be necessary for the convenient transaction of its business, including furniture and fixtures, with its banking offices and other apartments to rent as a source of income, which investment shall not exceed fifty per cent of its paid-in capital stock and permanent surplus: Provided, that this provision shall not apply to any such investment made before the ninth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one. Provided further, that the commissioner of banks may in his discretion authorize the continuance of investments made prior to the first day of February, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five, of the character described in this paragraph: Provided, further, that the commissioner of banks may, in his discretion, authorize any bank located in a city having a population of more than ten thousand according to the last United States census, to invest more than fifty percent of its capital and permanent surplus in its banking house, furniture, and fixtures.

(b) Such as is mortgaged to it in good faith by way of security for loans made or moneys due to such banks.

(c) Such as has been purchased at sales upon foreclosures of mortgages and deeds of trust held or owned by it, or on judgments or decrees obtained and rendered for debts due to it, or in settlements affecting security of such debts. All real property referred to in this subsection shall be sold by such bank within one year after it is acquired, unless, upon application by the board of directors, the commissioner of banks extends the time within which such sale shall be made. Any and all powers and privileges heretofore granted and given to any person, firm, or corporation doing a banking business in connection with a fiduciary and insurance business, or the right to deal to any extent in real estate, inconsistent with this chapter, are hereby repealed.

4. Nothing contained in this section shall be deemed to authorize banking corporations to engage in the business of dealing in investment securities, either directly or through subsidiary corporations: Provided, however, that the term "dealing in investment securities" as used herein, shall not be deemed to include the purchasing and selling of securities without recourse, solely upon order, and for the account of, customers; and provided further, that "investment securities," as used herein, shall not be deemed to include obligations of the United States, or general obligations of any state or of any political subdivision thereof, or of cities, towns, or other corporate municipalities of any state or obligations issued under authority of the Federal Farm Loan Act, as amended, or issued by the Federal Home Loan Banks or the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. Any provision in conflict with this subdivision contained in the Articles of Incorporation heretofore issued to any banking corporation is hereby revoked.

5. Subject to the approval of the commissioner of banks and on the authority of its board of directors, or a majority thereof, to enter into such contracts, incur such obligations and generally to do and perform any and all such acts and things whatsoever as may be necessary or appropriate in order to take advantage of any and all memberships, loans, subscriptions, contracts, grants, rights or privileges, which may at any time be available or inure to banking institutions, or to their depositors, creditors, stockholders, conservators, receivers or liquidators, by virtue of those provisions of section eight of the Federal Banking Act of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (section twelve B of the Federal Reserve Act as amended) which establish the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and provide for the insurance of deposits, or of any other provisions of that or any other act or resolution of congress to aid, regulate or safeguard banking institutions and their depositors, including any amendments of the same or any substitutions therefor; also, to subscribe for and acquire any stock, debentures, bonds or other types of securities of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and to comply with the lawful regulations and requirements from time to time issued or made by such corporation. (1921, c. 4, s. 26; 1923, c. 148, s. 5; 1924, c. 67; 1925, c. 279; 1927, c. 47, s. 5; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1933, c. 303; 1935, c. 81, s. 1, c. 82.)

ment of C. S., sec. 220. However there are several material changes. Subsection 2 was inserted; the date behind which investments are exempt from the section as now provided in clause (a) of subsection 3 was changed from 1903 to 1921, the second proviso permitting the commission to authorize the continuance of investments made prior to 1923 being inserted in 1924 and amended in 1925 by changing the date from 1923 to 1925, and the third proviso added by the 1927 amendment; a clause providing that real estate conveyed to a bank in satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the course of the dealings might be purchased, held and conveyed was not brought forward; and in clause (c) of subsection 3 the requirement that all real estate acquired under the subsection should be disposed of within one year was incorporated in 1921 when the section was passed, and the 1923 amendment inserted the words "and deeds of trust held or" in the second line of the clause. Otherwise the prior law is re-enacted in this section.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

The amendment of 1935 changed the list of obligations excepted in paragraph four which was added by the 1933 amendment. Formerly all obligations of the state instead of "general" obligations were excepted. Obligations issued under Farm Loan Act or by Home Loan Banks and Home Owners' Loan Corporation were added to the list. Subdivision (5) was added by the 1935 amendment in its entirety.

Similarity of Section to Federal Act. — The words used in the statute relative to the powers of corporations engaged in the banking business under the laws of this State are almost identical with those used in the Federal statute, relative to the powers of National Banks. U. S. Comp. Stat. 1918, sec. 9661, subsec. 7. Indiana Quarries Co. v. Angier Bank, etc., Co., 190 N. C. 277, 283, 129 S. E. 619.

Power to Become Surety or Lend Credit.—In the absence of an express grant of authority, a banking corporation, as a rule, has not the power to become the guarantor or surety of the obligation of another person, or to lend its credit to any person. Indiana Quarries Co. v. Angier Bank, etc., Co., 190 N. C. 277, 283, 129 S. E. 619.

A bank is not authorized to become a guarantor, except where it is necessary to protect its rights where the guaranty relates to commercial paper and is an incident to the purchase and sale thereof, or when the guaranty is especially authorized by law. Indiana Quarries Co. v. Angier Bank, etc., Co., 190 N. C. 277, 283, 129 S. E. 619.

Negotiation of Evidences of Debt.—In the course of its dealings and for a lawful purpose a bank may negotiate notes, drafts, bills of exchange, and other evidences of indebtedness embraced by this section; and where there is more than one transfer of the same security, and the equities are equal, the first in time will prevail. Richmond County v. Page Trust Co., 195 N. C. 545, 132 S. E. 786.

§ 220(a) 1. Banks, fiduciaries, etc., may invest in bonds guaranteed by United States.—(1). Any bank, building and loan association, land and loan association, savings and loan association, insurance company, title insurance company, land mortgage company, fraternal order or benevolent association, or any other corporation incorporated under the laws of this state, and operating under the supervision of the commissioner of banks, insurance commissioner, or superintendent of savings and loan associations; the state treasurer, as custodian of the assurance fund provided under the Torrens Act, or any officer charged with the investment of sinking funds of the State, any county, city, town, incorporated village, township, school district, school taxing district, or other district or political subdivision of government of the State; the North Carolina State Thrift Society, any clerk of the court holding money by color of his office or as receiver; and any person, firm or corporation acting as executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, or other person acting in a fiduciary capacity, may invest in bonds issued, or in bonds which are fully and unconditionally guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States, to the same extent as the same are now or may be hereafter authorized to invest in any obligation of the United States: Provided that all investments authorized hereunder shall be guaranteed, both as to the payment of principal and interest thereon, by the United States treasury.

(2). Security for Loans and Deposits.—No bank shall be required to maintain a reserve against deposits secured by any of the above mentioned bonds equal in market value to the amount of such deposits, and such bonds shall be valid security for all loans and deposits to the same extent as are any obligations of the United States.

(3). Bonds Deemed Cash in Settlements by Fiduciaries.—In settlements by guardians, executors, administrators, trustees and others acting in a fiduciary capacity, the bonds and securities herein mentioned shall be deemed cash to the amount actually paid for same, not exceeding par value thereof, including the premium, if any, paid for such bonds, and may be paid as such by the transfer thereof to the persons entitled and without any liability for a greater rate of interest than the amount actually accruing from such bonds. (1935, c. 164.)

§ 220(a) 2. Banks and fiduciaries authorized to invest in mortgages, etc., issued under National Housing Act.—(1). It shall be lawful for all commercial and industrial banks, trust companies, insurance companies, and other financial institutions engaged in business in this State, and for guardians, executors, administrators, trustees or others acting in a fiduciary capacity in this State to invest, to the same extent that such funds may be invested in interest-bearing obligations of the United States, their funds or the moneys in their custody or possession which are eligible for investment, in bonds or notes secured by a mortgage or deed of trust insured by the federal housing administrator pursuant to Title II of the National Housing Act, in mortgages on real estate which have been accepted for insurance by the federal housing administrator pursuant to Title II of the National Housing Act, and in obligation of national mortgage associations organized under Title III of the National Housing Act.

(2). Insured Loans. — All such banks, trust companies and insurance companies, and other financial institutions, and also all such guardians, executors, administrators, trustees or others acting in a fiduciary capacity in this State, may make such loans, secured by real estate, as the federal housing administrator has insured or has made a commitment to insure, pursuant to Title II of the National Housing Act, and may obtain such insurance.

(3). Eligibility for Credit Insurance. — All banks, trust companies, insurance companies and other financial institutions, on being approved as eligible for credit insurance pursuant to Title I of the National Housing Act, may make such loans as are authorized by Title I of the National Housing Act: Provided, that all loans made by building and loan associations shall be secured in conformity with the requirements of section 5182, Consolidated Statutes.

(4). Mortgages Available as Depository Security.—Mortgages on real estate which have been accepted for insurance by the federal housing administrator pursuant to Title II of the National Housing Act, debentures issued pursuant to Title II of the National Housing Act, and obligations of national mortgage associations organized under Title II of the National Housing Act, may be used as security for any depository bond or obligation whenever any kind of bonds or other securities are required or may by law be deposited as security.

(5). General Laws Not Applicable.—No law of this State prescribing the nature, amount or form of security or requiring security upon which loans or investments may be made, or prescribing or limiting the rates or time of payment of the interest any obligation may bear, or prescribing or limiting the period for which loans or investments may be made, shall be deemed to apply to loans or investments made pursuant to the foregoing paragraphs. Provided, that all loans made by building and loan associations shall be secured in conformity with the requirements of section 5182, Consolidated Statutes. (1935, cc. 71, 378.)

§ 220(b). Limitations on investments or securities.—The investment of any bonds or other interest-bearing securities of any one firm, individual or corporation, unless it be the interest-bearing obligations of the United States, state of North Carolina, or other state of the United States, or of some city, town, township, county school district, or other political subdivision of the state of North Carolina, shall at no time be more than twenty per cent of the unimpaired capital and permanent surplus of any bank to an amount not in excess of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; and not more than ten per cent of the unimpaired capital and permanent surplus in excess of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars: Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to compel any bank to surrender or dispose of any investment in the stock or bonds of a corporation owning the lands or buildings occupied by such bank as its banking home, if such stocks or bonds were lawfully acquired prior to the ratification of this act. (1921, c. 4, s. 27; 1927, c. 47, s. 6; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1933, c. 359; 1935, c. 199.)

As to the suspension of this section, see § 220(e).

As to limitation of amount of bank acceptances, see sec. (220(1).

Editor's Note. — There was no corresponding section in the prior law.

The 1927 amendment made radical changes in this section. The maximum investment which might be made in private securities was reduced from 25% to 20% of the uncompared capital and permanent surplus where the amount was not in excess of $250,000, and reduced to 10% of the unimpaired capital and permanent surplus in excess of $250,000. Prior to the amendment the section fixed 20% of the capital and permanent surplus as the maximum where the capital was between $250,000 and $500,000; of 15% where it was between $500,000 and $750,000; and 10% in excess of $750,000.

The last proviso in the section was also added by the 1927 amendment.

By Public Laws 1933, c. 359, provisos, formerly appearing in the section, permitting restricted investments in stock or bonds of a corporation owning the building or land occupied by the bank, were omitted.

The amendment of 1935 added the words "or other state of the United States, or of some" near the beginning of this section.

§ 220(c). Stocks, limitations on investment in.—No bank shall make any investment in the capital stock of any other state or national bank: Provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the subscribing to or purchasing of the capital stock of banks organized under the act of congress commonly known as the "Edge Act;" or central reserve banks, having a capital stock of more than one million dollars; by banks doing business under this chapter, upon such terms as may be agreed upon. To constitute a central reserve bank as contemplated by this chapter, at least fifty per cent of the capital stock of such bank shall be owned by other banks. The investment of any bank in the capital stock of such central reserve bank or bank organized under the act of congress commonly known as the "Edge Act," shall at no time exceed ten per cent of the paid-in capital and permanent surplus of the bank making same. No bank shall invest more than fifty per cent of its permanent surplus in the stocks of other corporations, firms, partnership, or companies, unless such stock is purchased to protect the bank from loss. Any stocks owned or hereafter acquired in excess of the limitations herein imposed shall be disposed of at public or private sale within six months after the date of acquiring the same, and if not so disposed of shall be charged to profit and loss account, and no longer carried on the books as an asset. The limit of time in which such stocks shall be disposed of or charged off the books of the bank may be extended by the commissioner of banks if in his judgment it is for the best interest of the bank that such extension be granted; Provided that the limitations imposed in this section on the ownership of stock in or securities of corporations is suspended to the extent (and to that extent only) that any bank operating under the supervision of the commissioner of banks may subscribe for and purchase shares of stock in or debentures, bonds or other types of securities of any corporation organized under the laws of the United States of America for the purpose of insuring to depositors a part or all of their funds on deposit in banks where and to such extent as such stock or security ownership is required in order to obtain the benefits of such deposit insurance for its depositors. (1921, c. 4, s. 28; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1935, c. 81, s. 3.)

As to the suspension of this section, see § 220(e).

As to amount of bank acceptances, see sec. 220(l).

Editor's Note. — There was no provision in the prior law corresponding to this section.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

The amendment of 1935 added the last proviso of this section relating to suspension of the limitations in case of banks operating under the supervision of the commissioner of banks.

§ 220(d). Loans, limitations of.—The total direct and indirect liability of any person, firm or corporation, other than a municipal corporation for money borrowed, including in the liabilities of a firm, the liabilities of the several members thereof, shall at no time exceed twenty per cent of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, or fractional part thereof, of the unimpaired capital and permanent surplus of the bank and not more than ten per cent of the excess of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars of the unimpaired capital and permanent surplus of the bank: Provided, however, that the discount of bills of exchange, drawn in good faith against actual existing values, the discount of solvent trade acceptances, or other solvent commercial or business paper actually owned by the person, firm or corporation negotiating the same and the purchase of any notes, secured by not less than a like face amount of bonds of the United States or State of North Carolina or certificates of indebtedness of the United States, shall not be considered as money borrowed within the meaning of this section. (1921 c. 4, s. 29; 1923, c. 148 s. 6; 1925, c. 119 s. 1; 1927, c. 47, s. 7.)

As to the suspension of this section, see the following section.

As to limitation of amount of bank acceptances, see sec. 220(l).

Editor's Note. — Section 227 of the C. S., was the corresponding section of the prior law. The provisions have been so changed that this section could not be called a re-enactment of the prior law. That section did not apply to banks with a paid-up capital of $100,000 or less. Formerly the liability to a bank could not exceed one-tenth of the paid-in capital stock and surplus.

The words "or business" appearing in the 17th line of this section were inserted by the acts of 1923.

The 1925 amendment changed the percentage where the paid-in capital is $250,000 or less from 25% to 20%. It also inserted a proviso that upon the approval of two-thirds of the directors a loan could be increased to 25% but this was omitted when revised by the act of 1927. The word "solvent" appearing in the fifteenth and sixteenth lines of the section were inserted by the amendment.

The acts of 1927 repealed the old section and re-enacted it with several important changes. Prior to it the section provided for a maximum loan of 20% where the paid-in capital was $250,000 or less; 20% between $250,000 and $500,000; 15% between $500,000 and $750,000; and 10% over $750,000.

A proviso at the end of the section providing that the limitations imposed should not apply to existing loans, or renewals or extension thereof, except as made to apply by the commission, was omitted.

Section Not Retroactive. — The statutory limitation upon a bank making loans to any one person or class of common interest, does not apply to loans, or extensions or renewals thereof, existing at the date of the ratification of the statute. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

Violation a Misdemeanor. — The violation of this section is a misdemeanor. See sec. 224(i) and note to sec. 221(e).

A bank must act through its officers, and where they have violated the provisions of this section as to lending the bank's money, the offense is committed by the officers under the meaning of the statute, and they are individually indictable therefor. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180; State v. Davidson, 205 N. C. 735, 738, 172 S. E. 489.

A construction of this section which would limit criminal liability to the bank would defeat the manifest purpose of the General Assembly. The loans prohibited can be made for the bank only by officers and directors, and to hold that the bank only is liable criminally, would result, upon its conviction, in the imposition of a fine, the only punishment that can be imposed by the court upon a corporation, thus resulting in most instances in a further depletion of the already impaired resources of the bank, and entailing further loss to depositors and stockholders, for whose protection the provisions are primarily included in the statute. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 533, 130 S. E. 180.

An indictment charging the officer of the bank of violating section 222(i), and also unlawfully making loans for the bank to certain persons in excess of the maximum percentage of the capital stock and permanent surplus, in violation of this section, alleges the commission of crimes of the same class, where there are two indictments thereof against the same person, that may be consolidated and tried together by the court. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

Loss of Assets Must Result.—In an action against the managing officials of a bank for wrongful depletion of assets in mismanagement of the affairs of the bank in making loans in excess of the limit set forth in this section, the evidence is insufficient to be submitted to a jury, if it appears that no loss to the assets of the bank has been caused by the acts of the officials. Gordon v. Pendleton, 202 N. C. 241, 162 S. E. 546.

§ 220(e). Investment and loan limitation, suspension of.—The board of directors of any bank may, by resolution duly passed at a meeting of the board, request the commissioner of banks to temporarily suspend the limitations on loans and investments as same may apply to any particular loan or investment, which said bank desires to make in excess of the provisions of sections 220(b), 220(c), and 220(d). Upon receipt of a duly certified copy of such resolution, the commissioner of banks may, in his discretion, suspend the limitation on loans and investments in so far as it would apply to loans or investments which such bank desires to make: Provided further, that the power granted to the commissioner of banks in this section shall not be exercised by him on and after the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four, except in the following instances and manner: Where an excessive loan is paid, one-half of the excess during the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four and the balance of the excess during the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five, the commissioner of banks shall have authority to permit the bank to carry such excessive loan. The commissioner of banks may approve the carrying of an excessive loan for not more than one hundred and twenty days and when such excessive loan is amply secured. (1921, c. 4, s. 30; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1933, c. 239, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. — There was no corresponding section in the prior law.

The proviso at the end of this section, relating to power of commissioner over excessive loans, was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 239.

§ 220(f). Reserve.—Every bank shall at all times have on hand or on deposit with approved reserve depositories, instantly available funds in an amount equal to at least fifteen per cent of the aggregate amount of its demand deposits, and five per cent of the aggregate amount of its time deposits. But no reserve shall be required on deposits secured by a deposit of United States bonds or the bonds of the state of North Carolina. Any bank that is now or may hereafter become a member of the Federal Reserve Bank shall maintain the same reserve with respect to deposits as shall be required of other members of such Federal Reserve Bank. (1921, c. 4, s. 31.)

As to effect of impaired capital upon reserve, see sec. 219(f).

As to provisions giving authority to join Federal Reserve Bank, see sec. 220(g).

Editor's Note. — The corresponding section of the old law was C. S. sec. 226. With the exception of the insertion of the phrase permitting deposits with approved reserve depositories, this section, in so far as it goes, is a re-enactment of the prior law. The prior section contained a provision prohibiting a bank from making new loans or discounts, otherwise than by discounting or purchasing bills of exchange payable at sight, or make any dividends of its profits when the available funds are below the reserve required. This provision will be found as a part of sec. 222(i).

The prior section also contained definitions of time and demand deposit, available funds and cash. The first two terms were defined under Sec. 216(a) so that a repetition here is uncalled for and a definition of the last two terms is omitted from the banking laws.

"Deposits" Defined. — This section means all deposits the payment of which can be legally required within thirty days [see sec. 216(a)], this reserve consisting in cash on hand, balance payable on demand due from other approved solvent banks designated as depositors, [see sec. 220(g)], by resolution of the board of directors approved by the Corporation Commission, [see sec. 221(g).] State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

§ 220(g). Reserve consists of what.—Reserve shall consist of cash on hand and balances payable on demand, due from other approved solvent banks, which have been designated depositories as hereinafter provided in this chapter. (1921, c. 4, § 32.)

See note under § 220(aa).

Editor's Note. — This section was new with the acts of 1921.

§ 220(h). Forged check, payment of.—No bank shall be liable to a depositor for payment by it of a forged check or other order to pay money unless within sixty days after the receipt of such voucher by the depositor he shall notify the bank that such check or order so paid is forged. (1921, c. 4, s. 33.)

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of the C. S., Sec. 231 except that formerly the depositor had six months within which to give notice of the forgery.

The liability of the bank for payment of the forged instrument is predicated upon the presumption that it knows the genuine signature of its depositors. State Bank v. Cumberland Sav., etc., Co., 168 N. C. 605, 85 S. E. 5. The bank assumes the responsibility of holding the depositor's funds subject to his order and the burden is upon it, where a deposit is shown, to relieve itself of liability for the fund by proof of payment in accordance with the order of the depositor. Bank v. Thompson, 174 N. C. 349, 93 S. E. 849; and where payment is made the bank is presumed to have made it out of its own funds. Yarborough v. Trust Co., 142 N. C. 377, 55 S. E. 296.

The bank is just as liable for the payment of a forged check within the meaning of this section, when the endorsement is forged, as where the whole instrument is forged, it would seem, and this for the reason that the bank is authorized to pay only to the person designated by the depositor. Of course, if the payment is due to the negligence of the depositor, the bank would be relieved of liability. See Michie on Banks and Banking, p. 1209; 7 C. J. sec. 414, p. 686.

The general rule as to the liability of a bank upon a raised check is that it is liable for payment unless the depositor was so negligent in preparing his check that it was left incomplete or easily altered. But it should be observed in this connection that the depositor is not bound to prepare the checks so that it is impossible to alter them, and it would seem that if he used the care that an ordinary prudent man would use, the bank is liable. See Michie on Banks, pp. 1203 et seq. and 7 C. J. p. 684 sec. 413 for a collection of authorities.

The provision of this section requiring a return of the voucher, giving the bank notice within a specified time of the receipt thereof, is in keeping with the law of the majority of the states. This requirement is predicated upon the proposition that it is the duty of the depositor to examine his returned checks within a reasonable time and to report any forgeries or alterations. However, in the absence of a statute similar to this one, it has often been held that the depositor owes no such duty, and that even if he does and fails in it, the bank will not be relieved of payment unless it has been prejudiced by the delay. See Michie on Banks and Banking, pp. 1229-1239 for full treatment. See also 7 C. J. sec. 415, p. 687.

§ 220(i). Minor, payment of deposit in the name of.—Whenever any person who is a minor of the age of fifteen years and upwards shall make a deposit in any state or national bank in this state, the same shall be held for the exclusive benefit and right of such minor, free from the control of all persons whatsoever, and it shall be paid, together with the interest, if there be any interest thereon, to the person in whose name the deposit shall be made, and the receipt, check, or quittance of such minor to the said state or national bank shall be valid and sufficient release and discharge for such deposit, or any part thereof, to the bank in which said deposit was made. (1921, c. 4, s. 34.)

As to payment of deposit in trust for minor to minor upon death of trustee, see sec. 220(o).

Editor's Note. — The corresponding section of the prior law was C. S. sec. 228.

This section is an exception to the general rule that contracts of an infant are voidable at the option of the infant. Coker v. Virginia-Carolina Joint-Stock Land Bank, 208 N. C. 41, 44, 178 S. E. 863.

§ 220(j). Transactions not performed during banking hours.—Nothing in any law of this state shall in any manner whatsoever affect the validity of, or render void or voidable, the payment, certification, or acceptance of a check or other negotiable instrument or any other transaction by a bank in this state, because done or performed during any time other than regular banking hours: Provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to compel any bank in this state, which by law or custom is entitled to close at twelve noon on any Saturday, or for the whole or part day of any legal holiday, to keep open for the transaction of business, or to perform any of the acts or transactions aforesaid on any Saturday after such hour or on any legal holiday, except at its option. (1921, c. 4, s. 35.)

Editor's Note. — The corresponding section of the prior law was C. S. sec. 234 insofar as Saturdays, Sundays and holidays are concerned. There was no similar provision in the prior law relating to transactions not performed during banking hours on other days.

§ 220(k). Commercial and business paper defined.—The term "commercial or business paper," as used in this chapter, is hereby defined to mean a promissory note, and the term "trade acceptance" to mean a draft or bill of exchange issued or drawn for agricultural, industrial, or commercial purposes, or the proceeds of which have been used or are to be used for such purposes, but such definition shall not include notes, drafts, or bills of exchange covering merely investments, or issued or drawn for the purpose of carrying on or trading in stocks, bonds, or other investment securities, except bonds and notes of the government of the United States and state of North Carolina. Such notes, drafts and bills of exchange shall have a maturity at the time of discount of not more than nine days, except when drawn or issued for agricultural purposes, or based on livestock, when such maturities shall not exceed nine months from the date thereof, and must be actually owned by the person, firm or corporation negotiating the same. (1921, c. 4, s. 36; 1923, c. 148, s. 7.)

As to the general section on definitions, see sec. 216(a).

Editor's Note. — There was no provision corresponding to sections in the prior law.

§ 220(l). Bank acceptances defined.—Any bank doing business under this chapter may accept for payment at a future date, drafts or bills of exchange having not more than six months sight to run, drawn upon it by its customers under acceptance agreements, and which grow out of transactions involving the importation or exportation of goods; and issue letters of credit authorizing the holders thereof to draw upon it or its correspondence, provided that there is a definite bona fide contract for the shipment of goods within a specified reasonable time, and the existence of such contract is certified in the acceptance agreement or which grow out of transaction involving the domestic shipment of goods, provided that shipping documents, conveying or securing to the accepting bank title to readily marketable goods, are attached or in the hands of an agent of the accepting bank, independent of the drawer, for his account, at the time of acceptance, or which are secured at the time of acceptance by warehouse receipts or other documents conveying or securing to the accepting bank title to readily marketable goods fully covered by insurance, the warehouse receipts or other documents to be those of a responsible warehouse, independent of the drawer, the acceptance to remain secured during the life of the acceptance unless suitable security of same character, or cash, be substituted: Provided, no bank shall accept drafts or bills of exchange under this section to an aggregate amount at any time more than equal to the sum of its capital and permanent surplus: Provided further that no bank shall accept, whether in a foreign or domestic transaction, for any one person, firm, or corporation, to any amount at any time equal to more than twenty-five per cent of its capital and permanent surplus, unless the accepting bank is secured either by attached documents or those held for its account by its agent, independent of the drawer, or by some other actual security of the same character. Should the accepting bank purchase or discount its own acceptances, such acceptances will be considered as a direct loan to the drawer, and be subject to the limitation on loans hereinbefore provided. The commissioner of banks may issue such further regulations as to such acceptances as it may deem necessary in conformity with this chapter. As used herein, the word "goods" shall be construed to mean and include goods, wares, merchandise, or agricultural products, including livestock. (1921, c. 4, s. 37; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

As to general section on definitions, see sec. 216(a). As to limitations on investments in securities, see sec. 220(b); stocks, 220(c); loans generally, sec. 220(d).

As to limitation upon loans, see sec. 220(l).

Editor's Note. — The corresponding provision of the prior law was C. S., sec. 222. It is probable that since this section does not set out all the terms of sec. 222 that it would be held a supplement of it and not a repealing statute. See the editor's note under sec. 216(a); see also sec. 222.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

Acceptance Prior to Statute. — Notwithstanding that, prior to the enactment of the corresponding section of C. S., sec. 222, or this section, an acceptance was beyond the power of a bank when not expressly permitted by the charter, an acceptance by a bank not so authorized was not invalid, though actually beyond power, and a payment might be enforced. Sherrell v. American Trust Co., 176 N. C. 591, 97 S. E. 471.

§ 220(m). Nonpayment of check in error, liability for.—No bank shall be liable to a depositor because of the nonpayment, through mistake or error, and without malice, of a check which should have been paid had the mistake or error of nonpayment not occurred, except for the actual damage by reason of such nonpayment that the depositor shall prove, and in such event the liability shall not exceed the amount of damage so proven. (1921, c. 4, s. 38.)

A bank is held liable to the drawer for its breach of promise to pay the check, upon the ground that there is an implied promise by the bank, arising from the deposit of the funds with it, that it will pay the checks when and as they are presented. If the bank fails to perform this promise, it becomes liable to the drawer for the damage sustained by him on account of its refusal or failure to pay his check. But the holder of the check can only sue the drawer, and cannot sue the bank. The reason why the holder of the check is not permitted to sue the bank has been stated by the authorities to be, that there is no privity between the holder and the bank until by certification of the check or the acceptance thereof, expressed or implied, or by any other act or conduct it has made itself directly liable to the holder. Bank v. Whitman, 94 U. S. 343; Commercial Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 118 N. C. 783, 24 S. E. 524; Hawes v. Blackwell, 107 N. C. 196, 12 S. E. 245.

Notwithstanding that these principles have been recognized, there are courts which hold, in well considered opinions, that the bank should be held liable directly to the holder if it is notified that he has the check, or demand for its payment is made upon it, and it then has sufficient clear and unincumbered funds to the credit of the drawer with which to pay the check without any risk or embarrassment to itself. Standard Trust Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 166 N. C. 112, 119, 81 S. E. 1074; Perry v. Bank, 131 N. C. 117, 42 S. E. 551; Commercial Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 118 N. C. 783, 24 S. E. 524; Hawes v. Blackwell, 107 N. C. 196, 12 S. E. 245.

For general treatment of subject, see Michie on Banks and Banking, pp. 1079, 1151 et seq. See also, 7 C. J. 425, p. 696.

Where Nonpayment Malicious.—This section does not apply where the complaint alleges that the nonpayment was wrongful and malicious. In such case the question of malice is for the jury, and the sustaining of a demurrer to the complaint is reversible error. The complaint is subject to demurrer only when it appears from the allegations that nonpayment was through error or mistake and without malice, and that no actual damages resulted to depositor from such nonpayment. Woody v. National Bank, 194 N. C. 549, 140 S. E. 150.

Damages.—Any person will be deemed substantially damaged upon the refusal of a bank to pay his checks, unless protected by the provisions of this section, and substantial damages may be awarded. And where the nonpayment is through malice, punitive damages may also be recovered. Woody v. First Nat. Bank, 194 N. C. 549, 140 S. E. 150, holding that on the facts admitted by demurrer plaintiff was entitled to nominal damages at least.

§ 220(n). Checks sent direct to bank on which drawn.—Any bank receiving for collection or deposit any check, note, or other negotiable instrument drawn upon or payable at another bank, located in another town or city, whether within or without this state, may forward such instrument for collection, direct to the bank on which it is drawn, or at which it is payable, and such method of forwarding direct to the bank on which it is drawn, or at which it is payable, and such method of forwarding direct to the payer bank shall be deemed due diligence, and the failure of such payer bank, because of its insolvency or other default, to account for the proceeds thereof, shall not render the forwarding bank liable therefor: Provided, however, such forwarding bank shall have used due diligence in other respects in connection with the collection of such instrument. (1921, c. 4, s. 39.)

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of C. S. sec. 233 except that the last line of that section which provided, "The provision of this section shall not apply where there is more than one bank in a town," was omitted.

Dealings Presumed to Contemplate Statute. — Banks must be presumed to have dealt with each other with respect to a statute of the State in which a check was deposited for collection, defining the rights and liabilities of banks to which checks are forwarded for collection. Fed. Land Bk. v. Barrow, 189 N. C. 303, 310, 127 S. E. 3.

Sending Check to Federal Reserve Bank. — Under this section the sending of a cashier's check to the proper Federal Reserve Bank is due diligence in collecting the same, as would be sending it directly to the drawer bank. Fed. Land Bk. v. Barrow, 189 N. C. 303, 127 S. E. 3.

Abrogated Holdings. — The holding of the Supreme Court, in Bank v. Floyd, 142 N. C. 187, and in Bank v. Trust Co., 172 N. C. 345, that "It is negligence in a bank having a draft or check for collection to send it directly to the drawee, and this is true, though the drawee is the only bank at the place of payment," is abrogated by the express provisions of this statute. See Malloy v. Fed. Reserve Bank, 281 Fed. 1003; Federal Land Bank v. Barrow, 189 N. C. 303, 309, 127 S. E. 3.

Constitutes Good Presentment.—A collecting bank makes a good presentment of a check for payment by forwarding it to the drawee bank in another city by mail. Braswell v. Citizens Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 229, 148 S. E. 236.

When Section Not Applicable—Rights and Liabilities as to Collection.—When a collecting bank receives a check for collection payable at a bank in another town, there is no authority of agency conferred by the drawer of the check on it to receive in payment anything but money; and where the drawer of the check has money to meet the check on deposit in the drawee bank, on presentment in due course, and an intervening bank, in the course of collection, receives a check of the drawee bank in payment, which is not paid by reason of the drawee bank becoming insolvent before presentment of its check: Held, as a matter of law the drawer of the check is released from liability thereon. This section has no application to the facts in this case. Dewey Brothers v. Margolis, 195 N. C. 307, 142 S. E. 22.

See note under § 220(aa).

§ 220(o). Deposits in trust, payment of.— Whenever any deposits shall be made in any bank or banking institution in this state by any person in trust for any other person who is a minor of the age of fifteen years and upward, and no other or further notice of the existence and terms of a legal and valid trust shall have been given to the bank, in event of the death of the trustee, the same, or any part thereof, together with the dividends or interest thereon, may be paid to the person for whom said deposit was made: Provided, that the amount of said deposit is not in excess of one hundred dollars. (1921, c. 4, s. 40.)

See discussion in 9 N. C. L. Rev. 13.

As to whom a deposit in trust for a minor might be paid generally, see sec. 220(i).

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of C. S. sec. 229, except that formerly the terms of the section limited the deposits to which the section applied to the amount of fifty dollars or less.

§ 220(p). Farm loan bonds, authorized investment in.—Any bank or insurance company organized under the laws of this state, and any person acting as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, may invest in federal farm loan bonds issued by any federal farm loan bank or joint-stock land bank organized pursuant to an act entitled "An act of Congress to provide capital for agricultural development, to create standard forms of investment based upon farm mortgages to equalize rates of interest upon farm loans, to furnish a market for United States bonds, to create government depositories, and financial agents for the United States, and for other purposes," approved the seventeenth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and sixteen. (1921, c. 4, s. 41.)

Editor's Note. — This section is a re-enactment of the C. S. sec. 225.

§ 220(q). Federal Reserve Bank, authority to join.—The words "Federal Reserve Act," as herein used, shall be held to mean and to include the act of Congress of the United States, approved December twenty-third, nineteen hundred thirteen, as heretofore and hereafter amended. The words "Federal Reserve Board" shall be held to mean the Federal Reserve Board created and described in the Federal Reserve Act. The words "Federal Reserve Banks" shall be held to mean Federal Reserve Banks created and organized under the authority of the Federal Reserve Act. The words "member bank" shall be held to mean any National or State bank or bank and trust company which has become or which becomes a member of one of the Federal Reserve Banks created by the Federal Reserve Act.

(a) Any bank incorporated under the laws of this state shall have the power to subscribe to the capital stock and become a member of the Federal Reserve Bank.

(b) Any bank incorporated under the laws of this state which is, or which may become, a member of the Federal Reserve Bank is by this act vested with all powers conferred upon member banks of the Federal Reserve Banks by terms of the Federal Reserve Act as fully and completely as if such powers were specifically enumerated and described therein, and such powers shall be exercised subject to all restrictions and limitations imposed by the Federal Reserve Act, or by regulations of the Federal Reserve Board made pursuant thereto. The right, however, is expressly reserved to revoke or to amend the powers herein conferred.

(c) A compliance on the part of any such bank with the reserve requirements of the Federal Reserve Act shall be held to be a full compliance with the provisions of the laws of this state, which require banks to maintain cash balances in their vaults or with other banks, and no such bank shall be required to carry or maintain reserve other than such as is required under the terms of the Federal Reserve Act.

(d) Any such bank shall continue to be subject to the supervision and examination required by the laws of this state, except that the Federal Reserve Board shall have the right, if it deems necessary, to make examinations; and the authorities of this state having supervision over such banks may disclose to the Federal Reserve Board, or to the examiners duly appointed by it, all information in reference to the affairs of any bank which has become, or desires to become, a member of a Federal Reserve Bank. (1921, c. 4, s. 42.)

As to amount of reserve required, see sec. 220(f).

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of the C. S. sec. 221.

branch. Such branch banks shall be operated as branches of and under the name of the parent bank, and under the control and direction of the board of directors and executive officers of said parent bank. The board of directors of the parent bank shall elect a cashier and such other officers as may be required to properly conduct the business of such branch, and a board of managers or loan committee shall be responsible for the conduct and management of said branch, but not of the parent bank or of any branch save that of which they are officers, managers, or committee: Provided, that the commissioner of banks shall not authorize the establishment of any branch, the paid-in capital stock of whose parent bank is not sufficient in an amount to provide for the capital of at least twenty-five thousand dollars for the parent bank, and at least twenty-five thousand dollars for each branch which it is proposed to establish in cities or towns of three thousand population or less; nor less than thirty thousand dollars in cities and towns whose population exceeds three thousand, but does not exceed ten thousand; nor less than fifty thousand dollars in cities and towns whose population exceeds ten thousand, but does not exceed twenty-five thousand; nor less than one hundred thousand dollars in cities and towns whose population exceeds twenty-five thousand. All banks operating branches prior to February 18, 1921, shall, within a time limit to be prescribed by the commissioner of banks, cause said branch bank to conform to the provisions of this section: Provided, however, that any bank with a capital stock (including both common and preferred) of one million ($1,000,000.00) dollars or more which qualifies for non-assessable stock under the provisions of sections 219(a) 1 et seq., may without additional capital establish and operate such number of branches or agencies in the state of North Carolina as the commissioner of banks may in his discretion permit; but a bank operating branches under this proviso shall at all times maintain an unimpaired capital of at least one million ($1,000,000.00) dollars: Provided further, that the commissioner of banks shall not permit the establishment of additional branches, and/or agencies unless said bank maintains its capital stock and surplus in ratio of one to ten to its deposits; Provided that in small communities having no other banking facilities, and upon a finding by the commissioner of banks that the public convenience and advantage will be promoted thereby, the opening of "tellers window agencies or branches" of then existing banks may be permitted, but no more than one such agency or branch may be so opened in any one community nor shall any bank be permitted to open such an agency or branch when its unimpaired capital and surplus in proportion to deposits is below that herein required. (1921, c. 4, s. 43; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 56, s. 2; 1927, c. 47, s. 8; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1933, c. 451, s. 1; 1935, c. 139.)

Editor's Note. — There is no provision in the prior law corresponding to this section. However, C. S. sec. 216 contained a provision prohibiting the establishment of branches except with the consent of the corporation commission. Authority to establish branches under the old law must have been given by the legislature in the charter, and this must have been given by express terms for the court could not construe a provision in a charter to give authority by implication. Morehead Banking Co. v. Tate, 122 N. C. 313, 316, 30 S. E. 341. In this case the court pointed out the reason for the policy, stating that past experience indicated that it was possibly a mistake to permit banks to establish branches.

It is likely that this section will go far to overcome the objections to branches which the court had in mind. The requirement that the parent bank have enough capital over and above its required capital to legally capitalize a branch as a separate bank, the vigilant supervision of the corporation commission and the provision that a local committee or board of managers shall be responsible for the conduct and management of the business are features calculated to bring such result.

The amendment of the section made at the extra session of 1925 changed the amount that must be provided for branch banks in cities and towns of 3,000 population or less from $20,000 to $15,000, so that it was the same amount required for parent banks in such cities and towns. The act of 1927 changed the amount in each instance to $25,000.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

The second and third provisos of this section were added by Public Laws 1933, c. 451.

For comment on changes made by Acts 1933, see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 199.

The amendment of 1935 added the proviso at the end of the section making an exception in smaller communities having no other banking facilities.

Who May Question Authority to Establish.—Whether a banking company, chartered to do business in a certain place and without express authority to establish and conduct a branch at another place, can do so, is a matter for the State, through the Attorney General, to have determined by an action to vacate its charter. Morehead Banking Co. v. Tate, 122 N. C. 313, 30 S. E. 341. This case was decided before the statute.—Ed. Note.

Contracts of Branch Illegally Established.—A bond given by a cashier of a branch bank for the faithful performance of his duties is not against public morals because the parent corporation may not have had the express authority to establish a branch bank. Morehead Banking Co. v. Tate, 122 N. C. 313, 30 S. E. 341.

Branch as Agent of Parent.—The relation between bank and the branch is that of principal and agent, and all the assets and indebtedness of the agency are those of the principal. Worth v. Bank, 122 N. C. 397, 29 S. E. 775.

The establishment of a branch by a bank, having the authority under its charter to do so, is not an estoppel upon the latter so as to require it to treat the former as an independent bank. Worth v. Bank, 122 N. C. 397, 29 S. E. 775.

Creditors of Parent and Branch Share Ratably. — The creditors and depositors of the parent and branch share ratably where the assets are being liquidated. Worth v. Bank, 122 N. C. 397, 29 S. E. 775.

§ 220(s). Certificate of deposit, unlawful issuing of.—It shall be unlawful for any bank to issue any certificate of deposit or other negotiable instrument of its indebtedness to the holder thereof except for lawful money of the United States, checks, drafts, or bills of exchange which are the actual equivalent of such money; nor shall such moneys, checks, drafts, or bills of exchange be the proceeds of any note given in payment of the purchase price of any stock. Any officer or employee of any bank violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1921, c. 4, s. 44.)

Editor's Note.—There was no provision in the prior law corresponding to this section.

§ 220(t). Bank's own stock, unlawful to loan on.—It shall be unlawful for any bank to make any loan secured by the pledge of its own shares of stock, nor shall any bank be the holder as pledgee, or as purchaser, of any portion of its capital stock unless such stock is purchased or pledged to it to prevent loss upon a debt previously contracted in good faith. Provided, that whenever any bank shall have shares of its own stock sold to, pledged to it, for the purpose of preventing a loss upon a debt previously contracted, it shall dispose of all such shares of stock within a period of six months from the date such stock was sold or pledged to it and if not so disposed of, the same shall be charged to profit and loss and no longer carried as an asset of of the bank. (1921, c. 47, s. 9.)

Editor's Note.—The terms of the prior law, C. S. sec. 224, were somewhat similar to the provisions of this section. However, this section is fuller and goes into more detail than did the prior law. Prior to the former enactment (1903) there was no general law upon the subject and it was not unusual for the legislature to permit a bank to accept pledge of its own stock. But in order for stock so pledged to share in the assets of the bank when winding up business it must have been released by payment of the debt. First Nat. Bank v. Riggins, 124 N. C. 534, 32 S. E. 801. A prior statute gave a lien to a bank on stock of stockholder indebted to the bank and the statute was strictly construed. See Boyd v. Reed, 120 N. C. 335, 27 S. E. 35. See also In re Mills Co., 162 Fed. 42.

To What Indebtedness Lien Applies. — The lien given to a bank by its charter upon the stock of a stockholder indebted to it extends only to indebtedness incurred directly by such stockholders to the bank and not to his indebtedness to a third person acquired by the bank. Boyd v. Redd, 120 N. C. 335, 27 S. E. 35.

Taking Stock in Payment of Note.—A payee bank may not cancel a note in consideration of shares of its stock delivered to it by the maker of the note, it not appearing that he was insolvent, or that the transaction was necessary to prevent loss to the bank, and payment so made is not a valid defense in the hands of another bank to which the note had been endorsed before maturity by the payee bank as collateral security. White v. Whitehurst, 194 N. C. 305, 139 S. E. 598.

§ 220(u). Deposits payable on demand.—Any bank may receive deposits of funds subject to withdrawal or to be paid upon the checks of the depositor. All deposits in such banks shall be payable on demand, without notice, except when the contract of deposit shall otherwise provide. (1921, c. 4, s. 46.)

As to a definition of demand deposits, see § 216(a), under the prior law, C. S., 226.

§ 220(v). Deposits in savings banks.—Any bank conducting a savings department may receive deposits on such terms as are authorized by its board of directors and agreed to by its depositors. The board of directors shall prescribe the terms upon which such deposits shall be received and paid out, and a passbook shall be issued to each depositor containing the rule and regulations adopted by the board of directors governing such deposits, in which shall be entered each deposit made, the interest allowed thereon, and each payment made to such depositor. By accepting such book the depositor assents and agrees to the rules and regulations therein contained. (1921, c. 4, s. 47.)

See discussion in 9 N. C. L. Rev. 13.

Editor's Note.—There were no provisions in the prior law which were similar to this section.

§ 220(w). Boards of directors, banks controlled by.—The corporate powers, business, and property of banks doing business under this chapter shall be exercised, conducted, and controlled by its board of directors, which shall meet at least quarterly. Such board shall consist of not less than five directors, to be chosen by the stockholders, and shall hold office for one year, and until their successors are elected and qualified. The annual meeting of stockholders for the election of directors shall be held during the month of January for each year. (1921, c. 4, s. 48; 1925, c. 107.)

Editor's Note.—There was no provision in the prior law corresponding to this section. However, it is probable that by virtue of C. S. sec. 236, the general corporation law, sec. 1144, was applicable. The last sentence of this section was added by the 1925 amendment.

§ 220(x). Statements showing deposits of state and state officials.—All banks in which any money is on deposit by the state of North Carolina or any of the officials thereof shall, in their published statements as by law required, show the amount of money on deposit in such bank to the credit of the state or of any official thereof; and no officials of the state shall deposit money in any bank which shall refuse to comply with the provisions of this law. (1923, c. 211, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—This provision did not appear in the prior banking law.

§ 220(y). Deposits by state departments or institutions.—All moneys collected by any state department or institution shall be deposited with or to the credit of the state treasurer, as and when directed by the governor and council of state. (1923, c. 211, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—This provision did not appear in the prior banking law

§ 220(z). Fees on remittances covering checks.—For the purpose of providing for the solvency, protection, and safety of the banking institutions and trust companies chartered by this state, and having their principal offices in this state, it shall be lawful for all banks and trust companies in this state to charge a fee, not in excess of one-eighth of one per cent, on remittances covering checks, the minimum fee on any remittance therefor to be ten cents. (1921, c. 20, s. 1.)

As to what checks are exempted from this section, see sec. 220(cc).

Editor's Note.—There is no provision in the prior law similar to this section. See the editor's note under section 220(aa).

Transaction Not within Statute.—The exchange or collection charges authorized by this section apply only to "remittances" covering checks, and where checks, etc., are sent to a bank in the same town with the bank on which they are drawn, for which either money or bank entries are required, such transactions do not fall within the meaning of the term "remittances" which will entitle the bank on which they are drawn to the exchange charges specified in the statute. First Nat. Bank v. Peoples Bank, 194 N. C. 720, 140 S. E. 705.

Enforcement of Payment.—A bank may maintain its action against another bank to enforce by mandatory injunction its payment of the exchange charges drawn through the one on the other, allowed by the statute of this section, and the fact that the plaintiff is a national and the defendant a state bank, does not vary this principle, and § 220(dd) does not apply. First Nat. Bank v. Peoples Bank, 194 N. C. 720, 140 S. E. 705.

§ 220(aa). Checks payable in exchange.—In order to prevent accumulation of unnecessary amounts of currency in the vaults of the banks and trust companies chartered by this state, all checks drawn on said banks and trust companies shall, unless specified on the face thereof to the contrary by the maker or makers thereof, be payable at the option of the drawee bank, in exchange drawn on the reserve deposits of said bank when any such check is presented by or through any Federal Reserve Bank, postoffice, or express company, or any respective agents thereof. (1921, c. 20, s. 2.)

As to what checks are exempted from this section, see section 220(cc). See also note under § 220(n) and in 8 N. C. Law Rev. 55.

Editor's Note.—The prior banking law did not contain a provision similar to this section.

The general rule is that a check is payable only in cash and if the payee or holder accepts anything other than cash in payment, the drawer is discharged from liability. Thus the ordinary rule is that if the payee accept a draft from the payor bank on its reserve fund in another bank, the drawer is relieved from further liability.

But this section changes the rule so that payment on such a draft does not discharge the check until the draft is paid in money.

The purpose of this section is to relieve the North Carolina Banks of the pressure exerted upon them by the Federal Reserve Banks in seeking to enforce the policy of "par clearance," by presenting checks over the counters of the banks which would not agree to remit at par, and demand payment in cash. The effect of this demand for cash payment was not only to deprive the banks of their exchange charges on checks, but also to reduce their income-producing assets through the necessity of keeping in their vaults in cash a much larger portion of their resources than had heretofore been necessary. The purpose of this section is effected by the draft upon a reserve deposit as has always been the general custom. See the comprehensive article in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 133.

The effect of this section is as though the provision of the law is written into the face of the check; and consequently where the maker or drawer does not specify cash payment, he agrees, as does the payee in accepting it, that if presented by or through a Federal Reserve Bank, Express Co., etc., the check shall be payable by an exchange draft drawn by the payee bank on its reserved deposits. See Farmer, etc., Bank v. Federal Reserve Bank, 262 U. S. 649, 43 S. Ct. 651; Cleve v. Groven Chem. Co., 18 Fed. (2d) 711; 12 Va. Law Reg., N. S.,——.

For comprehensive articles by C. J. Murchison, Professor of Applied Economics, U. of N. C. giving the history of the controversy out of which this statute grew, and a review of the subsequent litigation, see 1 N. C. Law Rev. 133; 2 N. C. Law Rev. 36.

The Federal Reserve Bank cannot require payment in any other medium than the exchange. Federal Land Bank v. Barrow, 189 N. C. 303, 310, 127 S. E. 3.

Constitutionality.—This section does not violate the federal constitution. Farmers, etc., Bank v. Federal Reserve Bank, 262 U. S. 649, 43 S. Ct. 651, overruling the same case in 183 N. C. 546, 552, 112 S. E. 252; Federal Land Bank v. Barrow, 189 N. C. 303, 311, 127 S. E. 3.

Purpose of Statute.—This section was enacted to relieve banks and trust companies, chartered by this State, of embarrassments growing out of the policy theretofore pursued by the Federal Reserve Bank with respect to the collection of checks drawn on said banks and trust companies. It does not deal with or purport to deal with the rights or liabilities of depositors who in the transaction of their business draw checks on their deposits with said banks and trust companies. The purpose of the section and its only effect, is to confer upon such banks and trust companies the right, in certain instances, to pay checks drawn on them in a medium other than money, and to deprive the payee or holder of such checks of the right to demand payment in money. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 264, 148 S. E. 253.

This section does not change the general rule that when a depositor draws his check on a bank or trust company chartered by this State, such check is payable in money, or at the option of the holder, in a medium other than money—such payment being at the risk of the holder. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 265, 148 S. E. 253.

Construed Strictly.—This section should be construed strictly. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253.

Right to Specify Medium of Payment.—Under this section the drawer has the right to specify on the face of the check that payment shall be made in money, and in such case the drawee bank or trust company must pay in money, in any event. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253.

Payment in money may be required if the check is presented for payment, in person, or by an agent for collection other than as prescribed by this section. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253.

Liability Where Exchange Unpaid.—It will not be held under this section, that a drawee bank can charge checks drawn on it by its customers to the accounts of such customers, remit in drafts or exchange to the forwarding bank, and thereby be released, notwithstanding that said drafts or exchange are, for valid and lawful reasons, not paid. Where a check drawn on a bank or trust company chartered by this State is presented to the drawee bank, "by or through any Federal Reserve Bank, post office or express company or any respective agent thereof," and such bank or trust company, in the exercise of the option conferred by said statute, sends to the forwarding bank its draft on its reserve deposits in payment of such check, it will not be discharged of liability for the collection of its depositor's check until such draft on its reserve deposit has been paid. Graham v. Proctorville Warehouse, 189 N. C. 533, 538, 127 S. E. 540.

Where the payee of a check deposits it in a bank for collection and does not thereon indicate that the collecting bank is to require payment in money, he authorizes the collecting bank to collect in due course of mail and comes within the provisions of this section and § 220(g) as being a check presented by or through a "postoffice," and the collecting bank is not liable for accepting the check of the drawee bank on another bank, resulting ultimately in nonpayment, and the payee must suffer the loss thereon. Braswell v. Citizens Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 229, 148 S. E. 236.

Where a bank receives a check in payment of a note and elects to put it in the hands of a Federal reserve bank for collection, which bank accepts the check of the drawee bank on another bank in payment, when the check would have been paid in course of collection had cash been demanded, the drawer and endorsers on the original check are relieved of liability thereon, and may not be held if the check of the drawee bank was not paid because of its later insolvency, §§ 3108, 3167, 3042; and this result is not affected by this section since the payee bank has the option of presenting the check for payment through the Federal reserve bank or not. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253, criticizing Cleve v. Craven Chemical Co., 18 Fed. (2d) 711.

Charging Check to Drawers Account as Payment.—When the drawee bank has to the credit of the drawer funds sufficient and available for the payment of his check, and accepts and charges the check to the drawer's account, the check is paid, and the drawer is discharged from liability, not only on the check, but also for the debt in payment of which the check was drawn. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253, citing Dewey Bros. v. Margolis & Brooks, 195 N. C. 307, 142 S. E. 22; Quarles v. O. B. Taylor & Co., 195 N. C. 313, 142 S. E. 25.

§ 220(bb). Notation on checks forbidden.—It shall be unlawful for any person, or persons, other than the maker thereof to make, by rubber stamp or otherwise, any notation on any check drawn on any bank or trust company chartered in this state, the effect of which notation shall change or affect any condition or provision thereof, as created by this law. Any person or persons violating this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall pay a fine of not more than two hundred dollars, ($200) or be imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1921, c. 20, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The prior banking law did not contain a provision similar to this section. See note under preceding section.

§ 220(cc). Checks exempted.—All checks drawn on the banks and trust companies in this state in payment of obligations due the state of North Carolina or the federal goverment shall be exempt from the provisions of sections 220(z) and 220(aa). (1921, c. 20, s. 4.)

§ 220(dd). No protest on checks refused for nonpayment of exchange charges. No action on refusal to pay checks.—No officer in this state shall protest for nonpayment any check or checks drawn on any bank or trust company chartered by this state when payment is refused by the drawee bank solely on account of failure or refusal of the holder or owner thereof to pay exchange charges herein authorized; and there shall be no right of action, either in law or equity, against any bank or trust company chartered by this state, for refusal to pay any such check when such action is based alone on the ground of refusal to pay exchange or collection charges herein authorized. (1921, c. 20, s 5.)

See note under § 220(z).

Editor's Note. — The prior law contained no provision which was similar to this section.

§ 220(ee). Statement of account from bank to depositor deemed final adjustment if not objected to within five years.—When a statement of account has been rendered by a bank to a depositor accompanied by vouchers, if any, which are the basis for debit entries in such account, or the depositor's passbook has been written up by the bank showing the condition of the depositor's account and delivered to such depositor with like accompaniment of vouchers, if any, such account shall, after the period of five years from the date of its rendition in the event no objection thereto has been theretofore made by the depositor, be deemed finally adjusted and settled and its correctness conclusively presumed and such depositor shall thereafter be barred from questioning the incorrectness of such account for any cause. (1929, c. 188, s. 1.)

§ 220(ff). Depositor not relieved from exercising diligence as to errors.—Nothing in the preceding section shall be construed to relieve the depositor from the duty now imposed by law of exercising due diligence in the examination of such account and vouchers, if any, when rendered by the bank and of immediate notification to the bank upon discovery of any error therein, nor from the legal consequences of neglect of such duty; nor to prevent the application of § 220(h). (1929, c. 188, s. 2.)

§ 220(gg). Governor empowered to proclaim banking holidays.—The governor is hereby authorized and empowered, by and with the advice and consent of the council of state, to name and set apart such day or days, as he may from time to time designate, as banking holidays. During such period of holidays, all the ordinary and usual operations and business of all banking corporations, state or national, in this state shall be suspended, and during such period no banking corporation shall pay out or receive deposits, make loans or discounts, transfer credits, or transact any other banking business whatsoever: Provided, however, that during any such holiday, including the holiday validated in this section, the commissioner of banks, with the approval of the Governor, may permit any or all such banking institutions to perform any or all of the usual banking functions. The banking holiday heretofore proclaimed by the governor of this state for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, March sixth, seventh and eighth, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three, be, and it is hereby approved and validated, and the said days are hereby declared to be banking holidays in the state of North Carolina. (1933, c. 120, s. 1.)

For article discussing the inconsistency in this section by reason of the power vested in the Commissioner to permit transaction of certain business during holiday declared by Governor, see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 195.

Art. 6. Officers and Directors

§ 221(a). Executive committee directors shall appoint.—The board of directors shall appoint an executive committee or committees, each of which shall be composed of at least three of its members with such duties and powers as are defined by the regulations or by-laws, who shall serve until their successors are appointed. Such executive committee or committees shall meet as often as the board of directors may require, which shall not be less frequently than once each month, and approve or disapprove all loans and investments. All loans and investments shall be made under such rules and regulations as the board of directors may prescribe. (1921, c. 4, s. 49.)

For a complete treatment of the case law upon the subject, see 3 Enc. Dig. 291 et seq.; 13 Enc. Dig. 236, 237.

Editor's Note.—There were no sections in the banking law prior to 1921 corresponding to the sections under this article. The general corporation law, sections 1144 et seq., was applicable by virtue of sec. 236.

§ 221(b). Minutes of directors and executive committee meetings.—Minutes shall be kept of all meetings of the board of directors and of the executive committee or committees, and same shall be recorded in a book or books which shall be kept for that purpose; which book or books shall be kept on file in the bank. Such minutes shall show a record of the action taken by the board of directors and executive committee or committees, on all loans, discounts, and investments made, authorized or approved, and such further action as the board of directors and executive committees shall make concerning the conduct, mangement, and welfare of the bank. The minutes of the executive committee or committees shall be submitted to the board of directors for approval at each meeting of the board. (1921, c. 4, s. 50.)

See note under sec. 221(a).

Effect of Not Writing Minutes.—The plaintiffs cannot be deprived of their right by reason of failure of the proper officer to actually make a written minute or record of the proceedings for the reason that proceedings of a corporate meeting of stockholders or directors are facts, and that they may be proved by parol testimony where they are not so recorded. Bailey v. Hassell, 184 N. C. 450, 459, 115 S. E. 166. And this notwithstanding this section, there being no objection appearing in the record to the testimony of the plaintiff and other witnesses as to what transpired among the directors about this transaction. Everett v. Staton, 192 N. C. 216, 220, 134 S. E. 492.

§ 221(c). Directors, qualifications of. — Every director of a bank doing business under this chapter shall be the owner and holder of shares of stock in the bank having a par value of not less than five hundred dollars: Provided, such bank shall have a capital stock of more than fifteen thousand dollars, and not less than two hundred dollars if such bank shall have a capital stock of fifteen thousand dollars or less. And every such director shall hold such shares in his own name unpledged and unencumbered in any way. The office of any director at any time violating any of the provisions of this section shall immediately become vacant, and the remaining directors shall declare his office vacant and proceed to fill such vacancy forthwith. Not less than three-fourths of the directors of every bank doing business under this chapter shall be residents of the state of North Carolina: Provided, that as to banks doing business before the ratification of this chapter the requirements as to amount of stock owned by a director shall not apply unless the commissioner of banks shall rule that such director is not bona fide discharging his duties. (1921, c. 4, s. 51; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

For the law prior to the enactment, see sec. 1144.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 221(d). Directors shall take oath.—Every director shall, within thirty days after his election, take and subscribe, in duplicate, an oath that he will diligently and honestly perform his duties in such office; and that he is the owner in good faith of the shares of stock of the bank required to qualify him for such office, standing in his own name on its books, and one of such oaths shall forthwith be filed with the commissioner of banks, and the other shall be kept on file in the bank. (1921, c. 4, s. 52; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

§ 221(e). Directors, liability of.—Any director of any bank who shall knowingly violate, or who shall knowingly permit to be violated by any officers, agents or employees of such bank, any of the provisions of this chapter shall be held personally and individually liable for all damages which the bank, its stockholders or any other person shall have sustained in consequence of such violation. Any aggrieved stockholder in any bank in liquidation may prosecute an action for the enforcement of the provisions of this section. Only one such action may be brought. The procedure shall follow as nearly as may be that prescribed by section two thousand five hundred forty-five of the Consolidated Statutes, relative to suits on bonds of contractors with municipal corporations. (1921, c. 4, s. 53; 1935, c. 464.)

For a complete treatment of the case law prior to section, see 3 Enc. Dig. p. 292, sec. 15; 13 Enc. Dig. p. 236, sec. 15. As to fraud of director of general corporation, see section 1152. As to criminal liability of bank directors, see § 224(a) et seq.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added the last three sentences of the section relating to who may bring action, the number of actions and the procedure, respectively.

Similarity to National Act.—This section is, with mere verbal changes, Comp. Stat. 9831, R. S. 5239. For federal cases construing the national banking act see Yates v. Jones Nat. Bank, 206 U. S. 158, 51 L. Ed. 1002, 27 S. Ct. 638; Thomas v. Taylor, 224 U. S. 73, 56 L. Ed. 673; 32 S. Ct. 403; Chesbrough v. Woodworth, 244 U. S. 72, 61 L. Ed. 1000, 37 S. Ct. 579

Effect of Violation.—Doubtless, the General Assembly, at the regular session of 1921, thought that the inclusion of section 220(d) and this section would be sufficient, without providing that the violation of either provision should be a crime. The provision with reference to the reserve was enforceable by the Corporation Commission in the exercise of its power of supervision of banks. No provision was made for the enforcement of the prohibition of loans to individuals exceeding the statutory limitation. Violations of these and other provisions of the statute by directors might result in civil liability, only. However, at the Extra Session of 1921, the General Assembly added section 224(e) making such violation a misdemeanor. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 532, 130 S. E. 180.

Elements of Crime in Violation.—An intent to defraud the bank or others is not required to be either alleged in the indictment or proved upon the trial of the issue raised by a plea of not guilty. Neither the bank nor any of its officers or directors have any discretion as to the making of loans which are thus forbidden. Intent is, therefore, not an element of the crime. The wilful doing of the unlawful act constitutes the crime declared by statute to be a misdemeanor, punishable as such in the discretion of the court. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 534, 130 S. E. 180.

Who May Prosecute Action.—An action for damage against the directors for false statements as to the bank's solvency made to private persons and in the bank's report to the commission, is solely maintainable by the receiver of the bank unless the private person can show an injury peculiar to him as distinguished from the loss among the creditors generally. Douglass v. Dawson, 190 N. C. 458, 130 S. E. 195.

Same—Insolvent Bank Receiving Deposits. — See notes to sec. 224(g).

Position as Evidence of Knowledge.—Where the official position of an officer of a bank is such as necessarily to acquaint him of the violation of the statute respecting the making of loans, and to fix him as a party thereto, it is sufficient evidence to sustain his conviction of the misdemeanor prescribed in § 224(i). State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

§ 221(f). Directors, examining committee of.—A committee of at least three directors or stockholders shall be appointed annually to examine, or to superintend the examination of the assets and the liabilities of the bank, and to report to the board of directors the result of such examination. The committee, with the approval of the board of directors, may provide for such examinations by a certified public accountant or clearing-house examiner in any city where such examination is provided for by the rules of such clearing-house association. A copy of such report of examination, which is herein required to be made, attested, and verified under oath by the signature of at least three members of such committee, shall forthwith be filed with the commissioner of banks. (1921, c. 4, s. 54; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

§ 221(g). Depositaries designation by directors.—By resolution of the board of directors, other banks organized under the laws of this state, or of another state, or of the national banking act of the United States, shall be designated as depositaries or reserve banks in which a part of such bank's reserve shall be deposited, subject to payment on demand. A copy of such resolution shall, upon its adoption, be forthwith certified to the commissioner of banks and the depositary so designated shall be subject to the approval of the commissioner of banks. For causes which he may deem adequate, the commissioner of banks shall have authority at any time to withdraw such approval. (1921, c. 4, s. 55; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.

As to the amount, etc., of the reserve, see sec. 220(f). As to definition of reserve, see sec. 220(g). As to draft upon depositaries as payment of a check, etc., see secs. 220(z) et seq.

§ 221(h). Stockholders' books.—The directors shall provide a book in which shall be kept the name and resident address of each stockholder, the number of shares held by each, the time when such person became a stockholder, together with all transfer of stock, stating the time when made, the number of shares and by whom transferred, which book shall be subject to the inspection of the directors, officers and stockholders of the bank at all times during the usual hours for the transaction of business. (1921, c. 4, s. 56.)

§ 221(i). Directors, officers etc., accepting fees, etc.—No gift, fee, permission, or brokerage charge shall be received, directly or indirectly, by any officer, director, or employee of any bank doing business under this chapter, on account of any transaction to which the bank is a party. Any officer, director, employee, or agent who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be and thereafter remain ineligible as an officer, director, or employee, of any bank doing business under this chapter. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the payment of necessary and proper attorney's fees to any licensed attorney for professional services rendered. (1921, c. 4, s. 57.)

§ 221(j). Dividends, directors may declare.—The board of directors of any bank may declare a dividend of so much of its undivided profits as they may deem expedient, subject to the requirements hereinafter provided. Before such dividend is declared, not less than twenty-five per cent of the undivided profits of any bank having a capital stock of fifteen thousand dollars or more, shall be carried to the surplus of such bank until its surplus amounts to fifty per cent of its paid-in capital stock; and not less than fifty per cent of the undivided profits of any bank having a capital stock of less than fifteen thousand dollars shall be carried to the surplus of such bank until its surplus amount to one hundred per cent of its paid-in capital stock. In order to ascertain the undivided profits from which such dividend may be made, there shall be charged and deducted from the actual profits:

(a) All ordinary and extraordinary expenses, paid or incurred, in managing the affairs and transacting the business of the bank;

(b) Interest paid or then due on debts which it owes;

(c) All taxes due;

(d) All overdrafts which have been standing on the books of the bank for a period of sixty days or longer;

(e) All losses sustained by the bank. In computing the losses, debts owing to it which have become due and which are not in process of collection, and on which interest for one year or more is due and unpaid, unless same are well secured, and debts upon which final judgment has been recovered, but has been for more than one year unsatisfied, and on which also for a period of one year no interest has been paid, unless same are well secured, shall be included.

(f) All investments carried on its books, which are prohibited under the provisions of this act, or rules and regulations made by the commissioner of banks, pursuant to the powers conferred under this act. (1921, c. 4, s. 58; 1927, c. 47, s. 10; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The 1927 amendment added subsection (f). The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 221(k). Surplus, shall not be used for.—The surplus of any bank doing business under this chapter shall not be used for the purpose of paying expenses or losses until the credit to undivided profits has been exhausted. But any portion of such surplus may be converted into capital stock and distributed as a stock dividend, provided that such surplus shall not thereby be reduced below fifty per cent of the paid-in capital of such bank, having a paid-in capital of fifteen thousand dollars or more. When the surplus of any bank having a capital stock of less than fifteen thousand dollars shall reach an amount equal to one hundred per cent of its paid-in capital, the board of directors of such bank shall reclare a dividend of fifty per cent of said surplus and distribute the same as a stock dividend: Provided that where the distribution of such a stock dividend would increase the capital stock of any bank to an amount greater than fifteen thousand dollars, the board of directors of such bank may, in its discretion, declare a stock dividend of only so much of said surplus as will be necessary to increase the stock of the said bank to fifteen thousand dollars. (1921, c. 4, s. 59.)

As to definition of surplus and undivided profits, see sec. 216(a).

§ 221(l). Overdrafts, payment by officer, etc.—Any officer (other than a director), or employee of a bank, who shall permit any customer or other person to overdraw his account, or who shall pay any check or draft, the paying of which shall overdraw any account, unless the same shall be authorized by the board of directors or by a committee of such board authorized to act, shall be personally and individually liable to such bank for the amount of such overdrafts. (1921, c. 4, s. 60.)

§ 221 (m). Officers and employees shall give bond.—The active officers and employees of any bank before entering upon their duties shall give bond to the bank in a bonding company authorized to do business in North Carolina, in the amount required by the directors and upon such form as may be approved by the commissioner of banks, the premium for same to be paid by the bank. The commissioner of banks or directors of such bank may require an increase of the amount of such bond whenever they may deem it necessary. If injured by the breach of any bond given hereunder, the bank so injured may put the same in suit and recover such damages as it may have sustained. (1921, c. 4, s. 61; Ex. Sess., 1921, c. 18; 1927, c. 47, s. 1; 1929, c. 72, s. 2; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 struck out the section as amended by the Act of 1927 and inserted in lieu thereof the above.

This statute enters into and forms a part of the bond. Hood v. Simpson, 206 N. C. 748, 175 S. E. 193.

Effect of Renewal of Bond.—When a bond which guarantees the fidelity of a bank cashier and guarantees the bank against loss by reason of embezzlement, etc., of said cashier, is executed for an indefinite term and thereafter is kept in force by the payment of annual premiums, for each year the officer was re-elected, then each and every renewal thereof is a separate and distinct bond or independent contract. Hood v. Simpson, 206 N. C. 748, 753, 175 S. E. 193.

§ 221 (n). Officers and employees may borrow,

when.—No officer or employee of a bank, nor a firm or partnership of which such officer or employee is a member, nor a corporation in which such officer or employee owns a controlling interest, shall borrow any amount whatever from the bank of which he is an officer or employee, except upon good collateral or other ample security or endorsement; and no such loan shall be made until the same has been approved by a majority of the board of directors and a resolution, duly entered upon the minutes of the board of directors and signed by them, showing the amount of the loan, the directors approving the same and a brief description of the security upon which said loan is made; and a certified copy of such resolution shall be attached to the instrument evidencing the indebtedness. Provided, however, this section shall not apply to directors who are neither officer nor employees of the bank. (1921, c. 4, s. 62; 1925, c. 119; 1927, c. 47, s. 12.)

Editor's Note.—The scope of this section was broadened by the Act of 1925. The prohibition was extended to employees as well as officers. The provision as to partnerships and corporations in which officers or employees are interested is new. The provision immediately preceding the proviso at the end of the section is also new. It is to be noted that a provision for authorization of such loan by a committee of directors is omitted.

The proviso at the end of this section was added by the 1927 amendment.

Loss of Assets Must Result.—See note to § 220(d).

Art. 7. Commissioner of Banks and Banking Department

§ 221(o). Appointment of commissioner of banks; advisory banking commission.—On or before April first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one, after the ratification of this act, and quadrennially thereafter, the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint a commissioner of banks who shall hold his office for a term of four years or until his successor has been appointed and has qualified, subject, however, to the provisions herein made as to his removal. The commissioner of banks shall, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, enter into bond with some surety company authorized to do business in the State of North Carolina, in the sum of not less than fifty thousand dollars, conditioned upon the faithful and honest discharge of all duties and obligations imposed by statute upon him.

An advisory commission to the commissioner of banks is hereby created to consist of the state treasurer and the attorney general, as ex-officio members, and three members to be appointed by the governor for a term of two years, two of which said members shall be practical bankers and one shall be a business man, and shall serve without compensation other than the same per diem and expense allowance paid to members of the advisory budget commission, and the same shall be paid from the fees collected under section 223(f) of Consolidated Statutes. It shall be the duty of said advisory commission to advise with the commissioner of banks from time to time upon the question of the administration of the banking laws with a view to working out a policy for the safe, sane and practical administration of the banking laws of the State: Provided, that no member of the advisory banking board shall divulge or make use of any information coming into his possession as a result of his service on such board; nor shall any member of said board otherwise give out any information with reference to any facts coming into his possession by reason of his service on such board in connection with the condition of any state banking institution, unless such information shall be required of him as a result of subpoena or other process.

The advisory commission shall meet at such time or times, not less than every three months as the commission shall by resolution prescribe; and a commission may be convened in special session at the call of the governor upon his own motion or upon request of the commissioner of banks. The treasurer shall be chairman of the commission.

Appeals may be made to such commission from any ruling of the commissioner of banks and the decision of such commission shall be final. (1931, c. 243, s. 1; 1935, c. 266.)

Editorial Note.—The most notable change in the banking law is the creation of a new banking department and of a new official—the commissioner of banks, to whom is transferred the supervision of banks heretofore exercised by the corporation commission. Co-operating with the commissioner of banks under the present law is an appointive, policy-determining commission which sits as a court of final jurisdiction on appeals from rulings of the bank commissioner. Outside of the provision for this commission the obvious purpose is a transfer of responsibility, not an increase or decrease of it in the new hands. That intent is made sufficiently clear by § 221(r) on powers, and § 221(s) which amends the former banking law by substituting "commissioner of banks" throughout for "corporation commission," "chief state bank examiner," etc.

As to the matter of appeal from the commissioner of banks provided for at the close of this section, two peculiarities demand notice: (1) the commission provided for is nowhere declared to be a judicial or quasi-judicial body as is the corporation commission to whose powers the commissioner of banks succeeds. It is characterized in the section as an "advisory commission" and the later provision for appeals to such a body is therefore somewhat singular. (2) Considering that the intent is to create an administrative board with quasi-judicial powers the right of appeal from its decisions seems to be expressly denied by the words, "the decisions of such commission shall be final." Unless this phrase be limited by judicial construction to finality on the facts there seems no chance of sustaining its constitutionality. There is nothing in the statute to suggest a legislative intent that such a construction be given.

Had the new banking department been created as a purely administrative agency it might fairly be contended that the finality of its action would be in an administrative sense only, and appropriate legal proceedings could be had to test them. But the corporation commission had judicial powers in dealing with banks—its stock assessments were, for example, given the effect of Superior Court judgments. See § 218(c), (13); Corporation Commission v. Murphey, 197 N. C. 42, 147 S. E. 667, aff'd 280 U. S. 534, 50 Sup. Ct. 161; see also Corporation Commission v. Bank of Vanceboro, 200 N. C. 422, 157 S. E. 59. And the new commissioner of banks succeeds to those judicial powers so that he is obviously not a purely administrative official. There still remains the possibility that as to certain matters his rulings are administrative and that it is in respect to such rulings only that the decisions of the new commission as an appellate administrative body are final. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 348-350.

The amendment of 1935 changed the first sentence of the second paragraph of this section so that the members may receive the same per diem and expense allowance as the advisory budget commission.

§ 221(p). Powers and duties of commissioner.—The commissioner of banks shall have the powers, duties and functions herein given, and in addition thereto such other powers and rights as may be necessary or incident to the proper discharge of his duties. (1931, c. 243, s. 2.)

The Commissioner of Banks, when engaged in the liquidation of the assets of an insolvent bank, as authorized by statute, does not derive his power or his authority from the court. His power and authority, both to take possession of an insolvent bank, and to liquidate its assets for distribution among its creditors according to their respective rights, are derived from the statute. In re Central Bank, etc., Co., 206 N. C. 251, 253, 173 S. E. 340.

§ 221(q). Right to sue and defend in actions involving banks; liability to suit.—As commissioner of banks he is empowered to sue and prosecute or defend in any action or proceeding in any courts of this State or any other state and in any court of the United States for the enforcement or protection of any right or pursuit of any remedy necessary or proper in connection with the subjects committed to him for administration or in connection with any bank or the rights, liabilities, property or assets thereof, under his supervision; but nothing herein shall be construed to render the commissioner of banks liable to be sued except as other departments and agencies of the State may be liable under the general law. (1931, c. 243, s. 3.)

§ 221(r). Commissioner vested with powers and duties of corporation commission with respect to banks.—All the powers, duties and functions now vested in or exercised by the corporation commission of North Carolina, with respect to banks and institutions receiving money on deposit, trust companies and financial institutions now under the supervision of the said corporation commission or chief state bank examiner are hereby transferred to and are vested in, and shall hereafter be exercised by the commissioner of banks provided for in this act and his successors in office, subject to the provisions contained in section one of this act. Wherever and whenever, under existing law, report, petition, application, memorial or communication is required or permitted to be made or addressed to the corporation commission, of or concerning any of the subjects herein transferred to the commissioner of banks for administration or supervision, the same shall be made and addressed to the commissioner of banks. (1931, c. 243, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The Legislature seemingly overlooked the confusion which such a lazy method of amending introduces into certain sections where under present law both the corporation commission and the state bank examiner are spoken of in relation to each other. To illustrate—§ 222(a) is affected as follows by the amending act: "The [corporation commission] commissioner of banks shall exercise control of and supervision over the banks doing business under this chapter and it shall be his duty to execute and enforce through the [chief state bank examiner] commissioner of banks, * * *." The wholesale substitution of titles provided for also presents difficulties in various parts of § 218(c), as well as in §§ 217(d), (g), 222(a), (g), 223(f), and 224(b), (b½), (i). Furthermore, § 223(a) as amended would provide that the [corporation commission] commissioner of banks should appoint a [chief state bank examiner] commissioner of banks to make examination of banks. Doubtless the court can cure the fault by making a substitution only in those places where the real objective of the new law will be served, but no such burden should have been thrown on the judiciary. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 348, 349.

Cited in Fidelity, etc., Co. v. People's Bank, 72 F. (2d) 932.

§ 221(t). Salary of commissioner; legal assistance and compensation.—The salary of the commissioner of banks shall be fixed by the advisory budget commission. The governor may in his discretion appoint and assign to the commissioner of banks such legal assistance as in his judgment may be necessary; and compensation therefor, when permanent, shall be fixed in like manner. (1931, c. 243, s. 6.)

§ 221(u). Banking department preserved; funds transferred to new department.—The banking department shall be maintained in the manner now provided by law, and no other assessments or levies shall be made therefor: Provided, all funds now held in the state treasury for the support of the banking department are hereby transferred to the banking department herein created and shall be used solely for its support. (1931, c. 243, s. 7.)

§ 221(v). Vacancy appointments and removal.—Vacancies existing in the office of commissioner of banks by death, resignation or otherwise shall be filled by the governor; and he shall have the power of removal for sufficient cause. (1931, c. 243, s. 8.)

§ 221(w). Seal of office of commissioner; certification of documents.—The commissioner of banks shall have a seal of office bearing the legend "State of North Carolina—Commissioner of Banks," with such other appropriate device as he may adopt. In all cases where the seal of the corporation commission has been required on any document the said seal shall be sufficient; and whenever any record paper or document is required to be certified or evidenced by the certificate of the corporation commission or its clerk, or by the chief state bank examiner attested by the clerk of the corporation commission, whether the seal of the corporation commission is required thereto or otherwise, or wherever any act or thing is required or permitted to be evidenced by such certificate, the certificate shall be made by the commissioner of banks, and shall have the validity, force and effect now given by law to such certificate. (1931, c. 243, s. 9.)

§ 221(x). Official records.—The commissioner of banks shall keep a record in his office of his official acts, rulings and transactions: Provided, however, that where any disclosure of the records in his office, or of any report or other transaction, might injuriously affect any bank actually operating, such disclosure shall not be made or required except as may now be done under the provisions of law in similar cases. (1931, c. 243, s. 10.)

§ 221(y). General or special investigations of insolvent banks.—Whenever it may appear to be to the public interest, the governor may cause a general or special investigation to be made of the affairs of any insolvent bank or banks, singly or in related groups, with a view to discovering and establishing the causes of the failure of such bank or banks, and responsibility therefor; and of discovering the dealings with such banks of persons, officers, corporations or municipalities which may have led to such insolvency or which may have endangered or involved any public funds therein. The governor may assign counsel who shall prosecute such inquiry before the commissioner of banks, or a deputy or commissioner appointed by the commissioner of banks for the purpose; and the commissioner of banks is hereby empowered to conduct such investigation either in person or through such commissioner or deputy appointed by him. The inquiry shall be held at the office of commissioner of banks in the city of Raleigh or at any other place or places in the State designated by the commissioner of banks under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe and may be adjourned from time to time as convenience may require. Attendance of witnesses and production of papers may be required by subpoena under the hand of the commissioner or his deputy, and on failure of any witness to appear as subpoenaed or his or her failure to produce any books or papers, as called for by such commissioner or deputy on subpoena or other due notice shall be served, at the instance of such commissioner or deputy, of not less than three days to appear before a judge of the superior court residing in or holding courts within the district wherein such witness is subpoenaed or notified to appear or produce such records or papers, on a day certain and a place named, when such judge shall hear the matter and is authorized to punish such witness as for contempt as he may find on such hearing.

A summary of such investigation shall be made with the findings and recommendations of the commissioner thereon, and a copy thereof submitted to the governor, and when the facts shall disclose that any person or persons are criminally responsible, a summary shall be sent to the solicitor of the judicial district likely to have jurisdiction of the matter, whose duty it shall be to have the matter presented to the grand jury for its action. The governor may employ counsel to assist in the prosecution of any person or persons criminally responsible and fix his compensation and the manner of its payment. (1931, c. 243, s. 11.)

§ 221(z). Clerical help.—The commissioner of banks is empowered to employ sufficient clerical and secretarial help, and other necessary labor to conduct the affairs of his office with economy and efficiency. Persons so employed shall be paid as other employees in the departments of the State and shall be under the same rules and regulations. (1931, c. 243, s. 12.)

§ 221(aa). Suitable offices; transfer of books, records, etc., by corporation commission.—Suitable offices shall be provided for the commissioner of banks in some State owned public building in Raleigh. Upon his induction into office the corporation commission shall turn over and deliver to him all books, records, papers, and documents in its possession or control solely relating to banks and their supervision. (1931, c. 243, s. 13.)

§ 222. Acceptances.—Banking corporations and banking and trust companies doing a fiduciary business shall have power to accept drafts or bills of exchange drawn upon them, and to endorse drafts or bills of exchange drawn upon another, having not more than six months sight to run, exclusive of days of grace, which grow out of transactions involving the importation or exportation of goods, or which grow out of transactions involving the domestic shipment of goods. No such banking corporation or banking and trust company doing a fiduciary business shall accept or indorse, whether in a foreign or domestic transaction, for any one person, company, firm, or corporation to an amount equal at any time in the aggregate to more than ten per centum of its paid-up and unimpaired capital stock and surplus, unless the banking corporation or banking and trust company doing a fiduciary business is secured either by attached documents or by some other actual security growing out of the same transaction as the acceptance; and no such banking corporation or banking and trust company doing a fiduciary business shall accept or indorse such bills or drafts to an amount equal at any one time in the aggregate to more than one-half of its paid-up and unimpaired capital stock and surplus. The commissioner of banks, however, under such general regulations as he may prescribe, which shall apply to all banking corporations or banking and trust companies doing a fiduciary business alike regardless of the amount of capital stock and surplus, may authorize any banking corporation or banking and trust company doing a fiduciary business to accept or indorse such bills or drafts to an amount not exceeding at any time in the aggregate one hundred per centum of its paid-up and unimpaired capital stock and surplus: Provided, that the aggregate of acceptances growing out of domestic transactions shall in no event exceed fifty per centum of such capital stock and surplus. (1919, c. 76; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — The corresponding section in the banking act of 1921 is section 220(l). While that section undoubtedly covers a part of the subject matter in this section it does not cover all of it. Section 220(l) would very probably be held to be a supplement to this section and for that reason this section is not omitted. See the editor's note under section 216(a).

§ 222(a). Commissioner of banks shall have supervision over, etc.—Every bank, corporation, partnership, firm, company, or individual, now or hereafter transacting the business of banking, or doing a banking business in connection with any other business, under the laws of and within this state, shall be subject to the provisions of this chapter, and shall be under the supervision of the commissioner of banks. The commissioner of banks shall exercise control of and supervision over the banks doing business under this chapter, and it shall be his duty to execute and enforce through [the commissioner of banks,] the state bank examiners, and such other agents as are now or may hereafter be created or appointed, all laws which are now or may hereafter be enacted relating to banks as defined in this chapter. For the more complete and thorough enforcement of the provisions of this chapter, the commissioner of banks is hereby empowered to promulgate such rules, regulations, and instructions, not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter, as may in his opinion be necessary to carry out the provisions of the laws relating to banks and banking as herein defined, and as may be further necessary to insure such safe and conservative management of the banks under its supervision as will provide adequate protection for the interests of the depositors, creditors, stockholders, and public in their relations with such banks. All banks doing business under the provisions of this chapter shall conduct their business in a manner consistent with all laws relating to banks and banking, and all rules, regulations, and instructions that may be promulgated or issued by the commissioner of banks. (1921, c. 4, s. 63; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — Section 244 of the consolidated statutes was the corresponding section of the law prior to this section, which changed the law considerably. Part of the old section provided for the control of receivers appointed by the superior court insofar as not inconsistent with the order of appointment. Of course this section makes no mention of receivers as their duties now devolve upon the commissioner of banks and his agents under section 218(c). See 3 N. C. Law Rev. 81.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" and "chief state bank examiner" formerly appearing in this section. The substitution for the latter officer was made in the phrase appearing in brackets. The amending act either should have stricken out this phrase, or made it clear as to the present status of the chief state bank examiner. See note to section 221(s).

§ 222(b). Reports of condition.—Every bank shall make to the commissioner of banks not less than three reports during each year, according to the form which may be prescribed by said commissioner of banks; which report shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of the president, vice-president, cashier, secretary, or treasurer of said bank, and in addition thereto, two of the directors, in the case of incorporated banks, and in other cases by the oath or affirmation of the partners, members of the firm, or individual owner. Each such report shall exhibit in detail and under appropriate heads the resources, assets, and liabilities of such bank at the close of business on any past day by the commissioner of banks specified, and shall be transmitted to the commissioner of banks within ten days after the receipt of a request or requisition therefor from the commissioner of banks; and in a form prescribed by the commissioner of banks; a summary of such report shall be published in a newspaper published in the place where the bank is located, or if there is no newspaper in the place, then in the nearest one published thereto in the county in which such bank is established. Proof of such publication shall be furnished the commissioner of banks in such form as may be prescribed by him. (1921, c. 4, s. 64; 1923, c. 148, s. 2; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — This section seems to cover all the terms of C. S. section 245, and supersedes it. However, there are a few changes. Formerly the secretary or treasurer could not verify the report on oath; and the full report must have been published "in a newspaper in the county in which the banking corporation or individual was located." The provisions prescribing the details of such report were also inserted.

The 1923 amendment changed the minimum number of reports from four to three.

§ 222(c). Reports of condition of trust and surety companies.—Every person, firm, corporation, or partnership doing a banking business, or a banking business in connection with any other business, shall make to the commissioner of banks not less than three reports during each year, on forms prescribed by the commissioner of banks. If any person, firm, corporation, or copartnership shall show by said reports, or by the examination of any state bank examiner, that such liabilities are equal to the amount of the capital stock of such bank, the commissioner of banks shall have authority, and is hereby empowered to make such rules and regulations for the reduction of said liabilities as it may deem necessary for the protection of the creditors and depositors of such banking institution. (1921, c. 4, s. 65; 1923, c. 148, ss. 1, 3; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — This section as passed in 1921 was a literal re-enactment of C. S. section 246 and supersedes it. As re-enacted a minimum of four reports a year were required, being changed to three by the 1923 amendment to this section. The old section contained a clause specifying that the report should show "the entire amount of trust and surety and fiduciary and guaranty business as a part of the liabilities of said banking institution, which report should be published as are the reports of other banking institutions. This too was changed by the 1923 amendment and the requirement that the report be made on forms furnished substituted therefor.

Liability Where False Statement Misleads. — A false and misleading statement made by the directors by which one was lead to make deposits gave a cause of action against the directors. It was also held that the directors are presumed to know the condition of the bank. Tate v. Bates, 118 N. C. 287, 24 S. E. 482. See also Houston v. Thornton, 122 N. C. 365, 29 S. E. 827; Townsend v. Williams, 117 N. C. 330, 23 S. E. 461; Solomon v. Bates, 118 N. C. 311, 24 S. E. 478, and the cases cited under section 220(d) and 221(e).

§ 222(d). Special reports. — The commissioner of banks may call for special reports whenever in his judgment it is necessary to inform him of the condition of any bank, or to obtain a full and complete knowledge of its affairs. Said reports shall be in and according to the form prescribed by the commissioner of banks, and shall be verified in the manner provided in section 222(b), and shall be published as therein provided, if required by the commissioner of banks so to be. (1921, c. 4, s. 66; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — There was no corresponding section in the prior law. However, under C. S. section 247 a special report might be required when necessary to acquire a full knowledge of a bank. There was no requirement as to form or publishing.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 222(e). Failure to make report, penalty for.— Every bank failing to make and transmit any report which the commissioner of banks is authorized to require by this chapter, and in and according to the form prescribed by said commissioner of banks, within ten days after the receipt of a request or requisition therefor, or failing to publish the reports as required, shall forthwith be notified by the commissioner of banks, and if such failure continue for five days after the receipt of such notice, such delinquent bank shall be subject to a penalty of two hundred dollars. The penalty herein provided for shall be recovered in a civil action in any court of competent jurisdiction, and it shall be the duty of the attorney-general to prosecute all such actions. (1921, c. 4, s. 67; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — This section is a re-enactment of C. S. section 248.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 222(f). Annual report of stockholders. — Every bank doing business under this chapter shall at all times keep a correct record of the names of all its stockholders, and once in each year, or whenever called upon, file in the office of the commissioner of banks a correct list of all its stockholders, the resident address of each, and the number of shares held by each. (1921, c. 4, s. 68; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of the first sentence of C. S. section 247.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 222(g). Official communications of commissioner of banks. — Each official communication directed by the commissioner of banks, or any state bank examiner, to any bank, or to any officer thereof, relating to an examination or investigation conducted or made by [the banking department of] the commissioner of banks, or containing suggestions or recommendations as to the conduct of the bank shall, if required by the authority submitting same, be submitted by the officer or director receiving it, to the executive committee or board of directors of such bank and duly noted in the minutes of such meeting. The receipt and submission of such notice to the executive committee or board of directors shall be certified to the commissioner of banks within such time as he may require, by three members of such committee or board. (1921, c. 4, s. 69; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — The provisions of this section were new with the 1921 act.

§ 222(h). Books, records, etc., commissioner of banks may prescribe. — Whenever in his judgment it may appear to be advisable, the commissioner of banks may issue such rules, instructions, and regulations prescribing the manner of keeping books, accounts, and records of banks as will tend to produce uniformity in the books, accounts, and records of banks of the same class. (1921, c. 4, s. 70; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — The provisions of this section first appeared in the act of 1921.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 222(i). Reserve, when below legal requirement.—When the reserve of any bank falls below the amount required by law, it shall not make new loans or discounts, otherwise than by discounting or purchasing bills of exchange, payable at sight or on demand, nor make dividends of its profits until the reserve required by law is restored. The commissioner of banks shall require any bank whose reserve falls below the amount herein required immediately to make good such reserve. In case the bank fails for thirty days thereafter to make good its reserve, the commissioner of banks may forthwith take possession of the property and business of such bank until its affairs be adjusted or finally liquidated as provided for in this chapter. (1921, c. 4, s. 71; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

As to manner of making good an impaired capital, see section 219(f). As to other limitations upon loans, see section 220(d). As to definition of and amount of reserve, see section 221(g).

Editor's Note. — The first sentence of this section formerly appeared as a part of section 226 which now corresponds to section 220(f). The provisions of the latter part of this section were new with the act of 1921.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

Purpose of Section. — The wisdom of this provision and section 220(d) is manifest; banks, whose business is conducted in strict compliance seldom become insolvent, and thus bring loss and disaster upon depositors and stockholders and usually, also, upon others who may have no direct interest in the insolvent bank, but who nevertheless suffer by reason of the loss sustained by those who do have such interest. These sections, although arbitrary as to details are supported in principle by the lessons taught in the school of experience. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 532, 130 S. E. 180.

Section Not Retroactive. — The limitation in the latter part of this section applies only to new loans made after the ratification of the act and is not retroactive. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 532, 130 S. E. 180.

Individual Liability of Officer. — A bank must act through its officers, and where they have violated the provisions of this section and section 220(d), as to lending the bank's money, the offense is committed by the officers under the meaning of the statute, and they are individually indictable therefor. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

So where the official position of an officer of a bank is such as necessarily to acquaint him of the violation of the statute respecting the making of loans, and to fix him as a party thereto, it is sufficient evidence to sustain his conviction of the misdemeanor prescribed by section 224(i). State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

§ 222(j). Appraisal of assets of doubtful value. —If any assets of a bank are of a doubtful or disputed value, an appraisal of such assets may be had by the commissioner of banks, and for the purpose of making such appraisal the commissioner of banks shall designate one agent as an appraiser and the bank shall designate an agent as an appraiser and the two so chosen shall designate a third. The appraisers so selected shall make an appraisal of the assets so designated as doubtful or disputed and file a written report of their appraisal with the bank and with the commissioner of banks. In making such appraisal the appraisers shall determine the actual cash market value of such assets. Such appraisal, when made, shall be accepted as the value of such assets for the purpose of examination or for the purpose of determining the actual cash market value of such assets. The appraisers designated shall not be interested, in any way, either in the bank or as an employee of the commissioner of banks and all expenses of such appraisal shall be paid by the bank whose assets are appraised. If any bank required to appoint an appraiser hereunder shall fail for ten (10) days to appoint an appraiser, the commissioner of banks may apply to the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county in which the bank is located for the appointment of such an appraiser, and the clerk shall thereupon make the appointment for the bank. (1927, c. 47, s. 13; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" and "chief state bank examiner" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 222(k). Certified copies of records as evidence.—In all civil actions in the courts of this State wherein are involved as evidence or otherwise any of the records of the banking department of the commissioner of banks, a certified copy over the signature of the commissioner of banks attested by the Chief Clerk of the commissioner of banks under the seal of the commissioner of banks shall be admissible in evidence to the same effect as if produced in court at trial by the proper custodian of the records of said department. (1927, c. 47, s. 14; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" and "chief state bank examiner" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 222(l). Other powers of commissioner of banks.—In addition to all other powers conferred upon and vested in him, the commissioner of banks, with the approval of the governor, is hereby authorized, empowered and directed, whenever in his judgment the circumstances warrant it:

(a) To authorize, permit, and/or direct and require all banking corporations under his supervision, to extend for such period and upon such terms as he deems necessary and expedient, payment of any demand and/or time deposits.

(b) To direct, require or permit, upon such terms as he may deem advisable, the issuance of clearing house certificates or other evidences of claims against assets of such banking institutions.

(c) To authorize and direct the creation, in such banking institutions, of special trust accounts for the receipt of new deposits, which deposits shall be subject to withdrawal on demand without any restriction or limitation and shall be kept separate in cash or on deposit in such banking institutions as he shall designate or invested in such obligations of the United States and/or the state of North Carolina as he shall designate.

§ 222(m). Orders of commissioner to be observed; right of appeal.—The commissioner of banks is hereby authorized, empowered and directed to make all necessary rules and regulations, and to give all necessary instructions with respect to such banking corporations which he may authorize, permit and/or direct and require to be conducted under the provisions of this act. And it shall be the duty of all such banking corporations and their officers, agents and employees, to comply fully with any and all such rules, regulations and instructions, established and promulgated by the commissioner of banks with respect to such banking corporations under the terms of this act; and such orders, rules, and regulations shall have the same force and effect as rules, regulations and instructions promulgated under the existing banking laws. The right of appeal provided in section 221(o) shall apply to all such rules, regulations and instructions adopted and issued by the commissioner of banks. (1933, c. 120, s. 4.)

§ 222(n). Commissioner need not take over banks failing to meet deposit demands.—The commissioner of banks is authorized and directed not to take possession of any banking corporation under his supervision for failure to meet its deposit liabilities during the period in which such banking corporation is operating under the terms of section 222(l), paragraph (a); and he is hereby relieved from any and all liability for permitting such banking corporations to continue operations under the terms hereof. (1933, c. 120, s. 5.)

§ 222(o). Additional powers with relation to deposits.—The commissioner of banks is hereby authorized and empowered in addition to other powers, vested in him, whenever in his judgment the circumstances warrant it, to authorize any bank, trust company, savings bank, industrial bank, or other institution under his supervision having the power to receive or which is receiving money on deposit:

(A) To extend for such period as he deems necessary and expedient payment of any time deposits where notice of withdrawal has been given or may hereafter be given.

(B) To postpone the payment of demand deposits for such time and to such extent as he deems necessary and expedient.

(C) To permit such bank to receive new deposits (after the time of the granting of the authority for the postponement of the payment of time and demand deposits) but such deposits so received shall not under any circumstances be subjected to any limitations as to payment or withdrawal and such deposits shall be segregated and held and used solely to meet such new deposit liabilities: Provided, that all sums received from such new deposits shall be invested, deposited and administered in all respects under the orders and directions of the commissioner of banks and said commissioner of banks shall have absolute power in regard to the handling of such new deposits and providing methods of checking against same and said commissioner of banks shall have absolute power to at any time withdraw the permission to receive such new deposits. All costs in connection with the receiving, handling and administering the proceeds of such new deposits shall be borne by the bank receiving the same and no part of such expenses shall be charged against such new deposits that can in any way prevent the payment of such new deposits in full.

In order that any institution may avail itself of the privileges herein granted, it shall accept such terms as the commissioner of banks from time to time impose upon it.

The commissioner of banks is authorized and directed not to take possession of any institution under his supervision for failure immediately to meet its deposit liabilities if it shall accept the terms imposed in accordance with the provisions of this section, and he is hereby relieved of any and all liability for permitting such institution to continue operations.

Nothing herein contained shall be construed or interpreted as in any manner abating any of the powers granted to and exercised by the commissioner of banks under existing law.

The commissioner of banks is given full power and authority to make rules and regulations and to impose terms in regard to the management and administration of all banks which shall be permitted to, or which, under the direction of the commissioner of banks, is being conducted in any way under the provision of this section. (1933, c. 103.)

Referring to subd. (B) of this section, it was said in 11 N. C. Law Rev. 194 that this provision reverses all historic banking law for in the past a bank unable to meet the demand of its depositors was not deemed fit to receive others even if it would handle the new ones better than it had the old.

Applied in Baker-Cammack Textile Corp. v. Hood, 206 N. C. 782, 175 S. E. 151, as to liability of banks receiving deposit without restrictions as to withdrawals.

Art. 8. Bank Examiners

Editor's Note. — This section is a re-enactment of a part of C. S. section 249, and does not make any change in the part re-enacted except that it changes the classification of examiners from "a bank examiner and such number of assistant bank examiners as are necessary" to a "chief state bank examiner, such state bank examiners and assistant state bank examiners" as are necessary.

As to the new sections containing the provisions of C. S. section 249 not incorporated in this section, see the note under section 249.

The Act of 1929 provided that "commissioner of banks" should be substituted for "corporation commission" or "chief state bank examiner." However, it seems that the general assembly may not have intended that such substitution should be made in the phrase appearing in brackets. See § 221(s) and note thereto.

For a case describing the manner in which the commission takes charge through the state bank examiner see Taylor v. Everett, 188 N. C. 247, 124 S. E. 316. See also the article in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 79, discussing the case and suggesting that the bank examiner probably has power to prescribe regulations without the express approval or direction of the commission although upon an appeal the decision of the commission would undoubtedly control.

§ 223(b). Duties and powers.—It shall be the duty of the examiners to verify all reports made to the commissioner of banks by the officers and directors, members, or individuals conducting any banking institution, as required by this chapter or by the commissioner of banks. The officers of every bank shall submit and surrender its books, assets, papers, and concerns to the examiners, appointed under this chapter, who shall retain the custody and possession of such books, assets, papers, and concerns for such length of time as may be required for the purpose of making an examination as required by this chapter. If any officer shall refuse to surrender the books, assets, papers, and concerns as herein provided, or shall refuse to be examined under oath touching the affairs of such bank, the said examiner may forthwith take possession of the property and business of the bank and liquidate its affairs in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. (1921, c. 4, s. 73; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — The first sentence of this section is a re-enactment of a portion of the first sentence of C. S. 249, which required the examiners to verify the quarterly report which was required by sec. 245; thus, it will be seen that the terms have been extended to include all the reports made to the commissioner.

By virtue of C. S. sec. 250 it was the duties of the examiners to examine the books, papers and affairs of the bank, but the section did not go into detail as to the surrender of the books etc., nor fix a penalty for a refusal to do so. However, under C. S. sec. 253 the examiners were given power to take and retain possession of any bank for the purpose of examining into its affairs, when authorized to do so, but it fixed no penalty for a failure of the officers to fail to surrender the books, etc.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section. And it may have been the intent of the general assembly to substitute such words for the word "examiner" appearing near the end of the section.

§ 223(c). Officers and employees, removal of.—The commissioner of banks shall have the right, and is hereby empowered, to require the immediate removal from office of any officer, director, or employee of any bank doing business under this chapter, who shall be found to be dishonest, incompetent, or reckless in the management of the affairs of the bank, or who persistently violates the laws of this state or the lawful orders, instructions, and regulations issued by the commissioner of banks. (1921, c. 4, s. 74; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — There was no section in the Consolidated Statutes corresponding to this section.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 223(d). Examiners may administer oath.—For the purpose of making examinations as required by this chapter, any duly appointed examiner may administer oaths to examine any officer, director, agent, employee, customer, depositor, shareholders of such bank, or any other person or persons, touching its affairs and business. Any examiner may summon in writing any officer, director, agent, employee, customer, depositor, shareholder, or any person or persons resident of this state to appear before him and testify in relation thereto. (1921, c. 4, s. 75.)

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of a portion of C. S. sec. 250.

§ 223(e). Examiners may make arrest.—When it shall appear to any examiner, by examination or otherwise, that any officer, agent, employee, director, stockholder, or owner of any bank has been guilty of a violation of the criminal laws of this state relating to banks, it shall be his duty, and he is hereby empowered to hold and detain such person or persons until a warrant can be procured for his arrest; and for such purposes such examiner shall have and possess all the powers of peace officers of such county, and may make arrest without warrant for past offenses. Upon report of his action to the commissioner of banks, he may direct the release of the person or persons so held, or, if in his judgment such person or persons should be prosecuted, the commissioner of banks shall cause the solicitor of the judicial district in which such detention is had to be promptly notified, and the action against such person or persons shall be continued a reasonable time to enable the solicitor to be present at the trial. (1921, c. 4, s. 76; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

As to malfeasance of bank examiners, etc., see sec. 224(e), 4401.

Editor's Note. — This section is a re-enactment of C. S. sec. 254.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" and "commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 223(f). Annual examination. — For the purpose of paying the salaries and necessary traveling expenses of the commissioner of banks, State bank examiners, assistant State bank examiners, clerks, stenographers and other employees of [the banking department of] the commissioner of banks, the following fees shall be paid into the office of the commissioner of banks: (a) Each bank and each branch of any bank which under the laws of the State of North Carolina is subject to supervision and examination by the commissioner of banks and is authorized to do business or is in process of voluntary liquidation shall, within ten days after the assessment has been made, pay into the office of the commissioner of banks according to its total resources as shown by its report of condition made to the commissioner of banks at the close of business December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and twenty-six, and on the thirty-first day of December, or the date most nearly approximating same of each year thereafter on which a report of condition is made to the commissioner of banks not in excess of the following fees for its annual examination: Fifty dollars for the first one hundred thousand dollars of assets or less, seven dollars for each one hundred thousand dollars or fraction in excess thereof, and two dollars for each one hundred thousand dollars or fraction thereof of trust assets, which said trust assets shall not include real estate carried as such.

(b) All examinations made other than those provided for in subsection (a) hereof shall be deemed special examinations and for such special examination the bank shall pay into the office of the commissioner of banks the following fees for each special examination: Fifty dollars for the first one hundred thousand dollars of assets or less, seven dollars for each one hundred thousand dollars or fraction in excess thereof, and two dollars for each one hundred thousand dollars or fraction thereof of trust assets, which said trust assets shall not include real estate carried as such. The fees paid for special examination shall be based on the assets of the bank examined as of the date of such examination.

(c) For services performed for any bank other than examination, the commissioner of banks may make such charge as in his opinion is fair and just.

(d) In all criminal cases tried in any of the courts of this state wherein any of the employees of [the banking department of] the commissioner of banks are used as witnesses, a fee of ten ($10.00) dollars per day and actual expenses incurred shall be allowed such witnesses and the same shall be paid to the commissioner of banks by the clerk of the court of the county in which the case is tried and thereafter charged in bill of costs as are other costs incurred in the trial; and in all civil actions tried in any of the courts of this State, wherein any of the employees of [the banking department of] the commissioner of banks are required as witnesses, the party requiring such employee as witness shall deposit with the [banking department] when the subpoena is served a sufficient sum to cover the witness fee of ten ($10.00) dollars per day and expenses, and such sums as may thus be advanced shall thereafter be charged in the bill of costs as other costs are charged.

All sums paid under this subsection shall be paid to the commissioner of banks as are fees for examination and used in like manner.

(e) The commissioner of banks shall fix the compensation for and otherwise exercise control over those employed [in the banking department of] the commissioner of banks.

(f) The total compensation and necessary traveling expenses of the employees of the [banking department] shall not in any one year exceed the total fees collected under the provisions of this act.

(g) Any fees collected by the commissioner of banks for any regular or special examination made during the year nineteen hundred and twenty-seven prior to the ratification of this act shall be refunded to the bank having paid same. (1921, c. 4, s. 77; 1927, c. 47, s. 15; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — This section is a re-enactment of C. S. sec. 252. However there were several radical changes.

The amount of the fees payable was raised in all cases; under the prior section the full amount of the fees fixed for the annual examination must be paid and in addition the expenses incurred and services rendered, other than examinations performed, had to be paid for. But in no case was a bank required to pay for more than one examination unless its condition was precarious or in some other way unsatisfactory.

The act of 1921 raised the rate in all cases and changed the amount from a fixed sum to the maximum which might be charged, the specific sum actually charged up to the amount prescribed being left to the discretion of the commission. Under this act charges were made for both annual and special examinations. The provision relating to the payment of the balance into the state treasury was omitted.

The 1927 amendment or re-enactment made a radical change in the section. The section was subdivided, new provisions were added and in many instances the old provisions changed. The fees were again raised by this act and the classification of the capital stock which determines the amount of fee charged. The distinction between annual and special examinations was first made in this act; and subsections (d) and (g) were inserted.

Public Laws 1929, ch. 280, sec. 5, provided that all expenses of every kind concerning bank examinations be paid out of the fees collected under this section.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "chief state bank examiner" formerly appearing in the third line of this section, as well as for "corporation commission" whereever appearing. As mentioned in note to sec. 221(s) this method of amending is apt to cause confusion. It seems that the words "the banking department of" appearing in brackets should have been omitted in the section as amended. It also seems that the words "banking department" in brackets in subsections (d) and (f) should have been replaced by "commissioner of banks," and the words in brackets in subsection (e) should have been replaced by the word "by."

§ 223(g). Examiners shall make report.—Examiners shall make a full and detailed report in writing to the commissioner of banks of the condition of each bank within ten days after each and every examination made by them. (1921, c. 4, s. 78; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — This section is a reenactment of the last sentence of C. S. sec. 250.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

Art. 9. Penalties

§ 224(a). Examiner making false report. — If any bank examiner shall knowingly and willfully make any false or fraudulent report of the condition of any bank, which shall have been examined by him, with the intent to aid or abet the officers, owners, or agents of such bank in continuing to operate an insolvent bank, or if any such examiner shall keep or accept any bribe or gratuity given for the purpose of inducing him not to file any report of examination of any bank made by him, or shall neglect to make an examination of any bank by reason of having received or accepted any bribe or gratuity, he shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction thereof shall be imprisoned in the state prison for not less than four months nor more than ten years. (1921, c. 4, s. 79.

§ 224(b). Examiners disclosing confidential information.—If any bank examiner or other employee of [the banking department of] the commissioner of banks fails to keep secret the facts and information obtained in the course of an examination of a bank, except when the public duty of such examiner or employee requires him to report upon or take official action regarding the affairs of such bank, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than twelve months, or both, in the discretion of the court. Nothing in this section shall prevent the proper exchange of information with the representatives of the banking departments of other states, with the Federal Reserve Bank or national bank examiners, or other authorities, with the creditors of such bank or others with whom a proper exchange of information is wise or necessary, or with the clearing-house officials and examiners. (1921, c. 4, s. 80; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial reenactment of C. S. sec. 251.

§ 224(b½). Loans or gratuities forbidden.— No State bank, or any officer, director or employee thereof shall hereafter make any loan or grant any gratuity to the commissioner of banks, any bank examiner or assistant bank examiner of [the Banking Department of] the commissioner of banks of North Carolina. Any such officer, director or employee violating this provision shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and imprisoned not exceeding one year or fined not more than one thousand dollars, or both; and they may be fined a further sum equal to the money so loaned or gratuity given. If the commissioner of banks, or any bank examiner, or assistant bank examiner of [the Banking Department of] the commissioner of banks of North Carolina shall accept a loan of gratuity from any State bank, or from any officer, director or employee thereof, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not more than one thousand dollars, or both, and may be fined a further sum equal to the money so loaned or gratuity given. (1927, c. 29, s. 1; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "chief state bank examiner" and "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section. It seems that the words in brackets should have been stricken out by the amending act.

§ 224(c). Bank, unauthorized use of the word. —No corporation shall hereafter be chartered under the laws of this state with the words "bank," "banking," "banker," or "trust" as a part of its name except corporations reporting to the commissioner of banks and under its supervision, or under the supervision of the insurance commissioner; nor shall any corporate name be so amended as to include the words "bank," "banking," "banker," or "trust," unless the corporation be under such supervision. No person, association, firm, or corporation domiciled within the state of North Carolina, except corporations, persons, associations, or firms reporting to and under the supervision of the commissioner of banks, or under the supervision of the insurance commissioner, shall therein advertise or put forth any sign as bank, banking, banker, or trust company, or use the word bank, banking, banker, or trust as a part of its name and title: Provided, that this chapter shall not be held to prevent any individual as such from acting in any trust capacity as heretofore. Any violation of the provisions of this section shall be a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof the offender shall be fined in a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars for each offense. (1921, c. 4, s. 81; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

Alleging Corporation is a Bank. — Where the indictment charges the employee with making false entries upon the books of the bank in which he was employed, and that it was a corporation existing under the laws of the state of North Carolina, it is not defective for failing to particularize that it was a bank, within the contemplation of the statute under which the indictment had been drawn. State v. Hedgecock, 185 N. C. 714, 117 S. E. 47.

§ 224(d). Derogatory reports, willfully and maliciously making.—Any person who shall willfully and maliciously make, circulate, or transmit to another or others any statement, rumor, or suggestion, written, printed, or by word of mouth, which is directly or by inference derogatory to the financial condition, or affects the solvency or financial standing of any bank, or who shall counsel, aid, procure, or induce another to state, transmit, or circulate any such statement or rumor shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1921, c. 4, s. 82.)

§ 224(e). "Misapplication, embezzlement of funds, etc. — Whoever being an officer, employee, agent or director of a bank, with intent to defraud or injure the bank, or any person or corporation, or to deceive an officer of the bank or an agent appointed to examine the affairs of such bank, embezzles, abstracts, or misapplies any of the money, funds, credit or property of such bank, whether owned by it or held in trust, or who, with such intent, wilfully and fraudulently issues or puts forth a certificate of deposit, draws an order or bill of exchange, makes an acceptance, assigns a note, bond, draft, bill of exchange, mortgage, judgment, decree or fictitiously borrows or solicits, obtains or receives money for a bank not in good faith, intended to become the property of such bank; or whoever being an officer, employee, agent, or director of a bank, makes or permits the making of a false statement or certificates, as to a deposit, trust fund or contract, or makes or permits to be made a false entry in a book, report, statement or record of such bank, or conceals or permits to be concealed by any means or manner, the true and correct entries of said bank, or its true and correct transactions, who knowingly loans, or permits to be loaned, the funds or credit of any bank to any insolvent company or corporation, or corporation which has ceased to exist, or which never had any existence, or upon collateral consisting of stocks or bonds of such company or corporation, or who makes or publishes or knowingly permits to be made or published a false report, statement or certificate as to the true financial condition of such bank, shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than ten thousand dollars or imprisoned in the State's prison not more than thirty years, or both. (1921, c. 4, s. 83; 1927, c. 47, s. 16.)

Editor's Note. — This section was revised in 1927, the position of many phrases and clauses being changed. It would seem, however, that the section was not changed materially in many respects although it was made somewhat more comprehensive.

Section 4401 is a repetition of this section; a reference should therefore be made to the annotations thereunder. This section seems to cover, at least partially, the terms of sec. 4402 also.

The intent and purpose of this section is to prevent the deception of the officers of a bank or the depletion of its assets or injury of its business by falsification of the bank's books by its officers or employees, and an indictment for the offense is not sufficient which merely charges such falsification without showing that the false entries were material or affected the interests of the bank or deceived its officers. State v. Cole, 202 N. C. 592, 163 S. E. 594.

A specific intent to deceive or to defraud is not necessary to a conviction of a bank officer or employee of making false entries on the books of the bank under the provisions of this section, it being sufficient if the defendant wilfully made such false entries, the performance of the act expressly forbidden by statute constituting an offense in itself without regard to the question of specific intent. State v. Lattimore, 201 N. C. 32, 158 S. E. 741.

In a prosecution under this section for wilfully making false entries on the books of a bank an instruction which was intended to stress and in effect did stress the necessity of proving that the false entries were wilfully and not inadvertently made, will not be held for error. State v. Lattimore, 201 N. C. 32, 158 S. E. 741.

"Abstracts" Construed. — The legal meaning of the word "abstract," as it appears in C. S., 4401, with reference to the unlawful use of the funds of the bank, is correctly charged under an instruction to the jury defining it as the taking from or withdrawing from the bank, with the intent to injure or defraud. State v. Switzer, 187 N. C. 88, 121 S. E. 143.

"Embezzle" means to misappropriate as well as to convert to one's own use. State v. Maslin, 195 N. C. 537, 143 S. E. 3, citing State v. Lanier, 89 N. C. 517; State v. Foust, 114 N. C. 842, 19 S. E. 275.

Section 4401 Not in Conflict. — C. S., 4401, making it a criminal offense for the cashier or certain other officers, agents and employees of a bank to be guilty of malfeasance in the respects therein enumerated, making the intent necessary for a conviction, is not in conflict with this section as passed in 1921. State v. Switzer, 187 N. C. 88, 121 S. E. 143.

Conviction of Depositor. — In order to convict a depositor of a bank who has abstracted funds from the bank in collusion with its cashier, it is not required that he himself was an officer of the bank or that he was present at the time the money was feloniously "abstracted," under the provisions of C. S., 4401; and he may be convicted thereunder when the bill of indictment substantially follows the language of the statute and the evidence is sufficient to sustain the charge therein. This is not applicable to the provisions of this section as passed in 1921. State v. Switzer, 187 N. C. 88, 121 S. E. 143

Same—Necessity of Being Present.—Though the depositor was not present at the time the offense was committed, he may be convicted as a principal under the counts of the indictment so charging the offense. State v. Switzer, 187 N. C. 88, 121 S. E. 143.

Allegation That All Defendants Were Officers.—It is not necessary for an indictment charging a conspiracy to violate the provisions of this section, to allege that all of the defendants were officers or employees of the bank, the indictment being sufficient if it alleges that some of the defendants were officers or employees of the bank and that the other defendants conspired with them to do the unlawful act. State v. Davis, 203 N. C. 13, 14, 164 S. E. 737.

Indictment.—In a prosecution under this section and § 4401 it was not necessary to aver or to prove that the money or funds had been committed by the bank to the custody of the defendant or that there had been any breach of trust or confidence except that which arose out of the relation between the bank and the defendant. Nor was it necessary to charge in the very words that the defendant had converted the property to his own use. The words "did embezzle" sufficiently indicated the criminal act. The intent to defraud was sufficiently set out, under § 4621, without specifically naming any particular victim of the preconceived purpose. And the indictment was sufficient though there was nothing to indicate the number of abstractions, if more than one. State v. Maslin, 195 N. C. 537, 540, 143 S. E. 3, citing State v. Switzer, 187 N. C. 88, 121 S. E. 43.

Evidence.—In a prosecution under this section and § 4401 expert parol evidence may be properly admitted to trace book entries, without contradicting them, so as to show that the officer of the bank had embezzled the bank's funds held in trust, as charged in the bill of indictment. In such case there was no invasion of the province of the jury by the expression of an opinion upon a fact in issue. State v. Maslin, 195 N. C. 537, 143 S. E. 3.

Variance as to Some Items.—In a prosecution of an officer of a bank for publishing a false report of the bank's condition in violation of this section, a variance between the allegations and proof as to some of the items of the report will not be fatal when there is no variance with respect to all the items, it being sufficient for conviction if the report as published was false in any particular as alleged in the indictment and was published with knowledge of such falsity and with a wrongful or unlawful intent. State v. Davis, 203 N. C. 47, 48, 164 S. E. 732.

False Statements. — See note to 221(e).

§ 224(f). False certification of a check.—Whoever, being an officer, employee, agent, or director of a bank, certifies a check drawn on such bank, and willfully fails to forthwith charge the amount thereof against the account of the drawer thereof, or willfully certifies a check drawn on such bank unless the drawer of such check has on deposit with the bank an amount of money subject to the payment of such check an equivalent to the amount therein specified, shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than five thousand dollars or imprisoned in the state prison for not more than five years, or both. (1921, c. 4, s. 84.)

§ 224(g). Insolvent banks, receiving deposits in.—Any person, being an officer or employee of a bank, who receives, or being an officer thereof, permits an employee to receive money, checks, drafts, or other property as a deposit therein when he has knowledge that such bank is insolvent, shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than five thousand dollars or imprisoned in the state prison not more than five years, or both. Provided, that in any indictment hereunder insolvency shall not be deemed to include insolvency as defined under subsection (d) in the definition of insolvency under section two hundred and sixteen (a). (1921, c. 4, s. 85; 1927, c. 47, s. 17.)

Editor's Note.—The proviso at the end of this section was added by the 1927 amendment. This was the only change effected by the amendment.

The word "insolvent," in this section, means when the bank cannot meet its depository liabilities in due course, and does not require that the condition of the bank should at the time be such as to enable it at any given time to pay all of its depositors in full at the same time on demand. State v. Hightower, 187 N. C. 300, 121 S. E. 616.

A bank is insolvent within the meaning of this section, when the actual cash market value of its assets is not sufficient to pay its liabilities to its depositors or other creditors. State v. Brewer, 202 N. C. 187, 188, 162 S. E. 363.

Elements of Crime.—In order for a conviction under the provisions of this section, the state must prove beyond a reasonable doubt the actual receipt of the deposits by defendant officer of the bank at the time when the bank was insolvent to his own knowledge, or that such officer permitted an employee of the bank to receive the deposits with knowledge of these facts. State v. Hightower, 187 N. C. 300, 121 S. E. 616.

How Knowledge Determined. — The question as to an officer's knowledge is ordinarily to be determined with reference to a variety of facts and circumstances, and in defense it is permitted to him to go into an investigation of the assets and property of the bank at the date of the deposits, and their value at that time or thereafter, when bearing upon their worth at the time they were charged to have been unlawfully received. State v. Hightower, 187 N. C. 300, 121 S. E. 616.

Same—Admissions.—Upon the trial of an officer of an insolvent bank under this section the officer's admissions that he knew of the insolvency of the bank at the time in question with his explanation thereof is competent testimony. State v. Brewer, 202 N. C. 187, 188, 162 S. E. 363.

Who May Bring Action for Civil Liability.—A violation of this section by an employee, or by officers and directors of a bank, resulting in damages to a depositor, is a wrong to the depositor; he and not the bank or its receiver is entitled to maintain an action to recover the damages resulting from such wrong. See Russell v. Boone, 188 N. C. 830, 125 S. E. 926; Houston v. Thornton, 122 N. C. 365, 29 S. E. 827; Townsend v. Williams, 117 N. C. 330, 23 S. E. 461; Solomon v. Bates, 118 N. C. 311, 24 S. E. 478; Tate v. Bates, 118 N. C. 287, 24 S. E. 482; Bane v. Powell, 192 N. C. 387, 391, 135 S. E. 118.

In his opinion in State v. Hightower, 187 N. C. 300, 121 S. E. 616, speaking of this section, Chief Justice Stacy says: "The statute was designed to protect the depositing public against this kind of practice on the part of officers and employees of banks, and they will be held to a strict accountability under its provisions when they receive, or when any such officer permits an employee to receive deposits therein, with knowledge of the fact that, by reason of the bank's insolvency, such deposits then being received are taken at the expense or certain peril of the depositors presently making them." Bane v. Powell, 192 N. C. 387, 390, 135 S. E. 118.

The right of a depositor in a bank, who has sustained damages, peculiar to himself, by the wrongful act of the officers and directors of the bank, to recover damages in an action brought by him against the officers and directors, is not affected by the decision in Douglass v. Dawson, 190 N. C. 458, 130 S. E. 195; the right is expressly recognized in the opinion in that case. Bane v. Powell, 192 N. C. 387, 391, 135 S. E. 118.

Same—Liability as Bank Asset. — Sums for which bank officers and directors receiving or permitting receipt of deposit with knowledge of bank's insolvency, contrary to this section, are liable is not an asset of the bank, the wrong being only to the depositor, he need not allege, to maintain an action, that bank's receiver refused to sue on demand. Bane v. Powell, 192 N. C. 387, 135 S. E. 118.

Action against Officers to Recover Deposit—Necessary Allegations.—In order for a depositor to maintain an action against the individual officers of an insolvent bank for permitting the deposits to be received it is necessary, among other things, to allege and prove the insolvency of the bank at the time the deposits were made, and the allegation that it was either insolvent then or the misconduct of the officials afterwards caused its insolvency, is insufficient, the alternative of the allegation being a wrong to the bank itself which may be sued upon by its receiver afterwards. Wall v. Howard, 194 N. C. 310, 139 S. E. 449.

Bank Examiner as Expert Witness.—In an action to convict an officer of a bank under this section, the testimony of the State Bank Examiner is to be received as that of an expert upon the question of the bank's insolvency. State v. Hightower, 187 N. C. 300, 121 S. E. 616.

Same—Weight of Evidence.—Where the State Bank Examiner and another expert have been permitted to give their testimony as to the bank's insolvency at the time of the crime, upon their investigation, without stating the basis of their opinions thereon, it may not be decided as a matter of law, upon conflicting evidence, that the defendant must have known of the insolvent condition testified to by the experts. State v. Hightower, 187 N. C. 330, 121 S. E. 616.

Certified Accountant as Witness.—Upon the trial of a bank official under the provisions of this section testimony of a certified public accountant who had had experience in such matters and who had examined the books of the bank and had obtained from the directors, collectively and individually, information as to the value of its assets including lands and collateral, that the bank was insolvent at the time in question is not objectionable. State v. Brewer, 202 N. C. 187, 162 S. E. 363.

§ 224(h). Capital stock, advertising larger amount than that paid in.—It shall be unlawful for any bank to advertise in a newspaper, letterhead, or any other way, a larger capital stock than has been actually paid in in cash. Any bank violating this section shall be subject to a penalty of five hundred dollars for each and every offense. The penalty herein provided for shall be recovered by the state in a civil action in any court of competent jurisdiction, and it shall be the duty of the attorney-general to prosecute all such actions. (1921, c. 4, s. 86.)

§ 224(i). Offenses declared misdemeanors; prosecution; employment of counsel; punishment.—Any offense against the banking laws of the state of North Carolina which is not elsewhere specifically declared to be a crime, or for which elsewhere a penalty is not specifically provided, is hereby declared to be a misdemeanor, and shall be punishable at the discretion of the court. The commissioner of banks is authorized and directed to prosecute all offenses against the banking laws of the state, and to that end is expressly authorized to employ counsel to prosecute in the inferior courts and to aid the solicitor in the superior courts. The auditor of the state shall, upon the certificate of [the chairman of] the commissioner of banks, accompanied by an itemized statement of the account, draw his warrant upon the state treasurer to compensate the counsel so employed, and the state treasurer shall pay the same out of the funds in the treasury and not otherwise appropriated. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 56, s. 4; 1927, c. 47, s. 18; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

See the annotations under secs. 220(d), 221(e).

Editor's Note.—The act of 1927 re-enacted this section in full.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section. It would seem that the words in brackets should have been stricken out by the amendment.

Unlawful Act of Making Loans.—Under this section, the unlawful act of making loans in violation of sec. 220(d) is made a misdemeanor, and is punishable as such at the discretion of the court. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

Officers Individually Liable. — Guilt is personal, and the manifest purpose of the General Assembly in declaring the acts in violation of the statute misdemeanors, punishable at the discretion of the court, was to provide further assurance that these wise and prudent statutory provisions should be obeyed by those who alone could violate them, to wit, officers and directors of the bank. Their personal and individual liability for damages sustained by the bank, its stockholders or other persons, as a result of the violation of these and other provisions of the statute by directors or officers, was evidently not deemed sufficient for the purpose in the mind of the General Assembly. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 533, 130 S. E. 180, see sec. 220(d).

§ 224(j). General corporation law to apply.—All provisions of the law relating to private corporations, and particularly those enumerated in the chapter entitled "Corporations," not inconsistent with this chapter or with the business of banking, shall be applicable to banks. (1921, c. 4, s. 87.)

Editor's Note.—The corresponding section of the prior law was C. S. sec. 236. This section is a re-enactment.

§ 225. Superseded by § 220(p).

Art. 10. Industrial Banks

§ 225(a). Industrial bank defined.—The term "industrial bank," as used in this article shall be construed to mean any corporation organized, or which may hereafter be organized, under the general corporation laws of this state, which is engaged in lending money to be repaid in weekly, or monthly, or other periodical installments, or principal sums as a business: Provided, however, this definition shall not be construed to include building and loan associations, or commercial or savings banks. (1923, c. 225, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—It was stated in the caption of the act of 1923, which revised the law regulating industrial banks that the purpose was to provide for the supervision and examination of industrial banks. While this section is a re-enactment of C. S. sec. 255, it is more specific in its terms, the provisions respecting loans which are to be paid in weekly installments, etc., and the proviso, being added by the act of 1923.

§ 225(b). Manner of organization.—Corporations may be organized under this article in the same manner as provided for corporations authorized under the chapter on corporations. (1923, c. 225, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—This section is a literal re-enactment of C. S. sec. 256.

§ 225(c). Corporate title.—Every corporation incorporated or reorganized pursuant to the provisions of this article shall be known as an industrial bank, and may use the word "bank" as part of its corporate title. (1923, c. 225, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—This section is a literal re-enactment of C. S. sec. 258.

§ 225(d). Capital Stock.—The amount of capital stock with which any industrial bank shall commence business shall not be less than twenty-five thousand ($25,000.00), in cities or towns of fifteen thousand population or less; nor less than fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00), in cities or towns whose population exceeds fifteen thousand but does not exceed twenty-five thousand; nor less than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00), in cities or towns whose population exceeds twenty-five thousand; the population to be ascertained by the last preceding national census: Provided, that this section shall not apply to industrial banks organized and doing business prior to March 3, 1923. (1923, c. 225, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—C. S. sec. 257, which was the corresponding section of the prior law merely provided that the capital should not be under $25,000.

§ 225(e). Sales of capital stock; accounting; fees.—The capital stock sold by any industrial bank in process of organization, or for an increase of the capital stock, shall be accounted for to the bank in the full amount paid for the same. No commission or fee shall be paid to any person, association, or corporation for selling such stock. The commissioner of banks shall refuse authority to commence business to any industrial bank where commissions or fees have been paid, or have been contracted to be paid by it, or by any one in its behalf to any person, association, or corporation for securing subscriptions for or selling stock in such bank. (1923, c. 225, s. 5; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The provisions of this section are new with the act of 1923. It is very similar to sec. 217(e) of the banking laws.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 225(f). Powers.—In addition to the general powers conferred upon corporations by section 1126 of the Consolidated Statutes, every industrial bank shall have the following powers:

1. To loan money on real or personal security and reserve lawful interest in advance upon such loans, and to discount or purchase notes, bills of exchange, acceptances or other choses in action.

2. To sell or offer for sale its secured or unsecured evidences or certificates of indebtedness, or investment, and to receive from investors therein or purchasers thereof payments therefor in installments or otherwise, with or without an allowance of interest upon such payments, whether such evidence or certificates of indebtedness or of investment be hypothecated for a loan or not, and to enter into contracts in the nature of a pledge or otherwise with such investors or purchasers with regard to such evidences or certificates of indebtedness, or of investment; and no such transaction shall in any way be construed to affect the rate of interest on such loans.

3. To charge for a loan made pursuant to this section one dollar for each fifty dollars or a fraction thereof loaned, up to and including loans of two hundred and fifty dollars, and for loans in excess of two hundred and fifty dollars, one dollar for each two hundred and fifty dollars excess or fraction thereof, to cover expenses, including any examination or investigation of the character and circumstances of the borrower, comaker, or surety. An additional fee of five dollars may be charged on such loans where same are secured by mortgage on real estate. No charge shall be collected unless a loan shall have been made.

4. To establish branch offices or places of business within the county in which its principal office is located, and elsewhere in the state, after having first obtained the written approval of the commissioner of banks, which approval may be given or withheld by the commissioner of banks in his discretion: Provided, that the commissioner of banks shall not authorize the establishment of any branch the paid-in capital of whose parent bank is not sufficient in amount to provide for the capital of at least twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) for the parent bank and at least twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) for each branch which it is proposed to be established in cities or towns of fifteen thousand population or less; nor less than fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00) in cities or towns whose population exceeds fifteen thousand but does not exceed twenty-five thousand; nor less than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00) in towns whose population exceeds twenty-five thousand.

5. Subject to the approval of the commissioner of banks and on the authority of its board of directors, or a majority thereof, to enter into such contracts, incur such obligations and generally to do and perform any and all such acts and things whatsoever as may be necessary or appropriate in order to take advantage of any and all memberships, loans, subscriptions, contracts, grants, rights or privileges, which may at any time be available or inure to banking institutions, or to their depositors, creditors, stockholders, conservators, receivers or liquidators, by virtue of those provisions of section eight of the Federal Banking Act of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (section twelve B of the Federal Reserve Act as amended) which establish the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and provide for the insurance of deposits, or of any other provisions of that or any other act or resolution of Congress to aid, regulate or safeguard banking institutions and their depositors, including any amendments of the same or any substitutions therefor; also, to subscribe for and acquire any stock, debentures, bonds or other types of securities of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and to comply with the lawful regulations and requirements from time to time issued or made by such corporations. (1923, c. 225, s. 6; 1925, c. 199, s. 1; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1935, c. 81, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—This section is virtually a re-enactment of C. S. sec. 259. However, subsection 4 has been changed considerably; prior to the re-enactment it was provided that branch offices could be established only in the county in which the principal office was located.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

The amendment of 1935 added subdivision (5) of this section in its entirety. As to investment in bonds guaranteed by United States, see § 220(a) 1. As to loans on mortgages, etc., issued under federal housing act, see § 220(a) 2.

§ 225(g). Restriction on powers.—No industrial bank shall—

1. Make any loan under the provisions of this article for a longer period than one year from the date thereof: Provided, however, that loans upon real estate security may be made for a period not exceeding two years.

2. Deposit any of its funds in any banking corporation unless such corporation has been designated as such depositary by a vote of a majority of the directors, or of the executive committee, exclusive of any director who is an officer, director, or trustee of the depositary, so designated, present at any meeting duly called at which a quorum is in attendance, and approved by the commissioner of banks. (1923, c. 225, s. 7; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—This section is a re-enactment of C. S. sec. 260 except that the proviso in the first subsection and the provisions requiring approval of the commissioner in the second subsection were added.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 225(h). Limit of loans.—The total liabilities to any industrial bank of any person, corporation, company, or firm, for money borrowed, including in the liabilities of the company or firm the liabilities of the several members thereof, shall at no time exceed ten per cent of the actually paid-up capital and surplus of such industrial bank, but the discount of bona fide bills of exchange or acceptances drawn against actually existing values, and the discount of commercial or business paper actually owned by the person or persons, corporation, company or firm negotiating the same, shall not be considered money so borrowed. (1923, c. 225, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—This section is a literal re-enactment of C. S. sec. 261.

§ 225(i). Directors.—At least three-fourths of the number of directors of any industrial bank shall be residents of the state of North Carolina. (1923, c. 225, s. 9.)

Editor's Note.—This section is a literal re-enactment of C. S. sec. 262.

§ 225(j). Officers and employees shall give bond.—The active officers and employees of any industrial bank, before entering upon their duties, shall give bond to the bank in a bonding company authorized to do business in North Carolina in the amount to be required by the directors, and in such form as may be prescribed or approved by the commissioner of banks.

The commissioner of banks, or directors of such bank, may require an increase of the amount of such bond whenever they may deem it necessary. If injured by the breach of any bond given hereunder, the bank so injured may put the same in suit and recover such damage as it may have sustained. (1923, c. 225, s. 10; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The provisions of this section are new with the act of 1923.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 225(k). Supervision and examination.—Every industrial bank now or hereafter transacting the business of an industrial bank as defined by this article whether as a separate business or in connection with any other business under the laws of and within this state, shall be subject to the provisions of this article and shall be under the supervision of the commissioner of banks. The commissioner of banks shall exercise control of and supervision over the industrial banks doing business under this article and it shall be his duty to execute and enforce, through [the commissioner of banks and] the state bank examiners and such other agents as are now or may hereafter be created or appointed, all laws which are now or may hereafter be enacted relating to industrial banks as defined in this article. For the more complete and thorough enforcement of the provisions of this article the commissioner of banks is empowered to promulgate such rules, regulations, and instructions, not inconsistent with the provisions of this article, as may, in his opinion, be necessary to carry out the provisions of the laws relating to industrial banks as herein defined, and as may be further necessary to insure such safe and conservative management of industrial banks under his supervision as may provide adequate protection for the interest of creditors, stockholders, and the public, in their relations with such institutions. All industrial banks doing business under the provisions of this article shall conduct their business in a manner consistent with all laws relating to industrial banks, and all rules, regulations and instructions that may be promulgated or issued by the commissioner of banks. (1923, c. 225, s. 11; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — The corresponding section of the Consolidated Statutes was sec. 263. It provided for a supervision by the commission and subjected industrial banks to an examination under the provisions of the banking laws in so far as they were applicable and not inconsistent with the article on industrial banks.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" and "chief state bank examiner" formerly appearing in this section. The substitution for the latter office was made in the phrase appearing in brackets. It seems that a more careful amendment would have stricken out such phrase, or have made it clear as to the present status of the chief state bank examiner. See sec. 221(s) and note thereto.

§ 225(l). Commissioner of banks may take charge, when.—The commissioner of banks may forthwith take possession of the business and property of any industrial bank to which this act is applicable whenever it shall appear that such industrial bank—

1. Has violated its charter or any laws applicable thereto.
2. Is conducting its business in an unauthorized or unsafe manner.
3. Is in an unsafe or unsound condition to transact its business.
4. Has an impairment of its capital stock.
5. Has refused to pay its holders of certificates of indebtedness or investment in accordance with the terms upon which such certificates of indebtedness or investment were sold.
6. Has become otherwise insolvent.
7. Has neglected or refused to comply with the terms of a duly issued lawful order of the commissioner of banks.
8. Has refused upon proper demand, to submit its records, affairs, and concerns for inspection and examination to a duly appointed or authorized examiner of the commissioner of banks.
9. Its officers have refused to be examined upon oath regarding its affairs.

Such banks may, with the consent of the commissioner of banks, resume business upon such terms and conditions as may be approved by him. (1923, c. 225, s. 12; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — The provisions of this section were new with the act of 1923.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 225(m). Sections of general law applicable.—Sections 216(a), 217(b), 217(c) as amended, 217(d), 217(f), 217(g), 217(h), 217(i), 217(j), 217(k), 217(l), 218(a), 218(c) as amended, 218(d), 219(f), 220(c), 220(j), 220(s), 220(t), 220(w), 221(a), 221(b), 221(c), 221(d), 221(e), 221(f), 221(j) as amended, 221(k), 221(m) as amended, 221(n) as amended, 222(b), 222(d), 222(e), 222(g), 222(h), 223(a), 223(b), 223(c), 223(d), 223(e), 223(f) as amended, 223(g), 224(a), 224(b), 224(d), 224(e) as amended, 224(g) as amended, 224(i) as amended, relating to the supervision and examination of commercial banks, shall be construed to be applicable to industrial banks, insofar as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this article. (1923, c. 225, s. 13; 1925, c. 119, s. 2; 1927, c. 141.)

Editor's Note. — The provisions of this section were new with the act of 1923.

§ 225(n). Directors, officers, etc., accepting fees, etc. — No gift, fee, commission, or brokerage charge shall be received, directly or indirectly, by any officer, director, or employee of any industrial bank doing business under this article, on account of any transaction to which such industrial bank is a party. Any officer, director, employee, or agent who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be and thereafter remain ineligible as an officer, director or employee of any industrial bank doing business under this article. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the payment of necessary and proper attorney's fees to any licensed attorney for professional services rendered. (1923, c. 225, § 14.)

Editor's Note.—The provisions of this section were new with the act of 1923.

§ 225(o). Stockholders, individual liability of.—The stockholders of every industrial bank organized under the laws of North Carolina, whether under the general law or by special act, shall be individually responsible, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts, and engagements of such corporation, to the extent of the amount of their stocks therein at par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares, except as otherwise provided. The term stockholders, when used in this act, shall apply not only to such persons as appear by the books of the corporation to be stockholders, but also to every owner of stock, legal or equitable, although the same may be on such books in the name of another person, but shall not apply to a person who may hold the stock as collateral for the payment of a debt. Such additional liability as is provided in this section shall cease on July first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, with respect to any shares which may have been or may hereafter be issued. (1925, c. 121, s. 1; 1933, c. 159, s. 1; 1935, c. 99, s. 1.)

See § 219(a) 1.

As to stockholders right of appeal from assessment, see § 218(c), subsec. 13.

Editor's Note. — The provisions of this section were new with the act of 1923.

Public Laws 1933, c. 159, added the words, "except as otherwise provided," at the end of the first sentence of this section.

The amendment of 1935 added the last sentence providing the time the additional liability shall cease. See § 219(a) and note thereto.

In General.—For case dealing with liability of stockholder in an industrial bank for assessment on nonassessable stock owned prior to passage of this section, see Hood v. Burrus, 207 N. C. 560, 178 S. E. 362.

§ 225(p). Executors, trustees, etc., not personally liable.—Persons holding stock as executors, administrators, guardians, or trustees shall not personally be subject to any liabilities as stock-holders, but the state and funds in their hands shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator, intestate, ward, or person interested in such fund would be if living and competent to hold stock in his own name. (1925, c. 121, s. 2.)

Editor's Note. — The provisions of this section were new with the act of 1923.

§ 225(q). Transferrer, not liable, when. — No person who has, in good faith and without intent to evade his liability as a stockholder, transferred his stock on the books of the corporation to any person of full age, previous to any default in the payment of any debt or liability of the corporation, shall be subject to any personal liability on account of the nonpayment of such debt or liability of the corporation, but the transferee of any stock so transferred previous to any default shall be liable for any such debt or liability of the corporation to the extent of such stock, in the same manner as if he had been such owner at the time the corporation contracted such debt or liability: Provided, that no transfer of the shares of stock of an insolvent State bank, made within sixty days prior to its suspension, shall operate to release or discharge the assignor thereof, but shall be prima facie evidence that such stockholder assigned the same with knowledge of the insolvency of such bank and with an intent to evade the liability thereon. (1925, c. 121, s. 3.)

Editor's Note. — The provisions of this section were new with the act of 1923.

§ 225(r). Stock sold if subscription unpaid.—Whenever any stockholder, or his assignee, fails to pay any installment on the stock, when the same is required by law to be paid, the directors of the bank shall sell the stock of such delinquent stockholder at public or private sale, as they may deem best, having first given the delinquent stockholder twenty days notice, personally or by mail, at his last known address. If no party can be found who will pay for such stock the amount due thereon to the bank with any additional indebtedness of such stockholder to the bank, the amount previously paid shall be forfeited to the bank, and such stock shall be sold, as the directors may order, within thirty days of the time of such forfeiture, and if not sold, it shall be canceled and deducted from the capital stock of the bank. (1925, c. 121, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The provisions of this section were new with the act of 1923.

§§ 226-229. Superseded by §§ 220(f), (g); 220(d); 220(i); 220(o), respectively.

Article 11. Joint Deposits; Assignments as Evidence of Insolvency; Receivers

§ 230. Deposits in two names.—When a deposit has been or is hereafter made in any bank, trust company, banking and trust company, or any other institution transacting business in this state, in the names of two persons, payable to either, or payable to either or the survivor, all or any part of the deposit, or any interest or dividend thereon, may be paid to either of said persons, whether the other is living or not; and the receipt or acquittance of the person so paid is a valid and sufficient discharge to the bank for payment so made. (1917, c. 243, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—There is no section in the present banking law corresponding to this section and it is no doubt in full force and effect. See note to section 216(a).

"While there is some slight reason to believe that the omission of this section from the 1921 banking act operated to repeal it, the Supreme Court in 1929 assumed that it was in force." 9 N. C. L. Rev. 14.

"It is believed that this section should be revised, so as to eliminate any doubt as to its being in force; to make it control as between the estate of the deceased and the survivor in addition to protecting the bank; so as to make it conform to the Supreme Court decision by becoming applicable only when words of survivorship are used; and so as to forestall any litigation attempting to invalidate such a device as being in violation of the Wills Act. No other statute goes this far." 9 N. C. L. Rev. 15.

Purpose—Necessity of Words of Survivorship. — Like § 220(o), this section is obviously designed to protect the bank, and does not control as between the personal representative of the deceased and the other party. While, by its terms, the statute might apply whether there are words of survivorship in the deposit record or not, the Court, in one case, held that the authority of the survivor to withdraw, where no such words were used, was revoked by the death of the other person. 9 N. C. L. Rev. 15.

When Statute Applicable.—The certificate of deposit by a bank in the name of the husband, payable to himself "or" his wife does not fall within the provisions of this section. The statute applies only where the deposit is made in the names of two persons and payable to either, nor can construing the word "or" as meaning "and" have the effect of creating a tenancy in common. Jones v. Fullbright, 197 N. C. 274, 148 S. E. 229.

§§ 231-238. Superseded by §§ 220(h), 220(m); 220(m); 220(f); 217(m); 224(j); 219(a); and 219(b) respectively.

See note under sec. 218(c)

§ 240. Receiver to sue and collect from stockholders.—The receiver of the insolvent bank is empowered to demand, sue for, and collect by lawful process all indebtedness due from its stockholders, whether they reside within or without the state, and wherever they or their legal representatives may be served with process, or wherever any property belonging to them, or their estate, may be subject to attachment, garnishment, or other lawful process. All indebtedness due from such stockholders, their representatives or estates, is payable to the receiver as corporate assets, and the title thereto vests in and must be applied by him for the equal benefit of all persons entitled to share in the distribution of the fund and disbursed ratably under the orders of the court. The receiver may, within three years after an assessment on the stock, institute civil actions against the stockholders to reduce their liability thereon to final judgment, and in any such action the creditors of the bank may be proper, but are not necessary parties plaintiff. (1911, c. 25, ss. 2, 3, 6; 1931, c. 212.)

Editor's Note.—Although the banking act of 1921 did not supersede this section, it has been thought that sec. 218(c) as amended in 1927 did supersede it. See note under such section.

However, the Act of 1931 purported to amend this section by reducing the period of limitation therein from ten to three years by a word substitution. It seems that this amendment was legislative recognition that the section had not been superseded, and it is therefore set out as amended. But receivers no longer liquidate North Carolina State banks. The inference from the amending act may be that it intended to limit the time in which the commissioner of banks can sue on stockholder's liability. This inference is strengthened somewhat by the 1931 amendment of § 218(e) which makes the statute on corporate receivers applicable to bank liquidation instead of to bank receivers as formerly was the case.

But § 218(c), subsection (13), instead of providing, as does § 243, for a suit on stockholders' liability to reduce it to judgment provides that a mere assessment against a stockholder shall have the force of a superior court judgment. Subsequent proceedings are in the nature of an appeal. See Corporation Commission v. Murphy, 197 N. C. 42, 147 S. E. 667. All of this sounds inconsistent with the present amendment to § 240 so far as liability on stock assessment goes. While these amendments might have been more exactly fitted to the present scheme of banking administration, the purposes probably can be effected by judicial construction when occasion arises. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 350.

As to the period of limitation under the present law, see note to section 423.

See note under sec. 219(d).

§ 242. Assignment by bank evidence of insolvency.—When any state bank makes a voluntary assignment of its assets to trustees, such fact is prima facie evidence of insolvency, and sufficient to authorize the appointment of a receiver. (1911, c. 25, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—Although there is no specific section in the new banking laws corresponding to this section there is some question, since the 1927 amendment to section 218(c), whether or not this section is still operative. Receivers are no longer appointed to liquidate banks; this is done by agents of the corporation commission under its supervision. To this extent, at least, the section is modified.

Editor's Note.—This section has been superseded by the provisions of several sections of the banking act of 1921. The provisions providing for the appointment and removal of examiners and clerks will be found re-enacted as section 223(a). The latter part of the first sentence which required the examiners to verify the quarterly reports required to be made by C. S. section 245, is re-enacted as the first sentence of 223(b); however the examiners are now required to verify all the reports made to the commissioner of banks. The provisions for the fixing of compensation by the commissioner are re-enacted as subsections (e) and (f) of section 223(f). See article in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 79.

§ 250. Superseded by §§ 223(d), (g).

Editor's Note.—This section has been superseded by various sections of the banking act of 1921. The power to examine into the books, etc., of the bank was re-enacted, with somewhat more detail, as a portion of C. S., section 223(b). The provisions relating to the summoning, compelling attendance and examining upon oath of any officials or persons touching the affairs of the bank were re-enacted as section 223(d). The last sentence of the section relating to the report of the examiners to the commission was re-enacted as section 223(g). See article in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 79.

§ 253. Superseded by §§ 218(c), 223(b).

See article in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 79.

§§ 254-264. Superseded by §§ 223(e); 225(a); 225(b); 225(c); 225(d); 225(f); 225(g); 225(h); 225(i); 225(k) and 225(a) respectively.

Art. 12. Conservation of Bank Assets and Issuance of Preferred Stock

§ 264(a). Provision for bank conservators; duties and powers.—Whenever he shall deem it necessary, in order to conserve the assets of any bank for the benefit of the depositors and other creditors thereof, the commissioner of banks may (with the approval of the governor), appoint a conservator for such bank and require of such conservator such bond with such security as he may deem necessary and proper. The conservator, under the direction of the commissioner of banks, shall take possession of the books, records and assets of every description of such bank, and take such action as may be necessary to conserve the assets of such bank pending further disposition of its business as provided by law. Such conservator shall have all such rights, powers and privileges, subject to the commissioner of banks, now possessed by or hereafter given to the commissioner of banks under Section 218(c), Consolidated Statutes, as amended, as are necessary to conserve the assets of said bank. During the time that such conservator remains in possession of such bank, the rights of all parties with respect thereto, shall be the same as those provided in Section 218(c), consolidated statutes, as amended. All expenses of any such conservator shall be paid out of the assets of such bank and shall be a lien thereon which shall be prior to any other lien provided by this article or otherwise. The conservator shall receive as salary an amount no greater than that paid at the present time to employees of departments of the state government for similar services. (1933, c. 155, s. 1.)

This article is substantially a copy as to state banks of Titles II and III of the Federal Act of March 9, 1933, Public No. 1, 73rd Congress. 11 N. C. Law Rev. 196.

§ 264(b). Examination of bank.—The commissioner of banks shall cause to be made such examination of the affairs of such bank as shall be necessary to inform him as to the financial condition of such bank. (1933, c. 155, s. 2.)

§ 264(c). Termination of conservatorship.—If the commissioner of banks shall become satisfied that it may safely be done, he may, in his discretion, terminate the conservatorship and permit such bank to resume the transaction of its business, subject to such terms, conditions, restrictions and limitations as he may prescribe. (1933, c. 155, s. 3.)

§ 264(d). Special funds for paying depositors and creditors ratably; new deposits.—While such bank is in the hands of the conservator appointed by the commissioner of banks, the commissioner of banks may require the conservator to set aside from unpledged assets and make available for withdrawal by depositors and payment to other creditors on a ratable basis, such amounts as, in the opinion of the commissioner of banks, may safely be used for this purpose; and the commissioner of banks, may, in his discretion, permit the conservator to receive deposits, but deposits received while the bank is in the hands of the conservator (as well as special or trust deposits received by any bank, under the orders of the commissioner of banks, since March 2, 1933), shall not be subject to any limitation as to payment or withdrawal, and such deposits shall be segregated and shall not be used to liquidate any indebtedness of such bank existing at the time that a conservator was appointed for it, or any subsequent indebtedness incurred for the purpose of liquidating any indebtedness of said bank existing at the time such conservator was appointed. Such deposits received while the bank is in the hands of the conservator, as well as the special or trust deposits received since March 2, 1933, shall be kept on hand in cash or on deposit with a federal reserve bank. In being transmitted to the federal reserve bank, said deposits shall be so marked and designated as to indicate to such federal reserve bank that they are special deposits. (1933, c. 155, s. 4.)

§ 264(e). Reorganization on agreement of depositors and stockholders.—By the agreement of (a) depositors and other creditors of any bank representing at least seventy-five per cent in amount of its total deposits and other liabilities as shown by the books of the banks, or (b) stockholders owning at least two-thirds of each class of its outstanding capital stock as shown by the books of the bank, or (c) both depositors and other creditors representing at least seventy-five per cent in amount of the total deposits and other liabilities, and stockholders owning at least two-thirds of its outstanding capital stock as shown by the books of the bank, any bank may effect such reorganization with the consent and approval of the commissioner of banks as by such agreement may be determined: Provided, however, that claims of depositors or other creditors which will be satisfied in full under the provisions of the plan of reorganization shall not be included among the total deposits and other liabilities of the bank in determining the per cent thereof as above provided.

When such reorganization becomes effective, all books, records and assets of such bank shall be disposed of in accordance with the provisions of the plan, and the affairs of the bank shall be conducted by its board of directors in the manner provided by the plan and under the conditions, restrictions and limitations which may have been prescribed by the commissioner of banks. In any reorganization which shall have been approved, and shall have become effective as provided herein, all depositors and other creditors and stockholders of such bank, whether or not they shall have consented to such plan of organization, shall be fully and in all respects subject to and bound by its provisions, and claims of all depositors and other creditors shall be treated as if they had consented to such plan of reorganization: Provided, however, that no reorganization shall affect the lien of secured creditors. (1933, c. 155, s. 5.)

The most important feature of the law is the provision for reorganization and the issuance of preferred stock. By a reorganization agreement having the assent of certain percentages of the creditors or stockholders and also of the Commissioner of Banks, the affairs of the bank may be removed from conservatorship and restored to the Board of Directors. All non-consenting depositors and their creditors are expressly made bound by the act. The provision in the second paragraph is identical with the federal act (Sec. 207) but its validity may be questioned on a constitutional ground not applicable to the Federal Government, i. e., impairment of contract. 11 N. C. Law Rev. 196.

§ 264(f). Segregation of recent deposits not effective after bank turned back to officers; notice of turning bank back to officers. — After fifteen days after the affairs of a bank shall have been turned back to its board of directors by the conservator, either with or without a reorganization as provided in section 264(e) hereof, the provisions of section 264(d) with respect to the segregation of deposits received while it is in the hands of the conservator, and with respect to the use of such deposits to liquidate the indebtedness of such bank, shall no longer be effective: Provided, that before the conservator shall turn back the affairs of the bank to its board of directors, he shall cause to be published in a newspaper published in the city, town or county in which such bank is located, and if no newspaper is published in such city, town or county, in a newspaper to be selected by the commissioner of banks, a notice in form approved by the commissioner of banks, stating the date on which the affairs of the bank will be returned to its board of directors, and that the said provisions of section 264(d) will not be effective after fifteen days after such date; and on the date of publication of such notice, the conservator shall immediately send to every person who is a depositor in such bank under section 264(d) a copy of such notice by registered mail, addressing it to the last known address of such persons shown by the records of the bank; and the conservator shall send similar notice in like manner to every person making deposit in such bank under section 264(d) after the date of such newspaper publication and before the time when the affairs of the bank are returned to its directors. (1933, c. 155, s. 6.)

§ 264(g). Issuance of preferred stock. — Notwithstanding any other provision of this article or any other law, and notwithstanding any of the provisions of its articles of incorporation or by-laws, any bank may, with the approval of the commissioner of banks, and by vote of stockholders owning a majority of the stock of such bank, upon not less than two days' notice given by registered mail pursuant to action taken at a meeting of its board of directors (which may be held upon not less than one days' notice) issue preferred stock in such amount and with such par value as shall be approved by said commissioner of banks. A copy of the minutes of such directors' and stockholders' meetings, certified by the proper officer and under the corporate seal of the bank, and accompanied by the written approval of the commissioner of banks shall be immediately filed in the office of the secretary of state, and when so filed, shall be deemed and treated as an amendment to the articles of incorporation of such bank.

No issue of preferred stock shall be valid until the par value of all stock so issued shall have been paid for in full in cash or in such manner as may be specifically approved by the commissioner of banks. (1933, c. 155, s. 7.)

§ 264(h). Rights and liabilities of preferred stockholders.—The holders of such preferred stock shall be entitled to cumulative dividends payable at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, but shall not be held individually responsible as such holders for any debts, contracts or engagements of such bank, and shall not be liable for assessments to restore impairments in the capital of such banks as now provided by law with reference to holders of common stock in banks. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, the holders of such preferred stock shall have such voting rights and such stock shall be subject to retirement in such manner and on such terms and conditions as may be provided in the articles of incorporation or any amendment thereto, with the approval of the commissioner of banks.

No dividends shall be declared or paid on common stock until the cumulative dividends on the preferred stock shall have been paid in full; and if the bank is placed in liquidation, no payments shall be made to the holders of the common stock until the holders of the preferred stock shall have been paid in full the par value of such stock and all accumulated dividends. In the event the bank is placed in liquidation, the commissioner of banks shall, if necessary, levy an assessment under existing laws, upon the holders of common stock for the purpose of paying the par value of the preferred stock and accumulated dividends. (1933, c. 155, s. 8.)

§ 264(i). Limitations of preferred stock; not to be used as collateral for loans.—Wherever in existing banking law, the words "stock," "stockholders," "capital" or "capital stock" are used, the same shall not be deemed to include preferred stock: Provided that no bank issuing preferred stock under the provisions hereof, shall be permitted at any time to make loans upon such preferred stock; Provided further that in determining whether or not the minimum capital or capital stock required in sections 217(a), 217(j), 220(r), 225(d), and 6379, each of Consolidated Statutes as amended, has been supplied to such bank or banking corporation, the commissioner of banks shall include preferred stock as capital or capital stock. (1933, c. 155, s. 9; 1935, c. 80.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added the last proviso of this section relating to the determination of whether the capital stock has been supplied.

§ 264(j). Rights and liabilities of conservator.—The conservator appointed pursuant to the provisions of this article shall be subject to the provisions of and to the penalties prescribed by sections 220(a), 224(e) and 224(f), Consolidated Statutes, as amended. (1933, c. 155, s. 10.)

§ 264(k). Naming of conservator not liquidation.—No power conferred in this article upon the commissioner of banks, when exercised, shall be deemed an act of possession for the purposes of liquidation; and whenever the commissioner of banks shall, with reference to any bank for which a conservator is appointed, deem that liquidation is necessary, he shall exercise the powers for the purposes of liquidation as provided in section 218(c) as amended. (1933, c. 155, s. 11.)

BASTARDY

§§ 265-276: Repealed by Public Laws 1933, ch. 228, codified as §§ 276(a) et seq.

§ 276(a). Non-support of bastard child by parents made misdemeanor.—Any parent who willfully neglects or who refuses to support and maintain his or her illegitimate child shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to such penalties as are hereinafter provided. A child within the meaning of sections 276(a)-276(i) shall be any person less than ten years of age and any person whom either parent might be required under the laws of North Carolina to support and maintain if such child were the legitimate child of such parent. (1933, c. 228, s. 1.)

For full treatment of the subject of this chapter see Bastards, 2 N. C. Enc. Dig. 319 et seq.

Editor's Note.—A number of the cases treated in the following note were decided under the former law. They are, however, made available to the practitioner with the hope that they may be of some aid in construing the new law, but they must be read in the light of the former law.

The question as to whether bastardy proceedings under the former law are criminal or civil in their nature presents a subject which has occasioned much controversy, and one in which there are three sharp lines of demarcation established by the cases. The early decisions up to and including State v. Edwards, 110 N. C. 511, 14 S. E. 741, (1892) held without dissent that the proceedings were civil in their nature, and that the statute did not even carry a quasi criminal aspect.

The period between 1892 and 1904, may be designated as the criminal era; during that time several decisions were rendered by the Supreme Court which flatly reversed the former holdings. The opinion in the second of these cases, State v. Ostwalt, 118 N. C. 1208, 24 S. E. 660, delivered by Judge Avery, is a cogent and forceful declaration of the principle that as section 273 then provided for a fine and imprisonment it abrogated the clause of section 267 permitting an appeal to the state, which necessarily prevented the proceedings from assuming a criminal nature. Subsequent to these decisions, in 1904, the court again reverts to the civil theory, and in an able opinion Chief Justice Clark who had dissented consistently from the criminal theory, recapitulates the subject, refutes Judge Avery's contention (by showing that the provision of section 266, permitting a five dollar fine or imprisonment if the mother refuses to declare the father, had always been in the statute and had not influenced the former decisions), and declares that while containing some anomalous features the proceeding is a civil action. This opinion is very interesting and gives the entire history of the subject. See State v. Liles, 134 N. C. 735, 47 S. E. 750. The following decisions confirming the Liles case held that bastardy is in its nature a civil action to enforce a police regulation. State v. Addington, 143 N. C. 683, 57 S. E. 398; State v. McDonald, 152 N. C. 802, 67 S. E. 762; State v. Currie, 161 N. C. 275, 76 S. E. 694; Sanders v. Sanders, 167 N. C. 319, 83 S. E. 490; Payne v. Thomas, 176 N. C. 401, 97 S. E. 212; State v. Carnegie, 193 N. C. 467, 468, 137 S. E. 308.

The provision for a fine of ten dollars, formerly appearing in section 273, was omitted from the Consolidated Statutes, and it would therefore appear that the legislature, by adopting the Consolidated Statutes, evinced the intention to settle finally the controversy in favor of the proponents of the civil theory.

Purpose of Act. — The object of the bastardy act was to shift the burden of maintaining the child from the innocent many to the guilty one. State v. Roberts, 32 N. C. 350, 353.

The sole aim of the proceeding is to ascertain the paternity of the child and impose upon the father the burden of its support, such as he would incur if it were his lawful instead of his illegitimate offspring, and to save the county the expense of its maintenance. State v. Collins, 85 N. C. 511, 513. See also, State v. Robeson, 24 N. C. 46; State v. Brown, 46 N. C. 129; State v. Durham, 52 N. C. 100; Ward v. Bell, 52 N. C. 79.

Liberally Construed.—As former section 265 was not a penal act, but one of police regulation, it was held that it ought to receive such a construction as would carry out the intention of the legislature and facilitate its execution. State v. Roberts, 32 N. C. 350, 351.

The old bastardy act is repealed in toto by ch. 228, Public Laws of 1933, the provisions of sec. 2 that the act should not affect pending litigation or accrued actions being repugnant to the specific repealing clause of sec. 9, and in a prosecution under the Act of 1933 a demurrer on the grounds that proceedings under the old bastardy act were then pending should be overruled. See State v. Morris, 208 N. C. 44, 179 S. E. 19, holding that the Act of 1933 was intended to cover the entire subject dealing with bastardy.

And Proceeding under Former Law Will Not Bar Proceeding under Present Statute. — Bastardy proceedings against defendant under C. S., 265, et seq. (repealed by sec. 9, ch. 228, Public Laws of 1933), being civil, will not support a plea of former jeopardy in a prosecution under this and the following sections for wilful failure to support his illegitimate child. State v. Mansfield, 207 N. C. 233, 176 S. E. 761.

Warrant Must Charge a Crime.—Where the warrant upon which defendant was tried is insufficient to charge any crime, defendant's motion in arrest of judgment should be allowed, since the defect is one appearing on the face of the record. State v. Tyson, 208 N. C. 231.

The failure of the warrant to charge defendant with wilful failure to support his illegitimate child is not cured by the charge or verdict, where the warrant fails to charge any criminal offense. Id.

The begetting of an illegitimate child is not of itself a crime, and a warrant charging defendant with being the putative father of an unborn, illegitimate child is insufficient to support a prosecution under this statute, nor is such insufficiency cured by an amendment allowing the word "wilful" to be inserted therein, in the absence of an amendment alleging the birth of the child and defendant's refusal to support the child. State v. Tyson, 208 N. C. 231.

Wilfulness Is Essential Element of Offense.—The father of an illegitimate child may be convicted of neglecting to support such child only when it is established that such neglect was wilful, that is, without just cause, excuse or justification. The wilfulness of the neglect is an essential ingredient of the offense, and as such must not only be charged in the bill, but must be proven beyond a reasonable doubt. The presumption of innocence with which the defendant enters the trial includes the presumption of innocence of wilfulness in any failure on his part to support his illegitimate child. The failure to support may be an evidential fact tending to show a wilful neglect, but it does not raise a presumption of wilfulness. State v. Cook, 207 N. C. 261, 262, 176 S. E. 757.

Construing the word "wilful" in the light of the decided cases, it is clear that one cannot be brought within the meaning of the statute without proving the criminal intent, and that it is error for the court to charge the jury that if the defendant failed to support his illegitimate child "the presumption is he wilfully did so." Id.

The word "wilfully" as used in the statute is used with the same import as in the act relating to wilful abandonment of wife by husband (see § 4447). State v. Cook, 207 N. C. 261, 262, 176 S. E. 757, and authorities therein discussed.

It is worthy of note that the new act operates against both parents, not primarily the father, and it is a criminal, not a civil statute; it begins by making wilful failure to support the illegitimate child by "any parent" a misdemeanor. It is the failure to support, not the bastardy, which is made a crime. The consequence or punishment of the crime is the fixing of a sum to be paid by the parent for the support of the child. The failure to pay this sum brings on the other possible consequences as previously enumerated. No provision is made for execution against the parent for the sum fixed; there is no section comparable to former § 275. The only means of enforcing payment specifically provided in the act are the list of alternatives above set forth to which the court can turn if payment is not made. 11 N. C. Law Rev. 205, 206.

The proceeding now being a criminal one, probably the defendant is now legally subject to extradition. See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 191, 206.

§ 276(b). Place of birth of child no consideration. — The provisions of sections 276(a)-276(i) shall apply whether such child shall have been begotten or shall have been born within or without the state of North Carolina: Provided, that the child to be supported is a bona fide resident of this state at the time of the institution of any proceedings under this act: Provided, the provisions of this act shall not apply to pending litigation or accrued actions. (1933, c. 228, s. 2.)

§ 276(c). Action must be commenced within three years after birth.—Proceedings under §§ 276-(a)-276(i) may be instituted at any time within three years next after the birth of the child and not thereafter. (1933, c. 228, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—A number of the cases treated under this section were decided under the former law. They are, however, made available to the practitioner with the hope that they may be of some aid in construing the present law, but they must be read in the light of the former law.

In General.—Even when bastardy proceedings were considered criminal in their nature it was held that former § 274 provided the limitation and that such proceedings were not controlled by the provision limiting criminal prosecutions for misdemeanors to two years. State v. Perry, 122 N. C. 1043, 30 S. E. 139; State v. Hedgepeth, 122 N. C. 1039, 30 S. E. 140.

Compliance Must Appear from Examination.—The examination of the mother must appear on its face to have been taken within three years otherwise it will be quashed, State v. Lebetter, 26 N. C. 242. The objection however, must be made in the proper mode and at the proper time, i. e., before issue is tendered, or it will be deemed waived. State v. Robeson, 24 N. C. 46; State v. Carson, 19 N. C. 368.

A defendant may be prosecuted under this statute, for wilful failure to support his illegitimate child born after the passage of the act although the child was begotten before the effective date of the statute, and defendant's contention that in regard to such prosecution the statute is ex post facto cannot be sustained, since the offense is the wilful failure to support the child, and the time it was begotten is immaterial. State v. Mansfield, 207 N. C. 233, 176 S. E. 761, followed in State v. Morris, 208 N. C. 44, 179 S. E. 19.

§ 276(d). Parties plaintiff; indictments; death of mother no bar; determination of fatherhood.— Proceedings under sections 276(a)-276(i) may be brought by the mother or her personal representative, or, if the child is likely to become a public charge, the superintendent of public welfare or such person as by law performs the duties of such official in said county where the mother resides or the child is found. Indictments under sections 276(a)-276(i) may be returned in the county where the mother resides or is found, or in the county where the putative father resides or is found, or in the county where the child is found. The fact that the child was born outside of the state of North Carolina shall not be a bar to indictment of the putative father in any county where he resides or is found, or in the county where the mother resides or the child is found. The death of the mother shall in no wise affect any proceedings under sections 276(a)-276(i). Preliminary proceedings under sections 276(a)-276(i) to determine the paternity of the child may be instituted prior to the birth of the child but when the judge or court trying the issue of paternity deems it proper, he may continue the case until the woman is delivered of the child. When a continuance is granted, the courts shall recognize the person accused of being the father of the child with surety for his appearance, either at the next term of the court or at a time to be fixed by the judge or court granting a continuance, which shall be after the delivery of the child. (1933, c. 228, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The cases treated under this section were decided under the former law. They are, however, made available to the practitioner with the hope that they may be of some aid in construing the new law, but they must be read in the light of the former law.

In General. — The woman is not obliged to swear the child, provided she pays a fine of five dollars and gives bond for its maintenance. Self v. Clark, 55 N. C. 309, 311. See also, State v. Brown, 46 N. C. 129; State v. Price, 81 N. C. 516; State v. Crouse, 86 N. C. 617.

Married Women. — It was held in State v. Pettaway, 10 N. C. 623, and in State v. Wilson, 32 N. C. 131, cited with approval in State v. Allison, 61 N. C. 346, that, though the section specifies "any single woman big with child or delivered of the child," the subsequent language in the section, that the object is to protect the public against the charge of maintaining bastard children, includes married women, since a bastard child can be begotten upon a married woman as well as upon a single woman. See State v. Liles, 134 N. C. 735, 742, 47 S. E. 750; Wilkie v. West, 5 N. C. 319.

Child Not Born.—The former statute expressly authorized the mother to proceed against the putative father before the child was born, that is, when it was en ventre sa mere. The Court may continue the proceedings until the birth of the child. This clearly implies that the proceedings may be commenced during pregnancy. State v. Wynne, 116 N. C. 981, 21 S. E. 35; State v. Addington, 143 N. C. 683, 687, 57 S. E. 398.

Formalities of the Examination. — The examination need not be signed by the mother and if the warrant issued, signed by the justices, is on the same paper as the examination it is a sufficient signature of the examination. State v. Thompson, 26 N. C. 484; in any event the signature may be made by amendment. State v. Thomas, 27 N. C. 366. But the examination must be under oath as prescribed by the section or the proceedings will be quashed. State v. Ledbetter, 26 N. C. 242, 245.

Venue. — In bastardy cases the jurisdiction of the justice to issue the warrant before the birth of the child, depends upon the domicil of the mother at the time, and not on her legal place of settlement; and if the mother continues to reside in the same county until the birth of her child, making her whole residence therein more than twelve months, the full jurisdiction of the case will be in that county. State v. Hales, 65 N. C. 244. See also, State v. Elam, 61 N. C. 460; Merritt v. McQuaig, 63 N. C. 551.

The Judgment. — Under former section 267 authorizing the Court, in bastardy proceedings, to commit defendant "until he find surety," such a judgment though conditional, was valid. State v. Wynne, 116 N. C. 981, 21 S. E. 35. See 2 N. C. Enc. Dig. 349 sec. 60 et seq.

Promise of Father to Support Child. — Where the mother of a bastard child has refrained from enforcing maintenance thereof under former § 267, this was held to constitute consideration to support an action on a promise of the father to support and educate it. Thayer v. Thayer, 189 N. C. 502, 127 S. E. 553.

The Appeal.—The provision in former section 267 that either party could appeal, applied to the affiant, the woman or the defendant, and so did not conflict with the general rule that the State may not appeal from a judgment upon a verdict of not guilty. Myers v. Stafford, 114 N. C. 234, 241, 19 S. E. 764. See Editor's note to sec 276(a).

A bastardy proceeding under the former law was, in its principal features and purposes, a civil action, and was within the operation of Superior Court Rule 24, which provides that appeals from Justices of the Peace in civil actions will not be called for trial unless the returns of such appeals have been docketed ten days previous to the term. State v. Edwards, 110 N. C. 511, 14 S. E. 741.

Rights of Surety. — The surety on the appearance bond of the defendant in bastardy proceedings appealed from a justice of the peace to the county court and there remanded for want of jurisdiction, may insist upon the exact terms of his bond; and where the defendant has been legally convicted and has served his term as the law provides on failing to pay the allowance made to the prosecutrix, costs, etc., the provisions in the appearance bond as to the surety's liability has been discharged. State v. Carnegie, 193 N. C. 467, 137 S. E. 308.

Death of Child. — What kind of order should be entered where the child dies pending the trial at the next term of court, is in the discretion of the judge. Former § 268 seemed to require an order in every case. State v. Beatty, 66 N. C. 648.

§ 276(e). Mother not excused on ground of self-incrimination; not subject to penalty; not compellable to testify against accused.—No mother of an illegitimate child shall be excused, on the ground that it may tend to incriminate her or subject her to a penalty or a forfeiture, from attending and testifying, in obedience to a subpoena of any court, in any suit or proceeding based upon or growing out of the provisions of §§ 276(a)-276(i), but no such mother shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing as to which, in obedience to a subpoena and under oath, she may so testify, nor shall she be forced or compelled to testify against the accused party against her will. (1933, c. 228, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The cases treated under this section were decided under the former law. They are, however, made available to the practitioner with the hope that they may be of some aid in construing the present law, but they must be read in the light of the former law.

Constitutionality.—Former § 269 which provided that the woman's evidence as to paternity of child would be presumptive against accused was held constitutional and valid, being a change made in the rule of evidence, within the legislative power. State v. McDonald, 152 N. C. 802, 803, 67 S. E. 762.

The Legislature clearly has the power upon the trial of certain classes of criminal or civil actions, to provide that artificial weight shall be given to specific kinds of testimony such as provided by this section. State v. Burton, 113 N. C. 655, 18 S. E. 657; State v. Cagle, 114 N. C. 835, 19 S. E. 766; State v. Mitchell, 119 N. C. 784, 25 S. E. 783, 1020; State v. Rogers, 119 N. C. 793, 794, 26 S. E. 142.

"The Legislature has the power to make cases of this nature an exception to the general rule, and to make the examination of the woman presumptive evidence." State v. Burton, 113 N. C. 655, 664, 18 S. E. 657.

Meaning of Presumptive. — Prima facie evidence is that which is received or continues until the contrary is shown. Kelly v. Johnson, 6 Peters, (U. S.) 622. It is clear from the terms of this section that the word "presumptive" is used to define evidence that must be received and treated as true "till rebutted by other testimony, which may be introduced by the defendant," and that it is therefore synonymous with prima facie. State v. Mitchell, 119 N. C. 784, 785, 25 S. E. 783, 1020.

Proceedings in bastardy are of an anomalous nature, and therefore, though such proceedings are of civil character, the decisions that the terms "prima facie" and "presumptive," when applicable to civil issues, affect only the burden of proof, and not of the issue, are not applicable in proceedings in bastardy; and the affidavit of the prosecutrix, when properly made and presented in evidence, changes the burden of the issue as to defendant's paternity, and places on the defendant the burden of showing to the contrary. State v. McDonald, 152 N. C. 802, 67 S. E. 762.

Shifting Burden. — This section simply shifts the burden of proof as in the case of an indictment for an escape. Myers v. Stafford, 114 N. C. 234, 241, 19 S. E. 764. But see State v. Patton, 27 N. C. 180, 185.

Rebuttal. — The burden of rebutting the presumption raised by this section is on the putative father. State v. McDonald, 152 N. C. 802, 67 S. E. 762.

"The charge that if the oral testimony offered by the prosecution and the defendant, taken together, 'left the minds of the jury in doubt, then the presumption raised by the written examination (of the woman) would not be rebutted and the defendant would be guilty,' is correct. State v. Rogers, 79 N. C. 609." State v. Williams, 109 N. C. 846, 848, 13 S. E. 880.

Evidence of illicit intercourse with another man, offered by defendant, nine months previous to the birth of the child does not tend to rebut the presumption of paternity created by this section. State v. Bennett, 75 N. C. 305.

If presumptive evidence is not rebutted the preponderance upon the issue of paternity was on the side of the State, and there could be no even balance. State v. Williams, 109 N. C. 846, 13 S. E. 880; State v. Rogers, 79 N. C. 609; State v. Cagle, 114 N. C. 835, 839, 19 S. E. 766.

See note of State v. Carnegie, 193 N. C. 467, 137 S. E. 308, under section 276(d).

§ 276(f). Jurisdiction of inferior courts; orders. —Proceedings under this act may be instituted in any court inferior to the superior court in any county wherein such proceedings may be instituted under the provisions of sections 276(a)-276(i).

The court before which the matter may be brought shall determine whether or not the defendant is a parent of the child on whose behalf the proceeding is instituted. After this matter has been determined in the affirmative the court shall proceed to determine the issue as to whether or not the defendant has neglected or refused to support and maintain the child who is the subject of the proceeding. After this matter shall have been determined in the affirmative the court shall fix by order, subject to modification or increase from time to time, a specific sum of money necessary for the support and maintenance of the particular child who is the object of the proceedings. The court in fixing this sum shall take into account the circumstances of the case, the financial ability to pay and earning capacity of the defendant, and his or her willingness to coöperate for the welfare of the child. The order fixing the sum shall require the defendant to pay it either as a lump sum or in periodic payments as the circumstances of the case may appear to the court to require. Compliance by the defendant with any or all of the further provisions of this act or the order or orders of the court requiring additional acts to be performed by the defendant shall not be construed to relieve the defendant of his or her responsibility to pay the sum fixed or any modification or increase thereof. (1933, c. 228, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—The cases treated under this section were decided under the former law. They are, however, made available to the practitioner with the hope that they may be of some aid in construing the present law, but they must be read in the light of the former law.

Jurisdiction.—Former § 265 expressly conferred jurisdiction upon justices of the peace. State v. Mize, 117 N. C. 780, 23 S. E. 330. Some conflict is apparent from the cases (due to the opposing theories as to whether the proceeding was criminal or civil) in regard to the jurisdiction of the superior court; it would seem now to be well settled that the justice has exclusive jurisdiction. Ed. Note.

§ 276(g). Power of court to modify orders; suspend sentence, etc.—Upon the determination of the issues set out in the foregoing section and for the purpose of enforcing the payment of the sum fixed, the court is hereby given discretion, having regard for the circumstances of the case and the financial ability and earning capacity of the defendant and his or her willingness to coöperate, to make an order or orders upon the defendant and to modify such order or orders from time to time as the circumstances of the case may in the judgment of the court require. The order or orders made in this regard may include any or all of the following alternatives:

(a) Commit the defendant to prison for a term not to exceed six months;

(b) Suspend sentence and continue the case from term to term;

(c) Release the defendant from custody on probation conditioned upon the defendant's compliance with the terms of the probation and the payment of the sum fixed for the support and maintenance of the child;

(d) Apprentice the defendant to the superintendent of the county home to be employed there at a salary to be fixed by the board of county commissioners, or to some other person who will give bond for compliance with sections 276(a)-276(i), at a salary to be fixed by the board of county commissioners, the proceeds of his earnings to be paid to such person as the court may direct for the support, maintenance and education of the said child; and

(e) Order the defendant to pay to the mother of the said child the necessary expenses of birth of the child and suitable medical attention for her;

(f) Require the defendant to sign a recognizance with good and sufficient security, for compliance with any order which the court may make in proceedings under this act. (1933, c. 228, s. 7.)

See the note to § 276(a).

Editor's Note.—The cases treated under this section were decided under the former law. They are, however, made available to the practitioner with the hope that they may be of some aid in construing the present law, but they must be read in the light of the former law.

Constitutionality.—Proceedings in bastardy under former § 273 for an allowance to be made to the woman were civil and not criminal, for the enforcement of police regulations, and that section was held not to be contrary to the provisions of the Constitution, Art. IV, sec. 27. Richardson v. Egerton, 186 N. C. 291, 119 S. E. 487.

A judgment for an allowance for the mother of the bastard, is not a debt arising out of contract, to which the protection afforded by the inhibition of the Constitution, Article I, sec. 16, extended, but is rendered as a means of enforcing a legal obligation and duty imposed by the Legislature under the police power of the State upon one who is responsible for bringing into existence a bastard child that may become a burden to society. State v. Cannady, 78 N. C. 539; State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511; State v. Manuel, 20 N. C. 144; State v. Nelson, 119 N. C. 797, 799, 25 S. E. 863; State v. Wynne, 116 N. C. 981, 21 S. E. 35.

Effect of Death of Child.—Under former § 273 the intention was to secure to the mother either her probable expenses or to reimburse her actual outlay, and the death of the child when born did not affect the right of the mother to "support"; among other things, she was entitled to pay for medical attention and medicine for herself, and the burial expenses of the child, consequent upon the defendant's unlawful act. State v. Addington, 143 N. C. 683, 57 S. E. 398.

The section simply required that this allowance should be made without directing how the money should be spent. This left it discretionary with her as to how she would apply it. She was compelled to pay for medical attention and medicine for herself, and the burial expenses of the child, all consequent upon the defendant's unlawful act. State v. Addington, 143 N. C. 683, 688, 57 S. E. 398.

Suggestion of Fraud.—A mother of a bastard child, to whom an allowance has been made in bastardy proceedings, is such a creditor of the father of her child as to permit her to oppose the insolvent's discharge by suggesting fraud in answer to his petition. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511.

Cumulative Remedy.—Former § 275 which authorized a summary remedy against the reputed father of a bastard child was not a recital of the common-law right of suing all or either of the obligors on the bastardy bond; and in suits on such bond the notice required by the section need not be shown. Shew v. Stewart, 18 N. C. 412.

The summary remedy prescribed by that section was only cumulative, and applied only as against the reputed father, and not as against his securities on the bastardy bond. Shew v. Stewart, 18 N. C. 412.

Notice.—Where the mother of a bastard obtained judgment against the putative father, and purchased his land under an execution thereon, held, that in the ejectment for the land, she must prove the father had notice of her intention to move for judgment, or that the sheriff had returned non est inventus. Doe v. McCoy, 13 N. C. 391.

Defenses.—In a proceeding under that section a defendant, who alleged that he had paid the mother of the child a certain sum, for which he exhibited her receipt, which receipt, it was contended and so charged by said mother, was obtained from her by fraud, was entitled to have the issue thus joined tried by a jury; and it was error in the court below to refuse a trial by jury, when demanded by the defendant. State v. Beasely, 75 N. C. 211.

Same—Right to Claim Exemption.—The father was not entitled to the constitutional exemption of $500 as against such debt due the mother. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511.

Imprisonment.—Where defendant was in default only for a fine of $10 and an allowance of $50 to the mother of the bastard, a sentence to imprisonment at hard labor for twelve months was excessive. State v. Nelson, 119 N. C. 797, 25 S. E. 863.

Imprisonment of the putative father for failure to obey an order of maintenance, or to give the bond, is a matter of legislative discretion, and is not imprisonment for debt. State v. Morgan, 141 N. C. 726, 53 S. E. 142; State v. Green, 71 N. C. 172; State v. Wynne, 116 N. C. 981, 21 S. E. 35.

Work on Roads.—When there is no house of correction in the county, the court can only commit the putative father to jail until the performance of the order of support. He cannot be put to work on roads. State v. Addington, 143 N. C. 683, 57 S. E. 398, overruling Myers v. Stafford, 114 N. C. 234, 19 S. E. 764.

Effect of Discharge.—After the defendant who had served a twenty day sentence for failure to pay under former § 276 had been discharged he could not be resentenced to the house of correction at a subsequent term. State v. Burton, 113 N. C. 655, 18 S. E. 657.

Insolvent Debtor's Law.—The provision of that section for imprisonment did not render the section unconstitutional as the defendant could be relieved by the insolvent debtor's law. State v. Giles, 103 N. C. 391, 9 S. E. 433; State v. Morgan, 141 N. C. 726, 53 S. E. 142; State v. White, 125 N. C. 675, 34 S. E. 532. For full treatment, see sec. 1632 and notes thereto.

Appeal.—Where judgment has been awarded in bastardy proceedings in conformity with former § 273, and upon defendant's motion in the Superior Court the judge has set the judgment aside upon sufficient evidence, the facts found accordingly are not reviewable on appeal to the Supreme Court. Baker v. West, 190 N. C. 335, 129 S. E. 804.

§ 276(h). Bond for future appearance of defendant.—At the preliminary hearing of any case arising under sections 276(a)-276(i) it shall be the duty of the court, if it finds reasonable cause for holding the accused for a further hearing, to require a bond in the sum of not less than one hundred dollars, conditioned upon the reappearance of the accused at the further hearing under sections 276(a)-276(i). This bond and all other bonds provided for in sections 276(a)-276(i) shall be justified before, and approved by, the court or the clerk thereof. (1933, c. 228, s. 8.)

§ 277. Legitimation of bastards.—The putative father of any illegitimate child may apply by petition in writing to the superior court of the county in which he resides, praying that such child may be declared legitimate; and if it appears that the petitioner is reputed the father of the child, the court may thereupon declare and pronounce the child legitimated; and the clerk shall record the decree. (Rev., s. 263; Code, s. 39.)

Private Acts of Legitimation.—For construction of private laws legitimating children, see 2 N. C. Enc. Dig. 325, 326.

Petition Addressed Directly to Judge. — The action of the judge of the court having jurisdiction in passing upon the matter is within the intent and meaning of the statute, and his decree is not void upon the ground that the petition should have been originally addressed to the clerk of the court. Dunn v. Dunn, 199 N. C. 535, 155 S. E. 165.

Right of Inheritance.—In Love v. Love, 179 N. C. 115, 117, 101 S. E. 562, it was said: "This statute seems to be clear enough on its face. It limits the right to inherit to the properties of the adopting father, and so clearly that it would seem unnecessary to cite authorities; but if authorities are necessary, it will appear that this Court has construed this and other statutes on all-fours to the effect that the legitimated child can only inherit from the adopting father, and cannot inherit from the father's ancestors or other kindred, or be representative of them. Such adopted child cannot be issue or heir general. The word 'only' as used in this statute qualifies the words 'inherit from the father,' and not the word 'real estate,' thereby limiting the right of inheritance to the properties of the adopting father, and this is emphasized by the fact that the remaining part of the sentence provides that the adopted child is also entitled to the personal estate of his father."

Presumption.—There exists a rebuttable presumption that child born in wedlock is legitimate. West v. Redmond, 171 N. C. 742, 88 S. E. 341.

§ 278. Effects of legitimation. — The effect of such legitimation shall extend no further than to impose upon the father all the obligations which fathers owe to their lawful children, and to enable the child to inherit from the father only his real estate, and also to entitle such child to the personal estate of his father, in the same manner as if he had been born in lawful wedlock. In case of death and intestacy, the real and personal estate of such child shall be transmitted and distributed according to the statute of descents and distribution among those who would be his heirs and next of kin in case he had been born in lawful wedlock. (Rev., s. 264; Code, s. 40.)

In General.—The plain intent and language of section 185 and this section is that a child so adopted, or legitimated, shall inherit his father's real estate, and be entitled to the personal estate of his father " in the same manner as if it had been born in lawful wedlock." Love v. Love, 179 N. C. 115, 116, 101 S. E. 562.

"The word 'only' as used in this section qualifies the words 'inherit from the father,' and not the words 'real estate,' thereby limiting the right of inheritance to the properties of the adopting father, and this is emphasized by the fact that the remaining part of the sentence provides that the adopted child is also entitled to the personal estate of his father." Love v. Love, 179 N. C. 115, 117, 101 S. E. 562.

§ 279. Legitimation by subsequent marriage.—When the mother of any bastard child and the reputed father of such child shall intermarry or shall have intermarried at any time after the birth of such child, the child shall in all respects after such intermarriage be deemed and held to be legitimate and entitled to all the rights in and to the estate, real and personal, of its father and mother that it would have had had it been born in lawful wedlock. (1917, c. 219, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the passage of this section in 1917, marriage of the parents did not legitimate the previous offspring. Ashe v. Cam. Mfg. Co., 154 N. C. 241, 70 S. E. 295.

But where, by the laws of the domicile of the parents at the time of the birth of their bastard child and of their marriage, their marriage legitimates him, the legitimacy attached at the time of the marriage, he being a minor, and follows him wherever he goes. Fowler v. Fowler, 131 N. C. 169, 42 S. E. 563.

Constitutionality.—Only those who would inherit, or have a vested right in the lands, may contest the constitutionality of this section, providing that a child born out of wedlock may inherit from her father who thereafter married the mother of the bastard. Bowman v. Howard, 182 N. C. 662, 110 S. E. 98.

Construed Strictly.—This section is strictly construed as being in derogation of the common law. In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N. C. 334, 148 S. E. 456.

Section Retroactive.—This section is, by its express terms, retroactive as well as prospective in effect; and upon the dying intestate of the father, under the facts of this case, the son is entitled to the balance of the proceeds of the sale of land to make assets to pay debts, subject to his mother's dower right, after paying creditors and court costs, as against the collateral heirs of the father. Stewart v. Stewart, 195 N. C. 476, 142 S. E. 577.

The provisions of this section are retroactive as well as prospective in effect, and a child born out of wedlock whose mother marries his reputed father prior to the enactment of the statute is the heir of his parents who die subsequent to its enactment. In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N. C. 334, 148 S. E. 456.

Irregularity in divorce proceedings is not, by virtue of this section, ground for declaring children by a subsequent marriage illegitimate. Reed v. Blair, 202 N. C. 745, 164 S. E. 118.

Inheritance from Maternal Uncle.—The provisions of this section do not extend to such inheritance from a maternal uncle dying intestate after the death of the mother through whom the claim is made as next of kin. In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N. C. 334, 148 S. E. 456.

How Shown.—Where one claims lands of his father by descent by reason of the subsequent marriage of his parents, the child so born is recognized as legitimate for the purpose of inheriting, and this may be shown by evidence of the declaration of the parents or by family traditions ante litem motam, this being an exception to the rule excluding hearsay evidence. Bowman v. Howard, 182 N. C. 662, 110 S. E. 98.

"Reputed Father."—In Bowman v. Howard, 182 N. C. 662 666, 110 S. E. 98, the Court said: " 'No contention as to the statute was made by the defendant except as the construction of the words "reputed father," which the defendant contended should be construed to mean "actual father." ' The exception is not meritorious. The word 'reputed' means considered, or generally supposed, or accepted by general or public opinion."

In Bowman v. Howard, 182 N. C. 662, 666, 110 S. E. 98, it was said: "In McBride v. Sullivan, 155 Ala. 174, Simpson, J., says: 'The use of the word "reputed" was intended merely to dispense with absolute proof of paternity, so that if the child is "regarded," "deemed," "considered," or "held in thought" by the parents themselves as their child, either before or after marriage, it is legitimate.' "

CHAPTER 7

BILLS OF LADING

Art. 1. General Provisions

§ 280. General definitions.—In this chapter, unless the context of subject-matter otherwise requires—

"Action" includes counterclaim, set-off, and suit in equity.

"Bill" means bill of lading governed by this chapter.

"Consignee" means the person named in the bill as the person to whom delivery of the goods is to be made.

"Consignor" means the person named in the bill as the person from whom the goods have been received for shipment.

"Goods" means merchandise or chattels in course of transportation or which have been or are about to be transported.

"Holder" of a bill means a person who has both actual possession of such bill and a right of property therein.

"Order" means an order by indorsement on the bill.

"Person" includes a corporation or partnership, or two or more persons having a joint or common interest.

"To purchase" includes to take as mortgagee and to take as pledgee. (1919, c. 65, s. 42.)

§ 281. Provisions of this chapter do not apply to existing bills.—The provisions of this chapter do not apply to bills made and delivered prior to the taking effect thereof. (1919, c. 65, s. 43.)

Editor's Note.—Previous to the adoption of this chapter it was the general rule that a bill of lading issued by a railroad company, for the transportation and delivery of freight, when accepted by the shipper and consignee became a valid and binding contract between them as to all reasonable stipulations thereon. Culbreth v. R. R., 169 N. C. 723, 86 S. E. 624; Mfg. Co. v. R. R., 121 N. C. 514, 28 S. E. 474.. And it was also held that the delivery to the shipper of a bill of lading was not necessary to bind the carrier. Smith v. R. R., 163 N. C. 143, 79 S. E. 433; Berry v. R. R., 122 N. C. 1002, 30 S. E. 14.

§ 282. Provisions and sections of this chapter are independent and severable.—The provisions and each part thereof, and the sections and each part thereof of this chapter are independent and severable, and the declaring of any provision or part thereof, or provisions or parts thereof, or section or part thereof, or sections or parts thereof, unconstitutional shall not impair or render unconstitutional any other provision or part thereof, or section or part thereof. (1919, c. 65, s. 44.)

Art. 2. Issue of Bills of Lading

§ 283. Bills governed by this chapter.—Bills of lading issued by any common carrier for the transportation of goods from one point in North Carolina to another shall be governed by this chapter. (1919, c. 65, s. 1.)

§ 284. Definition of straight bill.—A bill in which it is stated that the goods are consigned or destined to a specified person is a straight bill. (1919, c. 65, s. 2.)

§ 285. Definition of order bill.—A bill in which it is stated that the goods are consigned or destined to the order of any person named in such bill is an order bill. Any provision in such bill or in any notice, contract, rule, regulation, or tariff that it is nonnegotiable shall be null and void, and shall not affect its negotiability within the meaning of this chapter unless upon its face and in writing agreed to by the shipper. (1919, c. 65, s. 3.)

§ 286. Order bills must not be issued in sets.—Order bills issued in North Carolina for transportation of goods from one point to another in North Carolina shall not be issued in parts or sets. If so issued, the carrier issuing them shall be liable for failure to deliver the goods described therein to any one who purchases a part for value in good faith, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the carrier to a holder of one of the other parts. (1919, c. 65, s. 4.)

§ 287. Duplicate order bills must be so marked.—When more than one order bill is issued in North Carolina for the same goods to be transported to any place in North Carolina, the word "duplicate" or some other word or words indicating that the document is not an original bill, shall be placed plainly upon the face of every such bill except the one first issued. A carrier shall be liable for the damage caused by his failure so to do to any one who has purchased the bill for value in good faith as an original, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the carrier to the holder of the original bill. (1919, c. 65, s. 5.)

§ 288. Straight bill shall be marked "nonnegotiable."—A straight bill shall have placed plainly upon its face by the carrier issuing it "nonnegotiable" or "not negotiable."

This section shall not apply, however, to memoranda or acknowledgments of an informal character. (1919, c. 65, s. 6.)

§ 289. Insertion of name of person to be notified.—The insertion in an order bill of the name of a person to be notified of the arrival of the goods shall not limit the negotiability of the bill or constitute notice to a purchaser thereof of any rights or equities of such person in the goods. (1919, c. 65, s. 7.)

Editor's Note.—Formerly it was the rule in this state that when goods were shipped under a bill of lading made out to the order of the vendor, the mere insertion of the name of the consignee to be notified, would not bring such consignee into contract relations with the carrier so as to enable him to bring suit against the carrier for delay, damage, etc. Mfg. Co. v. R. R., 149 N. C. 261, 62 S. E. 1091, and likewise in such a case the rule was that title did not pass until the draft was paid, id.; Bank v. R. R., 153 N. C. 346, 69 S. E. 261; Killingsworth v. R. R., 171 N. C. 47, 87 S. E. 947. But the law has been changed by legislative enactment. See sections 290 and 313 and annotations thereunder.

For a recent case of shipment made "Order, notify" see Watts v. R. R., 183 N. C. 12, 110 S. E. 582.

Art. 3. Obligations and Rights of Carriers upon Bills of Lading

§ 290. Obligation of carrier to deliver.—A carrier, in the absence of some lawful excuse, is bound to deliver goods upon a demand made either by the consignee named in the bill for the goods or, if the bill is an order bill, by the holder thereof, if such a demand is accompanied by—

1. An offer in good faith to satisfy the carrier's lawful lien upon the goods;

2. Possession of the bill of lading and an offer in good faith to surrender, properly indorsed, the bill which was issued for the goods if the bill is an order bill; and

3. A readiness and willingness to sign, when the goods are delivered, an acknowledgment that they have been delivered, if such signature is requested by the carrier.

In case the carrier refuses or fails to deliver the goods, in compliance with a demand by the consignee or holder so accompanied, the burden shall be upon the carrier to establish the existence of a lawful excuse for such refusal or failure. (1919, c. 65, s. 8.)

Possession of Properly Endorsed Bill is Sufficient. — An order bill of lading indorsed by the shipper, in the possession of the plaintiff is sufficient evidence of the plaintiff's ownership of the bill and of the goods for which the bill was issued. Temple v. R. R., 190 N. C. 439, 440, 129 S. E. 815.

Consignee Must Produce Bill.—The failure or refusal of consignee to produce, upon the carrier's demand, a bill of lading for a prepaid shipment of goods in the carrier's possession is ordinarily a valid defense to an action to recover of the carrier the value of a shipment, which has never been delivered, but the burden is upon the carrier to prove that such demand has been made and not complied with. Jeans v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 164 N. C. 224, 80 S. E. 242.

Bill Must Be Properly Endorsed.—Where shipper paid the draft and obtained the bill of lading but failed to have it endorsed by a certain bank as required by the terms of the bill, the carrier was not liable for failure to deliver the goods. Killingsworth v. R. R., 171 N. C. 47, 87 S. E. 947.

§ 291. Justification of carrier in delivery.—A carrier is justified, subject to the provisions of the three following sections, in delivering goods to one who is—

1. A person lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods; or

2. The consignee named in a straight bill for the goods; or

3. A person in possession of an order bill for the goods, by the terms of which the goods are deliverable to his order; or which has been indorsed to him, or in blank by the consignee, or by the mediate or immediate indorsee of the consignee. (1919, c. 65, s. 9.)

§ 292. Carrier's liability for misdelivery.—Where a carrier delivers goods to one who is not lawfully entitled to the possession of them, the carrier shall be liable to any one having a right of property or possession in the goods if he delivered the goods otherwise than as authorized by subdivisions 1 and 2 of the preceding section; and, though he delivered the goods as authorized by either of said subdivisions, he shall be so liable if prior to such delivery he—

1. Had been requested by or on behalf of a person having a right of property or possession in the goods not to make such delivery; or

2. Had information at the time of the delivery that it was to a person not lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods.

Such request for information, to be effective within the meaning of this section, must be given to an officer or agent of the carrier, the actual or apparent scope of whose duties includes action upon such a request or information, and must be given in time to enable the officer or agent to whom it is given, acting with reasonable diligence, to stop delivery of the goods. (1919, c. 65, s. 10.)

§ 293. Order bills must be cancelled when goods delivered.—Except as provided in § 308, and except when compelled by legal process, if a carrier delivers goods for which an order bill had been issued, the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of the goods, and fails to take up and cancel the bill, such carrier shall be liable for failure to deliver the goods to any one who for value and in good faith purchases such bill, whether such purchaser acquired title to the bill before or after the delivery of the goods by the carrier and notwithstanding delivery was made to the person entitled thereto. (1919, c. 65, s. 11.)

§ 294. Order bills must be canceled or marked when part of goods delivered.—Except as provided in section 308, and except when compelled by legal process, if a carrier delivers part of the goods for which an order bill had been issued and fails, either—

1. To take up and cancel the bill, or

2. To place plainly upon it a statement that a portion of the goods has been delivered, with a description, which may be in general terms, either of the goods or packages that have been so delivered or of the goods or packages which still remain in the carrier's possession, he shall be liable for failure to deliver all the goods specified in the bill to any one who for value and in good faith purchases it, whether such purchaser acquired title to it before or after the delivery of any portion of the goods by the carrier, and notwithstanding such delivery was made to the person entitled thereto. (1919, c. 65, s. 12.)

§ 295. Altered bills.—Any alteration, addition, or erasure in a bill after its issue without authority from the carrier issuing the same, whether in writing or noted on the bill, shall be void, whatever be the nature and purpose of the change, and the bill shall be enforceable according to its original tenor. (1919, c. 65, s. 13.)

§ 296. Lost or destroyed bills.—Where an order bill has been lost, stolen, or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction may order the delivery of the goods upon satisfactory proof of such loss, theft, or destruction, and upon the giving of a bond, with sufficient surety, to be approved by the court, to protect the carrier or any person injured by such delivery from any liability or loss incurred by reason of the original bill remaining outstanding. The court may also, in its discretion, order the payment of the carrier's reasonable costs and counsel fees: Provided, a voluntary indemnifying bond without an order of court shall be binding on the parties thereto.

The delivery of the goods under an order of the court, as provided in this section, shall not relieve the carrier from liability to a person to whom the order bill has been, or shall be, negotiated for value without notice of the proceedings or of the delivery of the goods. (1919, c. 65, s. 14.)

§ 297. Effect of duplicate bills.—A bill, upon the face of which the word "duplicate," or some other word or words indicating that the document is not an original bill, is placed plainly, shall impose upon the carrier issuing the same the liability of one who represents and warrants that such bill is an accurate copy of an original bill properly issued, but no other liability. (1919, c. 65, s. 15.)

§ 298. Carrier can not set up title in himself.—No title to the goods or right to their possession asserted by a carrier for his own benefit shall excuse him from liability for refusing to deliver the goods according to the terms of the bill issued for them, unless such title or right is derived directly or indirectly from a transfer made by the consignor or consignee after the shipment, or from the carrier's lien. (1919, c. 65, s. 16.)

§ 299. Interpleader of adverse claimants.—If more than one person claim the title or possession of goods, the carrier may require all known claimants to interplead, either as a defense to an action brought against him for nondelivery of the goods or as an original suit, whichever is appropriate. (1919, c. 65, s. 17.)

As to bringing parties in by order of court see section 460.

§ 300. Carrier has reasonable time to determine validity of claims.—If some one other than the consignee or the person in possession of the bill has claim to the title or possession of the goods, and the carrier has information of such claim, the carrier shall be excused from liability for refusing to deliver the goods, either to the consignee or person in possession of the bill or to the adverse claimant, until the carrier has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claim or to bring legal proceedings to compel all claimants to interplead. (1919, c. 65, s. 18.)

§ 301. Adverse title is no defense as above provided.—Except as provided in the preceding sections of this article, no right or title of a third person, unless enforced by legal process, shall be a defense to an action brought by the consignee of a straight bill or by the holder of an order bill against the carrier for failure to deliver the goods on demand. (1919, c. 65, s. 19.)

§ 303. Liability for nonreceipt or misdescription of goods loaded by shipper.—When package freight or bulk freight is loaded by a shipper and the goods are described in a bill of lading merely by a statement of marks or labels upon them or upon packages containing them, or by a statement that the goods are said to be goods of a certain kind or quantity, or in a certain condition, or it is stated in the bill of lading that packages are said to contain goods of a certain kind or quantity or in a certain condition, or that the contents or condition of the contents of packages are unknown, or words of like purport are contained in the bill of lading, such statements, if true, shall not make liable the carrier issuing the bill of lading, although the goods are not of the kind or quantity or in the condition which the marks or labels upon them indicate, or of the kind or quantity or in the condition they were said to be by the consignor. The carrier may also, by inserting in the bill of lading the words "shipper's weight, load, and count," or other words of like purport, indicate that the goods were loaded by the shipper and the description of them made by him; and, if such statement be true, the carrier shall not be liable for damages caused by the improper loading or by the nonreceipt or by the misdescription of the goods described in the bill of lading. Where the shipper of bulk freight, however, installs and maintains adequate facilities for weighing such freight, and the same are available to the carrier, then the carrier, upon written request of such shipper and when given a reasonable opportunity so to do, shall ascertain the kind and quantity of bulk freight within a reasonable time after such written request, and the carrier shall not in such case insert in the bill of lading the words "shipper's weight," or other words of like purport; and if so inserted contrary to the provisions of this section, said words shall be treated as null and void and as if not inserted therein. (1919, c. 65, s. 21.)

Editor's Note. — The rule formerly was that when goods were sent "shipper's load and count" the bill of lading was only prima facie evidence that the carrier received the goods described in it. And where the evidence showed that the loading was all done by the shipper the burden was upon the plaintiff to prove that the goods were actually delivered to the carrier. Peele v. R. R., 149 N. C. 390, 393, 63 S. E. 66. But see the next section where this rule is changed.

§ 304. Liability for nonreceipt or misdescription of goods.—If a bill of lading has been issued by a carrier, or on his behalf by an agent or employee, the scope of whose actual or apparent authority includes the receiving of goods and issuing bills of lading therefor for transportation in commerce among several states and with foreign nations, the carrier shall be liable to—

1. The owner of goods covered by a straight bill, subject to existing right of stoppage in transit; or

2. The holder of an order bill, who has given value in good faith, relying upon the description therein of the goods, for damages caused by the nonreceipt by the carrier of all or part of the goods or their failure to correspond with the description thereof in the bill at the time of its issue. (1919, c. 65, s. 22.)

Editor's Note.—This section changes the rule which was laid down in the case cited in the preceding section, Peele v. R. R., 149 N. C. 390, 63 S. E. 66. For other cases which are in accord with the Peele case, supra, see Williams, Black & Co. v. R. R., 93 N. C. 42; Commercial Bank v. R. R., 175 N. C. 415, 95 S. E. 777. These latter cases went to the extent of holding that where the carrier had issued a bill of lading "shippers load and count" the carrier was not liable even to a holder of the bill who had taken it for value and without notice. This old doctrine as laid down in these cases is contrary to the modern theory of the negotiability of order bills of lading.

§ 305. Attachment or levy upon goods for which an order bill has been issued.—If goods are delivered to a carrier by the owner or by a person whose act in conveying the title to them to a purchaser for value in good faith would bind the owner, and an order bill is issued for them, they cannot thereafter, while in the possession of the carrier, be attached by garnishment or otherwise or be levied upon under an execution unless the bill be first surrendered to the carrier or its negotiation enjoined. The carrier shall in no such case be compelled to deliver the actual possession of the goods until the bill is surrendered to him or impounded by the court. (1919, c. 65, s. 23.)

§ 306. Creditor's remedy to reach order bills.—A creditor whose debtor is the owner of an order bill shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction, by injunction and otherwise, in attaching such bill or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process. (1919, c. 65, s. 24.)

§ 307. Lien for charges under order bill.—If an order bill is issued the carrier shall have a lien on the goods therein mentioned for all charges on those goods for freight, storage, demurrage and terminal charges, and expenses necessary for the preservation of the goods or incident to their transportation subsequent to the date of the bill and all other charges incurred in transportation and delivery, unless the bill expressly enumerates other charges for which a lien is claimed. In such case there shall also be a lien for the charges enumerated so far as they are allowed by law and the contract between the consignor and the carrier. (1919, c. 65, s. 25.)

§ 308. Effect of sale.—After goods have been lawfully sold to satisfy a carrier's lien, or because they have not been claimed, or because they are perishable or hazardous, the carrier shall not thereafter be liable for failure to deliver the goods themselves to the consignee or owner of the goods, or to a holder of the bill given for the goods when they were shipped, even if such bill be an order bill. (1919, c. 65, s. 26.)

Art. 4. Negotiation and Transfer of Bills

§ 309. Negotiation of order bills by delivery.—An order bill may be negotiated by delivery where, by the terms of the bill, the carrier undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of a specified person, and such person or a subsequent indorsee of the bill has indorsed it in blank. (1919, c. 65, s. 27.)

§ 310. Negotiation of order bills by indorsement.—An order bill may be negotiated by the indorsement of the person to whose order the goods are deliverable by the tenor of the bill. Such indorsement may be in blank or to a specified person. If indorsed to a specified person, it may be negotiated again by the indorsement of such person in blank or to another specified person. Subsequent negotiation may be made in like manner. (1919, c. 65, s. 28.)

§ 311. Transfer of bills.—A bill may be transferred by the holder by delivery, accompanied with an agreement, express or implied, to transfer the title to the bill or to the goods represented thereby. A straight bill cannot be negotiated free from existing equities, and the indorsement of such a bill gives the transferee no additional right. (1919, c. 65, s. 29.)

In General.—The meaning of this section is that a valid transfer of a bill of lading is effected by the holder when he delivers it to a third party with the intention of transferring the title to the property represented thereby. Lawshe v. R. R., 191 N. C. 473, 475, 132 S. E. 160.

§ 312. Who may negotiate a bill.—An order bill may be negotiated by any person in possession of the same, however such possession may have been acquired, if by the terms of the bill the carrier undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of such person, or if at the time of negotiation the bill is in such form that it may be negotiated by delivery. (1919, c. 65, s. 30.)

§ 313. Rights of person to whom a bill has been negotiated.—A person to whom an order bill has been duly negotiated acquires thereby—

1. Such title to the goods as the person negotiating the bill to him had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and also such title to the goods as the consignee and consignor had or had power to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value; and

2. The direct obligation of the carrier to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the bill as fully as if the carrier had contracted directly with him. (1919, c. 65, s. 31.)

See Editor's Note under section 289.

In General.—The person to be notified on shipment to order of consignor has, by this section, title for the purpose of a suit to recover damages and the statutory penalty, as fully as if the carrier had contracted with him direct, upon the presentation of the bill of lading properly endorsed and his tender thereof in good faith to the carrier, the statute being remedial of the common law that there was no contractual relation between him and the carrier that would permit recovery for causes accruing before he had paid the draft, and had the bill of lading assigned to him. Watts v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 183 N. C. 12, 110 S. E. 582.

§ 314. Rights of person to whom a bill has been transferred.—A person to whom a bill has been transferred, but not negotiated, acquires thereby as against the transferor the title to the goods, subject to the terms of any agreement with the transferor. If the bill is a straight bill, such person also acquires the right to notify the carrier of the transfer to him of such bill, and thereby to become the direct obligee of whatever obligations the carrier owed to the transferor of the bill immediately before the notification.

Prior to the notification of the carrier by the transferor or transferee of a straight bill, the title of the transferee to the goods and the right to acquire the obligation of the carrier may be defeated by garnishment or by attachment or execution upon the goods by a creditor of the transferor, or by a notification to the carrier by the transferor or a subsequent purchaser from the transferor of a subsequent sale of the goods by the transferor.

A carrier has not received notification within the meaning of this section unless an officer or agent of the carrier, the actual or apparent scope of whose duties includes action upon such a notification, has been notified; and no notification shall be effective until the officer or agent to whom it is given has had time, with the exercise of reasonable diligence, to communicate with the agent or agents having actual possession or control of the goods. (1919, c. 65, s. 32; 1919, c. 290.)

§ 315. Transfer of negotiable bill without indorsement.—Where an order bill is transferred for value by delivery, and the indorsement of the transferor is essential for negotation, the transferee acquires a right against the transferor to compel him to indorse the bill, unless a contrary intention appears. The negotiation shall take effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. This obligation may be specifically enforced. (1919, c. 65, s. 33.)

§ 316. Warranties on sale of bill.—A person who negotiates or transfers for value a bill by indorsement or delivery, unless a contrary intention appears, warrants—

1. That the bill is genuine;
2. That he has a legal right to transfer it;
3. That he has knowledge of no fact which would impair the validity or worth of the bill;
4. That he has a right to transfer the title to the goods, and that the goods are merchantable or fit for a particular purpose whenever such warranties would have been implied if the contract of the parties had been to transfer without a bill the goods represented thereby. (1919, c. 65, s. 34.)

§ 317. Indorser not a guarantor.—The indorsement of a bill shall not make the indorser liable for any failure on the part of the carrier or previous indorser of the bill to fulfill their respective obligations. (1919, c. 65, s. 35.)

§ 318. No warranty implied from accepting payment of a debt.—A mortgagee or pledgee or other holder of a bill for security who in good faith demands or receives payment of the debt for which such bill is security, whether from a party to a draft drawn for such debt, or from any other person, shall not be deemed by so doing to represent or warrant the genuineness of such bill or the quantity or quality of the goods therein described. (1919, c. 65, s. 36.)

Editor's Note.—The rule which this section lays down stated by the court in Mason v. Cotton Co., 148 N. C. 492, 497, 498, 62 S. E. 625 and the earlier case of Finch v. Gregg, 126 N. C. 176, 35 S. E. 251 was discussed and overruled.

§ 320. Subsequent negotiaton.—Where a person, having sold, mortgaged or pledged goods which are in a carrier's possession and for which an order bill has been issued, or, having sold, mortgaged, or pledged the order bill representing such goods, continues in possession of the order bill, the subsequent negotiation thereof by that person under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof to any person receiving the same in good faith for value and without notice of the previous sale, shall have the same effect as if the first purchaser of the goods or bill had expressly authorized the subsequent negotiation. (1919, c. 65, s. 38.)

§ 321. Negotiation defeats vendor's lien. — Where an order bill has been issued for goods no seller's lien or right of stoppage in transit shall defeat the rights of any purchaser for value in good faith to whom such bill has been negotiated, whether such negotiation be prior or subsequent to the notification to the carrier who issued such bill of the seller's claim to a lien or right of stoppage in transit. Nor shall the carrier be obliged to deliver or be justified in delivering the goods to an unpaid seller unless such bill is first surrendered for cancellation. (1919, c. 65, s. 39.)

§ 322. When rights and remedies under mortgages and liens are not limited.—Except as provided in the preceding section, nothing in this chapter shall limit the rights and remedies of a mortgagee or lien holder whose mortgage or lien on goods would be valid, apart from this chapter, as against one who for value and in good faith purchased from the owner, immediately prior to the time of their delivery to the carrier, the goods which are subject to the mortgage or lien, and obtained possession of them. (1919, c. 65, s. 40.)

Art. 5. Criminal Offenses

§ 323. Issuing false bills or violating chapter made felony.—Any person who knowingly, or with intent to defraud, falsely makes, alters, forges, counterfeits, prints or photographs any bill of lading purporting to represent goods received for shipment in this state, or with intent utters or publishes as true and genuine any such falsely altered, forged, counterfeited, falsely printed or photographed bill of lading, knowing it to be falsely altered, forged, counterfeited, falsely printed or photographed, or aids in making, altering, forging, counterfeiting, printing, or photographing, or uttering or publishing the same, or issues or aids in issuing or procuring the issue of, or negotiates or transfers for value a bill which contains a false statement as to the receipt of the goods, or as to any other matter, or who, with intent to defraud, violates or fails to comply with, or aids in any violation of, or failure to comply with any provision of this chapter, shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction, shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both. (1919, c. 65, s. 41; 1919, c. 290.)

BONDS

Art. 1. Official Bonds

§ 323 (a). Officers and employees charged with responsibility for cash to be surety bonded.—All officers, officials and employees of the State charged with responsibility for cash, securities and/or property shall be surety bonded in corporate sureties admitted to do business in the State in such sums as may be fixed by the Governor and the Advisory Budget Commission. The premiums on such surety bonds will be paid by the State out of the appropriations to the respective departments and institutions and other agencies. (1929, c. 337, s. 5.)

§ 324. Irregularities not to invalidate.—When any instrument is taken by or received under the sanction of the board of county commissioners, or by any person or persons acting under or in virtue of any public authority, purporting to be a bond executed to the state for the performance of any duty belonging to any office or appointment, such instrument, notwithstanding any irregularity or invalidity in the conferring of the office or making of the appointment, or any variance in the penalty or condition of the instrument from the provision prescribed by law, shall be valid and may be put in suit in the name of the state for the benefit of the person injured by a breach of the condition thereof, in the same manner as if the office had been duly conferred or the appointment duly made, and as if the penalty and condition of the instrument had conformed to the provisions of law: Provided, that no action shall be sustained thereon because of a breach of any condition thereof or any part of the condition thereof which is contrary to law. (Rev., s. 279; Code, s. 1891; R. C., c. 78, s. 9; 1842, c. 61; 1869-70, c. 169, s. 16.)

Cross Reference.—For an interesting article concerning the law of contracts, and referring generally to the instant section, see 13 N. C. Law Rev. 65, 76.

In General.—This section does not have the effect of introducing into an official bond provisions which are not, but ought to have been inserted in the conditions, so as to extend the liabilities of the obligors; but the purpose is to cure certain defects and irregularities in conferring the office and accepting the instrument, and to maintain its validity as an official undertaking, as far as it goes, notwithstanding the penalty or condition may vary from those prescribed by law. State v. Pool, 27 N. C. 105; State v. McMinn, 29 N. C. 344; State v. Jones, 29 N. C. 359; Commissioners v. Magnin, 86 N. C. 286, 289.

The section had a retroactive operation. State v. Jones, 29 N. C. 359; State v. Pool, 27 N. C. 105.

Official bonds should be liberally construed and any variance in the condition of such an instrument from the provisions prescribed by the law will usually be treated as an irregularity, in view of this section, but this principle does not abrogate the freedom of contract. Washington v. Trust Co., 205 N. C. 382, 385, 171 S. E. 438.

Nor does this rule preclude the parties from contracting in the bond for liability for a shorter period than the official term of office of the principal. Id.

Validity as Common-Law or Voluntary Bonds.—A statutory bond, not duly executed, or not conditioned as required by statute, may be sustained as a common-law or voluntary bond. Chambers v. Witherspoon, 10 N. C. 42; Justices v. Armstrong, 14 N. C. 284; Justice v. Dozier, 14 N. C. 287; Williams v. Ehringhaus, 14 N. C. 297; Vanhook v. Barnett, 15 N. C. 268; Davis v. Somerville, 15 N. C. 382; State v. McAlpin, 26 N. C. 140; Reid v. Humphreys, 52 N. C. 258.

Name of Constable Omitted.—Where a constable's official bond was signed by the obligors but a blank was left for the name of the constable, the omission was cured by this section. Grier v. Hill, 51 N. C. 572, 15 S. E. 424, distinguishing this section.

Failure to Register Constables' Bond. — An irregularity, such as want of registration, will not, under this section, invalidate a constable's bond. Warren v. Boyd, 120 N. C. 56, 26 S. E. 700.

Failure to Name Conditions in Sheriff's Bond.—Failure to name conditions required by section 3930, relating to sheriff's bonds, will not, under this section, invalidate the bond given. Commissioners v. Sutton, 120 N. C. 298, 26 S. E. 920.

Mistake in Name of Ward in Guardian's Bond.—Where, in the order of a County Court. appointing a guardian, the name Margaret is by mistake inserted as that of the ward instead of Miranda, a bond taken according to the proper requisitions, with the right name recited, will, under the operation of this section, be sustained as an official bond. Shuster v. Perkins, 46 N. C. 325.

No Penalty Named in Guardian's Bond.—Where defendants signed a bond intending to make it the guardian bond of their principal, but there was no penalty named in the bond the same being filled in subsequent to the signatures, it was held that this section does not apply, as it is confined to bonds wherein the amount of penalty varies from that fixed by law, being either more or less than the amount. Rollins v. Ebbs, 137 N. C. 355, 49 S. E. 341; Rollins v. Ebbs, 138 N. C. 140, 161, 50 S. E. 577. See dissenting opinion by Clark C. J. in the first report of the case.

Who May Sue.—The chairman of a board of fence commissioners, although not named in the tax collector's (sheriff's) bond, may bring suit on the same under this section, when the latter fails to pay the money collected for the erection of fences. Speight v. Staton, 104 N. C. 44, 10 S. E. 86.

Where a register of deeds issued a license for the marriage of a girl under eighteen without the consent of her father, the father is the person injured within the meaning of this section. Joyner v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 111, 114, 16 S. E. 917.

Cited in Barnes v. Lewis, 73 N. C. 138.

§ 325. Penalty for officer acting without bond. —Every person or officer of whom an official bond is required, who presumes to discharge any duty of his office before executing such bond in the manner prescribed by law, is liable to a forfeiture of five hundred dollars to the use of the state for each attempt so to exercise his office. (Rev., s. 278; Code, s. 1882; R. C., c. 78, s. 8.)

Stated in Moffitt v. Davis, 205 N. C. 565, 172 S. E. 317.

§ 326. Condition and terms of official bonds.— Every clerk, treasurer, sheriff, coroner, register of deeds, surveyor, and every other officer of the several counties who is required by law to give a bond for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, shall give a bond for the term of office to which such officers are chosen, respectively. (Rev., s. 308; Code, s. 1874; 1869-70, c. 169; 1876-7, c. 275, s. 5; 1895, c. 207, s. 4; 1899, c. 54, s. 54.)

As to bonds required of sheriff, see sec. 3930 and the notes thereto.

Stated in Moffitt v. Davis, 205 N. C. 565, 172 S. E. 317.

§ 327. Annual examination of bonds; keeping good; increase. — The bonds shall be carefully examined on the first Monday in December of every year, and if it appears that the security has been impaired, or for any cause become insufficient to cover the amount of money or property or to secure the faithful performance of the duties of the office, then the bond shall be renewed or strengthened, the insufficient security increased within the limits herein prescribed, and the impaired security shall be made good; but no renewal, or strengthening, or additional security shall increase the penalty of said bond beyond the limits herein prescribed for the term of office. (Rev., s. 308; Code, s. 1874; 1869-70, c. 169; 1876-7, c. 275, s. 5; 1895, c. 207, s. 4; 1899, c. 54, s. 54.)

§ 328. Effect of failure to renew bond.—Upon the failure of any such officer to make such renewal of his bond, it is the duty of the board of commissioners, by an order to be entered of record, to declare his office vacant, and to proceed forthwith to appoint a successor, if the power of filling the vacancy in the particular case is vested in the board of commissioners; but if otherwise, the said board shall immediately inform the proper person having the power of appointment of the fact of such vacancy. (Rev., s. 309; Code, s. 1875; 1869-70, c. 169, s. 2.)

§ 329. Justification of sureties.—Every surety on an official bond required by law to be taken or renewed and approved by the board of commissioners shall take and subscribe an oath before the chairman of the board or some person authorized by law to administer an oath, that he is worth a certain sum (which shall not be less than one thousand dollars) over and above all his debts and liabilities and his homestead and personal property exemptions, and the sum thus sworn to shall in no case be less in the aggregate than the penalty of the bond. But nothing herein shall be construed to abridge the power of the said board of commissioners to require the personal presence of any such surety before the board when the bond is offered, or at such subsequent time as the board may fix, for examination as to his financial condition or other qualifications as surety. (Rev., s. 310; Code, s. 1876; 1869-70, c.

Purpose—Contribution.—The intendment of this section, was to provide a statement under oath to show the solvency of the sureties and afford information to the county commissioners under like sanction that the aggregate amount of the bond equaled the penalty required, and does not affect the doctrine of contribution as it relates to the rights of the sureties to contribution between themselves. Commissioners v. Dorsett, 151 N. C. 307, 66 S. E. 132.

Cited in State v. Patterson, 97 N. C. 360, 2 S. E. 262.

§ 330. Action against officer to compel justification; office vacated; successor appointed.—When oath is made before any judge of the superior court by five respectable citizens of any county within his district that after diligent inquiry made they verily believe that the bond of any officer of such county, which has been accepted by the board of commissioners, is insufficient either in the amount of the penalty or in the ability of the sureties, it is the duty of such judge to cause a notice to be served upon such officer requiring him to appear at some stated time and place and justify his bond by evidence other than that of himself or his sureties. If this evidence so produced fails to satisfy the judge that the bond is sufficient, both in amount and the ability of the sureties, he shall give time to the officer, not exceeding twenty days, to give another bond, the judge fixing the amount of the new bond, when there is a deficiency in that particular. And upon failure to give a good bond to the satisfaction of the judge within the twenty days, he shall declare the office vacant, and if the appointment be with himself, he shall immediately proceed to fill the vacancy; and if not, he shall notify the persons having the appointing power that they may proceed as aforesaid. (Rev., s. 316; Code, s. 1885; 1874-5, c. 120.)

In Mitchell v. Kilburn, 74 N. C. 483; Mitchell v. Hubbs, 74 N. C. 484, and Mitchell v. West, 74 N. C. 485, 486, the court refused to consider the constitutionality and construction of this section, because the appeal was improvidently awarded from a motion to dismiss.

§ 331. Successor to give bond; official bonds to be liabilities.—The person so appointed shall give bond before the judge, and the bond so given shall in all respects be subject to the requirements of the law in relation to official bonds; and all official bonds shall be considered debts and liabilities. (Rev., s. 317; Code, s. 1886; 1874-5, c. 120, s. 2.)

§ 332. Judge to file statement of proceedings with commissioners.—When a vacancy is declared by the judge, he shall file a written statement of all his proceedings with the clerk of the board of commissioners, to be recorded by him. (Rev., s. 318; Code, s. 1887; 1874-5, c. 120, s. 3.)

§ 333. Approval, acknowledgment and custody of bonds.—The approval of all official bonds taken or renewed by the board of commissioners shall be recorded by their clerk. Every such bond shall be acknowledged by the parties thereto or proved by a subscribing witness, before the chairman of the board of commissioners, or before the clerk of the superior court, registered in the register's office in a separate book to be kept for the registration of official bonds, and the original bond, with the approval of the commissioners endorsed thereon and certified by their chairman, shall be deposited with the clerk of the superior court, except the bond of said clerk, which shall be deposited with the register of deeds, for safe keeping. (Rev., s. 311; Code, s. 1877; 1869-70, c. 169, s. 4; 1879, c. 207, s. 2.)

§ 334. Votes of commissioners on approval recorded; penalty.—It is the duty of the clerk of the board of commissioners to record in the proceedings of the board the names of those commissioners who are present at the time of the approval of any official bond, and who vote for such approval. Every clerk neglecting to make such record, besides other punishment, shall forfeit his office. Any commissioner may cause his written dissent to be entered on the records of the board. (Rev., s. 312; Code, ss. 1878, 1881; 1869-70, c. 169, ss. 5, 8; R. C., c. 78, s. 7; 1790, c. 327; 1809, c. 777.

This section, passed in 1790, serves to show the light in which individual responsibility is regarded by the legislature. See Rawls v. Deans, 11 N. C. 299, 304.

§ 335. When commissioner liable as surety.—Every commissioner who approves an official bond, which he knows to be, or which by reasonable diligence he could have discovered to have been, insufficient in the penal sum, or in the security thereof, shall be liable as if he were a surety thereto, and may be sued accordingly by any person having a cause of action on said bond. (Rev., s. 313; Code, s. 1879; 1869-70, c. 169, s. 6.)

Construed with Section 3934.—This section supplements and somewhat extends the provision of section 3934, relating to the liability of sureties or a sheriff's bond. Hudson v. McArthur, 152 N. C. 445, 449, 67 S. E. 995.

Liable to All Injured Persons.—Public officials entrusted in so important a matter as this mandatory statute, are held individually liable to any one injured by their wilful failure or neglect of duty. To hold otherwise would put a premium on inefficiency and neglect. Moffitt v. Davis, 205 N. C. 565, 570, 172 S. E. 317.

Construing this section and § 1297(12) together it is held that the county commissioners may be held individually liable by a person sustaining loss by reason of their failure to perform their ministerial duty of requiring bond of a clerk of the Supreme Court. Id.

Cited in State v. Patterson, 97 N. C. 360, 2 S. E. 362, to show how stringently the obligation of seeing to the sufficiency of the bond is enforced.

§ 336. Record of board conclusive as to facts stated.—In all actions under the preceding section a copy of the proceedings of the board of commissioners in the particular case, certified by their clerk under his hand and the seal of the county, is conclusive evidence of the facts in such record alleged and set forth. (Rev., s. 314; Code, s. 1881; 1869-70, c. 169, s. 8.)

§ 337. Person required to approve bond not to be surety.—No member of the board of commissioners, or any other person authorized to take official bonds, shall sign as surety on any official bond upon the sufficiency of which the board of which he is a member may have to pass. (Rev., s. 315; Code, s. 1887; 1874-5, c. 120, s. 3.)

Art. 2. Bonds in Surety Company

§ 338. State officers may be bonded in surety company.—All persons who are required to give bond to the state of North Carolina to be received by the governor or by any department of the state government, in lieu of personal security, may give as security for said bond and for the performance of the duties named in the said bond any indemnity or guaranty company authorized to do business in the state of North Carolina, subject to such regulations as the governor or department may prescribe, and with power in them to demand additional security at any time. Any person presenting any indemnity or guaranty company as surety shall accompany his bond with a statement of the insurance commissioner as to the condition of such company as required by law. (Rev., s. 272; 1901, c. 754.)

Construed against Company. — A surety bond shall be construed most strongly against the company and most favorably to its general intent and essential purpose. Bank v. Fidelity Co., 128 N. C. 366, 38 S. E. 908. See the case as to compliance with requirement of notice of default.

§ 339. Surety company sufficient surety on bonds and undertakings.—A bond or undertaking by the laws of North Carolina required or permitted to be given by a public official, fiduciary, or a party to an action or proceeding, conditioned for the doing or not doing of an act specified therein, shall be sufficient when it is executed or guaranteed by a corporation authorized in this state to act as guardian or trustee, or to guarantee the fidelity of persons holding places of public or private trust, or to guarantee the performance of contracts, other than insurance policies, or to give or guarantee bonds and undertakings in actions or proceedings.

The bond or undertaking of a corporation having such power shall be sufficient, although the law or regulation in accordance with which it is given requires two or more sureties, or requires the sureties to be residents or freeholders. But the clerk of the superior court may exercise his discretion as to accepting such a corporation's surety on the bonds of fiduciaries or parties to actions or proceedings. (Rev., s. 273; 1895, c. 270; 1899, c. 54, s. 45; 1901, c. 706.)

Same Liability as an Individual.—A surety corporation allowed by this section to give guardian bonds, is held to the same liability on a bond given by it as an individual would be, and is responsible to the ward when the guardian's failure to properly perform his duties causes loss to the ward's estate. Roebuck v. National Surety Co., 200 N. C. 196, 156 S. E. 531.

Cited in Pierce v. Pierce, 197 N. C. 348, 349, 148 S. E. 438.

§ 340. Clerk to notify county commissioners of condition of company.—Each clerk of the superior court shall furnish the chairman of the board of county commissioners of his county with notice of each surety company licensed in this state, and of each surety company whose license has been revoked, in which any officer of the county has been bonded. (Rev., ss. 295, 4803.)

§ 341. Release of company from liability.—A company executing such bond, obligation or undertaking, may be released from its liability or security on the same terms as are or may be by law prescribed for the release of individuals upon any such bonds, obligations or undertakings. (Rev., s. 274; 1899, c. 54, s. 48.)

Getting Off Bond.—Under this section a surety company can be released from its liability on a bond only by getting off the bond. Bank v. Fidelity Co., 128 N. C. 366, 38 S. E. 908.

After Expiration.—A surety company is not liable for defalcations committed after the expiration of the term of office to which the bond refers. Blades v. Dewey, 136 N. C. 176, 48 S. E. 627.

§ 342. Company not to plead ultra vires.—Any company which executes any bond, obligation or undertaking under the provisions of this article is estopped, in any proceeding to enforce the liability which it assumes to incur, to deny its corporate power to execute such instrument or assume such liability. (Rev., s. 275; 1899, c. 54, s. 49; 1901, c. 706, s. 1, subsec. 5.)

§ 343. Failure to pay judgment is forfeiture.—If a surety company against which a judgment is recovered fails to discharge the same within sixty days from the time such final judgment is rendered, it shall forfeit its right to do business in this state, and the insurance commissioner shall cancel its license. (Rev., s. 275; 1901, c. 706, s. 1, subsec. 5.)

§ 344. On presentation of proper bond officer to be inducted.—Upon presentation to the person authorized by law to take, accept and file official bonds, of any bond duly executed in the penal sum required by law by the officer chosen to any such office, as principal, and by any surety company, as security thereto, whose insurance or guaranty is accepted as security upon the bonds of United States bonded officials (such insurance company having complied with the insurance laws of the state of North Carolina), or by any other good and sufficient security thereto, such bond shall be received and accepted as sufficient, and the principal thereon shall be inducted into office. (Rev., s. 276; 1899, c. 54, s. 53; 1901, c. 706, s. 1, subsec. 5.)

Although the failure of the treasurer to sign a bond was an irregularity under this section, both the treasurer and the surety recognized their liability thereon by offering a second bond in substitution, and both were estopped to deny the validity of the first bond on the ground of such irregularity. State v. Inman, 203 N. C. 542, 166 S. E. 519.

§ 345. Expense of fiduciary bond charged to fund.—A receiver, assignee, trustee, committee, guardian, executor or administrator, or other fiduciary required by law to give a bond as such, may include as part of his lawful expenses such sums paid to such companies for such suretyship not exceeding one-half of one per cent per annum on the account of such bonds as the clerk, judge or court may allow. (Rev., s. 277; 1901, c. 706, s. 1, subsec. 5.)

Art. 3. Mortgage in Lieu of Bond

§ 346. Mortgage in lieu of bond required to be given.—An administrator, executor, guardian, collector or receiver, or an officer required to give an official bond, or the agent or surety of such person or officer, may execute a mortgage on real estate, of the value of the bond required to be given by him to the state of North Carolina, conditioned to the same effect as the bond should be, were the same given, with a power of sale, which power of sale may be executed by the clerk of the superior court, with whom said mortgage shall be deposited, upon a breach of any of the conditions of said mortgage, after advertisement for thirty days. (Rev., s. 265; Code, s. 118; 1874-5, c. 103, s. 2.)

Mortgage of Intestate's Property.—A mortgage by an administrator on property of his intestate to which the administrator is heir does not comply with an order to increase the bond as such a mortgage does not increase the penalty. Sellars v. Faulk, 118 N. C. 573, 24 S. E. 430.

Failure to Record.—The mortgage or deed in trust permitted by this section, to be given in lieu of an official bond, is, as to proper registration, to be regarded as a mortgage, or deed in trust, and accordingly registered as the law requires, construing the statute strictly, as required; and its entry upon the records in the clerk's office as a bond, alone without recording it in its proper place as a mortgage, is insufficient to give notice to, or priority of lien, over a deed of a subsequent purchaser of the land. Hooper v. Tallassee Power Co., 180 N. C. 651, 105 S. E. 327.

§ 347. Mortgage in lieu of security for appearance, costs, or fine.—Any person required to give a bond or undertaking, or required to enter into a recognizance for his appearance at any court, in any criminal proceeding, or for the security of any costs or fine in any criminal action, may also execute a mortgage on real or personal property of the value of such bond or recognizance, payable to the state of North Carolina, conditioned as such bond or recognizance would be required, with power of sale, which power shall be executed by the clerk or justice of the peace in whose court said mortgage is executed, upon a breach of any of the conditions of said mortgage.

Where such mortgage upon real property is executed before a justice of the peace the power of sale shall be enforced by the clerk of the court of the county in which the criminal proceeding is had.

No such mortgage on real property executed for the security for costs or fine shall allow a longer time for payment of said costs or fine than six months from the execution thereof, and no mortgage on personal property a longer time than three months, except in cases of appeal, when the time allowed shall be counted from the date of the final decision in the cause.

All legitimate expenses of sale, which shall only be made after due advertisement according to law, shall be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of the mortgaged property, as shall also the following fees, to wit: For each sale of real property mortgaged under this section the clerk shall receive two dollars, and for each sale of personal property mortgaged under this section the clerk or justice of the peace who enforces the power of sale shall receive one dollar. (Rev., s. 266; Code, s. 120; 1874-5, c. 103, s. 3; 1891, c. 425, ss. 1, 2, 3.)

Applicability to Justice's Court.—This section, as it read in the code of 1883, had no application in courts of justices of the peace. Comron v. Standland, 103 N. C. 207, 9 S. E. 317. Since the decision in this case, however, the section has been amended and the words "or justice of the peace" have been inserted near the end of the first paragraph. Ed. Note.

Foreclosure and Sale.—The clerk of the Superior Court may foreclose a mortgage on land given by plaintiff to secure costs of his action when the costs are awarded against him, or the clerk may report the matter to the court for a decree of sale by himself, the latter being the better practice to insure a safer title and prevent a needless sacrifice. Clark v. Fairly, 175 N. C. 342, 95 S. E. 550.

Where the Superior Court, in term, acting through the presiding judge, has duly acquired jurisdiction to decree foreclosure, it is his duty to supervise the sale and see that the land brings a fair price; and when such sale has not been made accordingly, he may set aside the sale, and permit the plaintiff to pay the costs properly chargeable against him. Clark v. Fairly, 175 N. C. 342, 95 S. E. 550.

It is proper for the court to confirm the sale, and possibly it is necessary for him to do so. Clark v. Fairly, 175 N. C. 342, 95 S. E. 550.

A decree of confirmation of the sale of lands to pay the cost of an action under a mortgage given to secure them, under this section, may be set aside by the judge during the term of the Superior Court at which it was entered. Clark v. Fairly, 175 N. C. 342, 95 S. E. 550.

Cited in State v. Jenkins, 121 N. C. 637, 28 S. E. 413.

§ 348. Cancellation of mortgage in such proceedings.—Any mortgage given by any person in lieu of bond as administrator, executor, guardian, collector, receiver or as an officer required to give an official bond, or as agent or surety of such person or officer, or in lieu of bond or undertaking or recognizance for his appearance at any court in any criminal proceeding, or for the security of any cost or fine in a criminal action which has been registered, when such party as administrator, executor, guardian, collector, or receiver has filed his final account and when the time required by statute for the bond given by any administrator, executor, guardian, collector, or receiver to remain in force for the purpose of action thereon has expired, or when the officer required to give an official bond has fully complied with the conditions of such bond and the time within which suit is allowed by law to be brought thereon has expired, or when the person giving such mortgage in lieu of bond has made his appearance at the court to which he was bound and did not depart the court without leave, or paid the cost or fine required, may be canceled or discharged by the clerk of the Superior Court of the county where such action was pending or where the mortgage in lieu of bond is recorded by entry of 'satisfaction' upon the margin of the record where such mortgage is recorded in the presence of the register of deeds, or his deputy, who shall subscribe his name as a witness thereto, and such cancellation shall have the effect to discharge and release all the right, title and interest of the State of North Carolina in and to the property described in such mortgage. (Rev., 267, 1905, c. 106; 1921, c. 29, ss. 1, 2; 1925, c. 252, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.— By the Public Laws of 1925 this section was amended, and the provision relating to cancellation after certain acts of the party "as administrator, executor, guardian, collector, or receiver" was added. The validating clause was omitted from this section, and will now be found as § 348(a).

§ 348(a). Validating statute.—All acts heretofore done by the several Superior Court clerks, canceling or satisfying any mortgage, or other instruments, herein mentioned and specified are hereby validated: Provided, this provision shall not affect vested rights nor litigation pending March first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five. (1925, c. 252, s. 2.)

§ 349. Clerk of court may give surety by mortgage deposited with register.—In all cases where the clerk of the superior court may be required to give surety, he may deposit a mortgage with the register of deeds, payable to the state, and conditioned, as the bond would have been required, with power of sale. The power of sale shall be executed by the register of deeds, upon a breach of any of the conditions of said mortgage; and the register of deeds shall in all cases immediately register the same, at the expense of the said clerk. (Rev., s. 268; Code, s. 122; 1874-5, c. 103, s. 6.)

§ 350. Mortgage in lieu of bond to prosecute or defend in civil case.—It is lawful for any person desiring to commence any civil action or special proceeding, or to defend the same, his agent or surety, to execute a mortgage on real estate of the value of the bond or undertaking required to be given, at the beginning of said action, or at any stage thereof, to the party to whom the bond or undertaking would be required to be made, conditioned to the same effect as such bond or undertaking, with power of sale, which power of sale may be executed upon a breach of any of the conditions of the said mortgage after advertisement for thirty days. (Rev., s. 269; Code, s. 117; 1874-5, c. 103, s. 1.)

Strictly Construed.—This section is exceptional in its provisions, and must be strictly observed. Eshon v. Commissioners, 95 N. C. 75, 77. It does not apply where the mortgage was not made to the appellee. Id. This case contains a discussion as to whether section applies in lieu of appeal bond.

Not Applicable to Justice's Court.—This section has no application in courts of justices of the peace. Comron v. Standland, 103 N. C. 207, 99 S. E. 317.

Section Does not Require Mortgage. — This section does not authorize the court to require a party to execute a mortgage of real estate in the case therein provided for. It simply allows the party of whom an undertaking may be required in such cases to give such mortgage instead of it, and the former must be for the same amount as the latter. Wilson v. Fowler, 104 N. C. 471, 472, 10 S. E. 566.

Third Person Executing Mortgage for Defendant.—Where a mortgage is given by a third person for the defendant in an action, as is permitted by this section, and the mortgagor subsequently purchases a part of the mortgaged property, it was held, upon the plaintiffs recovering from the defendant, that the mortgagor has no such interest as will allow him to interfere with the plaintiff's rights under his judgment. Ryan v. Martin, 104 N. C. 176, 10 S. E. 169.

§ 351. Affidavit of value of property required.—In all cases where a mortgage is executed, as hereinbefore permitted, it is the duty of the clerk of the court in which it is executed, or of the justice, to require an affidavit of the value of the property mortgaged to be made by at least one witness not interested in the matter, action or proceeding in which the mortgage is given. (Rev., s. 270; Code, s. 121; 1874-5, c. 103, s. 4.)

§ 352. When additional security required.—If, from any cause, the property mortgaged in lieu of a bond becomes of less value than the amount of the bond in lieu of which the mortgage is given, and it so appears upon affidavit of any person having any interest in the matter as a security for which the mortgage was given, it is the duty of the mortgagor to give additional security by a deposit of money, or the execution of a mortgage on more property, or justify as required in cases where bond or undertaking is given. (Rev., s. 271; Code, s. 119; 1874-5, c. 103, s. 5.)

Art. 3(A). Cash Deposit in Lieu of Bond

§ 352(a). Cash deposit in lieu of bond; conditions and requirements.—In lieu of any written undertaking or bond required by law in any action pending in any court of the state, the party required to make such undertaking or bond may make a cash deposit of the amount required by law in lieu of the said undertaking or bond, and such cash deposit shall be subject to all of the same conditions and requirements as are provided for in written undertakings or bonds, in lieu of which such deposit is made. (1923, c. 58.)

When Applicable.—While this section by its terms applies to pending actions, as suggested in 1 N. C. Law R. p. 283, it is "probably not intended to be limited to pending actions but to apply to all cases in which such undertakings or bonds are required to be given. This extends to all cases the same requirements for making cash deposit as is now required in the plaintiff's undertaking for costs in a civil action (sec. 419), just as a mortgage on real or personal property may be given in lieu of bond or undertaking (sec. 347)."

Art. 4. Actions on Bonds

§ 353. Bonds in actions payable to court officer to be sued on in name of state.—Bonds and other obligations taken in the course of any proceeding at law, under the direction of the court, and payable to any clerk, commissioner, or officer of the court, for the benefit of the suitors in the cause, or others having an interest in such obligation, may be put in suit in the name of the state. (Rev., s. 280; Code, s. 51; R. C., c. 13, s. 11.)

Quoted in Lackey v. Pearson, 101 N. C. 651, 654, 8 S. E. 121.

§ 354. On official bonds injured party sues in name of state; successive suits.—Every person injured by the neglect, misconduct, or misbehavior in office of any clerk of the superior court, register, entry-taker, surveyor, sheriff, coroner, constable, county treasurer, or other officer may institute a suit or suits against said officer or any of them and their sureties upon their respective bonds for the due performance of their duties in office in the name of the state, without any assignment thereof; and no such bond shall become void upon the first recovery, or if judgment is given for the defendant, but may be put in suit and prosecuted from time to time until the whole penalty is recovered; and every such officer and the sureties on his official bond shall be liable to the person injured for all acts done by said officer by virtue or under color of his office. (Rev., s. 281; Code, s. 1883; R. C., c. 78, s. 1; 1793, c. 384, s. 1; 1833, c. 17; 1825, c. 9; 1869-70, c. 169, s. 10.)

Cross Reference.—As to surety waiving his rights under this section and §§ 353, 355 by appearing and answering in a summary proceeding, see § 356 and the note thereto.

As to actions on bonds generally, see N. C. Dig.

Leave of Court Unnecessary.—The section gives in express terms the right to bring one or more suits upon one or more of the bonds to "every injured person," not on leave from the Court, but absolutely and unconditionally so soon as the breach occurs, except that it is to be instituted in the name of the state. Boothe v. Upchurch, 110 N. C. 62, 66, 14 S. E. 642.

Constitutes Additional Remedy.—This section is not repugnant to the provisions of section 943, which requires that each successive clerk shall receive from his predecessor all the records, moneys, and property of his office, but only gives an additional remedy for the benefit of individuals who have cause of complaint against an unfaithful clerk of the Superior Court. Peebles v. Boone, 116 N. C. 57, 21 S. E. 187.

The failure of a register of deeds to properly index the registry of a mortgage renders him liable on his official bond to one injured by such neglect. State v. Grizzard, 117 N. C. 106, 23 S. E. 93.

Person Injured.—Where H. places a note for collection in a constable's hands, and the constable sues out a warrant, obtains a judgment and receives the amount (even though there is no execution) and fails to pay the same to H., H. as the person injured is entitled to have the suit brought to his use under this section. Holcomb v. Franklin, 11 N. C 274, 277.

The father of a girl under eighteen, to whom a marriage license has been issued without the father's consent, is the person injured within the meaning of this section. Joyner v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 111, 114, 16 S. E. 917.

Under this section, claimants of a fund arising from a partition sale are the proper parties to sue on bond of the clerk for failure of clerk to pay funds by the commissioners in partition. Smith v. Patton, 131 N. C. 396, 42 S. E. 849.

An action can be maintained by the clerk of a superior court in his own name upon the official bond of the sheriff, for the recovery of costs accrued in such court and collected by the sheriff, and due and payable to said clerk and others. Jackson v. Maultsby, 78 N. C. 174.

By Virtue or Color of Office.—The last clause of this section is very comprehensive in its terms, scope and purpose. It, on purpose, enlarges the compass of the conditions of official bonds and their purpose, and the Legislature intended by it, it seems, to prevent an evil pointed out in two or three of the cases. There were no adequate reasons why the conditions of official bonds should not extend to and embrace all the official duties of the office, and there were serious ones of justice and policy why they should. All persons interested are bound to accept the official services of such officers, as occasion may require, and they should be made secure in their rights, and have adequate remedy for wrongs done by them. Besides, such officers, indeed all public officers, should be held to a faithful discharge of their duties as such. It is singular that the clause last recited, notwithstanding a well known evil to be remedied, was not enacted until 1883. It first appears as part of The Code. So that now official bonds and the conditions of them embrace and extend to all acts done by virtue or under color of office of the officer giving the bond. Kivett v. Young, 106 N. C. 567, 569, 10 S. E. 1019; Thomas v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 342, 10 S. E. 520.

In State v. Leonard, 68 F. (2d) 228 a sheriff's bond contained a condition limiting the faithful execution of the office to specific duties such as execution of process and in view of this, and the wording of this section, the bond was held to afford no basis for a recovery by a person whom the sheriff wounded while acting in his official capacity.

Same—Acts Which Should Have Been Performed.—It is true that the clause seems in terms to provide only for acts done by the officer, and not for those which he should do but does not. But it would be putting a very narrow construction on the statute to say that he and his sureties are liable for what he did, but not for what he should have done and did not do, although the damage to the party was equally as great. State v. Grizzard, 117 N. C. 106, 108, 23 S. E. 93.

Same—Illustration of Acts.—Where a clerk appointed the commissioner to make the sale, without bond, and on approving his report received and receipted the proceeds as clerk, took out his costs and entered the amount due each heir at law on his docket, and disbursed a portion of said fund to the parties entitled. This would seem to be a receipt of the fund by the clerk "by virtue of his office." Cox v. Blair, 76 N. C. 78; McNeill v. Morrison, 63 N. C. 508; Judges v. Deans, 9 N. C. 93.

But if this were otherwise the clerk received it "as clerk," and so receipted for it. This was certainly a receipt of the money "under color of his office," and, indeed, this is admitted in the answer. The older decisions were made when these words were not in the statute. The clause embraces all cases where the officer received the money in his official capacity, but when he may not be authorized or required to receive the same. In such case the bond is responsible for the safe custody of the fund so paid in. Presson v. Boone, supra; Sharpe v. Connelly, 105 N. C. 87, 11 S. E. 177; Thomas v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 342, 10 S. E. 520; Ex parte Cassidey, 95 N. C. 225; Brown v. Coble, 76 N. C. 391; Greenlee v. Sudderth, 65 N. C. 470; Broughton v. Haywood, 61 N. C. 380; Smith v. Patton, 131 N. C. 396, 397, 42 S. E. 849.

Under this section of the Code the official bond of a constable is liable for the false imprisonment of a person by a constable, as such, without process or color thereof. Warren v. Boyd, 120 N. C. 56, 26 S. E. 700.

When the Clerk of the Superior Court is appointed receiver of a minor's estate, he takes and holds the funds by virtue of his office of Clerk, and his sureties upon his official bond as such officer are liable for any failure of duty on his part in that respect. Boothe v. Upchurch, 110 N. C. 62, 14 S. E. 642.

Bonds Cumulative.—Official bonds given by an officer during any one term of office are cumulative, and the new bond does not discharge the old one. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Fleming, 132 N. C. 332, 43 S. E. 899; Poole v. Cox, 31 N. C. 69, 71, 49 Am. Dec. 410; Oats v. Bryan, 14 N. C. 451; Bell v. Jasper, 37 N. C. 597; Pickens v. Miller, 83 N. C. 544; Moore v. Boudinot, 64 N. C. 190.

Where the surety has renewed the bond of a clerk of the court upon his election to that office a second time, acknowledged its liability and received premiums thereon, its liability is cumulative for all defalcations thereunder, whether for the second term its principal was continuing to act de facto or de jure. Lee v. Martin, 186 N. C. 127, 118 S. E. 914.

The first bonds continue to be a security for the discharge of the duties during the whole term, and the new bonds become additional security for the discharge of such of the duties as have not been performed at the time they are given. Poole v. Cox, 31 N. C. 69, 49 Am. Dec. 410, cited in note in 23 L. R. A., N. S. 132. See also, Bell v. Jasper, 37 N. C. 597; Oats v. Bryan, 14 N. C. 451.

Action on Bond and on Case.—An action of debt on a sheriff's bond for money collected, and a nonsuit therein, is a sufficient demand to enable the plaintiff to sustain an action on the case for the same cause of action. Fagan v. Williamson, 53 N. C. 433.

§ 355. Complaint must show party in interest; election to sue officer individually.—Any person who brings suit in manner aforesaid shall state in his complaint on whose relation and in whose behalf the suit is brought, and he shall be entitled to receive to his own use the money recovered; but nothing herein contained shall prevent such person from bringing at his election an action against the officer to recover special damages for his injury. (Rev., s. 282; Code, s. 1884; R. C., c. 78, s. 2; 1793, c. 384, ss. 2, 3; 1869-70, c. 169, s. 11.)

Cited in Western Carolina Power Co. v. Yount, 208 N. C. 182, 179 S. E. 804.

§ 356. Summary remedy on official bond.—When a sheriff, coroner, constable, clerk, county or town treasurer, or other officer, collects or receives any money by virtue or under color of his office, and on demand fails to pay the same to the person entitled to require the payment thereon, the person thereby aggrieved may move for judgment in the superior court against such officer and his sureties for any sum demanded; and the court shall try the same and render judgment at the term when the motion shall be made, but ten days notice in writing of the motion must have been previously given. (Rev., s. 283; Code, s. 1889; R. C., c. 78, s. 5; 1819, c. 1002; 1869-70, c. 169, s. 14; 1876-7, c. 41, s. 2.)

Cumulative Remedy.—It has never been understood that this cumulative and optional remedy obstructed the bringing a regular action on the bond, when the injured party preferred to have recourse to it. Lackey v. Pearson, 101 N. C. 651, 654, 8 S. E. 121.

There is no provision in the statute giving a preference to the party or parties who first seek such summary remedy. And, withal, before any claim, preferential or otherwise, can be established under this statute, notice must be given, the court must try the cause, and judgment must be obtained. Western Carolina Power Co. v. Yount, 208 N. C. 182, 184, 179 S. E. 804.

It was never intended that the mere lodging of a motion under this section, established a preference, or right to establish a preference, over other creditors when such other creditors had been guilty of no laches in asserting their claims. Id.

To What Officers Applicable.—In Smith v. Moore, 79 N. C. 86, it was held that the power conferred by this section as it read in the Revised Code of 1856, was confined to the officers named therein, and that there was no way to hold a commissioner appointed to make a judicial sale liable for the proceeds thereof, except by an action instituted by the parties entitled to the money. Subsequently to this decision the words "or other public officer," have been inserted in the section; but applying the ejusdem generis rule it would seem that these words would not include a master in chancery and that the Smith case declares the law as it still stands. See however Ex parte Curtis, 82 N. C. 435, where the court states that a remedy against executrix and clerk and master should have been by summary motion under this section.

Actions by Persons Entitled to Money.—This section gives a summary remedy against public officers, only to those entitled to the money, so that a new clerk cannot proceed under it against a former clerk, for not paying office money over to him as his successor. O'Leary v. Harrison, 51 N. C. 338.

Proceedings May Be Consolidated with General Creditors' Suit.—Plaintiff instituted summary proceedings under this section against the clerk of the Superior Court and the surety on his bond to recover for the clerk's default in failing to return to plaintiff, as ordered by the Superior Court, moneys deposited with the clerk. Notice and complaint in the proceeding were served on defendants. Thereafter another creditor of the clerk instituted suit in her own behalf and in behalf of all persons similarly situated, and decree was entered appointing a permanent receiver for the clerk, authorizing the receiver to bring suit on the clerk's bonds, and enjoining all creditors of the clerk from instituting any other suit or action against him or on his bonds. In the summary proceeding under this section, the surety on the clerk's bond pleaded the decree affirming receiver in bar to plaintiff's right to judgment, and the trial court dismissed the summary proceeding. Held, the summary proceeding should have been consolidated with the suit in the nature of a general creditor's bill. Western Carolina Power Co. v. Yount, 205 N. C. 321, 171 S. E. 321.

Justice's Jurisdiction.—Since the repeal sec. 13 of c. 80 of Battle's Revision it has been decided by repeated adjudication of this Court that a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction of an action on a constable's bond. Coggins v. Harrell, 86 N. C. 317, 319.

Judgment.—Under this practice, judgment was entered for the amount of the bond, the execution to be satisfied on payment of the sum collected and costs. Fell v. Porter, 69 N. C. 140, 142. From the language of the opinion in this case, it would seem that at the time of decision the operation of this section had been suspended.—Ed. Note.

Where A. obtained a judgment against B., Clerk of the Superior Court, for a sum of money in his hands by virtue of his office, and B died, and his administrator, upon demand, failed to pay the money, it was held that the court below erred in overruling a motion by the plaintiff for a judgment upon the official bond of the clerk under the provisions of this section. Cooper v. Williams, 75 N. C. 94.

Notice.—As this section read in Battle's Revision the proceedings were "without other notice than is given by the delinquency of the officer." See Prairie v. Jenkins, 75 N. C. 545, 548.

Demand Not Necessary. — In a proceeding by the state, against a clerk of the Superior Court and the surety on his bond to recover sums embezzled by the clerk, the plaintiffs have the right to pursue the summary remedy under this section, upon their motion after due notice, and demand upon the clerk is not necessary. State v. Gant, 201 N. C. 211, 159 S. E. 427.

Waiver by Appearance. — Where a summary proceeding under this section has been instituted against a clerk of the superior court and the surety on his bonds to recover sums embezzled by the clerk, and the surety has entered a general appearance and filed answer, etc., the surety has waived its rights, if any it had, under §§ 353, 354, 355, to object that the plaintiffs could not maintain a summary proceeding under this section. State v. Gant, 201 N. C. 211, 159 S. E. 427.

§ 357. Officer unlawfully detaining money liable for damages.—When money received as aforesaid is unlawfully detained by any of said officers, and the same is sued for in any mode whatever, the plaintiff is entitled to recover, besides the sum detained, damages at the rate of twelve per centum per annum from the time of detention until payment. (Rev., s. 284; Code, s. 1890; R. C., c. 78, s. 9; 1819, c. 1002, s. 2; 1868-9, c. 169.)

Default of Officer Must Be Shown.—In an action to recover the 12 per cent allowed under this section, it is necessary that the plaintiff show some adequate default. Hannah v. Hyatt, 170 N. C. 634, 87 S. E. 517.

Liability of Surety.—While, as against the principal on the bond of a clerk of the Superior Court, interest under our statute at the rate of 12 per cent is collectible from the time of defalcation, the amount of the penalty on his bond determines the liability of the surety thereon. State v. Martin, 188 N. C. 119, 123 S. E. 631.

Effect of Waiver of Interest from Date of Defalcation.—Where, in an action against a clerk of the superior court and his surety to recover sums embezzled by the clerk, the state waives the interest from the date of the actual defalcations, but does demand the 12 per cent from the date of the expiration of each term of office; a judgment awarding damages at 12 per cent, under the provisions of this section, on the sums defaulted from the expiration of each term is not error, the amount being within the penalty of the bond. State v. Gant, 201 N. C. 211, 213, 159 S. E. 427.

Cited in Wood v. Citizens Bank, 199 N. C. 371, 372, 154 S. E. 623.

§ 358. Evidence against principal admissible against sureties.—In actions brought upon the official bonds of clerks of courts, sheriffs, coroners, constables, or other public officers, and also upon the bonds of executors, administrators, collectors or guardians, when it may be necessary for the plaintiff to prove any default of the principal obligors, any receipt or acknowledgment of such obligors, or any other matter or thing which by law would be admissible and competent for or toward proving the same as against him, shall in like manner be admissible and competent as presumptive evidence only against all or any of his sureties who may be defendants with or without him in said actions. (Rev., s. 285; Code, s. 1345; R. C., c. 44, s. 10; 1844, c. 38; 1881, c. 8.)

Judgments as Evidence. — In an action against an officer and one of the sureties on his official bond, the record of a judgment against the officer, and others of his sureties, in a previous action against them for the same demand, and on the same bond, but in which action the surety in the present action was not a party, is competent evidence to fix the amount due by the officer. Morgan v. Smith, 95 N. C. 396.

In a learned note to the case of Charles v. Hoskins, 83 Am. Dec. 380, the annotator, Judge Freeman, says: "The question how far a judgment or decree is conclusive against a surety of a defendant, or against one who is liable over to a defendant, and who was not a party to the action, is involved in the greatest confusion. Between the intimate relations which exist between such a person and the defendant in the suit, on the one side, and the fundamental principle that no one ought to be bound by proceedings to which he was a stranger, on the other, the court has found it difficult to steer." Insurance Co. v. Bonding Co., 162 N. C. 384, 391, 78 S. E. 430.

The cases are numerous in which it has been decided that a judgment rendered against a guardian is not, unaided by the statute, admissible as evidence against the surety to his bond. McKellar v. Powell, 11 N. C. 34.

The same rulings have been made in regard to the sureties to an administration bond. Chairman v. Clark, 11 N. C. 43; Vanhook v. Barnett, 15 N. C. 268; Governor v. Carter, 25 N. C. 338; Governor v. Montford, 23 N. C. 155. So in reference to the liability of his surety to an amercement against the sheriff.

The act of 1844, (this section) however, changed the rule of law, and rendered competent against the sureties to official bonds, and those given by executors, administrators and guardians, whatever evidence would be competent against the principals, and this was declared to be conclusive, where the evidence was a judgment against him, in Brown v. Pike, 74 N. C. 531; and in Badger v. Daniel, 79 N. C. 386.

The act of 1881 amends the previous enactment by making the evidence "presumptive only" against the sureties. Moore v. Alexander, 96 N. C. 34, 36, 1 S. E. 536.

"It seems that our predecessors in office upon this Bench have intimated, and in one case held, that such judgments, unaided by the statute, are inadmissible in evidence against the surety. Moore v. Alexander, 96 N. C. 34, 36, 1 S. E. 536. But an examination of the question has convinced us that the decided trend of modern authority is to the effect that such a judgment against the principal prima facie only establishes the sum or amount of the liability against the sureties, although not parties to the action, but the sureties may impeach the judgment for fraud, collusion, or mistake, as well as set up an independent defense. Charles v. Hoskins, 83 Am. Dec. 379, and notes. In the notes to this case all the authorities are carefully reviewed." Insurance Co. v. Bonding Co., 162 N. C. 384, 392, 78 S. E. 430.

While this section fixed the rule as to actions brought upon the official bonds of clerks of courts, sheriffs, coroners, constables, or other public officers, and also upon the bonds of executors, administrators, collectors, or guardians, the precedents were in hopeless discord as to bonds not covered by the statute, until Associate Justice Brown laid down the rule in Dixie Fire Ins. Co. v. American Bonding Co., 162 N. C. 384, 392, 78 S. E. 430: "But an examination of the question has convinced us that the decided trend of modern authority is to the effect that such a judgment against the principal prima facie only establishes the sum or amount of the liability against the sureties, although not parties to the action, but the sureties may impeach the judgment for fraud, collusion, or mistake, as well as set up an independent defense." Charleston, etc., Ry. Co. v. Lassiter & Co., 208 N. C. 209, 212, 179 S. E. 789.

Debts and Assets. — In the construction of this section, it is decided that the judgment against the principal upon such official bonds as the section mentions, is not only conclusive of the debt, as it was without the aid of the enactment, but of assets also, and this effect is given to a judgment against a guardian, upon his official bond, in Badger v. Daniel, 79 N. C. 386; Morgan v. Smith, 95 N. C. 396, 399; Brown v. Pike, 74 N. C. 531.

In Armistead v. Harramond, 11 N. C. 339, Hall, J., said that a "judgment against an administrator is evidence against him of a debt due by the intestate, and is evidence also of assets in his hands to discharge it; and although, for the reason before given, it is also evidence of a debt due, as far as it relates to his sureties," etc. Morgan v. Smith, 95 N. C. 396, 399. Since the passage of the act of 1844, the judgment is also evidence of the assets against the surety. Brown v. Pike, 74 N. C. 531, and cases cited.

Admissibility of Admissions of Administrator of Principal against Surety When Their Interests at Variance.— A judgment upon the admissions in the answer of the administrator bank of a deceased county treasurer is not competent in an action by the county commissioners as evidence against the surety on the official bond of the deceased when the bank has been made a party defendant and the surety at once raises the issue as to whether a part of the defalcation was moneys defaulted from the bank when the deceased was acting as its assistant cashier, the interest of the bank and the surety being in conflict, and this section not applying in such cases. Commissioners of Chowan v. Citizens Bank, 197 N. C. 410, 149 S. E. 380.

For case recognizing the principle adopted in Commissioner of Chowan County v. Citizens' Bank, 197 N. C. 410, 149 S. E. 380, but holding the rule inapplicable under peculiar facts of case, see Charleston, etc., Ry. Co. v. Lassiter & Co., 208 N. C. 209, 179 S. E. 879.

Not Applicable to Tort Action. — The rule that the judgment against the principal in an official or fiduciary bond is presumptive evidence against the sureties under this section does not apply, as this is not an action on the bond, but in tort. Martin v. Buffaloe, 128 N. C. 305, 309, 38 S. E. 902.

Annual account of guardian competent evidence against him, and presumptive evidence against his sureties. Loftin v. Cobb, 126 N. C. 58, 35 S. E. 230.

Joinder of Administrator and Sureties. — Under this section the sureties on an administrator's bond are properly joined with the administrator, where it is shown that the administrator received a benefit from a falsified final account by reason of which the plaintiffs' judgment against the administrators remained unpaid. State v. McCanless, 193 N. C. 200, 136 S. E. 371.

Cited in Pullen v. Mining Co., 71 N. C. 563.

§ 359. Officer liable for negligence in collecting debt.—When a claim is placed in the hands of any sheriff, coroner or constable for collection, and he does not use due diligence in collecting the same, he shall be liable for the full amount of the claim notwithstanding the debtor may have been at all times and is then able to pay the amount thereof. (Rev., s. 286; Code, s. 1888; R. C., c. 78, s. 3; 1844, c. 64; 1869-70, c. 169, s. 12.)

Applicable to Claims Not Executions. — This section applies only to claims placed in the hands of the sheriff or other officer for collection—such claims as are within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, and may be collected by judgment and process of execution granted by that magistrate. It does not apply to executions issuing from the Superior or other courts of record. The reason for the distinction is clearly and certainly pointed out in McLaurin v. Buchanan, 60 N. C. 91. The statute, in effect, now is just as it was when that decision was made. Brunhild v. Potter, 107 N. C. 415, 419, 12 S. E. 55.

What Constitutes Negligence. — The degree of diligence required is that which a prudent man would ordinarily exercise in the management of his own affairs. A constable is not bound to such strict accountability as when process is delivered to him as an officer. Morgan v. Horne, 44 N. C. 25; Lipscomb v. Cheek, 61 N. C. 332. Therefore, what constitutes negligence must depend upon the facts in each particular case: five months delay was held, negligence in Nixon v. Bagby, 52 N. C. 4.

A constable is not bound to sue out a warrant on a claim put in his hands for collection, when the issuing of such process would be entirely fruitless. State v. Holcombe, 24 N. C. 211.

Art. 5. Bond-issuing Districts Incorporated

§ 360. Various districts issuing bonds incorporated.—The inhabitants of every road district special road district, school district, graded school district, or other district, in the name of which, or on behalf of which, bonds or other evidences of indebtedness are authorized by law to be issued, shall, for all purposes relating to the issuance or payment of such bonds or other evidence of indebtedness, constitute a body politic and corporate under the name given by law to such district; and all such bonds or other evidences of indebtedness hereafter issued shall be obligations of such corporation. The board or body authorized by law to issue such bonds or other evidence of indebtedness may adopt a seal for such corporation, and shall, except as otherwise provided by law, have and exercise all the powers and perform all the duties of such corporation relating to the issuance or payment of such bonds or other evidences of indebtedness. This article shall not apply to any notes or bonds heretofore issued. (1919, c. 308.)

See sec. 5464.

In General. — Under our statutes, in general terms, relating to special school districts, apparently all of them within the State are incorporated and given powers and duties in reference to the issue and payment of bonds for school purposes, by the board of trustees, when approved by the voters of the particular district upon an election duly held for the purpose; the term name called, this section; Laws 1921, chs. 244 and 133; and where two special school districts having equal rate of taxation, have been consolidated under the provisions 5469 et seq.; Laws 1921, ch. 179, sec. 1; such district so consolidated may issue valid bonds for the purpose stated, when it has complied with the appropriated statutes. Paschal v. Johnson, 183 N. C. 129, 110 S. E. 841.

Art. 6. Stolen, Lost Or Destroyed Bonds.

§ 360(1). Replacement of stolen, lost or destroyed state or municipal bonds; indemnity bond. —The State Treasurer of the State of North Carolina, by and with the consent and approval of the governor and council of State and the governing boards of the several counties, cities and political sub-divisions of the State, are hereby authorized and empowered to make settlement for or issue new bonds for bonds of the State or any of the political sub-divisions thereof, which have been stolen, lost or destroyed, provided that there is furnished an indemnity bond in double the amount of the said bonds, said indemnity bond to be approved by the State Treasurer or the governing boards of any political sub-division of the State issuing said replacement bonds; provided further, that said indemnity bond shall clearly designate the bonds which have been stolen, lost or destroyed. (1935, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 360(2). Expenses borne by applicant. — All expenses in connection with printing and issuing any replacement bonds provided for in this article shall be borne by the person making application therefor. (1935, c. 292, s. 2.)

BOUNDARIES

§ 361. Special proceeding to establish.—The owner of land, any of whose boundary lines are in dispute, may establish any of such lines by special proceedings in the superior court of the county in which the land or any part thereof is situated. (Rev., s. 325; 1893, c. 22.)

Origin of the Doctrine of the Section. — This section grew out of and is in some respects similar to the common law "writ of perambulation," although the procedure hereunder tends greatly to simplify the procedure obtaining under the former law. Until the passage of this section the consent of both adjoining land owners was necessary in order to have the dispute as to the bounds of their respective estates judicially determined. Under the present law either of the adjoining proprietors as a matter of right is entitled to have the land processioned, without the other's consent, and, where there has been an appeal, to have all the controverted matters settled by the jury under the guidance of the court. Green v. Williams, 144 N. C. 60, 63, 58 S. E. 549.

Purpose of Processioning. — The primary object of this section and the following sections of this article is to faciliate the speedy determination of disputed boundaries between adjoining land owners who do not contest the other's title to their respective tracts. Parker v. Taylor, 133 N. C. 103, 45 S. E. 473. Title to the land is not in issue unless so made by the pleadings, Cole v. Seawell, 152 N. C. 349, 67 S. E. 753; but when placed in issue by the defendant's denial of the plaintiff's ownership then, by sec. 758, the pending special proceedings are converted into a civil action to quiet title and the court will try all the issues in controversy connected therewith. Woody v. Fountain, 143 N. C. 67, 55 S. E. 425.

Relief under the Section — Injunctions. — To warrant the granting of an injunction in the cases of special proceedings, the relief sought must be subsiduary to the relief asked in the special proceedings, Hunt v. Sneed, 64 N. C. 176; and since this section gives no substantive relief —settles no rights, or titles to property, but only locates the dividing lines between the parties, the plaintiff was denied an injunction to restrain the defendant from commissions of trespasses when such order was asked for in the special proceedings instituted to determine the boundary line between the adjoining estates. Wilson v. Alleghany Company, 124 N. C. 7, 32 S. E. 326.

Dispute as to Boundary Necessary.—To sustain an action to establish the true dividing line between adjoining owners of land, a dispute as to the location of the line must be shown or the case on appeal will be dismissed in the Supreme Court. Wood v. Hughes, 195 N. C. 185, 141 S. E. 569.

Effect of Binding Agreement.—Where in proceedings to establish the disputed boundaries between adjoining lands, a binding executed agreement between the parties has been established by uncontradicted evidence, the plaintiff is estopped from proceeding under this section, and there is no error in the court's holding that the completed agreement of arbitration operated as an estoppel as a matter of law. Lowder v. Smith, 201 N. C. 642, 643, 161 S. E. 223.

§ 362. Occupation sufficient ownership.—The occupation of land constitutes sufficient ownership for the purposes of this chapter. (Rev., s. 326; 1893, c. 22; 1903, c. 21.)

Sufficiency of Ownership—When Title Not in Dispute.—The courts have construed the term "occupation", as used in this section, to mean possession, and uniformly hold that one in (a) possession of the land, and (or) (b) whose title thereto is not disputed so that no issue is raised save only that the location of the boundary, has sufficient ownership to avail himself of the special proceedings herein provided for. Williams v. Hughes, 124 N. C. 3, 32 S. E. 325; Parker v. Taylor, 133 N. C. 103, 45 S. E. 473.

Same—When Title is in Dispute. — Where, however, the defendant puts the title to the land in issue, and the case has taken the form of a civil action, then the plaintiff can no longer rest his case by merely proving his occupation of the land as evidencing the boundary, but must go further and prove his title to the land. Woody v. Fountain, 143 N. C. 67, 55 S. E. 425. See also Williams v. Hughes, 124 N. C. 3, 32 S. E. 325.

§ 363. Procedure.—1. Petition; Summons; Hearing.—The owner shall file his petition under oath stating therein facts sufficient to constitute the location of such line as claimed by him and making defendants all adjoining owners whose interest may be affected by the location of said line. The clerk shall thereupon issue summons to the defendants as in other cases of special proceedings. If the defendants fail to answer, judgment shall be given establishing the line according to petition. If the answer deny the location set out in the petition, the clerk shall issue an order to the county surveyor or, if cause shown, to any competent surveyor to survey said line or lines according to the contention of both parties, and make report of the same with a map at a time to be fixed by the clerk, not more than thirty days from date of order; to which time the cause shall be continued. The cause shall then be heard by the clerk upon the location of said line or lines and judgment given determining the location thereof.

Compliance with the Procedural Steps Mandatory.—This section must be strictly followed in all material respects and any flagrant or negligent departure therefrom will be fatal to the proceedings. Forney v. Williamson, 98 N. C. 329, 4 S. E. 483. But the Court will look to the substance and not to the form of the pleadings, and where an affidavit contains a full and explicit denial of the line set out in the plaintiff's petition it will be treated as an answer since it contains all that is required by the section. Scott v. Kellum, 117 N. C. 664, 23 S. E. 180.

Effect of Misjoinder of Parties.—A proceeding under the provisions of this section to establish the true dividing line between adjoining owners of land, will be dismissed upon demurrer for misjoinder of parties and causes of action that involve the title or interests of others not related to the matter in dispute, and which are entirely independent thereof. Rogers v. Rogers, 192 N. C. 50, 133 S. E. 184.

Burden of Proof.—Upon the institution of the proceedings to ascertain the true dividing line between the lands the burden is on the plaintiff to establish such line, Woody v. Fountain, 143 N. C. 67, 55 S. E. 425; Hill v. Dalton, 140 N. C. 9, 52 S. E. 273, and this burden does not shift to the defendant merely because, in addition to denying the line to be as claimed by the plaintiff, he alleges another to be the dividing line. Garris v. Harrington, 167 N. C. 86, 83 S. E. 253.

Applicability of Doctrine of Res Judicata—Title to Land Not in Issue.—Where the only fact in issue is the establishment and location of the boundary line, then the judgment of the clerk is, to this extent, binding on the parties and they may not again litigate on this precise point. Whitaker v. Garren, 167 N. C. 658, 83 S. E. 769. But his judgment may not estop the parties from asserting in a separate action title in the land, Nash v. Shute, 182 N. C. 528, 109 S. E. 353.

Same—Title in Issue.—Where, however, the parties join issue upon the title and the case is transferred to the regular term of the court a judgment therein estops the parties both as to the title and the location of the line. Whitaker v. Garren, 167 N. C. 658, 83 S. E. 759. See also, Nash v. Shute, 182 N. C. 528, 109 S. E. 353, the court in this case, saying: "The clerk of the Superior Court, under ch. 9, controlling proceedings to determine a dividing line, has no jurisdiction as to title or character of the possession of the claimants on either side of the dividing line of land authorized to be ascertained or determined by him under the provisions of this section, the occupancy alone being sufficient to confer jurisdiction, under this section; and where the clerk has acted within his jurisdiction in such proceedings, his judgment may not estop a party in a separate action to show the character or extent of his possession or, to establish an easement by adverse possession in the lands occupied by the other."

Evidence — Generally. — The general rules for ascertaining boundaries apply equally well when recourse is had through special proceedings. Power Co. v. Savage, 170 N. C. 625, 87 S. E. 629. See also, Woodard v. Harrell, 191 N. C. 194, 132 S. E. 12, containing dicta to the affect that parol evidence of location of boundary line by parties may be properly admitted, if they were merely locating the true boundary line, but not to show verbal agreement to change the true dividing line.

Same—The Surveyor's Report.—The surveyor, when acting under this section, is not in any sense a referee and his report to the court should not contain conclusions of law, but should only set forth a detailed account of the facts of the case and when it does this, it is entitled to great evidential weight although it is not conclusive as to the results contained therein. Norwood v. Crawford, 114 N. C. 513, 19 S. E. 349. See also Green v. Williams, 144 N. C. 60, 56 S. E. 549.

What Report of Processioners must Contain.—A report of a processioner is radically defective when it does not state, with precision, the claims of the respective parties, so as to show what lines were disputed or how far they were disputed, and no undue laxity in the proceedings in this respect will be tolerated by the court. Hoyle v. Wilson, 29 N. C. 466. So also where one of the parties objects to the processioner's proceeding, the processioner must, in his return to the court, state, "all the circumstances of the case," as for instance, the nature of the objection, the line or lines claimed by each party, etc., Carpenter v. Whitworth, 25 N. C. 204.

When Transfer to Regular Term Required.—The jurisdiction of the clerk in these special proceedings is limited in its scope. It extends only to those cases in which the only fact in issue is the location of the boundary line between the lands. Where the title to the land is put in issue the clerk has no authority to pass on any question involved but must transfer the whole proceedings to the regular term of the court. Brown v. Hutchinson, 155 N. C. 205, 71 S. E. 302; Smith v. Johnson, 137 N. C. 43, 49 S. E. 62; Parker v. Taylor, 133 N. C. 103, 45 S. E. 473.

2. Appeal to Term.—Either party may within ten days after such determination by the clerk serve notice of appeal from the ruling of the clerk determining the said location. When notice of appeal is served it shall be the duty of the clerk to transmit the issues raised before him to the next term of the superior court of the county for trial by a jury, when the question shall be heard de novo.

Parties on Appeal.—Under the provision contained in this section for the appeal by either party to the regular term of the court, other parties having an interest in the locus in quo may, upon motion, be permitted to come in. Batts v. Pridgen, 147 N. C. 133, 60 S. E. 897.

3. Survey After Judgment.—When final judgment is given in the proceeding the court shall issue an order to the surveyor to run and mark the line or lines as determined in the judgment. The surveyor shall make report including a map of the line as determined, which shall be filed with the judgment roll in the cause and entered with the judgment on the special proceedings docket.

4. Procedure as in Special Proceedings.—The procedure under this chapter, the jurisdiction of the court, and the right of appeal shall, in all respects, be the same as in special proceedings except as herein modified. (Rev., s. 326; 1893, c. 22; 1903, c. 21.)

§ 364. Surveys in disputed boundaries.—When in any suit pending in the superior court the boundaries of land are drawn in question, the court may, if deemed necessary, order a survey of the lands in dispute, agreeable to the boundaries and lines expressed in each party's titles, and such other surveys as shall be deemed useful; which surveys shall be made by two surveyors appointed by the court, one to be named by each of the parties, or by one surveyor, if the parties agree; and the surveyors shall attend according to the order of the court and make the surveys, and shall make as many accurate plans thereof as shall be ordered by the court; and for such surveys the court shall make a proper allowance, to be taxed as among the costs of the suit. (Rev., s. 1504; Code, s. 939; R. C., c. 31, s. 119; 1779, c. 157; 1786, c. 252.)

Allowance for Costs of Survey.—The word "court", as used in the last provision of this section, refers to the judge, and not to the clerk, and where the trial judge has failed to make an order allowing compensation to the surveyor, the clerk has no power to make the allowance; but on appeal from the clerk's refusal, such order will be made by the judge of the Superior Court, Cannon v. Briggs, 174 N. C. 740, 94 S. E. 519; LaRoque v. Kennedy, 156 N. C. 360, 72 S. E. 454.

BURNT AND LOST RECORDS

§ 365. Copy of destroyed record as evidence; may be recorded.—When the office of any registry is destroyed by fire or other accident, and the records and other papers thereof are burnt or destroyed, the copies of all such proceedings, instruments and papers as are of record or registry, certified by the proper officer, though without the seal of office, shall be received in evidence whenever the original or duly certified exemplications would be. Such copies, when the court is satisfied of their genuineness, may be ordered to be recorded or registered. (Rev., s. 327; Code, s. 55.)

Admissibility of Parol Evidence.—As this chapter constitutes an enabling Act where it is attempted to prove by oral evidence and by copy the contents of the original report, the oral evidence is not excluded by its provisions. Hughes v. Pritchard, 153 N. C. 23, 63 S. E. 906. Varner v. Johnston, 112 N. C. 570, 576, 17 S. E. 483; Mobley v. Watts, 98 N. C. 284, 286, 3 S. E. 677.

But when a deed is lost or destroyed a copy must be produced if there be one, but if none, parol evidence may be admitted to prove its contents. Cowles v. Hardin, 91 N. C. 233; Dumas v. Powell, 14 N. C. 103; Baker v. Webb, 2 N. C. 43.

Same—Statements of One Not a Party.—A statement that he owned no interest in the property made by one not a party to the suit, and under whom the plaintiff does not claim, is not admissible under this section. Jones v. Ballou, 139 N. C. 526, 52 S. E. 254.

Same—Not Admissible to Change Certified Copy.—This section does not permit parol evidence to be introduced to show that the lost or destroyed original had a different description and thus correct a recorded certified copy of a deed. Hopper v. Justice, 111 N. C. 420, 16 S. E. 626.

§ 366. Originals may be again recorded.—All original papers, once admitted to record or registry, whereof the record or registry is destroyed, may, on motion, be again recorded or registered, on such proof as the court shall require. (Rev., s. 328; Code, s. 56.)

Original Recorded upon Sufficient Evidence to Clerk. — Where the registry of partition is destroyed and a paper purporting to be the original is presented to the clerk, it is his duty, after satisfying himself upon evidence that the paper is the original one, to record it. Hill v. Lane, 149 N. C. 267, 62 S. E. 1067.

Effect of Failure to Re-register.—In Waters v. Crabtree, 105 N. C. 394, 402, 11 S. E. 240 the court said, in referring to this section: "This statutory provision, at least, admonished all persons having such original papers to prove and register them anew in the way prescribed, and good faith required that they should do so. It, moreover, gave the public reason to expect that it would be faithfully observed by persons interested. However where the plaintiff has been negligent in again registering or recording a deed, such re-registration will not defeat the rights of bona fide purchasers."

§ 367. Establishing boundaries and interest, where original and copy destroyed.—When any conveyance of real estate, or of any right or interest therein, is lost, the registry thereof being also destroyed, any person claiming under the same may cause the boundaries thereof to be established in the manner provided in the chapter entitled Boundaries, or he may proceed in the following manner to establish both the boundaries and the nature of his estate:

He shall file his petition before the clerk of the superior court, setting forth the whole substance of the conveyance as truly and specifically as he can, the location and boundaries of his land, whose land it adjoins, the estate claimed therein, and a prayer to have his own boundaries established and the nature of his estate declared.

All persons claiming any estate in the premises, and those whose lands adjoin, shall be notified of the proceedings. Unless they or some of them, by answer on oath, deny the truth of all or some of the matters alleged, the clerk shall order a surveyor to run and designate the boundaries of the petitioner's land, and return his survey, with a plot thereof, to court. This, when confirmed, shall, with the declaration of the court as to the nature of the estate of the petitioner, be registered and have, as to the persons notified, the effect of a deed for the same, executed by the person possessed of the same next before the petitioner. But in all cases, however, wherein the process of surveying is disputed, and the surveyor is forbidden to proceed by any person interested, the same proceedings shall be had as under the chapter entitled Boundaries.

If any of the persons notified deny by answer the truth of the conveyance, the clerk shall transfer the issues of fact to the superior court at term, to be tried as other issues of fact are required by law to be tried; and on the verdict and the pleadings the judge shall adjudge the rights of the parties, and declare the contents of the deed, if any deed is found by the judge, and allow the registration of such judgment and declaration, which shall have the force and effect of a deed. (Rev., s. 328; Code, s. 56.)

Remedy Additional and Not Exclusive.—This section is an enabling statute providing, not an exclusive remedy, but merely an additional one. Jones v. Ballou, 139 N. C. 526, 52 S. E. 254; Mobley v. Watts, 98 N. C. 284, 3 S. E. 677.

It does not repeal but aids the common law rules for establishing deeds, and a party may choose either mode. Cowles v. Hardin, 91 N. C. 233.

Evidence Must Show Existence, Nature, and Loss.—Before the deed can be made, the plaintiff must clearly prove that a deed did exist, its legal operation, and the loss thereof. Plummer v. Baskerville, 36 N. C. 252; Loftin v. Loftin, 96 N. C. 94, 1 S. E. 837.

Judgment has Only Force of Original.—A judgment under this section has only such force as the original conveyance would have as evidence had it not been destroyed. McNeely v. Laxton, 149 N. C. 334, 63 S. E. 278.

Private Acts.—In a special proceeding under a private act, similar to this section, to restore certain records lost by fire or other casualty, it is necessary to conform exactly to all the terms prescribed by the statute. Cowles v. Hardin, 79 N. C. 577.

§ 368. Copy of lost will may be probated.—In counties where the original wills on file in the office of the clerk of superior court, and will-books containing copies, are lost or destroyed, if the executor or any other person has preserved a copy of a will (the original being so lost or destroyed) with a certificate appended, signed by a clerk of the court in whose office the will was, or is required to be filed, stating that said copy is a correct one, this copy may be admitted to probate, under the same rules and in the same manner as now prescribed by law for proving wills. The proceedings in such cases shall be the same as though such copy was the original offered for the first time for probate, except that the clerk who signed such certificate shall, on oath, acknowledge his signature, or in case it appears that he has died or left the state, then his signature shall be proved by a competent witness; and the witness or witnesses to the original, who may be examined, shall be requred to swear that he or they signed in the presence of the testator and by his direction a paper-writing purporting to be his last will and testament. (Rev., s. 329; Code, s. 57.)

Probated before Clerk.—The probate of a lost will must be made before the clerk of the Superior Court, he alone having jurisdiction. McCormick v. Jernigan, 110 N. C. 406, 14 S. E. 971.

Statute of Limitation Does Not Apply.—The statute of limitation does not apply to the simple taking probate of a will, hence it has no application to proceedings under this section. McCormick v. Jernigan, 110 N. C. 406, 14 S. E. 971.

§ 369. Copy of lost will as evidence; letters to issue.—In any action or proceeding at law, where it becomes necessary to introduce such will to establish title, or for any other purpose, a copy of the will and of the record of the probate, with a certificate signed by the clerk of the superior court for the county where the will may be recorded, stating that said record and copy are full and correct, shall be admitted as competent evidence; and when a copy of a will is admitted to probate, the clerk shall thereupon issue letters testamentary. (Rev., s. 330; Code, s. 58.)

§ 370. Establishing contents of will, where original and copy destroyed.—Any person desirous of establishing the contents of a will destroyed as aforesaid, there being no copy thereof, may file his petition in the office of the clerk of the superior court, setting forth the entire contents thereof, according to the best of his knowledge, information and belief. All persons having an interest under the same shall be made parties, and if the truth of such petition is denied, the issues of fact shall be transferred to the superior court at term for trial by a jury, whether the will was recorded, and if so recorded, the contents thereof, and the declarations of the judge shall be recorded as the will of the testator. Any devisee or legatee is a competent witness as to the contents of every part of said will, except such as may concern his own interest in the same. (Rev., s. 331; Code, s. 59.)

Parol Evidence.—Parol evidence may be introduced to show the contents of a will which has been lost or destroyed. Cox v. Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 78, 32 S. E. 381; Varner v. Johnston, 112 N. C. 570, 17 S. E. 483.

And such evidence is also admissible to show existence of such a will, its probate and registration. Cox v. Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 78, 32 S. E. 381.

§ 371. Perpetuating destroyed judgments and proceedings.—Every person desirous of perpetuating the contents of destroyed judgments, orders or proceedings of court, or any paper admitted to record or registration, or directed to be filed for safe keeping, other than wills or conveyances of real estate, or some right or interest therein, or any deed or other instrument of writing, required to be recorded or registered, but not having been recorded or registered, it being competent to register or record said deed or other instrument at the time of its loss or destruction, may file his petition in the court having jurisdiction of like matters with the original proceeding, setting forth the substance of the whole record, deed, proceeding, or paper, which he desires to perpetuate. If, on the hearing, the court shall declare the existence of such record, deed, or proceeding, or paper at the time of the burning of the office wherein the same was lodged or kept, or other destruction thereof, and that the same was there destroyed, and shall declare the contents thereof, such declaration shall be recorded or registered, or filed, according to the nature of the paper destroyed. (Rev., s. 332; Code, s. 60.)

Restored Record Free from Collateral Attack. — Where the destroyed record has been restored, the record so restored cannot collaterally attacked. Branch v. Griffin, 99 N. C. 173, 5 S. E. 393, 398.

§ 372. Color of title under destroyed instrument.—Every person who has been in the continual, peaceable and quiet possession of land, tenements, or hereditaments, situated in the county, claiming, using and occupying them as his own, for the space of seven years, under known boundaries, the title thereto being out of the state, is deemed to have been lawfully possessed, under color of title, of such estate therein as has been claimed by him during his possession, although he may exhibit no conveyance therefor: Provided, that such possession commenced before the destruction of the registry office, or other destruction as aforesaid, and also that any such person, or any person claiming by, through or under him, makes affidavit and produces such proof as is satisfactory to the court that the possession was rightfully taken; and if taken under a written conveyance, that the registry thereof was destroyed by fire or other means, or was destroyed before registry as aforesaid, and that neither the original nor any copy thereof is in existence: Provided further, that such presumption shall not arise against infants, persons of nonsane memory, and persons residing out of the state, who were such at the time of possession taken, and were not therefore barred, nor were so barred at the time of the burning of the office or other destruction. (Rev., s. 333; Code, s. 61.)

Adverse Possession — Presumption of Grant. — In an action to recover land under this section, the plaintiff showed title out of the State by a thirty years' possession, it was held, that this statute did not make it necessary to show seven years' adverse possession in addition to the thirty years. The lapse of seven years' adverse possession concurrently with the thirty years is sufficient. Hill v. Overton, 81 N. C. 393.

§ 373. Action on destroyed official bond.—Actions on official or other bonds lodged in any office which are destroyed with the registry thereof may be prosecuted by petition against the principal and sureties thereto, and the proceedings shall be as in the former courts of equity. (Rev., s. 334; Code, s. 62.)

Nature of Proceeding is Equitable. — The nature of the proceedings under this section is equitable. McCormick v. Jernigan, 110 N. C. 406, 14 S. E. 971.

§ 374. Destroyed witness tickets; duplicates may be filed.—The court having jurisdiction of the action may allow other witness tickets to be filed in place of such as may be destroyed, upon the oath of the witness or other satisfactory proof. (Rev., s. 335; Code, s. 63.)

§ 375. Replacing lost official conveyances.—Where any conveyance executed by any person, sheriff, clerk and master, or commissioner of court has been lost, and registry thereof destroyed as aforesaid, and there is no copy thereof, such persons, whether in or out of office, may execute another of like tenor and date, reciting therein that the same is a duplicate, and such deed shall be evidence of the facts therein recited, in all cases wherein the parties thereto are dead, or are incompetent witnesses to prove the same, to the extent as if it was the original conveyance. (Rev., s. 336; Code, s. 64.)

§ 376. Court records as proof of destroyed instruments set out therein.—The records of any court in or out of the state, and all transcripts of such records, and the exhibits filed therewith in any case, are admissible to prove the existence and contents of all deeds, wills, conveyances, depositions and other papers, copies whereof are therein set forth or exhibited, in all cases where the records and registry of such as were or ought to have been recorded and registered, or the originals of such as were not proper to be recorded or registered, have been destroyed as aforesaid, although such transcripts or exhibits have been informally certified; and when offered in evidence have the like effect as though the transcript or record was the record of the court whose records are destroyed, and the deeds, wills and conveyances, depositions and other papers therein copied or therewith exhibited were original. (Rev., s. 337; Code, s. 65.)

Evidence of Court Records as Proof. — When papers have been lost and under competent evidence and instructions, the jury has found their contents to be as contended by the plaintiff, the plaintiff prevails. Fain v. Gaddis, 144 N. C. 765, 57 S. E. 1111.

§ 377. Copies contained in court records may be recorded.—The copies aforesaid of all such deeds, wills, conveyances and other instruments proper to be recorded or registered, as are mentioned in the preceding section, may be recorded or registered on application to the clerk of the superior court and due proof that the original thereof was genuine. (Rev., s. 338; Code, s. 66.)

§ 378. Rules for petitions under this chapter.—The following rules shall be observed in petitions and motions under this chapter:

1. The facts stated in every petition or motion shall be verified by affidavit of the petitioner that they are true according to the best of his knowledge, information, and belief.

Affidavit by Agent Not Sufficient. — In a proceeding under this section an affidavit by the agent of the petitioner that the facts set forth in the complaint "are true to the best of his knowledge, information and belief," is an insufficient verification. Cowles v. Hardin, 79 N. C. 577.

2. The instrument or paper sought to be established by any petition shall be fully set forth in its substance, and its precise language shall be stated when the same is remembered.

3. All persons interested in the prayers of the petition or decree shall be made parties.

It seems that all persons whose estate may be effected by a proceeding to restore lost records, should be made parties. Cowles v. Hardin, 79 N. C. 577.

4. Petitions to establish a record of any court shall be filed at term in the superior court of the county where the record is sought to be established. Other petitions may be filed in the office of the clerk.

5. The costs shall be paid as the court may decree.

6. Appeals shall be allowed as in all other cases, and where the error alleged shall be a finding by the superior court at term, of a matter of fact, the same may be removed on appeal to the supreme court, and the proper judgments directed to be entered below.

7. It shall be presumed that any order or record of the court of pleas and quarter sessions, which was made and has been lost or destroyed, was made by a legally constituted court, and the requisite number of justices, without naming said justices. (Rev., s. 339; Code, s. 69; 1893, c. 295.)

§ 379. Records allowed under this chapter to have effect of original records.—The records and registries allowed by the court in pursuance of this chapter shall have the same force and effect as original records and registries. (Rev., s. 340; Code, s. 68.)

No More Effect than Originals.—The copies have only the same force and effect as the lost or destroyed deeds would have had, if produced. McNeely v. Laxton, 149 N. C. 327, 63 S. E. 278.

Bona Fide Purchaser—True Purpose of Original. — But it would seem that if the true purpose of the deed was to serve as a mortgage, and the plaintiff has been negligent in registering it, it will not have that effect against one who subsequently purchases without notice and for value. Waters v. Crabtree, 105 N. C. 402, 11 S. E. 240.

§ 380. Destroyed court records proved prima facie by recitals in conveyances executed before their destruction.—The recitals, reference to, or mention of any decree, order, judgment or other record of any court of record of any county in which the courthouse, or records of said courts, or both, have been destroyed by fire or otherwise, contained, recited or set forth in any deed of conveyance, paper-writing, or other bona fide written evidence of title, executed prior to the destruction of the courthouse and records of said county, by any executor or administrator with a will annexed, or by any clerk and master, superior court clerk, clerk of the court of pleas and quarter sessions, sheriff, or other officer, or commissioners appointed by either of said courts, and authorized by law to execute said deed or other paper-writing, are deemed, taken and recognized as true in fact, and are prima facie evidence of the existence, validity and binding force of said decree, order, judgment or other record so referred to or recited in said deed or paper-writing, and are to all intents and purposes binding and valid against all persons mentioned or described in said instrument of writing, deed, etc., as purporting to be parties thereto, and against all persons who were parties to said decree, judgment, order or other record so referred to or recited, and against all persons claiming by, through or under them or either of them. (Rev., s. 341; Code, s. 69.)

Constitutionality. — Making recitals in deeds, etc., of judgments, records, etc., evidence, etc., upon condition that the courthouse, records, etc., have been destroyed by fire, etc., is constitutional. Barefoot v. Musselwhite, 153 N. C. 208, 209, 69 S. E. 71.

Evidence Must Show Destruction of Records. — The fact of the destruction by fire or otherwise of the records must be shown before the recitals, reference to, or mention of any decree, judgment, or other record recited in a deed of conveyance, etc., shall have the effect of evidence under this section. Barefoot v. Musselwhite, 153 N. C. 208, 69 S. E. 71 See also Dail v. Suggs, 85 N. C. 104.

Application of Section. — This section was applied where a deed made in compliance to a decree of court was destroyed, the recitals in the decree being taken as prima facie evidence of facts and authority. Irvin v. Clark, 98 N. C. 444, 4 S. E. 30. See also Isler v. Isler, 88 N. C. 576.

Conversely, the recitals in a deed, which refer to the decree, so as to identify it, are of themselves prima facie evidence of its binding force and validity as against all persons who were parties to said decree. Pinnell v. Burroughs, 172 N. C. 182, 183, 90 S. E. 218; Everett v. Newton, 118 N. C. 925, 23 S. E. 961; Hare v. Hollomon, 94 N. C. 14; Pinnell v. Burroughs, 168 N. C. 315, 84 S. E. 364.

Where the original papers of the judgment roll have been lost, the minute docket of the court may be introduced to prove the contents thereof. Everett v. Newton, 118 N. C. 925, 23 S. E. 961; Hare v. Hollomon, 94 N. C. 14.

§ 381. Conveyances reciting court records prima facie evidence thereof.—Such deed of conveyance, or other paper-writing, executed as aforesaid, and registered according to law, may be read in any suit now pending or which may hereafter be instituted in any court of this state, as prima facie evidence of the existence and validity of the decree, judgment, order, or other record upon which the same purports to be founded, without any other or further restoration or reinstatement of said decree, order, judgment, or record than is contained in this chapter. (Rev., s. 342; Code, s. 70.)

Constitutionality. — The constitutionality and validity of this section cannot now be open to dispute. Barefoot v. Musselwhite, 153 N. C. 208, 211, 69 S. E. 71.

§ 382. Court records and conveyances to which chapter extends.—This chapter shall extend to records of any court which has been or may be destroyed by fire or otherwise, and to any deed of conveyance, paper-writing, or other bona fide evidence of title executed before the destruction of said records. (Rev., s. 343; Code, s. 71.)

§ 383. Local: Moore County; certain records presumed burned.—In all cases in Moore County of bonds, indentures, accounts, minutes, judgment rolls and all other records that cannot be found on record or on file in the said clerk's office after diligent search therefor by the clerk of the court, and cannot be otherwise accounted for, the same having been on record or file therein on or before September fifth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, shall be presumed to have been destroyed by fire. In all cases in which said bonds, indentures, accounts, minutes, judgment rolls and other records or any part thereof have been lost or destroyed and in which it may become necessary to use the same in evidence, it shall be presumed that the same were executed, filed, audited or adjudicated, as the case may be, in due and legal form and were in all respects lawful records and documents. (Rev., s. 344; 1891, c. 55.)

§ 384. Local: Haywood, Madison, Cherokee and Graham; destroyed court records therein.—Whenever any of the records of any of the courts in this State have been burnt, lost, destroyed or stolen, and there is in existence any copy thereof, or of any part of the same, duly certified, whether under the seal of the court or otherwise, by any former clerk of said court, it shall be the duty of the present clerk of said court, or any clerk of said court hereafter in office, upon presentation to him of such copy and the payment of his lawful fees therefor, to record said copy upon the minutes or records of said court; and after the same shall have been so recorded the record then shall be used as and be taken and deemed and shall have all the force and effect of the original record so burnt, lost, destroyed or stolen; and such record thereof, or a copy of the same duly certified by the clerk of said court, shall be in all respects competent in the same way and manner as the original record in all the courts of this State. If the copy so certified shall be on file or constitute a part of a record of a case or otherwise of another court, either State or Federal, then said certified copy, when so recorded, as aforesaid, shall be returned to the court from which same was taken and shall not be required to remain on file in the clerk's office where so recorded. This section shall apply only to the counties of Haywood, Madison, Cherokee and Graham. (Rev., s. 345; 1905, c. 308; 1935, c. 25.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 made this section applicable to stolen records. It also added the next to the last sentence providing for return of the certified copies. Prior to the amendment the section applied in Buncombe and Yancey, and did not apply in Cherokee and Graham.

CITIZENSHIP RESTORED

§ 385. Petition filed.—Any person convicted of an infamous crime, whereby the rights of citizenship are forfeited, desiring to be restored to the same, shall file his petition in the superior court, setting forth his conviction and the punishment inflicted, his place or places of residence, his occupation since his conviction, the meritorious causes which, in his opinion, entitle him to be restored to his forfeited rights, and that he has not before been restored to the lost rights of citizenship. (Rev., s. 2675; Code, ss. 2938, 2940; R. C., c. 58, ss. 1, 3; 1840, c. 36, s. 4.)

Loss of Citizenship. — Loss of citizenship does not form a part of the judgment of the court, but follows as a consequence of such judgment. State v. Jones, 82 N. C. 685.

§ 386. When and where petition filed.—At any time after the expiration of two years from the date of discharge of the petitioner, the petition may be filed in the superior court of the county in which the applicant is at the time of filing and has been for five years next preceding a bona fide resident, or in the superior court of the county, at term, where the indictment was found upon which the conviction took place; and in case the petitioner may have been convicted of an infamous crime more than once, and indictments for the same may have been found in different counties, the petition shall be filed in the superior court of that county where the last indictment was found. (Rev., s. 2676; Code, ss. 2940, 2941; 1897, c. 110; R. C., c. 58, ss. 3, 4; 1840, c. 36, s. 3; 1933, c. 243.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment by Public Laws 1933, c. 243, the petition was permitted to be filed after "four years from the date of conviction," instead of "two years from the date of discharge" as is now permitted.

Time of Making Application. — One who has been convicted of an infamous crime, imprisoned and pardoned can make application under this section only after a lapse of four years from the conviction. In re Petition of Jones, 160 N. C. 15, 75 S. E. 1007.

§ 387. Notice given.—Upon filing the petition the clerk of the court shall advertise the substance thereof, at the courthouse door of his county, for the space of three months next before the term when the petitioner proposes that the same shall be heard. (Rev., s. 2677; Code, s. 2938; R. C., c. 58, s. 1; 1840, c. 36.)

§ 388. Hearing and evidence.—The petition shall be heard by the judge at term, at which hearing the court shall examine all proper testimony which may be offered, either by the petitioner as to the facts set forth in his petition or by any one who may oppose the grant of his prayer. The petitioner shall also prove by five respectable witnesses, who have been acquainted with the petitioner's character for three years next preceding the filing of his petition, that his character for truth and honesty during that time has been good; but no deposition shall be admissible for this purpose unless the petitioner has resided out of this state for three years next preceding the filing of the petition. (Rev., s. 2678; Code, ss. 2938, 2939; 1897, c. 110; 1901, c. 533; R. C., c. 58, ss. 1, 2; 1840, c. 36.)

§ 389. Decree.—At the hearing the court, on being satisfied of the truth of the facts set forth in the petition, and on its being proved that the character of the applicant for truth and honesty is good, shall decree his restoration to the lost rights of citizenship, and the petitioner shall accordingly be restored thereto. (Rev., s. 2679; Code, s. 2938; R. C., c. 58, s. 1; 1840, c. 36.)

§ 390. Procedure in case of pardon or suspension of judgment.—Any person convicted of any crime, whereby the rights of citizenship are forfeited, and the judgment of the court pronounced does not include imprisonment anywhere, and pardon has been granted by the governor, or the court suspended judgment on payment of the costs, and the costs have been paid, such person may be restored to such forfeited rights of citizenship upon application, by petition, to the judge presiding at any term of the superior court held for the county in which the conviction was had, one year after such conviction. The petition shall set out the nature of the crime committed, the time of conviction, the judgment of the court, and that pardon has been granted by the governor, and also that said crime was committed without felonious intent, and shall be verified by the oath of the applicant and accompanied by the affidavits of ten reputable citizens of the county, who shall state that they are well acquainted with the applicant and that in their opinion the crime was committed without felonious intent. No notice of the petition in such case shall be necessary, and no advertisement thereof be made, but the same shall be heard by the judge, upon its presentation, during a term of court; and if he is satisfied as to the truth of the matters set out in the petition and affidavits, he shall decree the applicant's restoration to the lost rights of citizenship, and the clerk shall spread the decree upon his minute docket: Provided, that in all cases where the court suspended judgment it shall not be necessary to allege or prove that pardon has been granted by the governor, and in such cases the petition may be made and the forfeited rights of citizenship restored at any time after conviction. (Rev., s. 2680; 1899, cc. 44, 249; 1905, c. 547.)

Application. — This section is not applicable where one has been convicted of an infamous crime, imprisoned, and pardoned by the governor. In re Petition of Jones, 160 N. C. 15, 75 S. E. 1007.

CIVIL PROCEDURE

SUBCHAPTER I. DEFINITIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 1. Definitions

§ 391. Remedies.—Remedies in the courts of justice are divided into—

1. Actions.
2. Special proceedings.

(Rev., s. 346; Code, s. 125; C. C. P., s. 1.)

Removals to Federal Courts. — Any of the proceedings included within this or the two succeeding sections are removable to the federal courts upon proper showing. Ivy River Land, etc., Co. v. American Ins. Co., 190 N. C. 801, 805, 130 S. E. 864.

Application of Sec. 450 to all Civil Remedies. — By virtue of this section and sec. 393 the terms of section 450, as to actions by guardians, embrace all civil remedies. Hollomon v. Hollomon, 125 N. C. 29, 33, 34 S. E. 99.

§ 392. Actions.—An action is an ordinary proceeding in a court of justice, by which a party prosecutes another party for the enforcement or protection of a right, the redress or prevention of a wrong, or the punishment or prevention of a public offense. (Rev., s. 347; Code, s. 126; C. C. P., s. 2; 1868-9, c. 277, s. 2.)

Recovery of Land. — A suit to recover the possession of land is a civil action and not a special proceeding. Woodley v. Gilliam, 64 N. C. 649.

Bastardy Not Ordinary Action. — A bastardy proceeding is not prosecuted for the enforcement or protection of an individual right or the redress or prevention of a wrong within the meaning of this section. Bastardy is a special proceeding prosecuted "like a criminal action." State v. Burton, 113 N. C. 655, 659, 18 S. E. 657; State v. McIntosh, 64 N. C. 607.

§ 393. Special proceedings.—Every other remedy is a special proceeding. (Rev., s. 348; Code, s. 127; C. C. P., s. 3.)

Cross References. — See section 110 providing a special proceeding by creditor against personal representative of a deceased. As to special proceeding for collection of legacies and distributive shares, see section 147.

Tests to Determine Special Proceedings. — Any proceedings which prior to the C. C. P. might have been commenced by petition, or motion on notice, such for instance as proceedings for dower, partition and year's allowance, are special proceedings under this section. Tate v. Powe, 64 N. C. 644; Felton v. Elliott, 66 N. C. 195.

Under this test, proceedings in bastardy (State v. McIntosh, 64 N. C. 607), or a petition by an administrator to sell lands for the payments of debts (Hyman v. Jarnigan, 65 N. C. 96; Badger v. Jones, 66 N. C. 305), classify as special proceedings.

In Woodley v. Gilliam, 64 N. C. 649, Mr. Justice Rodman expressed the opinion that a better test of a special proceeding is whether or not existing statutes direct a procedure different from the ordinary. He stated, however, that in practice the results of applying the two tests would almost always coincide, although he thought the one suggested by him the most convenient. And the court held in Sumner v. Miller, 64 N. C. 688, 689, Mr. Justice Dick delivering the opinion that proceedings to obtain damages for injuries to land caused by the erection of a mill are special proceedings because made so by the statute creating a statutory remedy.

Under either rule an action to recover the possession of land, as, for example, ejectment, is not a special proceeding. Woodley v. Gilliam, 64 N. C. 649. Nor is mandamus to try title to an office, notwithstanding that it is not an ordinary civil action. State v. Tate, 66 N. C. 231.

Section quoted in Jacobi Hdw. Co. v. Jones Cotton Co., 188 N. C. 442, 124 S. E. 756.

§ 394. Kinds of actions.—Actions are of two kinds—

1. Civil.
2. Criminal.

(Rev., s. 349; Code, s. 128; C. C. P., s. 4.)

§ 395. Criminal action.—A criminal action is—

1. An action prosecuted by the state as a party, against a person charged with a public offense, for the punishment thereof.

2. An action prosecuted by the state, at the instance of an individual, to prevent an apprehended crime against his person or property. (Rev., s. 350; Code, s. 129; C. C. P., s. 5; Const., Art., IV, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. — This section worked a significant change in the law of the state with its enactment in the Code of Civil Procedure. Prior to that time "all suits prosecuted in the name of the state were not necessarily criminal suits as distinguished from civil suits—the true test being that when the proceeding was by indictment the suit was criminal, and when by action or other mode, though in the name of the state, it was a civil suit." State v. Pate, 44 N. C. 244. Hence a warrant to keep the peace was a civil action though brought in the name of the state. See State v. Locust, 63 N. C. 574, 575. But this section changed the rule in all such cases, the test now being whether the person is charged with a public offense or whether the action is prosecuted by the state at the instance of an individual to prevent or apprehend crime against the person or property of the individual; in either case the action being a criminal proceeding. See State v. Lyon, 93 N. C. 575, 576; State v. Oates, 88 N. C. 668.

Bastardy Proceedings. — Until 1879 a bastardy proceeding was a civil action, see State v. Pate, 44 N. C. 244; State v. McIntosh, 64 N. C. 607. It is very probable that this section did not change it to a criminal action for its nature did not bring it within the terms of this section. But it was contended by Mr. Justice Avery in State v. Burton, 113 N. C. 655, 18 S. E. 657, that the Act of 1879, appearing in Michie's Code of 1931 as § 265 et seq., prescribing a fine as a punishment, changed the nature of the proceeding so as to make it fall within the terms of this section.

This view was opposed by Mr. Justice Clark in the same case, his contention being that the imposition of the fine by the act of 1879 did not change the nature of the proceeding. The purpose of bastardy proceedings has always been to force the father to support the child so that it will not become a public charge, and not to impose a punitive measure. The Supreme Court has held both ways upon the question and many North Carolina cases may be cited to support either view. However, the most recent cases upon the subject hold that bastardy is a proceeding in the nature of a civil action to enforce a police regulation. See State v. Currie, 161 N. C. 275, 76 S. E. 694. For a full citation of the authorities, pro and con, see 2 Enc. Dig. p. 329, section 16. See the discussion in the editor's note under sec. 276(a).

The cases discussed in the two preceding paragraphs were decided under the old law. For the present law, making bastardy proceedings a criminal action, see section 276(a) et seq.

Private Individuals as Prosecutors. — No person is regarded as a prosecutor for a public offense unless he is so marked on the bill of indictment. State v. Lupton, 63 N. C. 483.

Title of Case. — The terms "people of the state" as found in A IV, section 1 of the constitution, and "the state" as used in this section mean substantially the same. Thus a criminal case entitled "People v. A. B., criminal action" or "State v. A. B., indictment" as was used prior to the present constitution, are either correct forms. Larkins v. Murphy, 68 N. C. 381.

§ 396. Civil action.—Every other is a civil action. (Rev., s. 351; Code, s. 130; C. C. P., s. 6.)

A proceeding for dower is a civil action under this section. Tate v. Powe, 64 N. C. 644.

§ 397. When court means clerk.—In the following sections which confer jurisdiction or power, or impose duties, where the words "superior court," or "court," in reference to a superior court are used, they mean the clerk of the superior court, unless otherwise specially stated, or unless reference is made to a regular term of the court, in which cases the judge of the court alone is meant. (Rev., s. 352; Code, s. 132; C. C. P., s. 9.)

Clerks Act for Court. — See section 402. Although the terms "court" and "superior court" as used in this section mean the clerk of the court as indicated, the clerk is given no separate jurisdiction apart from the court itself. In so far as the civil procedure is concerned, at least, the clerk acts as and for the court in the specified instances. His acts are performed by the court through him and stand as that of the court if not excepted to and reversed or modified on appeal, and thus there is no divided jurisdiction between the clerks and the judge. The whole procedure is in the court and has its sanction. Jones v. Desern, 94 N. C. 32, 34. See also, 1 N. C. Law R. 15.

Same — Civil Actions. — It was pointed out in Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498, 502, that the clerk does not exercise power in respect to pleadings and practice to any considerable extent in civil actions (as distinguished from special proceedings) because questions arising in such matters arise mainly in term time when the judge must act directly. This was due to the suspension act, but since the Crisp Act in 1919 the rule is otherwise. See note to section 402, and see the Editorial in 1 N. C. Law R. 199. So the clerk represents and is the court and has authority to exercise the discretionary powers conferred for the purpose of decreeing a sale of a decedent's estate for the payment of debts. Indeed the clerk implies the court in cases like this. Tillett v. Aydlett, 90 N. C. 551, 553.

Same—Special Proceedings. — But in special proceedings he acts for the court in superintending the pleadings, practice and procedure, and in making all proper orders and judgments therein unless his action is revised or modified by the judge upon appeal. Jones v. Desern, 94 N. C. 32, 36; Adams v. Howards, 110 N. C. 15, 19, 14 S. E. 648.

It has never been doubted that it was competent for the legislature to confer such jurisdiction upon the clerk. Bank v. Wilkesboro Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 601, 61 S. E. 570.

The word as used in art. IV, section 28 of the constitution does not mean the court of the clerk. McAdoo v. Benbow, 63 N. C. 461.

Since the statute providing that a summary remedy against a railroad for damages caused by construction of the road over the land in favor of persons owning land may be begun either in or out of term by service of petition upon the defendant, it is proper for the judge to appoint commissioners as provided, if begun in term, but where the proceeding is begun in vacation the clerk may act for the court in the manner explained in these annotations. Click v. Western, etc., R. Co., 98 N. C. 390, 392, 4 S. E. 183.

The reference in section 1825 to "the court" "or a judge thereof" refers to the clerk as well as the judge. Mills v. Biscoe Lumber Co., 139 N. C. 524, 52 S. E. 200.

The jurisdiction under section 3963 is conferred upon the clerk by virtue of this section. Bank v. Wilkesboro Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 61 S. E. 570.

This section gives the clerk power to enter a judgment for the recovery of money. Bank v. Wilkesboro Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 601, 61 S. E. 570.

Application of Section. — This section was cited in Pelletier v. Saunders, 67 N. C. 261, as authority for the proposition that the term "superior court" as used in section 74 means clerk of the superior court.

Term Clerk Has Been Impliedly Read into § 819.—In view of this section it has been held that when the judgment in garnishment proceedings under § 819 is entered up, the execution is awarded as a matter of course and can be issued by the clerk without application to the judge. Newberry v. Meadows Fert. Co., 206 N. C. 182, 189, 173 S. E. 67.

Art. 2. General Provisions.

§ 398. Remedies not merged.—Where the violation of a right admits both of a civil and a criminal remedy, the right to prosecute the one is not merged in the other. (Rev., s. 353; Code, s. 131; C. C. P., s. 7.)

Summons Served upon Person in Jail. — In view of this section it was proper to serve a summons and order of arrest upon the defendant while confined in jail upon failure to give appearance bond to answer for a secret criminal assault. White v. Underwood, 125 N. C. 25, 26, 34 S. E. 104.

Cited in Scales v. Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., 195 N. C. 772, 776, 143 S. E. 868.

§ 399. One form of action.—The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity and the forms of such actions and suits are abolished, and there is but one form of action for the enforcement or protection of private rights and the redress of private wrongs, which is denominated a civil action. (Rev., s. 354; Code, s. 133; C. C. P., s. 12; Const., Art. IV, s. 1.)

Effect upon Substantive Law—Torts. — Although there is but one form of action there are torts and contracts just as there was prior to the C. C. P., but there are not several forms of action as there used to be, and pleadings are not suited for different forms of action as they used to be, but are all suited to one form, whether the subject of the action be a tort or a contract. Bitting v. Thaxton, 72 N. C. 541, 549.

Same—Legal and Equitable Principles. — Although one tribunal deals out both law and equity, the principles of law and equity remain separate and distinct, and it is just as important now as ever before to keep them separate. Jordan v. Lanier, 73 N. C. 90, 92.

But it is true that having but one tribunal causes the principles of law and equity to run into each other to some extent at least. For an illustration, see Jordan v. Lanier, 73 N. C. 90, 92.

The defendant's right of action by his counterclaim upon his unendorsed bond is still an equitable claim notwithstanding this section. Kiff v. Weaver, 94 N. C. 274, 279.

Nature of Defense Immaterial. — Any defense either legal or equitable may be set up by the defendant in an action by the endorsee upon a non-negotiable note. Thompson v. Osborne, 152 N. C. 408, 67 S. E. 1029.

Common Law Forms Immaterial. — Since the old technical distinctions in the forms of actions were abolished by this section, it is immaterial whether the plaintiff's remedy under the old practice was trespass or case. Sneeden v. Harris, 109 N. C. 349, 357, 13 S. E. 920.

An exception to a complaint that it is for money had and received and as such cannot be maintained unless the money has been actually received by the defendant is not maintainable under this section regardless of the common-law practice. Staton v. Webb, 137 N. C. 35, 38, 49 S. E. 55.

Where parties are brought into court by summons, the plaintiff can file his complaint, alleging a legal cause of action, or an equitable cause of action, or can combine them as he may elect. Wilson v. Waldo, 221 Fed. 505, 507.

§ 400. Plaintiff and defendant.—In civil actions the party complaining is the plaintiff, and the adverse party the defendant. (Rev., s. 355; Code, s. 134; C. C. P., s. 13.)

§ 401. How party may appear.—A party may appear either in person or by attorney in actions or proceedings in which he is interested. (Rev., s. 356; Code, s. 109; C. C. P., s. 423.)

This right is alternative. A party has no right to appear both by himself and by counsel. Nor should he be permitted ex gratia to do so. Abernethy v. Burns, 206 N. C. 370, 173 S. E. 899.

Cited in Buncombe County v. Penland, 206 N. C. 299, 305, 173 S. E. 609.

§ 402. Feigned issues abolished and substituted.—Feigned issues are abolished, and instead thereof, in the cases where the power formerly existed to order a feigned issue, or when a question of fact not put in issue by the pleadings is to be tried by a jury, an order for the trial may be made by the judge, stating distinctly and plainly the question of fact to be tried; and this order is the only authority necessary for a trial. (Rev., s. 357; Code, s. 135; C. C. P., s. 15.)

Benefit of Feigned Issue Preserved. — See Harkey v. Houston, 65 N. C. 137.

Effect upon Proper Parties. — Since feigned issues in seduction cases have been abolished, the woman and not her father is the real party in interest if she be of age. Hood v. Sudderth, 111 N. C. 215, 16 S. E. 397.

Effect of Carrying Feigned Issue to Supreme Court. — When an action upon a feigned issue is carried to the Supreme Court it will be dismissed. Blake v. Askew, 76 N. C. 325.

§ 403. Jurisdiction of clerk.—The clerk of the superior court has jurisdiction to hear and decide all questions of practice and procedure and all other matters over which jurisdiction is given to the superior court, unless the judge of the court or the court at a regular term is expressly referred to. (Rev., s. 358; Code, s. 251; C. C. P., s. 108.)

Editor's Note. — See section 397 and note. This section was passed in 1868 as a part of the C. C. P. It was a part of the scheme to simplify procedure and speed up litigation so that justice could be had much sooner and at less expense than was formerly possible. But due to the depressed financial conditions brought about by the civil war, the people were not desirous of a more speedy system of procedure for the reason that in actions for debts the unfortuniate litigants might have more time in which to improve their financial conditions so that they might be able to discharge the judgments. Under pressure of such demand the legislature passed in the same year what is known as the "Bachelor Act" which suspended the operation of certain portions of the C. C. P. temporarily. The legislature of 1870 made the suspension more permanent by providing that the act should remain in force until otherwise provided. The suspension act became chapter 18 of Battle's revisal, was incorporated in the Code as chapter 10 of the C. C. P., was carried forward in subsequent revisals (see Bynum v. Powe, 97 N. C. 374, 381, 2 S. E. 170), and remained in force until 1919 when the legislature passed what is known as the "Crisp Act" restoring the suspended provisions of the C. C. P. (See post, section 476). See Campbell v. Campbell, 179, N. C. 413, 415, 102 S. E. 737. See Editorial in 1 N. C. Law R. 199.

The effect of the suspension act was far-reaching, many sections having been totally suspended while others were suspended only in part. The editor's notes under the particular sections will point out the effect upon such sections.

The suspension act was chiefly directed at the portions of the C. C. P. which gave the clerk of the superior court power to decide questions of practice, procedure and other such matter out of term time. Hence this section was modified by the act. To prevent this section from operating in the class of cases named above, the act provided that the summons in all civil actions should be made returnable to the court in term time and that questions of pleading, practice and procedure should be determined during term time only. Therefore in such cases the operation of this section was totally suspended. But the suspension act did not affect special proceedings and in such cases the clerk continued to exercise the power hereby conferred upon him, except as such authority may have been modified or affected by subsequent statutes. Jones v. Desern, 94 N. C. 32, 35; Warden v. McKinnon, 94 N. C. 378, 387; Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498.

With the passage of the Crisp Act this section is in full force and effect and should be construed in connection with section 476 where the terms of the recent act will be found. See Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N. C. 413, 415, 102 S. E. 737.

Constitutionality of Suspension Act.—The constitutionality of the suspension act was attacked in McAdoo v. Benbow, 63 N. C. 461, upon the ground that the constitution required the clerk to hear and decide all questions of practice and procedure, but it was held that the constitution made no such provision and that the legislature had power thereunder to make such regulations. Although there was one dissent to the holding, it became to be universally recognized as the law until the Crisp Act of 1919. Bynum v. Powe, 97 N. C. 374, 381, 2 S. E. 170.

Nature of Clerk's Power. — In exercising the jurisdiction herein conferred, the clerk is no more than a servant of the court, subject to its supervision in the manner provided elsewhere by statute. Turner v. Holden, 109 N. C. 182, 186, 13 S. E. 731; Maxwell v. Blair, 95 N. C. 317, 321; Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498, 502.

As was indicated in McAdoo v. Benbow, 63 N. C. 461, 464, the jurisdiction is conferred upon the court, and not upon the clerk. He is merely an instrument in performing his functions. Thus there is no divided jurisdiction between the clerk and judge, but they both function as officials of the same court exercising but one jurisdiction. Jones v. Desern, 94 N. C. 32, 35.

Regularly, in special proceedings (since the act of 1919 in all proceedings, see the editor's note to this section) the pleadings should be made up and perfected by the Clerk, acting as and for the Court. Indeed, he so makes all the orders and judgments in the course of the proceeding, except in some exceptional respects, otherwise expressly provided for. Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498; Wharton v. Wilkerson, 92 N. C. 407. Loftin v. Rouse, 94 N. C. 508, 509.

The Court in Term, should not do more than to direct the Clerk to perfect the pleadings and to allow or disallow amendment according to law. If the Clerk should proceed and make decisions of questions of law, with which a party should be dissatisfied, such party might appeal, and in that way the decision of the Judge would become that of the Court. It was the duty of the Clerk to make all proper orders of reference, as well as other orders and judgments in the course of the proceeding. If he should err in such respect, an appeal might be taken as indicated above. Loftin v. Rouse, 94 N. C. 508, 510.

It was not the duty of the Judge in term, after the issues were tried—there being no question of law to be decided, —to direct the Clerk what to do, or to make an order remanding the case to the Clerk. The latter ought to have proceeded without an order, and heard and determined the case upon its merits, subject to the right of appeal to the Judge. Brittain v. Mull, 94 N. C. 595, 599.

Same—To Grant Equitable Relief.—The C. C. P. does not give the clerk power to make an order granting affirmative equitable relief. Equitable relief must be set up in the answer as a defense and then the clerk has power to hear all questions herein permitted. See Vance v. Vance, 118 N. C. 864, 24 S. E. 768; Bragg v. Lyon, 93 N. C. 151.

Same—Effect of Failure of Clerk to Decide Questions. — We are not authorized to decide the questions of law presented by the pleadings and the issues of fact found by the jury, because they have not been decided by the Clerk, acting for the Court, and, upon appeal, by the Judge. It is the duty of the Clerk, acting for the Court, to decide whatever question may be presented, and to make all proper orders. Brittain v. Mull, 94 N. C. 595, 599.

Amendments after Joinder of Issues.—Where, in special proceedings, the pleadings are made up before the Clerk, and upon joinder of issues are transferred to the Court in Term, the Judge has power to allow amendments, or he may stay the trial and remand the papers to the Clerk, in order that he may consider a motion to amend. Loftin v. Rouse, 94 N. C. 508.

Same—Remanding Order Interlocutory. — An order remanding the papers to the Clerk, in order that he may hear a motion to amend the pleadings, to the end that an account should be taken, is interlocutory and does not impair a substantial right, and cannot be appealed from. Loftin v. Rouse, 94 N. C. 508.

Application to Special Proceedings.—See the editor's note to this section. Proceedings to obtain partition, dower and the like are special proceedings, Jones v. Desern, 94 N. C. 32, 35. So is a proceeding by creditors to compel an administrator to an account and payment of the debts of the estate. Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498; Warden v. McKinnon, 94 N. C. 378, 387.

And the granting of a warrant of attachment was a special proceeding. Cushing v. Styron, 104 N. C. 338, 339, 10 S. E. 258.

SUBCHAPTER II. LIMITATIONS.

Art. 3. Limitations, General Provisions

§ 404. When action commenced.—An action is commenced as to each defendant when the summons is issued against him. (Rev., s. 359; Code, s. 161; C. C. P., s. 40.)

When Statute Adopted.—The statutes of limitation appearing in the following sections did not become effective until the adoption of the C. C. P.; prior to that time the statute of presumptions was in force. Crawford v. McLellan, 87 N. C. 169.

The statutes prescribing limitations in the code displace those contained in the Revised Code. Lynn v. Lowe, 88 N. C. 478, 483.

Subchapter Exclusive. — All civil actions must be commenced within the periods prescribed in this subchapter, "except where in special cases a different limitation is prescribed by statute." Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 340, 9 S. E. 294.

Modes of Commencing Action.—There are only two ways by which a civil action may be commenced: 1. By issuing a summons; 2. By submitting a controversy without action; When the former method is resorted to the action is commenced when the summons is issued, and not until that is done. But if the defendant sees proper to do so he may appear without a summons and thereby waive its issuance. McClure v. Fellows, 131 N. C. 509, 42 S. E. 951.

Any form of action or special proceeding in this State must always be commenced by summons or attachment. Morris v. House, 125 N. C. 550, 560, 34 S. E. 712.

What Constitutes Issuing of Summons. — The word "issue," means going out of the hands of the clerk, expressed or implied, to be delivered to the Sheriff for service. If the clerk delivers it to the Sheriff to be served, it is then issued; or if the clerk delivers it to the plaintiff, or some one else, to be delivered by him to the Sheriff, this is an issue of the summons; or, as is often the case, if the summons is filled out by the attorney of plaintiff, and put in the hands of the Sheriff. This is done by the implied consent of the clerk, and constitutes an issuance from the time it is placed in the hands of the Sheriff for service. But a summons simply filled up and lying in the office of an attorney, would not constitute an issuing of the summons. Nor would the fact that a summons was filled up and held by the clerk for a prosecution bond constitute the issuing of a summons, until the bond is given, or at least until it goes out by the consent of the clerk for the purpose of being served on the defendant. Webster v. Sharpe, 116 N. C. 466, 471, 21 S. E. 912; Pettigrew v. McCoin, 165 N. C. 472, 81 S. E. 701.

Notwithstanding the omission of the signature of the clerk, or the omission of the seal, it has been held sufficient where the clerk actually issued it, but where the clerk gave a blank summons to counsel who filed it out without either the seal or the signature of the clerk and had it served without giving the clerk an opportunity to pass upon the sufficiency of the undertaking, the summons was too defective to constitute a commencement. Redmond v. Mullenax, 113 N. C. 505, 511, 18 S. E. 708.

Effect of Defective Summons.—If a paper bear internal evidence of its official origin, and of the purpose for which it was issued, it comes within the definition of original process, it may be amended to conform to the requirements of a perfect summons, and be considered as issued in the first instance. But, unless there is something upon face of the paper which stamps upon it unmistakably an official character, it is not a defective summons, but no summons at all, and cannot be considered the commencement of an action. Redmond v. Mullenax, 113 N. C. 505, 510, 18 S. E. 708.

Issuance Does Not Confer Jurisdiction.—While an action is commenced as to each defendant when the summons is issued against him, jurisdiction of the cause and of parties litigant can be acquired only by a legal service of process, unless there is an acceptance of service or a general appearance, actual or constructive. Hatch v. Alamance Co., 183 N. C. 617, 112 S. E. 529. Bernhardt v. Brown, 118 N. C. 700, 701, 24 S. E. 527, 715; Vick v. Flournoy, 147 N. C. 209, 60 S. E. 978; Warlick v. Reynolds, & Co., 151 N. C. 606, 66 S. E. 657, 21 R. C. L. 1315

§ 405. Run from accrual of cause of action; objection.—Civil actions can only be commenced within the periods prescribed in this chapter, after the cause of action has accrued, except where in special cases a different limitation is prescribed by statute. The objection that the action was not commenced within the time limited can only be taken by answer. (Rev., s. 360; Code, s. 138; C. C. P., s. 17.)

Section not Statute of Presumptions.—Now we have no statute of presumptions. This section prescribes a statute of limitations only. Helm Co. v. Griffin, 112 N. C. 356, 358, 16 S. E. 1023.

This section applies to actions wherein formal pleadings are required to be filed and not to proceedings in the nature of a controversy without action upon an agreed statement of facts for the distribution of funds arising from a foreclosure sale. In re Gibbs, 205 N. C. 312, 171 S. E. 55.

Necessity of Cause of Action or Claim. — If there is no claim or cause of action the statute will not run. This principle is recognized by this section and there is nothing in sec. 438 which conflicts with it. Miller v. Shoaf, 110 N. C. 319, 324, 14 S. E. 800.

Necessity of Pleading Statute. — It is familiar learning that the statute of limitations is not available unless pleaded, Guthrie v. Bacon, 107 N. C. 337, 12 S. E. 204; Randolph v. Randolph, 107 N. C. 506, 12 S. E. 374; and this is required by the statute. Albertson v. Terry, 109 N. C. 8, 10, 13 S. E. 713; King v. Powell, 127 N. C. 10, 11, 37 S. E. 62. But facts will suffice. Pipes v. Lum. Co., 132 N. C. 612, 44 S. E. 114.

It is error for the judge to instruct the jury where the statute of limitations is not pleaded that the plaintiff can not recover. Pegram v. Stoltz, 67 N. C. 144, 146.

Manner of Pleading.—It was unquestionably true under the former system, where an equitable claim appeared upon the face of the bill to be barred by lapse of time, or the statute of limitations, that it might have been taken advantage of by demurrer, and that it need not be specially pleaded, but the statute now requires it to be pleaded, and no distinction is made in this respect between equitable and legal causes of action. Guthrie v. Bacon, 107 N. C. 337, 339, 12 S. E. 204.

The statute of limitations cannot be pleaded in a demurrer, but must be taken advantage of only by answer, by express provision of the statute. In Bacon v. Berry, 85 N. C. 124, 125, the defendant demurred because more than seven years elapsed since the rendition of the judgment when the suit was commenced. The court held that "It was, in fact, a plea of the statute of limitations, which must be set up in the answer, it being an objection that can never be taken by demurrer, citing Green v. North Carolina R. Co., 73 N. C. 524. See also Kahnweiler v. Anderson, 78 N. C. 133; King v. Powell, 127 N. C. 10, 11, 37 S. E. 62. If the facts are admitted, the court may pass on the question of the bar, as in Ewbank v. Lyman, 170 N. C. 505, 87 S. E. 348. It was held in Long v. Bank, 81 N. C. 41, at p. 46, that even if the statutory bar is apparent on the face of the complainant, it could not be pleaded except by answer, and not by demurrer or motion to dismiss. The same was held in Oldham v. Rieger, 145 N. C. 254, at p. 259, 58 S. E. 1091, and the reason why such a thing cannot be done is fully stated, in addition to the positive requirement of the statute as the best of reasons, and a demurrer alleging that time had elapsed was in that case characterized as a "speaking demurrer." Nor could the bar of the statute be raised by a motion to dismiss. Oldham v. Rieger, supra.; Moody v. Wike, 170 N. C. 541, 543, 87 S. E. 350.

Under this section limitation on foreclosure of tax sale certificate cannot be taken advantage of by demurrer. Logan v. Griffith, 205 N. C. 580, 172 S. E. 348.

Application to Possessory Titles. — The rule does not apply to possessory titles, which are more in the nature of presumptions than strict limitations. Commonwealth Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Edwards, 124 N. C. 116, 32 S. E. 404.

Accrual of Cause Illustrated. — The statute of limitations where a party dies pending action begins to run from the date of the appointment of the administrator, and the plea of the statute must be set up in the answer. Lynn v. Lowe, 88 N. C. 478.

Where one pays another upon a debt which is uncertain in amount and takes an acknowledgment to a refund if overpaid, the statute does not begin to run against the agreement to refund until after the amount of overpayment is ascertained. Falls v. McKnight, 14 N. C. 421.

The defendant administrator, according to his own admission assuming to act as plaintiff's agent in the collection and application of the rents, cannot plead the Statute of Limitations unless there was a demand and a refusal, and then only from the time thereof. Shuffler v. Turner, 111 N. C. 297, 16 S. E. 417.

A cause of action against the guarantor on a note accrues upon the maturity of the note and the failure of the maker to pay same according to its tenor. Hall v. Hood, 208 N. C. 59, 179 S. E. 27.

Where a municipal corporation constructs a sewer system which empties quantities of raw sewage and other obnoxious matter in a stream, which matter is periodically washed upon contiguous lands by freshets, in an action against the city by the owner of the land, all damages to the land based on trespass occurring prior to three years before the institution of the action are barred by the three-year statute of limitations under this section and section 441(3). Lightner v. Raleigh, 206 N. C. 496, 174 S. E. 272.

Cited in McNeill v. Suggs, 199 N. C. 477, 480, 154 S. E. 729.

§ 406. Deemed pleaded by insane party. — On the trial of any action or special proceeding to which an insane person is a party, such insane person is deemed to have pleaded specially any defense, and shall on trial have the benefit of any defense, whether pleaded or not, that might have been made for him by his guardian or attorney under the provisions of this chapter. The court, at any time before the action or proceeding is finally disposed of, may order the bringing in, by proper notice, of one or more of the near relatives or friends of the insane person, and may make such other order as it deems necessary for his proper defense. (Rev., s. 361; 1889, c. 89, s. 2.)

Applicable Against State Instructions. — The superintendent of the State Hospital cannot recover compensation against guardian of insane person for the maintenance of his ward for more than three years preceding the bringing of the action. State Hospital v. Fountain, 129 N. C. 90, 39 S. E. 734.

Hearing of Family. — Conceding that this power is to be exercised within the discretion of the judge, see

Farmers, etc., Bank v. Duke, 187 N. C. 386, 392, 122 S. E. 1. If there was ever a time when the family of an insane person ought to be heard, it would seem that a petition for the appointment of a receiver for an insane person confined in the state asylum is one. In re Hybart, 119 N. C. 359, 366, 25 S. E. 963.

§ 407. Disabilities.—A person entitled to commence an action, except for a penalty or forfeiture, or against a sheriff or other officer for an escape, who is at the time the cause of action accrued either—

Cross Reference.—As to insanity permitting the commencing of suit after expiration of statute of limitations see § 443 and the note thereto.

Editor's Note. — In 1899 the legislature struck the provisions which made coverture a disability on par with the others enumerated in this section. See Weathers v. Borders, 124 N. C. 610, 617, 32 S. E. 881; Berry v. Ritter Lumber Co., 141 N. C. 386, 54 S. E. 278.

But the statute provided that the time elapsing before its passage can not be counted against a married woman in actions of ejectment, and in other actions it should not apply to actions pending at its passage Lafferty v. Young, 125 N. C. 296, 297, 300, 34 S. E. 444; Swift v. Dixon, 131 N. C. 42, 42 S. E. 458.

1. Within the age of twenty-one years; or

2. Insane; or

Applicable to Idiot. — The statute of limitations does not run against an idiot by reason of the excepting clause in this section. Outland v. Outland, 118 N. C. 138, 23 S. E. 972.

3. Imprisoned on a criminal charge, or in execution under sentence for a criminal offense;

Former Law Unchanged. — There is nothing in this section which changes the law as it formerly existed. Frederick v. Williams, 103 N. C. 189, 9 S. E. 298.

Section Relates to True Title. — Adverse possession relates only to the true title, and the exemptions in the statute as to those under disability can apply only to one having by virtue of his title a right of entry or of action. Berry v. Ritter Lumber Co., 141 N. C. 386, 54 S. E. 278.

Effect of Defects of Other Sections. — The criticism to which section 428 may be subjected in misciting other intended sections cannot affect the application of this section to the previously limited actions for real property, to which these are expressly made subject. Clayton v. Rose, 87 N. C. 106, 111.

Three Year Period Enforced. — In case of infancy, even after the expiration of the time of the limitation, an action may be brought within three years after full age. Campbell v. Crater, 95 N. C. 156, 162; and if not brought within that time the action is barred. Clendenin v. Clendenin, 181 N. C. 465, 472, 107 S. E. 458. Dissenting Opinion.

Seven years' adverse possession under color, is no bar to an action of ejectment, where the person entitled to commence the same is an infant at the time the title to the land descended to him, and sues within three years next after full age. Clayton v. Rose, 87 N. C. 106.

If land is held adversely to an insane person for such length of time as would bar his recovery if sane, such insane person, or those claiming under him, must commence an action within three years after the disability of insanity is removed, else their rights to recover will be barred. Warlick v. Plonk, 103 N. C. 81, 9 S. E. 190.

Effect of Disability Continuing Through Life. — If the disability continued during life, and for a period thereafter sufficient to complete the prescribed time of seven years, the title would be perfected in the occupant, subordinate only to a right in the heir to sue for the recovery of the land for the space of three years next after his death. The running of the statute against the action and to consummate the title would be concurrent after the decease of the grantor. Ellington v. Ellington, 103 N. C. 54, 57, 9 S. E. 208.

Effect of Guardian Having Right to Sue. — Culp v. Lee, 109 N. C. 675, 678, 14 S. E. 74, has no application to actions for the recovery of realty when the legal title is in the person under disability. The court held that the distributees having had a general guardian, the executor, having been exposed to an action by him for the full period prescribed by the statute, was protected by the lapse of time. Cross v. Craven, 120 N. C. 331, 332, 333, 26 S. E. 940.

Running of Statute Where No Final Account Filed. — When no final account has been filed, the statute begins to run from the arrival of the ward at age. Self v. Shugart, 135 N. C. 185, 187, 47 S. E. 484.

May bring his action within the times herein limited, after the disability is removed, except in an action for the recovery of real property, or to make an entry or defense founded on the title to real property, or to rents and services out of the same, when he must commence his action, or make his entry, within three years next after the removal of the disability, and at no time thereafter. (Rev., s. 362; Code, ss. 148, 163; C. C. P., ss. 27, 142; 1899, c. 78.)

§ 408. Disability of marriage.—In any action in which the defense of adverse possession is relied upon, the time computed as constituting such adverse possession shall not include any possession had against a feme covert during coverture prior to February thirteenth, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine. (Rev., s. 363; 1899, c. 78, ss. 2, 3.)

Purpose of Section. — This section is a part of the major stroke of the law to free the married woman from the merged identity fiction which deprived her of a legal existence. Other sections are 454 and 2606. See 2 N. C. Law Rev. 181.

Coverture Not Defense Since 1899.—Under the provisions of this section, and sections 454, 2606 et seq., passed in pursuance of Article X, section 6, of our State Constitution, husband and wife are authorized to contract and deal with their separate property, subject to specific exceptions as if they were unmarried. Roberts v. Roberts, 185 N. C. 566, 118 S. E. 9.

Since the passage of this section if the feme covert's right of entry and title were defeated by defendants' adverse possession for seven years under color before the action was commenced, the plea of coverture will not avail her. Bond v. Beverly, 152 N. C. 56, 57, 67 S. E. 55.

Since the passage of this section coverture is not a defense in bar of the running of the statute of limitations. Carter v. Reaves, 167 N. C. 131, 83 S. E. 248.

In a suit to cancel deeds because of the mental incapacity of the grantor to make them, and under which the defendant in possession claims title by adverse possession under color, the coverture of the plaintiff will not avail her to repel the bar of the statute of limitations, which has run in favor of the defendant's title. Butler v. Bell, 181 N. C. 85, 106 S. E. 217.

Section Contemplates True Owner. — A possession cannot well be adverse, within the meaning of this section, to any one who has no title or right of entry or action. It cannot be adverse to one who is a mere stranger to the true title and who has no claim whatever to the land, for he has no right to be barred by such a possession. It has sole reference to the owner of the title. Berry v. Ritter Lumber Co., 141 N. C. 386, 395, 54 S. E. 278.

Effect of Statute upon Proof. — Until twenty years had elapsed since the passage of this section, one claiming title by adverse possession had the burden of proving that the statute began to run prior to the disability of coverture. Holmes v. Carr, 172 N. C. 213, 90 S. E. 152.

§ 409. Cumulative disabilities.—When two or more disabilities coexist at the time the right of action accrues, or when one disability supervenes an existing one, the limitation does not attach until they all are removed. (Rev., s. 364; Code, ss. 149, 170; C. C. P., ss. 28, 49.)

Editor's Note. — By the phraseology of this section, it is evident that cumulative disabilities will only prevent the running of a statute before it has started. Any number, after the statute has once begun to run, will not suspend or arrest the operation. See Holmes v. Carr, 172 N. C. 213, 90 S. E. 152. See also, sec. 410.

Operation of Section Illustrated. — The disability of coverture supervened upon that of infancy, and the statute of limitations is suspended in language too explicit to be capable of any other construction. Clayton v. Rose, 87 N. C. 106; Cross v. Craven, 120 N. C. 331, 332, 26 S. E. 940. Epps v. Flowers, 101 N. C. 158, 160, 7 S. E. 680; Lafferty v. Young, 125 N. C. 296, 297, 300, 34 S. E. 444.

This section can have no application when there is a clear running of the Statute for the period fixed after the disability is removed, as when an infant attains his majority. Campbell v. Crater, 95 N. C. 156, 162.

Significance of Length of Time of Disabilities. — The length of time elapsing during cumulative disabilities so long as the disabilities are continuous is immaterial. Epps v. Flowers, 101 N. C. 158, 161, 7 S. E. 680.

§ 410. Disability must exist when right of action accrues.—No person may avail himself of a disability, unless it existed when his rights of action accrued. (Rev., s. 365; Code, s. 169; C. C. P., s. 48.)

Running of Statute Cannot Be Stopped. — If the statute of limitations commences to run nothing stops it. When it begins to run against the ancestor, it continues to run against the heir, although the heir is under disability when the descent is cast. Frederick v. Williams, 103 N. C. 189, 9 S. E. 298. See Clendenin v. Clendenin, 181 N. C. 465, 472, 107 S. E. 458; Asbury v. Fair, 111 N. C. 251, 16 S. E. 467.

Principle Applied. — The principle of this section applies where the defendant is out of the state but left after the cause of action accrued. Blue v. Gilchrist, 84 N. C. 239, 241. It applies also in the case of insanity, see note under section 406; and applies formerly in the case of coverture, see note under sec. 408.

§ 411. Defendant out of state; when action begun or judgment enforced.—If, when the cause of action accrues or judgment is rendered or docketed against a person, he is out of the state, action may be commenced, or judgment enforced, within the times herein limited, after the return of the person into this state, and if, after such cause of action accrues or judgment is rendered or docketed, such person departs from and resides out of this state, or remains continuously absent therefrom for one year or more, the time of his absence shall not be a part of the time limited for the commencement of the action, or the enforcement of the judgment. (Rev., s. 366; Code, s. 162; C. C. P., s. 41; 1881, c. 258, ss. 1, 2.)

Retroaction Effect. — As a general rule statutes of this character apply to actions pending at the time they take effect provided the actions have not been barred by a provision limitation. See Cox v. Brown, 51 N. C. 100.

The general purpose of this section, taken in connection with the statute of limitation, is to give the person having an accrued cause of action, or judgment, as prescribed, opportunity substantially during the whole of the lapse of the time against him to bring his action or enforce his judgment. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. 34, 37, 38, 2 S. E. 347.

Nonsuit in Absence of Supporting Evidence.—Where plaintiff resists under this section defendant's plea of the statute of limitations solely on the ground that defendant left the state prior to three years from the accrual of the cause of action, and defendant denies the allegation of nonresidence, in the absence of evidence by plaintiff in support of the allegation of nonresidence, defendant's motion as of nonsuit is properly allowed. Savage v. Currin, 207 N. C. 222, 176 S. E. 569. See § 415 and note thereto.

The words "any person," are employed to designate the person to be affected and embraced by the section, are very comprehensive, and there is nothing in its scope or purpose that excludes nonresidents. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. 34, 37, 38, 2 S. E. 347.

"The times herein limited" means, and must mean, the time prescribed elsewhere in the Code, or in statutes amending or passed as substitutes therefor. The plain intent of the statute is to put nonresidents on the same footing as residents, and not to protect them from an action unless they have been for two years exposed to service of summons. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. 34, 2 S. E. 347; Williams v. Iron Belt Bldg., etc., Ass'n., 131 N. C. 267, 269, 42 S. E. 607.

The "return to the State," specified by this section, as necessary to put the statute in motion, is a return with a view to residence—not a casual appearance in the state, passing through it, or even making a visit here. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 522, 24 S. E. 210.

Sufficiency of Return to Start Statute. — Where the debtor was a nonresident of this State, but was here on visit of a day or two each year, such visits would not have effect of putting the statute in motion. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. 34, 2 S. E. 347.

This section, as necessary to put the statute of limitations in motion, is a return, animo manenda—not a casual appearance in the state, passing through it, or even making a visit here. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 24 S. E. 210.

Same—Applicable Where Absence Started Before Accrual. —Where a debtor is out of the State at the time the cause of action accrues, the statute of limitation does not begin to run until he returns to this State for the purpose of making it his residence. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. 34, 2 S. E. 347.

When Running Suspended by Action. — It will be observed that this statutory provision prescribes and embraces three distinct cases in which the statute of limitation will not operate as a bar because of the continuous lapse of the time prescribed next after the cause of action accrued, or judgment was rendered or docketed; (1) Where the debtor was out of the state at the time the cause of action accrued or the judgment was rendered or docketed. This case may apply alike to a resident or nonresident debtor. In it time does not begin to lapse in his favor until he shall return to the State—not simply on a hasty visit of a day or two, at long intervals, but for the purpose of residence. And if, after such returns, he shall depart from the state for the purpose of residence out of it, or to sojourn out of it for a year or more, the time of his absence will not be allowed in his favor; it will be subtracted from the time that would have been so allowed if he had remained in the State. (2) When, after the cause of action accrued or the judgment was rendered or docketed, the debtor-resident or nonresident of the State—departed from and resided out of it, "the time of his absence shall not be deemed or taken as any part of the time limited for the commencement of such action or the enforcement of such judgment." (3) When, after the cause of action has accrued or judgment has been rendered or docketed, the debtor shall depart from the State, "and remain continually absent for the space of one year or more," the time of his absence shall not be allowed in his favor. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. 34, 36, 2 S. E. 347; Arthur v. Henry, 157 N. C. 393, 395, 73 S. E. 206.

The statute of limitations is suspended in the following cases: (1) When the person against whom a cause of action exists becomes a nonresident, whether he remain continuously absent for a year or occassionally visits the state: (2) when such person retains his residence, but is absent from the state continuously for one year or more. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 24 S. E. 210.

When a person becomes a nonresident of the state it is not necessary that he should remain continuously out of the state one year to stop the running of the statute, nor would occasional visits to the state put the statute in motion. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 521, 24 S. E. 210.

And this without exception of instances where a proceeding in rem will lie against property situated here. No presumption of payment of the debt will be raised within the period allowed for the commencement of the action. Love v. West, 169 N. C. 13, 84 S. E. 1048. See concurring opinion.

When Limitation Begins to Operate against Foreign Corporation. — An action against a foreign corporation to recover usury may be begun within two years from the time there is someone in the State upon whom service can be made. Williams v. Iron Belt Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 131 N. C. 267, 42 S. E. 607.

When Judgment in Personam Not Rendered. — Where a nonresident defendant of this state has had no personal service of summons made upon him and has not accepted service, and has no property herein subject to attachment or levy, a judgment upon publication of service under the provisions of this section, may not be rendered against him in personam, in an action for debt; and where so rendered it will be set aside. Bridger v. Mitchell, 187 N. C. 374, 121 S. E. 661.

Section Not Applicable after Statute Has Run. — This section is not applicable after the statute of limitation has run. Southern R. Co., v. Mayes, 113 Fed. 84.

Applicability to Actions in Rem. — This section is applicable to actions in rem as well as actions in personam, no exception being made. Love v. West, 169 N. C. 13, 84 S. E. 1048.

Applicability to Suits against Bail. — Proceedings against bail, in civil actions, are barred, unless commenced within three years after judgment against the principal, notwithstanding the principal may have left the state in the meanwhile. Albemarle Steam Nav. Co. v. Williams, 111 N. C. 35, 15 S. E. 877.

Applicable to Enforce Resulting Trust.—Where a cause of action to enforce a resulting trust has existed for more than ten years, but subtracting the length of time the trustee thereof had been out of the state, the elapsed time is less than ten years, then, under this section, the cause of action is not barred by the ten-year statute. Miller v. Miller, 200 N. C. 458, 157 S. E. 604.

Affect of Non-resident's Ownership of Property in State.—The fact that a non-resident debtor has property within the State will not affect this Section, which suspends the operation of the Statute of Limitations for the period during which the person, against whom the demand is made, is out of the State. Grist v. Williams, 111 N. C. 53, 15 S. E. 889.

This section applies notwithstanding the fact that defendant has property within the State and an agent therein duly appointed, upon whom process could have been served. Volivar v. Richmond Cedar Works, 152 N. C. 34, 67 S. E. 42.

Non-Resident Foreign Corporations.—The statute of limitations do not apply to foreign non-resident corporations. Grist v. Williams, 111 N. C. 53, 15 S. E. 889; Alpha Mills v. Watertown Steam Engine Co., 116 N. C. 797, 804, 21 S. E. 917.

But it does apply to non-resident corporations as well as individuals. Alpha Mills v. Watertown Steam Engine Co., 116 N. C. 797, 21 S. E. 917; Grist v. Williams, 111 N. C. 53, 15 S. E. 889; Green v. Hartford Life Ins. Co., 139 N. C. 309, 310, 51 S. E. 887; Volivar v. Richmond Cedar Works, 152 N. C. 34, 35, 67 S. E. 42.

Effect of Corporation Service Statutes. — Section 6414, 6415, which authorize service of summons against non-resident insurance companies upon the Commissioner of Insurance, in no way abrogates or affects the suspension of the running of the statutes of limitation in such cases. That service can thus be had upon a non-resident corporation may be a reason why the General Assembly should amend this section, so as to set the statute running in such cases, but it has not done so and the courts can not. Green v. Hartford Life Ins. Co., 139 N. C. 309, 310, 51 S. E. 887.

Applicable to Operation of Sec. 442.—The existence of the conditions enumerated in this section will suspend the operation of sec. 442. Williams v. Iron Belt Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 131 N. C. 267, 269, 42 S. E. 607.

§ 412. Death before limitation expires; action by or against executor.—If a person entitled to bring an action dies before the expiration of the time limited for the commencement thereof, and the cause of action survives, an action may be commenced by his representatives after the expiration of that time, and within one year from his death. If a person against whom an action may be brought dies before the expiration of the time limited for the commencement thereof, and the cause of action survives, an action may be commenced against his personal representative after the expiration of that time, and within one year after the issuing of letters testamentary or of administration, provided the letters are issued within ten years of the death of such person. If the claim upon which the cause of action is based is filed with the personal representative within the time above specified, and admitted by him, it is not necessary to bring an action upon such claim to prevent the bar, but no action shall be brought against the personal representative upon such claim after his final settlement. (Rev., s. 367; Code, s. 164; C. C. P., s. 43; 1881, c. 80.)

I. General Consideration.
II. Death of Creditor.
III. Death of the Debtor.
IV. Filing Claim.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Editor's Note.—This section was new with the C. C. P. It has remained unchanged since its insertion except that the last sentence was added by the act of 1881, and the proviso at the end of the second sentence by the act of 1919.

The section has been held to be an enabling and not a disabling statute, and to apply only in those cases where, but for its interposition, a claim would be barred, Benson v. Bennett, 112 N. C. 505, 17 S. E. 432; Redmond v. Pippen, 113 N. C. 90, 93, 18 S. E. 50; Humphrey v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 131 S. E. 383; Geitner v. Jones, 176 N. C. 542, 97 S. E. 494, intending to enlarge and extend the time within which the action may be brought, and not to suspend the operation of the statute, which continues to run. Irvin v. Harris, 184 N. C. 547, 114 S. E. 818. It means that if at the time of the death of the debtor the claim is not barred, action may be brought within one year after the grant of letters to the personal representative in those cases where, in regular course, but for the interposition of this section, the claim would become barred in less time than one year from such grant. It was not intended to be a restriction on the statute of limitation so that a claim should become barred by the lapse of a year from the grant of letters, where, in regular course but for this section, it would not be barred till a later date. The object in view is that when the cause of action survives and is not barred at the time of the death, there shall be at least one year after the death of the creditor, or one year after the grant of letters of administration to the personal representative of the debtor, before action is barred. This is conclusively shown by the words of the section, that if the party die defore the claim is barred action may be brought "After the expiration of the time limited, and within one year." Benson v. Bennett, 112 N. C. 505, 507, 17 S. E. 432; Coppersmith v. Wilson, 107 N. C. 31, 12 S. E. 77.

Formerly there was no such extension of time to prevent the bar of the statutes from becoming complete as is provided in this section. Hawkins v. Savage, 75 N. C. 133; Bruner v. Threadgill, 88 N. C. 361. Patterson v. Wadsworth, 89 N. C. 407, 409.

Exception to General Rule.—This section is an exception to the general rule that when the statutes of limitation once begin to run nothing can stop them. Matthews v. Peterson, 150 N. C. 134, 135, 63 S. E. 721. Winslow v. Benton, 130 N. C. 58, 59, 40 S. E. 840.

However, it should be observed that it has no application where the bar attached before death. Grady v. Wilson, 115 N. C. 344, 347, 20 S. E. 518; Parker v. Hardin, 121 N. C. 57, 58, 28 S. E. 20; Copeland v. Collins, 122 N. C. 619, 30 S. E. 315; Winslow v. Benton, 130 N. C. 58, 59, 40 S. E. 840; Vaughan v. Hines, 87 N. C. 445, 450; Daniel v. Laughlin, 87 N. C. 433, 437; Humphrey v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 131 S. E. 383.

And for that reason will not constitute an exception to the rule where such bar had attached at death. Nor will the section apply where the action is not barred within the year fixed by the section.

To What Limitations Applicable.—The section only applies to the limitations prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure. Hall v. Gibbs, 87 N. C. 4, 5, 6.

It is the only provision which will defeat the operation of sec. 438(3). Syme v. Badger, 96 N. C. 197, 2 S. E. 61.

When it is pertinent to the subject it must be taken in connection with section 437. Redmond v. Pippen, 113 N. C. 90, 92, 18 S. E. 50.

Applicability in Action to Subject Lands.—The heirs at law can successfully plead the statute of limitations against the administrator seeking to subject their lands to the payment of deceased's debt as fully as he can against a creditor. Matthews v. Peterson, 150 N. C. 134, 63 S. E. 721.

A personal representative who seeks to subject descended or devised lands to make assets for the payment of debts represents the creditors of the estate and in that capacity is entitled to any benefit or exception which the creditors might have in prosecuting the action against him including the benefits of this section. Smith v. Brown, 101 N. C. 347, 7 S. E. 890.

When Section Begins to Run Against Insane.—This section, commences to run against an insane claimant only from the time of the qualification of his guardian. Irvin v. Harris, 182 N. C. 647, 109 S. E. 867.

Effect of Order to Odd Parties in Supreme Court. — See Gertner v. Jones, 176 N. C. 542, 97 S. E. 494.

II. DEATH OF CREDITOR.

Brought within Year of Creditor's Death.—Actions upon claims in favor of an estate of a decedent must be brought within one year of his death, without regard to when administrator was appointed. Coppersmith v. Wilson, 107 N. C. 31, 12 S. E. 77.

Construction upon Section.—Although it was held that a statute does not run against a party not in existence or under a disability or against such a person, it may be noted that Brawley v. Brawley, 109 N. C. 524, 14 S. E. 73, does not change the construction placed upon this section, that an action must be brought by a representative of a creditor within one year after his death, and against the representative of a debtor in one year after taking out letters of administration, when it would otherwise have become barred. Burgwyn v. Daniel, 115 N. C. 115, 119, 20 S. E. 462.

Time is counted from the death of the decedent, in respect to claims in favor of the estate, because the law does not encourage remission in those entitled to administrations, and this notwithstanding what is said in Dunlap v. Hendley, 92 N. C. 115. Coppersmith v. Wilson, 107 N. C. 31, 12 S. E. 77.

Same—Dunlap v. Hendley.—It is said in Dunlap v. Hendley, 92 N. C. 115, 117 that where the creditor died before the statute ran and the administrator brought action within the year after the death of the creditor but after the statute had run, it is questionable whether this section could help the case because the administrator should bring the action within the period of the statute of limitation and while it is running. This position is clearly contradictory to the terms of the section and it was held in Coppersmith v. Wilson, 107 N. C. 31, 12 S. E. 77, that notwithstanding the language used the action could be brought any time within the year.

When Time Extended.—This section does not extend the life of a judgment beyond the ten years where the judgment creditor dies more than a year before the expiration of the ten-year limitation. Hughes v. Boone, 114 N. C. 54, 19 S. E. 63.

The death of the judgment creditor did not suspend the statute. The effect was only to give one year's time from the death of the creditor to the personal representative to bring action, if otherwise it would have been barred by the lapse of ten years before such year had expired. Benson v. Bennett, 112 N. C. 505, 17 S. E. 432. But there was more than one year after the death of the creditor before the ten years expired, and therefore this section has no place. Hughes v. Boone, 114 N. C. 54, 56, 19 S. E. 63.

Contract as to Limit Permissible.—A reasonable stipulation in a contract of carriage with a railroad company for an interstate shipment of goods, as to the time wherein suit may be brought for loss or damage, is a part of the contract between the parties, and being made without exception, is not suspended by this section. Thigpen v. East Carolina Railway, 184 N. C. 33, 113 S. E. 562.

Principle Illustrated.—Where the statute had not run at the intestate's death, and the action was brought within one year after the issuing of the letters of administration, the action was not barred under this section notwithstanding that the ordinary statutory period had elapsed between the accrual and the bringing of the action. Robertson v. Dunn, 87 N. C. 191; Mauney v. Holmes, 87 N. C. 428.

III. DEATH OF THE DEBTOR.

Section Mandatory.—Actions upon claims against the estate of a decedent must be brought in one year after administration. Coppersmith v. Wilson, 107 N. C. 31, 12 S. E. 77; Winslow v. Benton, 130 N. C. 58, 40 S. E. 840.

Running Arrested against Unrepresented Estate—Where Proceeding on Representative's Bond.—Brawley v. Brawley, 109 N. C. 524, 14 S. E. 73, held that the statute of limitation did not run to bar an action by an administrator de bonis non against the representative and bondsmen of a deceased administrator while there was no administrator de bonis non—no one in esse who could bring such action. This would not apply to an action brought by the creditor, or a distributee, or legatee, directly against the representative of the deceased executor, administrator or guardian and their sureties for breach of the bond. Benson v. Bennett, 112 N. C. 505, 17 S. E. 432; Coppersmith v. Wilson, 107 N. C. 31, 12 S. E. 77; Burgwyn v. Daniel, 115 N. C. 115, 119, 20 S. E. 462.

Flemming v. Flemming Qualified.—It is said in Flemming v. Flemming, 85 N. C. 127, 128, to be well settled that the death of the debtor after the cause of action has accrued will not suspend the running of the statute to the completion of the prescribed time. This was intended to be the statement of a general principle, resting upon numerous adjudications, and without reference to the modifications made by the words of the act recited, and to which attention was not at the moment of penning the sentence directed, and certainly with no intent to disregard or ignore the express statutory mandate. Mauney v. Holmes, 87 N. C. 428, 433.

Applicable to Partners.—Notwithstanding that a deceased partner's debt to his firm would have otherwise been barred by statute since his death, yet where no administrator has been appointed, the debt will not be barred until after one year from the appointment of an administrator unless more than ten years has elapsed since his death. Irvin v. Harris, 182 N. C. 656, 109 S. E. 871.

Principle Illustrated.—It was held that a claim reduced to judgment is barred by the ten years statute of limitation unless the claim was admitted by administrator, or action was brought upon it, in one year after the expiration of the ten years on the appointment of administrator as prescribed by statute. Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 547, 10 S. E. 701.

Where judgment is obtained against an administrator who dies five years later and there was no further administration until thirteen years later when steps were taken to collect the judgment, is was held that the ten year proviso applied to bar an enforcement. Fisher v. Ballard, 164 N. C. 326, 80 S. E. 239.

Where the period of limitation for a judgment was ten years, and some two months before it ran the judgment creditor died and no representative qualified until two and a half years later but in the meantime the debtor had died and his representative was not qualified until two years and eleven months after the death of the creditor, and the action was brought four months after the latter representative's qualification, by virtue of this section it was not barred. Dunlap v. Hendley, 92 N. C. 115.

Proviso—Issuing within Ten Years.—The proviso is a wise restriction to prevent the inconvenience and often the injustice of collecting stale claims. Matthews v. Peterson, 150 N. C. 134, 136, 63 S. E. 721.

When the letters of administration have been issued before the operative effect of the proviso the provision that such should have been issued within ten years from the death of the intestate is inapplicable. Matthews v. Peterson, 150 N. C. 134, 63 S. E. 721.

There is no statutory provision which prevents the expiration of a judgment lien in case of death and administration similar to that of the proviso. Matthews v. Peterson, 150 N. C. 134, 135, 63 S. E. 721.

IV. FILING CLAIM.

Not Retroactive.—The last sentence of this section applied only to those claims that were filed at the time of the passage of the act and were not then barred. It could not apply to those barred when the act became effective. Whitehurst v. Dey, 90 N. C. 542.

Purpose of Filing Claim.—The purpose of the creditor then is, by filing his claim with the abministrator, to avoid the running of the Statute against his debt, and to fix the debt by the admission of the personal representative—the very reverse of presenting the claim for instant payment. Stonestreet v. Frost, 123 N. C. 640, 650, 31 S. E. 836. From dissenting opinion.

The word "filed" has reference, certainly, to the old custom of stringing on a line or wire papers of value for past or future usefulness, or maybe both. The same end is subserved by tying together or bundling papers and labeling them or cataloguing them on rolls or lists for future use. Stonestreet v. Frost, 123 N. C. 640, 649, 31 S. E. 836. From dissenting opinion.

The filing of claim is intended to be of advantage to creditors who do not receive or who do not expect to receive payment of their debts on presentation, in enabling them to leave with the personal representative a memorandum of their claims to save the trouble and expense of bringing suit, and to prevent the bar of the Statute of Limitations. And the act of the creditor in filing the claim is an admission on his part that he does not expect the immediate payment of the debt, but that he wishes the claim entered, "filed," somewhere, in some way, by the personal representatives. Stonestreet v. Frost, 123 N. C. 640, 650, 31 S. E. 336. From dissenting opinion.

Notice to the executor for information is the prime purpose of the statute in requiring the claim to be filed and seems to be all that is necessary for his purpose, until he is ready to make a final settlement. Hinton v. Pritchard, 126 N. C. 8, 10, 35 S. E. 127.

The term "filed" signifies that the claim is to be exhibited, for inspection, to the personal representative, for his admission or rejection. It is not required of the creditor to part with the possession of the evidence of his claim. Hinton v. Pritchard, 126 N. C. 8, 35 S. E. 127.

Mere notice to an executor of a claim against the decedent's estate, received without comment or approval by the executor, is not a filing of the claim within the meaning of this section, but where, after such notice, the executor carries the item as a debt on the books of the estate and reports it to the clerk as a debt owed by the estate, the executor's approval will be inferred, and the statute will not operate as a bar. Horne Corp. v. Creech, 205 N. C. 55, 169 S. E. 794.

Section Illustrated.—The exhibition by the Sheriff within one year of the date of adminstration to the administrator, of an execution issued in favor of the county against the intestate, which the administrator admits is correct and does not pay for want of assets—is a sufficient "filing" required by this section, so as to render unnecessary an action to prevent the bar of Statute of Limitations. Stonestreet v. Frost, 123 N. C. 640, 642, 31 S. E. 836. See dissenting opinion.

In Stonestreet v. Frost, 123 N. C. 640, at pages 646 and 647, 31 S. E. 836, it is said that it is a sufficient "filing," when the claim is presented within the proper time to the personal representative and he acknowledges the validity of the debt. "The creditor can never compel the administrator to 'string' the claim. He has done his part when he has presented it to the administrator with sufficient certainty as to the nature and amount of the debt." Justice v. Gallert, 131 N. C. 393, 394, 42 S. E. 850.

Sufficiency of Presentation. — Where the plaintiff never presents his claim, or any proof of it, but simply announces its amount, without response from the representative, the running of the statute is not arrested under this section. Flemming v. Flemming, 85 N. C. 127, 131.

Sufficiency of Admission. — A partial payment by the personal representative, without objection, is an unequivocal act from which an admission of the justice of the claim may be inferred. Hinton v. Pritchard, 126 N. C. 8, 35 S. E. 127.

When the personal representative does not deny the correctness of the claim filed with him in proper time, but filed his petition to make assets to pay it, this is strong proof that he admitted it. Woodlief v. Bragg, 108 N. C. 571, 13 S. E. 211.

Same — Silence. — If a claim is presented in the form of a bill of particulars, and the representative refuses an explicit admission of denial, the plaintiff has the right to deem its acceptance without remark as arresting the running of the statute. Flemming v. Flemming, 85 N. C. 127, 131.

Effect of Admission. — The admission of the validity of a claim by an administrator, where presented within proper time, dispenses with any formal proof thereof. Justice v. Gallert, 131 N. C. 393, 42 S. E. 850.

Claims not barred presented to the administrator in one year after letters granted and admitted by him need not be put in suit to prevent the bar of the statute pending the administration, nor can the heirs plead the statute as to them. Turner v. Shuffler, 108 N. C. 642, 13 S. E. 243.

A distinct acknowledgment and promise made by an executor or administrator and based upon a sufficient consideration imposes a personal liability upon the representative, but does not take away the protection afforded by lapse of time to the estate represented. Fall v. Sherrill, 19 N. C. 371; Oates v. Lilly, 84 N C. 643; Flemming v. Flemming, 85 N. C. 127, 128.

Application to Heirs. — This section is designed to protect both the representative and the heir and there is nothing leaving the heirs at law to be protected by the lapse of time. Woodlief v. Bragg, 108 N. C. 571, 572, 13 S. E. 211.

The personal representative represents the deceased, and his admission of the correctness of a claim, unless impeachment for fraud, will estop the heirs. Woodlief v. Bragg, 108 N. C. 571, 13 S. E. 211.

Since the amendment of 1881 the heir is as much barred by the filing of the claim within the prescribed time and its admission by the personal representative, as he would be by the latter submitting to a judgment. It will be noted that the claim in controversy in Bevers v. Park, 88 N. C. 456, was a cause of action accrued prior to the Code of Civil Procedure and this section did not apply to it at all. Hall v. Gibbs, 87 N. C. 4; Woodlief v. Bragg, 108 N. C. 571, 573, 13 S. E. 211.

Suit by Administrator Sufficient Notice of His Claim.— Harris v. Davenport, 132 N. C. 697, 44 S. E. 406.

Not Applicable to Judgments. — Where a judgment had been obtained on a claim, the amendatory act of 1881 can have no application. Woodlief v. Bragg, 108 N. C. 571, 573, 13 S. E. 211.

§ 413. Time of stay by injunction or prohibition. —When the commencement of an action is stayed by injunction or statutory prohibition, the time of the continuance of the injunction or prohibition is not part of the time limited for the commencement of the action. (Rev., s. 368; Code, s. 167; C. C. P., s. 46.)

Nature of Operation upon Statute. — This section as its terms clearly impart, affects, and is intended to affect only a litigant's right to prosecute an action in court as fixed by the statute, and does not as a rule operate to extend or prolong a time limit or a property right as determined by the contract of the parties. Gatewood v. Fry, 183 N. C. 415, 418, 111 S. E. 712.

Effect of Irregularity in Granting. — Mere irregularity in the granting of an injunction will not render it a nullity, so as to prevent the suspension of the statute of limitations, under this section, during the pendency of the injunction. Walton v. Pearson, 85 N. C. 34, 35.

§ 414. Time during controversy on probate of will or granting letters.—In reckoning time when pleaded at bar to actions, that period shall not be counted which elapses during any controversy on the probate of a will or granting letters of administration, unless there is an administrator appointed during the pendency of the action, and it is provided that an action may be brought against him. (Rev., s. 369; Code, s. 168; C. C. P., s. 47)

Persons Protected. — This section applies only to protect creditors, there being no one for them to sue. Stelges v. Simmons, 170 N. C. 42, 86 S. E. 801.

It does not apply to the heirs at law or devisees to nullify the protection given every one in adverse possession of realty for seven years under color of title, nor to invalidate a judgment rendered against the heir or devisee that the title to the property is in another. Stelges v. Simmons, 170 N. C. 42, 46, 86 S. E. 801.

Effect Where No Representative during Contest. — This section applies only where there is no administrator or collector during the contest. Hughes v. Boone, 114 N. C. 54, 19 S. E. 63.

Cited In. — Frederick v. Williams, 103 N. C. 189, 191, 9 S. E. 298; Ex parte Smith, 134 N. C. 495, 47 S. E. 16.

§ 415. New action within one year after nonsuit, etc.—If an action is commenced within the time prescribed therefor, and the plaintiff is nonsuited, or a judgment therein reversed on appeal, or is arrested, the plaintiff or, if he dies and the cause of action survives, his heir or representative may commence a new action within one year after such nonsuit, reversal, or arrest of judgment, if the costs in the original action have been paid by the plaintiff before the commencement of the new suit, unless the original suit was brought in forma pauperis. (Rev., s. 370; Code, ss. 142, 166; C. C. P., ss. 21, 45; 1915, c. 211, s. 1.)

See note under § 160.

Editor's Notes. — This section was amended in 1915 by adding the condition relating to costs.

This section is mandatory as to the payment of costs prior to the commencement of the record action. Rankin v. Oates, 183 N. C. 517, 112 S. E. 32.

The words "new action," "new suit," and "original suit" indicate a difference in the two actions though the causes may be identical. Cooper v. Crisco, 201 N. C. 739, 161 S. E. 310.

When Section Applies. — This section applies only when the party would otherwise be barred from his right of action from the lapse of time prescribed by the statute of limitations relating to the cause of action. Grimes v. Andrews, 170 N. C. 515, 87 S. E. 341.

It has been held in Bradshaw v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 172 N. C. 632, 90 S. E. 789, that when both suits, as in this case, are brought within the time allowed by the general law, neither the section in question nor the amendment thereto requiring the prepayment of costs, applied for in such case it was not necessary to resort to it, nor could plaintiff be properly considered as proceeding under it, but, under the provisions of the general statute, establishing the time within which these actions should be brought. Summers v. Southern R. Co., 173 N. C. 398, 399, 92 S. E. 160.

Since the claim was not presented within the time limited before the first action was commenced, it is not protected from the operation of the statute after the nonsuit by this section. Royster v. Commissioners, 98 N. C. 148, 152, 3 S. E. 739.

Pendency of Action Suspends Statute. — An action for the recovery of real property, instituted against a tenant in common in adverse possession, suspends the running of the statute of limitations as to the cotenant then out of possession. Locklear v. Bullard, 133 N. C. 260, 45 S. E. 580.

The reason of the law is that the running of the statute should, in the very nature of things, be arrested as soon as the party has asserted his right by action. Locklear v. Bullard, 133 N. C. 260, 264, 45 S. E. 580.

Actions to Which Applicable. — This section has reference only to actions regularly instituted in the regular course of civil procedure, and does not embrace mere motions in an action or a motion for an execution upon a dormant judgment. This appears from the legal meaning of the terms employed and the obvious implication arising upon them, taken together, to express the legislative intent. The leading important words are "an action," "an action commended within the time prescribed therefor," "a judgment therein," "reversed on appeal," or "arrested," "the cause of action survived," "a new action." These words and such phraseology do not apply for the most part to motions and merely incidental proceedings. McIlhenny v. Wilmington Sav., etc., Co., 108 N. C. 311, 313, 12 S. E. 1001.

The cause of action in the first suit may be identical with the cause in the second, but it does not follow that the prosecution bond, the bond of indemnity, or the leave given by the Attorney-General in the first action can avail the defendant in the action last instituted. Cooper v. Crisco, 201 N. C. 739, 161 S. E. 310.

Where a foreign receiver, under the mistake that special permission was necessary for him to sue in the courts of our state, has taken a voluntary nonsuit, and obtains permission to sue in our courts, and brings the identical action again within one year from the nonsuit, if the former action has not been barred by a statute of limitations applicable, the second action is in time if brought within one year from the time of the voluntary nonsuit. Van Kempen v. Latham, 201 N. C. 505, 506, 160 S. E. 759.

Where a proceeding for compensation is instituted before the Industrial Commission, and the proceeding is dismissed, an action thereafter begun in the Superior Court by the widow as administratrix against the employer to recover for the employee's wrongful death will not be considered a continuation of the proceedings before the Industrial Commission so as to relate back to the time of the institution of such proceedings, and the action instituted in the Superior Court is barred if not brought within one year from the employee's death, there being a distinction between dismissal of proceedings under the compensation act and a nonsuit entered in an action instituted in the Superior Court entitling plaintiff to institute a new action within one year. Mathis v. Camp Mfg. Co., 204 N. C. 434, 168 S. E. 515.

Section as Extention of Time. — This section is an extention of time beyond that allowed by the general statutes in the instances as stated, including nonsuit. Summers v. Southern R. Co., 173, N. C. 398, 92 S. E. 160; Caldwell Land, etc., Co. v. Hayes, 157 N. C. 333, 72 S. E. 1078.

The time is extended because the new action is considered as a continuation of the former action, and they must be substantially the same, involving the same parties, the same cause of action, and the same right. Van Kempen v. Latham, 201 N. C. 505, 513, 160 S. E. 759.

Effect of No Cause Stated in First Action. — This section authorizes the commencement of a new action of the same cause of action within one year after reversal of judgment on appeal, though the first complaint was insufficient to state a cause of action. Woodcock v. Bostic, 128 N. C. 243, 38 S. E. 881.

Where the cause of action of the first and second suit are identical this section applies notwithstanding that the first action was dismissed because of a failure to state a cause. Webb v. Hicks, 125 N. C. 201, 202, 34 S. E. 395.

Effect of New Cause of Action. — Where a new cause of action is alleged the original action is no protection as against the statute of limitations. Woodcock v. Bostic, 128 N. C. 243, 248, 38 S. E. 881.

The statutory remedy against defunct corporations must be brought within the prescribed limitation and though an action is brought, but not in the proper manner, against the proper parties, this section will not apply to save the right of action from the statutory bar. VonGlahu v. DeRosset, 81 N. C. 467, 468.

Effect of Agreement Not to Plead Statute.—An agreement in the original action not to plead the statute of limitations does not apply to the new action. Citizens' Sav., etc., Co. v. Warren, 204 N. C. 50, 167 S. E. 494.

Nonsuit Operates as Res Adjudicata Only Where Second Action Is Substantially Identical with First.—In order for a judgment of nonsuit to operate as res adjudicata in a subsequent action brought under the provisions of this section, it is required that the trial court find as a fact that the second suit is based upon substantially identical allegations and evidence as the first, and where the trial court hears no evidence and finds no facts its judgment dismissing the action upon the plea of estoppel by the former judgment is prematurely and inadvertently made. Batson v. City Laundry Co., 206 N. C. 371, 174 S. E. 90.

Burden of Proving Identity of Causes. — In action to recover lands wherein the plaintiff depends upon a nonsuit in a former action to repel the bar of the statute of limitation, it is necessary for him to bring himself within the meaning of the statute and show identity of parties, cause of action, and title, or that he is the "heir at law or representative" of the former plaintiff, the second action being regarded as a continuance of the writ in the first one; and it is insufficient if the plaintiff in the second action was a grantee of the plaintiff in the first one before the latter commenced his action. Quelch v. Futch, 174 N. C. 395, 93 S. E. 899.

Parol Evidence to Prove Nature of Action. — In an action to recover land parol testimony that a prior action brought without filing a complaint is identical with the present action is inadmissible. Young v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 189 N. C. 238, 126 S. E. 600. See also Drinkwater v. Western Union Tel. Co., 204 N. C. 224, 168 S. E. 410.

The question as to whether an action is a continuation of a former one so as to bring it within the provisions of this section is one of law to be decided from the original complaint, and when no complaint is filed in the prior action, the identity of the causes of action may not be shown by parol evidence. Motsinger v. Hauser, 195 N. C. 483, 142 S. E. 589.

Limitation Where Second Action Brought in Equity. — The fact that more than one year had elapsed before the beginning of the present action, from the termination by nonsuit of the defendant's action to recover for services rendered to her mother from the administrator does not bar her recovery upon her counterclaim, the same being of an equitable nature to which this section has no application, under the facts of the case. Shell v. Lineberger, 183 N. C. 440, 441, 111 S. E. 769.

Dismissals — Want of Jurisdiction. — This section applies where the first action was dismissed because the court in which it was brought had no jurisdiction. Webb v. Hicks, 125 N. C. 201, 202, 34 S. E. 395.

Application where Statute Not One of Limitation. — This statute contains no exception of cases under section 160, or of any other cases where the time prescribed for bringing the original action might not be strictly a statute of limitation. There is no cause why the privilege to commence a new action within a year after nonsuit should not apply equally to all cases of nonsuit. The statute makes no distinction, and there is certainly none in the reason of the thing, which is the same as to that class of cases as in any others. Meekins v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 131 N. C. 1, 2, 42 S. E. 333; See Williams v. Iron Belt Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 131 N. C. 267, 269, 42 S. E. 607.

Same — Actions for Death by Wrongful Act. — While the requirements of section 160, giving a right of action for death caused by the wrongful act, etc., is not in strictness a statute of limitation, but a condition affecting the cause of action itself, yet when such suit has been brought within the time specified it comes within the provision of this section. Trull v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 151 N. C. 545, 66 S. E. 586. The maximum time allowed under the two sections when construed together is two years. Brooks v. Suncrest Lumber Co., 194 N. C. 141.

A new action for wrongful death commenced within one year from the date of nonsuit falls within the provisions of this section notwithstanding the provisions of § 160, and the fact that the plaintiff has been assessed with additional costs upon motion for reassessment made in the second action and has not paid the cost so reassessed is immaterial. Swainey v. Great Atlantic, etc., Tea Co., 204 N. C. 713, 169 S. E. 618. See notes to § 160.

Federal Employers' Liability Act.—This section has been held not applicable to an action brought in a State court under the Federal Employers' Liability Act. Brooks v. Suncrest Lumber Co., 194 N. C. 141, 143, 138 S. E. 532, citing King v. R. R., 176 N. C. 301, 97 S. E. 29; Belch v. R. R., 176 N. C. 22, 96 S. E. 640.

Section Illustrated.—Where an action is begun within the prescribed period, but terminated in a non-suit after the period has run, this section applies to permit another action within one year from the date of non-suit. Hines v. Rowland Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 294, 93 S. E. 833.

Where it does not appear otherwise than that the first suit was commenced in time, and the second was instituted within a year of the nonsuit, this section operates to prevent a bar of the statute. Bank v. Loughran, 122 N. C. 668, 671, 30 S. E. 17.

Effect of Costs Provision. — This section does not forbid the commencement of a second action without paying the costs of the first, but annexes this as a condition to bringing the new action free from the bar of the statute, if pleaded; and a motion to dismiss it before answer filed, upon the ground that the costs of the former one had not been paid, will be denied. Bradshaw v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 172 N. C. 632, 90 S. E. 789.

But where the appropriate statute has been pleaded and its time expired both before the bringing of the new action and the payment of the cost in the original one, the second action is barred though commenced within the one-year period, when the original case has not been brought in forma pauperis. Rankin v. Oates, 183 N. C. 517, 112 S. E. 32.

Same — When Applicable. — The amendment of 1915 requiring the payment of costs has no application when the second action has been brought within the time permitted by the general law. Summers v. Southern R. Co., 173 N. C. 398, 92 S. E. 160.

Same — Excuse. — It may be shown by plaintiff that his failure to pay costs before commencing his second action upon the same contract was caused by the failure or the delay of the clerk of the Superior Court to let him know the amount thereof though the plaintiff had urgently and continuously requested it, and that he would have promptly paid them according to the provisions of the statute had he been able to ascertain them. Hunsucker v. Corbitt, 187 N. C. 496, 122 S. E. 378.

Cited in Collins v. Smith, 109 N. C. 468, 470, 14 S. E. 88.

Judgment of Nonsuit on Merits of Case as Bar to Subsequent Action on Same Cause on Substantially Same Evidence.—A plaintiff may bring an action and have it heard upon its merits, and, if a judgment of nonsuit is then entered, he may bring a new suit within one year, or he may have the cause reviewed by the Supreme Court. If the Supreme Court affirms the judgment of the trial court, he may, under this section, bring a new action within the period therein specified. But, if upon the trial of the new action, upon its merits, in either event, it appears to the trial court, and is found by such court as a fact, that the second suit is based upon substantially identical allegation and substantially identical evidence, and that the merits of the second cause are identically the same, thereupon the trial court should hold that the judgment in the first action was a bar or res adjudicata, and thus end that particular litigation. Hampton v. Rex Spinning Co., 198 N. C. 235, 240, 151 S. E. 266.

Propriety of Directed Verdict for Plaintiff Where Record Contains No Evidence of Payment of Costs of Prior Action.—Where, after judgment as of nonsuit, another action has been brought on the same cause of action within one year under the provisions of this section, and defendant moves for judgment of nonsuit and excepts to the trial court's refusal of the motion, and on appeal the only question presented is whether the plaintiff had paid the costs of the prior action as required by the statute, held, the burden is upon the plaintiff to show compliance with the statute and where the record on appeal contains no evidence that the costs of the prior action had been paid, a directed verdict in the plaintiff's favor will be held erroneous, and it cannot be presumed that such evidence was properly before the jury from the fact that the trial court stated at the close of testimony that as he understood the evidence he would have to give a directed verdict that the costs had been paid, to which counsel did not object until after a verdict in the plaintiff's favor. Southerland v. Crump, 199 N. C. 111, 153 S. E. 845.

Applied in Jones v. Bagwell, 207 N. C. 378, 388, 177 S. E. 170.

§ 416. New promise must be in writing.—No acknowledgment or promise is evidence of a new or continuing contract, from which the statutes of limitations run, unless it is contained in some writing signed by the party to be charged thereby; but this section does not alter the effect of any payment of principal or interest. (Rev., s. 371; Code, s. 172; C. C. P., s. 51.)

I. General Consideration.
II. Acknowledgment or New Promise.
III. Part Payment.
IV. Request Not to Sue.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 57 for comment on this section.

Effect upon Prior Law. — This section does not change the character or quality of the acknowledgment or new promise therefore required to repel the bar of the statute of limitations in an action on contract, except that the new promise should be "in some writing signed by the party to be charged." Phillips v. Giles, 175 N. C. 409, 95 S. E. 772.

The substituted statute after a fixed time bars the cause of action itself, and does not, as before, obstruct the remedy merely. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404, 406.

The Section Is Mandatory. — Fleming v. Staton, 74 N. C. 203.

Retroactive Effect. — This section has no application where the cause of action had accrued upon the new as well as the old cause. Farson v. Bowden, 74 N. C. 43, 45.

Section as Rule of Evidence. — This section is merely a rule of evidence enacted to prevent fraud and perjury. Royster v. Farrell, 115 N. C. 306, 310, 20 S. E. 475.

Applicability to Judgments. — A judgment is not a contract within the meaning of this section. This is true because a cause of action on contract or tort loses its identity when merged in a judgment; and thereafter a new cause of action arises out of the judgment. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404. See the dissenting opinion.

Action of One of Class Affecting All of Class. — Where from the condition stated upon a negotiable note, the endorsers sign as sureties, a payment thereon of the maker before the same is barred, suspends the running of the statute of limitations as to all within this class, and a payment of the interest on the note by one of the sureties will repel the bar of the statute as to all of the sureties thereon. Dillard v. Farmers Mercantile Co., 190 N. C. 225, 129 S. E. 598.

II. ACKNOWLEDGMENT OR NEW PROMISE.

The English Statute.—The original statute of limitation (21 Jas. I, ch. 16) had no provision as to new promises and acknowledgments. The court made the law on this subject and made it apply to all causes of action that rested on a promise. Royster v. Farrell, 115 N. C. 306, 310, 20 S. E. 475, and citations.

Confined to Contracts.—The terms of this section as to written acknowledgments, etc., are confined to actions on contracts and is not applicable to judgments. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404. See dissenting opinion.

Elements Necessary to Valid Promise.—In Greenleaf v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 91 N. C. 33, the Supreme Court declared that the promise must be (1) in writing, (2) extend to the whole debt, (but see Pope v. Andrews, 90 N. C. 401) and must (3) be to pay money and not in something else of value. The promise to pay the debt, too, must be (4) unconditional. Greenleaf v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 91 N. C. 33; Bates & Co. v. Herren & Co., 95 N. C. 388; Taylor v. Miller, 113 N. C. 340, 18 S E. 504; Wells v. Hill, 118 N. C. 900, 904, 24 S. E. 771.

The promise must be (5) indentical and (6) between the original parties—by the same man; and, further, when the original contract is made with another one, and the promise relied on to repel the statute is made with another, who is the plaintiff in the action, the cause of action is the new promise, and it must be declared on; this new promise must be in writing. Fleming v. Staton, 74 N. C. 203; Pool v. Bledsoe, 85 N. C. 1, 2.

It has been held, that the promise must be made to the creditor himself (Parker v. Shuford, 76 N. C. 219, and Farson v. Bowden, 76 N. C. 425) or to an attorney or agent for the creditor (Kirby v. Mills, 78 N. C. 124; Hussey v. Kirkman, 95 N. C. 63, 67), and must be express (Cooper v. Jones, 128 N. C. 40, 38 S. E. 28), clear and positive (Hussey v. Kirkman, 95 N. C. 63) to repel the statute.

The new promise must be distinct and specific, and a mere acknowledgement of the debt, though implying a promise to pay, is not sufficient. Riggs v. Roberts, 85 N. C. 152; Faison v. Bowden, 76 N. C. 425. This section provides that the statute is only waived by acknowledgment or new promise, which amounts to "a new or continuing contract." Helm Co., v. Griffin, 112 N. C. 356, 358, 16 S. E. 1023.

In Riggs v. Roberts, 85 N. C. 152, the words "distinct and specific," "unequivocal," are really applied to a promise to pay which would revive a debt from which the debtor had been discharged in bankruptcy. While either one of these qualifying words alone would be applicable to the promise or acknowledgment to take the case out of the statute of limitations, there is no special weight superadded by the use of them all at once. Taylor v. Miller, 113 N. C. 340, 343, 18 S. E. 504.

In other words there must be such facts and circumstances as to show that the debtor recognized a present subsisting liability and manifested an intention to assume or renew the obligation. This means that the acknowledgment of a debt, which would be sufficient to repel the statute, must manifest an intention to renew the debt as strong and convincing as if there had been a direct promise to pay it. This principle runs through all the decisions of the Supreme Court on this subject. Wells v. Hill, 118 N. C. 900, 903, 24 S. E. 771; Simonton v. Clark, 65 N. C. 525. See dissenting opinion.

A written acknowledgment, or new promise, certain in its terms, or which can be made certain, is sufficient to repel the operations of the statute of limitations, under this section. It follows that a mere vague declaration of an intention to pay an undefined amount, and without reference to anything that can make it certain, would not be sufficient, but an admission that "the parties are yet to account, and are willing to account and pay the balance then ascertained," would be. Long v. Oxford, 104 N. C. 408, 409, 10 S. E. 525.

In order for a letter signed by the debtor to remove the bar of the statute of limitations it must contain an express, unconditional promise to pay or a definite, unqualified acknowledgment of the debt as a subsisting obligation, and a letter acknowledging the debt at the time defendant left plaintiff's city but claiming that it had been canceled by the creditor's action in selling the debtor's goods of a value greatly in excess of the debt, is not such an acknowledgment of a subsisting obligation as will repeal the statutory bar. Smith v. Gordon, 204 N. C. 695, 169 S. E. 634.

Must Be within Statutory Limit Itself.—The three-year statute of limitations bars a simple action for debt, and where a letter relied on as arresting the running of the statute is written more than three years before the commencement of the action it is ineffective. Smith v. Gordon, 204 N. C. 695, 169 S. E. 634.

When Promise Implied. — Where the debtor has, by a signed written instrument, unqualifiedly and definitely acknowledged the debt as his subsisting obligation, the law will imply a promise to pay it, and it is sufficient to repel the bar of the statute of limitations unless there is something in the writing to repel such implication. Phillips v. Giles, 175 N. C. 409, 410, 95 S. E. 772. McRae v. Leary, 46 N. C. 91; Smith v. Leeper, 32 N. C. 86. Cecil v. Henderson, 121 N. C. 244, 246, 28 S. E. 481.

The Writing.—As to expression of opinion in charge on sufficiency of writing, see note to sec. 564.

A new promise to pay, if not in writing, can not defeat the operation of the statute of limitation. Raby v. Stuman, 127 N. C. 463, 37 S. E. 476.

In order to revive a debt which is barred by the statute of limitation, there must be an express unconditional promise to pay the same in writing or a written, definite and unqualified acknowledgment of the debt as a subsisting obligation, signed by the debtor, etc., and from which the law will imply a promise to pay. Phillips v. Giles, 175 N. C. 409, 410, 95 S. E. 772. And it is proper to exclude parol evidence that a new promise was made (Christmas v. Haywood, 119 N. C. 130, 134, 25 S. E. 861.), although prior to the section the law was otherwise. Faison v. Bowden, 74 N. C. 43.

It was said in Flemming v. Flemming, 85 N. C. 127, that the oral assertion of a claim to an administrator who remains silent, even if the silence should be construed on admission, is ineffectual because not in writing, see sec. 412.

And so is security given for debts barred by the statute, at least to the extent of the property conveyed. Taylor v. Hunt, 118 N. C. 168, 172, 24 S. E. 359. But an unaccepted offer to discharge a bond by a conveyance of land (Riggs v. Roberts, 85 N. C. 152), or an unaccepted offer to pay a debt by a conveyance of land are not such recognition of subsisting liabilities as in law will imply a promise to pay. Wells v. Hill, 118 N. C. 900, 904, 24 S. E. 771; nor is a promissory note barred by the statute of limitations revived by an offer to pay in Confederate currency or bank-bills. Simonton v. Clark, 65 N. C. 525. See dissenting opinion.

The accumulation of adjectives used in their application to the words "acknowledgment and promise" in the statute, has produced the impression that it requires more than an ordinary promise in writing to repel the bar of the statute. The old law, before the promise need be in writing, was, "the new promise must be definite and show the nature and amount of the debt, or must distinctly refer to some writing, or to some other means by which the nature and amount of it can be ascertained; or there must be an acknowledgment of a present subsisting debt, equally definite and certain, from which a promise to pay such debt may be implied," McBride v. Gray, 44 N. C. 420; Faison v. Bowden, 72 N. C. 405; Riggs v. Roberts, 85 N. C. 152. Since the statute, the words used are as applicable to this case: "The promise must be unconditional." Greenleaf v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 91 N. C. 33. It must be "certain in its terms." Long v. Oxford, 104 N. C. 408, 10 S. E. 525; Taylor v. Miller, 113 N. C. 340, 342, 18 S. E. 504.

Same—Illustrations.—A new note embracing an old indebtedness of the maker is a sufficient writing signed by the parties to be charged to bring the old indebtedness within the operation of this section. Irvin v. Harris, 182 N. C. 647, 109 S. E. 867. The words "I propose to settle," written in answer to a letter demanding payment of a note barred by the lapse of time, amount to an acknowledgment or new promise sufficient to take the case out of the operation of the statute of limitations. Taylor v. Miller, 113 N. C. 340, 18 S. E. 504, but a writing "I am going to pay it as soon as I can" is conditioned upon ability to pay and is therefore insufficient. Cooper v. Jones, 128 N. C. 40, 38 S. E. 28.

A paper-writing signed by a parent certifying that she owes her daughter a sum of money, in a stated amount, for moneys she has borrowed from her at various times, and stating the daughter was to have a certain sum of money from her estate, giving her reasons, is sufficiently definite to imply a promise to pay the amount of the debt, and a new promise, to repel the bar of the statute of limitations. Phillips v. Giles, 175 N. C. 409, 410, 95 S. E. 772.

Where a suit had already been commenced to recover an amount alleged to be due upon account, and the defendant set up the statutory bar as a defence, but wrote a letter to the plaintiff's attorney stating that, if he would take five hundred dollars in satisfaction, judgment might go against him at court, the letter is an admission and assumption of the debt to the specified amount ($500), and operates to remove the bar to the recovery of the time. Pope v. Andrews, 90 N. C. 401. But see Wells v. Hill, 118 N. C. 900, 904, 24 S. E. 771 and citations.

Where a debtor wrote to his creditors declining proffered credit because he was unable to pay what he already owed them (which was barred by the statute), but expressing his confidence in his ability to pay whatever he might contract for in the future it was held, that, as the letter contained no promise to pay the barred debt, the bar of the statute was not removed. Helm Co. v. Griffin, 112 N. C. 356, 16 S. E. 1023.

Acknowledgment as Rebutting Presumption of Satisfaction.—Before the adoption of The Code, proof of a promise or acknowledgment would rebut the presumption of the satisfaction of a mortgage, as is shown by numerous decisions. Brown v. Becknall, 58 N. C. 423; Ray v. Pearce, 84 N. C. 485; Hughes v. Edwards, 8 Wheat., 489; Simmons v. Ballard, 102 N. C. 105, 9 S. E. 495. And now the bar of our present statute of limitations may be overcome by proof of a promise or acknowledgment, but the proof must be in writing, unless the new promise be one that the law implies from a part payment. Hill v. Hilliard & Co., 103 N. C. 34, 9 S. E. 639; Royster v. Farrell, 115 N. C. 306, 310, 20 S. E. 475.

III. PART PAYMENT.

Editor's Note.—It should be observed that the effect of partial payment stopping the statute is not of statutory origin. It was not in the English statute of James I. and 9 Geo. IV. did nothing more than recognize the common law right. Thus it originated with the courts and its application depends upon the reasoning in such decisions. This is equally true in North Carolina for this section merely recognizes the right, leaving the application of the principles to the courts as has always been the case. See Battle v. Battle, 116 N. C. 161, 163, 21 S. E. 177.

Thus the effect of this section is to leave the law as it was prior to the adoption of the Code of Civil Procedure as regards the effect of a partial payment in removing the bar of the statute of limitations, See State Nat. Bank v. Harris, 96 N. C. 118, 1 S. E. 459.

The effect of any payment of principal or interest, being expressly excepted from this section, thereby leaving as to such payments the principals obtaining at common law before the enactment of the statute. Kilpatrick v. Kilpatrick, 187 N. C. 520, 122 S. E. 377.

Payment Tantamount to Writing.—This section dispenses with a writing where partial payment is made, because the payment is in effect a written promise. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404. See the dissenting opinion.

Provisions Not Applicable to Judgments.—A partial payment voluntarily made on a judgment does not remove the statutory bar. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404. See the dissenting opinion.

Elements Essential to Take Case Out of Statute. — The general principle on which part payment takes a case out of the statute is that the party paying intended by it to acknowledge and admit the greater debt to be due. If it was not in the mind of the debtor to do this, then the statute, having begun to run, will not be stopped by reason of such payment, (Cashmar-King Supply Co. v. Dowd, 146 N. C. 191, 197, 59 S. E. 685) for partial payment starts the statute running anew only when it is made under such circumstances as will warrant the clear inference that the debtor recognizes the debt as existing and his willingness or at least his obligation, to pay the balance. Battle v. Battle, 116 N. C. 161, 163, 21 S. E. 177. See also Lester Piano Co. v. Loven, 207 N. C. 96, 176 S. E. 290.

Thus when a payment is made by defendant only in contemplation of an agreed compromise of a debt, such payment will not repel the bar of the statute of limitations as to the balance thereof. Cashmar-King Supply Co., v. Dowd, 146 N. C. 191, 59 S. E. 685.

Same—Time from Which Statute Starts Anew.—There is no express provision that a partial payment shall prevent the operation of the statute except from the time it was made. The statute merely leaves its effect to be determined by the law as it was before the enactment of the section as to a new promise. Battle v. Battle, 116 N. C. 161, 21 S. E. 177; Bank v. Harris, 96 N. C. 121; Riggs v. Roberts, 85 N. C. 152; Cashmar-King Supply Co. v. Dowd, 146 N. C. 191, 196, 59 S. E. 685; Kilpatrick v. Kilpatrick, 187 N. C. 520, 122 S. E. 377.

Same—Credits on Accounts.—When the running of the statute of limitations would otherwise bar an action upon an account, and there is evidence tending to show a credit thereon was agreed to by the creditor and debtor within the three-year period, and accordingly given, the effect of this credit to repel the bar relates to the time of the agreement made and effected; and an instruction that made it depend upon the time of the debt incurred for which the credit was given, is reversible error to the plaintiff's prejudice. Kilpatrick v. Kilpatrick, 187 N. C. 520, 122 S. E. 377.

The fact that the maker of a note has a claim against the holder which the holder endorses as a credit on the note without the assent of the maker, will not be such a partial payment as will rebut the statute of limitations, but an agreement to apply one existing liability to another is such a partial payment as will stop the operation of the statute, although the endorsement is never actually made on the note. State Nat. Bank v. Harris, 96 N. C. 118, 1 S. E. 459.

An account of transaction between two persons, to be mutual, when kept by only one of them, must be with the knowledge and concurrence of the other, so as to make a credit given to such other repel the bar of the statute of limitations. Cashmar-King Supply Co. v. Dowd, 146 N. C. 191, 59 S. E. 685.

Persons Who May Make—Trustee for Creditors.—Where an assignment for benefit of creditors confers no power on the trustee, as agent of the debtor, to do any act to waive the Statute, or to express a willingness or intention to pay the debt after it becomes otherwise barred, as partial payment made by the trustee on a note of the debtor will not arrest the running or remove the bar of the Statute of limitations. Battle v. Battle, 116 N. C. 161, 21 S. E. 177.

Same—Principal upon Bond.—Payment made by a principal upon a bond, before the cause of action thereon is barred against the sureties, arrests the operation of the statute of limitations. Moore v. Goodwin, 109 N. C. 218, 13 S. E. 772.

Payment of interest on a note by the principal, before it is barred by lapse of time, arrests the operation of the statute of limitations as to all the makers, sureties as well as principal, and the statute commences again to run only from the day when the last payment was made. Green v. Greensboro Female College, 83 N. C. 449.

Same—Obligor of Same Class.—Where a payment is made upon a claim, before it is barred by the lapse of time, by one of several obligors of the same class, it becomes the legal act of all, and arrests the operation of the statute as to them but does not revive the liability of others of a different class. Wood v. Barber, 90 N. C. 76. But it was held in Moore v. Goodwin, 109 N. C. 218, 13 S. E. 772 that a payment by the principal upon a bond under such circumstances arrests the operator as to the sureties "General Consideration," ante this note.

Same—Partner.—In an action against a firm upon a draft accepted by the cashier of a bank who was also a member of the firm, and who made a partial payment upon the same, it was held that, to remove the statutory bar set up by the defendant firm, the burden is on the plaintiff to show in what capacity the acceptor acted in making such payment—whether as cashier or as a member of the firm. Wood v. Barber, 90 N. C. 76.

Burden of Proving Payment. — The burden is upon the plaintiff to show that a partial payment was made at such a time as to save the debt from the operation of the statute. Riggs v. Roberts, 85 N. C. 152.

IV. REQUEST NOT TO SUE.

Statement of Rule. — Where delay in bringing suit is caused by a request of the defendant, or his attorney and his promise to pay the debt and not to avail himself of the plea of the statute, he will not be allowed to plead the statute, as it would be against equity and good conscience. Joyner v. Massey, 97 N. C. 148, 1 S. E. 702. This principle is derived from equity as is a new promise or partial payment, and does not depend upon statute. However it is recognized as an exception in the application and instruction of this section. See Barcraft & Co. v. Roberts & Co., 91 N. C. 363, 369.

So it has been held that notwithstanding this section, when a creditor has delayed action at the request of the debtor, and under his promise, express or implied, to pay the debt and not to plead the statute of Limitations, the courts, in the exercise of their equitable jurisdiction, will not permit the debtor to plead the lapse of time and the creditor may bring his action within the statutory time after such promise and request for delay although not in writing. Cecil v. Henderson, 121 N. C. 244, 245, 28 S. E. 481.

Principles Controlling Application. — In giving effect to request not to sue and promises, not to plead the statute, the courts proceed upon the idea of an equitable estoppel, holding that it would be against good conscience and to encourage fraud to permit the debtor to repudiate them when by his contract he has lulled the creditor into a feeling of security and has induced him to delay bringing action (Daniel v. Board, 74 N. C. 494; Haymore v. Commissioners, 85 N. C. 268), and it is now "settled that if plaintiff was prevented from bringing his action during the statutory period by such conduct on the part of the defendant as makes it inequitable to him to plead the statute, or by reason of any agreement not to do so, he will not be permitted to defeat plaintiff's action by interposing the plea. Tomlinson v. Bennett, 145 N. C. 279, 281, 59 S. E. 37; State v. United States Fidelity etc., Co., 176 N. C. 598, 97 S. E. 490.

Same—Request without Agreement Insufficient. — A request not to sue will not stay the statute of limitation, but it must be an agreement not to plead it. Raby v. Stuman, 127 N. C. 463, 37 S. E. 476.

It is essential, however, not only that there shall be a new promise and a request for delay, but there must be a promise not to plead the statute if delay is given. Hill v. Hilliard, & Co., 103 N. C. 34, 9 S. E. 639; Cecil v. Henderson, 121 N. C. 244, 248, 28 S. E. 481.

A simple admission by an executor of the correctness of a claim against the testator's estate, and a verbal promise to pay the same out of the assets prior to the 1881 amendment of section 412, will not arrest the runnings of the statute of limitations, where there is no proof that the creditor refrained from suing at the request of the executor, or that there was any agreement for indulgence. This case falls within the terms of this section. Whitehurst v. Dey, 90 N. C. 542.

Necessity for Writing. — "It is true that Smith, C. J. for whose learning we have the highest respect, said in a concurring opinion in Joyner v. Massey, 97 N. C. 148, 153, 1 S. E. 702, that this statute applied to promises not to plead the statute of limitations, and this is referred to without approval or disapproval by Clark, C. J. in Brown v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 60 S. E. 985, but the opinion of the majority of the Court in Joyner v. Massey was the other way, and it is expressly decided in Cecil v. Henderson, 121 N. C. 244, 28 S. E. 481, that the statute has no application, and that request not to sue and promises not to plead the statute of limitations need not be in writing." State v. United States Fidelity etc., Co., 176 N. C. 598, 601, 97 S. E. 490.

§ 417. Admission by partner or comaker.—No act, admission or acknowledgment by partner after the dissolution of the copartnership, or by any of the makers of a promissory note or bond after the statute of limitations has barred the same is evidence to repel the statute, except against the partner or maker of the promissory note or bond doing the act or making the admission or acknowledgment. (Rev., s. 372; Code, s. 171; C. C. P., s. 50.)

Section Changed Law. — In McIntire & Co. v. Oliver, 9 N. C., 209, it was held that the acknowledgment of a subsisting partnership debt by one partner, even after the dissolution of the firm, was binding on all the constituent members and prevented the operation of the statute of limitation. The same doctrine is announced in Willis v. Hill, 19 N. C., 231, and Walton v. Robinson, 27 N. C., 341. In the latter case, the same reviving effect is ascribed to a payment as involving a resumption of the residue of the debt. In consequence of these rulings was passed the act of 1852, now embodied in this section. Wood v. Barber, 90 N. C. 76, 79.

Part payment of a note by the payee who had endorsed it will not repel the bar of the statute of limitations as against the maker, this section, confining the act, admission or acknowledgment as evidence to repel the bar to the associated partners, obligors and makers of a note. LeDuc v. Butler, 112 N. C. 458, 17 S. E. 428. This principle is recognized and distinguished in Harper v. Edwards, 115 N. C. 246, 248, 20 S. E. 392; Garrett v. Reeves, 125 N. C. 529, 540, 34 S. E. 636. From the dissenting opinion see the excellent discussion in Green v. Greensboro College, 83 N. C. 451.

A payment made by the maker, after the bar of the statute, operates as a renewal as to himself only. Garrett v. Reeves, 125 N. C. 529, 34 S. E. 636. Bonds are in the same class as notes. Rogers v. Clements, 98 N. C. 180, 183, 3 S. E. 512. It was held in this latter case that Co-obligors do not stipulate by implication in the joint obligation that each may bind the other by his admissions made after the obligation is due.

Section Defeated by Payment of Small Sum etc. — This section may be practically nullified by triennial payments of insignificant amounts or alleged promises not to plead the statute. A recent case, forcibly illustrating, is Garrett v. Reeves, 125 N. C. 529, 34 S. E. 636; Luton v. Badham, 127 N. C. 96, 37 S. E. 143. Dissenting opinion.

Partial Payment Prior to Dissolution or Bar. — In an action against a firm upon a draft accepted by the cashier of a bank who was also a member of the firm, and who made a partial payment upon the same, it was held that, to remove the statutory bar set up by the defendant firm, the burden is on the plaintiff to show in what capacity the acceptor acted in making such payment—whether as cashier or as a member of the firm. The section is not applicable to these facts until a dissolution. Wood v. Barber, 90 N. C. 76, 77.

A payment by the principal on a note, before the bar of the statute, operates as a renewal as to himself, the sureties and endorsers, this section not being applicable. Garrett v. Reeves, 125 N. C. 529, 34 S. E. 636; Moore v. Goodwin, 109 N. C. 218, 219, 13 S. E. 772; Greene v. Greensboro Female College, 83 N. C. 449; Wood v. Barber, 90 N. C. 76, 80.

As to co-obligors on a note, it was held that a payment by one before the debt was barred would extend the time as to the other, but a promise to pay would not have that effect. The rule as to payment has been applied to all co-obligors who come within the same class as original makers of the instrument, having a community of interest and a common obligation. A payment by a principal or surety, before the debt is barred, will continue the obligation as to both. But the rule would not apply to obligors in different classes, as endorsers and makers. Davis v. Alexander, 207 N. C. 417, 421, 177 S. E. 417.

New Promise or Payment by Partner.—Under this section, no new promise or a payment by a partner, after the dissolution of the partnership, will have any effect to bind the other partners. Davis v. Alexander, 207 N. C. 417, 421, 177 S. E. 417.

Death of Partner. — Since the death of one of the partners dissolves the partnership, payment on a debt by the survivor will not repel the statute which would otherwise run against the estate of the deceased. Irvin v. Harris, 182 N. C. 656, 109, S. E. 871.

A Default Judgment on Debt Barred. — A judgment by default suffered by one joint obligor does not renew the note as to the others. Lane v. Richardson, 79 N. C. 159. See also Rogers v. Clements, 98 N. C. 180, 3 S. E. 512.

§ 418. Undisclosed partner.—The statutes of limitations apply to a civil action brought against an undisclosed partner only from the time the partnership became known to the plaintiff. (Rev., s. 373; 1893, c. 151.)

§ 419. Cotenants.—If in actions by tenants in common or joint tenants of personal property, to recover the same, or damages for its detention or injury, any of them are barred of their recovery by limitation of time, the rights of the others are not affected thereby, but they may recover according to their right and interest, notwithstanding such bar. (Rev., s. 374; Code, s. 173; C. C. P., s. 52; 1921, c. 106.)

Editor's Note. — It is pertinent to point out a discrepancy between the phraseology of this section and the corresponding sections of the prior revisals and codes. The clause of this section which read in the consolidated Statutes "the rights of the others are affected thereby," formerly read "the rights of the others shall not be affected thereby." See Pell's Revisal sec. 374. This discrepancy was probably a clerical error in the Consolidated statutes and was corrected by the Public Laws of 1921.

Section Changes Rule—Realty Not Affected. — This section changes the rule in regard to personalty. It does not effect the law as to real property. Expressio unius exclusio alterius. Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 36, 53 S. E. 728.

§ 420. Applicable to actions by state.—The limitations prescribed by law apply to civil actions brought in the name of the state, or for its benefit, in the same manner as to actions by or for the benefit of private parties. (Rev., s. 375; Code, s. 159; C. C. P., s. 38.)

This section abrogated the common law maxim "nullum tempus occurrit regi" protecting public property from the negligence of public officers. Furman v. Timberlake, 93 N. C. 66, 67.

The maxim no longer obtains even in the case of collecting taxes, unless the statute applicable to or controlling the subject provide otherwise. Wilmington v. Cronly, 122 N. C. 388, 30 S. E. 9; Furman v. Timberlake, 93 N. C. 66; Threadgill v. Wadesboro, 170 N. C. 641, 87 S. E. 521.

When Statute Does Not Apply. — No statute of limitations runs against the sovereign unless it is expressly so provided therein; hence, where an act authorizing the collection of arrearages of taxes for past years does not prescribe any limitation, the ten years' statute of limitations does not apply, and the unpaid taxes for any year can be recovered. Wilmington v. Cronly, 122 N. C. 388, 30 S. E. 9.

Insane Presumed to Have Plead Statute. — In view of the provisions of this section and section 406, an insane person is presumed to have plead the statute of limitations against the state. State Hospital v. Fountain, 129 N. C. 90, 39 S. E. 734.

§ 421. Action on open account.—In an action brought to recover a balance due upon a mutual, open and current account, where there have been reciprocal demands between the parties, the cause of action accrues from the time of the latest item proved in the account on either side. (Rev., s. 376; Code, s. 160; C. C. P., s. 39.)

Accounts to Which Applicable. — In order that one item being in date shall have the effect of bringing the whole account within date, it must appear that there were mutual accounts between the parties, or an account of mutual dealings, kept by one with the knowledge and concurrence of the other. Hussey v. Burgwyn, 51 N. C. 385.

The mere existence of disconnected and opposing demands, between two parties, one of which demands is of recent date, will not take a case out of the statute of limitations. There must be mutual running accounts, having reference to each other, between the parties, for an item within time to have that effect. Green v. Caldcleugh, 18 N. C. 320.

There must be an assent of both parties that the items of the one account are to be applied to the liquidation of the other. The understanding of the plaintiff alone would not be sufficient. Ibid.

The purchase of merchandise on credit, the purchaser paying a certain sum in cash on the account each fall, and the balance due on the account being carried forward into the next year and the next year's purchases being added thereto, is not a mutual, open and current account within the purview of this section, but is an account current, and as to all items purchased within three years from the last cash payment the three year statute of limitations will begin to run from the date of the last cash payment, and in an action to recover the balance due, instituted more than three years after the last item charged, but within three years from the last cash payment, an instruction that the whole account was barred by the statute of limitations is error. Richlands Supply Co. v. Banks, 205 N. C. 343, 171 S. E. 358.

Same—Mutuality by Implication.—Mutuality of accounts may be the result of direct agreement, or it may be inferred from the dealings of the parties—if established, it renders unavailable the defense of the statute of limitations to both parties. Stancell v. Burgwyn, 124 N. C. 69, 32 S. E. 378.

A mutual account may be inferred where each party keeps a running account of the debits and credits, or where one, with the knowledge of the other keeps it. Mauney & Son v. Colt, 86 N. C. 464; Green v. Caldcleugh, 18 N. C. 320, 321; Hussey v. Burgwyn, 51 N. C. 385; Robertson v. Pickerell, 77 N. C. 302; Stokes v. Taylor, 104 N. C. 394, 399, 10 S. E. 566.

Same—Extension of Credit.—To constitute a mutual account it must be reciprocal as to the credit extended, so as to imply a promise to pay the balance due, upon whichever side it may fall; and an extension of credit upon the one side alone falls neither within the intent and meaning of our decisions nor the statute applicable. Hollingsworth v. Allen, 176 N. C. 629, 97 S. E. 625.

Same—Running Account All on One Side. — Where there is a running account, all on one side, the statute of limitations begins to run on each item from its date; but where there are mutual accounts, the statute begins to run only from the last dealing between the parties. Robertson v. Pickerell, 77 N. C. 302, 303.

Same—Draft Not Referring to Account. — The bar of the statute of limitations is not repelled by the transmission of a draft by the debtor and its receipt by the creditor within the three years, the former not making any allusion to or recognition of the account, or any debt whatever. Hussey v. Burgwyn, 51 N. C. 385.

When Statute Not Applicable.—This section does not apply to an ordinary store account, though open and continued where the credit is all on one side and the only items of discharge consist in payments on account. In such case limitations will begin to run from the date of each purchase as to the item itself, unless the bar has been repelled in some recognized legal manner. Brock v. Franck, 194 N. C. 346, 139 S. E. 696.

An indefinite promise to pay intermittantly from time to time for such services as may be rendered by one party to another is not a mutual, open, and current account with reciprocal demands between the parties within the perview of this section. Phillips v. Penland, 196 N. C. 425, 147 S. E. 731.

Under an agreement with decedent to pay for services to be irregularly rendered from time to time as needed without a definite time fixed for payment, but under a general promise to pay for them, in an action against the administrator of the deceased promissor for the value of such services: Held, a payment made by the deceased in 1925, intended by him to be made upon the debt, will have the effect of reviving the claim against the statute of limitations only for the three years next preceding his death in 1926, subject to the credit of the payment so made. Phillips v. Penland, 196 N. C. 425, 147 S. E. 731.

Effects of Conflicting Evidence as to Item. — When there is conflicting evidence as to whether the item sued on was to be related to other items upon which the defendant relied it is reversible error for the judge to direct a verdict thereon if the jury believe the evidence. McKinnie Bros. v. Webster, 188 N. C. 514, 125 S. E. 1.

§ 422. Not applicable to bank bills.—The limitations prescribed by law do not affect actions to enforce the payment of bills, notes or other evidences of debt, issued or put in circulation as money by banking corporations incorporated under the laws of this state. (Rev., s. 377; Code, s. 174; C. C. P., s. 53; 1874-5, c. 170.)

§ 423. Actions against bank directors or stockholders. — The limitations prescribed by law do not affect actions against directors or stockholders of any banking association incorporated under the laws of this state, to recover a penalty or forfeiture imposed, or to enforce a liability created by law; but such actions must be brought within three years after the discovery by the aggrieved party of the facts upon which the penalty or forfeiture attached, or the liability was created. (Rev., s. 378; Code, s. 175; C. C. P., s. 54.)

Editor's Note.—In 1911, sec. 240 giving the receivers of insolvent banks ten years within which to bring actions to enforce the liability of stockholders was passed making an exception to this section. Since sec. 240 was likely repealed by sec. 218(c), which was passed in 1927 as explained in the note to sec. 240, this section would again be applicable were it not for the fact that the law was radically changed by the reenactment of sec. 218(c) in 1927, and that this change probably affects the period of limitation. The limitation prescribed both by this section and sec. 240 expressly relate to actions to enforce the liability of stockholders. Neither of the sections apply to the judgment after it has been rendered. Thus the judgments obtained in such actions have always been subject to the limitations applicable to judgments generally.

Now, since under the procedure prescribed in sec. 218(c) subsection (13), the filing of the individual liability of the stockholders with the clerk and the record as such constitutes the assessment a judgment upon which execution issues, there is no action as contemplated by this section and section 240, and thus nothing to which the sections can apply unless the assessment, under sec. 218(c), could be called an action in which case this section would likely apply. But if this section should be so applied to the procedure of sec. 218(c), the commission would have three years, after thirty days from the filing of the notice of taking possession in which to assess the stockholders. It would seem that there is no action as contemplated by secs. 240 and 425, notwithstanding that subsection (13) of sec. 218(c) uses the word "may" in conferring the power upon the commission to follow this procedure, because subsection (22) provides that liquidation shall be affected in no other way than in the manner prescribed by the section and this is a part of the process of liquidation. But if the word "may" should be given its ordinary construction and not construed as "shall", even then this section and sec. 240 would not be applicable in those cases where the procedure prescribed by sec. 218(c) is followed. The above discussion has no application to actions against directors.

When Statute Begins to Run. — It is a question of grave doubt, if the point had been raised, whether the statute as to the plaintiff's cause of action began to run upon the mere declaration of insolvency of the bank, and did not in truth begin to run upon the actual discovery, later on. Houston v. Thornton, 122 N. C. 365, 375, 29 S. E. 827.

§ 424. Aliens in time of war.—When a person is an alien subject, or a citizen of a country at war with the United States, the time of the continuance of the war is not a part of the period limited for the commencement of the action. (Rev., s. 379; Code, s. 165; C. C. P., s. 44.)

As to right of alien enemy to sue in the courts of this state, see Krachanake v. Acme Mfg. Co., 175 N. C. 435, 95 S. E. 851.

Art. 4. Limitations, Real Property

§ 425. Title against state.—The state will not sue any person for, or in respect of, any real property, or the issue or profits thereof, by reason of the right or title of the state to the same—

For complete digest treatment of limitations against state, municipalities, counties, public officers and public service companies, see 8 Enc. Dig. 792, 793; secs. 10-10(4).

Law Prior to Section. — Before the Code of Civil Procedure, to prevent the uncertainty of titles, the courts of this state had adopted the arbitrary rule, that from the adverse possession of land for thirty years a grant from the state should be presumed—a rule so arbitrary that a jury was not permitted to find the fact against the presumption; nor was it necessary that the party in adverse possession should connect himself with those who had preceded him in the possession; nor was it necessary that the adverse possession should have been held up to known and visible boundaries, but only to the extent of the title claimed by the persons in possession, which might be shown by any of those ways which the law permits in the absence of metes and bounds set forth in deeds, or known and visible boundaries, as for instance, by the declarations of old men now dead, the deeds of neighboring tracts of land calling for the land in question by the name by which it was known, upon the principle, id certum est quod certum reddi potest. FitzRandolph v. Norman, 4 N. C. 564; Candler v. Lunsford, 20 N. C. 542; Price v. Jackson, 91 N. C. 11, 14.

Same—Nature of Presumption. — The question of the presumption of a grant from adverse possession has never been regarded as one to be decided upon natural presumptions as to facts, but upon a statutory or arbitrary rule established by the Legislature, or by the Courts, to prevent the uncertainty of titles which would arise if the questions in each case were to be determined by a jury, on their belief of the fact, derived from a consideration of all the circumstances in evidence. Melvin v. Waddell, 75 N. C. 361.

Effect of Section upon Prior Law. — But the law is now changed, and the thirty years' adverse possession which was formerly held to be a presumption of a grant, is now by statute made, under certain circumstances, an absolute bar against the state. Price v. Jackson, 91 N. C. 11, 14.

The State is deemed to have surrendered its right where it permits an adverse occupation of land under colorable title without interruption for twenty-one years, and a title vests in the occupant which can only be divested by a subsequent adverse possession by another till his right in turn ripens in the same way. Walker v. Moses, 113 N. C. 527, 18 S. E. 339.

Section Not Retroactive. — The right of action which accrued prior to the adoption of C. C. P., is not governed by its provisions. Johnson v. Parker, 79 N. C. 475, 477.

Extent and Limitation of Application. — This section may be confined to cases where, by reason of adverse possession of land for the time mentioned in the section, the State is willing to forego her title thereto, and agrees not to sue for the same, nor for any of the issues or profits thereof. It was not intended by this section that the State should not be barred from recovering except by the lapse of thirty years or twenty-one years, for those periods relate only to the adverse possession, without or with color, which will be sufficient to bar the title, and the State agrees that when the adverse possession has continued for so long a time—thirty years without color and twenty-one years with color—she will not sue the person who has thus held the possession, but surrender her title to him; nor will she sue for the issues or profits. But this does not mean that the time limited for bringing any suit for the rents, issues or profits of land should be lengthened so that instead of being three years, as already specially prescribed by the statute, it should be thirty or twenty-one years. Tillery v. Whiteville Lumber Co., 172 N. C. 296, 298, 90 S. E. 196.

Adverse Possession against Municipality. — Under the law of this State as it formerly prevailed, title by adverse occupation could be acquired against a municipality. This was established and recognized as a rule of property not only under our decisions applicable to the question, Moore v. Meroney, 154 N. C. 158, 163, 69 S. E. 838; State v. Long, 94 N. C. 896; Crump v. Mims, 64 N. C. 767; but the principle was embodied in our statute law in 1868, now sections 427 and 420. Threadgill v. Wadesboro, 170 N. C. 641, 87 S. E. 521.

Application to Rents, Profits etc. — It was not intended by this section that the state should not be barred from recovering except by the lapse of thirty years or twenty-one years, for those periods relate only to the adverse possession, without or with color, which will be sufficient to bar the title; nor will she sue for issues or profits. The loss of rents and profits is incidental to the loss of land. But this does not mean that the time limited for bringing any suit for the rents, issues, or profits of land should be lengthened so that instead of being three years, as already specially prescribed by the statute, § 441, it should be thirty or twenty-one years. Those periods are not applicable to personal actions, but only to actions for the recovery of land or some interest therein. Tillery v. Whiteville Lumber Co., 172 N. C. 296, 298, 90 S. E. 196.

Application to Personal Actions.—The limitations as to color for twenty-one years, and without for thirty years, do not apply to personal actions after the State has parted with her title to the lands. Tillery v. Whiteville Lumber Co., 172 N. C. 296, 90 S. E. 196.

Essential Characteristics of Possession.—In order to put the statute of limitations in motion against the true owner of land, it is necessary that there should be an actual, open, visible occupation of the land by another, begun and continued under a claim of right. The assertion of a mere claim of title, as for instance the payment of taxes thereon, is not sufficient. Malloy v. Bruden, 86 N. C. 251.

A party may show, as against the State, possession under known and visible boundaries for thirty years. Mobley v. Griffin, 104 N. C. 113, 115, 10 S. E. 142.

Sufficiency of Possession.—The possession spoken of must be constituted by such acts as would expose the party to a suit by the State, or by some person claiming under the State; for it is the forbearance to sue that raises such a presumption of right as induced the Legislature to ratify the apparent title. Hedrick v. Gobble, 61 N. C. 348, 349.

Possession is insufficient to constitute the basis of adverse possession against the state or a private individual where the plaintiff merely shows that the agent of plaintiff's grantor raked and hauled straw one or two years and plaintiff's father cultivated an acre or two of the land one year. Prevatt v. Harrelson, 132 N. C. 251, 43 S. E. 800.

Same — Lappage.—The rule that, in controversies between titles of different dates which lap, actual possession of the lappage is required to perfect the color of title of the junior claimant, applies to controversies between the State and citizens who claim under mesne conveyances which extend the boundaries of the original grant. Hedrick v. Gobble, 61 N. C. 348.

Necessity of Continuity. — Thirty years adverse possession is necessary only to bar the State, and this need not be a continuous occupancy, nor need there be any connection between the tenants. FitzRandolph v. Norman, 4 N. C. 564; Candler v. Lunsford, 20 N. C. 542; Reed v. Earnhart, 32 N. C. 516; Davis v. McArthur, 78 N. C. 357; Cowles v. Hall, 90 N. C. 330; Mallett v. Simpson, 94 N. C. 37; Bryan v. Spivey, 109 N. C. 57, 13 S. E. 766; Hamilton v. Icard, 114 N. C. 532, 19 S. E. 607; Walden v. Ray, 121 N. C. 237, 238, 28 S. E. 293; May v. Mfg. Co., 164 N. C. 262, 80 S. E. 380.

Necessity of Privity of Possession.—A plaintiff, in proving the title out of the State by an adverse possession of thirty years, may avail himself of any possession by others adverse to the State, although he may not be able to connect himself with them. Melvin v. Waddell, 75 N. C. 361. This case was decided under the law prior to this section. See page 366 of the opinion and the authorities cited.—Ed. Note.

In case of a reliance upon thirty years adverse possession the plaintiff must show a privity between himself and those who preceded him in the possession, and also, that the possession was held up to known and visible boundaries. Price v. Jackson, 91 N. C. 11. This decision is in keeping with the express terms of the section.—Ed. Note.

Connection of Occupation with Boundaries.—Where there is a physical occupation with claim extending to certain marked boundaries, there must be some evidence tending to connect such occupation with the boundaries claimed or some exclusive control or dominion over the unoccupied portions of the land. May v. Manufacturing & Trading Co., 164 N. C. 262, 80 S. E. 380.

Possession Short of Period as Evidence of Grant.—If there has been an adverse possession for any time short of thirty years, it is not a circumstance to be submitted to a jury, either alone or with others of like tendency, as evidence upon which they may find the fact of a grant. But on an adverse possession of thirty years a jury is not at liberty to find that in fact no grant ever issued. Melvin v. Waddell, 75 N. C. 361.

Nature of Possession Is Question for Jury.—Conceding the evidence establishes 30 years' possession, there was still left for the jury's determination the questions as to whether such possession was adverse, and as to whether such possession was held up to known and visible lines and boundaries, as required by this section. McKay v. Bullard, 207 N. C. 628, 630, 178 S. E. 95.

Effect of Running of Statute against State. — When a title is shown out of the State by adverse possession, sec. 428 applies where one thereafter acquires title under a sheriff's deed and holds possession thereunder for seven years. Walker v. Moses, 113 N. C. 527, 18 S. E. 339.

Burden of Showing Good Title—Against State.—Upon the principle that the plaintiff in an action for possession must show title good against the world, including the State under whom all lands are held, it has become a settled rule that where no grant is introduced the burden of proof cannot be shifted to the defendant in such actions without prima facie proof of possession under colorable title for twenty-one years under subsection (2). Hamilton v. Icard, 114 N. C. 532, 538, 19 S. E. 607.

Effect upon Running Where Grant Made.—Where an occupant is seated on the interference when the overlapping grant is issued, and is claiming colorable title adversely to the state under this section, the statute still continues to run in his favor as to the whole lappage unless the grantee, or those claiming under him, enter upon and occupy some portion of the lappage or bring an action. Hamilton v. Icard, 114 N. C. 532, 542, 19 S. E. 607.

If, on the contrary, the occupant of the lappage, wishes to use his adversary's grant to show that the title is out of the state in order to establish it in himself, by virtue of sec. 428, he must prove an adverse occupation for seven years after the grantee's right of action accrued on receiving his grant. Hamilton v. Icard, 114 N. C. 532, 542, 19 S. E. 607.

Effect of Patent to Part Possession. — The constructive possession of one claiming under color of title for twenty-one years—the period necessary to give title against the State—is not interrupted by the mere issuance to another of a patent including part of the land claimed by him where his actual possession is within the lappage. Hamilton v. Icard, 114 N. C. 532, 19 S. E. 607.

Cited in Ware v. Knight, 199 N. C. 251, 254, 154 S. E. 35.

1. When the person in possession thereof, or those under whom he claims, has been in the adverse possession thereof for thirty years, this possession having been ascertained and identified under known and visible lines or boundaries; which shall give a title in fee to the possessor.

2. When the person in possession thereof, or those under whom he claims, has been in possession under colorable title for twenty-one years, this possession having been ascertained and identified under known and visible lines or boundaries. (Rev., s. 380; Code, s. 139; C. C. P., s. 18; R. C., c. 65, s. 2.)

§ 426. Possession presumed out of state.—In all actions involving the title to real property title is conclusively deemed to be out of the state unless it is a party to the action, but this section does not apply to the trials of protested entries laid for the purpose of obtaining grants, nor to actions instituted prior to May 1, 1917. (1917, c. 195.)

Cross Reference.—As to admitting in evidence, to establish title by adverse possession, a deed insufficient to convey title, see § 430 and the note thereto.

Section Not Retroactive. — This section, having no retrospective effect, is applicable only to actions commenced since May 1, 1917. Riddle v. Riddle, 176 N. C. 485, 97 S. E. 382; Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 832, 837, 143 S. E. 857.

Purpose of Section.—To remove the burdensome and untoward condition growing out of the difficulty of proving title out of the State the Legislature enacted this section. It provides that, in actions between individual litigants, title shall be conclusively presumed to be out of the State. But that is the extent and limit of it. There is no presumption in favor of one party or the other, nor is a litigant seeking to recover land otherwise relieved of the burden of showing title in himself. Moore v. Miller, 179 N. C. 396, 399, 102 S. E. 627.

"Where either party exhibits a patent to the land in dispute, since the State can no longer assert any claim, it is familiar learning that either the grantee or the party claiming adversely to it after its introduction may, as a general rule, use it to show that the State is no longer a claimant and make good his own claim by proof of possession under colorable title for seven years only. Gilchrist v. Middleton, 107 N. C. 663, 12 S. E. 85; Hamilton v. Icard, 114 N. C. 532, 539, 19 S. E. 607.

This rule also applies where the question of title to land depends upon the true divisional lines between the parties to the action, adjoining owners, and each has introduced a grant from the State to their lands respectively, which taken together, cover the locus in quo, and either one may then establish title to any part thereof by adverse possession for twenty years. Stewart v. Stephenson, 172 N. C. 81, 89 S. E. 1060.

Within Legislative Power.—This section affects the remedy—mode of procedure—and is within the power of the General Assembly to pass. Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 832, 837, 143 S. E. 857.

May Show Title out of State.—Under this section neither party is required to show title out of the State though either may do so. Dill-Cramer-Truitt Corp. v. Downs, 195 N. C. 189, 190, 141 S. E. 570, citing Pennell v. Brookshire, 193 N. C. 73, 136 S. E. 257.

Sources of Title Available. — And where the plaintiff has sufficiently alleged general ownership of the locus in quo, he is not confined to the location of the adjoining boundary line under his grant, for he may avail himself of any source of title that he may be able to establish by his testimony. Stewart v. Stephenson, 172 N. C. 81, 89 S. E. 1060.

In an action to recover lands by twenty years adverse possession under § 430, it is not required that the plaintiff should show title out of the State, except in cases of protested entries, etc., when the State is not a party to the action. Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 832, 143 S. E. 857.

And it is error to instruct the jury that the burden of proof is on the plaintiff to show title out of state in addition to sufficient adverse possession to ripen the title in himself. Dill Corporation v. Downs, 195 N. C. 189, 141 S. E. 570.

Cited in Ware v. Knight, 199 N. C. 251, 254, 154 S. E. 35.

§ 427. Such possession valid against claimants under state.—All such possession as is described in the preceding section, under such title as is therein described, is hereby ratified and confirmed, and declared to be a good and legal bar against the entry or suit of any person, under the right or claim of the state. (Rev., s. 381; Code s. 140; C. C. P., s. 19.)

Editor's Note. — Although this section uses the term "preceding section," it refers to sec. 425. The codifiers of the Consolidated Statutes inserted sec. 426 and failed to change the reference.

Sufficiency of Possession as Affecting Application. — This section does not apply where the proof of possession is insufficient under section 425. Prevatt v. Harrelson, 132 N. C. 250, 251, 43 S. E. 800.

Application against Municipality. — Prior to the enactment of § 435, title to lands by adverse possession could be acquired against a State or a municipal corporation, which is a political agent of the State; and where before the enactment of this statute sufficient possession of the character required had ripened the title to a part of a street of a city under our statutes, this section and section 420, as construed by the decisions, the municipality may not reassert the lost ownership except under the power of eminent domain vested in it by the law and for the public benefit. Threadgill v. Wadesboro, 170 N. C. 641, 87 S. E. 521.

§ 428. Seven years possession under colorable title.—When a person or those under whom he claims is and has been in possession of any real property, under known and visible lines and boundaries and under colorable title, for seven years, no entry shall be made or action sustained against such possessor by a person having any right or title to the same, except during the seven years next after his right or title has descended or accrued, who in default of suing within that time shall be excluded from any claim thereafter made; and such possession, so held, is a perpetual bar against all persons not under disability. (Rev., s. 382; Code, s. 141; C. C. P., s. 20.)

I. GENERAL NOTE ON ADVERSE POSSESSION.

A. General Consideration.

Editor's Notes. — The scope of this note is limited to a treatment of the general principles of titles by adverse possession of property which are alike applicable and essential to all the sections of the code upon the subject. It would have been impracticable to cite all of the great mass of cases upon this subject in this note and no attempt has been made to do so but references have been made to the digest where cumulative citations may be found.

While statutes of limitations are generally held to bar the remedy and not affect the right, adverse possession affects the right by vesting the actual title in the disseizor. In this respect it is an exception to the general rule of limitations.

Definition.—Adverse possession consists of the actual possession of property held to the exclusion of others including the true owner, and is exercised by making the ordinary use of which the property is susceptible in its present state and taking the usual profits. Locklear v. Savage, 159 N. C. 236, 74 S. E. 347. See 1 Enc. Dig. 207, sec. 12 for other cases. Such acts must be so repeated as to show that they are done in the character of owner, in opposition to the right or claim of any other person and not merely as an occasional trespasser. It must be as decided and notorious as the nature of the property will permit, affording unequivocal indication to all persons that the claimant is exercising the dominion of owner. Loftin v. Cobb, 46 N. C. 406. For other cases see 1 Enc. Dig. 208, sec. 12. This is the definition given by Judge Gaston in Williams v. Buchanan, 23 N. C. 535, 537, and has generally been followed since the case was decided in 1841. See 8 Enc. Dig. 212, sec. 15.

Such adverse possession as will ripen into title must be for the prescribed period of time and be clear, definite, positive and notorious. It must be continuous, adverse, hostile, and exclusive during the whole statutory period, and under a claim of title to the land occupied. Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 58 S. E. 993.

In other words, the claim must be adverse and accompanied by such an invasion of the rights of the opposite party as to give him a cause of action. It is the occupation with the intent to claim against the true owner which renders the entry and possession adverse. Snowden v. Bill, 159 N. C. 497, 75 S. E. 721.

There must be known and visible boundaries such as to apprise the true owner and the world of the extent of the possession claimed. Barfield v. Hill, 163 N. C. 262, 79 S. E. 677 and cases cited.

A better and more concise definition than was given in Locklear v. Savage, 159 N. C. 236, 237, 74 S. E. 347, would be difficult to find. It is therefore quoted as a resume: "Adverse possession within the meaning of the law * * * consists in actual possession, with an intent to hold solely for the possessor to the exclusion of others, and is denoted by the exercise of acts of dominion over the land, in making the ordinary use and taking the ordinary profits of which it is susceptible in its present state, such acts to be so repeated as to show that they are done in the character of owner, in opposition to right or claim of any other person, and not merely as an occasional trespasser. It must be as decided and notorious as the nature of the land will permit, affording unequivocal indication to all persons that he is exercising thereon the dominion of owner."

The particular elements will now be presented in somewhat more detail.

Color of title is defined in Smith v. Proctor, 139 N. C. 314, 324, 51 S. E. 889, as "a paper-writing (usually a deed) which professes and appears to pass the title, but fails to do so." A deed to which the privy examination of the married woman is not taken is color of title. Norwood v. Totten, 166 N. C. 648, 82 S. E. 951, see Barbee v. Bumpass, 191 N. C. 521, 132 S. E. 275; Booth v. Hariston, 193 N. C. 278, 136 S. E. 879. In Garner v. Horner, 191 N. C. 540, 132 S. E. 290, it is held: Failure to comply with § 2515, renders a deed void, although it is good as color of title. Best v. Utley, 189 N. C. 356, 361, 127 S. E. 337; Whitten v. Peace, 188 N. C. 298, 124 S. E. 571; Ennis v. Ennis, 195 N. C. 320, 323, 142 S. E. 8.

Whether a deed is champertous which conveys to the grantor's son certain described lands, reserving to the grantor and his wife a life estate, given in consideration of the grantee's successfully maintaining a suit to clear the title to the lands conveyed, it is sufficient color of title after registration and after the falling in of the reserved life estate, to ripen the title in the grantee under this section. Ennis v. Ennis, 195 N. C. 320, 142 S. E. 8.

An unregistered deed ordinarily is not color of title, except as between the original parties. Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 832, 838, 143 S. E. 857.

And where the probate of a deed to lands is fatally defective it is not color of title against the grantor in a later registered deed, under sufficient probate, from a common grantee. McClure v. Crow, 196 N. C. 657, 146 S. E. 713.

Property Subject to Prescription. — The title to property of the state (see sec. 425), and this included the property of the political subdivision prior to the enactment in 1891 of what is now sec. 435 which changed the rule, may be acquired by adverse possession. See the cases cited in 8 Enc. Dig. 205, secs. 5-7 (3); 13 Enc. Dig. p. 36, secs. 5-7 (3). But section 434 provides that property belonging to public service companies is not generally subject to title by prescription. It is the general rule that the property of private persons is always subject to title by adverse possession. See secs. 428, 432.

Persons against Whom Prescription May Be Claimed.— This subject was dealt with incidentally under the preceding catchline. Continuing that discussion, adverse possession and prescription may be had against a trustee and this though the cestui que trust is under a disability and out of the state. Blake v. Allman, 58 N. C. 407. And where the title is lost by the trustee, the cestui que trust is also concluded. Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 53 S. E. 728; King v. Rhew, 108 N. C. 696, 13 S. E. 174.

Joint tenants and tenants in common may lose their property by adverse possession and what is sufficient against one is sufficient against all. Cameron v. Hicks, supra. But in order for one tenant to gain title by adverse possession against his joint tenants he must commit some act of sufficient notoriety as to clearly indicate to the cotenants that he is holding adversely to them and to their exclusion. This is true because the possession of one tenant is presumed to be the possession of all. For full treatment see 11 Enc. Dig. p. 736 secs. 20-20(6).

There may be an entry or possession of one tenant in common which may amount to an actual ouster, so as to enable his cotenant to bring ejectment against him, but it must be by some clear, positive, and unequivocal act equivalent to an open denial of his right and to putting him out of the seizin. Such an actual ouster, followed by possession for the requisite time, will bar the cotenant's entry. Dobbins v. Dobbins, 141 N. C. 210, 53 S. E. 870.

So where a mortgage is made to a tenant in common by the other tenants therein, it is an ouster that puts them to their action and commences the running of the statute of Limitations, either under seven years color or under twenty years otherwise. Section 430. Crews v. Crews, 192 N. C. 679, 135 S. E. 784.

And where the plaintiffs seek to be let into the possession of lands as tenants in common, and it appears without conflicting evidence that the defendants have been in peaceful possession under a mortgage from ancestor for more than thirty years after ouster, no issue of fact is raised for the determination of the jury the title being complete in the adverse possessors. Crews v. Crews, 192 N. C. 679, 135 S. E. 784.

The statute will not ordinarily begin running against a remainderman until the falling in of the life estate. Roe v. Journigan, 181 N. C. 180, 106 S. E. 690. See post this note, catchline "Title to Remainder During Life Estate."

B. Character of Possession.

Must Be Actual. — There can be no adverse possession without an actual possession of the locus in quo, Cutler v. Blockman, 4 N. C. 368, and no constructive possession will ripen into a good title. Williams v. Wallace, 78 N. C. 354.

Thus the payment of taxes and the employment of agents in respect to land are insufficient acts to constitute possession. Ruffin v. Overly, 88 N. C. 369. As was said by the court in considering sec. 428, and this applies with equal force to all the statutes, "the adverse claimant should either possess it in person, or by his slaves, servants or tenants; for feeding of cattle or hogs, or building hog pens, or cutting wood from off the land, may be done so secretly as that the neighborhood may not take notice of it; and if they should, such facts do not prove an adverse claim, as all of these are but acts of trespass: Whereas, when a settlement is made upon land, houses erected, lands cleared and cultivated, and the party openly continues in possession, such acts admit of no other construction than this, that the possessor means to claim the land as his own." Grant v. Winborne, 3 N. C. 56; Andrews v. Mulford, 2 N. C. 311. It has been held that cutting timber and making shingles in a swamp unfit for cultivation continuously for seven years. (see sec. 428) is a good possession.

Same—Test for Determining Sufficiency. — As stated above in this note, using the land continuously and openly a sufficient length of time for the only purpose for which it is fit, is all that is required. Thus maintaining fish traps, erecting and repairing dams and using the property every year during the fishing season for a sufficient number of years is sufficient possession of a non-navigable stream. Locklear v. Savage, 159 N. C. 236, 74 S. E. 347, and citations. However cutting trees and feeding hogs upon land susceptible of other uses, is insufficient. Loftin v. Cobb, 46 N. C. 406; Vanderbilt v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 370, 54 S. E. 298, sets forth sufficient evidence of adverse possession

Applying the "use of which the land is capable" test the court has decided that the following acts were sufficient: Overflowing land under certain circumstances, see LaRoque v. Kennedy, 156 N. C. 360, 72 S. E. 454; erecting dams and fish traps, Gudger v. Kensley, 82 N. C. 482, 483; operating lime kiln, Moore v. Thompson, 69 N. C. 120; making turpentine, Gudger v. Kensley, 82 N. C. 482, 483; cultivation, Burton v. Carruth, 18 N. C. 2, 3 and citations. Wallace v. Maxwell, 32 N. C. 110, Smith v. Bryan, 44 N. C. 180, 183; pasturage, Andrews v. Mulford, 2 N. C. 311; and cutting timber, Wall v. Wall, 142 N. C. 387, 55 S. E. 283; Staton v. Mullis, 92 N. C. 624.

The following acts were held insufficient because of lack of continuity or insufficient duration. Cultivation, Hamilton v. Icard, 114 N. C. 532, 19 S. E. 607; Hamilton v. Icard, 117 N. C. 477, 23 S. E. 354; Prevatt v. Harrelson, 132 N. C. 250, 43 S. E. 800; State v. Suttle, 115 N. C. 784, 20 S. E. 725; gold hunting, Ward v. Herrin, 49 N. C. 23, 25, and citations; cutting timber, Barlett v. Simmons, 49 N. C. 295, 296; Shaffer v. Gaynor, 117 N. C. 15, 23 S. E. 154; Campbell v. Miller, 165 N. C. 51, 80 S. E. 974; Blue Ridge Land Co. v. Floyd, 167 N. C. 686, 83 S. E. 687.

Same—Payment of Taxes. — Paying taxes is not enough to constitute an adverse possession. The payment of taxes is an assertion of a mere claim of title and therefore is insufficient because it is not an actual, open, visible occupation begun and continued under a claim of right. Malloy v. Bruden, 86 N. C. 251. However it does constitute a relevant fact in establishing a claim of title and may be considered along with evidence of possession in proving adverse possession. Austin v. King, 97 N. C. 339, 2 S. E. 678; Christman v. Hillard, 167 N. C. 4, 7, 82 S. E. 949.

Same—Title to Remaindermen During Life Estate. — Title by adverse possession cannot be had against the remaindermen before the life estate has ended, because no actual possession of the remainder may be had, but title to the life estate may be gained at such time. Brown v. Brown, 168 N. C. 4, 84 S. E. 25. The statutes cannot begin to run against remaindermen until the expiration of the particular estate. Honeycutt v. Brooks, 116 N. C. 788, 21 S. E. 558; Roe v. Journigan, 181 N. C. 180, 106 S. E. 690.

Same — Adjoining Boundaries. — If, two persons own adjoining lands, and one runs a fence so near the line as to induce the jury to believe that any slight encroachments were inadvertently made, and that it was the design to run on the line, the possession constituted by the inclosure might be regarded as permissive, and could not be treated as adverse, even for the land within the fence, except as it furnished evidence of the line in a case of disputed boundary. The line being admitted, it would not make a title, where a naked adverse possession will have that effect, because there was no intention to go beyond his deed, but an intention to keep within it, which by a mere mistake he had happened not to do. Currie v. Gilchrist, 147 N. C. 548, 61 S. E. 581; Blue Ridge Land Co. v. Floyd, 171 N. C. 543, 546, 547, 88 S. E. 862.

Necessity of Being Visible and Notorious. — It was suggested under the definition that the possession must be as notorious as the nature of the property will permit. The illustrations given under the preceding catch line and the rule therein developed are but illustrations of this rule. The possession must always be as actual, as well as notorious, as the nature of the property will permit, but, although the possession must always be so notorious as to be visible, it is not necessary that the true owner have actual knowledge. It is sufficient if the possession would be notice of the adverse character to the ordinary person, if he should make the observation that the ordinary owner would make of his own property. The owner is bound to ascertain the nature of the claim after notice has been given him. Kennedy v. Maness, 138 N. C. 35, 50 S. E. 450.

The possession spoken of must be constituted by such acts as would expose the party to a suit by the State, or by some person claiming under the State; for it is the forbearance to sue that raises such a presumption of right as induced the Legislature to ratify the apparent title. Hedrick v. Gobble, 61 N. C. 348, 349.

Posting land and keeping away trespassers is insufficient because it is not a visible and notorious possession. Berry v. Richmond Cedar Works, 184 N. C. 187, 113 S. E. 772.

Continuity and Duration. — The duration of the possession to ripen into title is always fixed by the statutes. The ordinary periods are fixed; as against the state by sec. 425, private individuals under color, sec. 428, and without color sec. 430. Certain limitations and exceptions are imposed upon these sections by secs. 434 and 435.

Proof that land was cultivated under one claiming title and that timber was cut thereon as needed, unaccompanied by any evidence of the length of time of the occupancy by cultivation, did not establish title by adverse possession without color of title under section 430. Betts v. Gahagan, 212 Fed. 120.

The continuity is largely a matter of interpretation and construction of these sections for none of them expressly indicate the extent to which the possession must be continuous.

In proving continuous adverse possession nothing must be left to mere conjecture. The testimony must tend to prove the continuity of possession for the statutory period, either in plain terms or by "necessary implication." Ruffin v. Overby, 105 N. C. 78, 83, 11 S. E. 251. The possession need not be unceasing, but the evidence should be such as to warrant the inference that the actual use and occupation have extended over the required period, and that during it the claimant has, from time to time, continuously subjected the disputed land to the only use of which it was susceptible. Locklear v. Savage, 159 N. C. 236, 239, 74 S. E. 347; Cross v. S. A. L. Co. 172 N. C. 119, 90 S. E. 14. Occasional trespasses are not sufficient, for the possession must be of such character as to continually expose the party to suit by the true owner. Alexander v. Richmond Cedar Works, 177 N. C. 137, 98 S. E. 312. The illustrations and the rule stated under the catchline "Actual Possession." in this note expound the true rule of continuity. It must be just as continuous as the nature of the property will permit provided it is sufficient to meet the requirement as to notoriousness.

So, where the plaintiff showed a sufficient and connected title to the land in controversy in himself, as contemplated by section 432, it is necessary for the defendant, claiming by adverse possession under a deed to his ancestor, as color, to show a continuity of such possession for seven years. Blue Ridge Land Co. v. Floyd, 167 N. C. 686, 83 S. E. 687.

It has been held that the possession by a tenant of defendant's ancestor for one year, under his deed, and the occasional entry upon the land by his heirs at law after his death, for the purpose of cutting a few logs, is insufficient evidence of adverse possession in character and continuity to be submitted to the jury. Blue Ridge Land Co. v. Floyd, 167 N. C. 686, 83 S. E. 687.

An intervening period of five months, Holdfast v. Shephard, 28 N. C. 361, and one year, Ward v. Herrin, 49 N. C. 23, 24; Malloy v. Bruden, 86 N. C. 251, 259, have been held to be sufficient intervals to defeat title by adverse possession.

A gap occurring during the period of a suspension of the statute is sufficient to destroy the continuity. Malloy v. Bruden, 85 N. C. 251.

Same — Reasons for Rule as to Continuity. — The reason for the rule of continuity is that at all times there is a presumption in favor of the true owner, and he is deemed by law to have possession coextensive with his title except during the periods he is actually ousted by the personal occupation of another, so that whenever the occupation of another actually ceases, the title again draws to it the possession, and the seizin of the owner is restored. A subsequent entry even by the same wrongdoer and under the same claim of title constitutes a new disseizin from the date of which the statute takes a fresh start. Malloy v. Bruden, 86 N. C. 251, 259. But it is not to be understood that the possession is interfered with by the casual entry of a trespasser sufficiently to defeat title. Hayes v. Lumber Co., 180 N. C. 252, 104 S. E. 527.

From the above authorities it would seem that the true rule is that whenever an occupation ceases for a period ever so brief the statute stops running but if the nature of the only use to which the land can be subjected is such or the actual and continuous occupation is such that from the very nature of things there are periods of time when the adverse possessor is not actually upon the land but is in fact occupying it under his claim the possession is not sufficiently interrupted to defeat title when so held for a sufficient period of time. Ed. Note.

The discussion under this catchline is limited to actions against private individuals. The rule regarding the continuity of the possession as against the state is converse to that respecting continuity as against private individuals. See note to sec. 425.

Tacking Possessions — Privity. — It is not necessary that the adverse claimant hold the possession for the statutory period provided he can establish a privity in claim, possession, etc., with the prior possessors, which when taken together will constitute the period of time necessary to give title. Campbell v. Everhart, 139 N. C. 503, 52 S. E. 201. This privity is necessary where the claimant has not had possession for the statutory period for he cannot derive any benefit from the possession of a third party, or of others claiming under the third party, where he fails to connect himself with such third party's title. Johnston v. Case, 131 N. C. 491, 42 S. E. 957.

This rule of privity applies alike to cases of adverse possession against the state and private individuals, whether with or without color of title, May v. Mfg., etc., Co., 164 N. C. 262, 80 S. E. 380; Johnston v. Case, 131 N. C. 491, 42 S. E. 957; although prior to sec. 425 the rule was otherwise as against the state. Phipps v. Pierce, 94 N. C. 514, 518; Price v. Jackson, 91 N. C. 11, 13. For other cases see 1 Enc. Dig. pp. 230, 231, sec. 36(2); 13 Enc. Dig. p. 40, sec. 36(2).

It has been held that to constitute privity, the later occupant must enter under a prior one and obtain his possession either by purchase or descent from him. Privity means privity of possession and not privity in blood for a "privity in blood" is one who derives his title by descent and applies to a real title which can descend and not to a mere colorable title. By this is meant, of course, that the possession descends and the heirs must take immediate possession to prevent a gap. Upon such entry the possession of the ancestor may be tacked to that of the heirs as if he possessed the land under color of title, the heirs, by descent so possess it. Barrett v. Brewer, 153 N. C. 547, 69 S. E. 614; Alexander v. Gibbon, 118 N. C. 796, 24 S. E. 748; Truston v. Blount, 4 N. C. 455. In a like manner the widow may tack her possession to that of her husband where she immediately possesses the property as a part of her homestead. (Atwell v. Shook, 133 N. C. 387, 45 S. E. 777) or dower. Jacobs v. Williams, 173 N. C. 276, 91 S. E. 951.

The possession of a widow under a homestead inures to the benefit of the heirs, and for the purpose of perfecting title in them by adverse possession may be tacked to that of the husband. Atwell v. Shook, 133 N. C. 387, 45 S. E. 777.

For the reason explained above possession by the legal representative is a continuation of the possession of the deceased. Trustees v. Blount, 4 N. C. 455.

The possession of a tenant is the possession of the landlord and is to be added to that of the landlord in person. Alexander v. Gibbons, 118 N. C. 796, 24 S. E. 748.

The same rule applies where a vendee holds possession under articles of purchase and his possession enures to ripen the defective title of the vendor. Rhodes v. Brown, 13 N. C. 195. This rule was applied as against co-tenants of a husband, notwithstanding that the husband, who held entire possession and while so holding deeded the property to his wife, was later decreed a tenant in common, the wife not being a party to the proceedings. Gill v. Porter, 176 N. C. 451, 97 S. E. 381.

It should be observed in this connection that the possession of a grantor who had no color of title cannot be tacked to that of his grantee in order to make up the seven years possession under color of title as required by sec. 428. Morrison v. Craven, 120 N. C. 327, 26 S. E. 940.

In cases where the claimant is holding possession under color of title he cannot tack his possession of the land not covered by his color to the possession of his grantor. This is an application of the rule that possession cannot be tacked to make out title by prescription when the deed under which the last occupant claims title does not include the land in dispute. See Jennings v. White, 139 N. C. 22, 51 S. E. 799; Blackstock v. Cole, 51 N. C. 560.

Same—Hostile Character. — It may be stated as a general proposition that the possession must be hostile to the true owner. This question becomes especially important where a person standing in a fiduciary relation has possession of the property in such capacity or where a tenant, a licensee, vendor or some other such person gains title in subordination to the true owner. See Rogers v. Mabe, 15 N. C. 180; Foscue v. Foscue, 37 N. C. 321; Johnson v. Farlow, 35 N. C. 84. For other cases see 1 Enc. Dig. p. 240 et seq. Such person cannot hold possession adversely until he commits some act sufficient to apprise the true owner of the fact that he is holding adversely to his interest under a claim of ownership.

Whenever the possessor holds in subordination to the true owner whether in such capacity as named above or by having recognized a superior title in another, his possession will not ripen into title. Gwyn v. Stokes, 9 N. C. 235. For other cases and full treatmet see 1 Enc. Dig. 240, et seq. secs. 44-69(3); 13 Enc. Dig. pp. 42 et seq. secs. 44-69(4).

Thus there is no presumption that the possession of one under and in subordination to the legal title is adverse, and when the title is thus claimed by adverse possession, or for seven years under color, the burden is upon him who relies thereon to show such possession to have been continuous, uninterrupted, and manifested by distinct and unequivocal acts of ownership. Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 58 S. E. 993.

An adverse possession by one tenant in common is indicated by a hostile attitude apparent to the Court or jury, from which it may be seen by some act done that the intent to hold alone is manifested to the cotenants, as if they attempt to assert their claim, as to enter, or to demand an account of rents, etc., which is resisted by the occupant, his possession becomes adverse, and the statute begins to run. Tharpe v. Holcomb, 126 N. C. 365, 35 S. E. 608.

Burden of Proof — Presumptions. — When the title is claimed by adverse possession, the burden is on him who relies upon such claim to show continuous possession. There is no presumption that the possession of real estate is adverse. Monk v. Wilmington, 137 N. C. 322, 49 S. E. 345; Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 170, 58 S. E. 993. See sec. 432.

II. NOTE TO SECTION 428.

Relation to Section 445.—This section and sec. 430 apply to actions for the recovery of real estate to the exclusion of sec. 445. Williams v. Scott, 122 N. C. 545, 29 S. E. 877.

Effect of Disability.—Seven years' adverse possession under color, is no bar to an action of ejectment, where the person entitled to commence the same is an infant at the time the title to the land descended to him, and sues within three years next after full age. Clayton v. Rose, 87 N. C. 106, 107,

But a married woman who acquired no title by another junior grant issued to her cannot use her disability to defeat the right of the plaintiffs. Berry v. Lumber Co., 141 N. C. 386, 54 S. E. 278.

Extent of Estate Acquired.—A life estate must be acquired by adverse possession under color of title. Clendenin v. Clendenin, 181 N. C. 465, 107 S. E. 458 and citations. From dissenting opinion.

Connection with Grant as Requisite to Pleading Section.—The plaintiff may show title out of the State by offering a grant to a stranger, without connecting himself with it, and then offer proof of open, notorious, continuous adverse possession, under color of title in himself and those under whom he claims, for seven years before the action was brought. Blair v. Miller, 13 N. C. 407; Christenbury v. King, supra; Isler v. Dewey, 84 N. C. 345; Mobley v. Griffin, 104 N. C. 112, 115, 10 S. E. 142.

Sufficiency of Paper to Constitute Color.—There can be no color of title without some paper writing attempting to convey title, but which does not do it either because of want of title in the person making it or because of the defective mode of conveyance used; and, semble, that under the act of 1891 it must not be so plainly and obviously defective that a man of ordinary capacity could be misled by it. This is true notwithstanding the holding in Neal v. Nelson, 177 N. C. 394, 23 S. E. 428; Williams v. Scott, 122 N. C. 545, 29 S. E. 877.

Same—Bond for Title as Color.—Where a bond for title is unconditional and calls for no future payment, the presumption, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, is that the price was paid before or at the time of the signing, so that it is "color of title" to support adverse possession within this section. Betts v. Gahagan, 212 Fed. 120.

"After payment of the purchase money, a bond for title is 'color of title' to support adverse possession even against the vendor. Avent v. Arrington, 105 N. C. 377, 10 S. E. 991." Betts v. Gahagan, 212 Fed. 120, 123.

Same—Deed for Partition as Color.—A deed by the heirs of a deceased owner of land for partition thereof is not color of title within this section. Betts v. Gahagan, 212 Fed. 120.

A deed by a grantee in a deed of partition by heirs of the deceased owner to a third person of the land conveyed to the grantee in the partition is color of title within this section, where the third person had no interest in the land outside of the deed. Betts v. Gahagan, 212 Fed. 120.

Where the possession of a widow, when tacked to the possession of her husband, is sufficient to confer title to the land on the heirs of the husband by adverse possession, under section 430, whether a certain deed of a commissioner in a partition proceeding constituted color of title so as to complete the title of the heirs by adverse possession under this section is immaterial. Atwell v. Shook, 133 N. C. 387, 45 S. E. 777.

Same—Unregistered Deed.—An unregistered deed is not color of title as against judgment creditors of the grantor. Eaton v. Doub, 190 N. C. 14, 128 S. E. 494.

Same—Voidable Deed.—A voidable deed is sufficient color although it is a distinct and separate source of title from the one under which entry was first made. Butler v. Beil, 181 N. C. 85, 106 S. E. 217.

Same—Void Deed.—A void deed constitutes color of title. Bond v. Beverly, 152 N. C. 56, 67 S. E. 55.

A wife's deed to her husband is color of title even if it be void, and his sufficient adverse possession for seven years, under this section, will ripen the fee-simple title in him. Potts v. Payne, 200 N. C. 246, 156 S. E. 499.

Same—Deed by Mortgagor in Possession.—A deed by the mortgagor in possession to a third party, with notice of the mortgage, conveys only the equity of redemption, and does not pass such a colorable title as may ripen by possession into an absolute legal estate. Parker v. Banks, 79 N. C. 480.

Same—Deed of Non Compos Mentis.—The deed of a person non compos is color of title, and possession under it for seven years ripens into title against those not under disability. Ellington v. Ellington, 103 N. C. 54, 9 S. E. 208.

Character of Possession under Section.—Chief Justice Ruffin in Green v. Harman, 15 N. C. 158 at p. 162, said. "The operation of the statute of limitations depends upon two things: The one is possession continued for seven years; and the other the character of that possession—that it should be adverse. It has never been held that the owner should actually know of the fact of possession, nor have actual knowledge of the nature or extent of the possessor's claim. It is presumed, indeed, that he will acquire the knowledge, and it is intended that he should." Blue Ridge Land Co. v. Floyd, 171 N. C. 543, 546, 88 S. E. 862.

The possession of one under color is sufficient notice of his claim of title to the lands. Butler v. Bell, 181 N. C. 85, 106 S. E. 217.

The adverse possession for seven years under color, which bars the entry of the true owner, must be open, continuous, uninterrupted, and manifested by distinct and unequivocal acts of ownership, the burden being upon him who asserts that he has thus acquired the title, to show such actual adverse possession. Monk v. Wilmington, 137 N. C. 322, 49 S. E. 345; Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 58 S. E. 993; Stewart v. McCormick, 161 N. C. 625, 626, 77 S. E. 761. For full treatment see part one of this note, supra.

If the character of the possession is insufficient to ripen a perfect title, the question of color of title does not arise. Clendenin v. Clendenin, 181 N. C. 465, 107 S. E. 458.

Charging This and Section 430.—Where, in an action for the recovery of land, defendant relied on this section and section 430, and the evidence justified a finding in his favor under this section, but there was no evidence to support a verdict under section 430, the error in refusing to charge that defendant could not hold under section 430 was not reversible, since it could not be inferred that the verdict was based on a finding of adverse possession for twenty years merely because the court refused to charge that there was no evidence of adverse possession for twenty years. Betts v. Gahagan, 212 Fed. 120, 121.

Conflict Making Jury Question.—Where the defendant in ejectment claims the locus in quo by sufficient evidence of adverse possession with and without "color," as against plaintiff's chain of paper title, and the defendant denies the genuineness of a lease to his predecessor which the plaintiff has introduced, an issue of fact is raised for the determination of the jury. Virginia-Carolina Power Co. v. Taylor, 191 N. C. 329, 131 S. E. 646.

Effect on Lien of Judgment Creditor.—Adverse possession against a judgment debtor for a period of seven years under color of title does not affect the lien of a judgment creditor, the judgment creditor having no right of entry or cause of action for possession, but only a lien enforceable according to the prescribed procedure, and as to him the possession is not adverse. Moses v. Major, 201 N. C. 613, 160 S. E. 890.

Effect of Miscitation.—The criticism to which this section may be obnoxious in misreciting other intended sections cannot affect the application of section 407 to the previously limited actions for real property, to which these are expressly made subject. Clayton v. Rose, 87 N. C. 106, 111. Formerly this section cited the statutes naming and defining the disabilities and it is to these citations that this annotation refers. Ed. Note.

Cited in Dill-Cramer-Truitt Corp. v. Downs, 195 N. C. 189, 141 S. E. 570.

§ 429. Seizin within twenty years necessary.—No action for the recovery or possession of real property shall be maintained, unless it appears that the plaintiff, or those under whom he claims, was seized or possessed of the premises in question within twenty years before the commencement of the action, unless he was under the disabilities prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 383; Code, s. 143; C. C. P., s. 22.)

Section Not Retroactive. — This salutary provision does not extend to actions already commenced or rights of actions already accrued at the ratification of the Code. Covington v. Stewart, 77 N. C. 148, 151.

Legal Title Prima Facie Evidence of Possession.—If a plaintiff establishes on the trial a legal title to the premises, he will be presumed to have been possessed thereof within the time required by law, unless it is made to appear that such premises have been held and possessed adversely to such legal title for the time prescribed by law before the commencement of such action. Johnston v. Pate, 83 N. C. 110; Conkey v. Roper Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 499, 503, 36 S. E. 42.

Same—Section Construed with Section 432. — In cases where there is no tenancy in common this section of the Code must be construed with section 432, for this section is explained in sec. 432 by the further declaration that the person who establishes a legal title to the premises shall be presumed to have been possessed thereof within the time required by law, etc. Conkey v. Roper Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 499, 502, 36 S. E. 42.

Same—Effect of Plea of Section by Adversary. — The pleading by a defendant of this section does not shift upon the plaintiff the burden of showing that he has been in the possession within twenty years before the commencement of the action, but the presumption created by sec. 132 can only be rebutted by proof on the part of the defendant that the defendant had been in adverse possession of the premises for twenty years. Conkey v. Roper Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 499, 502, 36 S. E. 42.

Same—Character of Defendant's Possession as Affecting Application.—This section does not apply when the plaintiffs have shown legal title and it appears that the defendants' possession has not been for twenty continuous years. Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 58 S. E. 993. See also Clendenin v. Clendenin, 181 N. C. 465, 107 S. E. 458 where it was held that the other entry must be openly and notoriously adverse or some act must be done to clearly indicate that it has become adverse, and that the occupation of the mother-in-law's land after her death, where original entry was in subordination to her title, is insufficient. See also Rutledge & Co. v. Griffin Mfg. Co., 183 N. C. 430, 111 S. E. 774.

Same—Where Previously Gained by Adverse Possession.—Where plaintiffs acquired the title by adverse possession of the land under color for more than thirty years, it follows that they had at least constructive seizin or possession within twenty years before this suit was brought, which would satisfy the requirement, as seizin follows the title, if there is no actual possession and it is not incumbent on them to show an actual seizin or possession of the premises in question for twenty years before the commencement of the action. Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 58 S. E. 993; Stewart v. McCormick, 161 N. C. 625, 626, 77 S. E. 761.

Notwithstanding that a judgment was rendered against a party in an action to recover lands, if he subsequently enter, inclose and use the lands for the statutory period, he will acquire a new estate by disseizen and acquiescence and will be presumed to have been in possession within the past twenty years. Moore v. Curtis, 169 N. C. 74, 85 S. E. 132.

Evidence Sufficient under Section.—The evidence in Dean v. Gupton, 136 N. C. 141, 48 S. E. 576, was sufficient to sustain a finding under this section that the defendant held adversely to the plaintiff.

Cited in Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 832, 836, 143 S. E. 857; Reid v. Reid, 206 N. C. 1, 4, 173 S. E. 10.

§ 430. Twenty years adverse possession.—No action for the recovery or possession of real property, or the issues and profits thereof, shall be maintained when the person in possession thereof, or defendant in the action, or those under whom he claims, has possessed the property under known and visible lines and boundaries adversely to all other persons for twenty years; and such possession so held gives a title in fee to the possessor, in such property, against all persons not under disability. (Rev., s. 384; Code, s. 144; C. C. P., s. 23.)

See note under § 426.

Editor's Note.—The first part of the annotations under section 428 are devoted to a treatment of the general principles of adverse possession and that treatment is just as pertinent to this section as sec. 428. Thus no repetition of the principle therein discussed will be made in this note.

Proof Out of State as Prerequisite to Pleading Section.—Prior to the passage of sec. 426, in 1917, before one could establish title to property under this section, title must have been proved to be out of the state.—Ed. Note.

Thus, where adjoining owners were litigating with respect to their boundaries and each introduced a grant from the state to their lands respectively, which taken together, covered the locus in quo, title was shown out of the state and either party could establish title to any part thereof by adverse possession for twenty years under this section. Stewart v. Stephenson, 172 N. C. 81, 89 S. E. 1060.

But since the passage of section 426 the title is conclusively presumed to be out of the state and such proof is not now necessary except in the cause specified.—Ed. Note.

Effect of Section Upon Prior Law. — The possession for twenty years which raised a presumption of title, as the law has been heretofore administered, has now the force and effect of giving an actual title in fee by the provisions of this section. Covington v. Stewart, 77 N. C. 148, 151.

Section Prescribes Maximum Required. — It is error to charge that the adverse claimant must maintain open and continuous possession without break for thirty years before the bringing of his action as only twenty years adverse possession is required to give a title in fee to the possessor, as against all persons not under disability, except the state, see sec. 425. Walden v. Ray, 121 N. C. 237, 238, 28 S. E. 293.

Section 428 Immaterial When This Section Applicable.—Where title by adverse possession can be established under this section, the question of whether a color of title is sufficient under section 428 is immaterial. Atwell v. Shook, 133 N. C. 387, 45 S. E. 777.

Even if there is a deed, with metes and bounds, the adverse possession of twenty years would bar the defendant under the statute of limitations. Railroad v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 271, 55 S. E. 263, cited and distinguished. May v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 151 N. C. 388, 66 S. E. 310.

Section Applicable to Exclusion of Section 445.—This section and section 428 apply to actions for the recovery of real estate to the exclusion of section 445. Williams v. Scott, 122 N. C. 545, 29 S. E. 877.

Presumption of Deed to Possession.—There is no error in a judge charging that where title is out of the state and the evidence shows possession for 20 years the jury might presume a deed to the possessor from any person having title. This is settled law. Melvin v. Waddell, 75 N. C. 361, 368.

Deed as Evidence of Possession. — Deed of sheriff to grantor of plaintiff in ejectment is no evidence of possession. Prevatt v. Harrelson, 132 N. C. 250, 43 S. E. 800.

Elements of Possession Necessary.—See general note under section 428.

Tenants in Common—Possession of One Possession of All. —The possession of one tenant in common is presumed to be the possession of all. Tharpe v. Holcomb, 126 N. C. 365, 35 S. E. 608.

Where plaintiff and defendants were tenants in common, the possession of the defendants, not having been adverse for twenty years, was the possession of the plaintiff. Conkey v. Roper Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 499, 36 S. E. 42.

To ripen title under a deed from a tenant in common twenty years adverse possession is necessary and this applies to one to whom the alienee of a tenant has attempted to convey the entire estate. Bradford v. Bank, 182 N. C. 235, 108 S. E. 750.

Evidence of Possession Sufficient to Sustain Charge. — Where the plaintiff introduced evidence to show that he had open and continuous adverse possession of the lands under known and visible metes and bounds for more than twenty years, it is sufficient under this section to sustain a charge of the court to the jury as to his title by adverse possession. Stewart v. Stephenson, 172 N. C. 81, 89 S. E. 1060.

Adverse possession sufficient to ripen title is the exclusive use of the claimant for twenty years, continuously taxing the exclusive benefits such as the land in question is capable of yielding, under known and visible metes and bounds. Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 832, 143 S. E. 857.

Priority over Judgment Lien.—Where a judgment debtor has lost title to lands by adverse possession, prior to the acquisition and registration of the judgment, the judgment creditor under § 614, is not entitled to execution on the locus in quo, the judgment debtor having no title at the time of the judgment, and this result is not affected by the giving of a deed by the debtor to the claimant, which was not registered until after the judgment. Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 832, 143 S. E. 857.

Effect of Exclusive Dominion after Dedication to Public.— Where the owner of land has platted and sold it by deeds referring to streets, parks, etc., according to a registered map, the grantees have an easement therein, but where he has later fenced off a part of the land so offered for dedication to the public and under known metes and bounds has exercised exclusive and adverse dominion over the enclosed lands, asserting absolute title, the statute of limitations will begin to run against the easements of the grantees thus acquired, which will ripen title to the enclosed lands in favor of the owner or his grantee under the provisions of this section, by twenty years adverse possession. Gault v. Lake Waccamaw, 200 N. C. 593, 158 S. E. 104.

Burden of Proof.—See note under § 432.

Question for Jury.—Where there is evidence that title to the lands had been acquired under twenty years adverse possession this question should be submitted to the jury. McClure v. Crow, 196 N. C. 657, 146 S. E. 713.

Evidence of plaintiffs' testator's actual, open and notorious adverse possession of the land in question under known and visible metes and bounds, in the character of owner and adverse to the cliams of all other persons held sufficient to be submitted to the jury under this section. Reid v. Reid, 206 N. C. 1, 173 S. E. 10.

Claim to Timber—Evidence. — As to competency of evidence where question depended upon high and low water marks, see Rutledge & Co. v. Griffin Mfg. Co., 183 N. C. 430, 111 S. E. 774.

Cited in Dean v. Gupton, 136 N. C. 141, 48 S. E. 576; Mobley v. Griffin, 104 N. C. 112, 115, 10 S. E. 142; Dill-Cromer-Truitt Corp. v. Downs, 195 N. C. 189, 190, 141 S. E. 570.

§ 431. Action after entry.—No entry upon real estate shall be deemed sufficient or valid, as a claim, unless an action is commenced thereupon within one year after the making of the entry, and within the time prescribed in this chapter. (Rev., s. 385; Code, s. 145; C. C. P., s. 24.)

Editor's Note. — At common law any person who had a right of possession could assert it by a peaceful entry, without the formality of a legal action, and being so in possession, could retain it, and plead that it was his soil and freehold. This was allowed in all cases where the original entry of the wrongdoer was unlawful. See 1 Bouv. Law Dict., title "Entry." This section seems to be a limitation upon the rule in that while an entry may be made, it must be followed by a suit within one year and within the period of limitation (either 20, 7, 30 or 21 years after the statute began running, as this case might be) prescribed by the various sections of the code. The effect seems to be that the common law entry without maintaining a suit within one year thereof is insufficient so that one cannot repossess himself by an entry without also maintaining an action. The latter part of this section, "and within the time prescribed by law before the commencement of the action" is but a recognition of the statutes prescribing the various periods necessary for an adverse possession ripening into title. See Clayton v. Cagle, 97 N. C. 300, 303, 1 S. E. 523.

§ 432. Possession follows legal title.—In every action for the recovery or possession of real property, or damages for a trespass on such possession, the person establishing a legal title to the premises is presumed to have been possessed thereof within the time required by law; and the occupation of such premises by any other person is deemed to have been under, and in subordination to, the legal title, unless it appears that the premises have been held and possessed adversely to the legal title for the time prescribed by law before the commencement of the action. (Rev., s. 386; Code, s. 146; C. C. P., s. 25.)

Necessity of Showing Legal Title. — The statutory presumption as to possession and occupation of land in favor of the true owner, from the express language of the provision, will arise and exist only in favor of a claimant who has shown "a legal title", and until this is made to appear the presumption is primarily in favor of the occupant, that he is in possession asserting ownership. Moore v. Miller, 179 N. C. 396, 102 S. E. 627.

Presumption of Subordination. — When the defendant relies on a deed made to his ancestor as color, and adverse possession of others thereunder to ripen his title, it is necessary to show that their occupancy was under or connected with the deed under which he claims, or the presumption will obtain that they were under the true title shown by the plaintiff. Blue Ridge Land Co. v. Floyd, 167 N. C. 686, 83 S. E. 687.

When the plaintiff in ejectment shows title to the locus in quo, and the defendant claims title by adverse possession, the latter must establish such affirmative defense by the greater weight of the evidence; otherwise, under this section, the defendants' occupation is deemed to be under and in subordination to the legal title. Hayes v. Cotton, 201 N. C. 369, 371, 160 S. E. 453.

Presumption of Possession and Rebuttal. — The presumption that one who proves legal title in himself has been in possession within twenty years is not rebutted by proof that an adverse claimant has been in possession where the claimant holds under a deed from a tenant in common with the devisor of the holder of the legal title. Roscoe v. Roper Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 42, 46, 32 S. E. 389.

It is not necessary to consider the effect of this section where, conceding the presumption raised thereby, it is rebutted by the admission in the case agreed. Kirkman v. Holland, 139 N. C. 185, 189, 51 S. E. 856.

Same—Where Neither in Possession. — Where the defendants have not shown twenty years' possession, and, the plaintiffs having shown the legal title, the law carries the seizin to the party having the legal title, when neither is in possession. Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 169, 58 S. E. 993.

Construed with Section 429. — Where the plaintiff by proving legal title has raised the presumption under this section that he has been in possession within twenty years the presumption operates to satisfy the requirements of sec. 429 so that the plaintiff does not have to prove such possession. The two sections are to be construed together—the defendant must show that he himself has been in possession adversely for twenty years. Johnston v. Pate, 83 N. C. 110; Conkey v. Roper Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 499, 36 S. E. 42.

Section Has Not Been Construed as to Ouster. — This section of The Code, which is taken from the New York Code, has never been construed by this Court. Monk v. Wilmington, 137 N. C. 322, 326, 49 S. E. 345; Dobbins v. Dobbins, 141 N. C. 210, 219, 53 S. E. 870.

What is the true construction of this section with reference to causes of action founded upon an ouster, which occurred since the date of its adoption, is left open for future consideration, when the matter is directly presented. Dobbins v. Dobbins, 141 N. C. 210, 220, 53 S. E. 870.

However, too many cases have been decided by the Court since this section was enacted as law, in which the rule as to a presumed ouster has been recognized and applied, to hold at this time that the rule has been changed by it, at least where the eviction or ouster took place prior to 1868. Dobbins v. Dobbins, 141 N. C. 210, 220, 53 S. E. 870.

Presumption as to Possession of One Not True Owner.— It was held, in Ruffin v. Overby, 88 N. C. 369. "That every possession of land by one other than the claimant is deemed to be adverse until proof to the contrary is made." And it seems that the holding is in conflict with this section. This may be explained by reference to the fact that the ouster in that case occurred prior to 1868, as it did in Bryan v. Spivey, 109 N. C. 57, 13 S. E. 766. Thus there is no presumption under the section that the possession of the plaintiffs and those under whom they claim is adverse. Monk v. Wilmington, 137 N. C. 322, 325, 49 S. E. 345.

There is no presumption that the possession of one under and in subordination to the legal title is adverse, and when the title is thus claimed by adverse possession, or for seven years under color, the burden is upon him who relies thereon to prove possession. Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 58 S. E. 993.

But even if Ruffin v. Overby, 88 N. C. 369, is in conflict with this section, the section does not profess to be conclusive. The presumption does not arise until the claimant "establishes a legal right to the premises," and not then even, if "it appears that such premises have been held and possessed adversely to such legal title." Monk v. Wilmington, 137 N. C. 322, 328, 49 S. E. 345. From dissenting opinion.

Disability Exception Limited to Persons Having Right of Entry, etc.—Adverse possession relates only to the true title, and the exceptions in this statute as to those under disability can apply only to one having by virtue of his title a right of entry or of action. Berry v. Lumber Co., 141 N. C. 386, 396, 54 S. E. 278.

Application to Claims from Common Source. — Where the parties claimed title from a common source, the plaintiff's deed being the older, but the defendant's having been recorded first, and possession for many years was in defendant, there being no evidence of the plaintiff ever having possession, this section does not apply. Mintz v. Russ, 161 N. C. 538, 77 S. E. 851.

Burden and Sufficiency of Proof. — The defendant in an action to recover lands, depending upon adverse possession thereof under color of title, where the plaintiff has proved a perfect chain of paper title, has the burden of proving this defense by the greater weight of the evidence, under this section; and while an instruction thereon that the defendant must satisfy the jury thereof has been held sufficient, a further charge in connection therewith, that the defendant need not satisfy the jury by the greater weight of the evidence, is in effect a charge that the jury may be satisfied by less than the greater weight of the evidence, and constitutes reversible error. Bryan v. Spivey, 109 N. C. 57, 13 S. E. 766; Monk v. Wilmington, 137 N. C. 322, 49 S. E. 345; Bland v. Beasley, 145 N. C. 168, 58 S. E. 993; Steward v. McCormick, 161 N. C. 625, 77 S. E. 761; Ruffin v. Overby, 105 N. C. 78, 11 S. E. 251; Blue Ridge Land Co. v. Floyd, 171 N. C. 543, 88 S. E. 862.

The use of the word "satisfied" in a charge upon the sufficiency of evidence under this section did not intensify the proof required to entitle the plaintiffs to their verdict. The weight of the evidence must be with the party who has the burden of proof, or else he cannot succeed. But surely the jury must be satisfied, or, in other words, be able to reach a decision or conclusion from the evidence and in favor of the plaintiff which will be satisfactory to themselves. The plaintiffs' proof need not be more than a bare preponderance; but it must not be less. Fraley v. Fraley, 150 N. C. 501, 504, 64 S. E. 381; State v. McDonald, 152 N. C. 802, 807, 67 S. E. 762; Blue Ridge Land Co. v. Floyd, 171 N. C. 543, 545, 88 S. E. 862.

The burden of proving title by sufficient adverse possession is on the defendant in ejectment relying thereon, and where the evidence of the plaintiff has tended to show a perfect chain of paper title, the defendant's title is deemed to be in subordination thereto under this section, and it is reversible error for the trial judge in effect to instruct the jury that the burden of disproving the defendant's evidence is on the plaintiff. Virginia-Carolina Power Co. v. Taylor, 194 N. C. 231, 139 S. E. 381.

Applied in Johnston v. Pate, 83 N. C. 110, 112.

§ 433. Tenant's possession is landlord's.—When the relation of landlord and tenant has existed, the possession of the tenant is deemed the possession of the landlord, until the expiration of twenty years from the termination of the tenancy; or where there has been no written lease, until the expiration of twenty years from the time of the last payment of rent, notwithstanding that the tenant may have acquired another title, or may have claimed to hold adversely to his landlord. But such presumptions shall not be made after the periods herein limited. (Rev., s. 387; Code, s. 147; C. C. P., s. 26.)

Section Operates as Estoppel. — The plaintiff can prove title by estoppel, as by showing that the defendant was his tenant (or derived his title through his tenant) when the action was brought. Conwell v. Mann, 100 N. C. 234, 6 S. E. 782; Melvin v. Waddell, 75 N. C. 361; Mobley v. Griffin, 104 N. C. 112, 115, 10 S. E. 142; Moore v. Miller, 179 N. C. 396, 398, 102 S. E. 627.

Section Fixes Maximum Period. — The presumption which attaches to the possession of a tenant following the termination of tenancy, is only a presumption for the periods limited in the statute, and after the expiration of such periods, the presumption no longer exists. Melvin v. Waddell, 75 N. C. 361. Virginia—Carolina Power Co. v. Taylor, 191 N. C. 329, 331, 131 S. E. 646.

Establishment of Tenancy—Question of Fact. — Where the plaintiff in ejectment has shown paper title by mesne conveyances from a state grant of the lands in controversy, and the defendant, claiming under sufficient evidence of adverse possession with and without color, and denies a lease introduced by the plaintiff to the defendant's predecessor in title: Held, reversible error for the court to instruct the jury that defendant's possession is conclusively presumed to be that of a tenant for twenty years under the provisions of this section and exclude evidence of ownership of his predecessor in title during the continuance of the lease and for twenty years thereafter. Virginia-Carolina Co. v. Taylor, 191 N. C. 329, 131 S. E. 646.

Parol Gift as Rebuttal of Tenancy. — A parol gift of land will not convey title but it will rebut the idea of tenancy and possession under it will ripen into title if continued for twenty years. Wilson v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 525, 34 S. E. 685; Dean v. Gupton, 136 N. C. 141, 48 S. E. 576.

How Tenant May Maintain Action Involving Title. — A tenant under lease may not maintain an action against his lessor involving title during the period of the lease without first surrendering the possession he has under the lease. Lawrence v. Eller, 169 N. C. 211, 85 S. E. 291; Abbott v. Cromartie, 72 N. C. 292, 295.

Eviction under Legal Process and Re-entry. — Although where a tenant has been evicted by legal process and has entered under another claim, etc., the fact may be set up against the landlord and the principle of this section does not apply, if the eviction is the result of a collusion and the tenant then enter under the evictor, his property not having been moved from the premises, the court will not permit a defect of the landlord's title but will apply the principle of this section notwithstanding the eviction. Pate v. Turner, 94 N. C. 47.

Effect of Failure of Landlord to Prove Title. — Where the plaintiff fails to show any title in himself, and relies entirely on estoppel by this section, the judgment should be limited to a recovery of the possession, leaving the tenant free to assert any title he may have in another action. Benton v. Benton, 95 N. C. 559.

Competency of Evidence Respecting Tenancy. — Where a defendant in partition proceedings claims title by adverse possession, evidence that defendant entered as tenant is competent. Alexander v. Gibbon, 118 N. C. 796, 24 S. E. 748; Shannon v. Lamb, 126 N. C. 38, 35 S. E. 232; Hatcher v. Hatcher, 127 N. C. 200, 37 S. E. 207; Bullock v. Bullock, 131 N. C. 29, 42 S. E. 458.

Application to Tenants in Common. — Where a tenancy in common is shown, the possession of one is the possession of all—and the rule is the same, when one enters to whom a tenant in common has by deed attempted to convey the whole land. Roscoe v. Roper Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 42, 32 S. E. 389.

The ouster of one tenant in common by another will not be presumed from an exclusive use of the common property and appropriation of the profits, for less period than twenty years; and the result is not changed when one enters to whom a tenant in common has by deed attempted to convey the entire tract. Roscoe v. Roper Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 42, 32 S. E. 389.

Evidence that a tenant in common with defendant in ejectment claiming the locus in quo by adverse possession, paid rent to another, prior to the existence of the cotenancy, is not evidence that the defendant entered into possession under the title of such other person. Virginia-Carolina Power Co. v. Taylor, 191 N. C. 329, 131 S. E. 646.

A delay by feme covert, tenant in common, for three years and a few months after the death of her husband, and for seven years and a few months after the falling in of the life estate of her father does not raise a presumption of an actual ouster by her cotenants in common, so as to defeat her title, and under the statute of limitations bar her action. Day v. Howard, 73 N. C. 1.

Principle stated in McNeill v. Fuller, 121 N. C. 209, 28 S. E. 299; Prevatt v. Harrelson, 132 N. C. 250, 251, 43 S. E. 800.

Cited in Pitman v. Hunt, 197 N. C. 574, 576, 150 S. E. 13.

§ 434. No title by possession of right of way. —No railroad, plank road, turnpike or canal company may be barred of, or presumed to have conveyed, any real estate, right of way, easement, leasehold, or other interest in the soil which has been condemned, or otherwise obtained for its use, as a right of way, depot, stationhouse or place of landing, by any statute of limitation or by occupation of the same by any person whatever. (Rev., s. 388; Code, s. 150; C. C. P., s. 29; R. C., c. 65, s. 23.)

Reason for Section. — The provisions of this section are justified upon the ground that the right of way is dedicated to a public use and for this reason is protected against loss by adverse possession. One using the right of way is at most a permissive licensee. Muse v. R. R. Co., 149 N. C. 446, 63 S. E. 102; Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. McCaskill, 94 N. C. 746; R. R. v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 55 S. E. 263.

When Section Applies. — This section applies, it would seem, only after the company has acquired and taken possession of a right of way and has no application where there is merely an executory contract. The decisions seem to go the length of holding that the section does not apply unless the company has operated the road. See May v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 151 N. C. 388, 66 S. E. 310.

So the grant to a railroad company of an undefined or "floating" right-of-way over the owner's lands is of an executory nature, and where no consideration has been paid by the company, the right may be lost by lapse of ten years upon failure of entry and of location by the company. Hemphill v. Annis, 119 N. C. 518, 26 S. E. 152; Willey v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 96 N. C. 408, 1 S. E. 446; May v. Atlantic, etc., Co., 151 N. C. 388, 66 S. E. 310.

Before this section can apply the company must have secured or acquired the right of way either by condemnation or otherwise and an executory contract to convey is not sufficient to meet the requirement. Even if an instrument is drawn for the purpose of making the conveyance it must meet the formalities required of such an instrument or it will be deemed insufficient for the purpose of bringing it within the purview of this section. Beattie v. Carolina R. Co., 108 N. C. 425, 12 S. E. 913.

Same—Where Grant Presumed by Charter.—Where a company acquired an easement by a provision of its charter and not by condemnation or purchase, it would seem that the principle of this section applies so that although a part of its right of way might be used by the owner it has a right of entry whenever it needs the property for its use. Railroad v. Sturgeon, 120 N. C. 225, 26 S. E. 779; Railroad v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 55 S. E. 263; Carolina Central R. Co. v. McCaskill, 94 N. C. 746, 753; Earnhardt v. Sou. R. Co., 157 N. C. 358, 72 S. E. 1062.

Effect of Section.—Under this section the possession by the defendants of the land covered by the right of way cannot operate as a bar to or be the basis for any presumption of abandonment by the railroad of its right of way. Railroad v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 55 S. E. 263.

The title of the railroad to the right of way once acquired, can not be lost by occupancy as to any part of it by the lapse of time. Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. McCaskill, 94 N. C. 746; Purifoy v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 100, 12 S. E. 741.

Same—Effect of Permitting Improvements. — Mere silence while a trespasser is improving real estate as if it was his own, while it may sustain a claim for the value of such improvements when made in good faith, cannot be allowed to transfer the property itself to such trespasser. Carolina Central R. Co. v. McCaskill, 94 N. C. 746.

Effect upon Power of State, etc., to Change Grade.—This section does not affect the State or a municipality in the assertion of its right to require a railroad company to change the grade of its roadbed where it is crossed by streets, so that public travel and drainage may not be impeded. Atlantic, etc., R. v. Goldsboro, 155 N. C. 356, 357, 71 S. E. 514.

Cited in Durham v. R. R., 104 N. C. 261, 264, 10 S. E. 208; Railroad v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 55 S. E. 263; Bass v. Roanoke, etc., Power Co., 111 N. C. 439, 455, 16 S. E. 402; Purifoy v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 100, 12 S. E. 741; Loven v. Parson, 127 N. C. 301, 37 S. E. 271.

Section Not Applicable.—An incorporated city or town may obtain title to streets located upon the right of way of a railroad company by long and continuous, open, and adverse use thereof for such purpose, and where the city has so used the land for a long period of time there is a presumption of an original condemnation by the city, and this section has no application as to the rights of municipalities to acquire the land. In the Matter of Assesment against Property of Southern Ry. Co., 196 N. C. 756, 147 S. E. 301.

§ 435. No title by possession of public ways.— No person or corporation shall ever acquire any exclusive right to any part of a public road, street, lane, alley, square or public way of any kind by reason of any occupancy thereof or by encroaching upon or obstructing the same in any way, and in all actions, whether civil or criminal, against any person or corporation on account of an encroachment upon or obstruction or occupancy of any public way it shall not be competent for a court to hold that such action is barred by any statute of limitations. (Rev., s. 389; 1891, c. 224.)

Prior Law.—Prior to the enactment of this section title to lands by adverse possession could be acquired against a State or a municipal corporation, which is a political agent of the State; and where before the enactment of this statute sufficient possession of the character required had ripened the title to a part of a street of a city under what are now sections 420, 425, as construed by the decisions of our Supreme Court, the municipality may not reassert the lost ownership except under the power of eminent domain vested in it by the law and for the public benefit. Threadgill v. Wadesboro, 170 N. C. 641, 87 S. E. 521.

For cases decided prior to section, see Turner v. Com., 127 N. C. 153, 37 S. E. 191; Moose v. Carson, 104 N. C. 432, 10 S. E. 689; State v. Long, 94 N. C. 896; Crump v. Mims, 64 N. C. 767.

Same—Effect of Section upon Title Acquired.—Where an owner has acquired title by adverse possession to a part of a street under the Code of 1868 and the construction placed thereon by the decisions of the Supreme Court, the reversal of the principle thereafter by this Court cannot disturb the title theretofore acquired. Threadgill v. Wadesboro, 170 N. C. 641, 87 S. E. 521.

Application of Section.—Possession of the street by any one claiming it adversely cannot divest or destroy the right of the public therein. The Court, in Moose v. Carson, 104 N. C. 432, at p. 434, 10 S. E. 689, seems to have overlooked what was decided in State v. Long, 94 N. C. 896, with respect to the effect of adverse possession of a highway upon the right of the public or the citizen therein prior to this section. State v. Godwin, 145 N. C. 461, 465, 59 S. E. 132.

Where a county entered into the possession of a square for the public use before this section, the provisions of this section will not permit the plaintiff to acquire title thereto by adverse possession under a deed purporting to convey a part thereof. Gates County v. Hill, 158 N. C. 584, 73 S. E. 804.

A right to maintain a building on a navigable stream which obstructs the operation of a draw in a county bridge cannot be acquired by adverse user by virtue of this section. Lenoir County v. Crabtree, 158 N. C. 357, 74 S. E. 105.

Same—Curing Erroneous Charge. — An erroneous charge that the title to an open square, dedicated to and accepted by a town, would be acquired by seven years adverse possession, contrary to the provisions of this section, is not cured alone by a full and complete charge on the principles of an offer to dedicate and an acceptance of the square by the town. Atlantic, etc., R. Co. v. Dunn, 183 N. C. 427, 111 S. E. 724.

Applies Only to Streets Acquired by Municipality.—The principle of law of this section applies only to such streets as the municipality has acquired and not to land offered to be dedicated by a private citizen for use as streets when such offer of dedication has not been accepted by the municipality before the offer has been unequivocally withdrawn. Gault v. Lake Waccamaw, 200 N. C. 593, 158 S. E. 104.

Sections Construed with This Section. — Construing section 7618 providing that no statute of limitation shall effect the title or bar the action of one claiming it under an assignment from the State Board of Education, etc., with sections 420, 425, and this section, it is held, that the limitations as to color for twenty-one years, and without for thirty years, do not apply to personal actions after the State has parted with her title to the lands; and the three years statute to recover damages for trespass in cutting and removing trees from the land applies under the facts in this case. Tillery v. Whiteville Lumber Co., 172 N. C. 296, 90 S. E. 196.

Possession Prior to Enactment.—When sufficient adverse possesssion of a street of an unincorporated town by the present owners and those claiming under them has been shown, for thirty-five years prior to the enactment of this section the right of the town to the use of the street is barred by the statute of limitations. Tadlock v. Mizell, 195 N. C. 473, 132 S. E. 713.

Art. 5. Limitations, Other Than Real Property

§ 436. Periods prescribed. — The periods prescribed for the commencement of actions, other than for the recovery of real property, are as set forth in this article. (Rev., s. 390; Code, s. 151; C. C. P., s. 30.)

Statute Affects Remedy Only. — The statute of limitations relates only to remedy, and the defendant is never afforded an opportunity of relying upon it until the plaintiff resorts to his remedy, either by action on the judgment, or motion in the nature of scire facias to revive it. Berry v. Corpening, 90 N. C. 395.

Same — Defenses against Former Statute. — Since the prior law was not an absolute bar to actions, but merely raised a presumption of payment which might be rebutted, the question of changed residence, destitution or insolvency of debtor and other such questions were material in rebutting the presumption raised, but under the present law are immaterial for such purposes since the present statutes totally bar the action. See Campbell v. Brown, 86 N. C. 376, 382.

Actions for Which No Statutes. — There is no statute of limitations applicable to an action brought by citizens to test the validity of an election held relative to subscribing stock to a railroad company, but such action must be brought within a reasonable time. Jones v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 248, 12 S. E. 69. Nor is there any statute applicable to the probate of wills. In re Dupree's will, 163 N. C. 256, 79 S. E. 611.

Application of Statutes to Trust Relations.—Where a partner receives firm money in winding up the affairs of the partnership in pursuance of an agreement that he so receives such funds, he holds them in trust for the other partners and the statutes do not run. McNair v. Ragland, 7 N. C. 139, 145.

Suspension of Statutes.—The statute of limitation does not run when there is no one in esse capable of suing. Grant v. Hughes, 94 N. C. 231.

Effect of Change of Period by Amendment.—A reasonable time for the commencement of an action before the statute changing the period works a bar, Nichols v. R. R., 120 N. C. 495, shall be the balance of the time unexpired according to the law as it stood when the amending act was passed, provided it shall never exceed the time allowed by the new statute. For example, if the action would have been barred in six years, and four years had elapsed before the amending act, then two years more would be a reasonable time. If three years time would bar the action and three years had elapsed, as in the present case, before the amending Act is passed, then three years thereafter would be the limit and no more, and this rule will apply to all other periods of limitation on actions. Culbreth v. Downing, 121 N. C. 205, 206, 28 S. E. 294.

§ 437. Ten years.—Within ten years an action—

1. Upon a judgment or decree of any court of the United States, or of any state or territory thereof, from the date of its rendition. No such action may be brought more than once, or have the effect to continue the lien of the original judgment.

2. Upon a sealed instrument against the principal thereto.

3. For the foreclosure of a mortgage, or deed in trust for creditors with a power of sale, of real property, where the mortgagor or grantor has been in possession of the property, within ten years after the forfeiture of the mortgage, or after the power of sale became absolute, or within ten years after the last payment on the same.

4. For the redemption of a mortgage, where the mortgagee has been in possession, or for a residuary interest under a deed in trust for creditors, where the trustee or those holding under him has been in possession, within ten years after the right of action accrued. (Rev., s. 391; Code, s. 152; C. C. P., ss. 14, 31.)

IV. Subs. (3). Mortgage Foreclosure.
V. Subs. (4). Redemption of Mortgage.

I. IN GENERAL.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 220.

Law Prior to Section.—It was said of the statute of presumption immediately preceding this section that, "its obvious policy, as said in Ingram v. Smith, 41 N. C. 97, is to insist peremptorily on diligence in all cases to which it has any application, and it is one which the courts must fairly carry out. So emphatically is it a statute of repose, that no saving is made in it of the rights of infants, femes covert, or persons non compos." Hamlin v. Mebane, 54 N. C. 18; Hodges v. Council, 86 N. C. 181; Headen v. Womack, 88 N. C. 468, 470.

The presumption was not conclusive; it might have been rebutted by any pertinent proof, and such proof was presumed by the appellate court where there was no complaint of the finding of fact by the Court. In re Walker, 107 N. C. 340, 343, 12 S. E. 136.

Though not strictly a statute of limitations, the section was so denominated in a general sense, and hence it was made a part of the chapter denominated in the Revisal Code "Limitations." And although it did not create an absolute bar, it did, in a sense, create a conditional bar. Rogers v. Clements, 98 N. C. 180, 184, 3 S. E. 512.

Same—Effect of Present Section.—This section has taken the place of the former statute of presumptions, R. C., ch. 65, sec. 18 in respect to judgments. Brown v. Harding, 171 N. C. 686, 689, 89 S. E. 222.

Retroactive Effect.—This statute did not apply to actions commenced before August, 1868, or where the right of action accrued before that date. Gaither v. Sain, 91 N. C. 304.

A limitation is inflexible and unyielding; it ceases to operate only in the way and for the cause prescribed by the statute. Brown v. Harding, 171 N. C. 686, 689, 89 S. E. 222.

Application Limited to Actions or Suits—Power of Sale.—The statute was intended to apply only to actions or suits, and this is apparent from the very language of the law. In a case where it became necessary to decide whether a sale under a power was a suit or an action within the meaning of a statute it was held that a proceeding to foreclose a mortgage by advertisement is not a suit. Such a proceeding is merely an action of the mortgagee exercising the power of sale given him by the mortgagor. In no sense is it a suit in any court, and all the definitions of that word require it to be a proceeding in some court. Cone v. Hyatt, 132 N. C. 810, 44 S. E. 678; Miller v. Coxe, 133 N. C. 578, 582, 45 S. E. 940.

The legislature has prescribed ten years as the limitation to an action upon a judgment, but it has made no provision for a party to avail himself of its protection when there is no action or proceeding in the nature of an action taken against him. Berry v. Corpening, 90 N. C. 395, 398.

Same—Leave to Issue Execution.—A proceeding for leave to issue execution on a judgment charging lands with owelty in partition is an "action" within the meaning of the statute of limitations. Ex parte Smith, 134 N. C. 495, 47 S. E. 16.

Sufficiency of Plea of Section.—An answer alleging "that the plaintiff has not brought his action within the time prescribed by law, and the same is barred by the statute of limitations," is a sufficient plea of the statute of limitations. Pemberton v. Simmons, 100 N. C. 316, 6 S. E. 122.

Duty to Consider Unsatisfactory Plea.—Although the plea of this section was indefinite and unsatisfactory, it was the duty of the court below to have considered and determined it, and a failure to do so was held to be error. Proctor v. Proctor, 105 N. C. 222, 10 S. E. 1036.

Effect of Part Payment.—A partial payment voluntarily made does not remove the statutory bar. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404. See dissenting opinion.

Effect of Making or Adding Parties.—Where this section applies, its provisions are not affected by the fact that additional parties to the action, ordered by the Supreme Court, had not been made before a succeeding term of the superior court, and the judge had thereupon ordered a discontinuance of the action, from which there was no appeal. Geitner v. Jones, 176 N. C. 542, 97 S. E. 494.

Evidence as to Running.—Evidence as to the running of this statute can have no pertinency where but little more than three years has elapsed. Wilcoxon v. Logan, 91 N. C. 449.

Applied in Serls v. Gibbs, 205 N. C. 246, 171 S. E. 56; Farmville v. Paylor, 208 N. C. 108, 179 S. E. 459.

Cited in Sikes v. Parker, 95 N. C. 232; Usry v. Suit, 91 N. C. 406, 416; Wilcoxon v. Logan, 91 N. C. 449; Williams v. McNair, 98 N. C. 332, 4 S. E. 131, 133; In re Gibbs, 205 N. C. 312, 171 S. E. 55; Furr v. Trull, 205 N. C. 417, 420, 171 S. E. 641; Davis v. Alexander, 207 N. C. 417, 420, 177 S. E. 417.

II. SUBS. (1). JUDGMENTS AND DECREES.

Prior Law.—This statute of presumptions Rev. Code ch. 65, section 18, the former law corresponding to this section, which declared that judgments, decrees, etc., should be presumed to be satisfied within ten years was not conclusive. In re Walker, 107 N. C. 340, 12 S. E. 136.

A decree in proceedings for partition had in 1861, adjudging owelty of partition against certain shares of the land divided, was subject to the statute of presumptions, which corresponded to this section, because this section is not retroactive. Herman v. Watts, 107 N. C. 646, 12 S. E. 437.

If there are valid subsisting judgments for the unpaid mortgage debt and the vendee does not deny the liability, the assignee of a joint vendor cannot insist upon the statute of presumption of payment from lapse of time as to the original debt, nor upon a bar by the act of limitations, as to the reduced debt assumed by the assignee of the vendee. Ely v. Bush, etc., Co., 89 N. C. 358.

There is therefore no analogy which makes the decisions under the former precedents applicable to the present law (since the C. C. P. in 1868) inasmuch as they relate entirely to rules of evidence and not to the removal of a statutory bar where the action is upon a bond or judgment. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404, 406.

Prior to this statute there was no limitation absolutely barring the cause of action upon a judgment, but the statutes merely raised a presumption of payment which might be rebutted by competent evidence.

The period of time necessary to lapse before the presumption arose varied with the various statutes. At common law the period required was a great lapse of time, next the period was fixed by statute at 20 years, and then by the act of 1826 was changed to ten years. This remained the law until the C. C. P. of 1868 which changed the presumption to an absolute bar and the period fixed at ten years. See McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404, 412.

Statute Strictly Construed. — A statute so entirely in derogation of common right as is the statute of limitations, should be strictly construed, and under it a judgment should not be treated as a contract, because it does not come within the necessity of that term. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404, 411.

Retroactive Effect.—A judgment rendered before, though docketed after, the adoption of the Code of Civil Procedure, is subject only to a presumption of satisfaction, and not to the statute of limitations as prescribed in the Code. Johnston v. Jones, 87 N. C. 393.

Section Operates as Bar.—This section fixes the current period of ten years as that which terminates the lien of a judgment, and operates as a bar to a new action upon it. McDonald v. Dickson, 85 N. C. 248, 251.

Significance of Transcribing Justice's Judgment to Superior Court.—A creditor having a judgment in a justice's court may keep his judgment altogether in that court, and rely alone on such process for its enforcement as a justice of the peace may issue; and if he so do, the bar of section 438 will apply to it at the end of seven years, unless before that time he sues and obtains a new judgment as he lawfully may do; but if he elect to have a transcript docketed in the superior court, and it is done, then all right of execution in the justice's court is renounced and in lieu thereof, the creditor has the more efficient and far reaching executions and process of the superior court. Broyles v. Young, 81 N. C. 315, 318.

The transcript of a justice's judgment docketed in the superior court becomes, for the purpose of lien and execution, a superior court judgment and is subsequent to the ten-year limitation notwithstanding section 438. Broyles v. Young, 81 N. C. 315.

Land is not relieved under this section of a judgment lien by the mere transfer of the debtor's title. But it has been held that "the lien upon lands of a docketed judgment is lost by the lapse of ten years from the date of the docketing, and this notwithstanding execution was begun but not completed before the expiration of ten years. Osborne v. Board of Education, 207 N. C. 503, 504, 177 S. E. 642, citing Hyman v. Jones, 205 N. C. 266, 171 S. E. 103.

Application to Foreign Judgments. — This section applies to foreign judgments. Arrington v. Arrington, 127 N. C. 190, 37 S. E. 212.

When Statute Begins to Run — Judgment for Costs. — A judgment for costs is considered part of the first judgment where the costs were first levied against the plaintiff but were later adjudged against the defendant, and there is no bar except from the lapse of ten years under par. (1) of this section. Owen v. Paxton, 122 N. C. 770, 772, 30 S. E. 343.

Same—At Time of Judgment or Confirmation of Sale. — Where an action is instituted to recover the amount due on a note and to foreclose the mortgage securing the same and judgment is rendered on the debt, an order being made for the sale of the land, which sale was later reported and confirmed, the statute of limitations began to run at the date of the money judgment and not from the date of the confirmation of the sale. McCaskill v. McKinnon, 121 N. C. 192, 28 S. E. 265.

Same—Judgment for a Devastavit against Executor.— When an action is brought against an executor or administrator for a devastavit, and a judgment is obtained against him, the cause of action accrues at the time of the qualification, and the law in force at the time governs, but when the action is brought after the death of the executor, the cause of action accrues as against his real and personal representative, when such representative qualifies and gives notice to creditors. Syme v. Badger, 96 N. C. 197, 2 S. E. 61.

Same—Alimony Payable Annually. — In an action on a judgment for alimony, payable annually, the annual sums are barred within ten years from the time they become due under this section. Arrington v. Arrington, 127 N. C. 190, 37 S. E. 212. See dissenting opinion.

Effect of Judgment upon Contract or Tort.—A cause of action on contract or tort loses its identity when merged in a judgment; and thereafter a new cause of action arises out of the judgment. McDonald v. Dickson, 87 N. C. 404.

Period of Statute—Effect of Admission of Claim by Administrator.—A claim reduced to judgment is barred by the ten years statute of limitation unless the claim was admitted by the administrator, or action was brought upon it, in one year after the expiration of the ten years on the appointment of administrator as prescribed by statute. Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 547, 10 S. E. 701.

Same—Specialties Reduced to Judgments. — Specialties, when reduced to judgments, are merged, and the statute barring judgments will then apply. Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 547, 10 S. E. 701.

Effect of Issuing Executions During Period.—The statute of limitations may be set up as a defense by an administrator to a motion for leave to issue execution after ten years from the date of docketing a judgment against his intestate and this although executions have regularly been issued within each successive period of three years after the judgment was docketed. Berry v. Corpening, 90 N. C. 395.

The words "any state" must be taken to mean the judgment of a court of any state including our own. But it could make no material difference, even if not construed to include this state, since, by section 445, every action for relief not specially provided for must be commenced within the same period of ten years after the cause of action shall have accrued. McDonald v. Dickson, 85 N. C. 248, 251.

Effect of Payment on Judgment. — A payment on a judgment does not arrest the running of the statute of limitations. McCaskill v. McKinnon, 121 N. C. 192, 28 S. E. 265.

A partial payment on a judgment does not arrest the running of the statute of limitations. Hughes v. Boone, 114 N. C. 54, 55, 19 S. E. 63.

Comparison of Effect of Application of Section 445 with This Section.—It can make no difference whether subsection 1 of this section or section 445 applies. The result will be the same in either case. Ex parte Smith, 134 N. C. 495, 502, 47 S. E. 16.

Application to Issuance of Execution. — The issuing of an execution on a decree charging owelty in partition is barred within ten years. Ex parte Smith, 134 N. C. 495, 47 S. E. 16.

The statute of limitations is a proper plea and a complete bar to a motion for leave to issue execution on a judgment, when such motion is made more than ten years after the rendition of such judgment. McDonald v. Dickson, 85 N. C. 248.

III. SUBS. (2) SEALED INSTRUMENTS.

When Statute Begins to Run—Breach of Warranty. — In an action for breach of a covenant of warranty the statute of limitation begins to run when there is an ouster of the grantee. Shankle v. Ingram, 133 N. C. 254, 45 S. E. 578.

Same—Breach of Covenant of Seizin. — In an action for damages for breach of covenant of seizin the statute of limitation begins to run upon delivery of the deed. Shankle v. Ingram, 133 N. C. 254, 45 S. E. 578.

Same—Coupons of Bonds. — The Statute of Limitations begins to run against coupons of bonds at the maturity, not of the bonds, but of the coupons. Threadgill v. Commissioners, 116 N. C. 616, 617, 21 S. E. 425.

Same—Guaranty under Seal. — An action upon a guaranty under seal is not barred until ten years after the cause of action accrues. Coleman v. Fuller, 105 N. C. 328, 11 S. E. 175.

Application to Sureties. — This subsection is not applicable to actions against sureties. The use of the word "principal" and the omission of the word "sureties" clearly indicates this to be the intention of the legislature. Section 441 subs. (1) is applicable to sureties and the action against them is limited to three years. Welfare v. Thompson, 83 N. C. 279; Redmond v. Pippen, 113 N. C. 92, 18 S. E. 50; Barnes v. Crawford, 201 N. C. 434, 437, 160 S. E. 464; North Carolina Bank, etc., Co. v. Williams, 208 N. C. 243, 244, 180 S. E. 81.

Guarantor as Principal under Section. — Neither the spirit nor the letter of this section makes a guarantor principal to the original obligation. Coleman v. Fuller, 105 N. C. 328, 332, 11 S. E. 175. From dissenting opinion.

Application to Bills, Notes, etc. — The prior law, as does this section, embraced "single bills," as well as promissory notes and other demands therein designated. Rogers v. Clements, 98 N. C. 180, 3 S. E. 512.

Application to Bonds—Former Law. — The corresponding section of the former law was construed to embrace single bonds, though they were not named in terms. Rogers v. Clements. 98 N. C. 180, 184, 3 S. E. 512.

The presumption of payment of a bond arises after ten years from the time the right of action accrues, and the provisions of section 416 do not apply. Hall v. Gibbs, 87 N. C. 4.

Same—Section Not Retroactive. — A bond for the payment of money executed prior to this section, by the principal and his sureties is exempted from the operation of the statute of limitations as contained in this section. Knight v. Braswell, 70 N. C. 709.

Conditions Repelling Statute — Set-off. — A set-off in favor of the obligor is not a part payment as to an endorser and does not repel the statute. Woodhouse v. Simmons, 73 N. C. 30.

Power of Sale in Deed of Trust.—See generally, Merrimon v. Postal Tel.-Cable Co., 207 N. C. 101, 176 S. E. 246.

IV. SUBS. (3) MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

As to presumption of payment of debt secured after fifteen years, see sec. 2594. As to presumption of fulfillment of conditions of mortgages, see sec. 2594.

See note under § 2589.

The prior law corresponding to this section created a presumption that after ten years the mortgage was presumed to have been satisfied which might have been rebutted and did not operate to absolutely bar the right. Pemberton v. Simmons, 100 N. C. 316, 6 S. E. 122.

Only Limitation upon Right to Foreclose. — This section is the only limitation upon the mortgagee's right of action for foreclosure or sale. Parker v. Banks, 79 N. C. 480, 484.

Prerequisites to Bar. — In order to bar an action for relief under this section two things must concur, namely, the lapse of ten years after the forfeiture or after the power of sale became absolute or after the last payment, and the possession of the mortgagor during that period. Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 168, 48 S. E. 578.

Necessity for Possession. — The mere lapse of time, unaccompanied by any possession, does not obstruct the right to foreclose a mortgage. Simmons v. Ballard. 102 N. C. 105, 9 S. E. 495. Decided under prior statute.

The statutory presumption of abandonment of an equitable claim to land, arising within ten years after the right of action accrues, is fatal to the plaintiffs upon the facts of this case. Headen v. Womack, 88 N. C. 468.

Same — Remainderman before Lapse of Life Estate. — The actual possession of the life tenant does not inure to the remainderman. Thus, during the continuance of the life estate the latter cannot avail himself of that actual possession as against one who holds a mortgage on his interest for the purpose of barring his right under the mortgage. Malloy v. Bruden, 86 N. C. 251, 257; Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 164, 48 S. E. 578.

Where a remainderman, not being in possession, executes a mortgage, the foreclosure of the mortgage is not barred after ten years from the forfeiture thereof or from the last payment, such action being brought within ten years from the time of the acquisition of the possession by the remainderman. Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 48 S. E. 578.

Character of Possession Necessary.—It is impossible to suppose that the legislature intended a constructive possession, for the "mortgagor or grantor" could never have such possession as against a mortgagee. The latter has the right of possession by construction of law, as he has the legal title, and, if a constructive possession was intended, there was no use in requiring possession at all, as, if neither party was in actual possession, the constructive possession would always be in the mortgagee. Dobbs v. Gullidge, 20 N. C. 197; London v. Bear, 84 N. C. 266; Deming v. Gainey, 95 N. C. 528; the Code, section 146; Williams v. Wallace, 78 N. C. 354; Simmons v. Ballard, 102 N. C. 105; Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 166, 48 S. E. 578.

Same — Section Applicable to Exclusion of 445. — Where there is no possession by either party, there can be no running of the statute. If it was intended that section 445 should apply where there is no possession by either party, it was utterly useless to insert in subsection (2) and (4) the provision in regard to possession, as the statute under such a construction of section 445, would run whether there was any possession or not, and the period of limitation is the same in both sections. Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162. 169, 48 S. E. 578.

Since this subsection is an express provision of law directly applicable to an action to foreclose, it must be disregarded altogether before section 445 has any application. Such a construction would be a complete reversal of the will of the legislature as plainly expressed. Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 168, 48 S. E. 578.

There are several cases decided under section 445 in which the principle of section 437 sub. 3 has been adopted by analogy, and in which it was held that a party who remains in possession of land is not barred of any equity therein by lapse of time, and that the statute runs only where the other party has had possession. Thornburg v. Mastin, 93 N. C. 258; Mask v. Tiller, 89 N. C. 423; Smith v. McKee, 87 N. C. 389; Norton v. McDevit, 122 N. C. 755, 756, 30 S. E. 24; Menzel v. Hinton, 132 N. C. 660, 44 S. E. 385, 95 Am. St. 660 was explained. Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 168, 48 S. E. 578.

When Holding Becomes Adverse. — When the mortgagor of property is left in possession, he or his vendee holds it for the mortgagee, and his possession does not become adverse so as to set the statute in motion until condition broken. Woody v. Jones, 113 N. C. 253, 18 S. E. 205.

Absence from State as Suspending Section. — An action to foreclose a mortgage comes within the purview of section 411, and the absence of the mortgagor from the state suspends the running of the statute. Love v. West, 169 N. C. 13, 14, 84 S. E. 1048.

Where this subsection 3 is pleaded, the absence of the mortgagor from the state for a year or longer as prescribed in section 411 will not be counted, nor will any presumption of payment of the debt be raised within the period allowed for the commencement of the action. Love v. West, 169 N. C. 13, 84 S. E. 1048. See concurring opinion.

Effect upon Debt Secured. — The provisions of this paragraph only bar an action to foreclose the mortgage, and do not bar an action to recover the debt secured by the mortgage. Fraser v. Bean, 96 N. C. 327, 2 S. E. 159.

Effect of Bar of Debt upon Foreclosure. — The fact that a note is barred by the three-year statute, section 441, does not prevent the mortgagee from foreclosing his mortgage securing it, this section being applicable. Jenkins v Griffin, 175 N. C. 184, 95 S. E. 166.

Although an action upon the debt secured by a mortgage may be barred by the lapse of time, the remedy appertaining to the security may be enforced. Overman v. Jackson, 104 N. C. 4, 10 S. E. 87.

Where a note has not been barred, the foreclosure of a deed in trust, securing it, may be ordered. Geitner v. Jones, 176 N. C. 542, 97 S. E. 494.

A mortgage is an incident of the note it secures, and the statute of limitations will not run against its foreclosure when it has not run against the note. Humphrey v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 131 S. E. 383.

Effect of Payment of Interest.—This section will not bar foreclosure on a deed of trust when, although the debt was due more than 10 years ago, interest has been paid on the debt within 10 years. Dixie Gro. Co. v. Hoyle, 204 N. C. 109, 167 S. E. 469.

Section Not Applicable to Power of Sale — The execution of a power of sale in a mortgage is not barred by the statute of limitations referring to actions to foreclose mortgages. Miller v. Coxe, 133 N. C. 587, 45 S. E. 940. For limitation upon execution of power of sale, see sec. 2589.

It is conceded that if it were necessary for the mortgagee to bring an action to invoke the equitable aid of the court to foreclose his mortgage, he would be barred, because in that event he would abandon his power of sale and ask for the intervention of the court, which would be compelled to enforce the statutory bar. Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 168, 48 S. E. 578.

The theory of the statute is that there has been an abandonment of the right, which will not be presumed unless the party resisting the enforcement of the right has had possession. Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 169, 48 S. E. 578.

Effect of Barring Foreclosure upon Power of Sale. — "The court said in Menzel v. Hinton, 132 N. C. 660, 662, 44 S. E. 385, 'It is well settled that an action upon the debt may be barred without affecting the right to maintain an action to foreclose the mortgage given to secure it. Capehart v. Dettrick, 91 N. C. 344. This because the bar of the statute affects only the remedy and not the right,' and upon this point the court was unanimous." Jenkins v. Griffin, 175 N. C. 184, 186, 95 S. E. 166.

It was further said that the execution of a power of sale is not within the language of this subsection saying. "It is not necessary for the mortgagee to institute an action for the foreclosure of the mortgage or the execution of the power of sale; hence no time is fixed by the statute within which he must execute the power. The word 'action' in the paragraph evidently has reference to the action for foreclosure, and not to the execution of the power of sale, which requires no action." See Miller v. Coxe, 133 N. C. 578, 582, 45 S. E. 940.

But the general assembly has changed the law in this particular by providing that the power of sale "shall become inoperative, and no person shall execute any such power when an action to foreclose such mortgage or deed of trust for the benefit of creditors would be barred by the statute of limitations," section 2589, and this subsection, bars actions to foreclose a mortgage or deed of trust unless commenced within ten years. etc. Jenkins v. Griffin, 175 N. C. 184, 187, 95 S. E. 166.

Menzel v. Hinton was followed in Cone v. Hyatt, 132 N. C. 810, 812, 44 S. 678, and section 2589, which bars a power of sale when foreclosure is barred. Ferrell v. Hinton, 161 N. C. 348, 350, 77 S. E. 224, was passed to overcome the decisions. Humphrey v. Stephens, 191 N. C. 101, 104, 131 S. E. 383.

The Exercise of a Power of Sale under Mortgage is not a Suit. — See Miller v. Core, 133 N. C. 578, 582, 45 S. E. 940.

Applicability to Consent Judgment Allowing the Equity. —A consent judgment providing that the defendant has an equity to redeem the land upon the payment of a certain sum, on or before a certain day, and if this payment is made on or before that day the plaintiff will convey said land to the defendant, but in case of failure to pay within the time limited, the defendant shall stand absolutely debarred and foreclosed of and from any and all equity or other estate, established the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee, and notwithstanding the provision of strict foreclosure that relation continued to exist after the day of forfeiture and under this subsection ten years possession of the defendant, after default, bars the plaintiff. Bunn v. Braswell, 139 N. C. 135, 51 S. E. 92

Necessity of Pleading Section — Waiving Objection. — When a party to an action involving the title to lands in dispute contends that a certain mortgage necessary in the paper title of the adverse party, is barred by this subdivision an objection that the same was not specially pleaded is waived when, after the conclusion of the evidence and argument, he obtains permission from the court to open the case and offer evidence tending to show that the mortgage had been kept in date of payment, thus rendering the issue appropriate and necessary. Ferrell v. Hinton, 161 N. C. 348, 77 S. E. 224.

Section Must Be Specifically Pleaded. — In an action to foreclose a mortgage the ten-year statute of limitations must be specially pleaded. Stancill v. Spain, 133 N. C. 76, 45 S. E. 466.

Power of Grantee to Plead. — The grantees of a mortgagor are entitled to plead, in a foreclosure action, the statute of limitations. Stancill v. Spain, 133 N. C. 76, 45 S. E. 466.

Section Applicable to Mortgage of Surety. — Where a surety executes a mortgage on his own land, an action to foreclose the same is not barred until the expiration of ten years. Miller v. Coxe, 133 N. C. 578, 45 S. E. 940.

Applicability to Vendor and Vendee. — While the relation of vendor and vendee is in many respects similar to that existing between mortgagor and mortgagee, this subsection does not embrace actions arising out of executory contracts for sales of land. Overman v. Jackson, 104 N. C. 4, 10 S. E. 87.

Cancellation of Barred First Mortgage by Second Mortgagee. — A second mortgagee cannot have the first mortgage canceled because it is barred by the statute of limitations. Miller v. Coxe, 133 N. C. 578, 45 S. E. 940.

Effect of Part Payment. — Payment on a bond secured by mortgage before it goes out of date, and within ten years before suit brought, will prevent the bar of the statute of limitations, and a purchaser of the land at a mortgage sale will not be barred. Williams v. Kerr, 113 N. C. 306, 18 S. E. 501.

Sale under Barred Mortgage — Remedy of Mortgagor. — A sale under a mortgage barred by the statute would carry to the purchaser no title. The plaintiff mortgagor being in possession has a full defense to an action for ejectment when brought by the purchaser. Capehart v. Biggs & Co., 77 N. C. 261; Fox v. Kline, 85 N. C. 173; Hutaff v. Adrain, 112 N. C. 259, 17 S. E. 78.

Where a mortgagor in possession has a full defense to an action for ejectment when brought by a purchaser at a sale under a mortgage barred by the statute of limitations, the court will not interfere by injunction to prevent a sale threatened by the mortgagee. It would be otherwise if there were a contest as to the amount due under the mortgage. Hutaff v. Adrian, 112 N. C. 259, 17 S. E. 78.

Principle illustrated in Woody v. Jones, 113 N. C. 253, 255, 18 S. E. 205.

V. SUBS. (4). REDEMPTION OF MORTGAGE.

Applicability to Trust Relation.—The personal representative of a trustee, constituted by a deed in trust, has no right to plead this statute of limitation against his cestui que trust calling for a settlement of the trust. Johnston v. Overman, 55 N. C. 182.

When Statute Begins Running. — Where, in accordance with the agreement expressed in the instrument, the mortgagee enters at once into possession of the lands, the mortgagor's right for an accounting arises when the bond the instrument secures has matured and remains unpaid; and his right of action and that of those claiming under him accrues then, and the mortgagor's right of action is barred by a continued peaceful possession by the mortgagee for ten years therefrom. Section 432, does not apply. Crews v. Crews, 192 N. C. 679, 135 S. E. 784.

Necessity for Possession in Mortgage.—The mere lapse of time, unaccompanied by possession, does not obstruct the right to redeem. Simmons v. Ballard, 102 N. C. 105, 9 S. E. 495. Decided under prior statute.

The statute of limitation does not run against a mortgagor in possession of lands by reason of the legal title being in the mortgagee, not in possession. Cauley v. Sutton, 150 N. C. 327, 64 S. E. 3.

This section applies only where the mortgagee or trustee is in possession. The opinion of the Court in this case rests upon the ground that it does not apply where the mortgagee or trustee has not been in possession, hence such case necessarily is one not therein "provided for" and falls under section 445. Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 170, 48 S. E. 578. From dissenting opinion. It was held in the main opinion that § 445 was not applicable.

Same—Holding under Tenant.—Where a mortgagee takes adverse possession of, and rents out the mortgaged land, the payments of rent to him by his tenants on the land does not affect the running of the statute of limitations against the mortgagor's right to sue for redemption. Frederick v. Williams, 103 N. C. 189, 9 S. E. 298.

Nature of Possession.—It is not required that the possession of the mortgagee be adverse in order to bar the mortgagor's action in ten years, under the provisions of this section. Crews v. Crews, 192 N. C. 679, 135 S. E. 784.

The prior statute said nothing about an actual possession being essential to the prescribed effect of the lapse of time. Where there was no actual possession the constructive possession followed the legal title, and where such possession was had for more than ten years after the right to redeem accrued, the statute barred the right of redemption. Simmons v. Ballard, 102 N. C. 105, 9 S. E. 495.

But the possession required by this statute must be actual and not merely constructive. Weathersbee v. Goodwin, 175 N. C. 234, 95 S. E. 491. Stevens v. Turlington, 186 N. C. 191, 119 S. E. 210, for the action to enforce the equity of redemption is barred after the lapse of ten years, from the date on which his cause of action accrued, where the mortgagee has been in the actual possession of the land. Crews v. Crews, 192 N. C. 679, 684, 135 S. E. 784. See Simmons v. Ballard, 102 N. C. 105, 9 S. E. 495, and the dissenting opinion.

Possession presumed by virtue of section 432, is not sufficient to meet the requirements of this section, par. 4, for although more than ten years have passed since the cause of action accrued, an action for redemption, under this subsection is not barred, unless the mortgagee has during said time been in the actual possession of the land conveyed by the mortgage. McNair v. Boyd, 163 N. C. 478, 79 S. E. 966; Cauley v. Sutton, 150 N. C. 327, 330, 64 S. E. 3; Simmons v. Ballard, 102 N. C. 105, 9 S. E. 495; Crews v. Crews, 192 N. C. 679, 683, 135 S. E. 784.

Effect of Intervening Disability. — Where the mortgagee sells the mortgaged land, buys it himself, and enters into adverse possession in the lifetime of the mortgagor, the action is barred as against the infant heirs under this section. Frederick v. Williams, 103 N. C. 189, 9 S. E. 298.

Nor did the prior statute contain a saving clause in favor of persons under disabilities. Houck v. Adams, 98 N. C. 519, 4 S. E. 502.

Applicability Where Action Not for Redemption. — The question as to whether the bar of this statute applies to recover lands held under a mortgage, the action not being one to redeem, was raised but not decided. Weathersbee v. Goodwin, 175 N. C. 234, 95 S. E. 491.

Principle Illustrated. — When a mortgagee has been in possession more than thirty years since the execution of the mortgage, the right of redemption is barred. Gray v. Williams, 130 N. C. 53, 40 S. E. 843.

Where the mortgagee has actual possession, either when the cause of action for redemption accrues or where he thereafter goes into and remains continuously in such possession for more than ten years, before an action to redeem is commenced, the statute of limitations, where pleaded and relied upon in the answer, is a complete defense. Bernhardt v. Hagamon, 144 N. C. 526, 57 S. E. 222; Crews v. Crews, 192 N. C. 679, 683, 135 S. E. 784.

Edwards v. Tipton, 85 N. C. 479, 480, is a case illustrating the application of the prior statute.

§ 437(a). Actions to recover deficiency judgments limited to within one year of foreclosure.—No action shall be maintained on any promissory note, bond, evidence of indebtedness or debt secured by a mortgage or deed of trust on real estate after the foreclosure of the mortgage or deed of trust securing the same, except within one year from the date of sale under such foreclosure or from the date of the ratification of this section, if such sale precedes its ratification; but this section shall not extend the time of limitation on any such action. (1933, c. 529, s. 1.)

§ 438. Seven years.—Within seven years an action—

1. On a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace, from its date.

2. By a creditor of a deceased person against his personal or real representative, within seven years next after the qualification of the executor or administrator and his making the advertisement required by law for creditors of the deceased to present their claims, where no personal service of such notice in writing is made upon the creditor. A creditor thus barred of a recovery against the representative of any principal debtor is also barred of a recovery against any surety to the debt. (Rev. s. 392; Code, s. 153; C. C. P., s. 32.)

I. Subsection One.
II. Subsection Two.

I. SUBSECTION ONE.

This section is not retroactive. Mossis v. Syme, 88 N. C. 453, 455.

When Statute Begins to Run.—Where a judgment was rendered by a justice of the peace and upon a rehearing granted by him a similar judgment was rendered, the statute of limitations began to run from the date of the later, the first judgment having been vacated. Salmon v. McLean, 116 N. C. 209, 21 S. E. 178.

Judgment Docketed in Superior Court.—A judgment of a justice of the peace, duly docketed in the superior court, becomes a judgment of the superior court in every respect, and may be enforced by execution at any time within ten years from the date of such docketing under section 437. McIlhenny v. Wilmington, etc., Co., 108 N. C. 311, 12 S. E. 1001; Adams v. Guy, 106 N. C. 275, 11 S. E. 535.

Where the judgment debtor made a motion, within ten years from docketing judgment, for leave to issue execution thereon, which was denied, and thereupon within one year after such denial, but more than ten years from the date of docketing, he brought an action on the judgment, it was held, that the action was barred by the statute of limitations, sec. 415 not being applicable to the facts. McIlhenny v. Wilmington Sav., etc., Co., 108 N. C. 311, 12 S. E. 1001.

Same—Where Action on Judgment.—In an action upon justice's judgments which have been docketed in the superior court and not merely a motion for executions, the seven years statute applied and barred a recovery of the claim. Oldham v. Rieger, 148 N. C. 548, 551, 62 S. E. 612; Daniel v. Laughlin, 87 N. C. 433.

An action in the nature of a creditor's bill, brought in the superior court against an executor, for the purpose of an accounting and the payment of a judgment rendered against the testator obtained in a justice's court, is an action upon a judgment of a justice of the peace. Oldham v. Rieger, 148 N. C. 548, 62 S. E. 612.

Application to Surety upon Stay of Execution.—Where one by signing a stay of execution upon a justice's judgment as surety becomes thereby a party to the judgment, the statutory bar of seven years applies to an action brought against the surety upon the judgment. Barringer v. Allison, 78 N. C. 79.

II. SUBSECTION TWO.

Prior Law.—Under the provisions of the Act of 1715, if the debt was due at the death of the debtor, an action must have been brought within seven years from the death, otherwise both the heir and the executor would have been discharged, and if the action arose after the death, the action must have been brought within seven years after the cause of action arose, or the act would have been a bar, provided the personal representative has paid over the assets. Syme v. Badger, 96 N. C. 197, 2 S. E. 61.

R. C. ch. 65, sec. 11, provided that creditors should make their claim within seven years after the death of their debtor, or be forever barred; and according to every interpretation which has been put upon its terms, it worked a complete bar to every demand, due at the death of the debtor, upon which suit was thereafter delayed for seven years, provided it appeared that in the meantime the estate had been fully administered, so that nothing remained in the hands of the administrator, with which to satisfy the claim. Godley v. Taylor, 14 N. C. 178; Cooper v. Cherry, 53 N. C. 323; McKeithan v. McGill, 83 N. C. 517; Morris v. Syme, 88 N. C. 453, 455.

Purpose and Effect of Statute.—Our present limitations in favor of estates of deceased persons are unconnected with assets to the distributees and taken refunding bonds as well after a given time, and are intended to stimulate the vigilance of creditors and give repose to the estates of deceased debtors. Lawrence v. Norfleet, 90 N. C. 533, 535.

The statute was intended to be restricted to cases where the creditor's action lies against the personal representative as such, e. g., the right to enforce specific performance or some lien or trust not covered by other provisions of the Code. Smith v. Brown, 118 N. C. 352. This is the only way to avoid the absurdity of barring a cause of action before it arises. When the creditor, seeking merely to collect his debt, is not barred as against the personal representative, he cannot be barred as against the land which that representative is to subject. The liability is that of the land, and not of the heir as such. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 525, 24 S. E. 210.

Statute as Absolute Bar.—After the time prescribed in this section, the statute is an absolute bar to creditors. Lawrence v. Norfleet, 90 N. C. 533; Worthy v. McIntosh, 90 N. C. 536; Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 343, 9 S. E. 294. From dissenting opinion.

When Construed with Section 441. — While this section standing alone would extend the time "by any creditor of a deceased person against his personal or real representative within seven years," etc., we must take it in connection with section 441, which restricts "within three years an action upon a contract, obligation or liability arising out of a contract express or implied, except those mentioned in the preceding sections" (which especially referred to contracts under seal, section 437 (2), Joyner v. Massey, 97 N. C. 148, 1 S. E. 702), and with section 412. Redmand v. Pippin, 113 N. C. 90, 92, 18 S. E. 50.

Section Confined to Creditors — Construed with Section 445.—The language of the statute is confined to actions by a creditor, whereas the duty to subject the land rests primarily on the personal representative. It would be anomalous to bar the creditor in seven years under this section and the personal representative in ten years under section 445. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 525, 24 S. E. 210.

Same—Application to Action for Possession.—This section does not apply to an action, brought to obtain possession of land bought for plaintiff's mother with plaintiff's money but conveyed to the former, the action being brought against the husband of the grantee after her death. Norton v. McDevit, 122 N. C. 755, 30 S. E. 24.

Same—Application to Suit between Administrators.—Where a suit is brought by one administrator against another, it must be commenced within seven years next after the right of action vests in the plaintiff under his appointment. Lawrence v. Norfleet, 90 N. C. 533.

Prerequisite to Running.—The mere lapse of time—seven years—does not create the bar; it must be coupled with the advertisement, or personal notice, and when these have been made, the statute will begin to run from the date of the qualification of the executor or administrator. Love v. Ingram, 104 N. C. 600, 10 S. E. 77.

When Statute Begins to Run.—It was not intended by this statute that the seven years should begin to run from the time of "making the advertisement." If that was the intention of the legislature, they would not in the same connection have employed the words "next after the qualification of the executor or administrator," as that is an event which must precede the advertisement, and which under the provisions of the law may do so by the space of twenty days. To give the act that construction there would be two events and leave it doubtful from which the time is to be computed. Cox v. Cox, 84 N. C. 138, 141.

Suits against an administrator must be brought by creditors of the decedent within seven years next after the qualification of the administrator. The Code, sec. 153. Lawrence v. Norfleet, 90 N. C. 533.

This statute is construed in Cox v. Cox, 84 N. C. 138, and it is held that while the advertisement is an indispensable prerequisite to the operation, it is incidental, and the time must be computed from the qualification of the representative. Lawrence v. Norfleet, 90 N. C. 533, 535.

Effect of Failure to Present Claim.—Though the failure to present the claims is declared to be an absolute bar (except against those laboring under disabilities), without any qualification as to the advertisement, this statute does not protect an administrator unless he has paid over the assets, and are absolute and positive in denying the remedy as advertised in conformity to the act. Cooper v. Cherry, 53 N. C. 323; Cox v. Cox, 84 N. C. 138, 142.

Significance of Making Advertisement. — The words "and making the advertisement required by law," etc., were used simply to qualify the provisions of the act, and the act should be construed as if it read "within seven years next after the qualification of the executor or administrator, provided he shall have made the advertisement required by law for creditors of the deceased to present their claims," etc. Cox v. Cox, 84 N. C. 138, 142.

See the dissenting opinion in Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294.

While the advertisement for creditors to present their claims is an indispensable prerequisite to the operation of this section, yet, as to the time from which the statute begins to run, it is incidental. Lawrence v. Norfleet, 90 N. C. 533.

Same—Prerequisites to Pleading by Representatives.—The executor or administrator must show that seven years have transpired after his qualification before the commencement of the action, and that he had advertised as required by law. Without proof of the advertisement, the plea of the statute of limitations cannot avail him. Cox v. Cox, 84 N. C. 138, 142.

An executor or administrator who pleads the statute of limitations under this subsection must show that the seven years have expired next after his qualification before suit brought, and that he has advertised according to law. Without proof of the advertisement, the plea of the statute will not avail him. Cox v. Cox, 84 N. C. 138.

Same — Necessity for Affirmative Plea. — To enable the personal representative of a deceased person to avail himself of the limitations provided in this subsection, he must allege in his plea, and prove upon the trial, that he made the advertisement, or gave the personal notice to the creditors, as prescribed in the statute. Love v. Ingram, 104 N. C. 600, 10 S. E. 77.

Conditions Preventing the Running. — Nothing will defeat the operation of this subsection, except the disabilities mentioned in the Code, or such fraud or other matter of equitable nature, as would make it against conscience to rely on the statute. Syme v. Badger, 96 N. C. 197, 2 S. E. 61.

The death of the surety and the lapse of a time longer than that prescribed in the statute before the qualification of a personal representative did not suspend the operation of the statute, if the wards could, during that time, have proceeded against the guardian. Williams v. McNair, 98 N. C. 332, 4 S. E. 131, 133.

Pendency of Suit as Suspension. — If an action is brought by a creditor against the personal representative of his deceased debtor within seven years, etc., but by delays in the courts judgment is not obtained until after seven years, the real representative is not protected by the statute of limitations when it is sought to subject the decedent's lands to the payment of such debt. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 24 S. E. 210.

So much of the ruling in Syme v. Badger, 96 N. C. 197, 2 S. E. 61. as holds that the realty is protected from liability for the debts of the deceased if the statutory period of seven years has expired, even though the creditor had begun proceedings within the seven years against the personal representative to enforce his claim, but by delays in the court had failed to obtain judgment till after that period is overruled. This decision has been much questioned and has been repeatedly shaken, among other cases, see Woodlief v. Bragg, 108 N. C. 571, 13 S. E. 211, and Smith v. Brown, 101 N. C. 347, bottom of p. 352, 7 S. E. 890. It may be noted that its supporting case, Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 2 S. E. 235, which protected the heir at law by the lapse of seven years from the qualification of the personal representatives, even as to causes of action accruing subsequently to the death of the decedent, was overruled in Miller v. Shoaf, 110 N. C. 319, 14 S. E. 800, thereby establishing the dissenting opinion of Merrimon, J., in Andres v. Powell as the correct statement of the law. See v. McCoy, supra, therefore, overruled the decision in Syme v. Badger, which, after the long and repeated consideration given it, seems to have been founded upon a mistaken line of reasoning. See Smith v. Brown, pp. 352, 353. Since the obtaining a judgment against the personal representatives prevents the bar of the statute as to the real representatives, there can be no reason why the latter are not equally prohibited from pleading the statute when the action was begun against the personal representatives within seven years, but by delays in the courts judgment was not had against them after the lapse of seven years.

The ruling in Syme v. Badger would bar a cause of action before the right to sue on it had accrued. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 523, 24 S. E. 210.

Same — As against Heirs Where Not Parties. — Where proceedings against the administratrix were instituted within the seven years after her qualification and making advertisement though the heirs at law were not made parties to the proceedings till after the lapse of seven years, the proceedings, not being barred as to the personal representative, cannot be barred as to the heirs at law by this section. Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 525, 24 S. E. 210.

Time of Accrual as Affecting Application. — This subsection contemplates those claims upon which the right of action had accrued at the time of qualification; as to those upon which the right of action subsequently accrues, the statute begins to run from the date of such accrual. Syme v. Badger, 96 N. C. 197, 2 S. E. 61, and Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 2 S. E. 235; distinguished. Miller v. Shoaf, 110 N. C. 319, 14 S. E. 800.

Necessity for Full Administration. — Creditors of a deceased person, whose claims were due at the death of the debtor, are barred after seven years next after letters granted; provided the estate has been fully administered. Morris v. Syme, 88 N. C. 453. Governed by R. C. ch. 65, section 11.

Effect of No Assets in Hands of Representatives. — This statute is an absolute bar unless suit is brought within the time specified, whether there be assets or not in the hands of the representative. Lawrence v. Norfleet, 90 N. C. 533.

What Must Be Pleaded and Proved by Administrator. — Where an administrator had assets and sets up the statute of limitations against a debt of his intestate he must aver and prove that he has properly administered the same, in order that his plea may avail him. If it is ascertained he has no assets, the statute is a complete bar. Little v. Duncan, 89 N. C. 416.

The statute was not a bar, at all events; if there were assets in the hands of the administrator, the plea of this section would not be good and avail him, unless he should, in that case, aver and prove that he had paid such assets to the persons entitled to the same. Little v. Duncan, 89 N. C. 416, 419.

Heirs as Parties. — In order to save circumlocution the heirs at law may be made parties to the proceedings against the personal representative. Lilly v. Wooley, 94 N. C. 412, which was cited with approval in Syme v. Badger, 96 N. C. 197, 2 S. E. 61, and which has been approved since in Brittain v. Dickson, 104 N. C. 547, 10 S. E. 701; Lee v. McKoy, 118 N. C. 518, 526, 24 S. E. 210.

§ 439. Six years.—Within six years an action—

1. Upon the official bond of a public officer.

2. Against an executor, administrator, collector, or guardian on his official bond, within six years after the auditing of his final account by the proper officer, and the filing of the audited account as required by law.

3. For injury to any incorporeal hereditament.

4. Against a corporation, or the holder of a certificate or duplicate certificate of stock in the corporation, on account of any dividend, either a cash or stock dividend, paid or allotted by the corporation to the holder of the certificate or duplicate certificate of stock in the corporation. (Rev., s. 393; Code, s. 154; C. C. P., s. 33; 1931, c. 169.)

I. In General.
II. Subsection One—Public Officers.
III. Subsection Two—Executor, Guardian, etc.

I. IN GENERAL.

See notes to § 441.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 which added subsection 4 to this section became effective on March 23, 1931.

Prior Law. — Formerly there was no statute limiting the time in which actions must be brought on bonds, except a provision in favor of the surety. Humble v. Mebane, 89 N. C. 410, 415.

"The present statute takes the place of section 5, chapter 65 of the Revised Code. It is manifestly intended to serve the same purpose, and must receive the same construction as to the time when the statute begins to operate." Baker v. Monroe, 15 N. C. 412; Coomer v. Little, 1 N. C. 311. Commissioners of Monroe County v. MacRae, 89 N. C. 95, 97.

Manner of Pleading Section. — This section must be affirmatively pleaded. Humble v. Mebane, 89 N. C. 410, 415.

II. SUBSECTION ONE—PUBLIC OFFICERS.

Application to Bond of Defaulted Clerk. — This section is applicable to an action against the surety on the bond of a defaulted clerk of the Superior Court. State v. Martin, 186 N. C. 127, 118 S. E. 914.

Application to Action for Tort against Clerk. — In an action of tort against a Clerk of the Superior Court for failing to index a docketed judgment as required, this section does not apply. Shackelford v. Staton, 117 N. C. 73, 23 S. E. 101.

Application to Registers of Deeds. — The statutory limit for bringing actions on the official bond of the register of deeds seems to be six years, under this section. Thus the statute commences to run from the time of the failure to register. State v. Grizzard, 117 N. C. 105, 110, 23 S. E. 93.

When Statute Begins to Run. — An action upon an official bond may be brought within six years after a breach thereof; the statute does not begin to run from the date, but only from the breach of the bond. Commissioners v. MacRae, 89 N. C. 95.

Ordinarily the statute begins to run from the time of the breach of the bond. Upon the termination of a sinking fund commissioner's term the law required him to account for funds in his hands and his failure to do so constituted a breach of his official bond giving rise to a cause of action thereon immediately. Washington v. Bonner, 203 N. C. 250, 165 S. E. 683.

Where the official bond of a public officer by valid contractual limitation covers only the first year of the official's six-year term of office, the statute of limitations begins to run in favor of the surety on the bond from the expiration of the first year of the official's term of office and not the expiration of the official's statutory six-year term of office in view of this section. Washington v. Trust Co., 205 N. C. 382, 171 S. E. 438.

Protection Extends to Surety. — This statute protects both principal and surety upon the bond. Vaughan v. Hines, 87 N. C. 445.

III. SUBSECTION TWO—EXECUTORS, GUARDIANS, ETC.

Purpose of Section. — This section is intended to limit the liability of executors, administrators, next of kin and heirs of decedents, and after reasonable time, to give quiet and repose to the estate of dead men. Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 160, 2 S. E. 235.

Application and Relation of Various Sections.—This section, par. (2), expressly applies to actions on the "official bond," § 441 par. (6) to sureties only, and section 445 so far as executors, administrators and guardians are concerned, is applicable only when there has been a settlement, either by acts of the parties or a decree of court. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294. See dissenting opinion.

Where the distributees, who until they became of age, had a guardian, did not bring suit for an alleged balance due under the testator's will for fifteen years after the executor filed his final account, the action was barred by either this section or section 445. Culp v. Lee, 109 N. C. 675, 14 S. E. 74.

The statutes of limitation applicable to actions against administrators make a distinction between their fiduciary liabilities and their liabilities upon the administration bond. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294. Dissenting opinion.

Application to Action for Account. — Where the action is not brought upon the official bond as administrator of the testator of the defendant, but it is brought to compel an account and settlement of the estate of the intestate of the plaintiff in his hands in his lifetime, the defendant is a trustee of an express trust, and the Statute of Limitations does not apply. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 338, 9 S. E. 294.

Application to Action for Share. — The Statute does not run in favor of administrators against the suit of the next of kin for their distributive shares, Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 338, 9 S. E. 294; unless the action is on the bond to recover the amount of such share. Vaughan v. Hines, 87 N. C. 445.

When Applicable to Action for Balance Due. — No statute of limitations is a bar to an action to recover a balance admitted by a personal representative to be due legatees or distributees on his final account, unless he can show that he has disposed of such balance in some way authorized by law, or unless three years have elapsed since a demand and refusal to pay such admitted balance. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294. See dissenting opinion.

Persons against Whom Section Absolute Bar. — An action must be brought against an executor or administrator by a creditor, legatee or next of kin of the decedent, within six years after the filing of the final account, or it will be barred by the statute. Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 2 S. E. 235. See dissenting opinion.

The creditors must bring their action within the six year period of limitation. Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 161, 2 S. E. 235. See dissenting opinion.

It would be a curious legal anomaly if, within six years, the next of kin should bring their action against the executor or administrator (and they must bring it within six years or be barred) and recover, and then more than six years after the auditing of the account a creditor of the deceased should bring action and be allowed to recover, either out of the executor or administrator, or out of the next of kin or heir. Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 161, 2 S. E. 235.

An action on the bond must be prosecuted within the six years after the filing of the specified account as well by the next of kin as by creditors, in order to escape the statutory obstruction. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 338, 9 S. E. 294.

After the time prescribed in this section and section 441, subsection 6, the statute is an absolute bar to the next of kin. Vaughan v. Hines, 87 N. C. 445; Spruill v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 466; Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 343, 9 S. E. 294. From dissenting opinion.

This applies to an action upon a bond to recover distributive shares. Vaughan v. Hines, 87 N. C. 445.

Extent of Surety's Protection. — This statute protects the surety as well as the principal. Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 156, 160, 2 S. E. 235; Kennedy v. Cromwell, 108 N. C. 1, 13 S. E. 135. See dissenting opinion.

In addition to the protection of this section, the sureties on the bond are exonerated unless action is brought within three years after breach of the bond under section 441, par. 6. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294. See dissenting opinion.

Where the cause of action against an executor, administrator or guardian is for a breach of the bond, it is barred as to the sureties after three years from the breach complained of under section 441(6); Kennedy v. Cromwell, 108 N. C. 1, 13 S. E. 135. See dissenting opinion.

Failure of Guardian to Pay Balance Due Ward.—An action against a guardian for failure to pay the ward the balance of the estate due the ward after the ward has attained his majority is not barred by the six-year statute of limitations where the guardian has not filed a final account as required under this section, the statute not applying to such action. State v. Fountain, 205 N. C. 217, 171 S. E. 85.

Significance of Final Account and Audit. — The final account is the initial point at which the Statute begins to run, to actions upon the bond for a breach of its obligations, but leaves the representative, in his fiduciary capacity, exposed to the demand of the fiduciary or creditor, the latter losing his remedy under the condition set out in the preceding section. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 339, 9 S. E. 294.

Until a final account is filed and audited there can be no bar; nor is there any as to a balance admitted to be due by such final account, unless the executor or administrator can show that he has disposed of it in some way authorized by law, or unless there has been a demand and a refusal to pay such admitted balance, in which case the action is barred in three years after such demand and refusal. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 339, 9 S. E. 294.

After the final account the statute runs against the next of kin, and an action against the administrator upon his official bond is barred after six years from the auditing of his final account. Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 156, 160, 2 S. E. 235. See dissenting opinion.

The bar is unavailable under this section, unless there has been an account audited for the guardian, or unless there has been a lapse of three years from the breach of the bond in favor of the surety. Humble v. Mebane, 89 N. C. 410, 415.

Same—Effect of Failure to Make Final Settlement. — See note from Self v. Shugart, cited under the following catchline.

A guardian qualified in July, 1872; his ward came of age in September following; the guardian died without having settled his trust or making any of the returns required; in 1887 the ward made a demand upon, and brought suit against the sureties on the bond; held, that his action was barred. Norman v. Walker, 101 N. C. 24, 7 S. E. 468.

Significance of Demand Irrespective of Final Account. — Whether the final account is or is not filed, if there is a demand and refusal, the action is barred as to both the principal and sureties on said bond in three years under sec. 441(6). Kennedy v. Cromwell, 108 N. C. 1, 13 S. E. 135. See dissenting opinion.

When such final account is filed, and there is no demand and refusal; Quaere, whether the action as to the executor, administrator or guardian himself is barred in six years or ten years. Kennedy v. Cromwell, 108 N. C. 1, 13 S. E. 135. See dissenting opinion.

Same — As Applied to Suit by Minor. — An action by the ward against the sureties on the bond of the guardian is barred after three years from the time the ward becomes twenty-one years old if the guardian makes no final settlement; and within six years if the guardian makes a final settlement. Self v. Shugart, 135 N. C. 185, 47 S. E. 484. See dissenting opinion.

Where there is no final account filed, semble, that the statute begins to run from the arrival of the ward of age, but whether in such cases three years or ten years bars, quaere. Kennedy v. Cromwell, 108 N. C. 1, 13 S. E. 135. See dissenting opinion.

When Action Brought. — The action must be brought within six months after the auditing and filing of the account. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294. See dissenting opinion.

Suspension of Statute. — Where there was no one in esse from the death of the first administrator, till the qualification of the administrator de bonis non, who could sue upon the bond, that time should not be counted in applying the statute of limitations in an action against the sureties. Brawley v. Brawley, 109 N. C. 524, 14 S. E. 73.

§ 440. Five years.—Within five years—

1. No suit, action or proceeding shall be brought or maintained against a railroad company owning or operating a railroad for damages or compensation for right of way or use and occupancy of any lands by the company for use of its railroad unless the action or proceeding is commenced within five years after the lands have been entered upon for the purpose of constructing the road, or within two years after it is in operation.

2. No suit, action or proceeding shall be brought or maintained against a railroad company for damages caused by the construction of the road, or the repairs thereto, unless such suit, action or proceeding is commenced within five years after the cause of action accrues, and the jury shall assess the entire amount of damages which the party aggrieved is entitled to recover by reason of the trespass on his property. (Rev., s. 394; 1893, c. 152; 1895, c. 224; 1897, c. 339.)

I. In General.
II. Subsection One—Right of Ways.
III. Subsection Two—Damages for Construction and Repair.

I. IN GENERAL.

Law Prior to Section.—Before this section a railroad could acquire the prescriptive right to pond water on adjacent lands only by subjecting itself to an action for the injury continuously for twenty years. Harrell v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 122 N. C. 822, 29 S. E. 56; Nichols v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 120 N. C. 495, 26 S. E. 643.

The former law permitted the plaintiff to bring at his option, an action for permanent damages, in which case the entire damages, "past, present and prospective," could be sued for in one action to which twenty years was the limitation, or, at plaintiff's election, from time to time, actions could be brought for the continuing damages, in which actions the recovery was limited to damages accruing within three years. Parker v. Norfolk, etc., R. R., 119 N. C. 677, 25 S. E. 722; Ridley v. Seaboard, etc., R. R. Co., 124 N. C. 34, 32 S. E. 325; s. c., 118 N. C. 996, 24 S. E. 730; Beach v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 120 N. C. 498, 506, 26 S. E. 703. From dissenting opinion.

Prior to this section, three years was the statutory limitation to actions for recovery of damages to crops. Ridley v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 124 N. C. 34, 32 S. E. 325.

Constitutionality. — This section is not a violation of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, prohibiting any State from denying to any person the equal protection of the laws. Narron v. Wilmington, etc., R. R. Co., 122 N. C. 856, 29 S. E. 356.

Power of Legislature to Change Period.—The Legislature may reduce or extend the time within which an action may be brought, subject to the restriction that when the limitation is shortened, "a reasonable time must be given for the commencement of an action before the statute works a bar." Nichols v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 120 N. C. 495, 26 S. E. 643.

Retroactive Effect.—This section does not apply to a suit begun before its passage. Harrell v. The Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 122 N. C. 822, 29 S. E. 56; Nichols v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 120 N. C. 495, 26 S. E. 643.

Section Restricted to Railroad Companies.—The period of the acquisition by user for five years, allowed to railroad companies by this section, does not extend to telegraph companies. Teeter v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 172 N. C. 784, 90 S. E. 941.

This section in express terms applies only to actions against railroad companies, and the courts have no authority to extend its provisions to actions of a different character. Cherry v. Canal Co., 140 N. C. 422, 426, 53 S. E. 138.

The language in Mullen v. Canal Co., 130 N. C. 496, 505, 41 S. E. 1027, which is said to have extended this section to include canal companies, is as follows: "While chapter 224, Laws 1895, applies only to railroads, yet as the Court has extended the rule of permanent damages to water companies and telegraphs, under the principle laid down in Ridley v. R. R., 118 N. C. 996, we see no reason why it should not apply equally to canals." It will thus be observed that the Court here only declared that it would extend the rule of permanent damages to actions against the defendant company according to the principle announced and exploited in Ridley v. R. R., and as contemplated by the statute in reference to railroads, but did not, and did not intend, to extend the application of the statute or the period of limitation therein established to cases not contained in its provisions. Cherry v. Canal Co., 140 N. C. 422, 427, 53 S. E. 138.

When Statute Begins to Run.—The statute begins to run from the date of the first substantial injury. Stack v. Seaboard, etc., R. R., 139 N. C. 366, 51 S. E. 1024; Staton v. Atlantic, etc., R. R., 147 N. C. 428, 61 S. E. 455; Ridley v. Seaboard, etc., R. R., 118 N. C. 996, 24 S. E. 730; Beach v. R. R., 120 N. C. 498, 26 S. E. 703; Pickett v. Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co., 153 N. C. 148, 150, 69 S. E. 8.

The right of action of a remainderman against railroad to recover lands accrues upon the death of the life tenant. Young v. Atl. Coast Line R. R., 189 N. C. 238, 126 S. E. 600.

II. SUBSECTION ONE—RIGHT OF WAYS.

Section a Statute of Limitation — Affirmatively Plead. — This section in regard to bringing an action against a railroad for damages for a right of way taken by it without condemning the same or acquiring the easement by purchase, is a statute of limitation, and must be specially pleaded by the railroad company, if relied on; and it is not required of the owner to affirmatively show that he has commenced his action within the time specified, as it is not a condition annexed to his cause of action. Abernathy v. South and Western R. Co., 159 N. C. 340, 74 S. E. 890.

Amount of Damages Recoverable.—The amount recovered is not the estimated sum of all future damages expected to result from a continuing trespass, for such damages, running indefinitely, perhaps forever, would be utterly incapable of calculation; and, moreover, it would be giving the defendant a right to commit a wrong. The sum recoverable is the damage done to the estate of the plaintiff by the appropriation to the easement of so much of his land, or such use thereof as may be necessary to the easement. Beach v. Wilmington & Weldon R. R. Co., 120 N. C. 498, 502, 26 S. E. 703.

Allowance of Interest.—It is within the power of the lower court, to allow interest on the amount found since the actual taking by the railroad company of the owner's land for its right of way, as a part of the damages. Abernathy v. South & Western R. Co., 159 N. C. 340, 74 S. E. 890.

III. SUBSECTION TWO—DAMAGES FOR CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR.

Amendment of 1895. — The Act of 1893 chap. 152, was merely a statute of limitation. The Act of 1895, chap. 224, professedly an amendment to the Act of 1893, provides that all actions for damages caused by the construction or repair of any railroad, shall be commenced within five years after the cause of action occurs; and that "the jury shall assess the entire amount of damages which the party aggrieved is entitled to recover by reason of the trespass upon his property." Lassiter v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 126 N. C. 509, 512, 36 S. E. 48.

The provision in the Act of 1895 incidently providing for a statutory easement, rather by implication than direct terms, in effect is but little more than a legislative affirmation of the rule already enunciated in other jurisdictions and adopted in Ridley v. Seaboard, etc., R. R., 118 N. C. 996, 24 S. E. 730, which was decided a year after the act was passed. Lassiter v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 126 N. C. 509, 513, 36 S. E. 48.

Recovery for Easement and Damages.—Where the railroad is damaging plaintiff, but not permanently, and does not wish to acquire the easement under this section, it may pay for the damage done and then abate the cause of the injury without being forced to purchase the easement under this section. Lassiter v. Norfolk, etc., Ry. Co., 126 N. C. 509, 514, 36 S. E. 48.

Same—Ditches and Embankments as Permanent Structures. — A ditch is not necessarily a permanent structure. Suppose that a section master should carelessly dig a ditch that flooded a large brick building in such a manner that its continuance would probably eventually undermine its walls and cause its destruction. Could not the railroad fulfill its obligations by abating the nuisance and fully repairing the present damage, or would it be compelled to pay the full value of the building? Surely the statute never contemplated such injustice as the latter alternative. And yet, if it takes the easement, it must pay for it, and in any event must pay for the injury already done. Lassiter v. Norfolk, etc. R. R. 126 N. C. 509, 515, 36 S. E. 48.

Ditches may be made permanent, as far as the plaintiff is concerned, by the refusal of the defendant to change them; and in that event, if the court refuses to compel the abatement, it must award permanent damages. Such permanent damages represent the damage done to the estate of the plaintiff by the appropriation of the easement of so much of his land, or such use thereof, as may be necessary to the easement. As this, being the value of a right, is essentially distinct from damages for the perpetration of a wrong, they are cumulative and may both be recovered in the same action, as clearly intended by the statute. Lassiter v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. 126 N. C. 509, 515, 36 S. E. 48.

An action against a railroad company for damages caused to plaintiff's lands by an embankment built by the defendant's grantor, a railroad company, which at the time of its erection produced the same physical conditions, necessarily causing the same or substantial injury and interference on plaintiff's lands that have existed since, is barred by the statute of limitations after five years. Campbell v. Raleigh, etc., R. R. Co., 159 N. C. 586, 75 S. E. 1105.

Same — Recurrent Injuries — When Action Barred by Section 441. — In an action for damages against a railroad company arising from alleged negligence with respect to its roadbed, it is held, that for injuries arising from the original and permanent construction of the road, properly maintained, this section applies; but those arising from the negligent failure of the defendant to properly maintain the road, such as keeping open culverts and the like, actions may be brought from time to time for the three years preceding the institution of the action, as in ordinary cases of recurrent injury. Perry v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 171 N. C. 38, 87 S. E. 948.

Same — Inclusiveness of Section Respecting Damages. — The damages to land caused by the building of a railroad and structures within contemplation of this section are the entire damages, past, present, and prospective, including not only the depreciation of the land incident to the trespass, but also the injury to growth of crops during the period covered by the enquiry to the time of trial, which may be assessed by the jury on separate issues as to each. Barclift v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 175 N. C. 114, 95 S. E. 39.

The evident meaning of this act is that hereafter, in all actions against railroads for injuries from construction or repair of the road, the permanent damages must be assessed. Strickland v. Draughan, 91 N. C. 103. Nichols v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 120 N. C. 495, 498, 26 S. E. 643.

Since this section all damages accruing from the construction of a railroad must be sued for within five years and the entire amount of damages must be recovered in one action. This is a very just enactment and protects such corporations from the oppression of being sued again and again ad infinitum on the ground of continuing damages. Beach v. Wilmington & Weldon R. R. Co., 120 N. C. 498, 506, 26 S. E. 703. From dissenting opinion.

In actions brought in cases for damages to crops and personal injuries, since the passage of this section, only permanent damages, i. e., damages once for all, can be recovered; and such actions are barred by the lapse of five years. Ridley v. Seaboard, etc., R. R. Co., 124 N. C. 34, 32 S. E. 325.

It is true the act uses the words "shall assess," but they are expressly applied to the damages to which the plaintiff is entitled. This act does not profess to restrict the right of the plaintiff to compensation for the injury suffered. If the plaintiff is otherwise entitled to yearly damages, he can recover them in addition to the just compensation to which he is entitled for the value of the easement if it is conveyed to the defendant. It is true that, if entitled thereto, he must recover them in the same action, but not necessarily in the same issue. In fact it is better to submit them in different issues, as they are distinct in principle. The one is compensation for a wrong; while the other is the conveyance of a right, as the allowance of permanent damages under this act is in effect the condemnation of land to the use of a statutory easement. Lassiter v. Norfolk, etc., R. R. Co., 126 N. C. 509, 513, 36 S. E. 48.

Same — Damages Arising after Construction. — This section does not necessarily begin to run from the time the road or structures were originally erected if thereafter changes have been made therein which caused appreciable and substantial damages to adjoining lands. Barclift v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 175 N. C. 114, 95 S. E. 39.

The Statute of Limitations begins to run in cases where the injury is continual and gradual, not necessarily from the construction of the road, but from the time when the first injury was sustained. This means, of course, the first substantial injury, as it would be a hardship to require a plaintiff to bring an action when his recovery would necessarily be merely nominal, and yet would be a bar to any future action. Beach v. Wilmington & Weldon R. R. Co., 130 N. C. 498, 502, 36 S. E. 703.

This section does not apply to damages for the diversion of water from a lateral ditch along the roadbed of a railroad company, caused by an insufficient culvert to carry it under the roadbed, until the culvert became insufficient. Savage v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 168 N. C. 241, 84 S. E. 292.

By this section actions for damages occasioned by the construction of railroads are to be commenced within five years after cause of action occurs, and the jury shall assess the entire amount of damages suffered by the party aggrieved. The statute does not begin to run until the damage is done. Lassiter v. Norfolk etc., R. R. Co., 136 N. C. 509, 36 S. E. 48.

Same — Assessment of Permanent Damages Compulsory. —In the case of Beasley v. R. R., 147 N. C. 362, it was held that the assessment of "permanent damages" in a case against a railroad for injuries to land in construction or repair of its roadbed, is made compulsory by this subsection. Pickett v. Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co., 153 N. C. 148, 150, 69 S. E. 8.

The word "permanent," as applied to injuries and damages, is apt to mislead, as it is used not only in cases where the damage is all done at once, as, for instance, in the tearing down of a house, but also to those cases where the damage is continuing and prospective. In these latter cases the damage is called "permanent," because it proceeds from a permanent cause and will probably continue indefinitely as the natural effect of the same cause. Such is the case where the cause is apparently permanent and the damage necessarily continuing or recurrent. The interest and inconvenience of the public will not permit the abatement of the nuisance, and the law does not contemplate an indefinite succession of suits. Beach v. Wilmington etc., R. R. Co., 120 N. C. 498, 502, 26 S. E. 703.

The confusion liable to arise from the word "permanent" as applied to damages is pointed out in Beach v. R. R. 120 N. C. 496, 502, where the nature of such an easement is discussed. Whether the damage is permanent or not, must appear from the pleadings. If the damage is in itself irreparable, or if it will probably recur from a given state of things which the defendant refuses to change, and which the court from motives of public policy will not make him change, permanent damages are allowed as the only way of doing justice to the plaintiff, and at the same time preventing interminable litigation. As far as the plaintiff is concerned, permanent and recurring damages are the same to him, if they equally result in the destruction of his property. The latter are in some respects worse than the former, as they merely prolong his agony, and may cause even greater loss. For instance, if a farmer knows that the railroad has acquired a right to flood his land, he will not plant it; whereas if he relies upon their subsequent forbearance from unlawful injury, he may suffer not only the damage to his land, but also the loss of his labor, seed and fertilizer. In other words, the loss of the crop means the loss of everything that has been put into the crop. Lassiter v. Norfolk etc., R. R. Co., 126 N. C. 509, 514, 36 S. E. 48.

Recovery by Present Owner. — The present owner of land may recover of a railroad company, under the provisions of this section, the entire damages to his land caused by permanent structures or proper permanent repairs of defendant, for a period of five years from the time when the structures or repairs caused substantial injury to the claimant's land, unless a former owner, entitled thereto, had instituted action therefor before his sale and conveyance of the land thus permanently injured by the trespass. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Nichols, 187 N. C. 153, 120 S. E. 819.

Effect of Amendment of Pleadings as to Bar. — An amendment to the complaint in an action against a railroad company to recover damages to a crop caused by diversion of the natural flow of water, so as to allege permanent damages to the land does not add a new cause of action, but relates only to the measure of damages arising from the injury; and this section will not bar the plaintiff by reason of the amendment alone. Pickett v. Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co., 153 N. C. 148, 69 S. E. 8.

Applied in Owenby v. Louisville, etc., R. R. Co., 165 N. C. 641, 81 S. E. 997.

§ 441. Three Years. — Within three years an action—

1. Upon a contract, obligation or liability arising out of a contract, express or implied, except those mentioned in the preceding sections.

2. Upon a liability created by statute, other than a penalty or forfeiture, unless some other time is mentioned in the statute creating it.

3. For trespass upon real property. When the trespass is a continuing one, the action shall be commenced within three years from the original trespass, and not thereafter.

4. For taking, detaining, converting or injuring any goods or chattels, including action for their specific recovery.

5. For criminal conversation, or for any other injury to the person or rights of another, not arising in contract and not hereinafter enumerated.

6. Against the sureties of any executor, administrator, collector or guardian on the official bond of their principal; within three years after the breach thereof complained of.

7. Against bail; within three years after judgment against the principal; but bail may discharge himself by a surrender of the principal, at any time before final judgment against the bail.

8. For fees due to a clerk, sheriff or other officer, by the judgment of a court; within three years from the rendition of the judgment, or the issuing of the last execution thereon.

9. For relief on the ground of fraud or mistake; the cause of action shall not be deemed to have accrued until the discovery by the aggrieved party of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake.

10. For the recovery of real property sold for the nonpayment of taxes, within three years after the execution of the sheriff's deed. (Rev., s. 395, Code, s. 155; C. C. P., s. 34; 1895, c. 165; 1889, cc. 269, 218; 1899, c. 15, s. 71; 1901, c. 558, s. 23; 1913, c. 147, s. 4.)

I. In General.
II. Subsection One—Contracts.
III. Subsection Two—Liability Created by Statute.
IV. Subsection Three—Trespass upon Realty.
V. Subsection Four—Goods or Chattels.
VI. Subsection Six—Sureties of Executors, etc.
VII. Subsection Seven—Bail.
VIII. Subsecton Eight—Clerk Fees.
IX. Subsection Nine—Fraud or Mistake.
X. Subsection Ten—Realty Sold for Taxes.

I. IN GENERAL.

Section Not Retroactive. — A bond for the payment of money executed prior to this section, by the principal and his sureties, is exempted from the operation of the statute of limitations as contained in this section. Knight v. Braswell, 70 N. C. 709.

Burden of Proving Section. — When the statute of limitations is pleaded the burden devolves upon the plaintiff to show that the cause of action accrued within the time limited. Parker v. Harden, 121 N. C. 57, 38 S. E. 30.

Effect of Equity upon Claim.—The enforcement of an equity will never be denied, on the ground of lapse of time, where the party seeking it has been in continuous possession of the estate to which the equity is an incident. Mas v. Tiller, 89 N. C. 423.

Effect of Disability. — This statute does not begin running against a person under disability, such as infancy, until the disability is raised; hence it does not begin running until then notwithstanding that the cause may have otherwise accrued prior to that time. Settle v. Settle, 141 N. C. 553, 574, 54 S. E. 445.

Insane Persons Presumed to Have Plead Section. — See section 406.

Section Supplemented by Section 412. — This statute cannot avail as a defense where within six months after the death of the intestate, the plaintiff had qualified as her administrator and had commenced a special proceeding, in the county where the lands of the intestate were situated, to subject them to the payment of debts. Harris v. Davenport, 132 N. C. 697, 700, 44 S. E. 406.

Where plaintiff has taken a voluntary nonsuit and brings the identical action again, if the former action has not been barred by this section, the second action is in time if brought within one year from the time of the voluntary nonsuit. Van Kempen v. Latham, 201 N. C. 505, 160 S. E. 759.

When Proper to Decide Application in Appellate Court. — Upon the appeal it is unnecessary to decide whether this section or section 445 applies where there is an insufficient finding of fact to sustain a plea of either, and for this reason a new trial must be had. Dayton v. Asheville, 185 N. C. 12, 115 S. E. 827.

Application to Action to Recover Share of Estate. — An action by an administrator to recover his intestate's share of an estate, is governed by section 445, which provides that actions not otherwise provided for shall be brought within ten years, and not this section. Hunt v. Wheeler, 116 N. C. 422, 21 S. E. 915.

Bar Applies to Remedy. — The bar is applied under this section, not to the mode in which relief is sought, but to the relief itself. Spruill v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 466, 471.

Cited in Bray v. Creekmore, 109 N. C. 49, 13 S. E. 723; Muse v. London Assur. Corp., 108 N. C. 240, 243, 13 S. E. 94; Griffith Profitt Co. v. English, 198 N. C. 66, 68, 150 S. E. 619; Rhodes v. Tanner, 197 N. C. 458, 149 S. E. 552.

II. SUBSECTION ONE—CONTRACTS.

As to what acknowledgments, admissions, etc., by the makers, repel this section, see section 417.

Application to Agreement to Arbitrate.—An agreement to submit a controversy to arbitration is a contract between the parties, and an action thereon, when it is not under seal, in respect to the running of the statute of limitations, is governed by the three-year statute. Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 159 N. C. 81, 74 S. E. 739.

Action for Money Had and Received.—An action by a county board of school directors for fines and penalties collected by a city is in the nature of one for money had and received, with none of the incidents of a fiduciary or trust relation, and this sub-section applies. School Directors v. Asheville, 128 N. C. 249, 251, 38 S. E. 874.

Contract to Pay Money.—Where land was conveyed to J. with condition that he pay certain sums to his brothers, and he accepted the land and took possession under the devise, he immediately became liable, and the right of action was barred in three years under this section. Rice v. Rice, 115 N. C. 43, 20 S. E. 185.

Action for Damages against Carrier.—Where the demand in writing for damages of a carrier was made within thirty days, and action was brought within three years it was not barred by this section. U. S. Watch Case Co. v. Southern Exp. Co., 120 N. C. 351, 352, 27 S. E. 74.

Application to Sealed Instruments—Sureties.—This section applies to actions upon all sealed instruments, not referred to in preceding sections. One of these not mentioned in the preceding sections is an action on a sealed note against the sureties thereto. Although such an action against the principal is not barred until ten years by section 437 subs. (2), that provision does not refer to sureties. This has been the settled law since, Welfare v. Thompson, 83 N. C. 276, 279, was decided. Redmond v. Pippen, 113 N. C. 90, 92, 18 S. E. 50.

An action against the sureties on the bond of a clerk for defalcations in the office of the State Treasurer is barred after three years. Jackson v. Martin, 136 N. C. 196, 198, 48 S. E. 672.

This section applies to sureties on a note under seal, and as to the sureties the right of action on the note is barred after the lapse of three years. Barnes v. Crawford, 201 N. C. 434, 160 S. E. 464.

An action on a note under seal against a surety thereon is barred after the lapse of three years from the maturity of the note, or after three years from the expiration of an extension of time for payment binding on the surety under this section. Davis v. Alexander, 207 N. C. 417, 177 S. E. 417.

Statute Bars Remedy of Claim and Delivery.—Where there had been no new promise or payment on the purchase price for over three years prior to the institution of the action, the three-year statute of limitations, under this section, barred the ancillary remedy of claim and delivery. Lester Piano Co. v. Loven, 207 N. C. 96, 176 S. E. 290.

Parol Evidence Admissible to Show in What Capacity Parties Signed Note.—In an action by the payee of a negotiable note under seal, appearing upon its face to have been signed by several makers, it may be shown upon the trial by parol evidence that with the knowledge of the payee before his acceptance only one of them signed as the original obligor, and that the others signed as sureties only, entitling the sureties to their release upon their defense of the statute of limitations under this section. Furr v. Trull, 205 N. C. 417, 171 S. E. 641.

Same—Effect of Payment after Statute Has Run.—Where a chattel mortgage on crops secures the payment of the maker's note and the mortgagee endorses the note, and mortgages to another, the bar of the three-years' statute of limitations which has otherwise run will not be repelled by payments on the note from the sale of the crop, as against the endorser, or without evidence of his intent to make the payment and thus impliedly at least acknowledge the debt; and his having attended the mortgage sale of the crop and become a purchaser, is not sufficient. Nance v. Hulin, 192 N. C. 665, 135 S. E. 774.

Indemnity or Fidelity Bond.—Where the liability of the insurer is expressly limited in an indemnity or fidelity bond to losses occasioned and discovered during a specified time, this section will not extend the period of indemnity for this is a statute of limitations and can have no effect upon the valid contractual relations existing between the indemnitor and indemnitee. Hood v. Rhodes, 204 N. C. 158, 159, 167 S. E. 558.

A guaranty of the payment of a note is an obligation arising out of contract by which the guarantors assume liability for payment of the note in case the makers thereof do not pay same upon maturity, and right to sue upon such guaranty arises immediately upon failure of the makers to pay the note according to its tenor, and suit against the guarantors is barred by this section after three years from the maturity of the note. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Clifton, 203 N. C. 483, 166 S. E. 334.

Accrual of Cause.—A cause of action did not accrue at the date of the warranty, but at the date on which it was finally determined that a plant was not free from all defects and flaws. Heath v. Moncrieff Furnace Co., 200 N. C. 377, 381, 156 S. E. 920.

Demand Necessary if Fiduciary Relation Exists.—Where a fiduciary relation exists between the parties, with respect to money due by one to the other, the statute of limitations does not begin to run until a demand and refusal. Efird v. Sikes, 206 N. C. 560, 562, 174 S. E. 513.

Statute Not Suspended by War Measures.—An action to recover damages for a breach of contract for the sale of goods arising during federal war control of railroads is barred by our State statute of limitations after three years from the time of its accrual. Vanderbilt v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 188 N. C. 568, 125 S. E. 387.

Unpaid Subscription to Corporate Stock.—While as to the stockholders the three-year statute of limitations on the amount unpaid on subscriptions to the capital stock of a corporation will run from the time of demand by the directors, it is otherwise as to the creditors where the corporation has become insolvent, for in the latter case the capital stock is regarded as a trust fund for the benefit of creditors, and the statute will begin to run from the demand of the receiver, representing the creditors, under the order of the court. Windsor Redrying Co. v. Gurley, 197 N. C. 56, 147 S. E. 676.

Same—Construed with Other Sections.—The application of this section with regard to the unpaid balance due a corporation by a subscriber to its capital stock, will be construed in pari materia with §§ 1160 and 1165. Windsor Redrying Co. v. Gurley, 197 N. C. 56, 147 S. E. 676.

Applied in Hall v. Hood, 208 N. C. 59, 179 S. E. 27.

III. SUBSECTION TWO—LIABILITY CREATED BY STATUTE.

Section Absolute Bar.—After the time prescribed in section 439, subsection 2, and this subsection, the Statute is an absolute bar to the next of kin. Vaughan v. Hines, 87 N. C. 445; Spruill v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 466; Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 343, 9 S. E. 294. From dissenting opinion.

Action for Failure to Collect Check.—An action against a bank for breach of its duty to collect a check and against another bank which took over the assets of the former is barred as against the latter bank by this section, where not commenced until five years after the transaction and four years after the transfer of the assets. Standard Trust Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 240 Fed. 303.

Action to Recover Delinquent Taxes.—Neither the three nor the ten years' statute of limitations applies to an act authorizing the State or a county or city to recover delinquent taxes unless such act expressly so provides. Wilmington v. Cronly, 122 N. C. 383, 30 S. E. 9.

Municipal Lien for Pavement.—The lien given a city or town on the lots of an owner along its streets for paving its sidewalk, rests only by statute, and not by common law, and is enforceable only against the lots, in rem, and not against the owner individually or out of his other property, and to enforce the same action must be commenced within three years next after the completion of the work, or it will be barred by the statute of limitations. Morganton v. Avery, 179 N. C. 551, 103 S. E. 138.

Application to Tort against Clerk Failing to Index Judgment.—In an action of tort against a Clerk of the Superior Court for failing to index a docketed judgment as required by section 613 this section is applicable. Shackelford v. Staton, 117 N. C. 73, 23 S. E. 101.

Application to Petition to Have Damages Assessed. — Where the charter of a railroad company provides that when the company has appropriated land without authority no action shall be brought by the owner except a petition to have the damage assessed, and fixes no limitation of the action, such petition is neither an action of trespass nor one on a liability created by statute within the meaning of this section, subsections (2) and (3), and the refusal of the trial judge to submit an issue upon the Statute of Limitations was not error. Land v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 107 N. C. 72, 12 S. E. 125; Utley v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 119 N. C. 720, 25 S. E. 1021.

IV. SUBSECTION THREE—TRESPASS UPON REALTY.

Amendment of 1895.—The last sentence of this subsection was added by the Act of 1895. Culbreth v. Downing, 121 N. C. 205, 28 S. E. 294.

Prior to the passage of this Act, in such cases, the lapse of 20 years was necessary to bar the action, when the presumption of a grant would arise. Parker v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 119 N. C. 677, 25 S. E. 722; Culbreth v. Downing, 121 N. C. 205, 206, 28 S. E. 294.

Same—Application to Accrued Actions.—In changing the period of limitation a reasonable time must have been given to accrued actions which would otherwise be barred by the new regulation. A reasonable time for the commencement of an action before the statute works a bar, (Nichols v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 120 N. C. 495, 26 S. E. 643), is the balance of the time unexpired according to the law as it stood when the amending act is passed, provided it shall never exceed the time allowed by the new statute. For example, if the action would have been barred in six years, and four years have elapsed before the amending Act, then two years more would be a reasonable time. If three years time would bar the action and three years had elapsed, as in the present case, before the amending act is passed, then three years thereafter would be the limit and no more, and this rule will apply to all other periods of limitation on actions. Culbreth v. Downing, 121 N. C. 205, 206, 28 S. E. 294.

Presumption as to Date of Conversion.—In the absence of proof as to the date of the conversion of property, the presumption is that it was as of the date of taking the property into possession. Parker v. Harden, 121 N. C. 57, 28 S. E. 20.

Continuing Trespass Defined.—Speaking of this section in Sample v. Roper Lumber Co., 150 N. C. 161, pp. 165-166, 63 S. E. 731, the Court said: "True, the statute declares that actions for trespass on real estate shall be barred in three years, and when the trespass is a continuing one such action shall be commenced within three years from the original trespass, and not thereafter; but this term, 'continuing trespass,' was no doubt used in reference to wrongful trespass upon real property, caused by structures permanent in their nature and made by companies in the exercise of some quasi-public franchise. Apart from this, the term could only refer to cases where a wrongful act, being entire and complete, causes continuing damage, and was never intended to apply when every successive act amounted to a distinct and separate renewal of wrong." Teeter v. Postal Tel-Cable Co., 172 N. C. 783, 785, 90 S. E. 941.

Same—As Applied to Telegraph Line.—Where a telegraph company has constructed its line of poles and wires along a railroad right of way on the lands of the owner more than three years next before the commencement of the owner's action for trespass, but within three years has constructed an additional line of its wires thereon and repaired its old line, replacing some of the old poles with new ones, in the same holes, it was held that the plaintiff's right to damages for the construction of the old line is barred by the statute, but the wrongful maintenance of the old and the building of the new line was a separate and independent trespass for which permanent damages may be awarded it. Teeter v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 172 N. C. 783, 90 S. E. 941.

An action against a telegraph company for the erection of poles on the land of the plaintiff, if brought within three years of the trespass, is not barred by limitation. Hodges v. Western Union Tel. Co., 133 N. C. 225, 45 S. E. 572.

Application to Diversion of River Water.—The unlawful diversion of river water is not a trespass on realty, but it is so nearly in the nature of an easement as to be governed by the same statute of limitations. Geer v. Durham Water Co., 127 N. C. 349, 37 S. E. 474.

Application to Negligence in Widening Canal.—In an action brought in 1903 to recover permanent damages caused by the negligent widening of defendant's canal, where it appeared that the entire wrong was done in 1898 and 1899, the action was barred under this subsection. Cherry v. Lake Drummond Canal, etc., Co., 140 N. C. 422, 53 S. E. 138.

Action for Cutting Timber.—The three years statute applies to recover damages for trespass in cutting and removing trees from the land. Tillery v. Whiteville Lumber Co., 172 N. C. 296, 90 S. E. 196.

Burden of Proof.—Where the defendant pleads this section to an action for trespass, with damages for cutting timber on lands, the burden is on the plaintiff to prove that he commenced his action within the time prescribed; and where from an analysis of the evidence it appears that this has not been done, a judgment of nonsuit is proper. Tillery v. Whiteville Lumber Co., 172 N. C. 296, 90 S. E. 196.

V. SUBSECTION FOUR—GOODS OR CHATTELS.

Section Does Not Confer Title—Period Necessary.—Possession of a chattel for a sufficient period to bar its recovery under this section does not confer title. The prior law, ch. 65, section 20 Rev. Code, so provided, but it has been repealed so that now there is no statute fixing a period at the end of which title to personal property will vest in the possessor. It is true that if held for a sufficient time the title will vest, but four years possession is insufficient. Pate v. Hazell, 107 N. C. 189. 11 S. E. 1089.

Charging in Conjunction with Section 445.—Where if the action has not been barred by the provisions of subsections 4 and 9 of this section, it would have been barred under sec. 445, it was not error to tell the jury that the action was barred in three years, or in ten years. Osborne v. Wilkes, 108 N. C. 651, 13 S. E. 285.

When Applicable to Funds Held by Trustee.—When a trustee notifies the party for whom he holds funds that he disavows the trust and will pay the funds over to another party, and does so, this is a conversion, and the statute of limitation begins to run, so that the cause of action is barred in three years. County Board v. State Board, 107 N. C. 366, 12 S. E. 452.

Property Advanced by Father.—Where slaves advanced by A to his son B were, on the death of the son, divided between his widow and children and held adversely thereafter for three years, A, the father is barred by the statute of limitations from afterwards reclaiming them. Jones v. Gordon, 55 N. C. 352.

Burden of Proof.—Where the three-year statute of limitations is pleaded in defense to an action for wrongful conversion of personal property, the burden of proof is on the plaintiff to show that the action was brought within the time allowed from the accrual of the cause, or that otherwise it was not barred. Rankin v. Oates, 183 N. C. 517, 112 S. E. 32.

VI. SUBSECTION SIX—SURETIES OF EXECUTORS, ETC.

Purpose of Section.—This section and the other related sections are intended to limit the liability of executors, administrators, next of kin and heirs of decedents, and, after reasonable time, to give quiet and repose to the estates of dead men. Andres v. Powell, 97 N. C. 155, 160, 2 S. E. 235.

Section 445 Not Affected.—Section 445, limiting the time for the bringing of an action to ten years, and applying to an action against an executor or adminstrator for a final accounting and settlement, is not affected by the provisions of this section, as to actions on their official bonds. Pierce v. Faison, 183 N. C. 17, 110 S. E. 857.

Sureties also Protected by Section 439.—In addition to the protection of section 439 par. 2, the sureties on the bond are exonerated unless action is brought within three years after breach of the bond. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294. See dissenting opinion.

While the sureties have the protection of six years under section 439 in common with their principal, they have a further exoneration, unless sued within three years after breach of the bond. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 337, 9 S. E. 294.

Section 439(2), expressly applies to actions on the "official bond," this section to sureties only. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294. See dissenting opinion.

Effect of Surety Being Foreign Corporation.—The statute of limitations is not suspended against the surety on a guardian bond by reason of such surety being a foreign corporation when it is shown that it continuously had a general agent within the jurisdiction of our courts for executing judicial bonds and collecting premiums thereon for the company and had complied with the section authorizing service of process on the Insurance commissioner. Anderson v. United States Fidelity Co., 174 N. C. 417, 93 S. E. 948.

Effect of Payment by Principal.—Payment made by a principal upon a bond, before the cause of action thereon is barred against the sureties, arrests the operation of the statute of limitations. Moore v. Goodwin, 109 N. C. 218, 13 S. E. 772.

Intervening Disabilities.—When this statute begins to run, the subsequent marriage of the feme plaintiff will not stop it. Kennedy v. Cromwell, 108 N. C. 1, 13 S. E. 135. See § 407 and note.

When Statute Begins to Run—Demand.—From the demand of the plaintiff for an account and settlement made on the administrator, and his failure and refusal to do so, this section began to run in favor of the defendant sureties on the administration bond. If the action is brought within three years of this time it is not barred. Stonestreet v. Frost, 123 N. C. 290, 292, 31 S. E. 718; Gill v. Cooper, 111 N. C. 311, 313, 15 S. E. 316.

Whether the final account is or is not filed, if there is a demand and refusal, the action is barred as to both the principal and sureties on said bond in three years. Kennedy v. Cromwell, 108 N. C. 1, 13 S. E. 135. See dissenting opinion.

This section is applicable only when there has been a settlement, either by the acts of the parties or a decree of court. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294.

An action against a guardian and his bondsman, where no final account has been filed, is barred after three years from the time of default and, at farthest, within three years from the ward's coming of age. Anderson v. United States Fidelity Co., 174 N. C. 417, 93 S. E. 948.

The cause of action by the administrator d. b. n. under this section does not accrue until his appointment, and the action by such administrator therefore is not barred as against the bondsman until three years subsequent to his appointment. Dunn v. Dunn, 206 N. C. 373, 173 S. E. 900.

Action by Cestui against Trustee after Settlement. — Where there has been a settlement between the trustee and cestui que trust, or a final determination of the amount due by a decree of Court, the trust is closed, and an action will be barred within three years from a demand and refusal. Spruill v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 466; Whedbee v. Whedbee, 58 N. C. 393; Barham v. Lomax, 73 N. C. 78; Wyrick v. Wyrick, 106 N. C. 84, 87, 10 S. E. 916.

Effect of Estate Being Unrepresented during Period.— When there was no one in esse from the death of the first administrator, till the qualification of the administrator de bonis non, who could sue upon the bond, that time should not be counted in applying the statute of limitations in an action against the sureties. Brawley v. Brawley, 109 N. C. 524, 14 S. E. 73.

Burden of Proof.—This section being pleaded, it was incumbent upon the plaintiff to show that the breach of the bond was within less than three years before the institution of this action against the appellee. Hussey v. Kirkman, 95 N. C. 63; Moore v. Garner, 101 N. C. 374, 7 S. E. 732; Hobbs v. Barefoot, 104 N. C. 224, 10 S. E. 170; Nunnery v. Averitt, 111 N. C. 394, 395, 16 S. E. 683. This was not done, and the surety is protected by the lapse of three years after demand and refusal. Norman v. Walker, 101 N. C. 24, 7 S. E. 468; Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294; Kennedy v. Cromwell, 108 N. C. 1, 13 S. E. 135; Brawley v. Brawley, 109 N. C. 524, 14 S. E. 73; Koonce v. Pelletier, 115 N. C. 233, 235, 20 S. E. 391.

Action to Reopen Account.—An action or proceeding to reopen an account stated by an executor and readjust a settlement made under the supervision of a Court, and sanctioned by a decree, must be brought within three years from the rendition of such decree, if the plaintiff (or petitioner) be under no disability, and the case involve no equitable element improper for the consideration of a Court of Law This conclusion finds some support in the provisions of this subsection. Spruill v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 466.

Ward's Suit against Sureties.—A suit by a ward against the sureties on the bond of his deceased guardian comes within the terms of this section and must be brought within the three year limit. Norman v. Walker, 101 N. C. 24, 7 S. E. 468.

The running of the statute under this section as against the plaintiffs and in favor of the sureties was not suspended by the payment of interest by the guardian on the amount due by him to each of the plaintiffs. The liability of the sureties on the bond is a conditional liability, dependent upon the failure of the guardian to pay the damages caused by his breach of the bond. The guardian and the sureties are not in the same class. For that reason the payment by the guardian of interest on the amount due by him to his former wards did not suspend the statute of limitations which began to run against each of his wards, when she became twenty-one years of age. State v. Fountain, 205 N. C. 217, 220, 171 S. E. 85.

Cited in State v. Purvis, 208 N. C. 227, 230, 180 S. E. 88.

VII. SUBSECTION SEVEN—BAIL.

Effect of Bail Being Out of State.—The language and meaning of this action is clear. Proceedings against bail, in civil actions, are barred, unless commenced within three years after judgment against the principal, notwithstanding the principal may have left the State in the meanwhile. Albemarle Steam Nav. Co. v. Williams, 111 N. C. 35, 15 S. E. 877.

VIII. SUBSECTION EIGHT—CLERK FEES.

Application to Judgment for Costs.—A plaintiff in a judgment on which costs only are due, is not barred by this section from the proper proceedings to enforce his claim, the same being in his favor and not of the officers of the court. Cowles v. Hall, 113 N. C. 359, 18 S. E. 329.

Not Applicable to Referee.—The claim of a referee for payment of services rendered in a cause which is still pending in the courts upon exceptions to his report is not barred by this section. Farmers' Bank v. Merchants', etc., Bank, 204 N. C. 378, 168 S. E. 221.

IX. SUBSECTION NINE—FRAUD OR MISTAKE.

Amendment of 1879.—Mistake.—This act was amended by the act of 1879, by inserting after the word "fraud," wherever it occurs, the words "or mistake." So that prior to the act of 1879, there was no statutory bar of three years to an action for relief on the ground of mistake. Mask v. Tiller, 89 N. C. 423, 425.

An action to correct a mistake should now be brought within the time limited in this section. Lanning v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 505, 511, 11 S. E. 622.

The 1889 amendment of this section struck a provision limiting this section to cases solely cognizable in a court of equity. There are many cases decided prior to the amendment construing this section to be so limited. There are also cases so construing it since its passage but they are restricted to those arising before the statute became effective. See Dunn v. Beaman, 126 N. C. 766, 770, 36 S. E. 172; Alpha Mills v. Watertown, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 797, 803, 21 S. E. 917; Blount v. Parker, 78 N. C. 128; Jaffray v. Bear, 103 N. C. 165, 9 S. E. 382; Egerton v. Logan, 81 N. C. 172; Spruill v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 466; Day v. Day, 84 N. C. 408; Batts v. Winstead, 77 N. C. 238. See also dissenting opinions in Kahnweiler v. Anderson, 78 N. C. 133, 144.

The amendment applied to an action for a false warranty in a sale made before the amendment, so that, in actions where relief on the ground of fraud was sought, the cause of action was not deemed to have accrued until the discovery of the fraud complained of. Alpha Mills v. Watertown, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 797, 21 S. E. 917.

This amendment leaves all actions subject to the same rule, whether they were heretofore cognizable solely in courts of equity or not, and makes all actions come under the same rule as if they had been originally cognizable in courts of equity. Alpha Mills v. Watertown, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 797, 803, 21 S. E. 917; Rouss v. Ditmore, 122 N. C. 775, 778, 30 S. E. 335.

Purpose and Construction of Section. — The statute of limitations was mainly intended to suppress fraud, by preventing fraudulent and unjust claims from being asserted after a long lapse of time. It ought not, therefore, to be so construed as to become an instrument to encourage fraud, if it admits of any other reasonable interpretation. The like spirit should govern the construction of the facts and circumstances of a transaction so as to take it out of the operation of the statute, where gross injustice would be worked by its application. Mask v. Tiller, 89 N. C. 423, 426.

When Applied to Exclusion of § 445.—This section cannot be applied where the allegations and proof are insufficient to sustain it, in preference to section 445, where there is a question as to which applies. Shankle v. Ingram, 133 N. C. 254, 255, 45 S. E. 578.

Applies to Actions at Law and Suits in Equity.—While this subsection originally applied only to actions for relief on the ground of fraud in cases solely cognizable by courts of equity, by statutory amendment and the decisions of our courts it now applies to all actions for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake. Stancill v. Norville, 203 N. C. 457, 166 S. E. 319.

Fraud or Mistake Prerequisite to Application.—This section has no application to an action to recover money for there is no evidence or allegation of fraud and mistake. Barden v. Stickney, 132 N. C. 416, 417, 43 S. E. 912; Bonner v. Stotesbury, 139 N. C. 3, 51 S. E. 781.

When Statute Begins to Run.—The statute runs from the discovery of the fraud or mistake, "or when it should have been discovered in the exercise of ordinary care"; and as it was the duty of plaintiff, as executor, to have laid off the land to the devisee and put her in possession, and as he could, by a simple calculation from the deed, have discovered that the description embraced 108 acres, and as for twenty years the various owners of the land had cultivated up to the boundaries, the statute had become a bar to the action.

Sinclair v. Teal, 156 N. C. 458, 72 S. E. 487. See also Stubbs v. Motz, 113 N. C. 458, 459, 18 S. E. 387; Peacock v. Barnes, 142 N. C. 215, 55 S. E. 99.

It is incumbent upon the plaintiff to show that he not only was ignorant of the facts upon which he relies in his action, but could not have discovered them in the exercise of proper diligence or reasonable business prudence. Latham v. Latham, 184 N. C. 55, 113 S. E. 623.

This statute begins to run from the time of discovery of a breach of the trust relationship and not from the time the relation was brought to an end. Egerton v. Logan, 81 N. C. 172, 179.

In an action to reform a timber deed for an alleged mutual mistake of the parties, the statute will run three years after the plaintiff had knowledge of the mistake alleged. Jefferson v. Roanoke R., etc., Co., 165 N. C. 46, 80 S. E. 882. See also Lanning v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 505, 511, 11 S. E. 622.

Upon the question of fraudulent concealment of funds, this section runs from the discovery of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake and not from the discovery by a party of rights hereto unknown to him. Bonner v. Stotesbury, 139 N. C. 3, 51 S. E. 781.

It is a question of grave doubt, if the point had been raised, whether the statute as to the plaintiff's cause of action began to run upon the mere declaration of insolvency of the bank, and did not in truth begin to run upon the actual discovery, later on (after the investigation of the receiver) that the bank was insolvent at the time the incorrect statements were put forth. Houston v. Thornton, 122 N. C. 365, 375, 29 S. E. 827.

Applying this section to an action to set aside a deed to lands made by the husband to the wife for fraud on the former's creditors, this section by correct interpretation is held to mean until the impeaching facts should have been discovered in the exercise of reasonable business prudence. Ewbank v. Lyman, 170, N. C. 505, 87 S. E. 348.

Where a clerk of the Superior Court embezzles funds and such fraud is not discovered until about 90 days prior to the institution of proceedings against the clerk and the surety on his bonds, and such fraud could not have been discovered earlier by reasonable diligence, this section and not § 439 applies. State v. Gant, 201 N. C. 211, 159 S. E. 427; State v. American Surety Co., 201 N. C. 325, 160 S. E. 176.

The actual time of the discovery of the alleged mistake is not determinative, but the cause of action for reformation of the bonds accrued when the mistake should have been discovered by plaintiff in the exercise of due diligence, and plaintiff being an educated man, and there being no evidence of any effort to conceal the plain language of the bonds or to prevent plaintiff from reading them, plaintiff's cause of action was barred under this section. Moore v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 207 N. C. 433, 177 S. E. 406. See also, in this connection, Hargett v. Lee, 206 N. C. 536, 539, 174 S. E. 498; Hood v. Paddison, 206 N. C. 631, 635, 175 S. E. 105.

Same—Record as Notice of Fraud.—True, as indicated in Tuttle v. Tuttle, 146 N. C. 484, 59 S. E. 1008; Modlin v. Roanoke R., etc., 145 N. C. 218, 58 S. E. 1075, and Stubbs v. Motz, 113 N. C. 458, 18 S. E. 387, the mere registration of a deed will not usually, in these and like cases, be imputed for constructive knowledge; but in the present case the deed under which feme defendant claims and now holds this property had been on the registry in the proper county for more than eleven years before this action was instituted, and plaintiff's judgment had been docketed in the county since 1897. Ewbank v. Lyman, 170 N. C. 505, 509, 87 S. E. 348.

While the mere registration of deed to lands from a husband to his wife will not usually be imputed for constructive knowledge that it was done in fraud of the husband's creditors, it may be otherwise regarded when taken in connection with other relevant circumstances, and under the circumstances of this case it is held that the failure of the plaintiff in not sooner investigating the records was such negligence as will be imputed to her for knowledge, and bar her cause of action. Ewbank v. Lyman, 170 N. C. 505, 87 S. E. 348.

Where a foreclosure sale of lands is attacked for fraud upon the ground that the trustee sold the timber on the land separate from the land and made deeds to each to separate parties, which were duly recorded, the record itself gives notice of the transaction, which with knowledge of the sale itself should have put the plaintiffs and their mother, as whose heirs at law they claim, and in whose lifetime foreclosure was had, upon reasonable notice of the fact, and bar their recovery after three years. Sanderlin v. Cross, 172 N. C. 234, 90 S. E. 213.

Same—Sale of Trust Land by Trustee as Notice. — Proceedings before clerk to sell trust lands to make assets to pay the debts of the deceased, and the open, notorious, and adverse possession of the purchasers of the land, under their registered deeds, were sufficient to put the plaintiffs, claiming under the children of the said son, the cestuis que trustent, upon notice of the fraud alleged, if any committed by the executor, and it would bar their right of action within three years therefrom. Latham v. Latham, 184 N. C. 55, 113 S. E. 623.

Same—Necessity for Newly Discovered Evidence. — One can derive no aid from this section in an action to reconsider a case which has been sanctioned by the court and settled by a decree from it, in the absence of newly discovered evidence showing fraud. Where the plaintiff knew all the facts at first that are now known the first action must stand notwithstanding this section. Spruill v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 466, 471.

Same—Sufficiency of Evidence.—See Latham v. Latham, 184 N. C. 55, 113 S. E. 623; Sanderlin v. Cross, 172 N. C. 234, 90 S. E. 213.

Application to Foreign Corporation.—A foreign corporation cannot set up the statute of limitations in bar of an action for false warranty. Alpha Mills v. Watertown, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 797, 21 S. E. 917.

Actions to Which Applicable.—The relief afforded by the statute has a broader meaning than the common-law actions of fraud and deceit and applies to any and all actions, legal or equitable, where fraud is the basis or an essential element in the suit. Little v. Wadesboro, 187 N. C. 1, 121 S. E. 185.

Same—Fraudulent Conveyance.—Where the suit is to recover in money the difference between the grossly inadequate consideration paid for a conveyance of land, attacked upon the ground of fraudulent influence used upon the mind of the grantor for the grantee's benefit, and the reasonable value thereof, this section, limiting the action to three years in cases of fraud applies, and it is reversible error for the trial judge to hold, as a matter of law, that the ten years statute relating to actions to impress a trust upon property only was applicable. Little v. Wadesboro, 187 N. C. 1, 121 S. E. 185.

Same—A Fraudulent Distribution of Dividends.—This section relating to time to commence action after discovery of fraud, has no application to fraudulent distribution of dividends to shareholders of corporations under the facts of this case. Chatham v. Realty Co., 180 N. C. 500, 105 S. E. 329.

Same—Proceeding to Set Aside Probate. — This section is not necessarily controlling upon the hearing upon petition before the clerk of the Superior Court to set aside for fraud or imposition on the court, the proceedings admitting a paper-writing to probate as a will; and were it otherwise, it is required that the petitioner show that he could not sooner have discovered the fraud by the exercise of ordinary care, which in the instant case he has failed to do. In re Will of Johnson, 182 N. C. 522, 109 S. E. 373.

Same—Setting Aside Settlement by Guardian.—The time within which settlement of a guardian may be set aside for fraud is by several adjudications and this section restricted to the period of three years. Wheeler v. Piper, 56 N. C. 249; Whedbee v. Whedbee, 58 N. C. 392; Spruill v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 466. State v. Smith, 83 N. C. 306, 307.

Same—Action for Obtaining Deed by Fraud.—In an action for damages for obtaining by fraud or deceit a deed from plaintiff conveying a larger amount of timber than was intended to be conveyed, the statute of limitations applicable is this section. Modlin v. Roanoke R., etc., Co., 145 N. C. 218, 58 S. E. 1075.

Same—Action to Declare Purchasing Partner a Trustee.—An action by the creditors of a partnership to hold the owners of the legal estate (who purchased the interest of one partner in the partnership property) as trustees for the surety of their debts, is not barred by this section. Quaere, as to the application of subsection 4. Ross v. Henderson, 77 N. C. 170.

Where Purchaser Did Not Participate in Fraud.—Where there is no allegation or proof that a purchaser fraudulently concealed the fact of sale or participated in any fraud in connection therewith, then as to him the action is barred by the lapse of three years, this section not applying as to the action against him. Johnson Cotton Co. v. Sprunt & Co., 201 N. C. 419, 160 S. E. 457.

Remedy Where Action on Contract Barred.—The remedy by the vendor of goods obtained by the fraud of the purchaser, first discovered after the action on the contract has been barred, is by an action for damages under this section as amended by chap. 269. Acts of 1889. Rouss v. Ditmore, 122 N. C. 775, 30 S. E. 335.

When Replication Required.—When the date of the accruing of the cause of action appears in the complaint and the statute of limitations is pleaded, the court can, of course, pass judgment, unless matter in avoidance is pleaded as a new promise, or the like. It is only in such cases that a replication is now required. Moore v. Garner, 101 N. C. 374, 377, 7 S. E. 732, though under the former practice a replication was required whenever the statute of limitations was pleaded. Stubbs v. Motz, 113 N. C. 458, 459, 18 S. E. 387.

Burden of Proof. — In an action to set aside a conveyance on account of fraud, the statute of limitations being pleaded thereto, the burden is on the plaintiff to show that the fraud was not discovered until within three years of the commencement of the action. Hooker v. Worthington, 134 N. C. 283, 46 S. E. 726.

The burden is on the plaintiff to show that neither they nor their predecessor in title, did not know of the fraud, or would not have discovered it in the exercise of reasonable business prudence. Sanderlin v. Cross, 172 N. C. 234, 90 S. E. 213.

The plea of the statute of limitations put the burden upon the defendant, in the cross-action, to show that the statute of limitation had not barred his right, by a lapse of more than three years from the time he discovered the mistake to the time he had filed his pleading, and in failing to introduce such evidence he is concluded as a matter of law. Taylor v. Edmunds, 176 N. C. 325, 97 S. E. 42.

Effect of Non-Residence of Plaintiff. — The nonresidence of a plaintiff, claiming lands here under an allegation of fraud, etc., does not affect the running of the statute of limitations adverse to his demand in his action. Latham v. Latham, 184 N. C. 55, 113 S. E. 623.

A nonresident creditor who seeks to set aside a deed of his debtor for fraud is not excused by his absence for not complying with the provisions of this section, requiring that he must bring his action within three years from the discovery of the fraud. Ewbank v. Lyman, 170 N. C. 505, 87 S. E. 348.

Erroneous Ruling Not Cured by Other Defects. — The reversible error of ruling that as a matter of law the evidence was insufficient under this section, is not relieved by the principle that the statute does not begin to run till the undue influence constituting fraud has been removed, when it does not appear on appeal that such influence had ever been removed, and the jury have found the issue of fraud without being permitted to pass upon this question. Little v. Wadesboro, 187 N. C. 1, 121 S. E. 185.

Effect of Failure of Referee to Find Facts. — When the referee to whom the case was referred failed to find the facts upon which this statute of limitations can be determined, the case must be remanded. Lanning v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 505, 11 S. E. 622.

Stated in Life Ins. Co. v. Edgerton, 206 N. C. 402, 411, 174 S. E. 96.

Cited in Fort Worth, etc., R. Co. v. Hegwood, 198 N. C. 309, 151 S. E. 641.

X. SUBSECTION TEN—REALTY SOLD FOR TAXES.

Application to Tenancy in Common. — The statute permits the sheriff to sell the lands of tenants in common for the nonpayment of taxes, and a tenant in common to pay his or her part of the tax and let the other shares go; and provides that three years possession by the purchaser under the tax deed bars the former rightful owners. Ruark v. Harper, 178 N. C. 249, 100 S. E. 584.

Application to Suit to Remove Cloud. — In Price v. Slagle, 189 N. C. 757, 128 S. E. 161, 166, the court said: "This three-year statute has been held not to apply when the suit is to remove a cloud, as distinguished from a suit to recover the land sold for taxes from the tax sale purchaser, or his assigns, who are in possession of the lands so sold."

Application Where Deed Color of Title Only. — Where a sheriff's deed given for the nonpayment of taxes is not under seal, it is good as color of title, which seven years adverse possession will ripen into an absolute one, under section 428. Ruark v. Harper, 178 N. C. 249, 100 S. E. 584.

Applies to Action for and against Claimants.—The three-year statute of limitations barring the right of action in favor of a claimant under a tax deed is broad enough to include actions for and against such claimant. Jordan v. Simmons, 169 N. C. 140, 85 S. E. 214.

Possession as Affecting Application. — "Semble, the three-year statute of limitations may not be successfully pleaded by the claimant under the tax deed against the original owner in possession of the lands." Jordan v. Simmons, 169 N. C. 140, 85 S. E. 214.

The purchaser's possession for three years under an irregular sheriff's deed would be sufficient to bar action thereon. Lyman v. Hunter, 123 N. C. 508, 31 S. E. 827; Kivett v. Gardner, 169 N. C. 78, 85 S. E. 145.

Necessity of Pleading Section. — The three-year statute of limitations in favor of or against the claimant under a tax deed to lands must be properly pleaded to be made available. Jordan v. Simmons, 169 N. C. 140, 85 S. E. 214.

In an action against the administrator of the deceased to recover taxes paid for him by the plaintiff, it is necessary that the defendant plead the statute of limitations in order to avail himself of it as a bar to the plaintiff's recovery thereon. Smith v. Allen, 181 N. C. 56, 106 S. E. 143.

§ 442. Two years.—Within two years—

1. All claims against counties, cities and towns of this state shall be presented to the chairman of the board of county commissioners, or to the chief officers of the cities and towns, within two years after the maturity of such claims, or the holders shall be forever barred from a recovery thereon.

2. An action to recover the penalty for usury.

3. The forfeiture of all interest for usury: Provided, however, this section shall not apply to the counties of Cherokee and Clay. (Rev., s. 396; Code, ss. 756, 3836; 1874-5, c. 243; 1876-7, c. 91, s. 3; 1895, c. 69; 1931, c. 231; 1933, c. 318, s. 1.)

I. Subsection One—Political Subdivisions of State.
II. Subsection Two—Penalty for Usury.
III. Subsection Three—Forfeiture of All Interest for Usury.

I. SUBSECTION ONE—POLITICAL SUBDIVISIONS OF STATE.

Editor's Note.—The proviso exempting Cherokee and Clay Counties from the operation of the section was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 318. As to limitation on vouchers and script issued in Carteret and Haywood Counties, see Public Laws 1933, c. 386.

Purpose of Section. — "The obvious purpose of the law is to enable those municipal bodies mentioned in it to ascertain and make a record of its valid outstanding obligations, and to separate them from such as are spurious or tainted with illegality and denounced in the Constitution." Wharton v. Commissioners, 82 N. C. 12, 16. See post this note, Nature and Effect of Section."

Constitutionality. — Under the interpretation of this section, it may admit of question whether the condition engrafted by it upon the contract, as affecting the pre-existing rights of the creditor, does not impair its obligation within the prohibition of the federal constitution. Wharton v. Commissioners, 82 N. C. 12, 14. See the following catchline.

Nature and Effect of Section. — The language of this section is plain and explicit, and there is room for but one construction of it. The court has said that the provision of the statute is not in strict terms a limitation of the time within which an action may be prosecuted, but that it imposes upon the creditor the duty of presenting his claim within a prescribed period of time, and, upon his failure to do so, forbids a recovery in any suit thereafter commenced. Wharton v. Commissioners, 82 N. C. 12, 16. See Moore v. Charlotte, 204 N. C. 37, 39, 167 S. E. 380.

In a later case the court held that "This is a statute of limitation, and such claims against the county should be presented within two years after maturity." Lanning v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 505, 511, 11 S. E. 622, citing Rayster v. Commissioners, 98 N. C. 148, 3 S. E. 739; Moore v. Commissioners, 87 N. C. 209, 215.

In Board v. Greenville, 132 N. C. 4, 43 S. E. 472, 473, the court said, "We think it is unnecessary to inquire or to decide whether the statute is strictly one of limitation, or whether it merely imposes a duty upon the holder of a claim against a municipal corporation, the performance of which is a condition precedent to his right of recovery. In either view of the nature of the statute the claimant, by its very words, is 'barred from a recovery' of any part of the claim that did not mature within the two years immediately preceding the date of his demand, and this conclusion as to the effect of the statute is all sufficient for the disposition of this appeal."

But notwithstanding this conclusion a more recent decision upon the subject holds that "This section is not strictly a statute of limitation, for it imposes this as a duty on the claimant as a condition upon which he may successfully maintain his action." Dockery v. Hamlet, 162 N. C. 118, 78 S. E. 13.

Liberal Construction. — In Wharton v. Commissioners, 82 N. C. 12, 16, the court said, "We are not disposed to give so strict an interpretation to the requirement of the act, which, as all its useful purposes are met, would be to sacrifice substance for form and convert a judicious measure of legislation into an instrument of injustice and wrong."

When Statute Begins to Run.—Where the plaintiff made a payment, the defendant promising to refund any excess of the amount due, and upon a reference a balance was reported in favor of the plaintiff it was held, in an action to recover the amount, that the statute begins to run only from the date of such finding. Moore v. Commissioners, 87 N. C. 209, 210.

Where the defendants and their predecessors in office had notice from the beginning of the origin, nature and amount of a claim against a county, and of the fact that it could not mature until the accuracy or inaccuracy of their previous settlement with the plaintiff could be ascertained, such a claim falls neither within the letter nor the spirit of this section. Moore v. Commissioners, 87 N. C. 209, 210, 215.

Effect of Failure to Present Claim in Time. — Where a creditor fails to present his claim in the prescribed time, any action thereon thereafter is barred. Board v. Greenville, 132 N. C. 4, 43 S. E. 472.

What Plaintiff Must Allege and Prove. — Where a claim has been made on the city for services rendered, and it nowhere therein appears when the services were rendered, in an action to recover therefor the plaintiff must not only show that the claim had been presented in the statutory period, but that the amount claimed had matured within that time; and when he has failed to make this necessary allegation in his complaint, a demurrer thereto should be sustained. Dockery v. Hamlet, 162 N. C. 118, 78 S. E. 13.

Same—When Defect Attacked by Demurrer. — Where upon the face of a complaint it does not appear that claim was made upon a town's officers as this section provides, within two years after its maturity, the claim is barred, and a demurrer that it states no cause of action should be sustained. Dockery v. Hamlet, 162 N. C. 118, 78 S. E. 13.

Same—When Action Amendable. — The complaint, not stating a cause of action under the requirements of this section, is demurrable; but as the complaint is a defective statement of a cause of action, and not necessarily a statement of a defective cause of action, it was error to dismiss the action, and the plaintiff may amend by setting out the matters required by the statute. Dockery v. Hamlet, 162 N. C. 118, 78 S. E. 13.

Nonsuit as Extending Time under Section 415. — One who began suit within the time prescribed, took a nonsuit and began a second action within one year after the nonsuit, but more than two years after the maturity of the claims, was not barred. Wharton v. Commissioners, 82 N. C. 12.

Application to Claim of Sheriff. — A sheriff must present his claim against a county for an allowance to him to pay off a county debt within the two years prescribed in the section. Lanning v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 505, 11 S. E. 622.

Cited in Lightner v. Raleigh, 206 N. C. 496, 499, 174 S. E. 272; Fletcher v. Parlier, 206 N. C. 904, 173 S. E. 343.

II. SUBSECTION TWO—PENALTY FOR USURY.

Origin of Section. — The right of action to recover for usurious interest paid is purely statutory, and the plaintiff must comply with the terms of the statute as to the time of bringing his action. Roberts v. Life Ins. Co., 118 N. C. 429, 24 S. E. 780.

Section Not Retroactive. — The right added by the Act of 1876-77 to recover back interest paid could not apply to contracts made prior to its passage. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 561, 17 S. E. 676.

The act of 1895 (chapter 69), which provides for the recovery of usurious interest if the action is brought within two years after the payment in full of the indebtedness, by its express terms, does not apply to contracts antedating its ratification. Roberts v. Life Ins. Co., 118 N. C. 429, 24 S. E. 780.

When Statute Begins to Run. — The act of 1895 provides for bringing an action to recover back double the amount of usurious interest paid if the action is brought within two years after the payment in full of such indebtedness, in this respect changing section 3836 of The Code, now section 2306, which provided that "the action must be brought within two years from the time the usurious transaction occurred." Roberts v. Life Ins. Co., 118 N. C. 429, 435, 24 S. E. 780. The provision no longer appears in section 2306. Ed. Note.

The cause of action for the penalty for each payment of usury arises immediately and accrues upon the date of the payment. The action to recover the penalty for each usurious transaction is therefore barred under this section, upon the expiration of two years from the date of the payment. Sloan v. Piedmont Fire Ins. Co., 189 N. C. 690, 128 S. E. 2, 3.

Under this section the statute of limitations began to run at the date the cause of action accrued, and as service could have been made under the statute at any time before the commencement of this action, the statute continued to run against the plaintiffs. The defendant, although a nonresident or foreign corporation, was at all times from the date the cause of action accrued until the commencement of this action subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of this state and for that reason, two years having elapsed from the date the cause of action accrued to the date of the commencement of the action, the action is barred. Smith v. Finance Co., 207 N. C. 367, 369, 177 S. E. 183.

Same—Mutual Running Account. — Where the transaction constitutes a mutual running account an action for the penalty under our statute is not barred within two years next from the last item therein. English Lumber Co. v. Wachovia Bank, 179 N. C. 211, 102 S. E. 205.

Effect of Defendant Being Out of State. — This two-year prescription is subject to the provisions of § 411 that when a cause of action accrues against a person he shall be out of the State or shall thereafter depart therefrom and reside out of the State, "the time of his absence shall not be deemed or taken as a part of the time limited for the commencement of such action." Williams v. Iron Belt etc., Asso., 131 N. C. 267, 269, 42 S. E. 607.

The two years within which an action may be brought, under this section, is to be construed in connection with the provisions of section 411, which provides that if the defendant departs from or resides out of the State, such action may be brought within two years after process can be served upon him; otherwise the statute would be illusory and partial, in favor of nonresidents. Armfield v. Moore, 97 N. C. at p. 34, 38; 2 S. E. 347. Williams v. Iron Belt etc., Asso., 131 N. C. 267 269, 43 S. E. 607.

Application to Action against Foreign Corporation. — An action against a foreign corporation to recover usury may be begun within two years from the time there is someone in the State upon whom service can be made. Williams v. Iron Belt, etc., Asso., 131 N. C. 267, 42 S. E. 607.

Bar of Counterclaim.—Where more than two years has elapsed from the payment of alleged usury until the institution of an action on the debt alleged to have been tainted with usury, the defendant's counterclaim for twice the amount of usury charged is barred. Farmers' Bank, etc., Co. v. Redwine, 204 N. C. 125, 167 S. E. 687.

Necessity of Pleading. — This section need not be specifically pleaded. Roberts v. Ins. Co., 118 N. C. 429, 24 S. E. 780.

Must Be Pleaded When Relied on as a Defense.—In an action to recover the statutory penalty for usury the two-year statute of limitations must be pleaded when relied on as a defense, the clause relating thereto having been taken out of section 3836 of the Code and placed in this section and thereby made a statute of limitations, but when properly pleaded the burden is upon the plaintiff to prove that his suit is brought within two years from the time the cause of action accrued. McNeill v. Suggs, 199 N. C. 477, 478, 154 S. E. 729.

Section 2306 Defines the Penalty for Usury. — The right to recover interest is governed by section 2306 which permits a recovery of twice the amount of interest paid if brought within the time prescribed by this section. Roberts v. Ins. Co., 118 N. C. 429, 24 S. E. 780.

Application Illustrated in Rogers v. Bank, 108 N. C. 574, 13 S. E. 245.

III. SUBSECTION THREE—FORFEITURES OF ALL INTEREST FOR USURY.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 which added subsection 3 to this section provided that it should not affect pending litigation. It became effective April 1, 1931.

This section is prospective only, and is applicable only to a forfeiture under § 2306, which has occurred, or shall occur, since its ratification on April 1, 1931. Farmers' Bank, etc., Co. v. Redwine, 204 N. C. 125, 130, 167 S. E. 687.

§ 443. One year.—Within one year an action—

1. Against a public officer, for a trespass under color of his office.

2. Upon a statute, for a penalty or forfeiture, where the action is given to the state alone, or in whole or in part to the party grieved, or to a common informer, except where the statute imposing it prescribes a different limitation.

3. For libel, assault, battery, or false imprisonment.

4. Against a public officer, for the escape of a prisoner arrested or imprisoned on civil process.

5. An application for a widow's year's allowance. (Rev., s. 397; Code, s. 156; C. C. P., s. 35; 1885, c. 96.)

Subsection One—Extent to Which Application Limited—Town Officers. — This section is properly restricted to unlawful acts done by a public officer, under color of his office, to the person and property of another, by violence or force, direct or imputed, and does not apply to a breach of official duty in reference to the officials of a town as employees thereof, in wrongfully diverting the funds of the town to a railroad company in acquiring a right of way for it. Brown v. Southern R. Co., 188 N. C. 52, 123 S. E. 633.

Same—Railroad Conspiring with Officials. — Where a railroad company, through its agents has participated in the unlawful appropriation of a town's funds, the mere fact that the trial court has dismissed the action as to the members of the municipal board participating in the commission of the wrongful act, under the plea of this section, will not likewise or necessarily bar the action against the railroad company, under the same plea, under an alleged privity between them. Brown v. Southern R. Co., 188 N. C. 52, 53, 123 S. E. 633.

Action against Justice of Peace.—A summons was issued to recover the penalty against a justice of the peace, for performing the marriage ceremony without the delivery of the license therefor to him, C. S. 2498, within less than a year from the time he had performed it, it was held, the plea of this section could not be sustained. Wooley v. Bruton, 184 N. C. 438, 114 S. E. 628.

Subsection Two — Application to Clerk of Court.. — An action against a clerk for a penalty, if not brought within one year, is barred by the statute of limitations. State v. Nutt, 79 N. C. 263.

Subsection Three—Disability Preventing Bar.—An action for assault and battery is barred upon the plea of this section, if not commenced within one year, but if the plaintiff alleges and shows that he could not sooner have brought the action because of his mental condition or insanity, the time of such disability will be deducted from the running of the statute. Hayes v. Lancaster, 200 N. C. 293, 156 S. E. 530.

§ 444. Six months.—Within six months an action.

1. For slander.

2. Upon a contract, transfer, assignment, power of attorney or other instrument transferring or affecting unearned salaries or wages, or future earnings, or any interest therein, whether said instrument be under seal or not under seal. The above period of limitation shall commence from the date of the execution of such instrument: Provided, however, that the period of limitations for any action upon such instrument executed prior to the ratification of this act shall be six months from and after its ratification. (Rev., s. 398; Code, s. 157; C. C. P., s. 36; 1931, c. 168.)

See 11 N. C. L. R. 220.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 which added subsection 2 of this section was ratified on March 23, 1931.

For an act, applicable only in Cleveland and Rutherford Counties, providing limitation in action against one purchasing crops with lien thereon, see Public Laws 1933, c. 167.

Necessity for Affirmative Plea. — In an action for slander, if the defendant does not plead the Statute of Limitations, the plaintiff may recover, though the proof shows that the words were spoken more than six months before the commencement of the action. Pegram v. Stoltz, 67 N. C. 144.

Same—Where Mislead by Petition. — If the defendant has been misled by allegation of a different date from the one proved, so that he failed to set up this statute in his answer, the judge would, of course, allow him to amend his answer. Pegram v. Stoltz, 67 N. C. 144.

An action for slander begun more than six months after the publication of the alleged defamatory words is barred by the statute of limitations under this section, the right of action accruing from the date of publication, regardless of the fact that it is begun within six months from the discovery by plaintiff that defendants were the authors thereof. Gordon v. Fredle, 206 N. C. 734, 175 S. E. 126.

When Action Begun. — Where a writ in slander was issued, returnable to a term of the Court, and no alias issued from such return term, but a writ issued from the next term thereafter, it was held that the latter writ was the commencement of the suit, and the limitation to the action must be determined accordingly. Hanna v. Ingram, 53 N. C. 55.

Application Illustrated. — Where the plaintiff brought an action for slander more than six months after the cause accrued, and then afterwards amended his complaint so as to include words spoken within six months before the beginning of the action, but more than eighteen after the filing of the amended complaint, and the defendant pleaded the statute of limitations, it was held, (1) the plaintiff's cause of action was barred; (2) the amended complaint set up a new cause of action, and this was also barred. Hester v. Mullen, 107 N. C. 724, 12 S. 447.

§ 445. All other actions, ten years.—An action for relief not herein provided for must be commenced within ten years after the cause of action has accrued. (Rev., s. 399; Code, s. 158; C. C. P., s. 37.)

I. In General.
II. Actions to Which Applicable.

I. IN GENERAL.

Purpose of Section. — This section was intended as a sweeping statute of repose and to cure omissions in former statutes. Brown v. Morsey, 124 N. C. 292, 296, 32 S. E. 687. From concurring opinion.

This section was intended to be a universal statute of repose, applying to all causes of action not included among those specifically enumerated in the preceding sections of the statute of limitation. It could have no other purpose. It being almost impossible to enumerate all cases for which a statute of repose was needed, this section was passed to embrace, in its very words, any "action for relief not herein provided for." Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 169, 48 S. E. 578. From dissenting opinion.

See to same effect Ex parte Smith, 134 N. C. 495, 502, 47 S. E. 16; Wyrick v. Wyrick, 106 N. C. 84, 86, 10 S. E. 916.

When Statute Begins Running.—Where a covenant of warranty and seizin was breached at the time of delivery of the deed, this section begins running against an action for such breach from the time of the delivery. Shankle v. Ingram, 133 N. C. 254, 45 S. E. 578.

This section begins to run against an action by the vendor to recover possession from the vendee when the possession of vendee becomes hostile by a refusal to surrender after demand and notice. Overman v. Jackson, 104 N. C. 4, 10 S. E. 87.

An action to impeach the final account of a personal representative must be brought within ten years from the filing and auditing thereof as provided in this section. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294. See dissenting opinion.

In an action by one who claims as enterer of "Cherokee Lands," the cause of action is barred in ten years from the registration of the grant. Frazier v. Gibson, 140 N. C. 272, 52 S. E. 1035; Philips v. Buchanan Lumber Co., 151 N. C. 519, 66 S. E. 603.

This statute does not begin to run until there is a person in esse competent to begin the suit, that is, until the appointment of an administrator. This is a well recognized rule. Murray v. The E. G. Co., 7 Eng. C. L. 66; Godley v. Taylor, 14 N. C. 178. Lynn v. Lowe, 88 N. C. 478, 483.

Application Immaterial Where Period Has Not Run.—Where ten years has not elapsed it is not necessary to determine whether this section applies. Burgwyn v. Daniel, 115 N. C. 115, 119, 20 S. E. 462.

Charging Section with Section 441. — Where, if the action had not been barred by the provisions of subsections 4 and 9 of section 441, it would have been barred under this section, it was not error to tell the jury that the action was barred in three years, or in ten years. Osborne v. Wilkes, 108 N. C. 651, 13 S. E. 285.

Section Not Affected by 441.—This section applying to an action against an executor or administrator for a final accounting and settlement, is not affected by the provisions of Sec. 441, as to actions on their official bonds. Pierce v. Faison, 183 N. C. 177, 110 S. E. 857.

Cited in Mauney v. Coit, 86 N. C. 464, 472; Smith v. Smith, 72 N. C. 139, 141.

Practice.—Under the former practice an objection that the equity of plaintiff seeking to declare a trust in land was barred could be taken by demurrer; under the present practice it may be taken by a motion to dismiss the action. Marshall v. Hammock, 195 N. C. 498, 502, 142 S. E. 776.

Cited in Tieffenbrun v. Flannery, 198 N. C. 397, 398, 151 S. E. 857.

II. ACTIONS TO WHICH APPLICABLE.

Creditor's Action against Purchasing Partners. — The question as to whether an action by the creditors of a partnership to hold the owners of the legal estate (who purchased the interest of one partner in the partnership property) as trustees for the security of their debts, is barred by this section, was raised but not decided. Ross v. Henderson, 77 N. C. 170.

Passive Trust—Actions by Children against Trustee.— Where the testator creates his executor as trustee of a part of the estate "to collect and apply the rents and hires, and interests thereof, to the support of his certain named son and his family during the son's life and then to convey to his child or children," it constitutes an active trust during the life of the son which becomes passive at his death, which time the relationship of the parties would be adverse to each other, and start the running of the statute of limitations, against the children, then of age, and not under legal disability, and bar their action for an accounting and settlement after ten years, especially when the relationship of trustee has been openly repudiated. Latham v. Latham, 184 N. C. 55, 113 S. E. 623.

Claim for Admeasurements of Dower.—This section is applicable to the claim for admeasurement of dower against the heirs, or one claiming under them. Brown v. Morrisey, 124 N. C. 292, 296, 32 S. E. 687.

Action to Test Validity of Stockholder's Election. — There is no statute of limitations applicable to an action brought by citizens to test the validity of an election held relative to subscribing stock to a railroad company, but such action must be brought within a reasonable time. Jones v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 248, 12 S. E. 69.

Action of Cotenants to Protect Title.—Where one tenant in common in possession has obtained for himself the outstanding title to the locus in quo, equity will declare him to have purchased for the benefit of the others, to be held in trust for them, and the ten-year statute applying to his possession, this section in such instances, will not begin to run in his favor against his cotenants until some act of ouster on his part sufficient to put them to their action. Gentry v. Gentry, 187 N. C. 29, 121 S. E. 188.

Impeachment of Final Account of Representative.—When a final account of a representative is filed and audited, an action to impeach it must be brought within ten years from the filing and auditing of the same. The period of limitation is not specifically declared, but such a case falls within this section. Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 339, 9 S. E. 294.

When the administrator of A died eight years after filing an ex parte account, the plaintiff qualified as his executor within one month, and within seventeen months began a proceeding to make real estate assets, to which the administrator de bonis non of A became a party, and filed a complaint to recover the amount due on said final account, it was held, that although this section applied for the reason stated in Woody v. Brooks, 102 N. C. 334, 9 S. E. 294, it did not bar the action. Wyrick v. Wyrick, 106 N. C. 84, 10 S. E. 916.

Release of Right to Surcharge and Restate Final Account.—There was no express Statute as to the length of time necessary to presume a release of the right to surcharge and restate a final account, duly filed and audited, but by analogy it seems to have been ten years, the same length of time which is now required by this section to bar such action. Nunnery v. Averitt, 111 N. C. 394, 396, 16 S. E. 683.

Action for Balance Due Heirs.—Where the distributees, who until they became of age, had a guardian, did not bring suit for an alleged balance due under the testator's will for 15 years after the executor filed his final account, the action was barred by either section 439(2) or this section. Culp v. Lee, 109 N. C. 675, 14 S. E. 74.

Partition Proceedings.—Where a petition in partition is filed, and the petitioners enter into possession of their respective shares, in accordance with the judgment of partition therein entered, and it is therein provided that the widow of the intestate should receive a certain sum monthly in lieu of dower, which sum is made a lien upon the lands, an action by the widow to enforce her claim against the land is barred after the lapse of more than ten years from the partition and decree of owelty in view of this section, and the fact that a second decree of confirmation was entered in the case several years thereafter for the purpose of recording the papers, the original papers having been destroyed by fire, does not alter this result. Aldridge v. Dixon, 205 N. C. 480, 171 S. E. 777.

Recovery of Real Estate.—This section does not apply to actions for the recovery of real estate because Secs. 429, 430 apply to its exclusion. Williams v. Scott, 122 N. C. 545, 551, 29 S. E. 877.

Same—Defendant in Ejectment.—The ten years statute of limitations does not apply to defendants in ejectment who claim the land by adverse possession, where they have recognized plaintiff's claim and title thereto within that time. William v. Scott, 122 N. C. 545, 29 S. E. 877.

Same—To Declare Senior Grantee a Trustee.—An action brought by plaintiff, claiming under the junior grantee of public land, to have defendants, claiming under the senior grantee, declared to be trustees for plaintiff, and to require them to convey to plaintiff such title as they claimed, was barred, where not brought within 10 years from the registration of the senior grant, by this section. Ritchie v. Fowler, 132 N. C. 788, 44 S. E. 616.

Same—To Declare Vendee a Trustee.—Since the other statutes of limitations do not expressly mention the trust relation between vendor and vendee, it could be only included under this section, and it would then be allowed only where the possession was adverse or where it was necessary to prevent some wrong or gross injustice. Bradsher v. Hightower, 118 N. C. 339, 405, 24 S. E. 120.

Same—Enforcement of Parol Trust in Favor of Wife.— Section apparently not applicable, see Spence v. Foster Pottery Co., 185 N. C. 218, 117 S. E. 32.

Same—To Recover Possession of Vendee. — In an action to recover possession by vendor against a vendee who enters under the contract, the only statute of limitation applicable is that of this section. Overman v. Jackson, 104 N. C. 4, 10 S. E. 87.

Same—Against Remainderman. — Where a remainderman, not being in possession, executes a mortgage, the foreclosure of the mortgage is not barred after ten years from the forfeiture thereof or from the last payment, such action being brought within ten years from the time of the acquisition of the possession by the remainderman. Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 48 S. E. 578.

Same—Contract Action for Breach of Covenant.—An action in contract for the breach of covenants of seizin and warranty in a deed, and not in tort for fraud, is not governed by section 441 subsec. 9, but by this section. Shankle v. Ingram, 133 N. C. 254, 45 S. E. 578.

This section applies to an action which is brought upon the covenants in the deed and not upon the theory that there was fraud or mistake in the deed, nor upon the theory that the defendant had made a fraudulent representation as to the quantity or acreage, which would entitle the plaintiff to recover damages for deceit. Shankle v. Ingram, 133 N. C. 254, 257, 45 S. E. 578.

Same—Where No Possession by Either Party.—Where there is no possession by either the mortgagor or mortgagee there can be no running of the statute. If it were intended that this section should apply where there is no possession by either party, it was utterly useless to insert in section 437, subsec. 3 the provision in regard to possession, as the statute, under such a construction of this section, would run whether there was any possession or not, and the period of limitation is the same in both sections. Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 169, 48 S. E. 578. But see dissenting opinion, and see the dissenting opinion in Simmons v. Ballard, 102 N. C. 105, 111, 9 S. E. 495.

Same—Action to Foreclose Mortgage.—Since section 437 sub-sec. 3 is an express provision of law directly applicable to an action to foreclose, it must be disregarded altogether before this section would be a complete reversal of the will of the legislature as plainly expressed. Woodlief v. Wester, 136 N. C. 162, 168, 48 S. E. 578.

Same—Where Mortgagee Sells and Repurchases.—Where the mortgagee sells and conveys to one who reconveys to him the mortgagor or his representatives can call upon the mortgagee for an account at any time within ten years after the cause of action accrues. Bruner v. Threadgill, 88 N. C. 361.

Same—To Declare Defendants in Execution Equitable Owners.—A suit to declare one of the defendants in execution, the equitable owner of lands for the purchase of which he has furnished the price, and his codefendants trustees, is barred by the ten-year statute of limitations. Sexton v. Farrington, 185 N. C. 339, 117 S. E. 172.

Same—Failure to Call for Grant of State Lands.—A failure of the enterer upon unappropriated and vacant state lands, or those claiming under him, to call for the grant within ten years after entry, would presume an abandonment in favor of those claiming under and by virtue of a junior grant. Frazier v. Cherokee Indians, 146 N. C. 477, 59 S. E. 1005.

Same—Taking of Land without Compensation.—Wherein an action to recover damages from a city for the taking of plaintiff's land for a public use without compensation, in which the city pleaded the statute of limitations and there is no finding by the jury as to the time the first substantial injury, etc., was sustained by the plaintiff, the cause will be remanded for a new trial, and upon this appeal it is held that it is unnecessary to decide whether the three-year or ten-year statute would be applicable to a suit of this kind. Dayton v. Asheville, 185 N. C. 12, 115 S. E. 827.

Enforcement of Decree.—An action to enforce the execution of a decree of court confirming a report that an alley was to be laid off in certain lands is barred by this statute. Hunter v. West, 172 N. C. 160, 90 S. E. 130.

Alimony—Accrual of Right.—In proceedings for alimony under the provisions of C. S., 1667, the right of a wife for alimony pendente lite arises to her, in application of the statute of limitations, when the action is commenced, and not from the time of the separation from her husband. Garris v. Garris, 188 N. C. 321, 124 S. E. 314. See note of this case under sec. 1667.

Action to Declare Trust in Land.—In Marshall v. Hammock 195 N. C. 498, 142 S. E. 776, this section was held applicable to plaintiff's right of action to declare a trust in land.

Action for Delinquent Taxes.—Neither the three nor the ten years' statute of limitations applies to an act authorizing the State or a county or city to recover delinquent taxes unless such act expressly so provides. Wilmington v. Cronly, 122 N. C. 383, 30 S. E. 9.

Application to Judgments of State Courts.—The words "any State" appearing in sec. 437(1) must be taken to mean the judgment of a court of any State including our own, but it could make no material difference even if not construed to include this state, since, every action for relief not specially provided for must be commenced within the same period of ten years after the cause of action shall have accrued. McDonald v. Dickson, 85 N. C. 248, 252.

SUBCHAPTER III. PARTIES

Art. 6. Parties

§ 446. Real party in interest; grantees and assignees.—Every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except as otherwise provided; but this section does not authorize the assignment of a thing in action not arising out of contract. An action may be maintained by a grantee of real estate in his own name, when he or any grantor or other person through whom he derives title might maintain such action, notwithstanding the conveyance of the grantor is void, by reason of the actual possession of a person claiming under a title adverse to that of the grantor, or other person, at the time of the delivery of the conveyance. In case of an assignment of a thing in action the action by the assignee is without prejudice to any set-off or other defense, existing at the time of, or before notice of, the assignment; but this does not apply to a negotiable promissory note or bill of exchange, transferred in good faith, upon good consideration, and before maturity. (Rev., s. 400; Code, s. 177; C. C. P., s. 55; 1874-5, c. 256.)

I. REAL PARTIES IN INTEREST.

A. In General.

As to real party in interest in assignment see hereunder part III of this annotation.

Purpose.—The provision requiring every action to be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interst is significant, and was necessary to let in all defenses, equitable as well as legal, against the real party in interest, and save a resort to another action, so as to harmonize with the constitution. Art. II, Sec. 1. Abrams v. Cureton, 74 N. C. 526.

Enabling Act.—The section does not confer a right of action; it only enables the enforcement of a right of action already accrued. Usry v. Suit, 91 N. C. 417.

Strict Compliance.—Under this section there is no middle ground: for whenever the action can be brought in the name of the real party in interest it must be so done. Rogers v. Gooch, 87 N. C. 444.

Who Is Real Party in Interest. — The real party in interest is the party who would be benefited or injured by the judgment in the case. An interest which warrants making a person a party is not an interest in the action involved merely, but some interest in the subject matter of the litigation. 5 Western Law Monthly 80.

Right to Jury Trial.—On the issue as to whether the plaintiff was the real party in interest he was entitled to a trial by jury. Hershey Corp. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 207 N. C. 122, 124, 176 S. E. 265.

Action Dismissed.—When it is shown that a plaintiff is not a real party in interest, his action to recover, brought in his own right, will be dismissed on a motion as of nonsuit upon the evidence. Chapman v. McLawhorn, 150 N. C. 166, 63 S. E. 721.

Actions should be brought by the real parties in interest. Hyatt v. McCoy, 194 N. C. 25, 138 S. E. 405.

Question Cannot Be Raised on Appeal.—Where an action is instituted by a corporation on the theory that it was a duly substituted trustee of an active trust, under § 449, and the plaintiff's right to sue is not raised in the lower court, the question of whether the plaintiff is the real party in interest may not be raised by the defendant for the first time in the Supreme Court. Asheville Safe Deposit Co. v. Hood, 204 N. C. 346, 168 S. E. 524.

B. Personal Actions.

Contract for Benefit of Third Person.—The principle, sanctioned by several respectable authorities, is this: If A, on receipt of a good and sufficient consideration, agrees with B to assume and pay a debt of the latter to C, then C may maintain an action directly on such contract against A, although C is not privy to the consideration received by A. This section provides that every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest. In all the cases close attention is given to the language of the agreement. We can see no reason why the plaintiffs may not do directly that which it must be admitted they can do indirectly, nor do we see how the defendant is prejudiced thereby. Voorhees v. Porter, 134 N. C. 591, 602, 47 S. E. 31; Shoaf v. Insurance Co., 127 N. C. 311, 37 S. E. 451.

Presumption from Possession of Chose in Action. — The possession of a chose in action raises a presumption that the person producing it on trial is the real party in interest. Jackson v. Love, 82 N. C. 408; Pate v. Brown, 85 N. C. 166.

Where the plaintiff produces an unendorsed bill of lading, and the evidence tends to show that he had sold the shipment to a person named therein as consignee, it is sufficient of the intent of the consignee to transfer the title by delivery of the bill of lading, to sustain the plaintiff's right to maintain his action as the real party in interest. Lawshe v. R. R., 191 N. C. 437, 132 S. E. 160.

Ward Equitable Owner of Bond Payable to Guardian.—A bond made payable to a guardian is in equity the property of the ward, and suit may be brought upon it by the ward when the same was turned over in the guardian's settlement, notwithstanding the legal title may have been transferred by the guardian's endorsement to another. Usry v. Suit, 91 N. C. 407. See also, Melbane v. Melbane, 66 N. C. 334.

Rights of Subrogated Insurer.—When an insurer against fire has completely indemnified the insured, he is subrogated to the rights of the insured and can alone, under this section, as the real party in interest, maintain an action against the wrongdoer. Cunningham v. Railroad, 139 N. C. 437, 51 S. E. 1029.

Employer or Insurer Subrogated to Rights of Injured Employee.—Where an employee has accepted compensation awarded by the Industrial Commission for an injury sustained by him in the course of his employment he cannot maintain an action against a third person upon the allegations that the negligence of the third person was the cause of the injury as the employer or insurance carrier were subrogated to the right of action against the third person and the injured employee was not the real party in interest. McCarley v. Council, 205 N. C. 370, 171 S. E. 323.

And May Sue Third Persons.—Under this section an insurance carrier who has paid compensation to an injured employee may proceed in an action which has been instituted against a third person by the injured employee or his personal representative. Betts v. Southern Ry. Co., 71 F. (2d) 787.

Endorser Subrogated to Rights of Payee.—Where a person presenting a note to a bank is required to endorse it, and later to endorse the drawer's check payable to the bank and taken by it in payment of the note, and the check is not paid and is charged by the bank to the endorser's account therein, the endorser so paying the check is subrogated to the rights of the payee bank and becomes the real party in interest and may prosecute an action against the drawer, payee, and collecting banks under the provisions of this section to determine the liability of the parties. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253.

Rights of Undisclosed Principal on Contract.—An undisclosed principal holding the business rights and interests under the contract, may sustain the action thereon. Peanut Co. v. R. R., 155 N. C. 148, 71 S. E. 71; Williams v. Honeycutt, 176 N. C. 102, 96 S. E. 730.

Liability of Bank Directors to Each Other.—Where directors of a bank have paid the liability of others under an agreement, each one of them may maintain his action against each of the defaulting members under this section, and such is not a misjoinder of parties prohibited by statute. Taylor v. Everett, 188 N. C. 247, 124 S. E. 316.

Agent as Real Party in Interest.—Where, under agreement with his principal, the agent of a manufacturer is obligated to pay the freight charges on shipments made to him, and upon demand of the carrier he has paid its unlawful charges on a shipment, he is the party aggreived, within the meaning of this section, and may maintain his actions to recover the excess, and also the penalty when entitled thereunto. Tilley v. R. R., 172 N. C. 363, 90 S. E. 309.

Agent for Collection.—An agent for the collection of rents is not the real party in interest. Martin v. Mask, 158 N. C. 439, 74 S. E. 343.

Assignee for Collection.—An assignee for purposes of collection is not a "real party in interest." Bank v. Rochamora, 193 N. C. 1, 136 S. E. 259; Bank v. Exum, 163 N. C. 199, 79 S. E. 498; Abrams v. Cureton, 74 N. C. 523; Morefield v. Harris, 126 N. C. 628, 36 S. E. 125; Federal Reserve Bank v. Whitford, 207 N. C. 267, 176 S. E. 584. See also, 5 N. C. Law Rev. 369.

The assignee of a chose in action may bring an action thereon in his own name, under this section, and a bond given to indemnify a bank from any loss it might sustain by reason of its taking over the assets and discharging the liabilities of another bank is assignable. North Carolina Bank, etc., Co. v. Williams, 201 N. C. 464, 160 S. E. 484.

Transferor of Claim. — A plaintiff having transferred the claim, upon which his action was subsequently brought, to an attorney at law, for collection, and with directions to apply the proceeds to demands which he held for collection against the said plaintiff, an action will not lie in the name of the plaintiff on the claim, he not being the real party in interest, Wynne v. Heck, 92 N. C. 415.

Suit by Retiring State Officer. — Where a state officer goes out of office pending a suit by him in his official capacity, his incoming successor is entitled to be made a party in his stead, the state is the real party in interest, appearing in the name of its successive agents. Lacy v. Webb, 130 N. C. 546, 41 S. E. 549. See also, Peebles v. Boone, 116 N. C. 57, 44 Am. St. 429.

Quo Warranto. — Every action must be prosecuted by the party in interest, and hence, in a quo warranto, (now a proceeding by the Attorney General) while it need not appear that the relator is a contestant for the office, it must appear from the complaint that he is an inhabitant and taxpayer of the jurisdiction over which the officer, whose title is questioned, exercises his duties and powers. Hines v. Vann, 118 N. C. 6, 23 S. E. 932; Foard v. Hall, 111 N. C. 369, 16 S. E. 420.

Transfer beyond Authority of Agent. — When a special agent goes beyond the scope of his authority and sells a negotiable bond, without endorsement, the purchaser thereof is not a real party in interest. McMinn v. Freeman, 68 N. C. 342.

Actions by Executor or Administrator. — An executor or administrator must sue, upon causes of action to which the estate is the real party in interest, in his representative capacity. Rogers v. Gooch, 87 N. C. 442. See also Sitzer v. Lewis, 69 N. C. 133; Danis v. Fox, 69 N. C. 435.

When Action by Administrator d. b. n. — Where a bond for the payment of money is executed to an administrator as such, and he dies, an action on said bond can be maintained only by an administrator de bonis non of the testator. Ballinger v. Curriton, 104 N. C. 477, 10 S. E. 664.

Administrator of Deceased Guardian as Party. — An administrator of a deceased guardian cannot maintain an action to collect a note made payable to his intestate as guardian, unless it be shown that the money due thereon, had become the property of the intestate's estate. Alexander v. Wriston, 81 N. C. 193.

Personal Representative.—Where an action has been instituted by an injured employee who subsequently accepts an award of compensation, the insurance carrier should be made a party plaintiff; but this is not necessary in the case of suit instituted by the personal representative of a deceased employee. Such personal representative continues the suit which has been commenced; but after the acceptance of an award of compensation, the recovery goes, so far as necessary, to the reimbursement of the insurance carrier and only the excess to the persons entitled under the wrongful death statute. Betts v. Southern Ry. Co., 71 F. (2d) 787, 791.

Widow Entitled to Burial Expenses of Husband. — A widow who pays an account for burial expenses of her husband is the proper party plaintiff in an action against the administrator, being the real party in interest. Ray v. Honeycutt, 119 N. C. 513, 26 S. E. 127.

Action of Heirs at Law on Doubtful Claim. — Where a trustee in bankruptcy or the creditor has waived a doubtful claim in favor of a bankrupt's estate and he has long since been discharged by the court, after having filed his final account, a motion to dismiss the action of his heirs at law as not being the real parties in interest will be denied. Cunningham v. Long, 185 N. C. 613, 125 S. E. 265.

Parties to Interpretation of Will. — Persons who are interested neither as heirs at law of the deceased nor as beneficiaries under the writing propounded as the will, are neither necessary nor proper parties to a case agreed to interpret its provisions, nor to set it aside, nor to assert that an order made by the court be vacated on the ground that they had not been duly made parties or given consent that judgment be rendered out of term, etc. It is otherwise as to one who has been named as a beneficiary who has neither been duly made a party nor given consent to the agreed case or the further action of the court thereon. Bank v. Dustowe, 188 N. C. 777, 125 S. E. 546.

Claim under Workmen's Compensation Act.—It is required by this section, that an action be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, and where a statute names a person to receive funds and authorizes him to sue therefor, only the person named may litigate the matter, and where a claim under the Workmen's Cimpensation Act is litigated in the name of the deceased the proceeding is a nullity and will be dismissed on appeal to the Supreme Court. Hunt v. State, 201 N. C. 37, 158 S. E. 703.

Action for Seduction. — In an action brought to recover damages for seduction, if the female is under twenty-one years of age, the father is the real party in interest; if she be over twenty-one, then the wronged female is the real party in interest. Tillaston v. Currin, 176 N. C. 482, 97 S. E. 395; Snider v. Newell, 132 N. C. 614, 44 S. E. 354; Williford v. Bailey, 132 N. C. 404, 43 S. E. 929; Scarlett v. Norwood, 115 N. C. 285, 20 S. E. 459; Hood v. Sedderth, 111 N. C. 219, 16 S. E. 397.

Slander. — Where an action is brought by a husband, without making the wife a party thereunto, for slander of the wife, and the husband alleges no special damages, his action will not lie because he is not the real party in interest. Harper v. Pinkston, 112 N. C. 293, 17 S. E. 161.

Negligent Mutilation of Dead Body. — In order of their priority of inheritance of the personal property of the deceased, the next of kin may maintain an action to recover damages for the negligent mutilation of his dead body. Floyd v. R. R., 167 N. C. 55, 83 S. E. 12.

Applied in Hood v. Mitchell, 206 N. C. 156, 173 S. E. 61.

C. Actions Concerning Realty.

Conveyance of Land Pendente Lite. — Where it is sought by the owner of land, to remove as a cloud upon his title the lien of one claiming under his mortgage, and pendente lite has conveyed the land to another with full warranty deed, he may continue to prosecute his suit against the mortgagee as to the title, being a real party in interest. Plotkin v. Bank, 188 N. C. 711, 125 S. E. 541.

Where a party has commenced an action concerning an interest in lands, the cause may be continued by his successors in interest as the real parties in interest. Barbee v. Cannady, 191 N. C. 529, 132 S. E. 572.

Action by Remaindermen. — An action brought by remaindermen, during the lifetime of the first taker, to recover the land will not lie, because they are not the real parties in interest. Blount v. Johnson, 165 N. C. 26, 80 S. E. 882.

Action to Vacate Grant When State Not Interested. — Where the state has no interest in the land, as where title would not revest in the state, an action to vacate a grant must be brought by the party in interest in his own name, the state not being such a party. State v. Bland, 123 N. C. 739, 31 S. E. 475. See also, Carter v. White, 101 N. C. 30; State v. Bevers, 86 N. C. 588; and Henry v. McCoy, 131 N. C. 586, 42 S. E. 955.

Action by Tenant. — Against any third person, the tenant is entitled to the possession of the land and the crop, and for any injury thereunto while it is being cultivated he may maintain an action in his own name for the injury. He is the real party in interest. State v. Higgins, 126 N. C. 1113, 36 S. E. 113; Bridges v. Dill, 97 N. C. 227.

Where the land has broom sage growing thereon the tenant is not the owner thereof in the sense that he may maintain an action against one who has negligently destroyed it by fire, except only for its value for farming purposes on the leased premises. Chaucy v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 195 N. C. 415, 142 S. E. 327.

Action of Tenant for Trespass. — Under the provisions of this section, the court has the power to order the owner of the title to be made a party in his tenant's action for trespass involving an injury both to the possession and to the inheritance. Tripp v. Little, 186 N. C. 215, 119 S. E. 225.

Feme Covert as Party. — The rents arising from the real estate of a feme covert belong to her under the constitution of 1868, Art. 10, sec. 6, therefore an action therefor must be brought by the wife, she being the real party in interest. Thompson v. Wiggins, 109 N. C. 509, 14 S. E. 301.

A suit by mortgagor to correct mortgage, which through fraud or mistake or the negligence of the register of deeds in cross-indexing has failed to give a priority of lien to one of several mortgages entitled thereto, will be entertained in equity, as he is a real party in interest. Gray v. Mewborn, 194 N. C. 348, 139 S. E. 695.

Reformation of Deed of Trust.—Where a substituted trustee brings an action to reform a deed of trust and certain mortgage notes which are negotiable, the holders of the notes are necessary parties. First Nat. Bank v. Thomas, 204 N. C. 599, 169 S. E. 189.

II. ACTIONS BY GRANTEES.

Constitutionality.—This section permitting a grantee of real estate to maintain an action in his own name is not unconstitutional. It is concerned only with the mode of procedure and does not affect the merits of the case. Justice v. Eddings, 75 N. C. 584; Buie v. Carver, 75 N. C. 563.

Rights of Grantee in Ejectment Suit. — An action of ejectment may be maintained by a grantee in his own name whenever the grantor has a right to sue, notwithstanding the person in actual possession claims under a title adverse to that of such grantor. Osborne v. Anderson, 89 N. C. 263; Johnson v. Prairie, 94 N. C. 775; Buie v. Carver, 75 N. C. 561; Bland v. Beasly, 145 N. C. 168, 58 S. E. 993. As to Summary Ejectment, see sec. 2365, and the notes thereto.

III. ASSIGNMENTS.

Editor's Note. — This section is, with a slight alteration, an almost literal translation of secs. 111, 112 of the New York Code at the time the C. C. P. was adopted. The court had so much trouble, and there was so much conflict, in deciding what was assignable, that the Legislature of that State, in order to fix with some degree of certainty what things might be the subject of assignment, repealed those sections and enacted what is now sec. 1910 of the New York Code. It provides as follows: "Any claim or demand can be transferred, except in one of the following cases: 1. Where it is to recover damages for personal injury or for a breach of promise to marry. 2. Where it is founded on a grant which is made void by a statute of the state, or upon a claim to, or interest in, real property, a grant of which by the transfer would be void by such a statute. 3. Where a transfer thereof is expressly prohibited by a statute of the State, or of the United States, or would contravene public policy." In Petty v. Rousseau, 94 N. C. 355, Ashe, J., who wrote the opinion, was inadvertent to this change in the New York law. He quoted, in full, sec. 1910 as being the annotations of Mr. Bliss on secs. 111, 112. Therefore, the decision in that case is really based upon the then statutory law of New York, and is not authority in North Carolina. See Woodcock v. Bostic, 118 N. C. 829, 24 S. E. 362.

Effect in General. — A construction was given to this section in Harris v. Burnwell, 65 N. C. 584, where Pearson, C. J., says, "it abrogates the principle of the common law, that a chose in action cannot be assigned—confers an unlimited right to assign 'anything in action' arising out of contract, and subjects the assignee to any set-off or other defense existing at the time of or before notice of the assignment; the only saving being in regard to 'negotiable promissory notes and bills of exchange transferred in good faith and upon good consideration before due.' This language is as broad as it well can be; so that a note assigned after it is due, a half dozen times, will be subject to any set-off or other defense that the maker had against any one or all of the assignees at the date of the assignment or before notice thereof."

General Rule. — It would seem that something of a general rule concerning the relation of this section to assignability was laid down in Woodcock v. Bostic, 118 N. C. 830, 24 S. E. 362, in which Montgomery, J. says: "If an assignee can make no possible use of the thing assigned to him, the assignment is a vain thing. If the courts would not and could not entertain a suit at the hands of an assignee, because of the uselessness to him in any event of the thing transferred, how can it be said that such a thing is assignable? The law could not say that a matter, even though based on contract, could be assigned if it could not possibly be of use to the assignee. The law means, when it says that a thing is assignable, that the assignment carries with it rights of property, and that those rights can be enforced in the courts. It would seem to be clear, too, that a thing to be assignable, must be the subject of assignment generally, to every one, and not to be confined in its application to particular persons."

Effect of Assignment of Negotiable Paper. — In Holly v. Holly, 94 N. C. 670, 672, it was said: "Unquestionably, the complete equitable title to, and the substantial ownership of, a note or bond, negotiable by endorsement, may, without endorsement, be passed by the payee or obligee, to another person, by a sale and delivery thereof, and in this State, the purchaser thus becomes so thoroughly the owner, that an action upon the note or bond so transferred, can only be maintained in the name of the real or equitable owner."

Assignee Sues in Own Name. — An assignee may sue in his own name, under this section, as an equitable assignee or cestui que trust could formerly have done in equity. Miller v. Tharie, 75 N. C. 151. See also, Sutton v. Owen, 65 N. C. 124.

Equitable Owner Real Party in Interest. — In the case of an assignment of a bill or note, which transfers only the equitable ownership, as distinguished from an endorsement according to the law merchant, which transfers the legal title, the equitable owner being the real party in interest may sue in his own name. Tyson v. Joyner, 139 N. C. 73, 51 S. E. 803; Ball-Thrash v. McCormick, 162 N. C. 472, 78 S. E. 303; Andrews v. McDaniel, 68 N. C. 385; Egerton v. Carr. 94 N. C. 653; Milley v. Gatling, 70 N. C. 410.

Assignee of Negotiable and Non-Negotiable Notes. — The assignee of a promissory note or bill of exchange endorsed before maturity, takes it free from all equities and defenses it may be subject to in the hands of the payee, but the assignee of a non-negotiable instrument, even before maturity, takes it subject to all equities or counterclaims existing between original parties at the time of the assignment; bonds or sealed notes, are on the same footing with non-negotiable instruments. Spence v. Tabscott, 93 N. C. 248; Hanens v. Potts, 86 N. C. 31; Loan Association v. Merritt, 112 N. C. 244, 17 S. E. 296; See also, Andrews v. McDaniel, 68 N. C. 385; Bank v. Bynum, 84 N. C. 24.

Unauthorized Endorsement of Negotiable Paper. — The assignee of a negotiable note endorsed by the clerk of the payee without authority is simply the holder of unendorsed negotiable paper and, as such, has, prima facie, the equitable title, and can maintain a suit thereon. Bresee v. Crumpton, 121 N. C. 123, 28 S. E. 351.

Assignment of Note by One of Joint Payees. — A note payable to three persons as executors of their testator, assigned by one of them without the concurrence of the others, does not enable the assignee to sue the makers thereon, under this section. Johnson v. Mangum, 65 N. C. 148.

Past Due Notes Subject to Defenses. — A note taken after it is due is subject to any set-off, or any other defense existing at the time of or before notice of assigment. Vaughan v. Jeffreys, 119 N. C. 144, 26 S. E. 94; Guthrie v. Moore, 182 N. C. 24, 108 S. E. 334. See also Capell v. Long, 84 N. C. 17; Mosby v. Hodge, 76 N. C. 387.

Action on Assigned Non-Negotiable Note. — The assignee of a non-negotiable note can maintain an action thereon; and so can the owner where there is no written assignment. Wilcoxon v. Logan, 91 N. C. 452.

When Judgments Treated as Contracts. — While judgments are not treated as contracts for all purposes, they are so treated for the purpose of distinguishing them from causes of action arising ex delicto, and are not embraced by this section, forbidding the assignment of things in an action not arising out of contract. Moore v. Norvell, 94 N. C. 270; Winbury v. Koonce, 83 N. C. 351.

Assignment of a Judgment Pending Appeal. — Where an assignment of a judgment for one of the defendants against the plaintiff was made during the pendency of the appeal, and it appeared that the judgment was brought by another person, such person, and not the nominal assignee, should be substituted as plaintiff. Field v. Wheeler, 120 N. C. 270, 26 S. E. 812.

Assignor of Contract Not a Party. — The vendee under a contract for the sale and delivery of cotton cannot maintain an action thereon when it uncontradictedly appears from his own evidence and he has assigned the contract to a third party, not to the action, and has no further interest therein. Vaughan v. Davenport, 157 N. C. 156, 72 S. E. 842.

When Executory Contracts Assignable. — As a general rule, executory contracts of an ordinary kind are not assignable, except that contracts involving a personal relation, or imposing liabilities which by express terms or by the nature of the contracts themselves import reliance on the personal credit, trust, or confidence in the other party cannot be assigned. R. R. v. R. R., 147 N. C. 368, 61 S. E. 185.

Installments of Pension. — Installments of a pension payable in the future are not assignable. Gill v. Dixon, 131 N. C. 87, 42 S. E. 538.

§ 447. Suits for penalties.—Where a penalty is imposed by any law, and it is not provided to what person the penalty is given, it may be recovered, for his own use, by any one who sues for it. When a penalty is allowed by statute, and it is not prescribed in whose name suit therefor may be commenced, suit must be brought in the name of the state. (Rev., ss. 401, 402; Code, ss. 1212, 1213; R. C., c. 35, ss. 47, 48.)

Editor's Note. — The three provisions permitting the plaintiff to reply fraud to a plea of release in a suit for penalty; the defendant to plead satisfaction in a suit on bonds; and that the sum due, with interest and costs, discharges penalty bonds, were secs. 932, 933, 934 of the Code of 1883. They were left out of the Consolidated Statutes, but were again inserted by Laws 1925, c. 21. See §§ 447(a) to 447(c).

The construction of this section in Norman v. Dunbar, 53 N. C. 319, is that the suit should be in the name of the person claiming the penalty, and to whom, upon a recovery, it belongs, while in the subsequent case of Duncan v. Philpot, 64 N. C. 479, it is held that it should be prosecuted in the name of the state for his use. But in looking to the cases which have been maintained in the Supreme Court, and to which no objection on this ground seems to have been taken, we find that all have been in the name of the state. Branch v. R. R. 77 N. C. 347; Katzenstein v. R. R. 84 N. C. 688; Keeter v. R. R. 86 N. C. 346; Whitehead v. R. R. 87 N. C. 255; Branch v. R. R. 88 N. C. 570; Middleton v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 95 N. C. 167, 169; Maggett v. Roberts, 108 N. C. 174; Carter v. R. R. 126 N. C. 439, 36 S. E. 14. This uniform practice, acquiesced in, if not sanctioned by the court, must be deemed a settlement of the construction of the statute.

Constitutionality. — This section does not conflict with the constitution. Goodwin v. Fertilizer Works, 119 N. C. 122, 25 S. E. 795; Sutton v. Phillips, 116 N. C. 502, 21 S. E. 968; Hodge v. R. R., 108 N. C. 24, 12 S. E. 1041; Katzenstein v. R. R., 84 N. C. 688.

Penalty against Railroads Recovered by Statute. — The penalty prescribed by statute against railroads for failure to make returns can only be recovered in an action brought by the state. Hodge v. R. R., 108 N. C. 24, 12 S. E. 1041.

Applied, in fixing penalty for illegal weighing of cotton, in State v. Briggs, 203 N. C. 158, 165 S. E. 339.

§ 447(a). Suit for penalty, plaintiff may reply fraud to plea of release.—If an action be brought in good faith by any person to recover a penalty under a law of this state, or of the United States, and the defendant shall set up in bar thereto a former judgment recovered by or against him in a former action brought by any other person for the same cause, then the plaintiff in such action, brought in good faith, may reply that the said former judgment was obtained by covin; and if the collusion or covin so averred be found, the plaintiff in the action sued with good faith shall have recovery; and no release made by such party suing in covin; whether before action brought or after, shall be in anywise available or effectual. (Code, s. 932; R. C., c. 31, s. 100; 4 Hen. VII, s. 20; Rev., 1521; 1925, c. 21.)

§ 447(b). Suit on bonds; defendant may plead satisfaction. — When an action shall be brought on any single bill or on any judgment, if the defendant had paid the money due upon such bill or judgment before action brought, or where the defendant hath made satisfaction to the plaintiff of the money due on such bill or judgment in other manner than by payment thereof, such payment or satisfaction may be pleaded in bar of such action; and where only part of the money due on such single bill or judgment hath been paid by the defendant, or satisfied in other manner than by payment of money, such part payment or part satisfaction may be pleaded in bar of so much of the money due on such single bill or judgment, as the same may amount to; and where an action is brought on any bond which hath a condition or defeasance to make void the same upon the payment of a lesser sum at a day or place certain, if the obligor, his heirs, executors or administrators have, before the action brought, paid to the obligee, his executor or administrator, the principal and interest due by the condition or defeasance of such bond, though such obligor, his heirs, executors or administraing to the condition or defeasance; or if such obligor, his heirs, executors or administrators have before action brought made satisfaction to the plaintiff of the principal and interest due by the condition or defeasance of such bond, in other manner than by payment thereof, yet the said payment or satisfaction may be pleaded in bar of such action, and shall be effectual as a bar thereof, in like manner as if the money had been paid at the day and place, according to the condition or defeasance, and so pleaded. (Code, s. 933; R. C., c. 31, s. 101; 4 Hen. VII, c. 20; Rev., 1522; 1925, c. 21.)

§ 447(c). Sum due with interest and costs, discharges penalty of bonds.—If at any time, pending an action on any bond with a penalty, the defendant shall bring into court, where the action shall be pending, all the principal money and interest due, and also all such costs as have been expended in any suit upon such bond, the said money shall be deemed and taken to be in full satisfaction and discharge of said bond, and the court shall give judgment accordingly. (Code, s. 934; R. C., c. 31, s. 102; 4 Anne, c. 16; Rev., 1523; 1925, c. 21.)

§ 448. Action by purchaser under judicial sale. —Any one given possession under a judicial sale confirmed, where the title is retained as a security for the price, is the legal owner of the property for all purposes of bringing suits for injuries thereto, after the day of sale, by trespass or wrongful possession, in the same manner as if the title had been conveyed to him on day of sale, unless restrained by some order of the court directing the sale; and the suit brought is under the control of the court ordering the sale. (Rev., s. 403; Code, s. 942; 1858-9, c. 50.)

No Rights Acquired by Bidder before Confirmation. — In Attorney-General v. Navigation Co., 86 N. C. 411, it is said: "The doctrine has been settled in this state, that the bidder at a judicial sale acquired no right before the confirmation of the report of the commissioner who made the sale under the order of the Court." In re Dickerson, 111 N. C. 114, 15 S. E. 1025, holds: "The sale then, not having been confirmed, the commissioner's deed has not yet divested the title out of the petitioner. While a formal direction to make a title is not always necessary, a confirmation of the sale cannot be dispensed with." Both cases being quoted, approved and followed in Vanderbilt v. Brown, 128 N. C. 498, 500, 39 S. E. 36.

But when confirmation is made, the bargain is then complete, and it relates back to the day of sale. Vass v. Arrington, 89 N. C. 14.

Notice to Purchaser. — All that a purchaser at a judicial sale is required to know is that the court has jurisdiction of the subject matter and the person. Cord v. Finch, 142 N. C. 139, 54 S. E. 1009; Hackley v. Roberts, 147 N. C. 201, 60 S. E. 975; Harris v. Bennett, 160 N. C. 340, 76 S. E. 217.

Collection of Purchase Price. — The remedy to enforce a decree under a judicial sale of land for the collection of the purchase price of the land is by motion in the cause. Davis v. Pierce, 167 N. C. 135, 83 S. E. 182.

§ 449. Action by executor or trustee.—An executor or administrator, a trustee of an express trust, or a person expressly authorized by statute, may sue without joining with him the person for whose benefit the action is prosecuted. A trustee of an express trust, within the meaning of this section, includes a person with whom, or in whose name, a contract is made for the benefit of another. (Rev., s. 404; Code, s. 179; C. C. P., s. 57.)

An express trust is defined to be a trust created by the direct and positive acts of the parties, by some writing or deed, or will. 22 N. Y. 389; 28 Ind. 112. See Hepburn's cases on Code Pl. 546, 552 n.

It often seems difficult to distinguish between such trustees and those with whom or in whose name contracts are made for the benefit of others, and many of the Code states (including North Carolina by this section) make the term "trustee of an express trust" cover this latter class of persons. Bliss Code Pl. § 55.

As illustrations of the former may be mentioned: An assignee for the benefit of creditors, 4 Abb Pr. 106; an obligee of a statutory bond, 25 O. S. 567; 29 O. S. 452; one holding possession of money upon trust for the benefit of others, 1 C. C. 57; 13 Bull. 294; assignees of a contract in trust to reimburse out of the proceeds thereof third persons for advances made, 4 Keyes 514; a mortgage trustee for holders of promissory notes secured by mortgages, 29 O. S. 330; trustees appointed to take and collect subscriptions for colleges and other similar purposes, 34 Howard Pr. 320; insurance brokers holding an open policy for "those and whom it may concern," 6 O. S. 554; one to whom the legal title in a note and mortgage has been transferred for the purpose of collection, 3 Bull. 365; 7 Rec. 9; an assignee of stock subscriptions, 12 Wis. 688; see 41 O. S. 321.

Includes Suits by Agent. — This section, permitting "a trustee of an express trust" to maintain an action in his own name, by its explanation of such a trustee, that he "shall be construed to include a person with whom, or in whose name a contract is made for the benefit of another," extends the meaning of the statute so as to include an agent who sues upon a note to him, as an agent, with the consent and for the benefit of his principal. Martin v. Mask, 158 N. C. 436, 74 S. E. 343.

Excludes Personal Representative of Trustee. — The "trustee of an express trust," as used in this section, does not include the personal representative of such trustee. Alexander v. Wriston, 81 N. C. 192.

Exception to § 446.—Under the provisions of this section a trustee of an express trust may sue without joining the one for whose benefit the action is brought, this being an exception to § 446, requiring actions to be brought by the real party in interest. Sheppard v. Jackson, 198 N. C. 627, 152 S. E. 801.

When Name of Beneficiary Undisclosed. — Under this section, when a person contracts in his own name, but really for the benefit of another, he is to be regarded as the trustee of an express trust, whether the name of the beneficiary is disclosed or not. Winders v. Hill, 141 N. C. 704, 54 S. E. 440.

Where a note was made payable to "J, cashier," and collateral security delivered to him, he being a member and cashier of the firm of "C. & J," the owners of the debt, an action for the foreclosure of the mortgage security was properly brought in the name of the cashier, he being the holder of the collateral as trustee for the firm. Jenkins v. Wilkinson, 113 N. C. 532, 18 S. E. 696.

Beneficiary Not a Necessary Party. — This section provides that an executor or trustee of an express trust may sue without joining with him the party equitably interested. Biggs v. Williams, 66 N. C. 429; Davidson v. Elms, 67 N. C. 229. See also, Jones v. McKinnon, 87 N. C. 294.

When Beneficiary May Be a Party. — The section, does not apply so as to exclude the beneficiary as a necessary party in a suit involving the question as to whether the trustee has exceeded his authority under the terms of the instrument creating the trust, and wherein the interests of the beneficiary may be seriously affected. Barbee v. Penny, 172 N. C. 653, 90 S. E. 805.

Suit upon Administration Bond. — In a suit upon an administration bond, the next of kin of the intestate are not necessary parties, and in such a suit the administrator of the principal in the bond need not be joined. Flack v. Dawson, 69 N. C. 44.

When Assignor May Sue Alone. — This section applies where a judgment creditor has assigned the judgment as security, and in such case an action may be brought by the assignor without joining the assignee. Chatham v. Realty Co., 180 N. C. 500, 115 S. E. 329.

Transferee as Trustee of Express Trust. — Where a plaintiff transferred the claim, upon which his action was subsequently brought, to an attorney at law, for collection, and with directions to him to apply the proceeds to demands which he held for collection against the plaintiff due other parties. The effect of the transfer was to vest ownership of the claim in the attorney, as a "trustee of an express trust," and the action should have been brought in his name alone, or in conjunction with those of the cestuis que trustent. Wynne v. Heck, 92 N. C. 414.

An answer setting forth that B is the real owner of a note sued upon, but that it was assigned to the plaintiff, is to be taken as meaning that the plaintiff is trustee of an express trust, and so is properly plaintiff. Rankin v. Allison, 64 N. C. 673.

Speaking Demurrer Not Allowed. — Where the holder of a promissory note in due course, etc., sues thereon, who, as it appears, is a trustee of an express trust to collect certain certificates of deposit, and apply the proceeds to its payment for the benefit of himself and the holders of the certificates, a demurrer that the plaintiff is, in fact, suing as the agent of the holders of the certificates, and that they are in truth parties, is a speaking demurrer, and bad. Union Trust Co. v. Wilson, 182 N. C. 166, 108 S. E. 500.

Question Cannot Be Raised on Appeal.—See note to § 446.

§ 450. Infants, etc., sue by guardian or next friend.—In actions and special proceedings when any of the parties plaintiff are infants, idiots, lunatics, or persons non compos mentis, whether residents or nonresidents of this state, they must appear by their general or testamentary guardian, if they have any within the state; but if the action or proceeding is against, or if there is no such guardian, then said persons may appear by their next friend. The duty of the state solicitors to prosecute in the cases specified in chapter entitled Guardian and Ward is not affected by this section. (Rev., s. 405; Code, s. 180; 1893, c. 5; C. C. P., s. 58; 1870-1, c. 233; 1871-2, c. 95.)

Court's Duty to Exercise Care in Making Appointment.—In Morris v. Gentry, 89 N. C. 248, 254, it was said, "It is the duty of courts to have special regard for infants, their rights and interests, when they come within their cognizance. The law makes this so, for the good reason, they cannot adequately take care of themselves. It is a serious mistake to suppose that a next friend or a guardian ad litem should be appointed upon simple suggestion; this should be done upon proper application in writing, and due consideration by the court. The court should know who is appointed, and that such person is capable and trustworthy. The appointment of guardians ad litem and their duties are prescribed by a statute. But while the statute allows infants to sue by their next friends, the manner of the appointment of them and their duties are left as at the common law."

Presumption of Proper Appointment. — Where the lands of infants are sold under an order of the Superior Court upon an ex parte petition, in which the infants are represented by next friends, it is presumed that the Court protected their interests, and was careful to see that they suffered no prejudice. Tyson v. Belcher, 102 N. C. 112, 9 S. E. 634.

Appointment of Next Friend in Justice's Court. — There being no statutory special method indicated by which a next friend may be appointed to represent an infant in an action properly brought in Justice's court, the appointment should be made by the Justice of the Peace, using the same care and circumspection in investigating the fitness of the person to be appointed as is required by the Clerk, in actions properly brought in the Superior Court. Houser v. Bonsal & Co., 149 N. C. 51, 62 S. E. 776.

Next Friend an Officer of Court. — The next friend of an infant ought always to be appointed by the court, and really he is an officer of the court, and under its supervision and control. Tate v. Mott, 99 N. C. 19.

Removal of Next Friend. — The court has power, for good cause shown, to remove the next friend of an infant litigant, and appoint another as often as may be necessary. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Designation as Guardian Instead of Next Friend.—It would have been more regular if the representative of infants had been designated in a proceeding as next friend, rather than as guardian, but as he did not undertake to represent the infants otherwise than as next friend, it is immaterial that he was designated as guardian and not as next friend. Ex parte Huffstetler, 203 N. C. 796, 798, 167 S. E. 65.

Interest of Guardian or Next Friend. — Any person who has an interest in the action hostile to that of the infant's will not be allowed to conduct it on their behalf—whether he be guardian or next friend. George v. High, 85 N. C. 113, 114.

Foreign Guardian Sues as Next Friend. — A guardian appointed in another state has no authority to represent his wards in suits and proceedings in this state, but when he brings suit for them as guardian it will be treated as if he were next friend. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Suits by Persons Non Compos Mentis. — There can be no question but that persons non compos mentis may sue by their next friend when they have no general or testamentary guardian. Smith v. Smith, 106 N. C. 498, 502, 11 S. E. 188.

Same—Inquisition of Lunacy Not Essential. — Where allegation of insanity of husband is admitted by demurrer, suit may be brought by his next friend though no inquisition of lunacy was had; and the wife may bring the action as such next friend, being regularly appointed. Abbott v. Hacock, 123 N. C. 99, 31 S. E. 268.

Widow May Sue by Next Friend. — In dissenting from her husband's will and applying for year's allowance, the widow, being a minor without guardian, may be represented by next friend, duly appointed. Hollmon v. Hollmon, 125 N. C. 29, 34 S. E. 99.

Infants Are Real Parties Plaintiff. — One who conducts a suit as guardian or next of friend for infants is not a party of record, but the infants themselves are the real plaintiffs. George v. High, 85 N. C. 113, 114; Krachanake v. Mfg. Co., 175 N. C. 435, 95 S. E. 851.

Infant Need Not Know of the Suit. — It is not essential that the infant should know that an action has been brought in his favor by a next friend, as his incapacity to judge for himself is presumed, but the court may inquire into the propriety of the action and take such steps as may be necessary. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

When Infant Appears by Attorney. — A judgment for or against an infant, when he appears by attorney, but has no guardian or next friend, is not void, but only voidable. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Opposite Party Cannot Object to Appointment. — The defendant cannot object to the next friend appointed by the trial judge. Carroll v. Montgomery, 128 N. C. 278, 38 S. E. 874.

Not Subject to Collateral Attack. — The presence of a next friend or guardian ad litem to represent an infant party, as the case may be, and his recognition by the court, in proceeding with the cause, precludes an inquiry into his authority in a collateral proceeding. Sumner v. Sessoms, 94 N. C. 371, 376. See also, Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Objection by a Plea in Abatement. — The objection that the next friend has not been regularly appointed should be taken by a plea in abatement. Carroll v. Montgomery, 128 N. C. 278, 279, 38 S. E. 874.

When Next Friend Pays Costs. — While the "next friend" is not, strictly speaking, a party to the action, and generally will not be taxed with costs, yet where the Court finds the fact that he officiously procured his appointment, or was guilty of mismanagement or bad faith, it may tax him with costs. Smith v. Smith, 108 N. C. 365, 12 S. E. 1045, 13 S. E. 113.

Attorney's Fees. — Where it is proper for the attorneys for a ward, employed by the next friend, to receive compensation out of the estate for the prosecution of an action against the guardian, the amount is for sole determination of the court, irrespective of any contract that may have been made, to be fixed with regard to the value of the services in relation to that of the estate. In re Stone, 176 N. C. 336, 97 S. E. 216.

Where Administrator Represents Minor Heir. — In an ex parte proceeding to sell land for assets, infant heirs are represented by a guardian or next friend, and the order of sale must be approved by the judge. While it is irregular for the administrator in such cases to represent a minor heir as guardian, yet, where there is no suggestion of any unfair advantage having been taken in the sale, confirmation or elsewhere in the proceeding, such irregularity will not vitiate the title of the purchaser. Harris v. Brown, 123 N. C. 419, 31 S. E. 877; Syme v. Trice, 96 N. C. 246.

When Infant Reaches Majority Pendente Lite. — Where an infant institutes an action in his own name and arrives at full age before the trial, the judgment is binding on both plaintiff and defendant. Hicks v. Beam, 112 N. C. 642, 646, 17 S. E. 490.

Infants Bound by Judgment. — Infants without general guardians may appear by their next friend, appointed in the manner prescribed by the statute, and judgments rendered in such proceedings, otherwise valid, are binding upon and conclusive of the rights of infants in the same manner and to the same extent as persons sui juris. Settle v. Settle, 141 N. C. 553, 54 S. E. 445; Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

§ 451. Infants, etc., defend by guardian ad litem. — In all actions and special proceedings when any of the defendants are infants, idiots, lunatics, or persons non compos mentis, whether residents or nonresidents of this state, they must defend by their general or testamentary guardian, if they have one within this state; and if they have no general or testamentary guardian in the state, and any of them has been summoned, the court in which said action or special proceeding is pending, upon motion of any of the parties, may appoint some discreet person to act as guardian ad litem, to defend in behalf of such infants, idots, lunatics, or persons non compos mentis. The guardian so appointed shall, if the cause is a civil action file his answer to the complaint within the time required for other defendants, unless the time is extended by the court; and if the cause is a special proceeding, a copy of the complaint, with the summons, must be served on him. After twenty days notice of the summons and complaint in the special proceeding, and after answer filed as above prescribed in the civil action, the court may proceed to final judgment as effectually and in the same manner as if there had been personal service upon the said infant, idiot, lunatic, or person non compos mentis, defendants. (Rev., s. 406; Code, s. 181; C. C. P., s. 59; 1870-1, c. 233, s. 5; 1871-2, c. 95, s. 2.)

As to service on corporations, infants, lunatics, etc., see sec. 483.

See note under § 1744.

Editor's Note. — This section and section 483 par. (2) were intended to afford protection to infants, persons non compos mentis, etc., against the able and the cunning who might seek to take advantage of their handicaps. There can be no question but what the requirement as to service of summons on persons falling within the purview of these sections should be strictly observed.

However, the question inevitably arises as to what is the legal effect of failure to make such summons. In

Allen v. Shields, 72 N. C. 504, it is doubted by the court whether personal service on an infant is not indispensable, with a strong intimation that it is. But it appears that our authorities are fairly uniform on the point, and the doctrine has long and almost universally prevailed, that the interests of the minor having been presented, and an answer having been filed by his general guardian, or guardian ad litem, the failure to serve on the minor personally was only an irregularity, to be corrected, if at all, by motion in the cause. Groves v. Ware, 182 N. C. 553, 556, 109 S. E. 568; Harris v. Bennett, 160 N. C. 339, 76 S. E. 217; Glisson v. Glisson, 153 N. C. 185, 69 S. E. 55; Rackley v. Roberts, 147 N. C. 201, 60 S. E. 975; Carraway v. Lassiter, 139 N. C. 145, 91 S. E. 968; Matthews v. Joyce, 85 N. C. 258.

Should Be Strictly Observed. — The provisions of the statute in regard to the appointment of guardians ad litem should be strictly observed, but mere irregularities in observing them, not affecting a substantial right, will not vitiate judgments and decrees obtained in the action or proceeding in which such irregularities exist. Ward v. Lowndes, 96 N. C. 367, 2 S. E. 591; White v. Morris, 107 N. C. 93, 101, 12 S. E. 80.

Enforced as Mandatory. — In Moore v. Gidney, 75 N. C. 34, 38; Bynum, J., speaking for the court, says: "So careful is the law to guard the rights of infants, and to protect them against hasty, irregular and indiscreet judicial action. Infants are, in many cases, the wards of the courts, and these forms, enacted as safeguards thrown around the helpless, who are often the victims of the crafty, are enforced as being mandatory, and not directory only. Those who venture to act in defiance of them must take the risk of their action being declared void, or set aside."

When Clerk May Appoint. — In a special proceeding by an executor to sell lands, the clerk has the power to appoint a guardian ad litem for an infant defendant, where the executor is the general guardian of such infant. Carraway v. Lassiter, 139 N. C. 145, 51 S. E. 968.

Removal of Guardian Ad Litem. — In Carraway v. Lassiter, 139 N. C. 145, 152, 51 S. E. 968, it was said: "The Superior Court has, independently of this section, the power to appoint a guardian ad litem for an infant defendant. It may at any time during the progress of the cause, for sufficient reason looking to the proper protection of the infant's interests, remove a guardian theretofore appointed and name some other person. We can see no good reason why the clerk who acts as and for the court, may not do the same in special proceedings pending before him. The object to be obtained is the protection of the infant, whose interest is the special care of the court; the guardian ad litem is the officer of the court, and we can see no good reason or conflict with well-settled principles why it may not for any good reason appoint such guardian."

When Husband Need Not Appear. — Where an infant feme covert cestui que trust who has no general guardian, appears in a proceeding for the appointment of a trustee by guardian ad litem, the husband need not appear. Roseman v. Roseman, 127 N. C. 494, 497, 498, 37 S. E. 518.

Ward Protected by Court.—Where a guardian ad litem has been duly appointed to represent a party, who is under disability, in an action, the court will protect his interest, and though our statute specifies that a summons must be served on such persons, no practical harm would result therefrom to the ward where a guardian ad litem has been appointed, and he accepts the service of summons and presumably performs his statutory duty; and the proceedings will not be declared void as to the ward when such has been done. Groves v. Ware, 182 N. C. 553, 109 S. E. 568.

Return as Evidence of Service. — Where it is sought to condemn the lands of an infant, such infant must defend by general guardian where one has been appointed; and where service of process has been made upon the general guardian, and it appears from the officer's return of notice that service has been executed, upon the infant, such return is sufficient evidence of its service to take the case to the jury upon the question involved in the issue. Long v. Rockingham, 187 N. C. 199, 121 S. E. 461.

Decree Not Conclusive When Guardian Negligent of Interest.—A decree for the sale of land in a special proceeding is not conclusive upon infant defendants who were not served with process, but who were represented by a guardian ad litem, appointed before the petition was filed on nomination of plaintiff, and who filed an answer prepared for him at plaintiff's instance and without inquiry as to the rights of the infant defendants. Gulley v. Macy, 81 N. C. 356; Moore v. Gidney, 75 N. C. 34.

Irregularities Cured.—The appointment of a guardian ad litem before service of summons upon the infant is an irregularity which may be cured by the service of summons upon the infant thereafter, and the filing of the answer of the guardian, etc. Dudley v. Tyson, 167 N. C. 67, 82 S. E. 1025.

Plaintiff Need Not Move for Appointment.—A plaintiff is not bound to move for the appointment of a guardian ad litem for an infant defendant; and his failure to do so is not such laches as will work a discontinuance of the action. Turner v. Douglass, 72 N. C. 127.

When Change of Venue is Erroneous. — In an action against an infant who appears by an attorney, an order changing the venue is not irregular or void; it is erroneous, and may be reversed or vacated upon application of the infant, upon his arriving at age. Turner v. Douglas, 72 N. C. 127.

Vacation of Irregular Judgment.—Where it appears that there was no service of process upon infant defendants, and no guardian was appointed to protect their interests, a judgment rendered against them is absolutely void ab initio, and may be set aside at any time for irregularity. Larkins v. Bullard, 88 N. C. 35, 36; Mason v. Miles, 63 N. C. 564. See also, Pearson v. Nesbitt, 14 N. C. 315; White v. Albertson, 14 N. C. 241.

Judgment Not Subject to Collateral Attack.—Where infant defendants are served with a summons in proceedings for the partition of land and a guardian ad litem is appointed, a judgment affirming the sale cannot be set aside in a collateral proceeding for alleged fraud or irregularity. Smith v. Gray, 116 N. C. 311, 21 S. E. 200.

Appointment Valid When Infant Not Regularly Served.—The appointment of a guardian ad litem is valid, although the infant has not been regularly served with process, but has only accepted service thereof. Cates v. Pickett, 97 N. C. 21, 1 S. E. 763.

Applied to Action to Foreclose for Taxes.—In an action under § 8037 the delinquent shall be made a defendant, and if a minor he must defend by a guardian, either general, testamentary, or ad litem. Forsyth County v. Joyce, 204 N. C. 734, 738, 169 S. E. 655.

Jury Trial Waived.—It is competent for the attorney and guardian ad litem to waive a jury trial for infants, even where they have not been regularly served with summons. White v. Morris, 107 N. C. 93, 12 S. E. 80.

Nominal Plaintiff Disqualified to Represent Infant. — A plaintiff of record, though nominal and made so without his consent, is utterly disqualified to appear for any infant defendants. His most faithful performance of duty and energetic and persistent defense, in every way commendable, and approved by the Court, do not relieve the impropriety of his appointment as guardian ad litem, so long as his name appears on the plaintiff side of the docket. Ellis v. Massenburg, 126 N. C. 129, 35 S. E. 240.

Mere Colorable Interest Disqualifies. — A mere colorable interest, if at all adverse, is sufficient to disqualify either a guardian ad litem or his attorney from appearing for an infant defendant. Ellis v. Massenburg, 126 N. C. 129, 134, 35 S. E. 240; Molyneux v. Huey, 81 N. C. 106.

Supreme Court May Appoint.—The Supreme Court may appoint a guardian ad litem. Perry v. Perry, 175 N. C. 141, 144, 95 S. E. 98; Robeson v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 50.

Applied in Wyatt v. Berry, 205 N. C. 118; as to service on insane persons in Hood, Comr. of Banks v. Holding, 205 N. C. 451.

§ 452. Appointment of guardian ad litem in actions begun by publication.—In all actions and special proceedings wherever any of the defendants are infants, idiots, lunatics, or persons non compos mentis, and it shall become necessary to serve the summons on said infants, idiots, lunatics, or persons non compos mentis by publication, it shall not be necessary to await the completion of the service of summons by publication before moving for the appointment of a guardian ad litem for said infants, idiots, lunatics, or persons non compos mentis, but a guardian ad litem may be appointed on motion at the time of the issuance of the order of publication; and the service of a summons, with a copy of the complaint or petition, can be made on the guardian ad litem returnable on the same date as the infant defendants are required to appear in the notice of publication; and after ten days notice of said summons and complaint in special proceedings and after answer filed as prescribed in section 451 under this article, the court may proceed in the same cause to final judgment and decree therein, in the same manner as if there had been personal service upon the said infant, idiot, lunatic, or person non compos mentis, defendants, and any decree or judgment in the cause shall conclude the infant, idiot, lunatic, or person non compos mentis, defendants, effectually as if he, or they, had been personally summoned. (1919, c. 246.)

Cited in Hines v. Williams, 198 N. C. 420, 152 S. E. 39.

§ 453. Guardian ad litem to file answer.—When a guardian ad litem is appointed, he shall file an answer in the action or special proceeding, admitting or denying the allegations thereof. The costs and expenses of the answer, in all applications to sell or divide the real estate of said infants, shall be paid out of the proceeds of the property, or in case of division shall be charged upon the land if the sale or division is ordered by the court, and, if not ordered, in any other manner the court directs. (Rev., s. 407; Code, s. 182; 1870-1, c. 233, s. 4.)

Minors Not Properly Represented Not Bound.—Where, in a proceeding to caveat a will, the interests of minors are involved, who are not properly represented, the issue of devisavit vel non cannot be answered by consent of the parties to the action so as to bind the infants. Holt v. Ziglar, 159 N. C. 272, 74 S. E. 813. See also, Moore v. Gidney, 75 N. C. 34.

§ 454. Married women. — When a married woman is a party, her husband must be joined with her, except that—

1. When the action concerns her separate property, she may sue alone.

2. When the action is between herself and her husband, she may sue or be sued alone.

In no case need she prosecute or defend by a guardian or next friend. (Rev., s. 408; Code, s. 178; C. C. P., s. 56.)

Const. Art. X. sec. 6.

Editor's Note.—A glance at the evolution of the law, concerning married women as parties, is both interesting and instructive in connection with this section. By the early common law the identity of a married woman was merged into that of her husband. She could not sue or be sued alone, neither could she be held on her contracts. The husband was liable for his wife's torts, and, in many cases, her less serious crimes. At a later stage she could sue and be sued if her husband was joinder as a party. Of course, the basis for this joinder was the "one person" fiction, or the theory of the identity of person. This theory crept into the common law through the ecclesiastical judges, who in turn based it upon the biblical story of the Garden of Eden. In North Carolina, by the constitution of 1868, for the first time, all the separate property of a married woman, including both realty and personalty, acquired before or after marriage, was secured to her for her sole and separate use. But the statutory evolution thus begun has been followed up by legislative and judicial action until now the personal earnings of a feme covert and damages for personal injuries to her, are her separate property, and she can sue alone to recover the same.

At present a married woman can be plaintiff or defendant in an action arising out of either contract or tort. Prior to 1911 a feme covert could be sued upon contract, without her husband being joined, if she was a free trader. By the Martin Act of 1911 a married woman may now, as to her separate property, contract and be contracted with, sue and be sued, as if sole. Since the passage of this Act, it is not necessary to join the husband in a contract action. In a 1914 case, Lipinsky v. Revell, 167 N. C. 508, 83 S. E. 820, the dictum went so far as to say that, where the wife was sued on a contract, that the husband was not a necessary, or even a proper party. While this is merely dictum, yet it indicates the trend of modern judicial thought.

As to tort actions, prior to 1913, it was necessary to join the husband when the wife was a party plaintiff. In 1913 the legislature gave to married women the right to sue alone for damages for personal injuries. When the wife was party defendant for her torts, at common law, the husband was joined, not because of any wrong on his part, "but," as said in Roberts v. Lisenbee, 86 N. C. 136, 137, 41 Am. Rep. 450, "from the necessity of the thing, arising from the incapacity of the wife to be sued without him." This was true even though they were living apart. The Act of 1881 restricted the husband's liability in this respect, by making him liable jointly with his wife for her torts only if he was "living with his wife." By this statute he was joined with his wife, if she was sued in tort "ex necessitate," or he could be sued alone. That act was repealed in 1921, and under the present law the husband is free from liability for his wife's torts. As yet no cases of value have arisen under the present law.

It will be seen that the cases hereunder cited must be considered in the light of this evolution of the law as embodied in this section. Patterson v. Franklin, 168 N. C. 75, 84 S. E. 18; Shore v. Holt, 185 N. C. 212, 117 S. E. 165; 2 N. C. Law Rev. 56, 57, 58.

Capacity Generally. — Since the enlarged capacity of a married woman to have a separate property, and to be reponsible for liabilities dum sola, and on such contracts during the marriage as by the marriage act (Bat. Rev., ch. 69) she has power to make, it is provided by this section that, in actions concerning her separate property, a married woman may sue alone, and also may sue her husband and be sued by him, but that in all other instances the husband must be joined. Nicholson v. Cox, 83 N. C. 48, 50.

This section, expressly authorizes a married woman to sue and be sued, requiring only that her husband be joined with her (except in certain cases.) McLeod v. Williams, 122 N. C. 451, 461, 30 S. E. 129.

When Husband is Nonresident or Fugitive.—In an action against a married woman for the possession of personal property claimed by the plaintiff under a chattel mortgage given by her husband, where it is alleged in the complaint and admitted by demurrer that the husband is a nonresident and a fugitive from justice, the husband is not a necessary party. Heath v. Morgan, 117 N. C. 504, 23 S. E. 489.

Limitation of Actions.—The exception of married women from the statute of limitation was repealed in 1899, chapter 78, and, indeed, had no logical place in our laws after the enactment in 1868, and that she could bring suit in her own name without joining her husband. That exception was to protect a married woman from being barred when she delayed to bring action. Whitfield v. Boyd, 158 N. C. 451, 455.

The laches which will defeat the right of an heir at law of the deceased to file a caveat to his will, will now also defeat the right of such who is a marrried woman, for she is put to her action by this section. Under the seven-year statute of 1907 married woman is required to bring her action or file her caveat within three years ater becoming discovert. In re Bateman's Will, 168 N. C. 234, 84 S. E. 272.

While the general rule is that an action or proceeding to readjust a settlement made under the supervision of a competent court must be brought within three years from the time of such settlement, yet there is an exception where the settlement is made with a feme covert against whom the statute of limitations does not run pending the coverture. Briggs v. Smith, 83 N. C. 306.

The provisions of this section allowing a feme covert to sue or be sued concerning her separate property, does not remove the disability of coverture so as to allow the statute of limitations to bar a feme covert's right of action. Lippard v. Trautman, 72 N. C. 551.

When Married Woman Sues for Seduction of Daughter.—A married woman can sue for the seduction of her infant daughter where her husband has been declared insane, or is residing out of the state. Abbott v. Hancock, 123 N. C. 99, 102, 31 S. E. 268.

Action for Breach of Promise.—The husband of a plaintiff, in an action for a breach of promise of marriage, married since such action commenced, is not a necessary party thereto. Shuler v. Millsaps, 71 N. C. 297.

Husband as Agent of Wife in Action.—The joinder of the husband in an action maintainable against the wife alone, though unnecessary, makes the husband the agent of the wife, when she is not present in person or by attorney, for the purposes of the suit; this does not obtain if she is insane, and his consent in such case to the entry of a judgment affecting her lands is voidable, and she may thereafter move to have it set aside. Craddock v. Brinkly, 177 N. C. 125, 98 S. E. 280.

It is manifest that to her husband's management and protection are entrusted the interest of the wife in an adversary suit, and in the absence of collusion or fraud on his part with the plaintiff, the judgment must be conclusive as to antecedent matters, and as effectual as in other cases. More especially must this be so, since the law dispenses with a guardian or prochein ami, and now leave to them alone to set up and establish any defense that either may have against the plaintiff's demand. Vick v. Pope, 81 N. C. 22, 26.

Husband May Be Joined to Aid Wife.—While a wife may sue in her own right to recover her lands, her husband may join therein to assist her in the vindication of her right. Sipe v. Herman, 161 N. C. 107, 108, 76 S. E. 556.

In an action on a note seeking to charge her personal estate, the wife and husband are properly joined as parties defendant; but he is only required to be a party for the protection of her interest, and no judgment could be rendered against him. Harvey v. Johnson, 133 N. C. 352, 355, 45 S. E. 644.

When Husband Not Served with Process.—A decree for the sale of land made in a special proceeding is not conclusive upon a feme covert defendant whose husband is not served with a process nor otherwise made a party, or leave from court to proceed without him. Gulley v. Macy, 81 N. C. 356, 357.

Wife May Accept or Refuse Aid of Husband.—As there are cases where a feme covert may sue or be sued alone and need in no case prosecute or defend by guardian or next friend, and her husband may on leave of the court and with her consent defend in her name and behalf, it would seem, unavoidably, to follow that she has capacity to accept or refuse his proffered aid to employ an attorney to prosecute her action and to make her defense. Hollingsworth v. Harman, 83 N. C. 153, 155.

Fraudulent Conveyances to Wife Recoverable.—Where an insolvent husband has conveyed property to his wife in fraud of his creditors, it may be recovered in her hands, the husband being joined as defendant, if the wife is not a free trader. If she has invested the proceeds in other property the fund may be followed. Pender v. Mallett, 123 N. C. 57, 58, 31 S. E. 351.

Action for Rents.—The rents arising from the real estate of a feme covert belong to her, and an action therefor must be brought by the feme; it is not even necessary that the husband be joined as a party. Thompson v. Wiggins, 109 N. C. 508, 509, 14 S. E. 301.

Action in Tort.—A wife abandoned by her husband may maintain an action in tort, in her own name, against a third person. Brown v. Brown, 121 N. C. 8, 27 S. E. 998.

Husband Not a Necessary Party. — In an action by a married woman to compel the conveyance of bank stock, her husband is not a necessary party. Earnhardt v. Clement, 137 N. C. 91, 92, 49 S. E. 49.

Not Bound by Agreement to Arbitrate. — A married woman cannot bind herself by agreeing to arbitrate the question of title to land owned by her. Smith v. Bruton, 137 N. C. 79, 49 S. E. 64.

Action for Personal Injuries. — A married woman may sue, without joining her husband, to recover damages she has sustained by reason of a personal injury wrongfully inflicted; in this case, a trespass with the use of excessive force. Revisal, 408(1). Kirkpatrick v. Crutchfield, 178 N. C. 348, 100 S. E. 602.

Tort Action against Husband. — While at common law a wife could not maintain an action without joining her husband, or against him personally, this was changed by this section, with relation to her separate property, and by the Legislature of 1913 under this section a wife, including the right as to personal injuries and torts, may maintain an action against her husband as in assault, for coercing her and willfully and maliciously giving her a venereal disease, in which case, punitive as well as compensatory damages may be awarded. Crowell v. Crowell, 180 N. C. 516, 105 S. E. 206.

Action against Husband for Personal Injury. — A wife may maintain an action against her husband for personal injury sustained by her due to his negligence. Roberts v. Roberts, 185 N. C. 566, 118 S. E. 9.

Action for Performance of Trust. — Where the husband conveyed a tract of land to S., in trust "to allow the said B. and M., his wife, to have the rents, etc., for their own use; and further, that out of said rents, etc., to support the said M. in such manner as she has heretofore lived," etc. The wife could, in her name alone, maintain an action against the trustee and the husband to compel a performance of the trust, especially as it was evident the husband refused to be associated with her, and it was probable the plaintiff might be entitled to some relief against him. Barnes v. Barnes, 104 N. C. 613, 10 S. E. 304.

Husband Made Party Defendant. — Generally and ordinarily, when a married woman brings an action, her husband must join with her in it, except "when the action concerns her separate property," or "when the action is between herself and her husband." But if he will not join her, as he ought to do, she may make him a party defendant, if need be. Barnes v. Barnes, 104 N. C. 613, 616, 10 S. E. 304; McGlennery v. Miller, 90 N. C. 215.

Guardian or Next Friend Not Needed. — Indeed, she may sue her husband, or be sued by him alone; and in no case need she prosecute or defend by a guardian or next friend. Shuler v. Millsaps, 71 N. C. 297, 298; McCormac v. Wiggins, 84 N. C. 278, 279.

It is not required that the wife, as such, prosecute or defend an action concerning her lands by guardian or next friend. Craddock v. Brinkley, 177 N. C. 125, 98 S. E. 280.

Cited in Earle v. Earle, 198 N. C. 411, 151 S. E. 884.

§ 455. Who may be plaintiffs. — All persons having an interest in the subject of the action and in obtaining the relief demanded may be joined as plaintiffs, either jointly, severally, or in the alternative, except as otherwise provided. If, upon the application of any party, it shall appear that such joinder may embarrass or delay the trial, the court may order separate trials or make such other order as may be expedient. (Rev., s. 409; Code s. 183; C. C. P., s. 60; 1931, c. 344, s. 1.)

Cross References. — As to rules governing plaintiffs generally, see sec. 446; as to action on bond of outgoing clerk, see sec. 944; As to suits for penalties, see sec. 447.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added all of this section appearing after the word "plaintiffs," and omitted the phrase "except as otherwise provided" formerly ending the section. This is a form of alternative pleading explained in 9 N. C. Law Rev. 24.

In General. — Plaintiffs, where interests are several, may jointly maintain an action under § 5005 of the Ohio Code (the language of which is identical with this section) where all are interested in the subject of the action, are protected from loss, if at all, by one and the same instrument, and their loss occurs at one and the same time, and all the rights of each can be fully protected in a single action without any prejudice to the defendant. 24 Circuit Court Reports of Ohio 156.

There May Be Several Plaintiffs Whose Interests Are Not Identical.—In a suit for damages to a truck where the cause of action of the individual plaintiff for damage to his truck, as well as the cause of action of the corporate plaintiff for the loss of his security by reason of the damage to said truck, both arose out of the same transaction or transaction connected with the same subject of action, namely, the damage to the same truck proximately caused by the same negligent act of the same agent of the defendant, it was held that both parties could be joined as plaintiffs. Clearly both parties plaintiff had an interest in the subject of this action and in obtaining the relief demanded. Neither this section nor section 507 requires, by word or by implication, that the causes of action of the party plaintiffs shall be identical. Wilson v. Horton Motor Lines, 207 N. C. 263, 264, 176 S. E. 750.

The fact that the interests of plaintiffs are legally severable, or not common or identical, is no bar to their joinder where they have a common interest in the subject of the action and the relief sought. Id.

Trustee as Plaintiff. — A duly appointed trustee of a religious society may maintain an action for the removal of faithless or incompetent trustees, and compel them to convey the property held by them to the purposes for which it was designed, and such trustee may also maintain an action to set up a lost deed executed for the benefit of the cestui que trust. Nash v. Sutton, 109 N. C. 550, 14 S. E. 77.

Non-residents Not Barred. — Non-residents may be parties plaintiff in the courts of this state. Thompson v. Western Union Tel. Co., 107 N. C. 449, 456, 12 S. E. 427; Walters v. Breeder, 48 N. C. 64; Miller v. Black, 47 N. C. 342.

Uninterested Party as Co-Plaintiff. — It is wholly immaterial that an uninterested party is united with the true owner as plaintiff, in an action to recover a debt, because a reception of payment by either plaintiff would be with the assent of the other. Perkins v. Berry, 103 N. C. 131, 132, 9 S. E. 621.

Creditors as Plaintiff. — In Pelletier v. Saunders, 67 N. C. 261, 262, Rodman J., who delivered the opinion; said, "In a proceeding for the sale of lands, the creditors are not necessary parties. Nevertheless, as they have an interest, as well in the taking of the administration accounts as in the terms on which the land shall be sold, and the application of the proceeds, they must have a right to become parties at some stage of the proceedings, and we cannot see that any inconvenience, or injury to any interest, can arise by allowing them to come in at the beginning, by commencing the proceeding." See also, Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. 90.

§ 456. Who may be defendants. — All persons may be made defendants, jointly, severally, or in the alternative, who have, or claim, an interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff, or who are necessary parties to a complete determination or settlement of the questions involved. In an action to recover the possession of real estate, the landlord and tenant may be joined as defendants. Any person claiming title or right of possession to real estate may be made a party plaintiff or defendant, as the case requires, in such action. If the plaintiff is in doubt as to the persons from whom he is entitled to redress, he may join two or more defendants, to determine which is liable. (Rev., s. 410; Code, s. 184; C. C. P., s. 61; 1931, c. 344, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 inserted the words "either jointly, severally, or in the alternative" appearing in the first sentence of this section, and added the last sentence. This is a form of alternative pleading explained in 9 N. C. Law Rev. 24.

Interest in Controversy. — In Wade v. Sanlers, 70 N. C. 277, 278, Pearson C. J., while admitting the wording of the section to be very broad refused the construction of "any person may be made defendant who claims an interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff" to mean "any person who claims an interest in the thing which is the subject of controversy." as placed upon it by a Superior Court Judge. However, it would seem that cases subsequent to this decision have apparently given it a wider scope. Bryant v. Kenlaw, 90 N. C. 337, 342.

This section contemplates that all persons necessary to a complete determination of the controversy, the matter in litigation, and affected by the same in some way, as between the original parties to the action, may, in some instances, and must in others, be made parties plaintiff or defendant. But it does not imply that any persons who may have a cause of action against the plaintiff alone, or cause of action against the defendant alone, unaffected by the cause of action as between the plaintiff and defendant, may or must be made a party. It does not contemplate the determination of two separate and distinct causes of action, as between the plaintiff and a third party, or the defendant and a third party, in the same action. It is only when, as between the original parties litigant, other parties are material or interested, that it is proper to make them parties. McDonald v. Morris, 89 N. C. 99, 100; Batchelor v. Macon, 67 N. C. 181, 184; Harkey v. Houston, 65 N. C. 137, 139.

See also, Attorney-General v. Simonton, 78 N. C. 57, 59; Emry v. Parker, 111 N. C. 261, 264, 16 S. E. 236, and cases therein cited; Gregory v. Gregory, 69 N. C. 522, 526.

It is not everyone who may have a remote interest in a cause who must be made a party, but it will suffice if those are before the court who are in a legal sense necessary to the determination or settlement of the questions involved. McCaskill v. Lancashire, 83 N. C. 393, 399.

It has been held that this section applies only when the person applying is connected in interest with one or the other of the parties, as co-tenant with the plaintiff or in privity with the defendant, or on claim of a common possession with them. Colgrove v. Koonce, 76 N. C. 363. See also, Harkey v. Houston, 65 N. C. 137, 138.

Where alleged fraudulent conveyances are made to several grantees, they all have an interest in the subject-matter, and are necessary and proper parties in order to a final determination of the controversy. Dawson Bank v. Harris, 84 N. C. 206.

Where an injury is caused by the separate action of several persons whose interests are adverse to the plaintiff, it is proper to join them as defendants in an action for damages. Long v. Swindell, 77 N. C. 176; Gill v. Young, 82 N. C. 274, 276.

Same—Judgment Creditors. — The judgment creditors of the decedent, having an interest in the sale of realty to make assets to pay debts, are such necessary or proper parties as to entitle them to intervene in the proceedings of the executor, and make themselves parties before final judgment. Wadford v. Davis, 192 N. C. 484, 485, 35 S. E. 353.

Under this section and section 1460, a court has power to allow a judgment creditor of a corporation to interplead to an action in the nature of a quo warranto brought by the Attorney-General to annul and vacate the charter of the corporation. Attorney-General v. Simonton, 78 N. C. 57.

A creditor of the deceased has a right, to come in and be made a party defendant, for the purpose of excepting to an admeasurement of dower, in the course of a petition by the widow. Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. 90, 91.

Same—Plaintiff in a Creditor's Bill. — A plaintiff in a creditor's bill may join causes of action for the recovery of an indebtedness not therefore reduced to judgment; for the removal of an insolvent trustee; for the appointment of a receiver; to declare a conveyance to the creditor of the principal defendant void, and that a prior mortgage shall be foreclosed and the surplus money applied to the debts of the other creditors, and persons having an interest in these several causes of action should be made parties defendant. LeDuc v. Brandt, 110 N. C. 289, 14 S. E. 778.

Same — Wife as Defendant. — Where the plaintiff brought at an execution sale the interest of the husband in land claimed by the wife and whereon both resided, she was held entitled to come in and defend her estate and their possession. Cecil v. Smith, 81 N. C. 285.

Same—When Causes Are Separable. — Where there is no unity of design or concert of action, and the separate action of each defendant causes the single injury, the share of each in causing it, is separable and may be accurately measured. In such case the jury can properly assess several damages. Long v. Swindell, 77 N. C. 176.

Necessary Parties. — The law does not allow unnecessary and improper parties to be brought into an action. The plaintiff has the right to have his action tried upon its merits, uninfluenced and unaffected by persons who have no concern in it. McDonald v. Morris, 89 N. C. 99, 102.

In an action against the vendee under a conditional sales contract the joinder of one claiming title as purchaser for value from the vendee is not objectionable, the subject of the action being the same, and the claimant in possession being a necessary party to the action. Andrews Music Store v. Boone, 197 N. C. 174, 148 S. E. 39.

Same—Removal of Cause to Federal Courts. — A nonresident defendant surety of a contractor for the completion of the building may not remove the cause from the state to the federal court upon the ground that the resident defendants were not necessary parties to the determination of the controversy. Morgantown v. Hutton, etc., Co., 187 N. C. 736, 122 S. E. 842; Cited in Jackson County Bank v. Hester, 188 N. C. 68, 123 S. E. 308. As to who are necessary parties, see § 446 and notes thereto.

Landlord and Tenant — When Two Persons Claim as Landlord. — Where two parties, each claiming to be landlord of a tenant in possession, and one sues, the other has an interest in the controversy and may be admitted to defeat the action. Rollins v. Rollins, 76 N. C. 264.

Same—Defenses of Landlord. — Under the provisions of this section, a landlord let in to defend in a civil action for the recovery of land is not restricted to the defenses to which his tenant is confined, nor is this principle varied by the circumstance that the plaintiff is the purchaser at execution sale against such tenant, and that the latter was in possession at the date of the sale and of the commencement of the action. Maddrey v. Long, 86 N. C. 383, 385; Isler v. Foy, 66 N. C. 547.

Action to Recover Land—Joint Owner Made Party Defendant. — In an action to recover land a third party, claiming to be joint owner with defendant, has the right, on affidavit, to be let in as a party defendant. Lytle v. Burgin, 82 N. C. 301, 303.

Same — Purchaser under Mortgage Sale as Party. — In Keathly v. Branch, 84 N. C. 202, the mortgagor was sued, and the purchaser of the land sold under the mortgage was allowed to come in and set up his own title.

Same—Action against Administrator. — Where a suit was pending by the next of kin against an administrator for the distribution of the estate in his hands, and the defendant died, the action could not be continued by the next of kin, and the court had no power to allow an administrator de bonis non to be made a party plaintiff in the pending action. Merrill v. Merrill, 92 N. C. 657.

Same—Undivided Interest in Lands. — One who claims an undivided interest in lands in proceedings to sell them and divide the proceeds among tenants in common and to pay debts, etc., may be properly made a party to such proceedings. McKeel v. Holloman, 163 N. C. 132, 79 S. E. 445.

Same—Adverse Holder to Title to Both Parties. — In an action for the recovery of real estate, a third person who claims title paramount and adverse both to plaintiff and defendant, should not be permitted to make himself a party to the action. Colgrove v. Koonce, 76 N. C. 363.

Same—Authority of Clerk. — The clerk of the Superior Court, under the general provisions of this section, has the authority to permit persons claiming an interest in the land to be made a party defendant. Empire Mfg. Co. v. Spurill, 169 N. C. 618, 86 S. E. 522.

Parties for Purpose of Setting up Counterclaim.—Where a mother has placed her son in a sanitarium for treatment and is personally responsible for the services therein rendered, in an action to recover therefor against her she may not qualify as guardian for her son and make herself and him parties for the purpose of recovering for him damages upon a counterclaim alleged to have been caused by malpractice, as such does not fall within the scope of the plaintiff's cause of action, and she in her capacity as guardian is not a necessary party under this section or § 460. Michigan Sanitarium, etc., Ass'n v. Neal, 194 N. C. 401, 139 S. E. 841.

Before allotment of dower is made in the lands of a deceased husband dying intestate his heirs at law should be made parties plaintiff or defendant. Holt v. Lynch, 201 N. C. 404, 160 S. E. 469.

Surety.—Where a contractor gives a surety bond for the faithful performance of a contract for the cutting of timber, it is not necessary to first ascertain by action or otherwise the amount of the liability of the contractor before uniting his surety as a party to an action for damages for its breach, the surety being a proper party for the complete determination or settlement of the question involved. Watson v. King, 200 N. C. 8, 156 S. E. 93.

Junior Mortgagee.—In an action to set aside a sale under a deed of trust the junior mortgagee should be made a party. Lockbridge v. Smith, 206 N. C. 174, 173 S. E. 36.

Assignee of Judgment and Levying Officer.—In an action against the makers of a note and to have a judgment obtained by one of the makers against the payee applied to the payment of the note, it was held that the assignee of the judgment and the sheriff, who was about to obtain execution on the judgments, were properly made parties defendant. The principal relief sought was against the makers and the relief sought against the other defendants was but incidental. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank v. Kerr, 206 N. C. 610, 175 S. E. 102.

In an action against a stockholder in an insolvent bank to collect the statutory assessment on his stock parties who had contracted to pay the liabilities of the bank in case of insolvency and save the stockholders from liability should have been made parties defendant on motion of defendant stockholder. Hood v. Burrus, 207 N. C. 560, 178 S. E. 362.

Joinder of Beneficiaries in Deeds of Trust.—In an action by a judgment creditor to set aside alleged fraudulent conveyances of property by deeds of trust and mortgages as made to hinder, delay and defraud him in the collection of his judgment under execution, the joinder therein of the grantees and beneficiaries in the deeds is not objectionable as a misjoinder and demurrer to the complaint alleging such conveyances entered on the ground of misjoinder of causes and parties, and that it failed to state a cause of action is properly overruled. Moorefield v. Roseman, 198 N. C. 805, 153 S. E. 399.

Review on Appeal.—The action of the trial judge in making necessary parties to an action is reviewable on appeal, and the making of proper parties is addressed to his sound discretion and not reviewable. Williams v. Hooks, 200 N. C. 419, 157 S. E. 65.

§ 457. Joinder of parties; action by or against one for benefit of a class.—Of the parties to the action, those who are united in interest must be joined as plaintiffs or defendants; but if the consent of any one who should have been joined as plaintiff cannot be obtained, he may be made a defendant, the reason thereof being stated in the complaint. When the question is one of a common or general interest of many persons, or where the parties are so numerous that it is impracticable to bring them all before the court, one or more may sue or defend for the benefit of all. Any and/or all unincorporated, beneficial organizations, fraternal benefit orders, associations and/or societies, or voluntary fraternal beneficial organizations, orders, associations and/or societies issuing certificates and/or policies of insurance, foreign or domestic, now or hereafter doing business in this state, shall have the power to sue and/or be sued in the name commonly known and/or used by them in the conduct of their business to the same extent as any other legal entity established by law, and without naming any of the individual members composing it: Provided, however, this section shall apply only in actions concerning such certificates and/or policies of insurance. (Rev., s. 411; Code, s. 185; C. C. P., s. 62; 1933, c. 182.)

Cross Reference. — As to real parties in interest, see sec. 446 and annotations thereunder. As to plaintiffs and defendants generally, see annotations secs. 455, 456; as to amendment by adding and striking out parties, see sec. 547 and annotations thereunto.

See note under § 507.

Editor's Note.—The last sentence of this section, relating to unincorporated, beneficial organizations, fraternal orders, etc., was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 182.

Parties Not Necessary to Determination.—See note under § 511.

Persons in Interest. — Persons in interest are necessary parties to a final adjudication. Meadows v. Marsh, 123 N. C. 189, 193, 31 S. E. 476.

But it is necessary as a rule that all defendants have a responsible interest; a judgment that determines points of law adverse to a person, is not sufficient ground for making him defendant. Clark v. Bonsal & Co., 157 N. C. 270, 72 S. E. 954.

In construing the same provision of the Ohio statute the negative rule is stated as follows: "If there is no unity of interest there can be no joinder of plaintiffs." See 51 O. S. 433.

Where the stockholders of an insolvent bank authorize the trustee of the bank to bind them individually, but not jointly, for money to be borrowed on their credit and agree to repay the same in proportion to the amount of the stock held by each, they are properly joined as defendants in an action to recover money so lent, since the subject of action is of common and general interest. Hanover Nat. Bank v. Cocke, 127 N. C. 467, 37 S. E. 507.

Breach of Trust. — The principal actress in a breach of trust and fraud, must be joined with the other defendants, alleged to have concurred with her as coadjutors. Paxton v. Wood, 77 N. C. 11, 15.

Will Not Yet Established. — One who claims under a will, which is not established, must have before the court all the parties interested, to establish it. Thompson v. Applewhite, 16 N. C. 460.

Joint Contractors. — If a quarry company and a stone company contracted jointly to furnish rock, both companies were interested in an action to recover the amount due to each company, and were properly joined as plaintiffs. Balfour Quarry Co. v. West Const. Co., 151 N. C. 345, 66 S. E. 217.

A petition to vacate a grant, brought against a person in possession by purchase from the original grantee, where such grantee is not before the court, will be dismissed. Tyrrell v. Logan, 10 N. C. 319.

When Wife an Unnecessary Party. — A wife is an unnecessary party to a bill to set aside a deed for her land, fraudulently procured from her husband alone, her right being unaffected by the conveyance. Browning v. Pratt, 17 N. C. 44

The executor, and not the heirs, represents the estate where land is directed by will to be sold and converted into money, and the latter are not necessary parties to a suit concerning the disposition of and charges on such estate. Harris v. Bryant, 83 N. C. 568.

It is not necessary to join as parties the heirs of a deceased tenant in common who disposed of his interest in the common property pendente lite. Dawkins v. Dawkins, 93 N. C. 283.

Ulterior Legatees as Parties. — In an action against an executor, the ulterior legatees should be parties where it is sought to charge him with a fund arising out of a sale of land under a power in a will, the land being bequeathed to plaintiff for life, and after his death to his children, with a remainder over in case of his death without children. Peacock v. Harris, 85 N. C. 147.

Donee in Suit by Donor. — A deed by a feme covert conveying slaves to her after the death of the donor, creates an interest which survives to her, after the death of her husband, and she is a necessary party to a bill by him, seeking relief upon her title. Kornegay v. Carroway, 17 N. C. 403.

Unconnected Parties with Common Interest. — When several persons, although unconnected with each other, are made defendants, a demurrer will not lie if they have a common interest centering in the point in issue in the cause. Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. v. Floyd, 158 N. C. 455, 74 S. E. 465.

Joinder Necessary to Disposition of Cause. — Demurrer for misjoinder of parties is properly overruled, where it appears that the two defendants are so intimately connected with the transactions that it would be almost impossible to investigate any of the grounds of complaint unless both are made parties. Oyster v. Iola Min. Co., 140 N. C. 135, 52 S. E. 198.

Insolvency of Defendant. — Mere insolvency of a defendant can not alone determine the right of a plaintiff to join him with others in an action for tort, if he is liable, since the test is in the validity of the cause of action and the good faith of the plaintiff in making the joinder, and insolvency does not destroy the remedy, but merely effects the prospects of collection. Hough v. Southern R. Co., 144 N. C. 692, 57 S. E. 469.

Party Unheard of for Years. — Where a person concerned in interest is stated in the bill to have moved away and not since heard of for many years, so that he cannot be served with process, that is a good reason as between third parties for not making him; and the court will proceed to a hearing notwithstanding. Ingram v. Lanier, 2 N. C. 221.

Tenant in Common May Sue Alone. — One tenant in common may sue without joining his cotenants for the recovery of the possession of the common property. Thames v. Jones, 97 N. C. 121, 1 S. E. 692. See also, Wilson v. Arentz, 70 N. C. 670.

Suit against Unincorporated Society. — This section permitting the joinder of parties and recognizing representation by common interests, cannot have application to an attempted suit against an unincorporated society, when no individual has been made a party defendant, or appears to defend the action in behalf of himself or other members of the society. Tucker v. Eatough, 186 N. C. 505, 120 S. E. 57.

Action by Member of Congregation. — Where, there is no higher governing body in any denomination than the congregation, every member has such a beneficial interest as would enable him, in behalf of his brethren and associates, to maintain an action to restore a lost title deed for the church at which he worships, and for the removal of trustees who have attempted to defraud their beneficiaries, and for the substitution of others or the adjudication that the title is in the congregation at large. Nash v. Sutton, 109 N. C. 550, 553, 14 S. E. 77.

A complaint in an action by the state on the relation of certain parties claiming to be school trustees against defendants, also claiming to be such officers, is not subject to demurrer for misjoinder of parties because of no community of interest between plaintiffs; their terms being separate and distinct. School Trustees v. Baker, 164 N. C. 382, 80 S. E. 415.

That the defendants have separate defenses does not affect the plaintiff's right to sue them jointly, if he has a cause of action against them in which they may be properly joined. Davis v. Rexford, 146 N. C. 418, 59 S. E. 1002.

One having a joint and several cause of action in tort against several may sue such of them as he may elect. Gudger v. Western, etc., R. Co., 87 N. C. 325.

Consent of Proper Plaintiff. — Notice to a person to show cause why he should not be made a party was an invitation to make him a party plaintiff if he chose, or notice to make him a party defendant in invitum. It was therefore a substantial compliance with the statute to serve such notice on him. Emry v. Parker, 111 N. C. 261, 264, 16 S. E. 236; McCormac v. Wiggins, 84 N. C. 278.

Same—Suit by Purchaser against Mortgagee. — A purchaser of land from a mortgagor upon consideration that the former pay off the mortgage, the amount of which the latter agreed to ascertain, but failed or refused so to do, may maintain his action against the mortgagee as a necessary party under this section as the mortgagee refused to be joined as a party plaintiff, for an accounting, in order that he may relieve the land from the lien of the mortgage, and remove the cloud upon his title. Elliott v. Brady, 172 N. C. 828, 90 S. E. 951.

Same—Administrator d. b. n. — If an administrator de bonis non refuse to join as plaintiff; he must be made a party defendant. Hardy v. Miles, 91 N. C. 131; Wilson v. Pearson, 102 N. C. 290, 9 S. E. 707.

Necessity for Summons. — When additional parties plaintiff are made, no summons issues, because the plaintiff is the moving party, and comes into court voluntarily. Reynolds v. Smathers, 87 N. C. 24; Jarrett v. Gibbs, 107 N. C. 303, 12 S. E. 272. But if the party objects to appearing as plaintiff and he is made a party defendant, under this section, he must be served with summons. Plemmons v. Southern Improve. Co., 108 N. C. 614, 13 S. E. 188.

Existence of Common Interest of Many Persons. — The construction of this section, "has been established by the courts, and the rule is settled, as already stated, that where the question to be decided is one of common or general interest to a number of persons, the action may be brought by or against one or all the others, even though the parties are not so numerous that it would be impracticable to join them all as actual plaintiffs or defendants; but, on the other hand, when the parties are so very numerous that it is impracticable to bring them all into court, one may sue or be sued for all the others, even though they have no common or general interest in the question at issue, and the necessary facts to bring the case within one or the other of these conditions must be averred." Bronson v. Wilmington, N. C. Life Ins. Co., 85 N. C. 411, 414, quoting Pom. Rem. sec. 391. The cases of Glenn v. Farmers Bank, 72 N. C. 626; Von Glahn v. De Rosset, 81 N. C. 467, are cases sustaining the proposition here laid down. See also, Thames v. Jones, 97 N. C. 121, 1 S. E. 92.

The exception to the general rule that all persons interested in and to be affected by the determination of the suit must be made parties on one or the other side obtains when they "may be very numerous and it may be impractical to bring them all before the court," a rule prevailing in the former equity practice, and recognized by the express terms of this section. Bronson v. Wilmington N. C. Life Ins. Co., 85 N. C. 411, 414; Glenn v. Farmers Bank, 72 N. C. 626; Foster v. Hackett, 112 N. C. 546, 554, 17 S. E. 426; Story Eq. Pl., sec. 122.

But where one rests his right to sue alone in behalf of himself and others on the ground that the parties in interest are so numerous that it is impractical to bring them before the court, he must so allege. Foster v. Hackett, supra; Thames v. Jones, 97 N. C. 121, 1 S. E. 692; McMillan v. Reeves, 102 N. C. 550, 9 S. E. 449.

§ 458. Persons severally liable. — Persons severally liable upon the same obligation, including the parties to bills of exchange and promissory notes, may all or any of them be included in the same action at the option of the plaintiff. (Rev., s. 412; Code, s. 186; C. C. P., s. 63:)

As to joint and several debators, see sec. 497.

Makers and Endorsers of Bills and Notes. — The makers and endorsers of bills of exchange and promissory notes, or any of them, may be joined as defendants. Wooten v. Maultsby, 69 N. C. 462, 463.

Judgment as a Merger.—Between the parties to an action wherein a judgment is rendered the judgment is a merger and the note or instrument sued upon is extinguished; but as to sureties or indorsers who are not parties to the judgment, there is no merger or extinguishment of the note or instrument. Bank v. Eureka Lumber Co., 123 N. C. 24, 27, 31 S. E. 348.

Action on Surety Bond. — In an independent action by plaintiff in claim and delivery to recover upon the defendant's surety bond damages for the deterioration, etc., of the property wrongfully detained, the surety may be sued alone without joining the principal defendant in the former action. Moore v. Edwards, 192 N. C. 446, 135 S. E. 302.

In an action against one surety on an official bond, the other sureties need not be joined. Brown v. McKee, 108 N. C. 387, 391, 13 S. E. 8. See also, Syme v. Bunting, 86 N. C. 175; Flack v. Dawson, 69 N. C. 42.

Action for Trust Funds Loaned by Guardian.—Where a guardian lent trust funds to a firm of which he was a member and took their note payable to himself, it cannot be objected that the guardian is not made a party to a suit brought thereon by the husband of the cestui que trust, to whom the guardian had assigned it, as under this section, persons severally liable may all or any be included as defendants. Gudger v. Baird, 66 N. C. 438, 441.

Cited in Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Black, 198 N. C. 219, 151 S. E. 269.

§ 459. Persons jointly liable.—In all cases of joint contracts of partners in trade or others, suit may be brought and prosecuted against all or any number of the persons making such contracts. (Rev., s. 413; Code, s. 187; R. C., c. 31, s. 84; 1871-2, c. 24, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Contracts made by copartners (or other joint obligors) were made separate by statute, and the plaintiff could sue one or more at his election without impairing his right to proceed against others afterwards, by the Revised Code, c. 31, sec. 84. This provision was not introduced into the C. C. P., and hence, the principle governing contracts as construed at common law was restored. The necessity for remedy arose. The omitted section, which in Merwin v. Ballard, 65 N. C. 168, was decided to have been repealed, was enacted at the session of the general assembly of 1871-72, c. 24, sec. 1, which was sec. 187 of the Code, and now constitutes this section. See Rufty v. Claywell, 93 N. C. 306, 308; and Merwin v. Ballard, supra.

Effect.—In Rufty v. Claywell, 93 N. C. 306, 308, it was said: "The result is to render contracts joint in form, several in legal effect, and to neutralize, if not displace, those provisions which operate only upon contracts that are joint. * * * * That the contract possesses the two-fold quality of being joint as well as several in law, cannot render available provisions which, in terms, are applicable to such as are joint only. It is solely to remove the resulting inconveniences of an action prosecuted to judgment against part of those whose obligation is joint only, that the remedy is provided, and it becomes needless when the obligation is several also. Such is the construction adopted in the courts of New York. Standard v. Mattin, 7 How. Pr. 4; Lakey v. Kingan, 13 Abb. Pr., 192."

A firm in Maryland gave its promissory note to A signed in the name of the firm, and A sued one of the partners alone, he was permitted to do so, as this section does not affect the contract, but only extends the remedy. Palyart v. Goulding, 1 N. C. 691.

Partnership Liability. — Members of a partnership are jointly and severally bound for all its debts; and because of the joint liability the creditor and each partner has a right to demand that the joint property shall be applied to the joint debts; and because of the several liability, a creditor may, at will, sue any one or more of the partners, Hanstein v. Johnson, 112 N. C. 253, 17 S. E. 155. See also, Daniel v. Bethell, 167 N. C. 218, 83 S. E. 307; Bain v. Clinton Loan Ass'n, 112 N. C. 248, 253, 17 S. E. 154.

Where a judgment has been obtained in an action against a partnership and summons therein has been issued and served only on one of the partners, and the other has not made himself a party or taken proper steps by independent action to prevent it, execution may issue on the partnership property and on the property of the individual member who has been served with process. Daniel v. Bethell, 167 N. C. 218, 83 S. E. 307.

Procedure in Partnership Actions.—Where a judgment is taken against two or three partners who are liable jointly and severally, the proper method to enforce the liability of the third partner is a new action and not a motion in the action in which such judgment was rendered, it is only when the liability is joint and not several that the motion in the cause is proper. Davis v. Sanderlin, 119 N. C. 84, 25 S. E. 815.

Cited in Jones v. Rhea, 198 N. C. 190, 192, 151 S. E. 255.

§ 460. New parties by order of court; intervener.—The court either between the terms, or at a regular term, according to the nature of the controversy, may determine any controversy before it, when it can be done without prejudice to the right of others, but when a complete determination of the controversy cannot be made without the presence of other parties, the court must cause them to be brought in. When in an action for the recovery of real or personal property, a person not a party to the action, but having an interest in its subject matter, applies to the court to be made a party, it may order him to be brought in by the proper amendment. A defendant against whom an action is pending upon a contract or for specific real or personal property, upon proof by affidavit that a person not a party to the action makes a demand against him for the same debt or property without collusion with him, may at any time before answer apply to the court, upon notice to that person and the adverse party, for an order to substitute that person in his place, and to discharge him from liability to either, on his paying into court the amount of the debt, or delivering the possession of the property or its value to such person as the court directs. The court may make such an order. (Rev., s. 414; Code, s. 189; C. C. P., s. 65.)

Cross References.—As to necessary and proper parties, see secs. 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451, 454, 455, 456, and annotations thereunder; as to demurrer for defect of parties, see sec. 511; as to intervention in attachment, see sec. 829; as to claim and delivery, see sec. 840.

Court Brings in New Parties. — The court, to the end that substantial judgment may be done, may before or after judgment direct the bringing in of new parties. Walker v. Miller, 139 N. C. 448, 5 S. E. 125, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 157, 111 Am. St. Rep 805; Bullard v. Johnson, 65 N. C. 436.

In General. — In construing the section of the Ohio Code which is practically identical with the first sentence of this section, the court, in 14 Ohio State Reports, 302, 306, holds that the language of the section is permissive with the exception of the last clause which is mandatory. Note the employment of the words "may" and "must" in the first sentence of this section.

This section serves to confer upon the trial court the power if not as a matter of right, then as a matter in his discretion, to allow an intervener to claim property while it is still in custodia legis. Unaka, etc., Nat. Bank v. Lewis, 203 N. C. 644, 166 S. E. 800.

Necessary Parties.—When a complete determination of the matter cannot be had without the presence of other parties, the court must cause them to be brought in. McKeel v. Holloman, 163 N. C. 132, 134, 79 S. E. 445; Maxwell v. Barringer, 110 N. C. 76, 84, 14 S. E. 516; Parton v. Allison, 111 N. C. 429, 431, 16 S. E. 415; Kornegay & Co. v. Farmers, etc., Co., 107 N. C. 115, 117, 12 S. E. 123; Burnett v. Lyman, 141 N. C. 500, 54 S. E. 412; Barbee v. Cannady, 191 N. C. 529, 132 S. E. 572; Fry v. Pomona Mills, 206 N. C. 768, 175 S. E. 156.

Persons Entitled to Intervene.—A claimant under another title to land in dispute between parties to a suit cannot intervene. Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 588; Keathly v. Branch, 84 N. C. 202; Bryant v. Kinlaw, 90 N. C. 337, 341.

The right of an outside claimant to intervene is well settled by precedent, and, if not directly authorized by statute, subserves the general policy of the new system which aims to adjust in one action, when practicable, conflicting claims to the same property. Sims v. Goettle Bros., 82 N. C. 269, 271.

A party may intervene who has an interest in the controversy, but not when he claims an interest in the thing which is the subject of controversy. Wade v. Sanders, 70 N. C. 277; Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 588, 589.

But when the action is for the recovery of real or personal property, a person not a party to it, who has an interest in the subject-matter of the action, may, upon his application, be made a party by proper amendment. Kornegay & Co. v. Farmers, etc., Co., 107 N. C. 115, 117, 12 S. E. 123.

The right of interpleader given by this section was intended to apply to a controversy or action properly constituted in court. Bates v. Lilly, 65 N. C. 232, 233; Millikan v. Fox, 84 N. C. 107, 108, 109.

Necessity Must Clearly Appear.—An order to bring additional parties into an action will not be granted until the necessity for making them parties clearly appears. Lee v. Eure, 92 N. C. 283.

To Order New Process.—A court has no power to order a new process to bring in a new defendant during the pendency of a suit. Camlin v. Barnes, 50 N. C. 296.

To Validate Action by Making Necessary Parties.—The court has no authority to correct a pending action, that cannot be maintained, into a new one by admitting a new party plaintiff solely interested, and allow him to assign a new and different cause of action, if the defendant shall object. There is neither principle, nor statute, nor practice that allows such a course of procedure. An action separate and distinct from the pending one, must be begun according to the ordinary course of procedure. Merrill v. Merrill, 92 N. C. 657, 665; Turner v. Turner, 96 N. C. 416, 2 S. E. 51.

Consent of the Parties.—Unless by consent of the parties, only such new parties can regularly be admitted, by amendment, to the action as are necessary to its proper determination; but, where defendants do not object to such amendment introducing new plaintiffs, their assent is to be taken as implied. Richards v. Smith, 98 N. C. 509, 4 S. E. 625.

Determination of Right Preliminary to Proceeding with Suit.—Where one is entitled, as a matter of right, to intervene in a suit and applies for leave to do so, it is error to proceed with the case until the question of such right is determined. Jones v. Asheville, 116 N. C. 817, 21 S. E. 691, citing Keathly v. Branch, 84 N. C. 202.

Pleadings.—Amendments by the court to the complaint, and the bringing in of new parties, which merely broadens the scope of the action so as to take in the whole controversy for its settlement in one action, and made without substantial change in the action as originally constituted, do not change the original cause, but are within the contemplation of our statute, and may be allowed by the court. Lumberman's Mut. Ins Co. v. Southern R. Co., 179 N. C. 255, 102 S. E. 417.

A Partner Made a Party after Judgment. — Where a partner was not served with summons, he may be made a party after judgment is rendered, and then execution may issue against his separate property. Daniel v. Bethell, 167 N. C. 218, 83 S. E. 307.

Proceedings Supplemental to Execution. — Proceedings supplemental to execution are in the nature of a creditor's bill, and it being the policy of the law to settle the entire controversy in one action, it is not error to permit a third party to interplead and assert title to the property which is sought to be subjected. Munds v. Cassidey, 98 N. C. 558, 4 S. E. 353, 355.

Action for Conveyance of Land.—During the pendency of an action relating to land between P and C, in which there was subsequently a decree directing P to convey the land to C upon the payment by the latter of the balance of the purchase money, P conveyed to other parties; thereafter C brought suit for the land against P and his grantees, who were in possession: Held, that P was not a necessary party, and it was not error to allow plaintiff to enter a nonsuit as to P, the grantor of the other defendants. Carr v. Alexander, 112 N. C. 783, 17 S. E. 577.

Real Owners as Parties in Action between Lessor and Lessee.—Where lessors sued lessees for rent, and the latter showed, as a counter claim, that the lessors had no right to make the lease, and that the real owners thereof had brought suit against one of the lessees, and would recover damages for its use during such lease, the persons claiming as real owners should be made parties to the action. McKesson v. Mendenhall, 64 N. C. 286.

In an action to set aside a deed to a purchaser at a foreclosure of a tax sale certificate, the purchaser at the sale, the owners of the property and all persons having any interest in the property should be made parties for a complete determination of the controversy. Buncombe County v. Penland, 206 N. C. 299, 173 S. E. 609.

Limitation of Parties.—The statute does not confer the power to make parties to actions generally, but it designates particularly a variety of classified cases in which it may be done, thus clearly indicating a limitation upon the power conferred, and recognizing its importance to the original parties to the action. Who shall and who shall not be made additional parties, are questions in many cases of serious moment, and we can see no reason why the decision of a question of law, arising in the exercise of the power to make it, shall not be reviewed like the decision of any other question of law affecting the merits in the progress of an action. There is nothing in the statute or in the nature of the power that forbids it, and justice may require it. Merrill v. Merrill, 92 N. C. 657, 660.

When Trustee is Necessary Party.—Where the plaintiff claims under a voluntary conveyance made by cestui que trust, he cannot, in any form of action, obtain the legal title and possession until the trustee is made a party, which may be done under this section. Matthews v. McPherson, 65 N. C. 191.

Action against Sheriff.—When a sheriff has money in his hands raised under executions against the same defendant, in favor of two or more different creditors, and the money is claimed by one of the creditors, to the exclusion of the others, he may, for the purpose of asserting his claim, obtain a rule against the sheriff, and under this section cause the other creditors to be brought in by notice. Dewey v. White, 65 N. C. 225.

After Nonsuit.—No one can be made a party to an action after nonsuit therein. Shell v. West, 130 N. C. 171, 41 S. E. 65.

Cited in Shemwell v. Lethco, 198 N. C. 346, 348, 151 S. E. 729; Mack Truck Corp. v. Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., 199 N. C. 203, 154 S. E. 42.

§ 461. Abatement of actions. — 1. No action abates by the death, marriage, or other disability of a party, or by the transfer of any interest therein, if the cause of action survives, or continues. In case of death, except in suits for penalties and for damages merely vindictive, or in case of marriage or other disability of a party, the court, on motion at any time within one year thereafter, or afterwards on a supplemental complaint, may allow the action to be continued, by, or against, his representative or successor in interest. In case of any other transfer of interest, the action shall be continued in the name of the original party, or the court may allow the person to whom the transfer is made to be substituted in the action.

2. After a verdict is rendered in any action for a wrong, the action does not abate by the death of a party.

3. At any time after the death, marriage, or other disability of the party plaintiff, the court in which an action is pending, upon notice to such persons as it directs and upon application of any person aggrieved, may order that the action be abated, unless it is continued by the proper parties, within a time to be fixed by the court, not less than six nor more than twelve months from the granting of the order.

4. No action against a receiver of a corporation abates by reason of his death, but, upon suggestion of the facts on the record, it continues against his successor, or against the corporation in case a new receiver is not appointed. (Rev., s. 415; Code, s. 188; 1901, c. 2, s. 85; C. C. P., s. 64; R. C., c. 1, s. 4; c. 46, s. 43.)

As to damages for wrongful death, see secs. 160, 161.

Death of a Party.—No action abates with death except as herein provided. Wood v. Watson, 107 N. C. 52, 55, 12 S. E. 49; Sledge v. Reid, 73 N. C. 440, 443; Baggarly v. Calvert, 70 N. C. 688, 689.

In case of death, except in suits for penalties and for damages merely vindictive, the court, on motion, may allow the action to be continued by or against the personal representative of the deceased. Shields v. Lawrence, 72 N. C. 43, 45; Latham v. Latham, 178 N. C. 12, 100 S. E. 131.

If a defendant to a cause in the Supreme Court die pending the suit there, his representative may be made a party by process from that court. Justices v. Crawford, 8 N. C. 17.

Actions for Penalties.—"The court has no power in actions for penalties to make the personal representative of a deceased defendant a party, and in this condition of the record the action must abate." Wallace v. McPherson, 139 N. C. 297, 51 S. E. 897.

Where an action was brought against the administrator of a clerk on his official bond, for the penalty, for issuing a writ without requiring security to the protection of the bond, the court held that the right to sue for the penalty abated at the death of the clerk. Fite v. Lander, 52 N. C. 247.

Continuance of Action.—In case of death, the court, at any time within one year thereafter or afterwards, on a supplemental complaint, may allow the action to be continued by or against his representative or successor in interest. Pennington v. Pennington, 75 N. C. 356, 359.

State's Action upon Official Bond.—In an action brought by the state upon official bonds, the relator is but an agent of the state in seeking to recover the moneys due, and if he dies or goes out of office the action does not abate. Davenport v. McKee, 98 N. C. 500, 508, 4 S. E. 545.

Petition to Make Assets.—An administrator d. b. n. cannot be compelled by the creditors of an estate to proceed with a petition to make assets begun by the former administrator, deceased. Brittain v. Dickson, 111 N. C. 529, 16 S. E. 326.

Right of Counterclaim Survives to Executor.—Under the laws of New York State, and of North Carolina and under this section which provide that, on the death of any person, all demands against him with certain exceptions and the right to prosecute any action or proceeding thereon shall survive against his executors, a claim against a firm of factors doing business in New York, arising out of a consignment of goods to such firm for sale, may be set up as a counterclaim in an action brought in North Carolina against the owner of such claim by the executors of a general partner in such firm of factors. Davis v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 178 Fed. 784.

Survival of Insurance Due.—The member of an insurance order becomes entitled, as a matter of right, to the sick benefits accruing to him under his policy of insurance, and upon his death without having received payment thereof the cause of action against the order survives and is enforcible under this section. Kelly v. Trimont Lodge, 154 N. C. 97, 69 S. E. 764.

Assignment Pendente Lite.—Under this section a cause may proceed, notwithstanding a transfer of the property, in the name of the original party, or the assignee may be allowed to be substituted in his place by the express provisions hereof. Davis v. Higgins, 91 N. C. 382, 388.

Actions for Personal Torts.—At common law, a right of action sounding in tort for personal injuries inflicted does not survive the tort feasor, and the doctrine is not changed where the injury does not cause death by this section, providing that no action shall abate by death, etc., or that the court may allow the action to continue, etc.; these provisions relating to such actions as survive, and not to actions for personal injuries, which do not survive. Watts v. Vanderbilt, 167 N. C. 567, 83 S. E. 813.

Personal Injuries. — An action brought by a plaintiff against a railroad company, to recover damages for personal injuries, does not abate by the death of the plaintiff. Peebles v. North Carolina R. Co., 63 N. C. 238, 239. See also, Collier v. Arrington, 61 N. C. 356, 357.

Action for Trespass. — In an action for trespass by two plaintiffs, in which one died pending the action, his devisee cannot be made a party and recover in his stead, but his administrator must be joined. Rowe v. Cape Fear Lumber Co., 133 N. C. 433, 45 S. E. 830.

Breach of Promise. — An action for damages for breach of marriage does not abate upon the death of the defendant. Allen v. Baker, 86 N. C. 92; Shuler v. Millsaps, 71 N. C. 297.

Action for Seduction. — An action by a father for the seduction of his daughter abates by the death of the father, and cannot be revived by his executors. McClure v. Miller, 11 N. C. 133.

Mental Anguish. — An action against a telegraph company to recover for mental anguish caused by its delay in delivering a telegram dies with the person. Morton v. Western Union Teleg. Co., 139 N. C. 299, 41 S. E. 484.

Action of Deceit. — An action of deceit may be brought against an executor for the deceit of testator in selling an unsound slave. Helme v. Sanders, 10 N. C. 563, 565; Arnold v. Lanier, 4 N. C. 143.

Trover. — An action of trover does not abate by the death of the party doing the wrong. Weare v. Burge, 32 N. C. 169.

Right of Appeal. — The right of appeal is not lost on account of the death of the adverse party. Wood v. Watson, 107 N. C. 52, 12 S. E. 49.

Coverture. — Coverture is recognized and treated as a disability in this section. State v. Troutman, 72 N. C. 551, 553.

Want of Jurisdiction. — The want of jurisdiction is a ground of abatement. Newman v. Tabor, 27 N. C. 231; Allison v. Hancock, 13 N. C. 296; Green v. Mangum, 7 N. C. 39.

Administrator d. b. n. Bound by Judgment. — A privity exists between an administrator de bonis non and the first administrator, as well in the case of plaintiff as of defendants, so that a judgment against the first administrator is conclusive evidence against the administrator de bonis non in an action to renew it. Thompson v. Badham, 70 N. C. 141.

When Action Abates. — Where a cause of action survived, the action does not abate by the death of the plaintiff ipso facto, but only upon the application of the party aggrieved; and then only in the discretion of the court, and in a time to be fixed, not less than six months nor more than one year from the granting of the order. Moore v. North Carolina, R. Co., 74 N. C. 528.

In Moore v. Moore, 151 N. C. 555, 557, 66 S. E. 598, Hoke, J., said: "Under this section, where the right survives, an action does not abate by the death of a party, except by order of the court, Burnett v. Lyman, 141 N. C. 500; and while we have held in Rogerson v. Leggett, 145 N. C. 7, that a failure of the court to make such order for a period of eight years or more, and when there was nothing to indicate that the heirs of deceased were aware that an action was pending against them, was such an abuse of legal discretion as to constitute error, and might be available in some instances as a defense, the principle does not apply, we think, to the facts presented here, when the mother of these heirs was and continued to be a party of record, and these heirs themselves, or all who were resident in the state, were served within two years from the death of their ancestor and within the time fixed by order of the court; for we hold that the order which was made in this case, by fair intendment, meant the next civil term, and did not contemplate the intervening criminal term of the court; and there was no error, therefore, in denying defendants' motion for abatement of the action."

Death of Part of Plaintiffs. — Where two of several plaintiffs died and, there being no personal representative within a year thereafter, no motion was made to continue the action as to them, but the cause remained upon the docket and was proceeded with by the remaining plaintiffs, whose rights were finally determined, and the defendants did not apply to have the action abated as to the deceased parties, it was within the discretion of the presiding judge to allow the personal representative of such deceased parties to file a supplementary complaint and prosecute the action, his motion to be allowed to do so having been made before the final judgment was rendered in the cause. State v. Flythe, 114 N. C. 274, 19 S. E. 701.

Judgment Ex Mero Muto. — A judgment is necessary to abate an action, for the court may, ex mero muto, enter judgment when it appears that plaintiff failed for a year to prosecute his action against the "representatives or successors in interest" of the original defendant, whose death has been suggested though the records show there had been no discontinuance of the action. Rogerson v. Leggett, 145 N. C. 7, 58 S. E. 596.

Applied in Betts v. Southern Ry. Co., 71 F. (2d) 787.

§ 462. Procedure on death of party. — When party to an action in the superior court dies pending the action, his death may be suggested before the clerk of the court where the action is pending, during vacation. It is then the duty of the clerk to issue a summons to the party who succeeds to the rights or liabilities of a deceased defendant, commanding him to appear before him on a day named in the summons, which must be at least twenty days after its service, and answer the complaint, and the issue joined by the filing of the answer stands for trial at the succeeding term of the superior court. It is the duty of the clerk to issue a notice to the party succeeding to the rights of a deceased party who will be necessary to the prosecution of the action to final judgment to appear and become party plaintiff; and if the party made plaintiff files an amended complaint, the defendant has twenty days after notice of same in which to file an answer thereto, and the issue thus made up stands for trial at the succeeding term. (Rev., ss. 416, 417, 418; 1887, c. 389.)

As to substitution of administrator d. b. n. or c. t. a., see sec. 155.

Continuity of Action. — In an action begun by or against a person who has since died, and the action is continued by or against his representative or successor in interest, this section requires that, in such instances, the summons shall be returnable before the clerk and in effect the action shall be ready for a speedy trial, thus recognizing the continuity of the action and the trial thereof in the county in which it had been brought. Latham v. Latham, 178 N. C. 12, 100 S. E. 131.

Duty of Adverse Party. — When either party to a suit dies before judgment, it is the duty of the adverse party to suggest the death to the court. Wood v. Watson, 107 N. C. 52, 12 S. E. 49.

Upon the suggestion of death of defendant, it is the duty of the clerk to issue summons to the representatives or persons who succeed to the rights or liabilities of the deceased defendant; the law does not contemplate that plaintiff may keep his action in semidormant condition until it suits his pleasure or interest to call the heir at law into court, when by such conduct he has become disabled to make his defense. Rogerson v. Leggett, 145 N. C. 7, 58 S. E. 596.

Presumption When Administrator Defends. — Where the record shows that a party through his counsel assumed the defense of an action as administrator, the regularity of his admission as a party in place of his intestate is sufficiently established, though the death of the intestate as having occurred during the progress of the cause was not suggested, and no service of the notice issued to him appeared to have been made. Alexander v. Patton, 90 N. C. 557.

Administrator of Obligee on Bond Made a Party. — Where the obligor on a bond given for the support of another for life, and for a valuable consideration, has failed to comply therewith, and the obligee has since died, leaving the obligor responsible under the terms of the bond for moneys due for the former's reasonable support, the action upon the bond, brought by the obligee, does not abate upon his death, and the superior court clerk has the authority to make his administrator a party under this section. Martin v. Martin, 162 N. C. 41, 77 S. E. 1104.

Action for Account. — In an action for an account and settlement, the death of the defendant being suggested, his executor comes in and is made a party defendant. Grant v. Bell, 91 N. C. 495.

SUBCHAPTER IV. VENUE.

Art. 7. Venue

§ 463. Where subject of action situated.—Actions for the following causes must be tried in the county in which the subject of the action, or some part thereof, is situated, subject to the power to the court to change the place of trial, in the cases provided by law:

1. Recovery of real property, or of an estate or interest therein, or for the determination in any form of such right or interest, and for injuries to real property.
2. Partition of real property.
3. Foreclosure of a mortgage of real property.
4. Recovery of personal property. (Rev., s. 419; Code, s. 190; 1889, c. 219; C. C. P., s. 66.)

I. In General.
II. Actions Relating to Real Property.
III. Partition of Realty.
IV. Foreclosure of Mortgage of Real Property.
V. Recovery of Personal Property.

Cross References.

For full treatment of venue, see 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 266 et seq; 15 Enc. Dig. 716 et seq. As to venue in criminal actions, see sec. 4606 and notes thereto. As to waiver of venue in suits for divorce, see notes to sec. 1657.

I. IN GENERAL.

See note under § 469.

Editor's Note. — That the differences between venue and jurisdiction have been the source of some confusion in North Carolina, as elsewhere, is apparent from a perusal of the cases pertaining to the subject of this article. In order to point out the nice distinctions existing between these two subjects the following excerpt, appearing in most of the later text treatises, is quoted insofar as it is applicable to North Carolina.

Dean Lile, of the University of Virginia, in his admirable treatise on Equity Pleading and Practice contrasts jurisdiction and venue as follows:

"1. Jurisdiction connotes the powers of the court—venue the place of suit.

"2. Jurisdiction is a question of law—venue a question of fact to be established by testimony.

"3. Jurisdiction must appear from the allegation of the bill—venue need not so appear.

"4. Jurisdiction (potential) may not be conferred by consent—venue may.

"5. Error in jurisdiction is fatal—error in venue, not pleaded in abatement, is harmless.

"6. ****

"7. Jurisdiction (potential) contemplates subject-matter only—venue contemplates locality only; error in the one is in the selection of the court, in the other in the selection of the place.

"8. Jurisdiction is essential to confer venue; but venue is not essential to jurisdiction."

Venue a Matter of Legislative Control. — The venue of civil actions is a matter for legislative regulation, and is not governed by the rules of the common law. Interstate Cooperage Co. v. Eureka Lumber Co., 151 N. C. 455, 456, 66 S. E. 434. It deals with procedure and is not jurisdictional, in the absence of statutory provision to that effect. State v. Seaboard Air Line Railway, 146 N. C. 568, 60 S. E. 506; Latham v. Latham, 178 N. C. 12, 13, 100 S. E. 131; Clark v. Carolina Homes, 189 N. C. 703, 128 S. E. 20, 25.

This subchapter is in restraint of the common law, as, without such express enactment, the plaintiff might make a choice of venue anywhere within the state. State v. Stone, 52 N. C. 382.

Contract Stipulation Regarding Venue. — There is a difference between the venue of an action, the place of trial, and jurisdiction of the court over the subject-matter of the action, and the parties to a contract may not, in advance of any disagreement arising thereunder, designate a jurisdiction exclusive of others, and confine the trial thereto in opposition to the will of the Legislature expressed by this section; and a motion to remove a cause brought in the proper jurisdiction on the ground that the contract otherwise specified it, will be denied. Gaither v. Charlotte Motor Car Co., 182 N. C. 498, 109 S. E. 362.

Determining Nature of Transaction. — In Councill v. Bailey, 154 N. C. 54, 59, 69 S. E. 760, it is said; "This Court has recently held in Bridgers v. Ormond, 148 N. C. 375, 62 S. E. 422, that such a motion as this one (as to proper venue) must be considered with reference to the questions that may be raised by the pleadings, and do not depend for their decision solely upon the allegations of the complaint."

Applicability to Trials before Justices. — In Fisher v. Bullard, 109 N. C. 574, 13 S. E. 799; the Court said: "We do not find any statute making the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure (this section), as to the place for trial, applicable to trials before a justice." But section 1500 provides that the whole chapter on civil procedure is applicable in certain attachment cases before justices. Mohn v. Creesey, 193 N. C. 568, 571, 137 S. E. 718.

An action by an administrator is not within any of the subdivisions of this section. Whitford v. North State Life Ins. Co., 156 N. C. 42, 72 S. E. 85.

Cited in Bohannon v. Virginia Trust Co., 198 N. C. 701, 153 S. E. 262; Guy v. Gould, 199 N. C. 820, 155 S. E. 925; Miller v. Miller, 205 N. C. 753, 172 S. E. 493.

II. ACTIONS RELATING TO REAL PROPERTY.

A suit to set aside a deed of trust for lands, and to establish a prior lien thereon in plaintiff's favor, involves an estate or interest therein, within the intent and meaning of this section. Henrico Lumber Co. v. Dare Lumber Co., 180 N. C. 12, 103 S. E. 915.

Where the wife of a debtor is made party defendant in an action in the nature of a creditors' bill in order to set aside his deed to her for fraud and subject the land to the satisfaction of the demands of his creditors, the suit to establish the plaintiffs' claims will be considered as incident to the essential and controlling purpose of setting aside the deed, and the venue is governed by this subdivision. Wofford-Fain & Co. v. Hampton, 173 N. C. 686, 92 S. E. 612.

Setting Sale Aside.—A suit by a purchaser of land to set aside the purchase and to cancel certain of his notes given for the deferred payment of the purchase price, alleging a fraudulent representation by the owner as to the quantity of land in dispute in one of the lots, without which he would not have purchased, the controversy involves an interest in the lands as required by this section, to be brought in the county where the land is situated. Vaughan v. Fallin, 183 N. C. 318, 111 S. E. 513.

An action to impress a parol trust upon lands and for an accounting involves a determination of an interest in lands, and the proper venue, under this section, therefore, is in the county in which the land is situated. Williams v. McRackan, 186 N. C. 381, 119 S. E. 746.

Action on Note Secured by Deed of Trust.—An action against the endorser of a negotiable note, secured by a deed of trust on land, is not an action involving an estate or interest in land and does not have to be brought where the land is located. White v. Rankins, 206 N. C. 104, 173 S. E. 282.

Specific Performance.—The fact that there are other questions to be determined in the action, does not alter the case when the chief purposes of the suit are to compel one defendant (trustee) to sell and another defendant to convey lands situated in a county other than that in which the action is pending. Falls, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Brower, 105 N. C. 440, 11 S. E. 313.

An action for subrogation to the rights of the vendor must be tried in the county where the land is situated. Fraley v. March, 68 N. C. 160.

Conversion as Aggravation of Damages.—Where the intent of the pleading was to sue for a trespass on the land, and a part allegation of a conversion was inserted in aggravation of damages, the refusal of the lower court to the county properly made in due time, to remove the cause to the county in which the land was situated, was erroneous. Richmond Cedar Works v. Roper Lumber Co., 161 N. C. 603, 77 S. E. 770.

Setting Aside Grant or Patent.—This section applies to the exclusion of section 7594, which controls where there are separate transactions affecting distinct pieces of property lying wholly in different counties. Kanawha Hardwood Co. v. Waldo, 161 N. C. 196, 76 S. E. 680.

Docketed judgments confer no estate or interest in real estate within the meaning of this subdivision of the section, but merely the right to subject the realty to the payment of the judgments by sale under execution, and hence an action to set aside judgments as fraudulent and for the appointment of a receiver need not be brought in the county where the property upon which such judgments are liens is situated. Baruch v. Long, 117 N. C. 509, 23 S. E. 447.

An action for the breach of covenants of seizin and the right to convey is not required to be tried in the county in which the realty is situated. Eames v. Armstrong, 136 N. C. 392, 48 S. E. 769.

Petitions for dower should be filed in the county of the husband's usual residence, but the jury of allotment may assign the same in one or more tracts situated in one or more counties. Askew v. Bynum, 81 N. C. 350.

Injuries to Land.—The fact that a complaint for injuries to real estate fails to expressly allege in what county the land lies is immaterial where the complaint sets up as a cause of action a breach of an agreement contained in a former judgment between the same parties which is appropriately referred to in the complaint and set out in the answer and which shows the proper county. Lucas v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 121 N. C. 506, 28 S. E. 265.

In an action for wrongful conversion of oysters taken from oyster beds, the defendant is not entitled to a change of venue to the county in which the beds are situated. Makely v. Boothe Co., 129 N. C. 11, 39 S. E. 582.

Same—Burning Timber. — An action against a railroad company to recover damages for burning land is a local one in its nature and triable in the county in which the injury occurred irrespective of section 468. Perry v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 153 N. C. 117, 66 S. E. 1060. See note of this case under section 468.

Same—By Public Officers. — Section 464, providing for venue in actions against public officers, constitutes an exception to this section, see notes to sec. 464.

Polution of Stream.—An action for damages caused by the pollution of a stream resulting in forcing the plaintiff to shut down his clay mining machine appears to be a transitory one and is not such as contemplated by this section. Harris Clay Co. v. Carolina China Clay Co., 203 N. C. 12, 164 S. E. 341.

Cutting and Removing Timber.—The character of trees severed by a trespasser from the lands is changed from realty to personalty, and when the trees have been carried away, the owner of the lands and trees may sue in trover and conversion, or in trespass de bonis asportatis, for the value of the trees, both of which actions are transitory, or for trespass quare clausum fregit, which is local, and should be brought in the county wherein the land is situated. Blevens v. Kitchen Lbr. Co., 207 N. C. 144, 146, 176 S. E. 262.

An action to recover the value, or "worth," of timber cut, removed and converted to its own use by the defendant is an action of trover and conversion, or of trespass de bonis asportatis, and is therefore transitory. Id.

Fraudulent Representations Inducing Conveyance of Lands.—When an action sounds in damages arising from a fraudulent representation inducing the purchase and conveyance of lands for which purchase money notes have been given, and not a foreclosure of a mortgage or the nullification of the transaction, it does not involve an interest in or title to lands under subsection 1 of this section and the action is not removable as a matter of the movant's right, and the plaintiff may select the county of his residence as the venue under § 469. Causey v. Morris, 195 N. C. 532, 142 S. E. 783.

Removal of Action to County Where Land Lies.—Where on the facts alleged in his complaint, the plaintiff is entitled not only to a judgment that he recover of the defendant the amount of his debt, but also to a decree for the foreclosure of the mortgage by which his debt is secured, and the action was begun and is pending in the county in which the plaintiff resides, but the land conveyed by the mortgage is in another county, the plaintiff cannot deprive the defendant of his right, under the statute, to the removal of the action to the county in which the land is situate, for trial, by his failure to pray for a foreclosure of the mortgage, at least, when he prays judgment for his debt, and also for such other and further relief as he may be entitled to, in law or in equity, on the facts alleged in his complaint. Carolina Mtg. Co. v. Long, 205 N. C. 533, 536, 172 S. E. 209.

Appeal from Order of Removal.—See note under § 913(a).

III. PARTITION OF REALTY.

Editor's Note.—Section 3214, in the article on Partition, is substantially the same as subdivision two of this section. The two provisions seem to constitute simply an illustration or application of the first subdivision of this section, as proceedings for partition certainly determine "a right or interest" in real property.

This sub-section has never received a direct construction from the courts, but in The Matter of Skinner, 22 N. C. 63, decided prior to the merger of the courts of law and equity, it is held that land situated in two counties could be sold for partition by a decree of the court of equity of either county.

IV. FORECLOSURE OF A MORTGAGE OF REAL PROPERTY.

Vendor's Lien.—When it appears from the complaint in an action to enforce specific performance by the vendee of a contract to convey lands that a court of equity would decree a vendor's lien on the land and order it sold for the payment of the purchase price, if the alleged facts were established, the suit partakes in substance of the nature of one for the foreclosure of a mortgage, and is within this subdivision. Councill v. Bailey, 154 N. C. 54, 69 S. E. 760.

Subrogation.—An action by the holder of certain notes given for the purchase of land against the purchaser of the land, and others, to be subrogated to the rights of the vendor, in the contract of sale of the land, which is substantially the same as an action "for the foreclosure of a mortgage of real estate," within the meaning of this subdivision. Fraley v. March, 68 N. C. 160.

In Connor v. Dillard, 129 N. C. 50, 39 S. E. 641, it is said: The action is "substantially for the foreclosure of a mortgage" (Fraley v. March, 68 N. C. 160), and the judgment could be enforced only by subjecting a particular tract of real estate in another county. The enforcement of the judgment against that land is the sole object of the action. Falls, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Brower, 105 N. C. 440, 11 S. E. 313. If the action had been for a mere personal judgment, though on a mortgage note, it could have been brought where plaintiff resides, and docketing the judgment would not convey to plaintiff any estate in debtor's land. Gammon v. Johnson, 126 N. C. 64, 35 S. E. 185; McLean v. Shaw, 125 N. C. 491, 34 S. E. 634.

Land in Two Counties.—A foreclosure sale of land lying in two counties under a mortgage registered in but one is authorized by this subdivision. King v. Portis, 81 N. C. 382.

Injunction.—The similar section of the Ohio code was held not applicable to an injunction against enforcing a lien claimed to be invalid. 8 Circuit Court Reports 614, 619.

V. RECOVERY OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Editor's Note.—In Smithdeal v. Wilkerson, 100 N. C. 52, 6 S. E. 71, it was held that the requirements of subsection 4 of this section, were restricted to personal property, "distrained for any cause." Thereupon the act of 1889, chapter 219, struck out the restriction and made the venue for the "recovery of personal property" in all cases in the county where the property is situated. Brown v. Cogdell, 136 N. C. 32, 33, 48 S. E. 515.

It is now held that the venue of actions for the recovery of personal property is in the county where the property is situated, though the ancillary remedy of claim and delivery is not resorted to. Brown v. Cogdell, 136 N. C. 32, 48 S. E. 515.

Recovery as Sole Object.—Where the recovery of personal property is not the sole or chief relief demanded, an action need not necessarily be brought in the county in which the property is located. Woodard v. Sauls, 134 N. C. 274, 46 S. E. 507; Bowen Piano Co. v. Newell, 177 N. C. 533, 98 S. E. 774.

Thus an action being for an accounting, and the question of ownership of notes and bonds being raised only incidentally, it need not be brought in the county in which they are situated. Clow v. McNeill, 167 N. C. 212, 83 S. E. 308.

But where it appears that the relief sought is not the recovery of the debt or to enjoin a sale, but the recovery of the specific personal property with the injunctive restraint as an incident thereto, the cause is within this subdivision. Fairley Bros. v. Abernathy, 190 N. C. 494, 130 S. E. 184.

Setting Aside Transfer.—An action to set aside the transfer of personal property as fraudulent, and for the appointment of a receiver, is not an action for the recovery of such property, and hence need not be brought in the county where the same is located, as provided by this subdivision of the section. Baruch v. Long, 117 N. C. 509, 23 S. E. 447.

§ 464. Where cause of action arose.—Actions for the following causes must be tried in the county where the cause, or some part thereof, arose, subject to the power of the court to change the place of trial, in the case provided by law:

1. Recovery of a penalty or forfeiture, imposed by statute; except that, when it is imposed for an offense committed on a sound, bay, river, or other body of water, situated in two or more counties, the action may be brought in any county bordering on such body of water, and opposite to the place where the offense was committed.

2. Against a public officer or person especially appointed to execute his duties, for an act done by him by virtue of his office; or against a person who by his command or in his aid does anything touching the duties of such officer. (Rev., s. 420; Code, s. 191; C. C. P., s. 67.)

Editor's Note.—In spite of the fact that section 463 provides that actions for injuries to realty must be brought in the county where the land lies, it is held that damage to land occasioned by the acts of public officers, officiating in counties other than where the land lies, must be brought, as provided in this section, where the cause arose. For example in Cecil v. High Point, 165 N. C. 431, 81 S. E. 616 it was held that the venue of an action to recover from an incorporated town damages to the lands of an owner situated in an adjoining or different county, caused by the improper method of emptying its sewage into an insufficient stream of water, is properly in the county wherein the town is situated, for such cause arose by reason of the official conduct of municipal officers and consequently is regulated by this section.

This interpretation is not irreconcilable with the provision of the preceding section; it merely constitutes an illustration of the doctrine that the courts will be reluctant to declare any part of a statute inoperative when the same may be harmonized with other seemingly inconsistent parts—in this instance by interpreting this section as an exception to the preceding section whenever necessary, i. e. whenever the land is in one county and the acts of the officers take place in another.

Nature of Acts of Officer.—An action is controlled by this section irrespective of the question as to whether the damages arose from a negligent discharge by the officer of an administrative duty or a technically governmental one. Light Company v. Comm., 151 N. C. 558, 66 S. E. 569.

Thus a cause of action for damages for breach of contract made by a board of a municipal corporation is within the meaning of this subsection. Id.

"By His Command" or "In His Aid."—The words, "in his aid," immediately following the words, "by his command," were meant to extend the immunity to all who assisted and took part in the act with his assent, though not by his direct orders, for all such stand upon the same footing. Harvey v. Brevard, 98 N. C. 93, 94, 3 S. E. 911.

The obligors on a bond to indemnify a sheriff against loss, etc., in seizing and selling property under execution, are not included in that class of persons "who by his command or in his aid shall do anything touching the duties of such office." Harvey v. Brevard, 98 N. C. 93, 3 S. E. 911.

Officers of Counties and Cities.—The Supreme Court has repeatedly and uniformly held that actions against county commissioners and other officers must be brought in the county of which they are officers, and cities and towns are of the like nature, and should stand upon the same footing as to actions against them. Johnston v. Board, 67 N. C. 101; Alexander v. Commissioners, 67 N. C. 330; Jones v. Board, 69 N. C. 412; Steele v. Commissioners, 70 N. C. 137; Jones v. Statesville, 97 N. C. 86, 88, 2 S. E. 346.

In Jones v. Statesville, 97 N. C. 86, 2 S. E. 346, this section was construed by this Court, in the following language, to embrace a municipal corporation: "The defendant is a municipal corporation, public in its nature; it is an artificial person, created and recognized by the law, invested with important corporate powers, public and, in a sense, artificial in their nature, and charged with public duties, which it executes by and through its officers and agents. We therefore think that actions against it fairly come within the meaning of and are embraced by the statutory provision first above recited (this section)." Brevard Light, etc., Co., v. Board, 151 N. C. 558, 560, 66 S. E. 569.

Against Register of Deeds. — An action for the penalty against a register of deeds for unlawfully issuing a marriage license is controlled by this section. Dixon v. Haar, 158 N. C. 341, 74 S. E. 1.

Quo Warranto and Mandamus.—This section should apply in the writs of quo warranto (no longer used in this state) and mandamus, where an official act of usurpation, or failure to do some act which the duties of the office require, constitute the charge, and in effect amounts to a criminal action, or an action to subject the parties to pains and penalties. Johnston v. Board, 67 N. C. 101.

An action by an administrator does not come within this section. Whitford v. North State Life Ins. Co., 156 N. C. 42, 72 S. E. 85.

Co-defendants—Nol Pros of Officers.—An action against the sheriff of X county instituted in Y county does not entitle the co-defendant of the sheriff to have the suit removed to X county where the cause is nol prossed as to the sheriff. Harvey v. Rich, 98 N. C. 95, 3 S. E. 912.

Proving Defendants are Officers.—If made to appear properly by affidavit or otherwise that the defendants came within the terms of this section, the fact that they insist that the action was brought against them as individuals and not as public officers, is immaterial. Shaver v. Huntley, 107 N. C. 623, 629, 12 S. E. 316.

Venue in Other Cases.—Section 469 may constitute an exception to this section. See notes to sec. 469.

Trial of Whole Controversy in County Where Offense Occurred.—Where in an action against the clerk of the Superior Court of one county and the sheriff of another county the clerk makes motion for removal of the cause as to him to the county of his office under this section, the motion should have been denied in order to avoid the possibility of conflicting verdicts and judgments and to dispose of the controversy in one action, the spirit of this section being effected in such instances by trial of the whole controversy in the county where the offense occurred. Kellis v. Welch, 201 N. C. 39, 158 S. E. 742.

Actions for Penalties—Applicability to Justice's Court. — This section, providing that actions for recovery of penalties, must be brought in the county where the cause of action arose, applies to those actions of which the Superior Court has jurisdiction; it does not embrace those within the jurisdiction of justices of the peace (i. e. $200. or less). Fisher v. Bullard, 109 N. C. 574, 13 S. E. 799; Dixon v. Haar, 158 N. C. 341, 342, 74 S. E. 1.

Same—Applied.—In State v. Seaboard Air Line Railway, 146 N. C. 568, 60 S. E. 506.

Cited in McFadden v. Maxwell, 198 N. C. 223, 151 S. E. 250.

§ 465. Official bonds, executors and administrators.—All action upon official bonds or against executors and administrators in their official capacity must be instituted in the county where the bonds were given, if the principal or any surety on the bond is in the county; if not, then in the plaintiff's county. (Rev., s. 421; Code, s. 193; 1868-9, c. 258.)

Applicable to All Actions Against Administrators.—"The object of the statute," says Mr. Justice Reade, speaking for the Court, "was to have suits against these persons, whether upon their bonds or not, in the county where they took out letters and where they make their returns and settlements and transact all the business of the estate in their hands." Stanley v. Mason, 69 N. C. 1; Foy v. Morehead, 69 N. C. 512; Bidwell v. King, 71 N. C. 287. And the same principle is recognized, in reference to an action upon a guardian bond, in State v. Staton, 78 N. C. 235, where the same eminent judge delivers the opinion also.

These cases were followed in Farmers State Alliance v. Murrell, 119 N. C. 124, 25 S. E. 785 where it said:

Under this section an action against an administrator of a decedent, whether upon the official bond of the administrator or for the purpose of holding him liable for any act of his, or for any liability of his intestate incurred in his lifetime, must be brought in the county where the bond was given if the principal or any of his sureties is in such county.

The same case criticizes and refuses to follow the dictum in State v. Peebles, 100 N. C. 348, 351, 6 S. E. 798, where it is stated that: "manifestly this section exempts from the operation of the preceding sections suits upon official bonds, and none other, and this appears in the fact that such bonds, as giving rise to the action, are mentioned three times in the section."

A personal action against an administrator is not, of course, within the meaning of this section. Craven v. Munger, 170 N. C. 424, 87 S. E. 216.

Applies to Actions against Not by Administrators.—This section applies only to actions against administrators and not to actions brought by them. Whitford v. North State Life Ins. Co., 156 N. C. 42, 72 S. E. 85.

The clear inference from this section is that it was the purpose of the Legislature to make a distinction between actions by and against administrators, and when it is said that actions against administrators shall be brought in the county where the bond is filed, and nothing is said as to actions by administrator, it excludes the idea that actions instituted by the administrator are necessarily to be brought in the county in which letters are granted. Whitford v. North State Life Ins. Co., 156 N. C. 42, 43, 72 S. E. 85.

"Instituted."—The word "instituted" as used in this section signifies the commencement of the proceedings—to institute an action is to bring an action. Here a difference is apparent from the language of the other sections pertaining to venue as they provide that the action shall be 'tried.'

In consequence of this distinction it is held that this section has no application where an action has been commenced in another county against a defendant, who has since died, and his administrator has been made a party. Latham v. Latham, 178 N. C. 12, 100 S. E. 131.

Action for Account and Settlement. — Where an action involves an account and settlement of an estate, by the express words of this section, such an action must be instituted in the county where the administrator qualified. The case of Roberts v. Connor, 125 N. C. 45, 34 S. E. 107, does not conflict with this position. That was a suit which concerned the conduct of a bank operated by an executor, and the decision was put on the express ground that the official acts and conduct of the executor was in no wise involved. Thomas v. Ellington, 162 N. C. 131, 132, 78 S. E. 12.

Suits against Successor of Administrator.—A qualified as administrator of B, in Halifax County, and gave bond there. Afterwards A died in Northampton, and C qualified as his administratrix in that county. C, administratrix, and D, one of the sureties on the bond of A, resided in Northampton, and were sued in Halifax County on the bond of A, by a resident of Halifax: Held, that the action was properly brought in Halifax, under this section. State v. Peebles, 100 N. C. 348, 6 S. E. 798.

§ 466. Domestic corporations. — For the purpose of suing and being sued the principal place of business of a domestic corporation is its residence. (Rev., s. 422; 1903, c. 806.)

Cross Reference.—As to foreign corporations after domestication see § 1181 and the note thereto.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the passage of this section, there was no express statute regulating the venue in actions against domestic corporations and such actions were controlled by sec. 469. Farmers State Alliance v. Murrell, 119 N. C. 124, 25 S E.. 785. See also Cline v. Bryson, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 837, 21 S. E. 791.

The purpose of this section was not to change the provisions of section 468 or to deny plaintiff's right to sue a domestic corporation in the county of his residence; but to remedy the defect of section 468 so that a domestic corporation can be sued in the same venue as an individual, excepting railroads in certain specified instances, and where the venue is fixed by sections 463, 464 and 465. Robertson v. Greenleaf Johnson Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 120, 68 S. E. 1064.

This section is for the purpose of determining the residence of domestic corporations, and does not affect the question of the venue of an action in the nature of a creditors' bill to set aside a husband's deed to his wife alleged to be in fraud of the creditors' rights. Wofford-Fain & Co., v. Hampton, 173 N. C. 686, 92 S. E. 612.

"Principal Place of Business" — The words "principal place of business," as used in this section must be regarded as synonymous with the words "principal office," as used in secs. 1114, 1099, 1101, and other sections of the Code. Roberson v. Greenleaf Johnson Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 120, 122, 68 S. E. 1064.

Same—Fixed by Charter. — The residence of a corporation for the purpose of suing and being sued is where the governing power is exercised, and is fixed by the charter, without power on the part of the corporation to affect it by a change of its principal place of business. Garrett & Co. v. Bear, 144 N. C. 23, 56 S. E. 479.

Applied in Eastern Cotton Oil Co. v. New Bern Oil, etc., Co., 204 N. C. 362, 168 S. E. 411.

Cited in McCue v. Times-News Co., 199 N. C. 802, 803. 156 S. E. 129; Occidental Life Ins. Co. v. Lawrence, 204 N. C. 707, 169 S. E. 636.

§ 467. Foreign corporations.—An action against a corporation created by or under the law of any other state or government may be brought in the superior court of any county in which the cause of action arose, or in which the corporation usually did business, or has property, or in which the plaintiffs, or either of them, reside in the following cases:

1. By a resident of this state, for any cause of action.

2. By a nonresident of this state in any county where he or they are regularly engaged in carrying on business.

3. By a plaintiff, not a resident of this state, when the cause of action arose or the subject of the action is situated in this state. (Rev., s. 432; Code, s. 194; C. C. P., s. 361; 1876-7, c. 170; 1907, c. 460.)

See notes to sec. 468 and sec. 469.

Does Not Affect Jurisdiction. — This section is under the subject of venue and not jurisdiction, and, though it enumerates certain cases, it does not purport to restrict the jurisdiction of the court or to prevent the exercise of such jurisdiction as therefore existed; and under our own decisions and those of New York, from which the statute was adopted, it does not interfere with the jurisdiction of our courts of transitory causes of actions. Ledford v. Western Union Tel. Co., 179 N. C. 63, 101 S. E. 533.

In Robinson v. The Oceanic Steam Co., 112 N. Y. 322, construing the prototype of this section, it is said: "This section did not assume to define all the cases in which actions could be brought against foreign corporations, and did not absolutely limit the power and jurisdiction of the courts mentioned. It specified the cases in which foreign corporations could compulsorily, by service or process in the mode prescribed by law, be subjected to the jurisdiction of the courts. It did not deprive the courts of any of their general jurisdiction." See Ledford v. Western Union Tel. Co., 179 N. C. 63, 66, 101 S. E. 533.

Section 468 an Exception. — The enactment of section 468 does not repeal this section, but the latter will be confined to corporations, other than railway companies, which have been chartered by any other state, government or country. Propst v. Railroad, 139 N. C. 397, 51 S. E. 920.

Applicability to Justices Court. — This section refers only to actions of which the superior court has jurisdiction, and was not intended to give a court of justices jurisdiction of civil actions founded on contract wherein the sum demanded shall not exceed $200. Howard v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 125 N. C. 49, 53, 34 S. E. 199.

Cutting Timber. — Where a nonresident plaintiff sues to recover from a nonresident defendant the value of timber alleged to have been cut and removed by the defendant to a different county from that wherein the lands are situated, and brings his action in the county where the conversion is alleged to have occurred, to maintain his action in the latter county he must show that the defendant conducted business or had property therein, or the cause is removable to the county where the land is situated that being the county wherein the cause of action arose. Richmond Cedar Works v. Roper Lumber Co., 161 N. C. 603, 604, 77 S. E. 770.

An action for a penalty can be brought against a foreign defendant before a justice of the peace in any county in which the defendant does business or has property, or where plaintiff resides. Allen-Fleming Co. v. Southern R. Co., 145 N. C. 37, 58 S. E. 793.

Fraternal Lodge. — Where defendant, the head lodge, had a local lodge in the county of the venue, in which members were received, the usual business of such lodges transacted, and membership fees collected and remitted to it: Held, the transactions of the local lodge were such usual or continuous business as contemplated by the statute, and the cause was improperly transferred to the county in which the plaintiff resided and the injury was alleged to have been received. Ange v. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., 171 N. C. 40, 87 S. E. 955.

Claim of State. — Where a receiver of an insolvent foreign corporation was appointed under the corporation act of 1901, a claim by the state which chartered the corporation, for annual license fees, was provable; this section, as to actions against foreign corporations, not applying to this proceeding. Holshouser v. Copper Co., 138 N. C. 248, 50 S. E. 650.

Garnishment against Salesmen. — The courts of this state have jurisdiction to proceed against a foreign corporation in garnishment proceedings in an action brought in the state against its salesmen; the cause of action against it and in favor of the salesmen having arisen here, and the subject of the action being situated here. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 225, 49 S. E. 173.

Action by Administrator for Death by Wrongful Act. — A foreign corporation may be sued by an administrator for the wrongful death of his intestate either in the county wherein the cause of action arose or that of the personal representative of the deceased. Hannon v. Southern Power Co., 173 N. C. 520, 92 S. E. 353.

§ 468. Actions against railroads.—In all actions against railroads the action must be tried either in the county where the cause of action arose or where the plaintiff resided at that time, or in some county adjoining that in which the cause of action arose, subject to the power of the court to change the place of trial as provided by statute. (Rev., s. 424.)

Editor's Note. — This section was first enacted as a proviso to section 424 of the Revisal. Section 424 of the revisal is now section 469; it contains the language "in all other cases." It was held that this language modified the proviso, this section, and that the proviso did not operate as a repeal or modification of sec. 463. In view of this pronouncement of the legislative intent, it is to be presumed that the language of section 469 still applies to this section, although the two sections are now apparently independant.

The Acts of 1905, chapter 367, amending the Code, section 192 (Revisal, section 424), expressly included actions for injury to lands by making it apply to other cases than those specified in the previous, sections, and does not repeal or modify section 63 B, in regard to the venue of actions of this character, since it is for damages for personal injuries. Propst v. Railroad, 139 N. C. 397, 51 S. E. 920; Perry v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 153 N. C. 117, 68 S. E. 1066.

Effect of Section in General. — This section does not affect the bringing of an action in the county where the plaintiff resides, but only prohibits the selection at will of any county, for that purpose, where the defendant had a track, unless the injury occurred, or plaintiff resided, therein. Watson v. North Carolina R. Co., 152 N. C. 215, 67 S. E. 502.

Section Pertains to Venue Not Jurisdiction. — This section relates solely to venue and has no application to taking jurisdiction of an action brought here by a nonresident plaintiff, against a railroad company, incorporated in North Carolina. McGovern & Co. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 180 N. C. 219, 104 S. E. 534.

Applies to All Railroads. — This section applies to all railroad companies, both domestic and foreign. Forney v. Black Mountain R. Co., 159 N. C. 157, 74 S. E. 884.

Actions against Railroads under Federal Control. — It was within the power of the director general to prescribe the venue of suits against railroads under federal control. Federal Control Act, March 21, 1918, § 10; Alabama, etc., R. Co. v. January, 257 U. S. 111, 66 L. Ed. 15, 42 S. Ct. 6.

Same—That Are Sole Defendants. — This section should be construed and held to apply to cases where a railroad company alone is defendant, and that the venue in actions where there are other parties defendant is not controlled by the section. Smith v. Patterson, 159 N. C. 138, 140, 74 S. E. 923.

Where both plaintiff and defendant are corporations, nonresident of the state, an action concerning land brought in a different county from the situs of the property, wherein neither has property, nor conducts its business, the case falls within the intent and meaning of section 467 and this section. Henrico Lumber Co. v. Dare Lumber Co., 180 N. C. 12, 103 S. E. 915.

Suits by Administrators. — Authoritative interpretations of this and legislation of similar import elsewhere would seem to favor the position that in respect to actions instituted by an administrator and coming within the effect of the section. the terms appearing therein, "where plaintiff resided at the time the cause of action arose," have reference to the residence of the individual holding the office and not to the official residence or place where he may have qualified. Whitford v. North State Life Ins. Co., 156 N. C., 42; 72 S. E. 85; Roberson v. Greenleaf etc., Co., 153 N. C., 120, 68 S. E. 1064; R. R. v. Stith, 120 Ky. 237; Turner v. R. R., 110 Ky., 819; Smith v. Patterson, etc., R. Co., 159 N. C. 138, 140, 74 S. E. 923. Dictum.

§ 469. Venue in all other cases.—In all other cases the action must be tried in the county in which the plaintiffs or the defendants, or any of them, reside at its commencement; or if none of the defendants reside in the state, then in the county in which the plaintiffs, or any of them, reside; and if none of the parties reside in the state, then the action may be tried in any county which the plaintiff designates in his summons and complaint, subject to the power of the court to change the place of trial, in the cases provided by statute. (Rev., s. 424; Code, s. 192; C. C. P., s. 68; 1868-9, cc. 59, 277; 1905, c. 367.)

See note under § 463.

Editor's Note. — The Rev. Chap. 31, Sec. 37, (prior to the enactment of this section) appointing the venue for transitory actions, made no provision for the case of a resident plaintiff and a non-resident defendant, and it was; held, therefore, that the case remains as at common law, which allows the plaintiff to sue in any county, subject to the power of the court to change the venue according to certain rules governing its course. Covill v. Moffitt, 52 N. C. 381.

The purpose of this section as originally enacted and as amended was primarily to serve the convenience of resident parties. Palmer v. Lowe, 194 N. C. 703, 705, 140 S. E. 718.

Construed with Other Provisions for Venue. — This section is general in its terms and subject to the provisions of section 463. Wofford-Fain & Co. v. Hampton, 173 N. C. 686, 92 S. E. 612.

Section 464, providing, among other things, that an action against a public officer be brought in the county wherein the cause of action arose, subject to the power of the court to change the place of trial, is general in its terms, and this section should be construed as an exception thereto, allowing an administrator to sue at his election in his own county for the wrongful death of his intestate. Hannon v. Southern Power Co., 173 N. C. 520, 521, 92 S. E. 353.

Section Pertains to Venue Not Jurisdiction. — This section relates solely to venue and has no application to taking jurisdiction of an action brought here by a nonresident plaintiff, against a railroad company, incorporated in North Carolina. McGovern & Co. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 180 N. C. 219, 104 S. E. 534.

The word "parties" as used in this section means parties to the record. Rankin v. Allison, 64 N. C. 673.

Action for Personal Services to Administrator. — An action brought to recover for services rendered personally to an administrator, is a personal action against the administrator, etc., and can be brought at the election of the plaintiff in the county where either he or the defendant resides. Craven v. Munger, 170 N. C. 424, 87 S. E. 216.

Action by Administrator. — An action by an administrator upon a life insurance policy of his intestate is properly brought in the county where the administrator resides, not necessarily where the bond is filed, the addition of the words, "administrator, etc.," being descriptive of his title or the capacity in which he sues. Whitford v. North State Life Ins. Co., 156 N. C. 42, 72 S. E. 85. See notes of this case under section 465.

Action by Receiver. — Where a receiver of a corporation resides in a different county from the concern he represents, the venue of the action brought by him for breach of contract is determined by the place of residence of the receiver and not necessarily by that of insolvent corporation. Biggs v. Bowen, 170 N. C. 34, 86 S. E. 692.

Action by Unemancipated Illegitimate Child. — Such a child sues in county of mother even though living in different county with grandparents. Thayer v. Thayer, 187 N. C. 573, 122 S. E. 307.

Suit for Alimony without Divorce.—Where a husband forced his wife to leave his home at night and she was compelled to take refuge in the home of a neighbor she could acquire a separate domicile, and may sue the husband for alimony without divorce in the county of her residence and he cannot remove the case to the county of his residence. Miller v. Miller, 205 N. C. 753, 172 S. E. 493.

Where Bank and Its Officers Sued Jointly. — Where in good faith a citizen and resident of one county, sues jointly in tort a national bank located in another county, and its officer, the defendants may not as of right have the cause removed for trial to the county wherein the bank conducts its business. Curlee v. National Bank, 187 N. C. 119, 121 S. E. 194.

Nonresident Plaintiffs. — The county of the residence of the defendant, in an action upon alleged breach of contract, by a nonresident plaintiff, is the proper venue. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Grimes, 183 N. C. 97, 112 S. E. 598.

The venue of an action brought by a nonresident of the State in a different county herein from that where the defendants reside or do business, and wherein the defendant has no property, is an improper one. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

An action to enforce a lien for materials furnished and used in a building is not specifically required to be brought in the county wherein the building is situated, but comes within the provisions of this section. Sugg v. Pollard, 184 N. C. 494, 495, 115 S. E. 153.

Where Principal Office of Corporation Is in County Other than Residence of Defendants.—Where the plaintiff is a corporation, organized and doing business under the laws of the United States, with its principal office in the city of Durham, in Durham County, North Carolina, and the defendants are citizens of this state, and residents of Sampson County, Durham County is the proper venue for the trial of the action. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank v. Kerr, 206 N. C. 610, 614, 175 S. E. 102.

Action against Foreign Corporation and Resident Defendant.—Where a nonresident plaintiff brings action against a foreign corporation, with the joinder of a resident defendant, and the venue in the action is laid here in a differnt county from that of the resident defendant, to recover damages alleged to have been caused by a negligent act, the venue is in the county of the resident defendant, and the action is removable thereto upon his motion duly made. §§ 463, 467, and 468 do not apply. Palmer v. Lowe, 194 N. C. 703, 140 S. E. 718; Brown v. Brevard Auto Service Co., 195 N. C. 647, 143 S. E. 258.

Effect of Change of Residence. — The defendant by a mere change of residence cannot change the venue as fixed by this section. Taylor v. Sharp, 108 N. C. 377, 382, 13 S. E. 138; Hannon v. Southern Power Co., 173 N. C. 520, 92 S. E. 353.

Applied in Carolina Mtg. Co. v. Long, 205 N. C. 533, 172 S. E. 209.

Cited in McCue v. Times-News Co., 199 N. C. 802, 803, 156 S. E. 129.

§ 470. Change of venue.—If the county designated for that purpose in the summons and complaint is not the proper one, the action may, however, be tried therein, unless the defendant, before the time of answering expires, demands in writing that the trial be conducted in the proper county, and the place of trial is thereupon changed by consent of parties, or by order of the court.

The court may change the place of trial in the following cases:

1. When the county designated for that purpose is not the proper one.

2. When the convenience of witnesses and the ends of justice would be promoted by the change.

3. When the judge has, at any time, been interested as party or counsel. (Rev., s. 425; Code, s. 195; C. C. P., s. 69; R. C., c. 31, ss. 115, 118; 1870-1, c. 20.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Section Relates to Venue Not Jurisdiction. — It has been held repeatedly that these statutes, sections 465-470, relate to venue and not jurisdiction, and that if an action is brought in the wrong county it should be removed to the right county, and not dismissed, if the motion is made in apt time, and if not so made, that the objection is waived. Davis v. Davis, 179 N. C. 185, 188, 102 S. E. 270.

Under the present practice, venue may be waived because it is not jurisdictional, and is available to the objecting party, not by demurrer, but by motion in the cause. Shaffer v. Morris Bank, 201 N. C. 415, 418, 160 S. E. 481.

All Inclusive. — This section indiscriminately embraces all the previously enumerated actions of this sub-chapter as well as those for the recovery of real estate, which under the former system of pleading were called local actions, as those which were transitory or personal actions; all are embraced in the sweeping enactment. Lafoon v. Shearin, 91 N. C. 370, 371.

An action for wrongful conversion of severed timber is not removable as a matter of right to the county in which the land from the trees were severed is situated. Foreman-Blades Lumber Co. v. Tunis Heading, etc., Co., 196 N. C. 38, 144 S. E. 297.

Power of Clerk.—See note under § 913(a).

II. THE APPLICATION FOR REMOVAL.

A. Time of Demand.

This section is explicit and the cases are uniform in holding that the demand to remove to the proper county must be made before the time for answering expires. See Lafoon v. Shearin, 91 N. C. 370; Riley v. Pelletier, 134 N. C. 316, 46 S. E. 734; Garrett v. Bear, 144 N. C. 23, 56 S. E. 479.

The objection must be taken not only "before the time of answering expires," as required by this section, but it must be taken in limine and before answering to the merits. County Board v. State Board, 106 N. C. 81, 10 S. E. 1002, and cases there cited. Shaver v. Huntley, 107 N. C. 623, 627, 12 S. E. 316.

But if the motion is based on clause 2 of this section, i. e., when the convenience of witnesses and the ends of justice demand, the motion may be made at any time in the progress of the cause. Riley v. Pelletier, 134 N. C. 316, 46 S. E. 734.

"While this language is slightly different from the Federal statute regulating motions to remove to the Federal Court, which specifies that said motion must be made 'at the time or any time before the defendant is required by the laws of the State or the rule of the State Court in which such suit is brought, to answer or plead to the declaration or complaint of the plaintiff,' we think the tenor and object of the two statutes are the same, i. e., to require the defendant to object to the jurisdiction in limine by moving to remove as soon as he is afforded opportunity from filing the complaint to know definitely the scope of the action." Riley v. Pelletier, 134 N. C. 316, 318, 46 S. E. 734.

If the application for removal of an action to the proper county be made before time for answering expires, it matters not when the motion is heard. Farmers State Alliance v. Murrell, 119 N. C. 124, 25 S. E. 785.

A motion for change of venue, under this section, must be made before a demurrer to the action may be filed for misjoinder of the parties. Cedar Works v. Lumber Co., 161 N. C. 604, 77 S. E. 770.

Before Time for Filing Answer.—a motion for removal made before the time for the filing of an answer to the complaint had expired, was made in apt time. Carolina Mtg. Co. v. Long, 205 N. C. 533, 534, 172 S. E. 209.

During Term.—"Motions for removal, which may be allowed or disallowed, in the discretion of the court, should be made before the judge, at any time during a term of the court. Howard v. Hinson, 191 N. C. 366, 131 S. E. 748." Causey v. Morris, 195 N. C. 532, 534, 142 S. E. 783.

B. Jurisdiction of Application.

Editor's Note.—It was formerly held that the filing of an affidavit and motion for change of venue in vacation before the clerk was invalid. Riley v. Pelletier, 134 N. C. 316, 46 S. E. 734. The motion was required to be made in the district and during the term of court. Garrett v. Bear, 144 N. C. 23, 56 S. E. 479.

By P. L. 1919, c. 304 and P. L. 1920, c. 96 it was provided that the defendant could file in motion with the clerk instead of applying to the court, the clerk could not, however, order the removal—as he may under the most recent legislation, which is discussed in the next paragraph. See Southern. Cotton Oil Co. v. Grimes, 183 N. C. 97, 112 S. E. 598.

Power of Clerk under Section 913a.—The power to entertain a demand of defendant to remove an action to the proper venue under the provisions of this section, is now conferred by a recent statute (section 913a of this code) upon the clerk, subject to the right of appeal to the judge at the next term, when the motion shall be heard and passed upon de novo. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 723; Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Grimes, 183 N. C. 97, 112 S. E. 598.

Where defendant has made his motion before the clerk to remove the action to the proper venue, the question is then a matter of substantial right, and the clerk is without power to proceed further in essentials until the right to remove is considered and passed upon. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

Appeal to Judge.—Where the clerk of the Superior Court orders the action upon contract removed to the county of the defendant's residence, and the plaintiff, a nonresident, has appealed therefrom to the judge, who in term orders the cause transferred and the defendant has complied with the requisites of the statute in filing a written motion in apt time, the action of the trial judge is a valid exercise of his jurisdictional authority. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Grimes, 183 N. C. 97, 112 S. E. 598.

III. WAIVER OF RIGHT TO CHANGE.

Effect of Failure to Comply with Section.—The matter of venue is not jurisdictional in the first instance, and the defendant will lose his right to have an action against him removed from an improper to the proper county by failing to comply with the provisions of this section, that before the expiration of the time for filing his answer he must demand in writing that the trial be conducted in the proper county. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

Venue cannot be jurisdiction and it may always be waived. Clark v. Carolina Homes, 189 N. C. 703, 128 S. E. 20, 25.

Waiver occurs when motion was neither "made in writing" nor "before the time of answering expired." McMinn v. Hamilton, 7 N. C. 300; Lafoon v. Shearin, 91 N. C. 370 (which was an action of ejectment); Morgan v. Bank, 93 N. C. 352; County Board v. State Board, 106 N. C. 81; 10 S. E. 1002; Baruch v. Long, 117 N. C. 509, 23 S. E. 447; Lucas v. Carolina Central R. Co., 121 N. C. 506, 508, 28 S. E. 265.

Where a defendant moves to transfer a cause to another county, and he is allowed to a certain day of the term to file affidavits, which he failed to do, and his motion for removal is denied, without his excepting or appealing, his conduct will waive all of his rights thereto. Oettinger v. Hill Live Stock Co., 170 N. C. 152, 86 S. E. 957.

Filing Answer to Merits.—The defendant who files a formal answer to the merits within the time allowed, thereby waives his privilege of amendment. Trustees v. Fetzer, 162 N. C. 245, 78 N. C. 152; Stevens Lumber Co. v. Arnold, 179 N. C. 269, 102 S. E. 409.

An agreement between counsel for time to file answer is an acceptance of jurisdiction and a waiver of any right to remove. Garrett v. Bear, 144 N. C. 23, 56 S. E. 479, and cases cited.

Withdrawing Answer.—Where answer has been filed and withdrawn for the purpose of the motion, to remove at the proper term, the right to remove will be taken as waived. Trustee v. Fetzer, 162 N. C. 245, 78 S. E. 152.

Accepting Continuances.—A defendant who has moved to transfer a cause to another county waives his right to the same by accepting continuances from time to time. Oettinger v. Hill Live Stock Co., 170 N. C. 152, 86 S. E. 957.

Enter of Default.—Where a defendant has waived his rights to transfer a cause to another county or the same has been refused in the discretion of the trial court, and he has permitted the time to file his answer to expire, it is within the discretion of the trial judge to refuse his motion to file an answer later, and a judgment final by default thereof may be entered in proper instances. Oettinger v. Hill Live Stock Co., 170 N. C. 152, 86 S. E. 957.

When Judgment by Default Vacated.—When a judgment by default final has been entered against a defendant for the want of an answer, and it appeared that the defendant had lodged his motion in apt time, for a change of venue in accordance with the provisions of this section, which has not been determined, the failure or inability of the defendant to have given the plaintiff ten days notice of his motion, sec. 912, before time for answering has expired, will not affect his right to have the judgment by default against him vacated. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

When the defendant has proceeded by motion before the clerk to have plaintiff's action against him removed to the proper county for improper venue, and this before the time for filing his answer has expired, a judgment by default final for the want of an answer is entered contrary to the due course and practice of the courts, and on appeal to the Supreme Court will be set aside, and the cause remanded for the clerk to consider and pass upon defendant's motion for a change of venue. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

IV. APPEAL.

A. Where County Designated Not Proper.

No Discretion in Court.—The question of removal, when the action is not brought in the proper county, is not one of discretion, but "may" means shall or must, as it is construed in every act imposing a duty. Pelletier v. Saunders, 67 N. C. 262; Jones v. Statesville, 97 N. C. 86, 2 S. E. 346; and cases there cited. Neuse Mfg. Co. v. Brower, 105 N. C. 400, 444, 11 S. E. 313.

Appeal Lies.—Consequently, that an appeal lies from an order denying a motion for the removal of a case to the proper county for trial has been thoroughly settled by repeated decisions of the Supreme Court. Neuse Manufacturing Co. v. Brower, 105 N. C. 440, 11 S. E. 313; Connor v. Dillard, 129 N. C. 50, 39 S. E. 641; Brown v. Cogdell, 136 N. C. 32, 48 S. E. 515; Perry v. R. R., 153 N. C. 117, 68 S. E. 1060; Cedar Works v. Roper Lumber Co., 161 N. C. 603, 606, 77 S. E. 770.

Not Premature.—An appeal from the refusal of the Superior Court judge to remove a case to the proper county is not premature. Dixon v. Haar, 158 N. C. 341, 74 S. E. 1.

Appeal for Delay.—A party to an action cannot be permitted to move repeatedly at each succeeding term for a change of venue and then appeal from each successive refusal for purposes of delay. Ludwick v. Uwarra Mining Co., 171 N. C. 60, 62, 87 S. E. 949.

B. Convenience of Witnesses and Ends of Justice Promoted.

Discretion of Court.—The removal of a case from one county to another for the convenience of witnesses is discretionary with the trial judge. Belding v. Archer, 131 N. C. 287, 42 S. E. 800; Eames v. Armstrong, 136 N. C. 392, 48 S. E. 769; Oettinger v. Stock Co., 170 N. C. 152, 86 S. E. 957.

In Craven v. Munger Lumber Co., 170 N. C. 424, 426, 87 S. E. 216, it is said: "The statute is explicit that the judge 'may' remove the cause to another county when it appears that the convenience of witnesses or the ends of justice may be served thereby. The language of itself makes it a matter of discretion in the court, and in the only four cases in which the matter has ever been contested by appeal this Court has sustained the plain meaning of the words as giving the judge a discretionary power * * * *."

A motion for the removal of a cause from one county to another for convenience of witnesses and to promote the ends of justice under this section is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial judge, and is not subject to review in the Supreme Court. Western Carolina Power Co. v. Klutz, 196 N. C. 358, 145 S. E. 681; Causey v. Morris, 195 N. C. 532, 142 S. E. 783. Except upon abuse of this discretion. Grimes v. Fulton, 197 N. C. 84, 147 S. E. 680.

Matters Not Presented on Appeal.—Where, on appeal from the clerk's order removing the action on this ground and on the ground of movant's legal right, the court sustains the order on the latter ground alone, the clerk's right to issue the discretionary order is not presented on appeal to the Supreme Court, but the correctness of the order based on movant's legal right is left to be determined. Causey v. Morris, 195 N. C. 532, 142 S. E. 783.

When the trial judge in the proper exercise of his discretion under this section, has transferred a cause from one county to another for trial, the question of his ultimate purpose to consolidate the cause with other like cases does not arise on appeal to the Supreme Court. Western Carolina Power Co. v. Klutz, 196 N. C. 358, 145 S. E. 681.

No Appeal Lies.—Consequently, refusal of superior court judge to order removal of cause for convenience of witnesses and in the interest of justice, is not reviewable in the supreme court. Garrett v. Baar, 144 N. C. 23, 56 S. E. 479; Perry v. Perry, 172 N. C. 62, 89 S. E. 999; Byrd v. Carolina Spruce Co., 170 N. C. 429, 435, 87 S. E. 241. Except upon evidence of abuse of discretion. Ludwick v. Mining Co., 171 N. C. 60, 87 S. E. 949; Craven v. Munger Lumber Co., 170 N. C. 424, 87 S. E. 216.

What Constitutes Abuse of Discretion — Illustrated. — Under the provisions secs. 469, 479, it is within the sound discretion of the trial judge to change the venue of an action sounding in tort, to another, when in his judgment the county in which the action was brought does not best subserve the ends of justice, or when justice would be promoted by the change requested, and upon his findings upon the evidence in this case, it is held, that his discretion in refusing to remove the cause was not such an abuse thereof as to reverse his judgment on appeal. Curlee v. National Bank, 187 N. C. 119, 121 S. E. 194.

In Craven v. Munger, Lumber Co., 170 N. C. 424, 426, 87 S. E. 216, it is said: "This (an abuse of discretion), we cannot impute to the learned judge who refused this motion, and upon the evidence before him refused to find as a fact that the ends of justice would be served by such removal or to remove the case for the convenience of witnesses."

Second Appeal. — Upon refusal of defendant's motion to transfer a cause for improper venue, the defendant gave notice of appeal which he did not perfect, and at some subsequent term renewed the motion, but upon another ground —for the convenience of witnesses and to promote the ends of justice, etc., and appealed from the refusal of this motion, and perfected it. Held, the granting or refusing of the second motion was in the discretion of the trial judge, and upon the record the appeal will be held frivolous by the Supreme Court and dismissed upon appellee's motion therein properly made. Ludwick v. Mining Co., 171 N. C. 61, 87 S. E. 949.

§ 471. Removal for fair trial.—In all civil and criminal actions in the superior and criminal courts, when it is suggested on oath or affirmation, on behalf of the state or the traverser of the bill of indictment, or of the plaintiff or defendant, that there are probable grounds to believe that a fair and impartial trial cannot be obtained in the county in which the action is pending, the judge may order a copy of the record of the action removed to some adjacent county for trial, if he is of the opinion that a fair trial cannot be had in said county, after hearing all the testimony offered on either side by affidavits. The county from which the cause is removed must pay to the county in which the cause has been tried the full amount paid by the trial county for jurors' fees, and the full costs in the cause which are not taxable against or cannot be recovered from a party to the action, and for which the trial county is liable. (Rev., s. 426; Code, s. 196; 1879, c. 45; 1899, cc. 104, 508; 1806, c. 693, s. 12; 1917, c. 44.)

Reasons for Removal. — An affidavit for the removal of a cause, which does not set forth the reason of affiants' belief that justice cannot be done in the county from which it is removed, is insufficient. State v. Turtty, 9 N. C. 248. A statement that a fair and impartial trial cannot be had will not suffice. Id. p. 259.

Discretion of Trial Judge. — Change of venue on ground of local prejudice is addressed to the discretion of the trial judge. Stroud v. United States, 251 U. S. 15, 64 L. Ed. 103, 40 S. Ct. 50. See also State v. Davis, 203 N. C. 13, 26, 164 S. E. 736.

Counter Affidavit. — When the judge is not satisfied by the affidavits offered, it is immaterial that counter affidavits were not presented. Benton v. R. R., 122 N. C. 1009, 30 S. E. 333.

Appeal. — The findings of fact by the court that the defendants could secure a fair trial is conclusive, and the granting or refusal of a motion to remove under this section is not reviewable. Albertson v. Terry, 109 N. C. 9, 13 S. E. 713, and cases cited. State v. Smarr, 121 N. C. 669, 28 S. 549; State v. Turner, 143 N. C. 641, 57 S. E. 158; State v. Johnson, 104 N. C. 780, 10 S. E. 257.

This is true, even though the judge further states in his order that his findings were based on his personal observation. Gilliken v. Norcom, 193 N. C. 352, 137 S. E. 136.

The rule of law governing motions for removal for the causes specified, is thus declared in Phillips v. Lentz, 83 N. C. 240; "The distinction seems to be where there are no facts stated in the affidavit as grounds for removal, the ruling of the court below may be renewed; but where there are facts set forth, their sufficiency rests in the discretion of the judge and his decision upon them is final." See Gilliken v. Norcom, 193 N. C. 352, 137 S. E. 136.

Admission of Facts. — The affidavit is required to make the facts appear to the Court, but if they are admitted, or agreed on by the parties, this is sufficient, and it is not necessary that they should appear in the record or order of removal. Emry v. Hardee, 94 N. C. 787.

It is within the power of counsel to consent that the Court might hear and consider the facts as if stated in an affidavit. Emry v. Hardee, 94 N. C. 787.

When it is stated in the order, that the motion is heard "as on affidavit," the implication is, nothing else appearing, that all the parties consented to accept the facts as if stated under oath. Emry v. Hardee, 94 N. C. 787.

Cited in McFadden v. Maxwell, 198 N. C. 223, 151 S. E. 250.

§ 472. Affidavits on hearing for removal; when removal ordered. — No action, civil or criminal, shall be removed, unless the affidavit sets forth particularly and in detail the ground of the application. It is competent for the other side to controvert the allegations of fact in the application, and to offer counter affidavits to that end. The judge shall order the removal of the action, if he is satisfied after thorough examination of the evidence as aforesaid that the ends of justice demand it. (Rev., s. 427; Code, s. 197; 1879, c. 45; 1899, c. 104, s. 2.)

See notes to preceding Section.

§ 473. Additional jurors from other counties instead of removal.—Upon suggestion made as provided by the second section preceding, or on his own motion, the presiding judge, instead of making order of removal may cause as many jurors as he deems necessary to be summoned from any county in the same judicial district or in an adjoining district by the sheriff or other proper officer thereof, to attend, at such time as the judge designates, and serve as jurors in said action. The judge may direct the required number of names to be drawn from the jury box in said county in such manner as he may direct, and a list of the same to be delivered to the sheriff or other proper officer of the county, who shall at once summon the jurors so drawn to appear at the time and place specified in the order. In case a jury is not obtained from those so summoned the judge may, in like manner, from time to time, order additional jurors summoned from any county in the same judicial district or in an adjoining district, or from the county where the trial is being held, until a jury is obtained. These jurors are subject to challenge for cause as other jurors, but not for nonresidence in the county of trial, or service within two years, or not being freeholders, and all jurors so summoned are entitled to compensation for mileage and time, to be paid by the county to which they are summoned, at the rate now provided by law for regular jurors in the county of their residence. Provided, that when the judge shall determine that it is necessary to have a special venire drawn from an adjoining county, instead of directing the jurors to appear at the courthouse in the county where the trial is pending, he may order them to appear at the courthouse of their own county and in lieu of their receiving mileage in going from their own county to the county in which the trial is held, it shall be optional with the county where the trial is held to provide transportation to said jurors from their own county seat to the place of trial and return instead of paying mileage to the jurors in going from their county seat to the place of trial. This proviso shall not apply to Ashe County and Durham County. (1913, c. 4, ss. 1, 2; 1931, c. 308; 1933, c. 248, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended this section to allow the presiding judge "on his own motion" to cause additional jurors to be summoned from any county in "an adjoining district" to try a case in the county where it is pending and from which removal of the cause was sought because of the possibility of an unfair trial by a local jury. He was restricted to "any adjoining county or any county in the same judicial district" by the former law. See 9 N. C. Law Rev. 379.

The proviso at the end of this section relating to special venires to save mileage allowance, was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 248.

Discretion of Judge. — The trial judge, when refusing defendant's motion to remove an action for homicide to another county, may, in the exercise of his sound discretion, have the jurors summoned from any adjoining county, or from any county in the same judicial district, or have jurors drawn from the jury box of such county. State v. Kincaid, 183 N. C. 709, 110 S. E. 612; State v. Baxter, 208 N. C. 90, 179 S. E. 450.

Under this section the granting of a solicitor's motion that the jury be drawn from the body of another county is within the court's discretion. State v. Shipman, 202 N. C. 518, 163 S. E. 657.

Applied in State v. Beard, 207 N. C. 673, 178 S. E. 242.

Cited in State v. Green, 207 N. C. 369, 177 S. E. 120.

§ 474. Transcript of removal; subsequent proceedings. — When a cause is directed to be removed, the clerk shall transmit to the court to which it is removed a transcript of the record of the case, with the prosecution bond, bail bond, and the depositions, and all other written evidences filed therein; and all other proceedings shall be had in the county to which the place of trial is changed, unless otherwise provided by the consent of the parties in writing duly filed, or by order of court. (Rev., s. 428; Code, ss. 195, 198; R. C., c. 31, s. 118; 1806, c. 694, s. 12; 1810, c. 787; C. C. P., s. 69.)

Time to Deposit. — When an action is ordered removed to another county, it is error in the Judge presiding in the Superior Court of the county from which the cause is removed, at the next term thereof, and before the term of the Court in the county to which it was removed, to direct that the action be dismissed if the cost of the transcript be not paid in a time specified. The party procuring the order of removal has until the term of the Court to which the cause is removed to deposit his transcript. Fisher v. Cid. Copper Mining Co., 105 N. C. 123, 10 S. E. 1055.

SUBCHAPTER V. COMMENCEMENT OF ACTIONS

Art. 8. Summons

§ 475. Civil actions commenced by.—Civil actions shall be commenced by issuing a summons; but no summons need issue in controversies submitted without action, and in confessions of judgment without action. (Rev., s. 429; Code, s. 199; C. C. P., s. 70.)

Cross References. — For full treatment of the subject of this article, see Process, 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 518, et seq.; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 265, et seq. As to confessions of judgment, see section 623 et seq. As to summons in special proceedings, see section 753. As to summons in attachment, see sec. 802. As to excusable neglect in failing to answer, see the same section.

Necessity for Service of Summons. — Service of process or notice to appear is essential to the jurisdiction of all courts, as sufficiently appears from the well known legal maxim, that no one shall be condemned in his person without notice, and an opportunity to be heard in his defense. Smith v. Woolfolk, 115 U. S. 143, 149, 29 L. Ed. 357; Renaud v. Abbott, 116 U. S. 277, 288, 29 L. Ed. 629.

If jurisdiction is taken where there has been no service of process, or notice, or a statutory substitute for it, the proceeding is not only voidable but absolutely void, and may be collaterally attacked. Windsor v. McVeigh, 93 U. S. 274, 277, 23 L. Ed. 914; Cox v. United States, 131 U. S. Appx. c., 19 L. Ed. 500.

The object of the summons is to advise the defendant of the plaintiff's action, and that he must appear at the time and place named and make his defense. Scott v. Jarrell, 167 N. C. 364, 365, 83 S. E. 563; Rector v. Laurel River Logging Co., 179 N. C. 59, 61, 101 S. E. 502; Jester v. Baltimore Steam Packet Co., 131 N. C. 54, 55, 42 S. E. 447. Its office is to bring the parties into court. Barneycastle v. Walker, 92 N. C. 198.

Distinguished from Complaint. — The summons in no way indicates the cause of action which is to be learned from the complaint. In this respect it differs from the writ, under the old practice, which did to some extent indicate the plaintiff's cause of action. Battle v. Baird, 118 N. C. 854, 861, 24 S. E. 668.

When Necessary. — A civil action shall be commenced by issuing a summons, except, in cases where the defendant is not within reach of the process of the court and cannot be personally served, when it shall be commenced by the filing of the affidavit to be followed by publication. McClure v. Fellows, 131 N. C. 509, 42 S. E. 951, overruled. Grocery Co. v. Bag Co., 142 N. C. 174, 55 S. E. 90.

Same—Injunction Prior to Summons. — An injunction ordered by the judge upon reading the complaint, coupled with an order at the same time to issue a copy of the complaint and a summons to the defendant, was irregular and premature, and therefore should be dissolved. Patrick v. Joyner, 63 N. C. 573. But this irregularity, if waived by the defendant, will not be noticed by the court, see parte, Heilig v. Stokes, 63 N. C. 612.

Where no process was issued the injunction can not be sustained. Horne v. Board, 122 N. C. 466, 29 S. E. 581; Armstrong v. Kinsell, 164 N. C. 125, 80 S. E. 235.

A summons is "issued" within the meaning of this section when it passes from the clerk's office, or the office of a justice of the peace, under the sanction and authority of such officer, for the purpose of being served. Morrison v. Lewis, 197 N. C. 79, 80, 147 S. E. 729.

Suit Pending from Issuance of Summons.—A civil action is commenced when the summons is issued and, as this section fixes the inception of the action, suit is pending from that time and not exclusively from the time when the summons is served. Atkinson v. Greene, 197 N. C. 118, 120, 147 S. E. 811; Morrison v. Lewis, 197 N. C. 79, 147 S. E. 729.

Delivery to Sheriff. — A summons is issued when it is delivered to the sheriff, or some one for him; this is the consummation and it then relates back to the time of filling out and dating by the clerk. McClure v. Fellows, 131 N. C. 509, 42 S. E. 951; Smith v. Cashie, etc., Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 26, 54 S. E. 788.

A summons simply filled in and lying in the office of an attorney, while he waited for the prosecution bond would not constitute an issuance. Webster v. Sharpe, 116 N. C. 466, 468, 21 S. E. 912.

As to officer's notation of delivery as controlling issuance, see section 479 and notes thereto.

How Jurisdiction in Actions in Personam Acquired. — In Hatch v. Almance R. Co., 183 N. C. 617, 112 S. E.529, it was said:—"An action is commenced as to each defendant when the summons is issued against him (section 404, and this section), but in actions in personam jurisdiction of a cause of parties litigant can be acquired only by personal service of process within the territorial jurisdiction of the court, unless there is an acceptance of service or a general appearance, actual or constructive. Bernhardt v. Brown, 118 N. C. 700, 701, 24 S. 527; Vick v. Flurnoy, 147 N. C. 209, 212, 60 S. E. 978; Warlick v. Reynolds & Co., 151 N. C. 606, 610, 66 S. E. 657, 21 R. C. L., 1315." The various forms of service are prescribed by the following sections of this article. Ed. Note.

Effect of Nonsuit.—Where certain named individuals, directors of a corporation, are served with summons as trustees, and as to them the plaintiff takes a voluntary nonsuit and moves that the corporation be made the defendant in the action, and the complaint amended, the effect of the motion is to commence a new action against the corporation, and not to amend the original complaint. Jones v. Vanstory, 200 N. C. 582, 157 S. E. 867.

Cited in Western Carolina Power Co. v. Yount, 208 N. C. 182, 179 S. E. 804.

§ 476. Contents, return, seal.—The summons must run in the name of the State, be signed by the Clerk of the Superior Court having jurisdiction to try the action, and be directed to the sheriff or other proper officers of the county or counties in which the defendants or any of them reside or may be found. It must be returnable before the clerk and must command the sheriff or other proper officer to sustain the defendant, or defendants, to appear and answer the complaint of the plaintiff within thirty (30) days after its service upon defendant, or defendants; and must contain a notice stating in substance that if the defendant or defendants fail to answer the complaint within the time specified the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint; and must be dated on the date of its issue. Every summons addressed to the sheriff or other officer of a county, other than that from which it issued, must be attested by the seal of the court; but when addressed to the sheriff or other officer of the county in which it issued, such seal is unnecessary. Summons must be served by the sheriff to whom it is addressed for service within ten (10) days after the date of its issue; and upon serving the same, the officer shall note in writing upon the copy thereof, delivered to the defendant, the date of service, but failure to comply with this requirement shall not invalidate the service, and, if not served within ten (10) days after the date of its issue upon every defendant, must be returned by the officer holding the same for service, to the clerk of the court issuing the summons, with notation thereon of its non-service and the reasons therefor as to every defendant not served. In all cases where service of summons is made by publication, such service by publication shall be completed within fifty days from the order of publication. (Rev., ss. 430, 431; Code, ss. 200, 203, 213; C. C. P., s. 74; 1876-7, cc. 85, 241; 1919, c. 304, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 96; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 1; 1927, c. 66, s. 1; 1927, c. 132; 1929, c. 237, s. 1; 1935, c. 343.)

Cross Reference.—As to amendment when a summons fails to comply with the requirement of the instant section, see § 547 and the note thereto.

As to issuance and return to justices court, see section 1487; as to issuance on Sunday, see section 3958.

Editor's Note. — In view of the importance of the changes in this section effected by recent sessions of the legislature, it is thought that an outline of the procedure under the various acts may be of service.

The only change effected by the 1935 amendment occurs in the proviso at the end of the section. Prior to the amendment service was required to be completed within fifty days from the commencement of the action instead of from the order of publication.

Same—Under the Original Code of Civil Procedure. — "The original Code of Civil Procedure required the defendant to appear and answer within a certain number of days after service of summons, in no case to be less than twenty days, thus making the day of service fix the time within which answer was to be filed. When summons was made returnable to the term, if issued less than ten days before the next term, the second term thereafter became the return term, the case was placed on the summons docket for that term and if issued more than ten days before the next term, and the pleadings were made up at the next succeeding term." 1 N. C. Law Rev. 281.

One of the striking features of the new procedure, effective with the adoption of the original Code of Civil Procedure in 1868, was that all summonses should be returnable before the clerk, and that all pleadings should be made up and perfected before him; and when an issue of law is raised an appeal should lie to the judge at chambers, and be promptly acted on by him and returned. And further, that when an issue of fact arose upon the pleadings, and in such cases only, the cause should be transferred to be tried before the judge at term. This eliminated very much delay and expense in legal proceedings, for no cases could be on the docket before the judge at term for trial except those in which the issues of fact had been formulated before the clerk by the pleadings. See Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N. C. 413, 415, 102 S. E. 737.

In Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N. C. 413, 102 S. E. 737, it was said: "This system has been continued in all the States, unchanged, in which the new procedure had been adopted, it is believed, except in this State. In this State, at that time, our people were much embarrassed by the results of the war, and instead of desiring expedition in the determination of action there was a desire to put off as long as possible the rendition of judgments for debt. Accordingly, what was commonly known as the 'Batchelor Act,' entitled, an act suspending the Code of Civil Procedure in certain cases,' ch. 76 Laws 1868-9, ratified 22 March, 1869, was enacted, which provided that summons should be made returnable to the term instead of before the clerk. This act provided, sec. 13, that the suspending act should be temporary and in force only 'until 1 January, 1871,' But, owing to the final conditions of the time, it was later continued indefinitely, and then by oversight, though contradictory to concept and intent of the Code of Civil Procedure (which required all process to be issued returnable before the clerk), it has endured to this time though such anomaly has not obtained, it is believed, in any other State."

Same—Under Section 476 of the Consolidated Statutes. — By the Public laws of 1919 what is commonly known as the "Crisp Act" was passed, and this law was written into the Consolidated Statutes. According to the provision of the "Crisp Act" the summons was required to be returnable before the clerk at a date named therein, not less than ten nor more than twenty days from its issue, and the defendant was required to answer within twenty days of its return.

For example suppose the summons issued on June 1; a day for its return was required to be named between June 10 and June 20; if June 15 was selected the defendant would have until June 25 to appear and answer. Service played no part in this system.

Same—Under Public Laws of 1923.—The Public laws of 1923 c. 53 s. 2, codified as sec. 492(a) of volume III of the Consolidated Statutes, reads as follows:

"When any summons issued by any clerk of the Superior Court in North Carolina is not served upon any one or more of the defendants therein named ten days before the return day thereof, but is served before the return day thereof, such failure to serve the said summons shall not affect the pendency of the action, and as touching the defendant or defendants therein named upon whom service has not been made ten days before the return day named in the summons, the return day as to such defendants shall be the tenth day after the service of the summons on the said defendant or defendants."

The original return day under this act was the same as that pointed out in discussing the law under the Consolidated Statutes; but if the sheriff did not serve the summons within ten days of the original return day then the return day was postponed automatically to ten days from the date of the service. For example if a summons issued on June 1 and the return day was named as June 20 and the service was not perfected until June 15 the return day was extended to June 25.

This act was repealed by the act of 1927 which amended this section (as explained in a succeeding paragraph). The act was subjected to the following criticism in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 281: "The present change introduces again the element of uncertainty, since the plaintiff cannot know when the summons will be served, and his right to proceed at a definite time depends upon the diligence of the officer or other circumstances not within his control. It would seem desirable that the definite return day named in the summons should still control, not only for the sake of definiteness and uniformity in procedure, but because it enables the plaintiff to know when to look after his case, and at the same time gives reasonable protection to the defendant by giving him twenty days in all cases to answer, with the power in the clerk to extend the time for good cause shown." 1 N. C. L. R. 281.

This criticisim probably prompted the passage of the 1927 Act.

Same—The Extra Session of 1921.—This act provided that the "summons must be served as now provided by law." This provision was omitted in the 1927 amendment, as the method of service is there specifically mentioned.

Same—Public Laws of 1927.—This section as amended in 1927 constitutes more or less a reversion to the procedure extant before the passage of the "Crisp Act." There is now no specified return day; appearance and answer are always thirty days after service (in conformance with the criticism cited above); service must be ten days after issuance; if not served within ten days it must be returned with reasons for nonservice. If the reason was lack of time the issuing officer executed (within three days) an alias or pluries summons, as the case required; but this provision was struck out by the Act of 1929, as noted in a succeeding paragraph. The directory provision that the officer shall note the date of service is also new.

Same—The Extra Session of 1920.—"In Campbell v. Campbell (179 N. C. 413, 102 S. E. 727) the summons was issued on July 21, returnable before the clerk on August 8; but since the defendant was a nonresident, and service was to be made by publication, the time of publication did not expire until August 23. It was held that the time was necessarily extended by operation of law, so that the return day for the defendant was August 23." See 1 N. C. Law Rev. 9.

To meet this case, ch. 96, of the Public Laws, Extra Session 1920 enacted a proviso that the summons was to be returnable within forty days. This proviso was amended by the Act of 1927, and the time is extended from forty to fifty days.

Same—Public Laws of 1929.—This act amended this section by striking out the following: "Upon the return of a summons unserved for want of time to make service, as to any defendant or defendants not served, the Clerk shall, within three (3) days thereafter issue an alias or pluries summons, as the case may require."

Previous to this amendment the clerk was required to issue such summons if the process officer has not had time to serve the original within the time prescribed by statute, without the necessity of the plaintiff in the action applying therefor. Neely v. Minus, 196 N. C. 345, 145 S. E. 771. See Note under § 480.

Notice that Relief Will Be Demanded.—Whether the omission of notice that "the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint" would be futile semble. Davis v. Ely, 100 N. C. 283, 285, 5 S. E. 239. The Court stated that this has become a material part of the pleading.

Excuse for Failure to Answer or Demur in Time. — See note of Helderman v. Hartsell Mills Co., 192 N. C. 626, 135 S. E. 627, in 5 N. C. Law Rev. 269.

Ten Days After Issuance.—The construction given section 200 of the Code of 1883, providing that personal service should be "ten days before the beginning of the term," was that service before midnight of Friday, the tenth day before court, was a sufficient compliance. See Taylor v. Harris, 82 N. C. 25; Guilford County v. Georgia Co., 109 N. C. 310, 311, 313, 13 S. E. 861. It would seem, then by analogy, that a service before midnight of the tenth day after issuance would constitute a sufficient compliance with the requirement of this section that service must be ten days after issuance. Ed. Note.

Effect of Summons Calling for Premature Appearance.—The rights of the defendant cannot be abridged by irregularity in making the summons require an appearance within less than the twenty days (now thirty after service) allowed by this section. Such summons is not necessarily on that account void, and the probate judge is not bound to dismiss it but he should allow the defendants the time allowed by this section for an appearance. Guion v. Melvin, 69 N. C. 242.

Meaning of Return.—The Code of 1883, sec. 200, expressly requires a sheriff to whom a summons is directed to execute the same and return it to the Superior Court of the county from which it is issued. "The term 'return' implies that the process is taken back to the place from which it was issued." In re Crittenden, 2 Flip., 215. It is the "bringing of a process into Court with such endorsements as the law requires, whether they in fact be true or false." Harman v. Childress, 3 Yerg., 329. As the statute requires the officer to make his return to the Superior Court of Northampton County, and as the return could not be made elsewhere, it must follow that the cause of action arose in the said county. Watson v. Mitchell, 108 N. C. 364, 12 S. E. 836.

When Summons Returnable.—Public Laws 1927, made material changes in the law theretofore existing. Formerly a summons was returnable before the clerk "at a date named therein not less than ten nor more than twenty days from its issuance." The law now in force provides that a summons must be returnable before the clerk and must notify the defendant to appear and answer the complaint within thirty days after service thereof. It is further provided, however, that the sheriff to whom the summons is addressed, must serve the same within ten days after the date of issuance, and if not served within ten days, it must be returned by the officer holding the same for service to the clerk of the court issuing the summons, "with notation thereon of its nonservice and the reasons therefor as to every defendant not served." By implication only, it would appear that a summons in a civil action is now returnable within ten days. Neely v. Minus, 196 N. C. 345, 346, 145 S. E. 771.

Sections 476 and 593 Construed Together.—In Young v. Davis, 182 N. C. 200, 204, 108 S. E. 630, it was said that this section and section 593 providing for default judgment are not necessarily repugnant, but on the contrary it is clear, that the one is an exception to the other, or rather the first affords an additional and more speedy method of relief in the stated class of suits.

Signature of Sheriff.—Where a summons was properly served and the sheriff's return was unsigned, though endorsed in proper form, the judge at the trial did not exceed his powers in permitting the sheriff to sign the return nunc pro tunc. Luttrell & Co. v. Martin, 112 N. C. 593, 17 S. E. 573.

Seal.—A writ issuing to one county from the superior court of another county must have the seal of the court from which it issues impressed on it. Shackelford v. M'Rea, 10 N. C. 226. The rule is that when the process is to be executed within the county where it issued, no seal is required, but if it goes beyond such county the seal is required, and without it the process is void. This difference applies to all precepts or process, such as summons, execution and the like. This distinction has been sustained by numerous decisions of the supreme court. Freeman v. Lewis, 27 N. C. 91; Taylor v. Taylor, 83 N. C. 116; McArter v. Rhae, 122 N. C. 614, 615, 30 S. E. 128; Shackelford v. M'Rea, 10 N. C. 226; Seawell v. Bank, 14 N. C. 279; Finley v. Smith, 15 N. C. 95. Vick v. Flournoy, 147 N. C. 209, 60 S. E. 978.

Same—Omission from Copy. — Where the original summons bore the proper seal and the copy purported to have been attested in like manner, and the copy included every material part of the original except the seal, the omission of the seal, not affecting the substance of the writ did not impair the efficacy of the service or in any way mislead or prejudice the defendant. In affixing the seal the object is to evidence the authenticity of the summons, but the seal is not a part of the summons in the sense that its impress upon the copy is essential to the validity of the original. Elramy v. Abeyounis, 189 N. C. 278, 126 S. E. 743, 744.

Amendment of Summons.—See sec. 547 and notes thereto.

§ 477. Issued to several counties.—The plaintiff may issue a summons, directed to the sheriff of any county where a defendant is most likely to be found, noting on each summons that it is issued in the same action. When the summons is returned, it shall be docketed as if only one had issued, and if any defendant is not served with such process, the same proceeding shall be had as in other cases of similar process not executed. (Rev., s. 432; Code, s. 204; R. C., c. 31, s. 44; 1789, c. 314, ss. 1, 2; 1831, c. 14, s. 2.)

§ 478. When directed to officer of adjoining county.—If at any time there is not in the county a proper officer to whom summons or other process of a court of record is or ought to be directed, who can lawfully execute it; or if such officer refuses or neglects to execute the same, the clerk of the court from which it has issued or shall issue, upon the facts being verified before him by written affidavit, subscribed by the plaintiff or his agent, shall issue such summons or process to the sheriff of any adjoining county, who has power to and shall execute the same in like manner as if he were sheriff of the county. In all cases where the sheriff of any county is interested, if there is no coroner in the county, process may be issued to and shall be executed by the sheriff of any adjoining county. (Rev., ss. 1530, 1531; Code, ss. 929, 930; R. C., c. 31, s. 55; 1779, c. 156; 1821, c. 1080; 1882, c. 1132; 1846, c. 61; 1869-70, c. 175.)

As to when coroner acts as sheriff, see sec. 1021.

Applied in an anonymous case in 2 N. C. 422.

§ 478(a). Uniform pleading and practice in inferior courts where summons issued to run outside of county.—In all cases in which any court in North Carolina inferior to the Superior Court, except courts of Justices of the Peace, shall issue any summons to run outside the county of such inferior court, the case in which such summons is issued shall, as to the summons and the filing of all pleadings, be subject to, and governed by, the laws and rules applicable to actions in the Superior Court of North Carolina. (1931, c. 420.)

§ 479. When officer must execute and return. —The officer to whom the summons is addressed must note on it the day of its delivery to him, serve it by delivering a copy thereof to each of the defendants, and return it within the time specified therein for its return. In all cases when a summons is issued by any court of this state, and the officer to whom said summons is directed shall find that the person or persons against whom said summons is issued cannot be served without danger of injury to said person or persons on account of the condition of said person or persons arising from illness, accident or otherwise, the officer shall file with his returns a certificate from a reputable physician certifyng to this fact, and said returns shall relieve the said officer from any liability by reason of failure to actually serve the summons. The said officer shall as soon as possible make actual service of said summons, and when actually served the cause of action shall be deemed to have been commenced as of the date of the original summons, and the defendant shall have twenty days from the date of actual service within which to demur, answer or otherwise plead. (Rev., s. 433; Code, s. 200; 1876-7, c. 85; 1919, c. 304, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 1; 1923, c. 62.)

Editor's Note.—As this section appears in Volume III. of the Consolidated Statutes (with a citation to the Public Laws of the Extra Session of 1921 c. 92 sec. 1 and the Public Laws of 1923 c. 62) there are several apparant changes which render the section inconsistent with section 476 as amended in 1927—explained in the editor's note, to that section, supra. The phrase at the end of the first sentence "and return it within the time specified therein for its return" seems to be nullified by the fact that the summons no longer names a return day; the return will have to comply with the provision of section 476.

The phrase in the same sentence, "serve it by delivering a copy thereof to each of the defendants," seems to supersede the provision of section 482 requiring reading as the usual mode of service. The section formerly provided that the summons was to be served "as provided by law."

The Public Laws of 1923 added the last two sentences of the section, relating to service in case of danger or injury to the person. "This applies to all courts, since the words used are 'when the summons is issued by any court of this state.' The first purpose is to relieve the officer from liability to a penalty for failure to serve the summons in proper time, (sections 3936, 3938). It may be that such facts stated in his return, as an excuse for failure to serve the summons, would exonerate the officer in any case (21 R. C. L. 1318), but this places it beyond question." 1 N. C. Law Rev. 279.

What effect the amendment of 1927 to sec. 476 will have upon the last sentence of this section is conjectural; unless this section is construed as an exception to 476, the defendant will have thirty instead of twenty days after service in which to answer. It is more probable that this section will be construed as impliedly amended by the amendment to sec. 476.

Effect of Officer's Notation. — A summons is issued when the clerk delivers it to the sheriff to be served, and where there is no intermediary, but the process is delivered by the clerk himself to the officer, the notation of the officer on it as to the date of its receipt by him must be controlling evidence as to when it was issued. Smith v. Cashie, etc., Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 26, 54 S. E. 788.

A civil action is commenced when the summons is issued, and the presumption when nothing else appears is that the summons passed from the control of the Clerk and was delivered to the sheriff, and therefore issued at the time when the sheriff received it; and this is generally determined by the entry on the process of the date it was received by the sheriff, as he is required by statute to make such an entry. Smith v. Cashie, etc., Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 26, 30, 54 S. E. 788, explaining Houston v. Thornton, 122 N. C. 365, 375, 29 S. E. 827.

Failure to Make Notation.—The sheriff ought regularly to note on the summons the day of its delivery to him, as required by the statute but his failure to do so does not vitiate or render the summons void. Such a notation is not of the essence of the summons, or the service of it by the sheriff. Its purpose is to provide evidence convenient to fix the day the summons passed into the hands of the sheriff for any proper purpose. Strayhorn v. Blalock, 92 N. C. 293, 294.

Summons Issued from Justice's Court. — Construing sec. 1500, sub-sec. 15, and this section together, it is clear that a summons issued from a court of a justice of the peace must be served in the same manner as a summons issued from the Superior Court. Pass v. Elias, 192 N. C. 497, 498, 135 S. E. 291.

Return of Sheriff Generally.—See secs. 3936 et seq. and the notes thereto.

§ 480. Alias and pluries.—When the defendant in a civil action or special proceeding is not served with summons within the time in which it is returnable, the plaintiff may sue out an alias or pluries summons, returnable in the same manner as original process. An alias or pluries summons may be sued out at any time within ninety (90) days after the date of issue of the next preceding summons in the chain of summonses. Provided, however, that in case of tax suits brought under the provisions of Consolidated Statutes, section eight thousand thirty-seven, as amended, an alias or pluries summons may be sued out at any time within two years after the issuance of the original summons, whether any intervening alias or puries summons has heretofore been issued or not, and after the issuance of such alias or pluries summons, the chain of summonses may be kept up as in any other action. (Rev., s. 437; Code, s. 205; R. C., c. 31, s. 52; 1777, c. 115, ss. 23, 71; 1929, c. 237, s. 2; 1931, c 264.)

Editor's Note.—The second sentence of this section was added by the Act of 1929 which also amended § 476 by striking out the provisions relating to issuance of an alias or pluries summons by the clerk. The Act of 1931 added the proviso.

It was held in McGuire v. Montvale Lumber Co., 190 N. C. 806, 808, 131 S. E. 274, that the word "may" as herein used means "must." The McGuire case further states that "the true office of an alias summons is to continue the action referable to its original date of institution, when the first summons issued had not been served," and cites Powell v. Dail, 172 N. C. 261, 90 S. E. 194; Rogerson v. Leggett, 145 N. C. 7, 58 S. E. 596.

Cited in Neely v. Minus, 196 N. C. 345, 145 S. E. 771.

§ 481. Discontinuance. — A failure to keep up the chain of summonses issued against a party, but not served, by means of an alias or pluries summons, is a discontinuance as to such party; and if a summons is served after a break in the chain, it is a new action as to such party, begun when the summons was issued. (Rev., s. 438.)

When Discontinuance Occurs.— A discontinuance under this section occurs only when the summons has not been served. Rogerson v. Leggett, 145 N. C. 7, 10, 58 S. E. 596.

The failure of service of the original summons in an action must be followed by an alias or pluries writ or a summons successively and properly issued in order to preserve a continous single action referable to the date of its issue, for otherwise it is a discontinuance as to the defendant. And another summons served after the break in the chain is a new action. Hatch v. Alamance R. Co., 183 N. C. 617, 112 S. E. 529.

Under this section where in a civil action alias or pluries summonses are issued in the event of nonservice of the original, a break in the chain of summonses works a discontinuance, and where a summons is thereafter served it commences a new action. Neely v. Minus, 196 N. C. 345, 145 S. E. 771.

The failure of the plaintiff to move before the clerk of the court for an alias summons on or before the return day thereof works a discontinuance of the action. McGuire v. Montvale Lumber Co., 190 N. C. 806, 131 S. E. 274.

§ 482. Service by reading. — The summons shall be served in all cases, except as hereinafter provided, by the sheriff or other officer reading it to the party or parties named as defendant. (Rev., s. 439; Code, s. 214; 1876-7, c. 241.)

Editor's Note. — Section 479 as amended provides that service must be by delivering a copy to the defendant. Whether the summons has to be read and then delivered or whether delivery alone will suffice has not been decided. It is probable that this section is superseded.

Purpose.—On the one hand this section contemplates the exhibition of the process to the party and affords him and the officer greater assurance of its validity, and, on the other hand, it assures him that the person was the one designated. Lowman & Co. v. Ballard, 168 N. C. 16, 84 S. E. 21.

Return "Served" Implies Reading.—This section prescribed how the officer shall make service of the summons, and prescribes his duty as to the manner of discharging it. When the sheriff returns that he has "served" the summons, this implies that he has discharged his official duty in that respect, and that he has read it to the defendant. Strayhorn v. Blalock, 92 N. C. 293, 295. See also Isley v. Boon, 113 N. C. 249, 251, 18 S. E. 174.

Service of summons over a telephone line, the parties being necessarily separated and the method not contemplated by this section, as telephones were not in existence at the time of its passage, is not valid. Lowman & Co. v. Ballard, 168 N. C. 16, 84 S. E. 21.

In the Federal Courts.—While the federal courts conform their mode of procedure to that of the state courts, they will reject any subordinate provisions which will unwisely encumber the administration of justice. This section is not applied in Federal Practice. In Lowry v. Story, 31 Fed. 769, 772 the court says: "The reading of a summons by a sheriff may be sufficient service in a state court, where actions are usually brought in the county in which the defendants reside; but I think that service by delivery of a copy is more just and appropriate in the federal courts of more extensive territorial limits of jurisdiction, and where the times and places of holding court are not so well known and convenient to the defendants." See as to delivery section 479.

Waiver.—The defendant may waive the reading prescribed by this section. Williamson v. Cocke, 124 N. C. 585, 32 S. E. 963.

§ 483. Service by copy.—The summons shall be served by delivering a copy thereof in the following cases:

1. If the action is against a corporation, to the president or other head of the corporation, secretary, cashier, treasurer, director, managing or local agent thereof. Any person receiving or collecting money in this state for a corporation of this or any other state or government is a local agent for the purpose of this section. Such service can be made in respect to a foreign corporation only when it has property, or the cause of action arose, or the plaintiff resides, in this state, or when it can be made personally within the state upon the president, treasurer or secretary thereof.

2. If against a minor under the age of fourteen years, to the minor personally, and also to his father, mother or guardian, or if there are none within the state, to any person having the care and control of the minor, or with whom he resides, or in whose service he is employed.

3. If against a person judicially declared of unsound mind, or incapable of conducting his own affairs in consequence of habitual drunkenness, and for whom a committee or guardian has been appointed, to such committee or guardian, and to the defendant personally. If the superintendent or acting superintendent of an insane asylum informs the sheriff or other officer who is charged with the duty of serving a summons or other judicial process, or notice, on an insane person confined in such asylum, that the summons, or process, or notice, cannot be served without danger of injury to the insane person, it is sufficient for the officer to return the same without actual service, but with an endorsement that it was not personally served because of such information; and when an insane person is confined in a common jail it is sufficient for an officer charged with service of a notice, summons, or other judicial process, to return the same with the endorsement that it was not served because of similar information as to the danger of service on such insane person given by the physician of the county in which the jail is situated.

4. Every unincorporated, fraternal, beneficial organization, fraternal benefit order, association and/or society issuing certificates and/or policies of insurance, whether foreign or domestic, now or hereafter doing business in this state, shall be subject to service of process, in the same manner as is now or hereafter provided for service of process on corporations: Provided, this paragraph shall only apply in actions concerning such certificates and/or policies of insurance. (Rev., s. 440; Code, s. 217; C. C. P., s. 82; 1874-5, c. 168; 1889, c. 89; 1933, c. 24.)

  A. Corporations Generally.
  B. Foreign Corporations.
III. Service on Minors.
IV. Service on Insane Persons.

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — By the wording of section 479 as it appeared in volume III of the Consolidated Statutes, delivery of a copy was made the usual method of serving the summons. This section prescribes to whom the delivery is to be made in certain specified instances.

Public Laws 1933, c. 24 added paragraph 4 of this section, relating to service on unincorporated, fraternal, beneficial organizations, fraternal orders, etc.

Applicability to Criminal Actions. — This section though primarily intended as a regulation in the institution of a civil action, is equally appropriate in a criminal action, and its terms are sufficiently comprehensive to embrace both. State v. Western, etc., R. Co., 89 N. C. 584, 586.

Applicability in Justices' Court. — This section does not embrace a process returnable before a magistrate, Kirkland v. Hogan, 65 N. C. 144; but those provisions, in regard to the service of process upon corporations, apply to justices' courts. Katzenstein v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 78 N. C. 286, 287.

What Constitutes Delivery. — It would seem that the use of the word "delivery" in this section contemplates a delivery to the defendant in person, or his qualified agent as specified in the section. It has been held that leaving a copy of the summons with the wife of the person named in the summons will not suffice, First Nat. Bank v. Wilson, 80 N. C. 200; nor does leaving a copy at the dwelling house constitute a delivery. State v. Jacobs, 47 N. C. 52.

Same—Delivery of Original. — The service is void where the original summons only is delivered to an officer of the corporation, who after reading it, returned the same to the officer making the service. Aaron v. Pioneer Lumber Co., 112 N. C. 189, 16 S. E. 1010.

Cited in Welch v. Welch, 194 N. C. 633, 637, 140 S. E. 436; Tinker v. Rice Motors, 198 N. C. 73, 74, 150 S. E. 701; Smith v. Finance Co. of America, 207 N. C. 367, 177 S. E. 183.

II. SERVICE ON CORPORATIONS.

A. Corporations Generally.

Requirement Mandatory. — This requirement as to the mode of service on corporations must be strictly observed. Hatch v. Alamance R. Co., 183 N. C. 617, 621, 112 S. E. 529, quoting Amy v. Watertown, 130 U. S. 301, 317, 32 L. Ed. 946, 9 S. Ct. 530.

The provisions of this section must be strictly followed, and a separate copy of the summons must be served on and left with the agent for each corporate defendant. Hershey Corp. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 203 N. C. 184, 165 S. E. 550.

The provisions of this section as to service of summons on private corporations must be observed, and where individuals, directors of a corporation, are served with process as trustees, it will not be effectual as service on the corporation, but only on the individuals named. Jones v. Vanstory, 200 N. C. 582, 157 S. E. 867.

Local Agent. — The term local pertains to place, and a local agent to receive and collect money, ex vi termini, means an agent residing either permanently or temporarily for the purpose of his agency, and was not intended to embrace a mere transient agent. Moore v. Freeman's Nat. Bank, 92 N. C. 590, 596.

But the authority to receive money is not the exclusive test of a local agent upon whom service of process may be made. Copeland v. American De Forest Wireless Tel. Co., 136 N. C. 11, 48 S. E. 501; Pardue v. Absher, 174 N. C. 676, 679, 94 S. E. 414.

This language was not intended to limit the service to such a class of agents, but rather to extend the word "agent" to embrace them. The authority to receive money, of itself, makes one a local agent for the purpose of the statute, but this is not the exclusive test of agency. Cape Fear Rys. v. Cobb, 190 N. C. 375, 377, 129 S. E. 828.

A local agent receiving premiums or commissions for a bonding company doing business in this State is within the contemplation of this section. Pardue v. Absher, 174 N. C. 676, 94 S. E. 414.

Service on Bank Director. — The service of process authorized to be made on a director of a corporation, under this section, as applied to a bank, means one of the eleven principal directors, annually elected by the stockholders, and not a director appointed by the authorities of the bank for its branches or agencies. Webb v. President and Directors, 50 N. C. 288.

Service on Receiver. — An action against the receivers of a corporation is in fact an action against the corporation; hence, under this section, service of summons on a local agent is service on the receivers. Farris v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 115 N. C. 600, 20 S. E. 167.

Service of a summons upon the receivers of a corporation is service upon the corporation itself as fully as if made upon the president and superintendent, and service upon the local agent of the receivers has the same legal effect as if made upon the receivers personally. Grady v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 116 N. C. 952, 21 S. E. 304.

A person acting for a corporation as a caretaker as a matter of friendship, without compensation, is not an agent of such company for receiving and paying out moneys upon whom process may be served under this section. Kelly v. LeFaiver & Co., 144 N. C. 4, 56 S. E. 510.

President before Court in Individual Capacity. — Where a bill was amended so as to make a corporation a party, it was held to be proper to serve the president of the corporation with a copy of the bill, although he was already before the court in his individual capacity. McRae v. Guion, 58 N. C. 129.

Agent of Telephone Company as Agents of Telegraph Company. — In Brown v. Western Union Tel. Co., 169 N. C. 509, 86 S. E. 290, it was held that the fact that an agent of a telephone company received messages for a telegraph company and telephoned them to a nearby town, collected for telegrams, etc., was sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the question of whether the agent of the telephone company was such an agent of the telegraph company as is contemplated by this section.

For other cases applying the agency doctrine of this section to Foreign Corporations, see post, this note, the next analysis line.

B. Foreign Corporations.

As to service on statutory agent of foreign corporation see 1137 and notes thereto. As to service on insurance commissioner, see § 6414.

In General. — "The several cases respecting a foreign corporation, it will be observed, are put disjunctively; and the meaning is, that in either of the first three cases service may be made by delivery of a copy of the summons to one of the offices named in the first clause of the section, among which is the managing agent. In the last case, that is, when the foreign corporation has no property within the State, and the cause of action did not arise therein, and the plaintiff does not reside therein then service may be made on the president, treasurer or secretary, if he can be found within the State, but it may not be made on a management agent found here. A reason for the difference may be discovered. The first three classes of cases embraced all of which would usually occur, and in them every reasonable facility for the service of process is provided. But there was a fourth class of cases, not likely; but still possible, and therefore needing to be provided for, viz.; where a non-resident might be allowed to sue in this State a foreign corporation having no property here, on a cause of action arising elsewhere. The necessity of suing here, might arise out of the fact, that the chief officers were to be found here, and not elsewhere. In such a case, either because the corporation could not well have a managing agent here, or for other reasons, which may be imagined, it was provided that service should be made on some one of the principle officers." Cunningham v. Southern Exp. Co., 67 N. C. 425, 427.

The construction of this statute, which has been uniformly followed, in Cunningham v. Southern Exp. Co., 67 N. C. 425, 426, and all cases since, is thus clearly stated by Hoke, J., in Whitehurst v. Kerr, 153 N. C. 76, 68 S. E. 913; "Construing a statute of similar import, it has been held that the first clause enumerates the persons on whom service of process can be made, to wit, on the president or other head of the corporation, secretary, treasurer, director, managing or local agent thereof, and in that respect applies to all corporations, both domestic and foreign. Then follows the proviso as to who shall be considered local agents for the purpose of the section, and the last clause establishes certain conditions, restrictive in their nature, which are required and necessary to a proper and valid service on foreign corporations. That is, service on the persons designated in the first clause, shall only be good as to foreign corporations: (1) when they have property in the State, or (2) when the cause of action arose therein, or (3) when the plaintiff resides in the State. And then a fourth method is established, (4) when service can be made within this State personally on the president, treasurer, or secretary thereof."

This construction has been held also in McDonald v. McArthur Bros. Co., 154 N. C. 122, 69 S. E. 832; Higgs & Co. v. Sperry, etc., Co., 139 N. C. 299, 51 S. E. 1020; Greenleaf v. People's Bank, 133 N. C. 292, 45 S. E. 638; Jester v. Baltimore Steam Packet Co., 131 N. C. 54, 42 S. E. 447; Clinard v. White, 129 N. C. 250, 39 S. E. 960; Jones v. Hartford Ins. Co., 88 N. C. 499; Menefee v. Riverside, etc., Cotton Mills, 161 N. C. 164, 165, 76 S. E. 741.

An attorney for a foreign corporation, who has claims to collect for it in this State, is not a local agent upon whom process can be served. Moore v. Freeman's Nat. Bank, 92 N. C. 590.

Superintendent. — The agent of a foreign corporation who superintends all its work in this State and has general charge of its employees is its "managing agent" within the meaning of this section. Clinard v. White, 129 N. C. 250, 39 S. E. 960.

President. — Service of summons on the president of a foreign corporation is valid, if made within the State, whether the president is in the State on private or official business. Jester v. Baltimore Steam Packet Co., 131 N. C. 54, 42 S. E. 447.

A traveling auditor of a foreign corporation, who presented an account to the plaintiff and requested payment to himself, but presented the account without authority and received no money, is not a "local agent" (under this section) for the purpose of service of summons. Higgs & Co. v. Sperry, etc., Co., 139 N. C. 299, 51 S. E. 1020.

See Blades Lbr. Co. v. Finance Co., 204 N. C. 285, 168 S. E. 219, following Higgs & Co. v. Sperry, etc., Co., 139 N. C. 299, 51 S. E. 1020, and holding also that the fact that such agent received money for the corporation on a single instance does not alter this result.

A local agency for a foreign corporation acting as its general sales agent, and collecting and receiving money in such capacity, is of such character as to make it an agency upon which service of summons for the foreign corporation can be made under our statute. Cape Fear Rys. v. Cobb, 190 N. C. 375, 129 S. E. 828.

A foreign corporation may be sued on a transitory cause of action in any jurisdiction where it can be found in the sense that service may be perfected upon an agent or officer transacting business for the corporation within that jurisdiction, and that the residence of the plaintiff and the place at which the cause of action arose are not material questions to be determined to maintain jurisdiction if the corporation can be found and served. Steele v. Western Union Tel. Co., 206 N. C. 220, 224, 173 S. E. 583.

When a foreign corporation has property in this state and is here present transacting its corporate business through local agents, such corporation is amenable to service of process according to the provisions of this section in a transitory cause of action arising in another state and brought by a non-resident of this state and this statute neither offends against the commerce clause of the Federal Constitution nor runs counter to the Fourteenth Amendment. Id.

A foreign express company, while a member of the Federal Government Control Act, a war measure, does not fall within the provision of this section as to local process agent. McAlister v. American Ry. Exp. Co., 179 N. C. 556, 103 S. E. 129.

A foreman, acting under the direction of the superintendent of a corporation, is neither an "officer" nor "a managing or local agent," within the meaning of this section. Simmons v. Defiance Box Co., 148 N. C. 344, 62 S. E. 435.

An operator of a wireless telegraph in sole charge of defendant's property, and in control of its business, is a local agent within the meaning of this section. Copeland v. American De Forest Wireless Tel. Co., 136 N. C. 11, 48 S. E. 501.

Service of process on the bookkeeper of a foreign corporation who was apparently the only financial agent of the corporation in the state will suffice under this section. Whitehurst v. Kerr, 153 N. C. 76, 68 S. E. 913.

A buyer for the defendant foreign corporation, who made the contract with plaintiff on which the action is based, was held a "managing agent." Royal Furniture Co. v. Wichita Furniture Co., 180 N. C. 531, 105 S. E. 176.

III. SERVICE ON MINORS.

Service upon Minor over Fourteen. — "Service of the summons by reading it to a minor is good unless he is under the age of 14 years, and, as to a purchaser, it so appears on the face of the record or he has actual knowledge of the fact." Yarborough v. Moore, 151 N. C. 116, 65 S. E. 763, 765. See, however, section 479 and notes.

Service upon Minor under Fourteen. — "Formerly an infant was brought into court just as any other defendant was. If he had a general guardian, process was served upon the guardian, if there was no general guardian, the court acquired jurisdiction by service of process upon the infant, and appointed some suitable person—frequently some officer of the court—as guardian ad litem, who accepted service and defended for him; but since the Code of Civil Procedure (this section), the service upon a minor under the age of fourteen must be upon him personally, and also his father, mother or guardian, or, if there be none in the state, then upon any person having the care and control of such minor, or with whom he shall reside, or in whose service he shall be employed." White v. Morris, 107 N. C. 92, 93, 98, 12 S. E. 80. See also, Ward v. Lowndes, 96 N. C. 637, 2 S. E. 591.

Process on Infant Personally. — In Matthews v. Joyce, 85 N. C. 258, the court said, "while according to recent decisions jurisdiction over the person of infants is acquired only as in the other cases by the service of process on them, and then it is competent to appoint, in case there is no general guardian, a guardian ad litem, to act in their behalf and to protect their interests, so as to bind them by judicial action, a different practice has long and almost universally prevailed in this state, and this power of appointment has been generally exercised without the issue of process, for the reason that no practical benefit would result to the infant from such service on him, and the court always assumed to protect the interests of such party, and to this end committed them to the defense of this special guardian." Groves v. Ware, 182 N. C. 553, 109 S. E. 568, 570.

Process Served on General Guardian.—The general guardian is the proper person on whom process against infant defendants should be served, and it is his duty to protect their interest in the suit, Chambers v. Penland, 78 N. C. 53, 55.

Service on Guardian ad Litem. — As to failure to serve summons on Guardian ad Litem. See Editor's note under section 451.

Appearing by Guardian Ad Litem. — Where an infant appears by guardian ad litem, a copy of the summons having been left with him, and served on his guardian, the fact that no copy of summons was left with his "father, mother or guardian," is immaterial. Roseman v. Roseman, 127 N. C. 494, 37 S. E. 518.

Slight Irregularity Does Not Vitiate. — A judgment will not be vacated because some of a number of infant defendants, united in interest, appeared only by a guardian ad litem, appointed without process previously served on such infants. Matthews v. Joyce, 85 N. C. 258.

In an action for the recovery of the possession of land, the defendant, in support of his title, offered in evidence a special proceeding and order for sale of land for assets and deed thereunder, to which plaintiff objected because it did not appear that the guardian ad litem appointed for the feme plaintiff, who was a party to the proceeding, was served with summons, or appeared or filed any answer. Summons was served upon the infant according to law: Held, there was not such irregularities as made the proceeding void. Coffin v. Cook, 106 N. C. 376, 11 S. E. 371.

It has been held that where a judgment has been rendered against an infant on whom summons was not served as required by this section, but for whom a guardian ad litem was appointed by the court, and an answer was filed by such guardian ad litem in good faith, the judgment is conclusive on the infant, notwithstanding the irregularity, until set aside on motion in the cause. But such judgment is not conclusive and binding on the infant, where it appears upon the face of the record that the interests of the infant in the subject-matter of the action were not presented to the court in good faith by the guardian ad litem, and passed upon by the court. Wyatt v. Berry, 205 N. C. 118, 122, 170 S. E. 131.

Nonresident Infant. — A court cannot obtain jurisdiction of a bill against a nonresident infant, as the statute gives no provision for any other than personal service. Jones v. Mason, 4 N. C. 561.

IV. SERVICE ON INSANE PERSONS.

Delivery of Summons to Committee of Insane Person Is Necessary.—Where an action is brought against a person judicially declared to be of unsound mind or incapable of conducting his own affairs for whom a committee or guardian has been appointed a copy of the summons must be delivered to the committee or guardian and to the defendant personally. Hood v. Holding, 205 N. C. 451, 455, 171 S. E. 633.

Or Final Judgment Cannot Be Entered.—If the declared incompetent has no committee or guardian, service of notice may be made upon him personally or the notice may be returned without actual service with the endorsement required by the statute when service cannot be made without the danger of injury to him; but in no event should final judgment be rendered against him without adequate notice to his committee, or to his general or testamentary guardian, or to a guardian ad litem duly appointed by the court. Hood v. Holding, 205 N. C. 451, 455, 171 S. E. 633.

Ex parte proceedings brought by a husband to have his wife declared sane, without any notice or service upon the guardian to whom the law had confided the protection of her rights, were a nullity under this section. Sims v. Sims, 121 N. C. 297, 300, 28 S. E. 407.

§ 484. Service by publication.—Where the person on whom the service of the summons is to be made cannot, after due diligence, be found in the state, and that fact appears by affidavit to the satisfaction of the court, or a judge thereof and it in like manner appears that a cause of action exists against the defendant in respect to whom service is to be made, or that he is a proper party to an action relating to real property in this state, such court or judge may grant an order that the service be made by publication of a notice in either of the following cases:

1. Where the defendant is a foreign corporation and has property, or the cause of action arose, in the state.

2. Where the defendant, a resident of this state, has departed therefrom or keeps himself concealed therein with intent to defraud his creditors or to avoid the service of a summons.

3. Where he is not a resident, but has property in this state, and the court has jurisdiction of the subject of the action.

4. Where the subject of the action is real or personal property in this state, and the defendant has, or claims, or the relief demanded consists wholly or partly in excluding him from any actual or contingent lien or interest therein.

5. Where the action is for divorce.

6. Where the stockholders of a corporation are deemed to be necessary parties to an action and their names or residences are unknown; or where the names or residences of parties interested in real estate the subject of an action are unknown, if the name of at least one of the parties to the action and interested in the subject matter thereof is known, and he is a resident of the state, the court having jurisdiction may, upon affidavit that after due diligence the names or residences of such parties cannot be ascertained, authorize service by publication.

7. Where in actions for the foreclosure of mortgages on real estate, if any party having any interest in, or lien upon, such mortgaged premises, is unknown to the plaintiff, and his residence cannot, with reasonable diligence, be ascertained, and such fact is made to appear by affidavit.

8. Where no officer or agent of a domestic corporation upon whom service can be made can, after due diligence, be found in the state, and such facts are made to appear by affidavit. This subsection also applies to all summonses, orders to show cause, orders and notices issued by any board of aldermen, board of town or county commissioners, or by individuals. (Rev., s. 422; Code, ss. 218, 221; 1885, c. 380; 1889, cc. 108, 263; 1895, c. 334.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Strictly Construed.—The service of the summons or notice, as an original process in the action by publication, must be made strictly in accordance with the requirements of the statute. This method of service of process and giving the court jurisdiction is peculiar, and out of the usual course of procedure. The statute prescribes, with particularity and caution, the cases and causes that must exist and appear by affidavit to the court in order that it may be allowed. The court must see that every prerequisite prescribed exists in any particular case before it grants the order of publication. Otherwise the publication will be unauthorized, irregular and fatally defective, unless in some way such irregularity shall be waived or cured. Spiers v. Halstead, etc., Co., 71 N. C. 209; Windley v. Bradway, 77 N. C. 333; Wheeler v. Cobb, 75 N. C. 21; Faulk v. Smith, 84 N. C. 501; Bacon v. Johnson, 110 N. C. 114, 116, 14 S. E. 508.

Unless the provisions of this section are observed the service of a summons by publication in such cases will be ineffective. Martin v. Martin, 205 N. C. 157, 159, 170 S. E. 651.

Not only must it be shown that the defendant has property in this state; the cause of action must be stated with such clearness and comprehension as may enable the court to determine its sufficiency. Id.

The Affidavit—By Whom Made.—The affidavit required by this section may be made by an agent or attorney. Weaver v. Roberts, 84 N. C. 494.

Same—When Made.—It seems that the affidavit may be made after the order, provided the order remains in obeyance until the affidavit is filed. Bank v. Blossom, 92 N. C. 695.

Same—Allegations. — Everything necessary to dispense with personal service must appear by affidavit. Wheeler v. Cobb, 75 N. C. 21.

Same—Proper Party and Cause of Action Must Be Shown.—A brief summary of the facts constituting the cause of action, or of the facts showing that the parties are necessary parties to the action, should be stated so that the court can see and determine that there exists a cause of action, or that the parties are necessary for some appropriate purpose. The party demanding the order shall not be the judge to determine that a cause of action exists, or that the parties sought to be made parties are necessary parties. It is the province and duty of the court to see the facts and determine the legal question as to whether there is a cause of action or not. Nor is it sufficient to state that the party is a neccessary party to an action to compel specific performance of a contract to convey land in a particular locality. The facts must be stated with sufficient fullness to develop the contract and the relation of the parties to it. Otherwise the party demanding the order will determine that he has a cause of action, while the statute requires the the court to do so upon facts appearing by affidavit. Claflin v. Harrison, 108 N. C. 157, 12 S. E. 895, and the cases cited. Bacon v. Johnson, 110 N. C. 114, 117, 14 S. E. 508.

Where, upon the facts alleged, no judgment can be rendered affecting lands, it must follow that the defendant is not a proper or necessary party, such as is contemplated by this section. Claflin v. Harrison, 108 N. C. 157, 158, 12 S. 895.

Same—Necessity for Averment of Due Diligence.—The authorities seem to be decisive that, under this section as now framed, the allegation that a defendant can not be found in the state, after diligent search, is an essential averment to a service of original process by publication. Sawyer v. Camden Run Drainage Dist., 179 N. C. 182, 183, 102 S. E. 273; Wheeler v. Cobb, 75 N. C. 21; Faulk v. Smith, 84 N. C. 501; Grocery Co. v. Collins Bag Co., 142 N. C. 174, 55 S. E. 90.

This allegation as to diligence is the very cornerstone to obtain jurisdiction by publication. Fowler v. Fowler, 190 N. C. 536, 540, 130 S. E. 315.

And the fact that the defendant is a nonresident, is not a sufficient averment in the affidavit, it being necessary to show that after due diligence he cannot be found within the state. Davis v. Davis, 179 N. C. 185, 102 S. E. 270. A publication based upon the mere allegation that the defendant is a nonresident does not give the court jurisdiction under the section. Flint v. Coffin, 176 Fed. 872.

Same—What Constitutes Due Diligence.—When the affidavit for publication sets out the return of the sheriff and avers that the defendants cannot be found "after due search," this is tantamount to "due diligence." Rose v. Davis, 140 N. C. 266, 269, 52 S. E. 780.

But, as will be seen from a later paragraph, this section does not require the issuance and return of summons not served. The preceding paragraph is only an illustration of the diligence that will suffice. Ed. Note.

Same—Specific Allegation of Jurisdiction.—There is no requirement in this section that an allegation as to the court's jurisdiction shall be made specifically in the affidavit. If the jurisdiction of the court, as to the subject of the action, appears from the facts alleged in the affidavits, and in the complaint, which was on file at the time the orders were made, this was sufficient. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 43, 74 S. E. 642; Bacon v. Johnson, 110 N. C. 114, 14 S. E. 508; Davis v. Davis, 179 N. C. 185, 102 S. E. 270; County Sav. Bank v. Tolbert, 192 N. C. 126, 129, 133 S. E. 558.

Same—Other Allegations.—Specific allegations necessary to obtain the order under the particular subdivisions of the section will be found under the following analysis line of this note. Ed. Note.

Same—Amendment.—Where the affidavit for the publication of a summons was defective, it was proper for the judge to permit an amendment and grant an alias order of publication instead of dismissing the action. Mullen v. Norfolk, etc., Canal Co., 112 N. C. 109, 16 S. E. 901.

Affidavit Not Required in Proceedings to Foreclose Tax Certificate.—Where the summons in proceedings to foreclose a tax certificate of the sale of lands in the action against the listed owner of the lands has been returned the defendant "not to be found," it is not required as under the provisions of this section, that this fact be made to appear by affidavit to the satisfaction of the court in order for valid service by publication. Orange County v. Jenkins, 200 Mass. 202, 203, 156 S. E. 774.

Issuance and Return of Summons Not a Prerequisite. — This section does not require the issuance and return of summons not served as the basis of or condition precedent to the publication. Grocery Co. v. Collins Bag Co., 142 N. C. 174, 55 S. E. 90, overruling McClure v. Fellows, 131 N. C. 509, 42 S. E. 951, and reinstating. Best v. British, etc., Mortg. Co., 128 N. C. 351, 38 S. E. 923.

Rights of Heirs May Be Determined Where Service Is by Publication.—A judgment entered in an action to determine the heirs at law of intestate for the purpose of distributing funds in the hands of his administrator, in which the court has jurisdiction of the administrator and the funds in his hands, and some of the heirs appear in court and the other heirs are duly served by publication, is not void, the judgment being one in rem, and service valid under this section. Ferguson v. Price, 206 N. C. 37, 173 S. E. 1.

Where the suit is merely in personam to determine the personal rights and obligations of the defendants, constructive service upon a resident is ineffectual for any purpose.

Hinton v. Penn. Mut. Life Ins. Co., 126 N. C. 18, 35 S. E. 182.

II. SERVICE BY PUBLICATION ON FOREIGN CORPORATION.

Editor's Note.—Section 1137, providing for service on a statutory agent of a foreign corporation, would seem to apply in nearly all the instances in which the circumstances prescribed by this subsection would occur. In view of the holding in Pardue v. Absher, 174 N. C. 676, 94 S. E. 414, it is probable that the two sections would be construed as cumulative, one of the other, and that the plaintiff might exercise an option as to the method of procedure.

Under this subsection, the unpaid balances due a foreign corporation on subscriptions to its stock by subscribers residing in this state are property of such corporation. Cooper v. Adel Security Co., 122 N. C. 463, 30 S. E. 348.

III. SERVICE BY PUBLICATION ON NONRESIDENT WITH PROPERTY WITHIN STATE.

In General.—A valid service by publication cannot be made on a nonresident unless he has property within the state. Everitt v. Austin Bros., 169 N. C. 622, 86 S. E. 523, and it is necessary to set forth this fact in the affidavit. Bacon v. Johnson, 110 N. C. 114, 14 S. E. 508.

A chose in action is property, and embraced in the terms of this subsection. Winfree v. Bagley, 102 N. C. 515, 9 S. E. 198.

Where the summons has been duly returned "defendant not to be found in the State," and at the time of its issuance it was alleged in a verified complaint and in supporting affidavits that the cause of action was for money had and received, and that the defendant was beyond the limits of the State, and was a resident of another State, this section has been substantially complied with and the validity of the service is upheld. Bethell v. Lee, 200 N. C. 755, 158 S. E. 493.

Attachment Necessary. — In an action in personam, in which no attachment has been or can be issued, service by publication on a nonresident is ineffectual for any purpose. Winfree v. Bagley, 102 N. C. 515, 9 S. E. 198. See also Price v. Cox, 83 N. C. 261; Wilson v. St. Louis Cook Mfg. Co., 88 N. C. 5.

Where an action is for the recovery of a debt and there is no attachment of the property to confer jurisdiction there can be no service by publication of the summons, or hence, actual service in another state "in line of publication" would be invalid. Long v. Home Ins. Co., 114 N. C. 465, 466, 19 S. E. 347; Bernhardt v. Brown, 118 N. C. 700, 701, 24 S. E. 527.

General Judgment Cannot Be Taken.—A plaintiff cannot take a general and personal judgment against a defendant, who is a nonresident, upon a service by publication and not even when an attachment has been levied on his property, the court having jurisdiction to adjudge against him only to the extent of the property seized. May v. Getty, 140 N. C. 310, 53 S. E. 75.

One who has left the State for an indefinite time, his return depending upon a doubtful contingency, is a nonresident for the purpose of service of summons by publication within subsection 3 of this section even though he may have retained his domicile in this state. And the cause of his absence from the state is immaterial if such absence prevents personal service for an indefinite period of time. Brann v. Hanes, 194 N. C. 571, 140 S. E. 292. See note under § 799.

IV. SERVICE BY PUBLICATION WHERE LIEN IS SUBJECT OF LITIGATION.

In General.—In Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U. S. 714, it is said: "Such service (by publication) may also be sufficient in cases where the object of the action is to reach and dispose of property in the state, or of some interest therein, by enforcing a contract or lien respecting the same, or to partition it among different owners, or, where the public is a party, to condemn and appropriate it for a public purpose." This is cited and approved in Winfree v. Bagley, 102 N. C. 515, 684, 9 S. E. 198; and Long v. Ins. Co., 114 N. C. 465. Bernhardt v. Brown, 118 N. C. 700, 701, 706, 24 S. E. 527, 715.

A judgment to enforce a mechanic's lien is a proceeding in rem, and service by publication is authorized by this subsection. Bernhardt v. Brown, 118 N. C. 700, 701, 706, 24 S. E. 527, 715.

V. SERVICE BY PUBLICATION IN ACTIONS FOR DIVORCE.

For article on "North Carolina and Jurisdiction for Divorce," mentioning this section, sec. 1 N. C. Law Rev. 95 et seq.

The Affidavit. — The requirements of this section are mandatory, and must be followed in good faith in actions of divorce to obtain an order of publication of service of summons, and where the plaintiff in divorce fails to make affidavit that the defendant cannot after due diligence be found in the state, knowing that she was residing in another county therein, subject to personal service, and the summons has been returned endorsed that defendant cannot be found within the county or its issuance, etc., the judgment rendered therein by the superior court is void, and may be vacated by the court granting it within its inherent powers. Fowler v. Fowler, 190 N. C. 536, 130 S. E. 315. For cases pertaining to the affidavit generally, see ante, this note, "In General" I.

Order of publication of service of summons in an action by the wife for divorce is not objectionable as irregular, for the failure of the affidavit to set forth a good cause of action, when there are therein allegations that the husband had abandoned his wife, had left the State after having wrongfully appropriated her separate property to his own use, leaving her without support, and had subjected her to an inquisition of lunacy, and is now professionally engaged in another State upon a good salary, etc.; and this principle also applies to a suit of the wife to recover lands purchased by the husband with her separate money, and title taken in himself without her consent, and in either case publication may be made. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216.

The Supreme Court has the power to permit an amendment therein to an affidavit made for the publication of a summons; but where the action is for divorce a vinculo, and the defect is in omitting the averment that the defendant cannot after due diligence be found in this state, and it is admitted that the defendant is a nonresident and at the time embraced by the publication, was absent from the state, the Supreme Court may remand the case to the Superior Court to hear and consider the evidence, and the Superior Court Judge, for the purpose of being advised may submit the question to a jury. Davis v. Davis, 179 N. C. 185, 102 S. E. 270.

Applied in King v. King, 84 N. C. 32.

VI. SERVICE BY PUBLICATION ON DOMESTIC CORPORATION.

Editor's Note.—As in the case of service of process by publication on a foreign corporation, discussed ante this note under the analysis line, "Service by Publication on a Foreign Corporation," II, it would appear that this subsection has been radically affected by the provisions of section 1137 which were taken from the Public Laws of 1901. The exact effect of this latter act is conjectural as the point has not been adjudicated by the cases.

In General.—Until the passage of this section there was no means provided for service of process against a domestic corporation whose officers and agents could not be found. It was simply a casus omissus. Bernhardt v. Brown, 118 N. C. 701, 707, 24 S. E. 527, 715.

"Certainly it is competent for the legislature to provide that, as to a corporation created by it, if no officer or agent of such corporation can be found in the state, then service can be had by publication." Bernhardt v. Brown, 118 N. C. 700, 701, 708, 24 S. E. 527, 715.

§ 485. Manner of publication. — The order must direct the publication in one or two newspapers to be designated as most likely to give notice to the person to be served, and for such length of time as is deemed reasonable, not less than once a week for four successive weeks, of a notice, giving the title and purpose of the action, and requiring the defendant to appear and answer, or demur to the complaint at a time and place therein mentioned; and no publication of the summons, or mailing of the summons and complaint, is necessary. The cost of publishing in a newspaper shall not exceed one dollar and fifty cents an inch of solid type, and shall in no case exceed six dollars for the notice. (Rev., s. 443; Code, s. 219; 1903, c. 134; C. C. P., c. 84; 1876-7, c. 241, s. 3.)

Sufficiency of Publication.—It is sufficient if the publication contains the substantial elements of the summons, and the fact that it is not a literal copy will not render the service void. Guilford County v. Georgia Co., 109 N. C. 310, 13 S. E. 861.

Service of summons made by publication from 3 of August to 31 of August, the term of the court to which the process was returnable beginning on the latter day, is a sufficient publication of "once a week for four weeks," and a compliance with the statutes in that respect. Guilford County v. Georgia Co., 109 N. C. 310, 13 S. E. 861.

There being no specific requirement of statute that an order for the publication of summons state that the paper in which the publication is ordered to be printed is the one "most likely to give notice to the person to be served," a judgment that the clerk be restrained from ordering publication in a certain paper without such finding in the order is beyond the terms of the statute and would seem to be discriminatory, and on appeal the judgment will be modified; and order for publication of summons being made by a court of record there is a presumption in favor of the rightfulness of its decrees, and it will be presumed that the statutory findings and determination had been made, without specific adjudication in the order to that effect. Elias v. Commissioners of Buncombe, 198 N. C. 733, 153 S. E. 323.

Warrant of Attachment Insufficient.—The publication of the warrant of attachment does not serve the purpose of this section, as the section specifies that the publication of notice must be in a newspaper. Ditmore v. Goins, 128 N. C. 325, 327, 39 S. E. 61.

§ 486. Filing complaint, in cases of publication.—In all cases wherein publication is made, the complaint must be filed before the expiration of the time of publication ordered. (Rev., s. 442; Code, s. 218.)

§ 487. When service by publication complete.—In the cases in which service by publication is allowed, the summons is deemed served at the expiration of the time prescribed by the order of publication, and the party is then in court. (Rev., s. 444; Code, s. 227; C. C. P., s. 88.)

§ 488. Jurisdiction acquired from service. — From the time of service of the summons, in a civil action, or the allowance of a provisional remedy, the court is deemed to have acquired jurisdiction, and to have control of all subsequent proceedings. (Rev., s. 445; Code, s. 229; C. C. P., s. 90.)

§ 489. Proof of service.—Proof of the service of the summons or notice must be—

1. By the certificate of the sheriff or other proper officer.

2. In case of publication, the affidavit of the printer, or of his foreman or principal clerk, showing the same.

3. The written admission of the defendant. (Rev., s. 446; Code, s. 228; C. C. P., s. 89.)

This section is exhaustive and proof of the service of a notice must be such as is required by this section. Allen v. Strickland, 100 N. C. 225, 6 S. E. 780.

Necessity for Proof.—Where service of process on nonresidents was necessary it is error for the judge of probate (or clerk) to make an order for the sale of lands without adjudging by the proofs required by this section that the defendants had been regularly served with process by publication. Hyman v. Jarnigan, 65 N. C. 96.

Written Admission.—Where service is accepted in writing, it will be treated as "the written admission of" service as contemplated by this section. First Nat. Bank v. Wilson, 80 N. C. 200; Nicholson v. Cox, 83 N. C. 44. Godwin v. Monds, 106 N. C. 448, 450, 10 S. E. 1044.

It is manifest that no verbal admission of service or assent to the service as made will be a service within the provision of this section. First Nat. Bank v. Wilson, 80 N. C. 200, 202.

Personal service of a copy of the summons on a defendant, or his written admission thereof, is necessary to constitute a case in court. A copy left with defendant's wife is not a legal service, and proof of its delivery to him by her, or of his recognition of or verbal assent thereto, will not make it sufficient. First Nat. Bank v. Wilson, 80 N. C. 200.

Cited in Brann v. Hanes, 194 N. C. 571, 140 S. E. 292.

§ 490. Voluntary appearance by defendant. — A voluntary appearance of a defendant is equivalent to personal service of the summons upon him. (Rev., s. 447; Code, s. 229; C. C. P., s. 90.)

Effect of General Appearance. — A general appearance waives all defects and irregularities, and is sufficient even if there has been no service at all of the summons shown. Ashford v. Davis, 185 N. C. 89, 116 S. E. 162. Burton v. Smith, 191 N. C. 599, 132 S. E. 605.

"By making a general appearance and filing an answer upon the merits the defendant waived any defect in the service of the summons. The statute provides that the voluntary appearance of a defendant is equivalent to personal service of the summons." McCollum v. Stack, 188 N. C. 462, 465, 124 S. E. 864; Moody v. Moody, 118 N. C. 926, 23 S. E. 933.

An appearance for the purpose of filing a demurrer or answer to the complaint is a general appearance to its merits and confers jurisdiction by waiving a proper service of summons. Reel v. Boyd, 195 N. C. 273, 141 S. E. 891; Abbitt v. Gregory, 195 N. C. 203, 141 S. E. 587.

The giving of a replevy bond is equivalent to a general appearance entered by a defendant in attachment, and is a waiver of the irregularities, if any, in the service of summons, or the necessity of such service, and estops the defendant from denying ownership of the property levied on, but it does not estop defendant from traversing the truth of the allegation on which the attachment is based. Bizzell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706.

§ 491. Personal service on nonresident.—When the place of residence is known and the same is made to appear by affidavit, in lieu of publication in a newspaper it is sufficient to mail a copy of the summons, notice or other process, accompanied by a statement as to the nature of the action or proceeding, to the sheriff or other process officer of the county and state where the defendant resides, who shall serve same according to its tenor. The process officer who serves the papers shall, in making his return, use a form of certificate substantially as follows:

State of .....

County of .....

I, ..., clerk of the ..... court of ..... county, in the state of ....., which court is a court of record having a seal, which is hereto attached, do certify that ....., to me well known as the sheriff of said county of ....., who being by me duly sworn, says that as such sheriff he has full power to serve any and all legal processes issuing from the courts of said state, and that on the ..... day of ....., 19...., he served the summons hereto attached by reading and delivering a copy of same to ....., the defendant therein named.

(Rev., s. 448; 1891, c. 120.)

When Service by Mail Permitted. — The service of summons and other process authorized by this section is "in lieu of publication in a newspaper," and can only be made in those cases where publication could be made, to wit, in actions which are virtually proceedings in rem or quasi in rem, and in which the jurisdiction as to nonresidents only authorizes a judgment acting upon the property, Long v. Home Ins. Co., 114 N. C. 465, 19 S. E. 347.

Cumulative Method. — The method of mailing the process is optional and not exclusive of service by publication in cases in which this last is proper. Mullen v. Norfolk, etc., Canal Co., 114 N. C. 8, 19 S. E. 106.

Jurisdiction Acquired. — The courts of this State have jurisdiction of the persons of nonresident defendants to the extent required in proceedings in rem or quasi in rem, when personal service is made by complying with the requirements of this section and the property is situated here. Vick v. Flournoy, 147 N. C. 209, 60 S. E. 978.

Omission of Clerk's Seal.—A summons issued without the seal of the clerk of the court, personally served upon nonresident defendants under this section, is an irregularity. Vick v. Flournoy, 147 N. C. 209, 60 S. E. 978.

Objection made to the summons, which was issued under this section without the seal of the clerk of the court to nonresident defendants, cannot be sustained when it appears that the defendants have been actually notified of the time and place of the trial and informed of the nature and purpose of the action. Such defect may now be cured by the act of the clerk in supplying the seal pursuant to an order properly made in the cause. Vick v. Flournoy, 147 N. C. 209, 60 S. E. 978.

Application. — A motion, by special appearance of the nonresident defendants, to dismiss the action for want of jurisdiction of the person will not be granted in a suit to redeem lands and to enforce a contract solely in respect of the same, when the locus in quo is situated within the State and personal service was made in compliance with this section. Vick v. Flournoy, 147 N. C. 209, 60 S. E. 978.

Where from the verified pleadings of a party the location of the defendant is determined and personal service has been made, an exception to the validity of the service on the ground that the place of residence of defendant in another state was not made to appear by affidavit to the clerk prior to the mailing of the summons cannot be sustained, the provisions of this section having been substantially complied with. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Green, 200 N. C. 535, 157 S. E. 797. But a different rule applies to § 484, relating to service by publication where the defendant's rights may be lost through lack of knowledge and lapse of time.

This section has no application to service of subpoenas in criminal actions. There is no statute which authorizes service on witnesses beyond the state in such cases. State v. Means, 175 N. C. 820, 824, 95 S. E. 912.

§ 491(a). Service upon non-resident drivers of motor vehicles.—The acceptance by a non-resident of the rights and privileges conferred by the laws now or hereafter in force in this state permitting the operation of motor vehicles, as evidenced by the operation of a motor vehicle by such non-resident on the public highways of this state, or the operation by such non-resident of a motor vehicle on the public highways of the state other than as so permitted or regulated, shall be deemed equivalent to the appointment by such non-resident of the Commissioner of Revenue, or of his successor in office, to be his true and lawful attorney upon whom may be served all summonses or other lawful process in any action or proceeding against him, growing out of any accident or collision in which said non-resident may be involved by reason of the operation by him, for him, or under his control or direction, express or implied, of a motor vehicle on such public highway of this State, and said acceptance or operation shall be a signification of his agreement that any such process against him shall be of the same legal force and vitality as if served on him personally. Service of such process shall be made by leaving a copy thereof with a fee of one dollar, in the hands of said Commissioner of Revenue, or in his office, and such service shall be sufficient service upon the said non-resident: Provided, that notice of such service and a copy of the process are forthwith sent by registered mail by the plaintiff or the Commissioner of Revenue to the defendant and the defendant's return receipt and the plaintiff's affidavit of compliance herewith are appended to the summons or other process and filed with said summons, complaint and other papers in the cause. The court in which the action is pending shall order such continuance as may be necessary to afford the defendant reasonable opportunity to defend the action. (1929, c. 75, s. 1.)

This section is constitutional and valid. Bigham v. Foor, 201 N. C. 14.

Section Not Retroactive.—This section providing that a nonresident by using the highways of the State, will be deemed to have appointed the Commissioner of Revenue as his agent for the service of process is not remedial or curative, but affects a substantial right, and the appointment of the Commissioner thereunder is contractual, and the statute is not to be given retroactive effect, and service of process thereunder in an action accruing before the effective force of the statute is void. Ashley v. Brown, 198 N. C. 369, 151 S. E. 725.

Car Must Be under Control of Nonresident Defendant.—In order to hold an attempted service upon a nonresident valid under this section there must be sufficient evidence to support a finding that the automobile was operated under the "control or direction, express or implied" of the nonresident defendant. Smith v. Haughton, 206 N. C. 587, 174 S. E. 506.

Findings by Trial Court That Defendant Was a Nonresident Is Conclusive on Appeal.—Upon motion to dismiss an action on the ground that the defendant was a resident of this state and was served with summons under a statute authorizing service on nonresidents, the finding of fact by the superior court judge that the defendant was a nonresident, based upon competent evidence, is conclusive on appeal. Bigham v. Foor, 201 N. C. 14.

§ 491(b). Record of such processes; delivery of return.—The Commissioner of Revenue shall keep a record of all such processes, which shall show the day and hour of service upon him. When the registry return receipt shall be returned to the Commissioner of Revenue, he shall deliver it to the plaintiff on request and keep a record showing the date of its receipt by him and its delivery to the plaintiff. (1929, c. 75, s. 2.)

§ 491(c). Alternative method of service upon nonresident defendants.—In addition to the method provided in section 491(a) and 491(b), the plaintiff may adopt the following method of giving notice to a non-resident defendant or defendants:

When the place of residence of the defendant or defendants in the action described in sections 491(a) and 491(b) is made to appear by affidavit filed with the Commissioner of Revenue and the plaintiff files with the Commissioner of Revenue at least five ($5.00) dollars to pay the costs of the service hereinafter provided for, then it shall be sufficient for the Commissioner of Revenue to mail a copy of the summons, together with a statement sufficient to show the nature of the action or proceedings, accompanied by his certificate that the summons and complaint had been served on him, to the sheriff or other process officer of the county and state where the defendant or defendants reside. This sheriff or other process officer, authorized to serve process in the state to which it is sent, shall serve the same according to its tenor. This sheriff or process officer, who serves the papers, shall, in making his return, use a form of certificate substantially as follows; and this form of certificate shall accompany the other papers in the case:

STATE OF .....

COUNTY OF .....

I, ..., Clerk of the ..... Court of ..... County in the State of ....., which court is a court of record, having a seal, which is hereto attached, do certify that ....., to me well known as a proper process officer of said county of ....., who being by me duly sworn, says that as such process officer he has full power to serve any and all legal processes, issued from the courts of said State, and that on the ..... day of ....., 19.....,

he served the summons and accompanying statement hereto attached, by reading and delivering a copy of the same to the defendant therein named (if more than one defendant, copies to each of them).

SIGNED.....
Process Officer.
.....County
.....State

Sworn to and subscribed before me this..... day of ....., 19....., ..., Clerk..... Court, county of ....., or city of ..... (SEAL)

Said sheriff or process officer shall immediately upon the execution of this evidence of service, return the same with the original papers in the cause to the Commissioner of Revenue, Raleigh, North Carolina. When the Commissioner of Revenue shall receive these papers, thus served, he shall deliver the same to the plaintiff on request, and keep a record showing the date of their receipt by him and their delivery to the plaintiff. Upon the filing of these papers in the court where the action is pending, accompanied by evidence of service upon the Commissioner of Revenue, as required by section 491(a), that shall constitute presumptive evidence of actual notice to the defendant or defendants of the pendency of the action and of its nature and effect. (1931, c. 33, s. 1.)

§ 492. Defense after judgment on substituted service. — The defendant against whom publication is ordered, or who is served under the provisions of the preceding section, or his representatives, on application and sufficient cause shown at any time before judgment, must be allowed to defend the action; and, except in an action for divorce, the defendant against whom publication is ordered, or his representatives, may in like manner, upon good cause shown, be allowed to defend after judgment, or at any time within one year after notice thereof, and within five years after its rendition, on such terms as are just; and if the defense is successful and the judgment or any part thereof has been collected or otherwise enforced, such restitution may be compelled as the court directs. Title to property sold under such judgment to a purchaser in good faith is not thereby affected. No fiduciary officer or trustee who has made distribution of a fund under such judgment in good faith is personally liable if the judgment is changed by reason of such defense made after its rendition; nor in case the judgment was rendered for the partition of land, and any persons receiving any of the land in such partition sell it to a third person; the title of such third person is not affected if such defense is successful, but the redress of the person so defending after judgment shall be had by proper judgment against the parties to the original judgment and their heirs and personal representatives, and in no case affects persons who in good faith have dealt with such parties or their heirs or personal representatives on the basis of such judgment being permanent. (Rev., s. 449; Code, s. 220; C. C. P., s. 85; 1917, c. 68.)

This section will be broadly construed to include within the term "representatives" all persons succeeding the rights of such party, in this case a mortgage creditor. Hood v. Freel, 206 N. C. 432, 174 S. E. 310.

Right to Remedy Afforded by Section.—Where the judgment affects the rights of the petitioner's debtor and is based upon substituted service, the petitioner's debtor is entitled to invoke the remedy contained in this section. Hood v. Freel, 206 N. C. 432, 435, 174 S. E. 310.

Not Applicable to Justices' Court. — This section is not applicable to a proceeding in a justices' court. Thompson v. Lynchburg Notion Co., 160 N. C. 519, 76 S. E. 470.

Effect and Sufficiency of Findings by Clerk—Extension of Time to Plead.—A nonresident defendant served by publication, and failing to file answer within the time prescribed by law, may make application to the clerk before judgment for good cause shown to be allowed to file pleadings and defend the action, as provided by this section, and where upon such application and affidavits filed by him setting forth facts showing prima facie good cause and a meritorious defense, the clerk finds as a fact that he has a meritorious defense and has shown good cause, the clerk's order allowing him to file answer and defend the action will not be held for error for the clerk's failure to more specifically find the facts constituting such meritorious defense, and it is within the discretion of the judge of the Superior Court on appeal to enter an order allowing an extension of time for filing answer as provided by sections 536, 637. Vann v. Coleman, 206 N. C. 451, 174 S. E. 301.

Judgment as Bar to Action against Administrator.—Where an administrator has disbursed the funds in his hand in accordance with the judgment and filed his final account, the judgment will bar an action against the administrator by those heirs unknown at the time of the institution of the action and who did not see the notice by publication and did not appear in the action, this section providing that no fiduciary officer acting in good faith shall be personally liable for such disbursement. Ferguson v. Price, 206 N. C. 37, 173 S. E. 1.

Vacation of Judgment. — Under this section the defendant, where his affidavit fully justifies the findings of fact made by the court and brings him within the terms of the section, has a legal right to have the judgment vacated. Such a right is absolute and not within the discretion of the presiding judge. Rhodes v. Rhodes, 125 N. C. 191, 34 S. E. 271; Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642; Moore v. Rankin, 172 N. C. 599, 600, 90 S. E. 759.

The allegations of the complaint particularly describing the lands situate here of the nonresident husband sought to be subjected to the wife's claim for alimony in her suit for divorce, and the judgment therein directing it to be sold accordingly, practically amount to an attachment of the lands indicated. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216.

Good Cause. — Allegations by the movant to set aside a judgment, for irregularity, that he has "a good and meritorious defense," is but his own opinion, and is insufficient; nor is it aided by erroneous statements of matters of law or of conflicting facts that have been judicially found adverse to his contentions. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216.

No "good cause is shown" to set aside a judgment allowing alimony to the wife pendente lite her action for divorce, or in a suit to declare him her trustee in taking title to lands bought with her money and without her consent, where publication of summons has been regularly made under this section, and in proceedings regular upon their face, when the motion has been made after a lapse of nearly five years, the defendant had actual knowledge of the action, and the death of the wife has caused the loss of the evidence upon which the judgments were rendered. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216.

The words of this section "upon such terms as are just" ought not to be construed as limiting or modifying the right to defend, which is an absolute, legal right of the defendant. They should be construed as conferring upon the court, by whose order the defendant obtains his legal right to defend, power, by the imposition of just terms, to put plaintiff and defendant, as near as may be, in the same relative position, with reference to the subject-matter of the litigation, as they were in at the time the action was begun, or at least at the time the defendant would have been required to answer the complaint if the summons had been personally served upon him. The court has power to do this by orders with reference to the costs that have accrued, or by interlocutory orders, with respect to property within its jurisdiction, or by such orders, designed to protect the plaintiff who had recovered the judgment, set aside and vacated upon the motion of the defendant, upon service of summons on the defendant as provided by the laws of this state, from loss which might result to him from the action of the court. It ought not to be held that the court has power to impose terms upon the defendant which would result in depriving him of a right guaranteed to him by law. The right to defend an action necessarily involves a right to answer or demur to the complaint, in accordance with the provisions of the statute or general rule of court, and thus to raise issues of fact to be tried by a jury, or issues of law to be tried by the court. It cannot be said that although this right is absolute a defendant can enjoy it only at the discretion of the court. Burton v. Smith, 191 N. C. 599, 605, 132 S. E. 605.

Any Exception. — Being a remedial statute, a just construction allows the party against whom a judgment has been taken to set up any exception which would have prevented or modified the judgment, e grege, inequality of partition. Rhodes v. Rhodes, 125 N. C. 191, 34 S. E. 271.

The defense intended to be allowed, under this section, to one who has not been actually but only constructively in court (by publication), is not confined to matters which if pleaded in apt time would defeat the action. Rhodes v. Rhodes, 125 N. C. 191, 34 S. E. 271.

Facts Must Be Found by Court. — Upon a motion to be allowed to defend under this section, the facts in the case must be found by the court in which the motion is made. Utley v. Peters, 72 N. C. 525.

Judgments by Default. — Where a judgment by default in the state court in an action against a nonresident defendant by a resident plaintiff, in which summons by publication was made, has been set aside on defendant's motion, the mere fact that the judge has allowed him the statutory time in which to answer or demur, without defendant's objection, does not call for the exercise of the court's discretion, and the defendant may therein aptly file his petition and bond for the removal of the cause to the Federal Court as a matter of his legal right. Burton v. Smith, 191 N. C. 599, 132 S. E. 605.

A judgment by default final in favor of material furnishers, etc., for a building erected on the lands of a nonresident owner, by service of summons by publication, may be set aside upon defendant's motion under this section, made in two days after he had notice of the pendency of the action, upon a finding of a meritorious defense. Burton v. Smith, 191 N. C. 599, 132 S. E. 605, and other cases, cited as controlling. Bassett Lumber Co. v. Rhyne, 192 N. C. 735, 135 S. E. 926.

Where service has been made by publication, upon defendant's motion to set aside a judgment by default in plaintiff's favor, within five years from its date, or one year after notice, this section applies to the exclusion of section 600. Foster v. Allison Corp., 191 N. C. 166, 131 S. E. 648.

By appearing and moving to set aside a judgment by default rendered, a nonresident defendant upon whom summons by publication had been made, and who brings himself within the provisions of this section by moving within a reasonable time after notice, has as a matter of right twenty days from the time such judgment had been set aside in which to answer or demur, and only by requesting or acquiescing in a longer time granted by the court is there a waiver of his right to file a petition and bond for the removal of the cause to the United States Court, under the Federal Satute. Burton v. Smith, 191 N. C. 599, 132 S. E. 605.

Exception as to Lands Sold in Divorce Proceedings. — The provisions of this section, as to setting aside judgments against nonresident defendants served by publication, upon motion showing sufficient cause, made within a year after notice, and within five years after its rendition on such terms as may be just, with restitution, etc., does not apply where the lands have been regularly sold under an order of court in divorce proceedings, of which the defendant had notice, to pay the wife alimony which had been allowed her. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216. See note of this case under § 1666.

Same — Attachment of Lands — Alimony — Notice. — Attachment of the lands situated here of the nonresident husband, is not necessary to subject it to the payment of alimony regularly allowed the wife pendente lite her suit for divorce, upon publication of summons, or to declare the husband her trustee in his purchase of lands with her separate money, to which he had taken title in himself, without her consent, nor in either case is any notice required beyond publication of summons. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216.

See notes to sec. 476.

Art. 9. Prosecution Bonds

§ 493. Plaintiff's, for costs.—Before issuing the summons the clerk shall require the plaintiff to do one of the following:

1. Give an undertaking with sufficient surety in the sum of two hundred dollars, with the condition that it will be void if the plaintiff pays the defendant all costs which the latter recovers of him in the action.

2. Deposit two hundred dollars with him as security to the defendant for these costs, in which event the clerk must give to the plaintiff and defendant a certificate to that effect.

3. File with him a written authority from a judge or a clerk of a superior court, authorizing the plaintiff to sue as a pauper: Provided, however, that the requirements of this section shall not apply to cities and towns; provided, further, that cities and towns may institute civil actions and special proceedings without being required to give a prosecution bond or make deposit in lieu of bond. (Rev., s. 450; Code, s. 209; R. C., c. 31, s. 40; C. C. P., s. 71; 1935, c. 398.)

Cross References.—As to a mortgage in lieu of a bond for prosecuting or defending in civil cases, see sec. 350. As to a surety company as bond, see sec. 339. As to costs generally, see sections 1225 et seq.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 adds the two provisos, at the end of subsection (3), relating to cities and towns.

The object of the prosecution bond is not to secure the officers but to secure the defendant in the recovery of costs wrongfully paid out. Waldo v. Wilson, 177 N. C. 461, 100 S. E. 182.

Who Can Take Bond. — The action of the Clerk in taking prosecution bonds was always held to be ministerial. They may be taken by a deputy clerk, and are habitually taken by attorneys, who have authority from the clerks for that purpose, but are not their deputies. Shepherd v. Lane, 13 N. C. 148; Croom v. Morrisey, 63 N. C. 591; Marsh & Co. v. Cohen, 68 N. C. 283, 288.

When Bond Not Given. — When the prosecution bond has not been given, but the plaintiff has been permitted to go on and prepare his case for trial, the court will not, on motion of the defendant, dismiss the action peremptorily for want of the bond, but will permit the plaintiff to prepare and file his bond. Brittain v. Howell, 19 N. C. 107; Russell v. Saunders, 48 N. C. 432; Albertson v. Terry, 109 N. C. 8, 13 S. E. 713; Cooper v. Warlick, 109 N. C. 672, 673, 14 S. E. 106.

A motion to dismiss for the failure of the plaintiff to file a prosecution bond required by this section, made for the first time in the Supreme Curt on appeal, will be denied when it has been properly made to appear that plaintiff had filed a proper bond after the issuance of the summons. Costello v. Parker, 194 N. C. 221, 139 S. E. 224.

Undertaking Under Seal. — Where an undertaking to secure the costs of the defendant is given in the form of a bond, the seal does not defeat its purpose, and it will be treated as an undertaking under seal. Holly v. Perry, 94 N. C. 30.

Undertaking Written On Summons. — Where an undertaking under seal to secure the defendant's costs, was written on the back of the summons, but did not specify the name of either the plaintiff or defendant, or the surety, it was held to be sufficient. Holly v. Perry, 94 N. C. 30.

Increasing Penalty of Bond. — The court can increase the penalty on the bond, which is not an unusual procedure in the courts. Jones v. Cox, 46 N. C. 373; Adams v. Reeves, 76 N. C. 412; Vaughan v. Vincent, 88 N. C. 116; Rollins v. Henry, 77 N. C. 467; Kenney v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 166 N. C. 566, 571, 82 S. E. 849.

Same — When Exercised. — Where the defendant has been successful on his appeal to the Supreme Court, and his judgment for costs against the sureties on the prosecution bond of the plaintiff results in making insecure the costs in the superior court, the remedy is by application to increase the penalty of the bond. Kennedy v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 166 N. C. 566, 567, 82 S. E. 849.

Same—Court Has Discretion. — Where a plaintiff has given a bond for costs which has become insufficient, the court has the power to allow him to proceed with his case without giving additional security. Holder v. Jones, 29 N. C. 191; Dale v. Presnell, 119 N. C. 489, 491, 26 S. E. 27.

What Undertaking Covers. — The undertaking provided for by this section may cover the defendant's costs on appeal. Kenney v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 166 N. C. 566, 82 S. E. 849.

Same — Does Not Apply to Plaintiff's Costs. — In contemplation of law, the parties pay the cost of the litigation as the action proceeds and this bond is given, it is true, entirely for the benefit of defendants. The surety is not bound for plaintiff's cost. Hallman v. Dellinger, 84 N. C. 1; Smith v. Arthur, 116 N. C. 871, 873, 21 S. E. 696.

No Appeal from Judge's Refusal to Require Bond. — The refusal of the trial judge to require a prosecution bond is not appealable. Christian v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 136 N. C. 321, 48 S. E. 743.

Appeal by Surety. — Though a surety on a prosecution bond is not a party to the action, yet, when he is made a party to a proceeding to tax the costs in a case, he may appeal from the order allowing the motion to retax. Smith v. Arthur, 116 N. C. 871, 872, 21 S. E. 696.

County Trustee Suing On Sheriff's Bond. — A suit by a county trustee, suing upon a sheriff's official bond, as relator in the name of the State, is within the meaning of this section requiring clerks to take prosecution bonds before issuing a leading process. King v. Wooten, 52 N. C. 533.

§ 494. Suit as a pauper; counsel.—Any judge or clerk of the superior court may authorize a person to sue as a pauper in their respective courts when he proves, by one or more witnesses, that he has a good cause of action, and makes affidavit that he is unable to comply with the preceding section. The court to which such summons is returnable may assign to the person suing as a pauper learned counsel, who shall prosecute his action. (Rev., ss. 451, 452; Code, ss. 210, 211; C. C. P., s. 72; 1868-9, c. 96, s. 2.)

Cross References. — As to costs in suits in forma pauperis, see sec. 1247. As to appeals in forma pauperis, see sec. 649.

Exception to Preceding Section. — This section is in the nature of an exception to the general rule in section 493. Dale v. Presnell, 119 N. C. 489, 492, 26 S. E. 27.

Section Does Not Apply to Appeals. — The leave to sue as a pauper, under this section and section 1247, does not extend in civil actions, beyond the trial in the superior court, his appeal being governed by section 649, which only relieves him from giving security for the costs of the appeal, but he must pay the fees as to the appeal due the officers of both courts for services rendered. Speller v. Speller, 119 N. C. 356, 26 S. E. 160. See Martin v. Chasteen, 75 N. C. 96; Bailey v. Brown, 105 N. C. 127, 129, 10 S. E. 1054.

Court Has Discretion. — The right to sue as a pauper is a favor granted the plaintiff, and is in the power and discretion of the Court. Dale v. Presnell, 119 N. C. 489, 492, 36 S. E. 27.

When the action is by the personal representative to recover on a contract or other claim due his testator or intestate, or the action is to recover property belonging to the estate, the court may well refuse leave to sue as a pauper, under its discretion, Dale v. Presnell, 119 N. C. 489, 36 S. E. 27, unless, as said in McKiel v. Cutler, 45 N. C. 139, it appears that the beneficiaries of the estate cannot give bond, for the officers of the court ought not needlessly be deprived of pay for their services. Christian v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 136 N. C. 321, 323, 48 S. E. 743.

Judge, Clerk or Justice May Grant. — A judge or clerk of the superior court may, in cases within the jurisdiction of said court, make an order authorizing any person complying with the provisions of the said act to sue in forma pauperis. A justice of the peace has like power, in cases within the jurisdiction of his county. Rowark v. Gaston 67 N. C. 291.

Plaintiff's Affidavit Necessary. — Whether the application be to commence the action or to appeal from an adverse determination without security, it must be supported by the affidavit of the party, and no provision is made for any other mode of proving the fact that he is unable to give security. The necessity of such affidavit is held in Miazza v. Calloway, 74 N. C. 31; Stell v. Barham, 85 N. C. 88, 89.

Proving Good Cause of Action. — In granting an order for a person to sue in forma pauperis, it is sufficient compliance with this section for the presiding judge to be satisfied, by a certificate of counsel or otherwise, that the plaintiff has an honest cause of action on which he may reasonably expect to recover. Miazza v. Calloway, 74 N. C. 31.

Security for Costs. — Under this section the judge may, in his discretion, require a plaintiff who has been allowed to sue in forma pauperis to give security for costs. Dale v. Presnell, 119 N. C. 489, 26 S. E. 27.

Pauper Must Pay Witnesses. — Although this section, allowing a party to sue as a pauper, excuses such party from paying fees to any officer and deprives him of the right to recover costs. It is held, that it does not excuse the pauper from liability for his witnesses. Morris v. Rippy, 49 N. C. 533; Bailey v. Brown, 105 N. C. 127, 129, 10 S. E. 1054.

Who Can Sue in Forma Pauperis. — "A guardian can sue in forma pauperis." Christian v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 136 N. C. 321, 322, 48 S. E. 743.

Same — Non-Resident. — The words of this section are broad enough to include any litigant whatever, and hence residents of another state can sue here in forma pauperis. Porter v. Jones, 68 N. C. 320; Christian v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 136 N. C. 321, 48 S. E. 743.

Same — Personal Representative. — It has been the unquestioned practice since the adoption of the Code, that a personal representative could sue as a pauper upon proper affidavit and certificate. Allison v. Southern R. Co., 129 N. C. 336, at p. 344, 40 S. E. 91; Christian v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 136 N. C. 321, 48 S. E. 743.

No Presumption of Contingent Fee. — The bringing of a pauper suit does not raise the presumption that the attorney took the case for a contingent fee and was therefore a party in interest. Allison v. Southern R. Co., 129 N. C. 336, 40 S. E. 91.

Where Plaintiff Assigns Interest Pending Action. — Where a plaintiff, pending an action brought in forma pauperis, assigned his interest in the land which was the subject of the action, the court will require the assignee to give security, or it will withdraw the privilege given to the assignor and dismiss the action. Davis v. Higgins, 91 N. C. 382; Dale v. Presnell, 119 N. C. 489, 491, 26 S. E. 27.

Cited in Costello v. Parker, 194 N. C. 221, 139 S. E. 224.

§ 495. Defendant's, for costs and damages in actions for land.—In all actions for the recovery or possession of real property, the defendant, before he is permitted to plead, must execute and file in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the suit is pending an undertaking with sufficient surety, in an amount fixed by the court, not less than two hundred dollars, to be void on condition that the defendant pays to the plaintiff all costs and damages which the latter recovers in the action, including damages for the loss of rents and profits. (Rev., s. 453; Code, s. 237; 1869-70, c. 193.)

Cross References.—As to justification of sureties, see sec. 647. As to judgment by default final upon failure of defendant to file undertaking or of his sureties to justify, see sec. 595 (4).

Purpose of Section.—The purpose of the Legislature in passing the statute was to indemnify the plaintiff in such actions for costs, in case he should prevail. It was never intended that the requirements should be made an engine of oppression, and that a party having merit should, on technical grounds, forfeit his right to be heard when he is ready to secure costs, and when, in the opinion of the presiding judge, it is proper to give further time to plead, in order to permit the filing of the bond. Henning v. Warner, 109 N. C. 406, 408, 14 S. E. 317.

Relation to Other Sections of Code.—This section and section 595, par. 4 are in pari materia with section 509 as amended by Public Laws of 1921, ch. 92, sec. 1, par. 3, and should be construed together. Battle v. Mercer, 187 N. C. 437, 446, 122 S. E. 4.

Time in Which to File Bond.—Where the complaint in an action has not been served with the summons, the defendant has twenty days after its return date in which to answer or demur; and when the defendant is in possession of land, and the action is to recover the lands the defendant has also twenty days, under the circumstances, before pleading, in which to file the bond required, by this section, conditioned upon his paying to plaintiff all costs and damages which the latter may recover, including damages for the loss of rents and profits. Jones v. Jones, 187 N. C. 589, 122 S. E. 370. As to change in the time of answer after service, see section 476 and the note thereto.

Judge May Grant Extension.—Section 536 confers on the judge the discretion to extend the time for filing the defense bond. Taylor v. Pope, 106 N. C. 267, 271, 11 S. E. 257; Tennessee River Land Co. v. Butler, 134 N. C. 50, 45 S. E. 956; White v. Lokey, 131 N. C. 72, 42 S. E. 445.

Same—Effect of Amendments of 1921.—Under the provisions of chapter 92, section 1, par. 18, Public Laws of 1921, the power of the superior court judge, to allow amendments to pleadings (given by section 547), or to allow answer to be filed (section 536), applying also to the defendant, in possession of lands and claiming an interest therein, giving bond (this section) is not affected. Battle v. Mercer, 187 N. C. 437, 122 S. E. 4.

Same—No Appeal.—Extension of time to file a defense bond is a matter in the discretion of the judge, for which no appeal will lie. Dunn v. Marks, 141 N. C. 232, 233, 53 S. E. 845.

Failure to File Answer or Give Bond.—Where, in an action to recover possession of land, the defendant failed to file an answer or the bond required by this section and did not ask leave to answer without giving bond until the time for answering had expired, it was proper, under Sec. 595 to give judgment against the defendant of the land without damages. Jones v. Best, 121 N. C. 154, 28 S. E. 187. Junge v. MacKnight, 135 N. C. 105, 107, 47 S. E. 452.

Same—Excusable Neglect Immaterial.—Where, in an action to recover land, the defendant fails to file, or is not excused from filing, the bond required by this section, a judgment by default is authorized by section 595 of the Code, even if there has been a failure to file an answer arising from excusable neglect. Vick v. Baker, 122 N. C. 98, 29 S. E. 64.

Failure to Give Undertaking.—Where a defendant in ejectment fails to file the undertaking required by this section, or procure leave to defend without bond, section 496, the court, at such term, may strike out the answer and render judgment by default. Patrick v. Dunn, 162 N. C. 19, 77 S. E. 995.

Where the defendant in a petition for partition pleaded sole seizin, it was error to strike out his answer without notice, because no defense bond had been filed, but he should have been given an opportunity to file a bond or obtain leave to defend without it under section 496. Cooper v. Warlick, 109 N. C. 672, 14 S. E. 106.

Same—When No Objection Made.—When an answer has been filed without any bond, and has remained on file for some time without objection, it is held to be irregular to strike it out and give judgment without notice or rule to show cause, or without giving the defendant opportunity to file a defense bond. McMillan v. Baker, 92 N. C. 111; Cooper v. Warlick, 109 N. C. 672, 14 S. E. Becton v. Dunn, 137 N. C. 559, 563, 50 S. E. 289.

Same—Same—Waiver — The failure for three years to move for judgment by default for failure to file a defense bond waives the right thereto. Tennessee River Land, etc., Co. v. Butler, 134 N. C. 50, 45 S. E. 956.

Defective Bond May Be Cured.—A failure to file a "justified" defense bond as required by this section and 595 par. 4, and 647 does not necessarily avoid the bond, but it is a defect which may be cured by waiver, and an exception to the filing of the bond entered by the plaintiff on the back thereof, but no action taken by the court in reference to it, does not authorize the court to give judgment by default without notice to the defendant. Becton v. Dunn, 137 N. C. 559, 50 S. E. 289; McMillan v. Baker, 92 N. C. 111.

When Landlord and Tenant Joint Defendants.—Where a landlord is joined as a defendant with his tenant, the tenant and landlord thus defending must under this section each give bond with good security to pay costs and damages if the plaintiff recovers; or if he be not able to give such bond, he must make affidavit of that fact under section 496, and get the certificate of an attorney practicing in the court that, in his opinion, the plaintiff is not entitled to recover. Harkey v. Houston, 65 N. C. 137.

When the tenant fails to give such bond, or to swear to his answer when the plaintiff has sworn to his complaint, the plaintiff may take a judgment against him; but he cannot have an execution against him until the further order of the court, which will not be made until after the trial of the issues between him and the landlord defendant, Harkey v. Houston, 65 N. C. 137.

A tenant in common in possession claiming title holds such possession for his cotenants by one common title, and in an action to recover the lands, he comes within the meaning of this section, and must file the bond therein required, according to law, before answering the complaint. Battle v. Mercer, 187 N. C. 437, 122 S. E. 4.

Vendee in Possession.—Where a vendee is let into possession before the purchase money is paid, and the vendor brings an action to recover the possession, the defendant must file the undertaking to secure rents and damages provided for by this section before he will be allowed to answer. Allen v. Taylor, 96 N. C. 37, 1 S. E. 462.

In an action to remove a cloud on the title a defense bond is not required. Tennessee River Land, etc., Co. Butler, 134 N. C. 50, 45 S. E. 956.

Liability of Surety.—The surety on the bond under this section is liable only for rents and profits pending litigation and subsequent to filing the bond. Hughes v. Pritchard, 129 N. C. 42, 43, 39 S. E. 632.

Same—Summary Judgment.—Upon judgment being rendered against defendant in an action to recover land, it is not error to enter a summary judgment against the sureties on his bond. Rollins v. Henry, 84 N. C. 570.

Liability for Costs on Appeal.—The defense bond and the sureties thereon, in an action of ejectment under this section are liable to the amount of the bond for the costs in the Supreme Court on appeal as well as those incurred in the superior court. Grimes v. Andrews, 171 N. C. 367, 88 S. E. 513. Kenney v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 166 N. C. 566, 82 S. E. 49.

Court May Appoint Receiver.—This section, requiring a defendant in ejectment to give bond before putting in a defense to the action, does not abridge the power of the court to appoint a receiver to secure the rents and profits. Kron v. Dennis, 90 N. C. 327; Durant v. Crowell, 97 N. C. 367, 374, 2 S. E. Arey v. Williams, 154 N. C. 610, 70 S. E. 931.

Same—When Unnecessary.—In an action to recover real property or its possession, upon the approval of the defendant's bond by the clerk of the Superior Court for continued possession, given under this section, when the defendant has given it in compliance with the statute, the plaintiff has an adequate and sufficient remedy at law upon the bond of the principal and surety so given and approved, and the equitable right to the appointment of a receiver, sec. 860, par. 1, is not available to the plaintiff, it appearing that a money demand will sufficiently compensate him. Jones v. Jones, 187 N. C. 589, 122 S. E. 370.

Ignorance That Bond Required. — Ordinarily excusable neglect cannot arise out of a mistake of law, and where judgment has been rendered by default final for plaintiff for the failure of defendant to file answer as required by the statute, § 509 as amended in 1921, the ignorance of the defendant that he was required to file the bonds, before answer, required by this section, when he is in possession of and claiming title to lands, the subject of the action, is not excusable neglect on his motion to set the judgment aside, and not allowable when it appears that the plaintiff was diligent in insisting upon his rights and has done nothing that could be regarded as a waiver thereof. Battle v. Mercer, 187 N. C. 437, 122 S. E. 4.

Mortgage Given for Bond.—A mortgage, given in lieu of the bond required by this section, may be foreclosed by motion, upon notice, in the original action. Ryan v. Martin, 103 N. C. 282, 9 S. E. 197.

§ 496. Defense without bond.—The undertaking prescribed in the preceding section is not necessary if an attorney practicing in the court where the action is pending certifies to the court in writing that he has examined the case of the defendant and is of the opinion that the plaintiff is not entitled to recover; and if the defendant also files an affidavit that he is unable to give and not worth the amount of the undertaking in any property whatsoever. (Rev., s. 454; Code, s. 237; 1869-70, c. 193.)

Editor's Note. — This section appeared formerly as a proviso attached to the preceding section. In regard to this proviso (now this section) the court said in Wilson v. Fowler, 104 N. C. 471, 472, 10 S. E. 566: "The terms of the proviso are clear, explicit and exclusive. It declares 'that no such undertaking shall be required' in the case provided for. The words 'no such' are used in the broad sense of not any like that required. There is nothing in the statute that suggests the contrary, or that an undertaking for a less sum than two hundred dollars in amount may be required in any case. The purpose is to allow persons thus poor to make defense in such actions without giving any undertaking, nor does section 350 authorize the court to require a party to execute a mortgage of real estate in the cases therein provided for. It simply allows the party, of whom an undertaking may be required in such cases, to give such mortgage instead of it, and the former must be for the same amount as the latter."

It will be observed that when one proposes to sue in forma pauperis, or to appeal (section 494 and 649) he is only required to swear to his inability to give the undertaking; while in order to defend an attack upon his right of possession of land, he must state not only such inability, but further, that "he is not worth the amount of the said undertaking in any property whatsoever," apparently, if not in fact, denying the privilege to one who has only sufficient exempt property to equal the amount of the bond. Taylor v. Apple, 90 N. C. 343, 347.

Notice to Adverse Party Unnecessary.—Nothing in this section requires notice to be given to the adverse party, on an application for permission to defend a suit without giving the required security. Deal v. Palmer, 68 N. C. 215.

Upon Compliance No Order Needed.—Notice of the certificate and affidavit under this section is not necessary, and it may be questioned whether it is necessary in any case that the court should make an order allowng the defendant, upon filing such certificate and affidavit, to answer, because he answers as of right under the statute. Deal v. Palmer, 68 N. C. 215; Jones v. Fortune, 69 N. C. 322; Taylor v. Apple, 90 N. C. 343. Dempsey v. Rhodes, 93 N. C. 120, 125.

Same—Waiver.—But if such order is necessary the plaintiff is deemed to have waived its absence where the certificate of counsel and the affidavit of the defendant fully meet the requirements of the statute, and they and the answer were on file without objection for two years and until the trial. Dempsey v. Rhodes, 93 N. C. 120, 125.

Certificate of Counsel.—Where counsel certifies that he has examined the case of the defendant, and that in his opinion the plaintiff is not entitled to recover; held, a substantial compliance with the statute. It is not intended that the enquiry of counsel should extend beyond the information derived from the defendant. Taylor v. Apple, 90 N. C. 343.

Same—Applies Only to Present Action.—The certificate of counsel applies only to the action as then constituted, and not to any other possible action that might be brought by plaintiff for same or similar relief. Wilson v. Fowler, 104 N. C. 471, 10 S. E. 566.

Example of Sufficient Compliance.—In an action to recover land, this section was sufficiently complied with when the defendant made affidavit that he was not worth two hundred dollars in any property whatever, and was unable to give the undertaking required, and his counsel certified that they had examined his case and were of opinion he "had a good defense to the action." Wilson v. Fowler, 104 N. C. 471, 10 S. E. 566.

Costs.—This section allowing a defendant in an action of ejectment to defend without giving bond, and section 649 allowing an appeal without bond, go no further than dispensing with the bond, and neither exempts the party from paying his own costs nor forbids his recovering costs. Speller v. Speller, 119 N. C. 356, 357, 26 S. E. 160; Justice v. Eddings, 75 N. C. 581; Lambert v. Kinnery, 74 N. C. 348; Bailey v. Brown, 105 N. C. 127, 129, 10 S. E. 1054.

Art. 10. Joint and Several Debtors

§ 497. Defendants jointly or severally liable.—Where the action is against two or more defendants, and the summons is served on one or more, but not on all of them, the plaintiff may proceed as follows:

1. If the action is against defendants jointly indebted upon contract, he may proceed against the defendants served, unless the court otherwise directs, and if he recovers judgment it may be entered against all the defendants thus jointly indebted, so far only as that it may be enforced against the joint property of all and the separate property of the defendants served, and if they are subject to arrest, against the persons of the defendants served.

2. If the action is against defendants severally liable, he may proceed against the defendants served, in the same manner as if they were the only defendants.

3. If all the defendants have been served, judgment may be taken against any or either of them severally, when the plaintiff would be entitled to judgment against such defendant or defendants if the action had been against them or any of them alone.

4. If the name of one or more partners has, for any cause, been omitted in an action in which judgment has been rendered against the defendants named in the summons, and the omission was not pleaded in the action, the plaintiff, in case the judgment remains unsatisfied, may by action recover of such partner separately, upon proving his joint liability, notwithstanding he was not named in the original action; but the plaintiff may have satisfaction of only one judgment rendered for the same cause of action. (Rev., s. 455; Code, s. 222; C. C. P., s. 87.)

See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 83, 84, for comment on cases discussed in following note.

Partners—In General.—Members of a partnership are jointly and severally bound for all its debts; and because of the joint liability the creditor and each partner has a right to demand that the joint property shall be applied to the joint debts; and because of the several liability, a creditor may, at will, sue any one or more of the partners. Hanstein v. Johnson, 112 N. C. 253, 17 S. E. 155.

Where, in an action against a partnership, service of summons has been made on some of the partners but not all, upon a verdict in plaintiff's favor, a judgment is properly entered binding upon the partnership's joint property, and upon the individual members served, but not individually upon those not so served with process. Hancock v. Southgate, 186 N. C. 278, 119 S. E. 364.

Same—Purpose of Section.—This section was intended to prevent a partner, who was not served with the summons, from defeating an action against him on the ground that judgment had already been taken against his co-partner; and so the cause of action was merged in the judgment, and authorizes an action against him separately, provided the first judgment remains unsatisfied. Navassa Guano Co. v. Willard, 73 N. C. 521, 523.

§ 498. Summoned after judgment; defense.—When a judgment is recovered against one or more of several persons jointly indebted upon a contract in accordance with the preceding section, those who were not originally summoned to answer the complaint may be summoned to show cause why they should not be bound by the judgment, in the same manner as if they had been originally summoned. A party so summoned may answer within the time specified denying the judgment, or setting up any defense thereto which has arisen subsequent to such judgment; and may make any defense which he might have made to the action if the summons had been served on him originally. (Rev., ss. 456, 457; Code, ss. 223, 224; C. C. P., ss. 318, 322.)

Statute of Limitations May Bar Action.—Where an action was begun against certain administrators and the sureties on their bond, and one surety was not served with summons and more than three years thereafter this latter surety was served, it was held that the three year statute of limitations was a bar to the action against the surety. Koonce v. Pelletier, 115 N. C. 233, 20 S. E. 391; See Rufty v. Claywell, etc., Co., 93 N. C. 306.

Where an action was instituted and judgment obtained against A. B. & Co., upon a bill of exchange, and C, who was a secret partner in the firm,was not joined as defendant, and the plaintiff afterwards, and more than three years after the cause of action accrued, discovered that C was a partner and instituted an action against him: Held, that the action was barred by the statute of limitations. Navassa Guano Co. v. Willard, 73 N. C. 521.

When Motion in Cause Proper.—Where a judgment is taken against two of three partners who are liable jointly and severally, the proper method to enforce the liability of the third partner is a new action and not a motion in the action in which such judgment was rendered; it is only when the liability is joint and not several that the motion in the cause is proper. Davis v. Sanderlin, 119 N. C. 84, 25 S. E. 815.

§ 499. Pleadings and proceedings same as in action.—The party issuing the summons may demur or reply to the answer, and the party summoned may demur to the reply. The answer and reply must be verified in like cases and manner and be subject to the same rules that apply in an action, and the issues may be tried and judgment given in the same manner as in action and enforced by execution if necessary. (Rev., ss. 458, 459; Code, ss. 225, 226; C. C. P., ss. 323, 324.)

Art. 11. Lis Pendens

§ 500. Filing of notice of suit.—In action affecting the title to real property, the plaintiff, at or any time after the time of filing the complaint or when or any time after a warrant of attachment is issued, or a defendant when he sets up an affirmative cause of action in his answer and demands substantive relief, at or any time after the time of filing his answer, if it is intended to affect real estate, may file with the clerk of each county in which the property is situated a notice of the pendency of the action, containing the names of the parties, the object of the action, and the description of the property in that county affected thereby. (Rev., s. 460; Code, s. 229; C. C. P., s. 90; 1917, c. 106.)

Cross References.—For full treatment of lis pendens, see 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 900, 910; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 703, 704.

In General.—The general doctrine of lis pendens is familiar and is firmly established. It may be stated to be thus: When a person buys property pending an action of which he has notice, actual or presumed, in which the title to it is in issue, from one of the parties to the action, he is bound by the judgment in the action, just as the party from whom he bought would have been. The rule is absolutely necessary to give effect to the judgments of courts, because if it were not so held, a party could always defeat the judgment by conveying in anticipation of it to some stranger, and the plaintiff would be compelled to commence a new action against him, and so on indefinitely. Rollins v. Henry, 78 N. C. 342, 251.

The principle of lis pendens is that the specific property must be so pointed out by the proceedings as to warn the whole world that they meddle with it at their peril, and the tendency of such suit duly prosecuted is notice to a purchaser so as to bind his interest. Todd etc., Co. v. Outlaw, 79 N. C. 235, 239.

The established rule is that a lis pendens, duly prosecuted, and not collusive, is notice to a purchaser so as to affect and bind his interest by the decree; and the lis pendens begins from the service of the subpoena after the bill is filed. Lacassagne v. Chapin, 144 U. S. 119, 125, 36 L. Ed. 368.

A Harsh Rule.—The rule lis pendens, while founded upon principles of public policy and absolutely necessary to give effect to the decree of the courts is, never-the-less, in many instances very harsh in its operation; and one who relies upon it to defeat a bona fide purchaser must understand that his case is strictissimi juris. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 159, 19 S. E. 351.

Section Similar to English and New York Statutes.—This section is in substance a copy of 2 Victoria, which has received a construction by the English Courts. It is there held that no lis pendens, of which a purchaser has not express notice, will now bind him unless it be duly registered. The provisions of the New York Code for the filing of lis pendens, is similar to ours, and has received there the same construction as the English statute. Todd etc., Co. v. Outlaw, 79 N. C. 235, 240.

Modifies Common Law Rule.—The common law rule, was that if the real estate to be affected by the judgment or decree were situated in several counties, it would all be bound by the lis pendens arising from the pendency of a suit in the county in which only a part of it lies, since, "all persons are supposed to be attentive to what passes in Courts of Justice"; whereas the plain purpose of this section was to modify the rule so as to require notice in all counties where the real estate is situated. Collingwood v. Brown, 106 N. C. 362, 368, 10 S. E. 868.

As to real property, there is but one rule of lis pendens in North Carolina, and the provisions of this section are a substitute for the common law rule. Collingwood v. Brown, 106 N. C. 362, 367, 10 S. E. 868.

Section Adequately Protects Rights of Trustor.—In a suit attacking the validity of a foreclosure sale under a deed of trust, a temporary order enjoining further transfer of the property by the cestui que trust, the purchaser at the sale, is properly dissolved, since plaintiff trustor has an adequate remedy at law by filing notice of lis pendens in accordance with this and subsequent sections. Whitford v. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Book, 207 N. C. 229, 176 S. E. 740.

This section and § 807 are to be construed in pari materia, and where notice of levy of attachment on defendant's land in a county has been given under the provisions of § 807, by certification of the levy to the clerk of the court for that county and his notation thereof on his judgment docket and indexing in the index to judgments the effect is to take the land in custodia legis, and is not an action affecting the title to lands within the purview of this section, but from the day of such notice, unless the land is released, the attachment constitutes a lien superior to that of a judgment rendered in favor of another, and a later judgment in the attachment proceedings relates back to the filing and indexing of the attachment, and where such notice under § 807 has been given, the filing of lis pendens in the same county under the provisions of this section is unnecessary. Pierce v. Mallard, 197 N. C. 679, 150 S. E. 342.

Jurisdiction of Court.—In order that the right to real property and personal chattels may be affected by lis pendens, they must be within the jurisdiction of the court and subject to its power. Enfield v. Jordan, 119 U. S. 680, 693, 30 L. Ed. 523.

Continuous Litigation.—In order for the doctrine of lis pendens to apply, there must be continuous litigation. Lee County v. Rogers, 7 Wall. 181, 19 L. Ed. 160.

An unreasonable delay in prosecution, so far as third persons are concerned, loses its force as a lis pendens. Redfield v. Ystalyfera Iron Co., 110 U. S. 174, 176, 28 L. Ed. 109.

Applies to Action in Another County.—Strangers to an action are not affected with constructive notice of an action involving the title to lands situate in a county other than that in which the action is pending, unless the notice, lis pendens, is given under this section. Spencer v. Credle, 102 N. C. 68, 8 S. E. 910.

Action Not Affecting Title to Realty.—Where the mortgagee of lands brings an action to recover on the note secured by the mortgage and to set aside a deed of the mortgagor, but not to foreclose the mortgage, the action is not one affecting the title to land within the meaning of this section, and the judgment of the lower court canceling and removing the notice of lis pendens from the records will be affirmed on appeal. Threlkeld v. Malcragson Land Company, 198 N. C. 186, 151 S. E. 99.

Breach of Option Contract Not Included.—An action to recover damages for the breach of an option contract is not an action affecting the title to realty, within this section, and the filing of notice in such case will not affect a purchaser pending that action. Horney v. Price, 189 N. C. 820, 128 S. E. 321.

When No Notice Required.—No entry of lis pendens, under this section, is required in any case when the action is in the county where the land lies. Collingwood v. Brown, 106 N. C. 362, 10 S. E. 868; Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 156, 19 S. E. 351; Rollins v. Henry, 78 N. C. 342, 352; Todd, etc., Co. v. Outlaw, 79 N. C. 235; Badger v. Daniel, 77 N. C. 251; Spencer v. Credle, 102 N. C. 68, 8 S. E. 901; Bird v. Gilliam, 125 N. C. 76, 79, 34 S. E. 196.

No change in the rule is brought about by this section prescribing how notice of a lis pendens shall be given when the transaction is in one and the same county, and notice is furnished in the record in the pending action. Morgan v. Bostic, 132 N. C. 743, 751, 44 S. E. 639.

Where the action is brought in the county where the land is situated, and the pleadings contain "the names of the parties, the object of the action, and the description of the property to be affected in that county," this is a substantial compliance with this section, as to the filing of notice, and puts in operation all of the provisions of the statute. Collingwood v. Brown, 106 N. C. 362, 367, 10 S. E. 868.

Sufficient Description.—"Although it is necessary in order to constitute lis pendens that the proceedings should, directly or indirectly, designate specific property, yet where the description is so definite that any one reading it can learn thereby, either by the description or reference, what property is intended to be made subject to litigation, it is sufficient." Benn. Lis Pend., sec. 93, 1 Freem. Judgm., sec. 197. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 156, 19 S. E. 351.

Transfer of Suit.—Where the suit is transferred by consent to another county on the original papers and nothing is left on the files to inform a purchaser of the nature of the action and the property to be affected by it, the lis pendens fails and a bona fide purchaser will be protected. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 157, 152, 19 S. E. 351.

§ 501. Cross-index of lis pendens.—Any party to an action desiring to claim the benefit of a notice of lis pendens, whether given formally under this article or in the pleadings filed in the case, shall cause such notice to be cross-indexed by the clerk of the superior court in a docket to be kept by him, to be called Record of Lis Pendens, which index shall contain the names of the parties to the action, where such notice (whether formal or in the pleadings) is filed, the object of the action, the date of indexing, and sufficient description of the land to be affected to enable any person to locate said lands. The clerk shall be entitled to a fee of twenty-five cents for indexing said notice, to be paid as are other costs in the pending action. (Rev., s. 464; 1903, c. 472; 1919, c. 31.)

Cited in Pierce v. Mallard, 197 N. C. 679, 682, 150 S. E. 342.

§ 502. Effect on subsequent purchasers.—From the cross-indexing of the notice of lis pendens only is the pendency of the action constructive notice to a purchaser or incumbrancer of the property affected thereby; and every person whose conveyance or incumbrance is subsequently executed or subsequently registered is a subsequent purchaser or incumbrancer, and is bound by all proceedings taken after the cross-indexing of the notice to the same extent as if he were made a party to the action. For the purposes of this section an action is pending from the time of cross-indexing the notice. (Rev., s. 462; Code, s. 229; C. C. P., s. 90; 1919, c. 31.)

Editor's Note.—Previous to the adoption of section 501, regarding a cross index the filing of notice as provided in section 500 was all that was necessary to affect all purchasers with notice. See Toms v. Warson, 66 N. C. 417, 419.

Judgment Relates Back to Beginning of Suit.—If a suit was pending against a person for certain property when he parted with it, in which there was afterwards a judgment, that judgment relates to the commencement of the suit and binds subsequent purchasers. Briley v. Cherry, 13 N. C. 2; Cates v. Whitfield, 53 N. C. 266; Dancy v. Duncan, 96 N. C. 111, 116, 1 S. E. 455.

Fraudulent Purchaser of Lands.—Where the president of a corporation, a substantial owner of its shares of stock, has personally bought in the lands which the company is under a binding contract to convey, before suit brought to enforce the contract, and with full knowledge of the plaintiff's right, taken deed for same from his company, before complaint filed, he and his corporation are concluded from setting up the doctrine of lis pendens as a defense, and his purchase will be held ineffective and fraudulent as to the decree rendered and the rights established in the plaintiff's favor, for specific performance. Morris v. Basnight, 179 N. C. 298, 102 S. E. 389.

Purchase before Complaint Filed.—A purchaser of land for value after the filing of a lis pendens, but before the filing of the complaint in the action, is not charged with constructive notice of any defects in the title. Morgan v. Bostic, 132 N. C. 743, 44 S. E. 639.

Purchase from Litigant with Notice.—The doctrine of lis pendens, as it ordinarily prevails, only affects third persons who may take title to lands after the nature of the claim and the property affected are pointed out with reasonable precision by complaint filed or by notice given pursuant to this section but the principle is not operative where one buys from a litigant with full notice or knowledge of the suit, its nature and purpose and the specific property to be affected. Morris v. Basnight, 179 N. C. 298, 102 S. E. 389.

Purchaser from Successful Party.—One who, relying upon the judgment of the superior court, takes a conveyance from the successful party before the expiration of the ten days, takes it subject to the right of appeal and of the judgment which may be entered therein, and he is conclusively fixed with notice of the litigation. Rollins v. Henry, 78 N. C. 342; Dancy v. Duncan, 96 N. C. 111, 1 S. E. 455, Bird v. Gilliam, 125 N. C. 76, 79, 34 S. E. 196.

Cited in Brinson v. Lacy, 195 N. C. 394, 396, 142 S. E. 317; Pierce v. Mallard, 197 N. C. 679, 682, 150 S. E. 342.

§ 503. Notice void unless action prosecuted.—The notice of lis pendens is of no avail unless it is followed by the first publication of notice of the summons or by an order therefor, or by the personal service on the defendant within sixty days after the cross-indexing. (Rev., s. 461; Code, s. 229; C. C. P., s. 90; 1919, c. 31.)

Service Within 60 Days Required.—Where a party lives in a different county of the state, and claims as a bona fide purchaser, to affect him with notice of lis pendens the requirements of the statute must be strictly followed; among other things, it must be served within sixty days after its filing. Powell v. Dail, 172 N. C. 261, 90 S. E. 194.

Cited in Pierce v. Mallard, 197 N. C. 679, 682, 150 S. E. 342.

§ 504. Cancellation of notice.—The court in which the said action was commenced may, at any time after it is settled, discontinued or abated, on application of any person aggrieved, on good cause shown, and on such notice as is directed or approved by the court, order the notice authorized by this article to be canceled of record, by the clerk of any county in whose office the same has been filed or recorded; and this cancellation must be made by an endorsement to that effect on the margin of the record, which shall refer to the order. (Rev., s. 463; Code, s. 229; C. C. P., s. 90.)

Notice Continues Until Cancelled.—Where the suit has been prosecuted with proper diligence the lis pendens continues until the final judgment, or until it has been canceled under the directions of the court. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 159, 18 S. E. 351.

Loss or Destruction of Notice.—The mere loss or destruction of the notice will not effect its efficiency, if the statute has been fully complied with. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 159, 19 S. E. 351.

Same—When by Act of Party.—If the party, by any act of his own has, contrary to the usual course of the court, consented to or been instrumental in the removal from its files of the notice of lis pendens (or, as in some cases, its substitute, the complaint), leaving nothing whatever upon the record which could inform a purchaser of the nature of the action and the property sought to be subjected, it must follow, according to every principle of equity and fair dealing, that the purchaser will be protected. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 159, 19 S. E. 351.

SUBCHAPTER VI. PLEADINGS.

Art. 12. Complaint

§ 505. First pleading and its filing.—The first pleading on the part of the plaintiff is the complaint. It must be filed in the clerk's office at or before the time of the issuance of summons and a copy thereof delivered to the defendant, or defendants, at the time of the service of summons; provided, that the clerk may at the time of the issuance of summons on application of plaintiff by written order extend the time for filing complaint to a day certain not to exceed twenty (20) days, and a copy of such order shall be delivered to the defendant, or defendants, at the time of the service of summons in lieu of a copy of the complaint: Provided further, said application and order shall state the nature and purpose of the suit. The clerk shall not extend the time for filing complaint beyond the time specified in such order; except that when application is made to the court, under article forty-four, chapter twelve, of the Consolidated Statutes, for leave to examine the defendant prior to filing complaint, and it shall be made to appear to the court that such examination of defendant is necessary to enable the plaintiff to file his complaint, and such examination is allowed, the clerk shall extend the time for filing complaint until twenty (20) days after the report of the examination is filed as required by section nine hundred and two of the Consolidated Statutes. When the complaint is not filed at the time of the issuance of the summons, the plaintiff shall, when he files complaint, likewise file at least one copy thereof for the use of the defendant and his attorney. When there are more than one defendants, the clerk, may, by written notice to the plaintiff, require the filing of additional (not to exceed six) copies of the complaint within the time specified in such notice, not to exceed ten days. Such notice may be served by mailing to the plaintiff or his attorney of record. (Rev., ss. 465, 466; Code, ss. 206, 232, 238; C. C. P., s. 92; 1868-9, c. 76, s. 3; 1870-1, c. 42, s. 3; 1919, c. 304, s. 2; 1927, c. 66, s. 3.)

Editor's Note. — By the amendment of 1919 a clause "otherwise the suit may, on motion, be dismissed" which originally appeared in the section was omitted, but subsequently was restored by the Consolidated Statutes. In changing other provisions of ch. 156 of the laws of 1919, this section in its original form was reenacted without change by the Extra Session of the Public Laws of 1920 and 1921. See Campbell v. Asheville, 184 N. C. 492, 493, 114 S. E. 825.

The act of 1927, ch. 66, not only materially enlarged the provisions of the section but changed the time of the filing of the complaint. Prior to this amendment the complaint was to be filed on or before the return day of the summons, on pain of suit being dismissed at the cost of the plaintiff, and the clerk was authorized to extend, upon motion, the time of filing to a day certain. This was substantially all that this section had formerly provided.

The change in the time of the filing the complaint was effected in view of the changes introduced in section 476 with regard to the service and return of the summons. See section 476 as amended by the laws of 1927.

The act of 1927, ch. 132, was enacted to amend an act amendatory of four different sections (including this) but did not touch this section.

Prior to the amendment of 1919 the complaint was to be filed on or before the third day of the term to which the action was brought. See Hill v. Hotel Co., 188 N. C. 585, 588, 125 S. E. 266.

Similarity to Former Equity Practice. — The Code and the constitution substantially adopt the practice and procedure of the courts of equity. The only difference between the practice under the Code and the former equity practice is that by the Code the summons does not follow, but precedes the complaint. Wilson v. Moore, 72 N. C. 558, 561; Staton v. Webb, 137 N. C. 35, 39, 49 S. E. 55. (Decided under the former law.) The summons no more precedes the complaint under the present law, save under the exceptional circumstances designated in the section as amended. Ed. Note.

New Complaint as to New Defendant. — A new or an amended complaint must be filed as against a new defendant brought in subsequent to the filing of the original complaint. And a judgment by default for want of an answer where no such complaint is filed is irregular and capable of being set aside. Vass v. People's Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 91 N. C. 55, 56.

Extension of Time. — Prior to 1921, (the time when the Civil Code of procedure was restored) it was discretionary with the judge of the superior court to allow extention of time for the filing of pleadings; and the motion to extend the time for filing the complaint should be made before the judge, and not before the clerk. Anderson v. Anderson, 1 N. C. 20. See also, Brendle v. Heron, 68 N. C. 495. But this is no longer the rule. See Campbell v. Asheville, 184 N. C. 492, 114 S. E. 825.

Where the clerk of the court has extended the time for filing the complaint in accordance with this section, and the defendant has appealed to the Superior Court, it is within the sound legal discretion of the trial judge, given by § 536, to allow the complaint to be filed, and his sustaining the clerk's order to that effect is an exercise of this discretion. Hines v. Lucas, 195 N. C. 376, 142 S. E. 319.

When it appears that the clerk of the court has extended the time to file the complaint by orders regularly entered and in continuous and unbroken sequence for a period of about a year, and the defendant at the end of the full period so extended excepts and appeals to the Superior Court: Held, it is a valid exercise by the clerk of the power conferred by this section. Hines v. Lucas, 195 N. C. 376, 142 S. E. 319.

Same — By Consent of Parties. — In Howard v. Southern R. Co., 122 N. C. 944, 29 S. E. 778, neither the complaint nor the answer was filed at the proper time, but there was an entry made on the minutes, which on its face did not purport to be by order of the court, and which was admitted to have been by consent of the parties to the effect that the plaintiff have thirty days to file his complaint and the defendant sixty days thereafter. This procedure seems to be permissible.

Same — Motion to Dismiss Necessary to Prevent Extension. — The fact that this section requires the complaint to be filed at or before the return day of the summons, (before the amendment of 1927) does not prevent the plaintiff from filing it thereafter if the defendant fails to move to dismiss the action for the plaintiff's failure to so file. Roberts v. Allman, 106 N. C. 391, 393, 11 S. E. 424.

Judgment of Non Pros. — In the absence of a complaint filed at the proper time the defendant may move for a judgment of non pros. Vass v. People's Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 91 N. C. 55, 59.

§ 506. Contents.—The complaint must contain—

1. The title of the cause, specifying the name of the court in which the action is brought, the name of the county in which the trial is required to be had, and the names of the parties to the action, plaintiff and defendant.

2. A plain and concise statement of the facts constituting a cause of action, without unnecessary repetition; and each material allegation must be distinctly numbered.

3. A demand for the relief to which the plaintiff supposes himself entitled. If the recovery of money is demanded, the amount must be stated.

4. In actions for the recovery of a debt contracted for the purchase of land, a statement that the consideration of the debt was the purchase money of certain land, describing the land in an intelligible manner, such as the location, boundaries, and acreage. (Rev., ss. 467-8; Code, ss. 233-4; C. C. P., s. 93; 1879, c. 217.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Logics and Precision of Common Law Not Discarded. — The rules of common law as to the pleading which are only the rules of logic, have not been abolished by the Code. Crump v. Mims, 64 N. C. 767. The notion that the Code of civil procedure is without order or certainty and that any pleading however loose or irregular, may be upheld, is erroneous, while it is not perfect it has both logical order, precision and certainty, when it is properly observed. Webb v. Hicks, 116 N. C. 598, 604, 21 S. E. 672.

Construction of Pleadings. — While the pleadings are to be construed liberally, they are to be so construed as to give the defendant an opportunity to know the grounds upon which he is charged with liability. Thomason v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 142 N. C. 318, 325, 55 S. E. 205.

Old and New Procedure Distinguished. — Under the former system the practice was in declaring to proceed on the special contract and also in other counts, called the common counts, so that, if unable to recover on the special assumpsit, relief might be had on some of the counts in general assumpsit on the implied promise or obligation. If the plaintiff under that system had "counted" only on the special contract, not being able to recover on that, he would have failed in his action. But under the Code all forms of pleading which existed before are abolished, and now we have only the forms of pleading and the rules by which their sufficiency is to be determined, part of which are prescribed in this section. Jones v. Mial, 82 N. C. 252, 257.

For an eloquent expression on the abolition of the old system of pleading and the substitution therefor the new system, see, Pierce v. North Carolina R. Co., 124 N. C. 83, 97, 32 S. E. 399.

For a discussion of the similarity between the civil procedure adopted in this state and that which prevailed in the courts of King's Bench, in England, see Staton v. Webb, 137 N. C. 35, 36, 49 S. E. 55.

Same Substantial Certainty as at Common Law a Requisite.—The object of the Code was to abolish the different forms of action and the technical and artificial modes of pleading used at common law, but not to dispense with the certainty, regularity and uniformity which are essential in every system adopted for the administration of justice. The plaintiff must state his cause of action with the same substantial certainty as was formerly required in a declaration. Oates v. Gray, 66 N. C. 442.

Theory and Form of Action Immaterial.—Where the facts in the complaint in an action for damages caused by an action brought by the defendant to have plaintiff's deed declared void constitute a cause of action, it is immaterial whether the action is for slander of title, malicious prosecution, or for an abuse of legal process, and the complaint is sufficient. Chatham Estates v. American Nat. Bank, 171 N. C. 579, 88 S. E. 783.

II. FORMAL PARTS OF COMPLAINT.

Title of Cause. — A paper-writing introduced before a justice of the peace, purporting upon its face only to be a verified account upon which judgment is sought, lacking the requisites of a complaint, under the provisions of this section, in failing to state the title of the cause, the name of the county and parties, will not be considered as a verified complaint on the trial in the superior court, requiring the answer there to be verified; and upon an oral answer denying the liability and raising the issue, the question is for the determination of the jury under proper evidence. Van Smith Bld. Material Co. v. Tarbora Hardware Co., 173 N. C. 55, 91 S. E. 524.

Parties.—A general designation of parties as the "heirs of M. C." is irregular and will not be tolerated. Kerlee v. Corpening, 97 N. C. 330, 2 S. E. 664.

It also constitutes a fatal defect on demurrer to designate the plaintiffs in a complaint as "H. M. & Co.," without setting out the individual names of persons composing the firm. Morrow v. Morgan, 117 N. C. 504, 23 S. E. 489.

As to parties generally, see sections 446 et seq. and the notes thereto.

III. STATEMENT OF FACTS CONSTITUTING THE CAUSE OF ACTION.

Provisions of Section Not Mere Matter of Form.—This section requiring that the plaintiff shall state in a plain, strong, intelligible manner his grounds of action, is not a mere matter of form. It is of the essential substance of the litigation. It is necessary to the end that the contending parties may understand and prepare to meet each the other's contention, and prepare himself for the trial of issues of law or fact presented, that the court may have a proper, just and thorough apprehension of the controversy, and that the same may go into the record and stand as a perpetual memorial of the litigation and all that it embraces. Any other course of procedure would lead to endless confusion and litigation. If this were not done, it would be difficult to show what any litigation embraced or that it had been settled and ended, and when and how. It is not sufficient that the plaintiff had a cause of action and can prove it: he must first plead it, then prove it. McLaurin v. Cronly, 90 N. C. 50, 51, 52.

Result of Noncompliance. — Unless the complaint contains a plain and concise statement of the facts constituting a cause of action, without unnecessary repetition pursuant to this section, courts will be hampered in determining what are the proper issues, both as to form and to number. The principles of good pleading are retained under our present system. Hunt v. Eure, 189 N. C. 482, 127 S. E. 593, 596.

Defendant Must Not Be Left in Doubt.—The facts should be so stated as to leave the defendant in no doubt as to alleged cause of action against him, so that he may know how to answer and what defense to make. Hussey v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 98 N. C. 34, 3 S. E. 923.

Right to Demand Filing of Amended Complaint.—Several elements of damages may be alleged on one cause of action, and where this has been done, defendant's motion to require plaintiff to file an amended complaint, based on the theory that each element of damage constituted a separate cause of action and should be separately alleged, is properly refused under this section. Pemberton v. Greensboro, 205 N. C. 599, 172 S. E. 196.

"A plain and concise statement of facts," within the meaning of this section, means a statement of all the facts necessary to enable the plaintiff to recover. By a "plain" statement is meant a direct and positive averment of fact, which does not leave the existence of the fact to be inferred merely from the existence of some other fact. Commissioners v. McPherson, 79 N. C. 524, 525.

Facts Must Be Stated Not Conclusions or Evidence.—The code of civil procedure modifying the method of pleading does not abolish "all forms" of pleading. The fundamental principle of pleading that facts or circumstances constituting the cause of action must be pleaded and not the pleader's conclusions of law drawn from those facts or evidence, holds as true as ever, with respect to the statement of these facts there has been no relaxation of the requisite in the new form, and no alteration from the old, except to require greater particularity of separately numbering every material fact. Moore v. Hobbs, 79 N. C. 535, 537; Lassiter v. Roper, 114 N. C. 17, 19, 18 S. E. 946; Gossler v. Wood, 120 N. C. 69, 73, 27 S. E. 33.

A complaint which merely states a conclusion of law is demurrable both at common law and under the Code. Rountree v. Brinson, 98 N. C. 107, 3 S. E. 747.

Matters of Defense Need Not Be Alleged.—If it is alleged that the consideration for the debt or the note sued upon is the purchase money of certain lands, and the lands are specifically described, it is not necessary to allege that the plaintiff has a good title, and that he had tendered a deed to the defendant—these being matters of defense. Toms v. Fite, 93 N. C. 274.

Complaint Considered as a Whole.—A complaint will be sustained, as against a demurrer, if any part presents facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or if fact sufficient for that purpose can be gathered from it, under a liberal construction of its terms. Hendrix v. Southern R. Co., 162 N. C. 9, 77 S. E. 1001; New Bern Banking, etc., Co. v. Duffy, 156 N. C. 83, 72 S. E. 96. See also, Stokes v. Taylor, 104 N. C. 394, 10 S. E. 566; McEachin v. Stewart, 106 N. C. 336, 11 S. E. 274; Halstead v. Mullen, 93 N. C. 252; Purcell v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 954, 12 S. E. 954; Holden v. Warren, 118 N. C. 327, 24 S. E. 770.

Sufficiency of the Facts.—If the facts stated in the complaint, together with those drawn into issue on the answer of the defendants, constitute a right to any relief whatever, the plaintiff is entitled to have it on the case as it was, without amendment. Jones v. Mial, 82 N. C. 252, 258.

Averment of Willingness in Reciprocal Contract. — Where the plaintiff sues upon a special contract involving the performance of reciprocal acts between himself and the defendant, he must aver and show a readiness and willingness to perform on his part. Jones v. Mial, 79 N. C. 165.

Facts Warranting Joinder of Actions.—Where two causes of action are sought to be joined in the same complaint, the complaint must state such facts as would show that the two causes of action can be united under section 507. Allen v. Jackson, 86 N. C. 321; Manufacturing Co. v. Barrett, 95 N. C. 36, 38.

Proof of Foreign Law. — This section requires that the complaint contains a plain and concise "statement of facts constituting the cause of action." Upon those facts, if true, the law gives a "right of action." This right of action is a matter of law of which the court usually takes judicial notice, but if the tort or contract accrued beyond the state line the law of the foreign state should be pleaded and proved—not because it is in that case a part of the "cause of action" any more than if the transaction had taken place within the state, but because the court is not presumed to know the law of all other states. Lassiter v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 136 N. C. 89, 90, 48 S. E. 642.

A complaint for converting a mortgaged crop, which avers title to such crop raised by the mortgagor and by him conveyed to the plaintiff, its delivery to the defendant, its value, and its appropriation by the defendant to his own use, after demand by the plaintiff, is a concise and definite statement of every material fact upon which the right to recover depends, and complies with this section. Womble v. Leach, 83 N. C. 84.

Statutory Actions.—A priviso need not be stated in a declaration; but, if the defendant wishes to avail himself of it, it must be averred in his plea. Wilmington, etc., R. Co. v. Robeson, 27 N. C. 391.

Motion to Strike Out Redundant Matter from Complaint. —Where the trial court has allowed the plaintiff to file an amendment to the complaint to be confined to certain phases of the controversy or to allegations as to certain and specific matters, the plaintiff must confine himself to the restrictions under which he is permitted to amend or the trial judge may order stricken therefrom any further matters or any allegations that are irrelevant or redundant and not in conformity with the statute requiring a plain and concise statement of the cause of action without unnecessary repetition, and the granting of the defendant's motion to strike out certain parts of the amended complaint will be sustained on appeal if the complaint is sufficient in its allegations after the portions objected to have been stricken out to present every phase of the controversy. Ellis v. Ellis, 198 N. C. 767, 153 S. E. 449.

Other Specific Instances.—For what constitutes a sufficient statement of facts in particular instances, see the specific titles of the N. C. Enc. Dig.

IV. DEMAND FOR RELIEF.

Relief Prayed and Afforded.—It is the apparent purpose of the new system, while simplifying the method of procedure, to afford any relief to which the plaintiff may be entitled upon the facts set out in his complaint, although misconceived and not specially demanded in his prayer. Jones v. Mial, 79 N. C. 165, 168.

Relief Prayed Should Correspond to Proof.—The relief to be granted in an action does not depend upon that asked for in the complaint; but upon whether the matters alleged and proved entitle the complaining party to the relief granted, and this is so in the absence of any prayer for relief. Bryan v. Canady, 169 N. C. 579, 86 S. E. 584.

Party Not Limited to Specific Relief Prayed.—Under this section a party is not restricted to the specific relief demanded by him, but may have any additional and different relief which the pleadings and facts proved show to be just and proper. Knight v. Houghtalling, 85 N. C. 17; McNeill v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 52, 11 S. E. 265; Hendon v. North Carolina R. Co., 127 N. C. 110, 37 S. E. 155.

What Determines the Measure of Relief. — Under the Code system the demand for relief is made wholly immaterial, and that it is the case made by the pleadings and facts proved, and not the prayer of the party, which determines the measure of relief to be administered, the only restriction being that the relief given must not be inconsistent with the pleadings and proofs. In other words, the court has adopted the old equity practice, when granting relief under a general prayer, except that now no general prayer need be expressed, but is always implied. Knight v. Houghtalling, 85 N. C. 17; Staton v. Webb, 137 N. C. 35, 36, 49 S. E. 55; Harris v. Sneeden, 104 N. C. 369, 374, 10 S. E. 477; Gattis v. Kilgo, 125 N. C. 133, 135, 34 S. E. 246.

In the absence of any formal demand for judgment the court will grant such judgment as the party may be entitled to have, consistent with the pleadings and proofs. Demsey v. Rhodes, 93 N. C. 120; Staton v. Webb, 137 N. C. 35, 36, 42, 49 S. E. 55.

Alternative Relief.—The form of the prayer for judgment is not material, and the plaintiff can unite two causes of action relating to the same transaction and obtain alternative relief. Herring v. Cumberland Lumber Co., 159 N. C. 382, 74 S. E. 1011.

V. STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATION FOR THE PURCHASE OF LAND.

See § 520 and clause 5 of § 675 and the notes thereto.

§ 507. What causes of action may be joined.—The plaintiff may unite in the same complaint several causes of action, of legal or equitable nature, or both, where they all arise out of—

1. The same transaction, or transaction connected with the same subject of action.

2. Contract, express or implied.

3. Injuries with or without force to person or property.

4. Injuries to character.

5. Claims to recover real property, with or without damages for the withholding thereof, and the rents and profits of the same.

6. Claims to recover personal property, with or without damages for the withholding thereof; or,

7. Claims against a trustee, by virtue of a contract, or by operation of law. But the causes of action so united must all belong to one of these classes, and, except in actions for the foreclosure of mortgages, must affect all the parties to the action, and not require different places of trial, and must be seperately stated.

In actions to foreclose mortgages, the court may adjudge and direct the payment by the mortgagor of any residue of the mortgage debt that remains unsatisfied after a sale of the mortgaged premises, in cases in which the mortgagor is personally liable for the debt secured; and if the mortgage debt is secured by the covenant or obligation of any person other than the mortgagor, the plaintiff may make that person a party to the action, and the court may adjudge payment of the residue of the debt remaining unsatisfied after a sale of the mortgaged premises, against the other person, and may enforce such judgment as in other cases. (Rev., s. 469; Code, s. 267; C. C. P., s. 126.)

I. In General.
II. Causes of Action with Reference to Transaction, or Subject of Action.
III. Causes of Action in Contract.
IV. Causes of Action for Tort to Person or Property.
V. Must Affect All Parties and Have Same Venue.

I. IN GENERAL.

See notes under §§ 456, 511.

The common law does not generally allow the joinder of causes of action of different natures because it leads to prolixity, the multiplication of issues and confusion. Gregory v. Hobbs, 93 N. C. 1, 4.

The purpose of this section is to extend the right of plaintiffs to join actions, not merely by including equitable as well as legal causes of action, but to make the ground broad enough to cover all causes of action which a plaintiff may have against a defendant, so that the court may not be forced "to take two bites at a cherry," but may dispose of the whole subject of controversy and its incidents and corollaries in one action. Hamlin v. Tucker, 72 N. C. 502, 503; Livingston v. Tanner, 12 Barb, 486; Vanderroot v. Gould, 36 N. Y. 645; Gregory v. Hoobs, 93 N. C. 1, 3.

Joinder Not Mandatory but Permissive. — The provisions of this section are permissive. They are not mandatory as to compel the joinder of separate causes of action arising out of the same transaction. Gregory v. Hobbs, 93 N. C. 1; Raper Lumber Co. v. Wallace, 93 N. C. 22, 26; Tyler v. Capeheart, 125 N. C. 64, 68, 34 S. E. 108.

Effect of Section upon Existing Law.—This section does not make any substantial change in the rules of practice which obtained before the adoption of the Code in the Courts of Equity with regard to multifariousness. Whatever effect it may have had has been to enlarge the right of uniting in one action different causes of action. The equity rule as existing prior to the Code was thus announced by Ruffin, C. J., in Bedsole v. Monroe, 40 N. C. 313: "If the grounds of the bill be not entirely distinct and wholly unconnected; if they arise out of one and the same transaction, or series of transactions, forming one course of dealing, and all tending to one end—if one unconnected story can be told of the whole, the objection of misjoinder of actions cannot apply." And it has been held not to apply, "When there has been a general right in the plaintiff, covering the whole case, although the rights of the defendants may have been distinct." Heggie v. Hill, 95 N. C. 304, 305.

Each Cause Must Belong to Same Class.—No two causes of action which belong to different classes enumerated in this section can be joined in the same cause of action. Land Co. v. Beaty, 69 N. C. 329. And this, it is said, even though the different causes of action are connected with the same subject of the action or arise out of the same transaction. Id. But this last conclusion has been repeatedly repudiated in the case of joinder of tort and contract actions which are corrected with the same subject of the action or arise out of the same transaction. Ed. Note. See post, "Causes of Actions with Reference to Transaction and Subject to Action," II.

In order for joinder causes of actions to be permissible, the causes joined must arise out of any one (and not out of different) of the classes enumerated in this section. In other words, each clause allowing joinder is to be taken independent of the other. See Sutton v. McMillan, 72 N. C. 102.

Thus a condemnation proceeding being purely statutory, a cause of action for compensation and one for damages as for a trespass can not be joined. Abernathy v. South, etc., R. Co., 150 N. C. 97, 63 S. E. 180.

Under this section, if the complaint states a connected story, forming a general scheme and tending to a single end, the plaintiff may unite in the same complaint several causes of action. Shaffer v. Morris Bank, 201 N. C. 415, 419, 160 S. E. 481.

Inconsistent Causes.—Even if the causes of action were to some extent inconsistent, there is authority to the effect that the complaint is not always on that account demurrable. Hardin v. Boyd, 113 U. S. 756, 5 S. Ct. 771, 28 L. Ed. 1141. Worth v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 152 N. C. 242, 67 S. E. 590, 592.

No Undue Increase of Cost or Inconvenience.—Under the provisions of this section where there is but one subject-matter of the suit or action in which several parties have divergent interests, and they may all be united in one suit without undue increase of cost or inconvenience to the parties, a motion to dismiss for multifariousness and misjoinder of parties is properly denied. Craven County v. Investment Co., 201 N. C. 523, 524, 160 S. E. 753.

Former Equity Practice Followed.—In interpreting this section with regard to multifariousness and misjoinder of parties our courts will take into consideration the principles of the old practice formerly existing exclusively in suits in equity. Craven County v. Investment Co., 201 N. C. 523, 524, 160 S. E. 753.

Judgments.—Causes of action based on several judgments may be joined in one complaint. Moore v. Nowell, 94 N. C. 265.

Method of Taking Advantage of Misjoinder.—A misjoinder of causes of action is a ground of demurrer and can be taken advantage of in no other way. Burks v. Ashworth, 72 N. C. 496. See sec. 511, clause 5, and the notes thereto.

Demurrer for misjoinder of parties and causes of action will be sustained under this section if the several causes of action alleged do not affect all the parties to the action. Lucas v. North Carolina Bank, etc., Co., 206 N. C. 909, 174 S. E. 301.

Execution of Deed and Demand for Land.—The plaintiff can unite, in the same action, a demand for the execution of a deed and for possession of the land, while under the old system the lost or destroyed deed could only be established in a court of equity, where a decree for title and such other relief as might be proper could be made and enforced according to the practice of that court. Jennings v. Reeves, 101 N. C. 447, 450, 7 S. E. 897.

Cited in Berger v. Stevens, 197 N. C. 234, 237, 148 S. E. 244; Pender County v. King, 197 N. C. 50, 56, 147 S. E. 695; Andrews Music Store v. Boone, 197 N. C. 174, 148 S. E. 39; Pender County v. King, 197 N. C. 50, 56, 147 S. E. 695; Berger v. Stevens, 197 N. C. 234, 237, 148 S. E. 244; Shuford v. Yarborough, 197 N. C. 150, 151, 147 S. E. 824; Andrews Music Store v. Boone, 197 N. C. 174, 176, 148 S. E. 39; Shemwell v. Lethco, 198 N. C. 346, 348, 151 S. E. 729; Mack Truck Corp. v. Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., 199 N. C. 203, 204, 154 S. E. 42; Taylor v. Taylor, 197 N. C. 197, 200, 148 S. E. 171.

II. CAUSES OF ACTION WITH REFERENCE TO TRANSACTION, OR SUBJECT OF ACTION.

The general rule which may be deduced from the decisions is that, if the causes of action be not entirely distinct and unconnected, if they arise out of one and the same transaction, or a series of transactions forming one dealing and all tending to one end, if one connected story can be told of the whole——they may be joined in order to determine the whole controversy in one action. Young v. Young, 81 N. C. 92; Bedsole v. Monroe, 40 N. C. 313; Hawk v. Pine Lumber Co., 145 N. C. 47, 48, 58 S. E. 603, 604; Worth v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 152 N. C. 242, 67 S. E. 590, 592; Howell v. Fuller, 151 N. C. 315, 66 S. E. 131; Fisher v. Trust Co., 138 N. C. 224, 50 S. E. 659; King v. Farmer, 88 N. C. 22; Balfour Quarry Co. v. West Constr. Co., 151 N. C. 345, 66 S. E. 217; Bedsole v. Monroe, 40 N. C. 313; Taylor v. Postal Life Ins. Co., 182 N. C. 120, 122, 108 S. E. 502.

Source of Litigation.—While it was the object of legislature to avoid a multiplicity of suits and to prevent protracted and vexatious litigation, this subdivision of this section has given rise to more unprofitable litigation upon its construction than any other section. Young v. Youug, 81 N. C. 92.

The word "transaction" is used in the statute in reference to the joinder of actions in the sense of the conduct or finishing up of an affair, which constitutes as a whole the "subject of action." Cheatham v. Bobbitt, 118 N. C. 343, 346, 24 S. E. 13.

Under this section it is not necessary that the causes of action of several plaintiffs be identical, but only that the causes of action arise out of the same transaction or transactions connected with the same subject of action. Wilson v. Horton Motor Lines, 207 N. C. 263, 176 S. E. 750.

Legal and equitable causes of action, arising out of tort and ex contractu, may be united under this section in the same complaint where they arise out of the same transaction or series of transactions forming a connected whole. Fry v. Pomona Mills, 206 N. C. 768, 175 S. E. 156.

Series of Transactions Forming One Course of Dealing. — Causes of action which arise from a series of transactions connected together and forming one cause of dealing may be joined. King v. Farmer, 88 N. C. 22; Balfour, etc., Co. v. West Constr. Co., 151 N. C. 345, 66 S. E. 217, 220.

General Right Arising out of Series of Transactions. — Young v. Young, 81 N. C. 92.

Tort and Contract May Be Joined.—An action arising upon a contract united in the same complaint with one arising in tort is not a misjoinder, and a demurrer thereto will not be sustained "where they arise out of the same transaction or are connected with the same subject of action." Hawk v. Pine Lumber Co., 145 N. C. 48, 58 S. E. 603; Cook v. Smith, 119 N. C. 350, 355, 25 S. E. 958; Reynolds v. Mt. Airy, etc., R. Co., 136 N. C. 345, 346, 48 S. E. 765; Railroad Co. v. Wakefield Hdw. Co., 135 N. C. 73, 75, 47 S. E. 234; Richmond Cedar Works v. Roper Lumber Co., 161 N. C. 603, 77 S. E. 770, 774.

In the earlier cases of Logan v. Wallis, 76 N. C. 416, and Doughty v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 78 N. C. 22, it was broadly stated that a cause of action founded on a tort could not be joined with one founded on contract; but in Hodges v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 105 N. C. 170, 10 S. E. 917, this rule was explained and extended so as to permit such a joinder of action, provided they arose out of the same transaction. Benton v. Collins, 118 N. C. 196, 198, 24 S. E. 122; Daniels v. Baxter, 120 N. C. 14, 17, 26 S. E. 635; Hodges v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 105 N. C. 170, 171, 10 S. E. 917.

For example in Hamlin v. Tucker, 72 N. C. 502, it was held that a plaintiff may in the same complaint join as separate causes of action: (1) the harboring and maintaining his wife; (2) the conversion of certain personal property, to which the plaintiff is entitled jure mariti; (3) inducing the wife while harbored and mantained to execute to defendant a deed for land, under which he had received the rents, and (4) converting to defendant's own use certain mules, farming utentils, etc., set out in a marriage settlement executed by the plaintiff and his wife. Hawk v. Pine Lumber Co., 145 N. C. 48, 49, 58 S. E. 603.

Likewise in Young v. Young, 81 N. C. 92, the court held that a complaint containing several causes of action, viz: (1) to declare one defendant a trustee of land, (2) to recover judgment of other defendants for purchase-money of same, (3) and to recover possession of the land with damages for withholding it, is not demurrable.

Stockholder's Suit against Corporate Officers. — Where the stockholders of a corporation sue its officers for damages for their mismanagement and negligence in accepting worthless paper, and inducing the plaintiffs to become indorsee thereon to their loss and damage, and in failing to indorse these papers themselves under an agreement to do so, the causes of action are properly joined, one sounding in tort and the other being to enforce an equitable right arising out of transactions connected with the same subject-matter. Ayers v. Bailey, 162 N. C. 209, 78 S. E. 66.

Suit against Defaulting Corporate Officer and Surety.—A suit by the receiver of a corporation against its defaulting officer and the surety or guarantor for his honesty or fidelity is not objectionable as a misjoinder of parties and causes of action, the alleged default of the principal having occurred that created the surety's liability within the terms and conditions of its bond. Shuford v. Yarborough, 197 N. C. 150, 147 S. E. 824, distinguishing Clark v. Bonsol, 157 N. C. 270, 72 S. E. 954, and citing Carswell v. Talley, 192 N. C. 37, 133 S. E. 181; Robinson v. Williams, 189 N. C. 256, 126 S. E. 621; S. v. Bank, 193 N. C. 524, 137 S. E. 593; Shuford v. Yarborough, 197 N. C. 150, 151, 147 S. E. 824.

Actions on Insurance Policies. — In McGowan v. Life Insurance Co., 141 N. C. 367, 54 S. E. 287, the complaint alleged that the plaintiff had been induced to take out fifteen policies on the lives of herself, her children and grandchildren by means of certain false and fraudulent representations made to her by the defendant's agents that they were ten-year tontine policies; that after paying her weekly assessments for ten years, when she demanded performance it was refused, and she discovered that the policies did not mean what the defendant's agents had represented to her. It was held that the causes of action were properly joined, on the theory that they all arose out of a transaction connected with the same subject of the action. See also, Pretzfelder & Co. v. Merchants Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 491, 21 S. E. 302.

Suit to Engraft Parol Trust on Land.—Where the complaint in a suit to engraft a parol trust upon the title to lands in favor of a husband and wife, alleges that they gave a mortgage on three tracts of land, the husband having title in two of them and his wife in the other, and that the husband for himself and as agent for his wife had agreed with a third person that the latter should bid it in at the sale and hold the title in trust for them upon certain trust relations: Held, in a suit against the administrator of the alleged deceased trustee, the complaint was not demurrable upon the ground of a misjoinder of parties and causes of action. Cole v. Shelton, 194 N. C. 741, 140 S. E. 734.

In an action to recover land on the ground that the sale under execution was void, it was held that all matter raised by the pleading could all be settled in one action. Jeffreys v. Hocutt, 195 N. C. 339, 142 S. E. 226.

Action to Foreclose Mortgage and Recover Land. — An action brought to foreclose a mortgage upon a tract of land cannot be joined with an action to recover the possession of another tract of land, as these causes do not arise out of the same transaction, nor are the transactions connected with the same subject of action. Edgarton v. Powell, 72 N. C. 64.

Actions for Mortgaged Property and Mortgage Debt. — A demand for judgment for the possession of mortgaged property is properly joined with a demand for judgment for the debt secured thereby. Kiger v. Harmon, 113 N. C. 406, 18 S. E. 515; Martin v. McNeely, 101 N. C. 634, 8 S. E. 231.

Action for Damages by Husband and Wife.—Where a civil action for damages is brought by a husband and wife for an alleged assault against them both, for alleged false arrest of the male plaintiff and abuse of process in swearing out a peace warrant against him and his false imprisonment, the defendant's demurrer on the ground of misjoinder of parties and causes of action is properly sustained and the case dismissed, the several causes of action not affecting all the parties to the action as required by this section and § 2513, authorizing a married woman to bring suit for damages for personal injuries without the joinder of her husband. Sasser v. Bullard, 199 N. C. 562, 155 S. E. 248.

Warranties—Predecessors in Title. — A grantee of lands against whom a recovery has been had for a part thereof may sue his grantor for damages upon the covenants and warranty in his deed, and the successive warrantors in his chain of title, separately or in the same action, the subject-matter being the same, our Code system not favoring a multiplicity of suits. Winders v. Southerland, 174 N. C. 235, 93 S. E. 726.

Proceedings under § 1667.—A complaint in proceedings by the wife under § 1667, for allowance for subsistence and counsel fees, with allegations that the husband had fraudulently conveyed his lands to his father under a conspiracy to defraud the plaintiff out of her marital rights, and afterwards had grossly abused her and coerced her into accepting a deed of separation is good and a demurrer thereto for misjoinder of parties and causes of action should be overruled, the various causes for which relief is sought being based on a conspiracy or arising out of the same subject-matter or transaction. Taylor v. Taylor, 197 N. C. 197, 148 S. E. 171.

III. CAUSES OF ACTION IN CONTRACT.

Contracts and Torts. — See notes under the preceding analysis line.

Implied Contract Arising out of Tort. — Generally a cause of action based on a contract cannot be joined with a cause of action based on tort. But where the tort is of such a nature that the plaintiff may waive it and sue upon an implied contract, the causes of action may be properly joined. Logan v. Wallis, 76 N. C. 416.

Specific Performance and Action for Damages. — It is well settled that a cause of action for specific performance may be joined with one for damages resulting from a breach of the contract, or from a delayed performance, or for any other damages growing out of the transaction to which the plaintiff may show himself entitled. Winders v. Hill, 141 N. C. 694, 703, 54 S. E. 440.

Action for Statutory Penalties.—An action for a penalty given by a statute to any person injured is an action on a contract. Hence it may not be joined with another cause of action based on tort to person or property. Doughty v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 78 N. C. 22, 23; Hodges v. Wilmington etc., R. Co., 105 N. C. 170, 10 S. E. 917.

A party suing for penalties against the same defendant may unite several such causes of action in the same complaint. Burrell v. Hughes, 116 N. C. 430, 437, 21 S. E. 971; Carter v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 126 N. C. 437, 36 S. E. 14.

A cause of action for a penalty for unreasonable delay in delivery of goods may be joined with one for recovery of the value of goods not delivered. Robertson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 148 N. C. 323, 62 S. E. 413; McCullen v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 146 N. C. 568, 60 S. E. 506.

Under this section allowing the joinder of several causes of action arising out of contract, express or implied, three causes of action against a register of deeds for statutory penalties for failure to record, and for wrongful issuance of, marriage licenses, may be united in the same complaint. Maggett v. Roberts, 108 N. C. 174, 12 S. E. 890.

Action for Rescission and breach.—Plaintiff may not unite in the same complaint an action for the recission of a contract and one for its breach. The rights are opposed and the remedies inconsistent. Lykes & Co. v. Grove, 201 N. C. 254, 159 S. E. 360.

IV. CAUSES OF ACTION FOR TORT TO PERSON OR PROPERTY.

Injury to Person and Property May be Joined. — Causes of action for "injuries with or without force to persons and property, or to either," may be joined, and different causes of action for such injuries may be joined against one or more defendants, provided that each of such causes affects all the parties defendant. Howell v. Fuller, 151 N. C. 315, 66 S. E. 131.

Trespass and Assault.—A count in trespass for forcibly entering the plaintiff's close may be joined with a count for an assault and battery. Flinn v. Anders, 31 N. C. 328.

Destroying Property and Trespass. — An action for willingly destroying a horse may be joined with a count for trespass in entering on the plaintiff's tenement. Rippey v. Miller, 46 N. C. 479.

Trespass Vi Et Armis and on the Case. — In an action for false imprisonment, under the Code, the common-law actions of trespass vi et armis and of trespass on the case may be joined in one complaint. Bryan v. Stewart, 123 N. C. 92, 31 S. E. 286. Hogwood v. Edwards, 61 N. C. 350, 352.

V. MUST AFFECT ALL PARTIES AND HAVE THE SAME VENUE.

As to general provisions relating to parties, see secs. 446 et seq.

General Rule. — As stated in the next to the last paragraph of the section causes of action may not be united under the provisions of this section, except those for the foreclosure of mortgages, unless they affect all the parties thereto. Roberts v. Utility Mfg. Co., 181 N. C. 204, 106 S. E. 664.

Same—Mandatory. — This provision of the statute is mandatory and not merely directory. Thus in Eller v. Carolina, etc., R. Co., 140 N. C. 140, 145, 52 S. E. 305, where no formal objection was taken to the defect, the court said that they would take notice of it so that attention may be called to this important provision of the law which is mandatory and intended to protect a substantial right of the defendant.

Causes Affecting Different Parties. — Comprehensive as are the provisions of this section, allowing several causes of action to be united in the same action, it does not extend to and embrace distinct causes of action against different persons having no substantial connection with each other in respect of such causes of action. It does not provide for the consolidation of all sorts of causes of action in the same action, nor does it allow two or more different persons to be sued in the same action in respect to distinct causes of action where there is no joint or common liability among them. Different causes of action in favor of and against different parties must be litigated in different actions. Brown v. Coble, 76 N. C. 391; Logan v. Wallis, 76 N. C. 416; Street v. Tuck, 84 N. C. 605; Burns v. Williams, 88 N. C. 159; Mitchell v. Mitchell, 96 N. C. 14, 17, 1 S. E. 648.

When a complete determination of a cause of action joined with others requires parties not necessary to the other causes of action, it is demurrable. Logan v. Wallis, 76 N. C. 416.

Thus a plaintiff could not unite in one suit a cause of action for wrongful attachment and one against the surety on the attachment bond for a breach thereof. Railroad Co. v. Hardware Co., 135 N. C. 73, 47 S. E. 234.

Injuries to Father and Son by the Same Negligence. —

The joinder of a cause of action brought by a son, an employee, to recover of his employer damages for a personal injury alleged to have been caused by the latter's negligence, with that of the father to recover for the loss of the son's services alleged to have been caused by the same negligent act, is demurrable on the ground of misjoinder of parties and causes of action. Thigpen v. Cotton Mills, 151 N. C. 97, 65 S. E. 750.

Causes Affecting Husband and Wife Separately. — A husband and wife can not join their separate actions for damages for mental anguish caused by defendant's negligence, and recover one sum in satisfaction of their several claims. Eller v. Railroad, 140 N. C. 140, 52 S. E. 305.

Actions against Different Insurance Companies.—Where a person was insured in several companies, and each policy limited the amount of his recovery thereunder to the proportion of the loss which the policy should bear to the total insurance, it was proper, in an action to recover for a loss, to make each company a party defendant. Pretzfelder & Co. v. Merchants' Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 491, 21 S. E. 302.

Action against Partner. — A cause of action against one on a joint contract as a partner may be joined with a cause of action against such partner individually. Logan v. Wallis, 76 N. C. 416.

Actions upon Administrator's and Clerk's Bond.—A complaint in which are joined two causes of action, the one upon a clerk's and the other upon a bond of an administrator, is demurrable. Street v. Tuck, 84 N. C. 605.

Action against Two Carriers. — Where a carrier has accepted a shipment beyond its own line, and upon its not being delivered, agrees by parol to have it reshipped to the starting point, and delivery is made there in bad condition, a joinder of causes of action against the two defendants to recover damages to the shipment while in their possession is proper. Lyon v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 165 N. C. 143, 81 S. E. 1.

Joinder of Contract and Tort Actions against Different Defendants. — A contract action against one person may not be joined with a tort action against the same person; much less may a contract action against one person be joined with a tort action against the same and another person. Land Co. v. Beatty, 69 N. C. 329. For causes relating to joinder of tort and contract actions generally, see ante, this note, "Causes of Action with Reference to Transaction, or Subject of Action," II

Different Venue. — Actions requiring different places of trial cannot be joined. Richmond Cedar Works v. Roper Lumber Co., 161 N. C. 603, 613, 77 S. E. 770.

Art. 13. Defendant's Pleadings

§ 508. Demurrer and answer. — The only pleading on the part of the defendant is either a demurrer or an answer. He may demur to one or more of several causes of action stated in the complaint, and answer to the residue. (Rev., ss. 470, 471; Code, ss. 238, 246; C. C. P., ss. 94, 103.)

Applies to Several Causes of Action Not to Several Allegations. — If a party answer and also demur to the same cause of action, the answer overrules the demurrer; but pleadings, in which a party answers to some and demurs to others of the allegations made in support of any one cause of action, are erroneous. This section applies only where a complaint or answer contains several causes of action. Ransom v. McClees, 64 N. C. 17. A party can not answer some of the allegations of a single cause of action, and demur to others. Speight v. Jenkins, 99 N. C. 143, 5 S. E. 385; State v. Young, 65 N. C. 579; Von Glahn v. De Rossett, 76 N. C. 292; Love v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 706.

Cited in Shemwell v. Lethco, 198 N. C. 346, 348, 151 S. E. 729.

§ 509. Demurrer and answer.—The defendant must appear and demur or answer within thirty (30) days after the service of summons upon him, or within thirty (30) days after the final determination of a motion to remove as a matter of right, or after the final determination of a motion to dismiss upon a special appearance, or after the final determination of any other motion required to be made prior to the filing of the answer, or after final judgment overruling demurrer, or after the final determination of a motion to set aside a judgment by default under C. S. section six hundred, or to set aside a judgment under C. S. section four hundred and ninety-two. If the time is extended for filing complaint, then the defendant shall have thirty (30) days after the final day fixed by such extention in which to plead. The clerk shall not extend the time for filing answer or demurrer more than once nor for a period of time exceeding twenty days except by consent of parties. The defendant shall, when he files answer, likewise file at least one copy thereof for the use of the plaintiff, and his attorney; and the clerk shall not receive and file any answer until and unless such copy is filed therewith. The clerk shall forthwith mail the copy of answer filed to the plaintiff or his attorney of record. This section shall also apply to all courts of record inferior to the superior court, where any defendant resides out of the county from which the summons is issued and no court of record inferior to the superior court shall fix such return date at less than thirty (30) days. (Rev., ss. 473; Code, 207; 1870-1, c. 42, s. 4; 1919, c. 304, s. 3; Ex. Sess. 1919, c. 92, s. 3; 1927, c. 66, s. 4; 1935, c. 267.)

As to default judgments see secs. 592 et seq. and the notes thereto.

As to provisions on summons, see sections 475, et seq.; 1 N. C. L. Rev. p. 9 et. seq.

Editor's Note. — This section underwent material changes both in its phraseology and substance by every amendment since 1920, cited at the end thereof. As it originally stood in the Consolidated Statutes, it required that the defendant must appear and demur or answer within twenty days after the return day of the summons, and in case of extention of time for the filing of the complaint, twenty days from the filing of such complaint, with an authority in the clerk to extend the time for filing the answer or demurrer for good cause shown; otherwise the plaintiff would have judgment by default.

By the laws of 1921, (Ex. Sess. 1921, ch. 92, sec. 3) these provisions were so framed, as to allow the filing of the answer or demurrer twenty days after service of complaint, or within twenty days after the final determination of a motion to remove as a matter of right.

The same amendment inserted a provision to the effect that in case the complaint was not served, for good cause shown, the clerk may extend the time to a day certain; and a limitation upon the power of the clerk not to extend beyond twenty days after service of the complaint upon each of the defendants. (To this latter effect see, Battle v. Mercer, 187 N. C. 437, 122 S. E. 4; Lerch v. McKinne, 186 N. C. 244, 119 S. E. 193, where it was said that this limitation is a material part of the statute the object of which is to give the defendant twenty days after he is informed of the complaint.)

The amendment of 1927 changed the bases of the time within which the demurrer or the answer was to be filed. While formerly this was dependent upon the return day of the summons, being twenty days from such day, now, under the section as amended, the return day of the summons has no bearing upon the time for filing the answer or the demurrer, the basis of such time now being the service of the summons upon the defendant, irrespective of the time of its return. This change was effected to harmonize the time of filing the answer or demurrer with the new changes wrought into section 505 fixing the time of filing the complaint, and section 476 relative to the service and return of process.

This amendment also increased (from twenty to thirty days) the number of days within which the answer may be filed where the time is extended for the filing of the complaint. The limitation against extending the time more than once is also new. So also is the requirement for filing a copy of the answer for the use of the plaintiff.

The Act of 1927, ch. 132, was to amend an amendatory act of four sections (§ 476, 505, 509, 753) but did not affect any part of this section individually.

The amendment of 1935 added the last sentence of the section relating to courts to which it is applicable.

Not Repugnant to § 524.—Construing the acts amendatory of this section and section 524 together there is no repugnancy between them so as to repeal by implication the provision of the latter, that an answer of defendant setting up a counterclaim will be deemed denied unless a copy thereof is served on the plaintiff of his attorney. Williams-Fulghun Lumber Co. v. Welch, 197 N. C. 249, 148 S. E. 250.

Extension of Time. — It has been held that the power of court to extend the time of filing the pleadings or doing of any other act is neither affected nor curtailed by the provisions of this section. See McNair v. Garboro, 186 N. C. 111, 118 S. E. 913; Roberts v. Merritt, 189 N. C. 194, 126 S. E. 513.

This section does not affect the right of the Superior Court judge to allow an extension of time under section 536. Washington v. Hodges, 200 N. C. 364, 156 S. E. 912.

Same—Consent of Defendant. — The clerk has authority, upon request of the defendant, to extend the time for filing the answer beyond the twenty days allowed by this section, (prior to amendment of 1927) but he may not, of his own motion, extend the time without the defendant's consent, beyond that requested, and bar him of his right to move the cause to another county when his motion is made before answer filed within the twenty days allowed him from the filing of the complaint, though under a misapprehension as to the statutory time he has requested the clerk to allow him two weeks in which to file his answer, the time to which he is entitled by the statute. Stevens Lumber Co. v. Arnold, 179 N. C. 269, 102 S. E. 409.

Same—Beyond Time Requested. — Where a defendant has acted within the time allowed him by law to file his motion to change the venue of the action, and has requested the clerk for an extension of two weeks from the filing of the complaint in which to answer under a misapprehension of the statutory time allowed by this section, the extension of time by the clerk beyond that requested is not upon his application, and the failure of the defendant to specially controvert this upon the argument will not deprive him of his right. Stevens Lumber Co. v. Arnold, 179 N. C. 269, 102 S. E. 409.

Same—On Appeal. — The defendant against whom the judgment by default has been rendered, may on appeal apply to the judge for an extention of time. Brooks v. White, 187 N. C. 656, 122 S. E. 561.

Same—Modification of Order at Subsequent Term. — An order extending time for defendant to plead, and providing that, in case he did not do so within the time limited, judgment should be entered for plaintiff, is not a judgment conclusively affecting rights and interests of parties, and is not made so by defendant's consent to entry of such order, and hence it may be modified by another judge at a subsequent term. Woodcock v. Merrimon, 122 N. C. 731, 30 S. E. 321; United, etc., Baptist Church N. E. Conference v. United, etc., Baptist Church, N. W. Conference, 158 N. C. 564, 74 S. E. 14; Cook v. Bank, 131 N. C. 96, 42 S. E. 550.

Same—Sufficient with Order. — If defendant prays time to answer and afterwards within the time he answers, denying combination and demurs for the residue, that is sufficient compliance with the order. Littlejohn v. Burton, 3 N. C. 127.

Plaintiff May Have Judgment by Default. — If the complaint is filed in compliance with section 505, and the defendant fails to appear and answer at the same term, the plaintiff may have a judgment by default. Brown v. Rhinehart, 112 N. C. 772, 775, 16 S. E. 840.

Removal. — The provision relating to the time of filing answer or demurrer after determination of the motion for removal was inserted in this section by the Public Laws of 1921, Ed. Note.

Same—Time of Removal to Federal Court. — The Federal statute (25 U. S. St. at large, 435) with respect to removal of causes of action from the state to the Federal courts provides that the defendant must file his petition "at or before the time at which he is required to plead."

This requirement is imperative that it shall be filed when the plea is due, and no order of the court or stipulation of the parties allowing an extension of time to plead can extend the time for filing the petition. Howard v. Southern R. Co., 122 N. C. 944, 29 S. E. 778; Meeke v. Valleytown Mineral Co, 122 N. C. 790, 796, 29 S E. 781.

But the holdings of the Federal circuit court are in conflict with the holdings of the Supreme Court of this state. Thus in Avent v. Deep River Lumber Co., 174 Fed. 298, following Wilcox Co. v. Ins. Co., 60 Fed. 929, it was held that under this section requiring the defendant to plead within twenty days after the return day of his summons, unless the time is extended, an order made by the court extending the time to answer, operates to extend the time for filing the petition for removal. Ed. Note.

The filing of an answer in the state court by a defendant after his petition for removal has been denied does not affect his right to file the record in the Federal court and obtain an order of removal therefrom before the time when his answer was due. Aven v. Deep River Lumber Co., 174 Fed. 298.

The time for filing an answer expires when it is actually filed, so far as it affects the defendant's right to apply for a removal of the cause to the Federal court. Howard v. Southern R. Co., 122 N. C. 944, 29 S. E. 778.

Applied in Harrell v. Welstead, 206 N. C. 817, 175 S. E. 283.

§ 510. Sham and irrelevant defenses.—Sham and irrelevant answers and defenses may be stricken out on motion, upon such terms as the court may in its discretion impose. (Rev., s. 472; Code, s. 247; C. C. P., s. 104.)

What Constitutes Sham Defenses. — A sham answer is false in fact; an irrevelant or frivolous one has no substantial relation to the controversy and presents no defense to the action, though its contents may be true. Howell v. Ferguson, 87 N. C. 113.

The answer or defense must be really a sham pleading; that is to say, it must set up matter as a defense which is a mere pretense and has not the color of fact. The design was to prevent vexatious defenses by the plea of matter for delay, false in fact, and so known to be by the pleader. And, while in general such a pleading may be stricken out where the falsehood can be clearly shown, the power ought not to be exercised in any case where the matter objected to, as presented or in any other form, might constitute a defense. Boone v. Hardie, 83 N. C. 471, 473.

An answer which avers that "no allegation of the complaint is true," is a sham plea, and will be stricken on motion as provided by this section. Flack v. Dawson, 69 N. C. 42.

So also is a plea that the court had no jurisdiction of the action, or a plea alleging the want of parties. As these are required by the following section to be raised by demurrer. Id.

Conclusions of Law. — An answer stating conclusions of law puts no fact in issue, and for this reason is a sham pleading which may be stricken out. Deloatch v. Vinson, 108 N. C. 147, 148, 12 S. E. 895.

A reference of issues upon sham pleas is erroneous, but if the reference embrace an issue on a good plea which may be referred, it will be sustained as to that while it is reversed as to the others. Flack v. Dawson, 69 N. C. 42.

Answer after Sham Demurrer Overruled — It is in the discretion of the trial judge to permit the defendant to answer after overruling a demurrer to the complaint, though the demurrer were frivolous. Parker v. North Carolina R. Co., 150 N. C. 433, 64 S. E. 186.

Appeal. — The refusal to hold a demurrer or answer frivolous and to render judgment thereon is not appealable (Walters v. Starnes, 118 N. C. 842, 24 S. E. 713; Abbott v. Hancock, 123 N. C. 89, 31 S. E. 271), where the reasons are given. Parker v. North Carolina R. Co., 150 N. C. 433, 435, 64 S. E. 186; Abbott v. Hancock, 123 N. C. 89, 31 S. E. 271.

The action of the judge of the Superior Court in passing upon the judgment of the clerk of the court in refusing to strike out the defendant's answer as sham and frivolous, under this section, is upon a matter of law requiring exception thereto and an appeal to the Supreme Court. Wellons v. Lassiter, 200 N. C. 474, 157 S. E. 434.

The Superior Court has the power and authority to determine on appeal the order of the clerk of the court in refusing a motion under this section to strike out the defendant's answer on the ground that it was sham and frivolous. Wellons v. Lassiter, 200 N. C. 474, 157 S. E. 434.

Art. 14. Demurrer

§ 511. Grounds for.—The defendant may demur to the complaint when it appears upon the face thereof, either that:

1. The court has no jurisdiction of the person of the defendant, or of the subject of the action; or,

2. The plaintiff has not legal capacity to sue; or,

3. There is another action pending between the same parties for the same cause; or,

4. There is a defect of parties plaintiff or defendant; or,

5. Several causes of action have been improperly united; or,

6. The complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. (Rev., s. 474; Code, s. 239; C. C. P., s. 95.)

I. In General.
II. Lack of Jurisdiction.
III. Lack of Legal Capacity.
IV. Pendency of Another Action.
V. Defect of Parties.
VI. Misjoinder of Several Causes of Action.
VII. Failure to State Sufficient Facts.

I. IN GENERAL.

All Demurrers Special.—Under our practice all demurrers are special and may be pleaded only for the causes specified in this section. Shaffer v. Morris Bank, 201 N. C. 415, 417, 160 S. E. 481.

Enumeration of Grounds Exclusive.—The enumeration in this section of the grounds upon which a demurrer may be based is exclusive. Hence a demurrer does not lie except in the cases specifically mentioned in this section. Smith v. Summerfield, 108 N. C. 284, 288, 12 S. E. 997; Dunn v. Barnes, 73 N. C. 273.

Thus the statute of limitation which does not appear in the enumeration may not be taken advantage of by demurrer, but must be raised by answer. Green v. North Carolina R. Co., 73 N. C. 524.

Objections Waived—Exceptions. — All objections except those on the ground that the court has no jurisdiction of the person of the defendant or the subject matter of the action, and that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, are waived unless they are taken by demurrer or answer. But the exceptions referred to may be taken advantage of by demurrer even in the appellate court. Clements v. Rogers, 91 N. C. 63, 64. See sec. 518, and the note thereto.

Same—No Cause Stated.—The objection that the complaint states no cause of action or that the court has no jurisdiction may be made either by written demurrer or demurrer ore tenus and cannot be waived. Baker v. Garris, 108 N. C. 218, 225, 13 S. E. 2.

Motion to Make More Certain.—Where a pleading is indefinite and uncertain, it is not subject to demurrer, but the proper remedy is by motion to make more definite and certain. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Main, 132 N. C. 445, 43 S. E. 930.

The same rule applies where the complaint does not fully state the terms of the contract sued on. Wood v. Kincaid, 144 N. C. 393, 57 S. E. 4.

Where a complaint alleging negligence states a cause of action, the remedy of a defendant desiring a more definite statement of the alleged negligence is by motion to make the complaint more definite and certain, and not by demurrer. Jones v. Henderson, 147 N. C. 120, 60 S. E. 894; Allen v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 120 N. C. 548, 27 S. E. 76. See § 537, and notes thereto.

Redundancy in pleading must be objected to by motion before answer, and not by demurrer. Smith v. Summerfield, 108 N. C. 284, 12 S. E. 997. See § 537, and notes.

Alternative, Argumentative, or Hypothetical Allegations. —That a complaint is "argumentative, hypothetical, and in the alternative," is no ground for demurrer. Daniels v. Baxter, 120 N. C. 14, 26 S. E. 635; Pender v. Mallett, 123 N. C. 57, 31 S. E. 351; Smith v. Summerfield, 108 N. C. 284, 12 S. E. 997.

Inconsistency of Causes.—A complaint is not always demurrable because two alleged causes of action are to some extent inconsistent. Worth v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 152 N. C. 242, 67 S. E. 590.

Informality in the Demand for Judgment.—Any informality in the demand for judgment in a complaint is not ground for demurrer, and must be disregarded when the sum demanded, and how it is due, sufficiently appear from the summons and complaint. Dunn v. Barnes, 73 N. C. 273.

Cited in Pender County v. King, 197 N. C. 50, 56, 147 S. E. 695; Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 258, 148 S. E. 253; Shuford v. Yarbrough, 198 N. C. 5, 150 S. E. 618; Shemwell v. Lethco, 198 N. C. 346, 348, 151 S. E. 729.

II. LACK OF JURISDICTION.

Motion Ore Tenus.—A petition which is demurrable on this ground may also be taken advantage of by a motion ore tenus. Tucker v. Baker, 86 N. C. 1, 3. See sec. 518.

The decision of the question whether a cause of action arose out of tort or contract so as to determine whether the superior court or the justice of the peace has exclusive original jurisdiction, involves only the cause of action as alleged in the complaint, and evidence offered by plaintiff cannot be considered in deciding the question presented by demurrer ore tenus, under subsection 1 of this section and § 518. Roebuck v. Short, 196 N. C. 61, 144 S. E. 515.

Plea to Jurisdiction is a Sham Plea.—See note to sec. immediately preceding.

Plea That Industrial Commission Has Jurisdiction.—In an action by an administrator to recover for the wrongful death of his intestate, a plea to the jurisdiction of the court on the ground that the industrial commission had exclusive jurisdiction of the cause is in effect a demurrer to the complaint, and where it does not appear from the complaint that the defendant regularly employed more than five employees in this state, the plea to the jurisdiction should be overruled. Southerland v. Harrell, 204 N. C. 675, 169 S. E. 423.

Demurrer for Want of Proper Service of Summons. — Where a nonresident defendant wishes to demur to the jurisdiction of the court for the want of proper service of summons on him, he must enter a special appearance for that purpose and confine his demurrer to that objection alone; and where he has entered a general appearance, or demurred on the further ground that the court has no jurisdiction of the subject matter, it is to be taken as a general appearance as to the merits, waiving the objection as to proper service, and he will be bound by the adverse judgments of the court having jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the action. Dailey Motor Co. v. Reaves, 184 N. C. 260, 114 S. E. 175.

Under this section the defendant may demur to the complaint when it appears upon its face, the court had no jurisdiction of the person of defendant, and the right to dismiss an action for want of jurisdiction by entering a special appearance for the purpose is imbedded in our procedure. Smith v. Haughton, 206 N. C. 587, 588, 174 S. E. 506.

III. LACK OF LEGAL CAPACITY.

In General.—Demurrer lies where a partnership does not show a right to sue, 13 O. S. 210; where it appears upon the face of the pleading that plaintiff suing as a corporation is not such, 26 O. S. 565; 29 Bull 61; 40 N. Y. 410, Affg. 41 Barb. 571; 37 N. Y. 648; where some legal disability of the plaintiff such as infancy, idiocy or coverture, is disclosed, 31 Ind. 355, 11 Kas. 128; 16 Neb. 483; see 6 Ohio Nisi. Pruis Reports 60.

It is held that it can only be sustained on these grounds, 67 Ind. 570.

Mr. Bliss says that this is too narrow a view to take of the statute, and that incapacity to sue may arise from want of title to the character in which the plaintiff sues, Bliss Code pl. § 408, citing Mooks Van Stan Voord 68 ;as when an executor does appear to have proved the will of his testator, or appears to have proved it in an improper or insufficient court, as he does not show a complete title to sue as executor, a demurrer will lie, Bliss Code pl. § 48; Mitfords Eq. Pl. 155; see 47 Hun 281; and when an action is brought by a foreign executor or administrator without showing authority from the State in which the proceeding is had, a demurrer will lie for want of capacity to sue, 26, How. Pr. 15; and when an invalid appointment of a receiver has been made, demurrer should lie for incapacity to sue, 3 Abb Pr. 119.

Must Appear on the Face of Complaint.—Unless the lack of legal capacity appears on the face of the complaint, a demurrer cannot be sustained based on that objection. Fisher v. Traders' Mut. Life Ins. Co., 136 N. C. 217, 219, 48 S. E. 667.

IV. PENDENCY OF ANOTHER ACTION.

In General.—The character of the prior action is not material if full relief could have been given therein, 16 Barb, 461; but if it was for relief, which could not be granted in the action demurred to the demurrer will not be sustained, 5 N. Y. 357.

Pendency in This State Prerequisite.—Upon a demurrer on the ground of pendency of action, it must appear that the other action is pending in courts of this state. Carpenter, etc., Co. v. Hanes, 162 N. C. 46, 47, 77 S. E. 1101; Ridley v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 118 N. C. 996, 24 S. E. 730; Sloan & Co. v. McDowell, 75 N. C. 29.

Pending in Another County.—A demurrer to a complaint, setting up the prior pendency in another county of an action upon the same subject-matter between the same parties, will be sustained, under this section, and, when such allegations do not so appear in the pleading, objection to the pendency of the second action may be taken by answer. Allen v. Salley, 179 N. C. 147, 101 S. E. 545.

For full treatment of the general subject of pendency of another suit, see "Abatement and Revival", 1 N. C. Enc. Dig. 7 et seq.

Availed of by Demurrer or Answer.—If the pendency of the former action appear on the face of the complaint, it may be taken advantage of by demurrer; otherwise by answer. Allen v. Salley, 179 N. C. 147, 148, 101 S. E. 545; Curtis v. Piedmont Lumber, etc., Co., 109 N. C. 401, 13 S. E. 944; Reed v. Caroline Mtg. Co., 207 N. C. 27, 175 S. E. 834.

Conclusiveness of Prior Judgment.—Under this section the rights of plaintiff are remitted to a prior judgment, and defendant's demurrer to the complaint in the second action will be sustained. Turner v. Turner, 205 N. C. 198, 200, 170 S. E. 646.

V. DEFECT OF PARTIES.

See Parties 9 N. C. Enc. Dig. 829. As to joinder of parties, see sec. 457 and notes.

Lack of Necessary Parties.—Where a substituted trustee brings an equitable action to reform a deed of trust and certain mortgage notes which are negotiable and the holders of these notes are not parties plaintiff a demurrer under this section will be sustained. First Nat. Bank v. Thomas, 204 N. C. 599, 169 S. E. 189.

How Taken Advantage of.—If there is a defect of material parties, the defendant must take advantage of the same by demurrer if the defect appears from the complaint, and if not, by answer. Otherwise he will be deemed to have waived such objection. Kornegay v. Farmer's, etc., Steamboat Co., 107 N. C. 115, 117, 12 S. E. 123; Lanier v. Pullman Co., 180 N. C. 406, 409, 105 S. E. 21; Styers v. Alspaugh, 118 N. C. 631, 634, 24 S. E. 422. See Sims v. Dalton, 202 N. C. 249, 162 S. E. 550, affirming Lanier v. Pullman Co., 180 N. C. 406, 105 S. E. 21; Yonge v. New York Life Ins. Co., 199 N. C. 16, 153 S. E. 630; Wiggins v. Harrell, 200 N. C. 336, 156 S. E. 9.

The rule of the common law requiring the non-joinder of defendants in actions ex contractu to be pleaded in abatement, has been changed, and the omission of a necessary party defendant may, under this section be taken advantage of by demurrer when the defect appears upon the face of the complaint. Merwin v. Ballard, 65 N. C. 168, 169.

A plea alleging want of parties is a sham plea. The objection must be raised by demurrer. Flack v. Dawson, 69 N. C. 42.

The non-joinder of parties plaintiff may not be taken advantage of under a general issue. It must be raised by demurrer. Lewis v. McNatt, 65 N. C. 63.

A motion to dismiss the action is an inappropriate method of raising the question of want of proper parties. This must be raised by a demurrer. Davidson v. Elms, 67 N. C. 228.

How Defect of Party Cured.—Where there is a defect of parties, the question may be raised by demurrer, and when so raised the defect may be cured by making the lacking party a party to the action. Graves v. Barrett, 126 N. C. 267, 270, 35 S. E. 539.

Same—Correction of Misjoinder of Parties.—A misjoinder of parties plaintiff may upon demurrer or motion be corrected by taxing the plaintiff with such costs as are incurred by the misjoinder. Pritchard v. Mitchell, 139 N. C. 54, 56, 51 S. E. 783.

Misjoinder of an Unnecessary Party.—While a nonjoinder of one who is a necessary party is fatal, a misjoinder of one who is not a necessary party is a mere surplusage. Green v. Green, 69 N. C. 294. Hence the misjoinder of an unnecessary party is not a ground for demurrer. Sullivan v. Field, 118 N. C. 358, 24 S. E. 735; Hargrove v. Hunt, 73 N. C. 24, 25; Green v. Green, 69 N. C. 294, 297; State v. Berryhill, 84 N. C. 133, 137.

To sustain a demurrer to the complaint there must be a misjoinder of parties and causes of action, and a misjoinder of an unnecessary party is alone insufficient to have the action dismissed. Shuford v. Yarborough, 197 N. C. 150, 147 S. E. 824; Star Furniture Co. v. Carolina, etc., Ry. Co., 195 N. C. 636, 143 S. E. 242, citing Abbott v. Hancock, 123 N. C. 99, 31 S. E. 368; Bank v. Angelo, 193 N. C. 576, 137 S. E. 705; Roberts v. Mfg. Co., 181 N. C. 204, 106 S. E. 664 See Winders v. Hill, 141 N. C. 694, 54 S. E. 440.

Plaintiff Not Real Party in Interest.—Where the plaintiff in the complaint is not the real party in interest under section 446, the complaint is subject to demurrer under this section. Fishell v. Evans, 193 N. C. 660, 662, 137 S. E. 865.

Averment of Corporate Capacity.—In a suit against a railroad company, it may be designated as a company by its corporate name, without an averment of its corporate capacity, and if this is disputed, it should be by answer and not by demurrer. Stanly v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 89 N. C. 331.

Cited in Lamson Co. v. Morehead, 199 N. C. 164, 167, 154 S. E. 50.

VI. MISJOINDER OF SEVERAL CAUSES OF ACTION.

As to what causes may be joined, see sec. 507, and the notes thereto.

What Constitutes Misjoinder.—A complaint in an action which is not so prolix as to mislead or confuse the defendants or to conceal or obscure, by its elaboration or redundant words, the real cause of action is sufficient; and if the matters alleged arise out of one and the same transaction, or series of transactions, forming one course of dealings, all tending to one end, narrating the transaction as a whole, the cause stated is not objectionable as multifarious. Lee v. Thornton, 171 N. C. 209, 88 S. E. 232.

It does not lie on this ground when causes of action which may have been united in one pleading, had they been separately stated, have been improperly mingled in one count, 64 N. Y. 173; the remedy is by motion, Id; 29 O. S. 144; 6 Kas. 547; nor where the petition (or complaint) contains a single cause of action, though stated in different counts as separate causes of action, 30 O. S. 308; 13 Kas. 351; nor where the petition (or complaint) states a single cause of action, but asks several distinct forms of relief, all properly obtainable under the facts stated. 41 N. Y. 107.

Same—Motion to Make More Certain.—Where the several causes af action are of such a nature that they can be properly joined under section 507, but they are not put together in a very logical way, the proper method of taking advantage of the defect is not by demurrer but by a motion to make more certain and definite. State v. McCanless, 193 N. C. 200, 206, 136 S. E. 371.

The Court May Divide the Several Misjoined Causes.—Even if the several causes have been improperly joined the court may allow the pleadings to conform thereto upon such terms as are just, and order the action to be divided into as many actions as are necessary for the proper determination of the controversy. See post section 516. State v. McCanless, 193 N. C. 200, 136 S. E. 371.

Applied in Grady v. Warren, 201 N. C. 693, 161 S. E. 319.

VII. FAILURE TO STATE SUFFICIENT FACTS.

See sec. 506 clause 2, and note.

Fatal Defect in Complaint.—When it appears upon the face of the complaint that it is fatally defective, a demurrer will be sustained under this section. Carson v. Jenkins, 206 N. C. 475, 476, 174 S. E. 271.

Demurrer to Several Causes One of Which is Sufficiently Stated.—Where the petition states several causes of action any one of which is good, a demurrer to the whole petition on the ground that it states no cause of action will be overruled. State v. McCanless, 193 N. C. 200, 206, 136 S. E. 371.

Motion to Divide or Make More Certain.—Objection for misjoinder of causes of action should be made upon motion to divide them; objection to the complaint for multifarious, irrelevant, and redundant allegations, upon motion, made before answer or demurrer or time allowed to plead, to make it more definite and certain. Lee v. Thornton, 171 N. C. 209, 88 S. E. 232.

Defective Statement Which Can Be Cured by Amendment.—Where a pleading contains a defective statement, as the omission of a necessary allegation which can be cured by amendment, a demurrer will lie. New Bern Banking, etc., Co. v. Duffy, 156 N. C. 83, 72 S. E. 96; Bowling v. Burton, 101 N. C. 176, 7 S. E. 701; Mizzell v. Ruffin, 118 N. C. 69, 23 S. E. 927; Ladd v. Ladd, 121 N. C. 118, 28 S. E. 190; Blackmore v. Winders, 144 N. C. 212, 56 S. E. 874.

But a complaint can not be overthrown by a demurrer unless it be wholly insufficient. Blackmore v. Winders, 144 N. C. 212, 56 S. E. 874, Complaint Considered as a Whole.—A demurrer can not be sustained to a complaint if in any portion or to any extent it presents a cause of action, or if sufficient facts can be fairly gathered therefrom. Hoke v. Glenn, 167 N. C. 594, 83 S. E. 807; Jones v. Henderson, 147 N. C. 120, 60 S. E. 894; Caho v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 147 N. C. 20, 60 S. E. 640; New Bern Banking, etc., Co. v. Duffy, 156 N. C. 83, 72 S. E. 96; Womack v. Carter, 160 N. C. 286, 75 S. E. 1102.

A demurrer to a complaint on the ground that its allegations were insufficient to constitute a cause of action will not be sustained if, taking the pleading in its entirety it is sufficient in one or more of its parts; and where the demurrer is that the contract sued on was a wagering one and no recovery could be had under §§ 2144, 2145, and two causes of action are alleged, if only one of them should be good the demurrer should be overruled. Meyer v. Fenner, 196 N. C. 476, 146 S. E. 82.

Time of Demurrer.—The demurrer on this ground may be taken at any stage of the case, 32 N. Y. 397, before final judgment in error; but if such objection has not been made prior to filing the petition in error, it should in some form appear in the record of the reviewing court before the case is heard, 30 O. S. 133. Ed. Note.

Motion Ore Tenus.—A petition which is demurrable on this ground may also be taken advantage of by a motion ore tenus. Tucker v. Baker, 86 N. C. 1, 3.

Applied in Grady v. Warren, 201 N. C. 693, 161 S. E. 319.

Cited in Key v. Home Chair Co., 199 N. C. 794, 795, 156 S. E. 135; Lamson Co. v. Morehead, 199 N. C. 164, 167, 154 S. E. 50; Redfern v. McGrady, 199 N. C. 128, 132, 154 S. E. 3; Begnell v. Safety Coach Line, 198 N. C. 688, 691, 153 S. E. 264; Brewer v. Brewer, 198 N. C. 669, 153 S. E. 163; Cole v. Wagner, 197 N. C. 692, 150 S. E. 339.

§ 512. Must specify grounds.—The demurrer must distinctly specify the grounds of objection to the complaint, or it may be disregarded. It may be taken to the whole complaint, or to any of the alleged causes of action stated therein. (Rev., s. 475; Code, s. 240; C. C. P., s. 96.)

The purpose of this section seems to be to give an opportunity to ask for an amendment if the defect admits of cure, or permits further costs to be avoided if the defect is incurable, since the party, upon the particulars being indicated, may become satisfied of the invalidity of his cause of action and discontinue further proceedings. Thompson v. Johnson Funeral Home, 205 N. C. 801, 808, 172 S. E. 500.

Comparison of Statute of 4 Anne and This Section.—In regard to demurrers this section improves upon the Statute of 4 Anne, and requires every demurrer, whether for substance or form, to specify distinctly the ground of objection to the complaint. Garrett v. Trotter, 65 N. C. 430, 433.

Nature of Demurrer Under the Code.—A demurrer under the Code differs from the former demurrer at law in this: Every demurrer, whether for substance or form, is now special, and must distinctly specify the ground of objection to the complaint, or be disregarded; it differs from the former demurrer in equity, in that the judgment overruling it is final, and decides the case, unless the pleadings are amended by leave to withdraw the demurrer and put in an answer. Love v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 706.

Must Specify for Purposes of Amendment.—A demurrer must specify the ground upon which it is based to the end that the defect may be supplied by amendment. Garrett v. Trotter, 65 N. C. 430. 433.

A demurrer to the complaint ore tenus must distinctly specify the grounds of objection or it may be disregarded. Seawell v. Chas. Cole & Co., 194 N. C. 546, 140 S. E. 85.

Otherwise It May Be Disregarded.—Under this section if the demurrer, interposed by the defendants, does not "distinctly specify the grounds of objection to the complaint," it may be disregarded or treated as a motion to dismiss from the refusal of which no appeal lies. Griffin v. Bank of Coleridge, 205 N. C. 253, 254, 171 S. E. 71.

A demurrer will not be sustained if the pleadings, liberally construed are sufficient to sustain the causes therein, to which objection is made. Enloe v. Ragle, 195 N. C. 38, 141 S. E. 477.

Upon an appeal from a judgment overruling a demurrer to the complaint the merits of the controversy are not presented, and the court will determine only whether a cause of action has been sufficiently alleged. Star Furniture Co. v. Carolina, etc., Ry. Co., 195 N. C. 636, 143 S. E. 242.

Strictness of the Requirement. — In Love v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 706, the court said: "It is so easy to specify the ground of objection that the court is not disposed to relax the rule. There is no use in having a scribe unless you cut up to it." Bank v. Bogle, 85 N. C. 203; Alford v. McCormac, 90 N. C. 151.

A demurrer "that the complaint states no cause of action whatever" against the defendant, will be disregarded. It must distinctly specify the grounds of objection to the complaint. Goss v. Waller, 90 N. C. 149.

A demurrer is also insufficient which states generally that "there is a defect of parties" or that plaintiff has no legal capacity to sue. 9 Misc. N. Y. 91.

Motion to Dismiss Must Also Specify Grounds.—A motion to dismiss an action because the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action is a demurrer, and should be disregarded unless it specifies the particulars of the alleged defect. Elam v. Barnes, 110 N. C. 73, 14 S. E. 621.

Demurring to Some Allegations and Replying to Others.—The latter sentence of this section clearly refers to a complaint containing several causes of action; or an answer taking two distinct grounds. Hence a party may not demur to some of the allegations supporting the same cause of action or the same defense, and reply to others. Ransom v. McCless, 64 N. C. 17, 21.

Cited in State v. Suncrest Lumber Co., 197 N. C. 4, 6, 147 S. E. 682; Brewer v. Brewer, 198 N. C. 669, 671, 153 S. E. 163.

§ 513. Amendment; hearing.—If a demurrer is filed the plaintiff may be allowed to amend. If plaintiff fail to amend within five days after notice, the parties may agree to a time and place of hearing the same before some judge of the superior court, and upon such agreement it shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court forthwith to send the complaint and demurrer to the judge holding the courts of the district, or to the resident judge of the district, who shall hear and pass upon the demurrer: Provided, if there be no agreement between the parties as to the time and place of hearing the same before the judge of the superior court, then it shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court to send the complaint and demurrer to the judge holding the next term of the superior court in the county where the action is pending, who shall hear and pass upon the demurrer at that term of the court. (1919, c. 304, s. 4; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 5.)

See notes under §§ 515, 547.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1921 the plaintiff was allowed to amend within three days, and upon failure to amend within such time, and in the absence of agreement between the parties as to the time and place of hearing the demurrer, it was made the duty of the clerk to send the complaint and the demurrer to the judge holding the courts of the district or to the resident judge of the district who was required to fix the time and place of hearing and notify the parties when and where he shall hear and pass upon the demurrer. There was no provision made as to the procedure in case there was no agreement between the parties. Besides these substantial changes, the phraseology of the section was also materially affected.

As to the changes affected upon this and other sections, see article entitled "Changes in North Carolina Procedure," in 1 N. C. L. R. 7-14.

Presumption on Appeal.—Where the plaintiff has not asked to be permitted to file an amendment to his complaint upon a demurrer being interposed thereto on the ground that a cause of action had not been sufficiently alleged, it will be considered on appeal that he has concluded to rely solely on the pleading he has filed. Ballinger v. Thomas, 195 N. C. 517, 142 S. E. 761.

§ 514. Appeals.—Upon the rendering of the decision upon the demurrer, if either party desires to appeal. notice shall be given and the appeal perfected as is now provided in case of appeals from decisions in term time. (1919, c. 304, s. 5; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 6.)

See § 638 and notes thereto.

Editor's Note.—The word "rendering" was substituted for the word "return" near the beginning of the section, and the words "from the decision" were inserted near the end of the section, by the amendment of 1921.

§ 515. Procedure after return of judgment.—Within ten days after the return of the judgment upon the demurrer, if there is no appeal, or within ten days after the receipt of the certificate from the supreme court, if there is an appeal, if the demurrer is sustained the plaintiff may move, upon three days notice, for leave to amend the complaint. If this is not granted, judgment shall be entered dismissing the action. If the demurrer is overruled the answer shall be filed within ten days after the receipt of the judgment, if there is no appeal, or within ten days after the receipt of the certificate of the supreme court, if there is an appeal. Otherwise the plaintiff shall be entitled to judgment by default final or by default and inquiry according to the course and practice of the court. (1919, c. 304, ss. 6, 7; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, ss. 7, 8.)

Editor's Note. — By the amendment of 1921 the word "judgment" was substituted for the words "decision overruling the demurrer" in the sentence preceding the last.

Statute Liberally Construed.—This section is in aid of an expeditious administration of justice and should be liberally construed and applied, to the end that actions may be tried on their merits and not dismissed because of defective pleadings. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253.

Discretion of Court.—A demurrer to a complaint will be sustained upon the insufficiency of the complaint to state a cause of action, and where a judgment sustaining such demurrer has been appealed from and upheld by the Supreme Court, the trial court has the power under this section, in the exercise of his sound discretion, to allow the plaintiff to amend the original complaint upon motion made within ten days after receipt by the clerk of the Superior Court of the certificate showing that the judgment of the Superior Court had been affirmed. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253, affirmed in McKeel v. Latham, 202 N. C. 318, 162 S. E. 747.

A motion for leave to amend a complaint under this section addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and his order denying the motion is not subject to review on appeal in the absence of gross abuse of this discretion. McKeel v. Latham, 203 N. C. 246, 165 S. E. 694.

Dismissal Unless Motion to Amend Is Made.—Where a demurrer ore tenus interposed in the Supreme Court is sustained, questions of law presented by appellant's exception to the overruling of his written demurrers by the lower court need not be considered, and the case will be remanded with direction that it be dismissed, unless in apt time plaintiff moves for leave to amend as provided by this section. White v. Charlotte, 207 N. C. 721, 178 S. E. 219.

Under this section where an action has been dismissed for misjoinder of parties and causes the action is not pending and the court has no power to allow a motion to amend the pleadings. Grady v. Warren, 202 N. C. 638, 163 S. E. 679.

Appeal.—Where the trial judge has allowed the plaintiff's motion to amend his complaint under this section upon due notice, within ten days after the receipt of the certificate by the clerk of the trial court from the Supreme Court on a former appeal, sustaining a demurrer to the complaint, the procedure is, if objected to by the defendants, to note an exception and appeal from the final judgment, and an appeal otherwise will be dismissed as premature. Morris v. Cleve, 194 N. C. 202, 139 S. E. 230.

Judgment of Clerk Final and Conclusive.—The judgments of the clerk of the court rendered within the authority given him by this section, are judgments of the Superior Court, and have the same effect as those rendered by the judge, and when not appealed from, are final and conclusive. Williams v. Williams, 190 N. C. 478, 130 S. E. 113.

Cited in Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 257, 148 S. E. 253; Shuford v. Yarbrough, 198 N. C. 5, 150 S. E. 618.

§ 516. Division of actions when misjoinder.— If the demurrer is sustained for the reason that several causes of action have been improperly united, the judge shall, upon such terms as are just, order the action to be divided into as many actions as are necessary for the proper determination of the causes of the action therein mentioned. (Rev., s. 476; Code, s. 272; C. C. P., s. 131.)

Provisions of Section Mandatory.—It is the duty of the judge, on just terms to divide the action on the docket for separate trials. Gattis v. Kilgo, 125 N. C. 133, 136, 34 S. E. 246.

See Weeks v. McPhail, 128 N. C. 134, 138, 38 S. E. 292, where the division of the action is spoken of as being within the discretion of the court.

With or Without Terms.—The judge may permit an amendment to divide the action with or without terms. State v. Roberts, 108 N. C. 174, 177, 12 S. E. 890.

Different Venues.—Where causes of action have been improperly joined, the court may order the action to be divided upon demurrer, though triable in different counties. Richmond Cedar Works v. Roper Lumber Co., 161 N. C. 603, 604, 77 S. E. 770.

Dismissal of One of Two Causes for Lack of Jurisdiction. —Where two causes of action are improperly joined, but one of them, because of the amount involved, is not within the jurisdiction of the court, it may be dismissable as to the one over which the court has no jurisdiction. Railroad Co. v. Wakefield Hdw. Co., 135 N. C. 73, 47 S. E. 234.

Misjoinder of Causes and Parties. — Where there is not only a misjoinder of distinct causes of action, but also misjoinder of parties having no community of interest, the action cannot be divided under this section. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 96 N. C. 14, 1 S. E. 648; Cromartie v. Parker, 121 N. C. 198, 204, 28 S. E. 297; Mortan v. Western Union Tel. Co., 130 N. C. 299, 41 S. E. 484; Jones v. McKinson, 87 N. C. 294, 298; Roberts v. Utility Mfg. Co., 181 N. C. 204, 106 S. E. 664; Taylor v. Postal Life Ins Co., 182 N. C. 120, 108 S. E. 502; Rose v. Freemont Warehouse, etc., Co., 182 N. C. 107, 109. 108 S. E. 389; Citizens Nat. Bank v. Angelo, 193 N. C. 576, 137 S. E. 705.

For example an action brought by the wife in which her husband has joined, each independently seeking to recover from the defendant the value of their services separately rendered, upon a quantum meruit, is a misjoinder both of parties plaintiff and causes of action, which will ordinarily be dismissed upon demurrer; but the court may sustain the demurrer and permit the defect to be cured by an amendment and the wife's cause proceeded with upon such terms as it considers just. Shore v. Holt, 185 N. C. 312, 117 S. E. 165.

Divisible, Even Though Demurrable. — A complaint in which are joined two causes of action, the one upon a clerk's bond and the other upon a bond of an administrator, is demurrable. But in such case the court may order the action to be divided. Street v. Tuck, 84 N. C. 605.

Further Service of Summons. — Where a division of the action is ordered under this section, no further service of summons is necessary. Hodges v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 105 N. C. 170, 172, 10 S. E. 917.

Motion to Divide. — In Dunn v. Aid Society, 151 N. C. 133, 65 S. E. 761, the court held that where there is a misjoinder of actions the remedy is by motion to divide the actions where the defendant was already in court and had received notice by the summons and complaint. To same effect, see Lee v. Thornton, 171 N. C. 209, 88 S. E. 232; Solomon v. Bates, 118 N. C. 311, 316, 24 S. E. 478.

Principle of the section stated in State v. McCanless, 193 N. C. 200, 136 S. E. 371.

Cited in Pender County v. King, 197 N. C. 50, 56, 147 S. E. 695; Shuford v. Yarbrough, 198 N. C. 5, 150 S. E. 618; Shemwell v. Lethco, 198 N. C. 346, 348, 151 S. E. 729.

§ 517. Grounds not appearing in complaint.— When any of the matters enumerated as grounds of demurrer do not appear on the face of the complaint, the objection may be taken by answer. (Rev., s. 477; Code, s. 241; C. C. P., s. 98.)

Controverting Allegations of Complaint. — Where the defendant controverts the truth of the allegations contained in the complaint, this must be done by an answer and not by a demurrer. Laney v. Hutton, 149 N. C. 264, 62 S. E. 1082.

Pendency of Another Suit. — Where another action is pending for the same cause and between the same parties, which fact does not appear on the face of the complaint, the objection may be taken by answer. Cook v. Cook, 159 N. C. 46, 47, 74 S. E. 639; Allen v. Salley, 179 N. C. 147, 101 S. E. 545. It is a ground of demurrer, if it appears on the complaint. See ante, section 511, clause 3, and annotations.

This rule was followed in State v. Gant, 201 N. C. 211, 229, 159 S. E. 427.

Defect of parties which does not appear on the face of the complaint must be taken advantage of by answer, otherwise it will be deemed as waived. Lunn v. Shermer, 93 N. C. 164, 167. See the next section.

But where the defect does appear on the face of the complaint, it is a ground of demurrer and cannot be taken advantage of in any other way. Burns v. Ashworth, 72 N. C. 496.

Cited in Hawkins v. Carter, 196 N. C. 538, 541, 146 S. E. 231; Murchison Nat. Bank v. Broadhurst, 197 N. C. 365, 148 S. E. 452.

§ 518. Objection waived.—If objection is not taken either by demurrer or answer the defendant waives the same, except the objections to the jurisdiction of the court and that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. (Rev., s. 478; Code, s. 242, C. C. P. s. 99.)

See note under § 511.

In General.—The similar section of the N. Y. Code means that when objection is not taken by demurrer, when that mode is proper, or by answer in cases where that is the appropriate method, it is waived. 13 N. Y. 332.

When the objection is one proper to be raised by demurrer, the defendant waives it by raising the objection by answer 9 How. 246; 37 N. Y. 372; 13 How. 207.

Exceptions Not Waived—Motion to Dismiss at Any Time. — As to the two exceptions mentioned in this section there can be no waiver, and objections may be made at any time. Johnson v. Finch, 93 N. C. 205, 208. Halstead v. Mullen, 93 N. C. 252, 255.

Same—In the Supreme Court. — The want of jurisdiction and the failure of the complaint to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action cannot be waived and may be taken advantage of at any time even in the Supreme Court. Hunter v. Yarborough, 92 N. C. 68, 70; Tucker v. Baker, 86 N. C. 1; Clements v. Rogers, 91 N. C 63, 64; Knowles v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 102 N. C. 59, 62, 9 S. E. 7.

Defective Statement and Defective Cause Distinguished. —A defective statement of a good cause of action must be taken advantage of by demurrer, and will be deemed to have been waived or cured unless so taken; but a statement of a defective cause may be taken advantage of by a motion to dismiss at any time even in the Supreme Court; or the court may dismiss the action of its own motion. Cook v. American Exch. Bank, 129 N. C. 149, 153, 39 S. E. 746; Baker v. Garris, 108 N. C. 218, 219, 230, 13 S. E. 2.

The second exception mentioned in this section applies to complaints that fail "to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action," or in other words when it appears therefrom that the action will not lie. The other objections must be raised by demurrer or answer in proper time, or else they will be deemed waived. Halstead v. Mullen, 93 N. C. 252, 255.

In Garrett v. Trotter, 65 N. C. 430, 435, the court used the following illustrative language which explains the nature of the two exceptions referred to in this section; "The counsel for the defendant, and his Honor, fell into error by not adverting to the distinction above referred to, between a defective statement of a cause of action and a statement of a defective cause of action. There is a like distinction between a defect of jurisdiction in respect to the subject of the action, and a want of jurisdiction in respect to the person; for illustration: Action in a Superior Court upon a note for less than $200; here, there is a defect of jurisdiction in respect to the subject of the action; it cannot be helped by waiver, consent, amendment or otherwise, and the sooner the proceeding is stopped the better. Action in the county of Orange, against the Charlotte and Columbia Railroad Company; here is a want of jurisdiction in respect to the person, which may be waived by consent, or by making full defense or pleading by an attorney of the Court."

The failure of a complaint in an action for nondelivery of cotton to allege readiness and ability to pay is a defective statement of a good cause of action. Blalock v. Clark, 133 N. C. 306, 45 S. E. 642.

Lack of Jurisdiction.—The defendant by filing an answer to the complaint in the Superior Court did not waive his right to demur ore tenus to the complaint on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction of the action and that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Finley v. Finley, 201 N. C. 1, 3, 158 S. E. 549.

Defect of Parties.—The defect of nonjoinder of a plaintiff unless availed of by demurrer or by plea shall be deemed to have been waived. Lewis v. McNatt, 65 N. C. 63. The general rule is that defects of parties must be raised by demurrer or answer. Usry v. Suit, 91 N. C. 406, 414; Godwin v. Jernigan, 174 N. C. 76, 93 S. E. 443; Knowles v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 102 N. C. 59, 62, 9 S. E. 7; Mizzell v. Ruffin, 118 N. C. 69, 71, 23 S. E. 927. See ante, section 511, cl. 4, and annotations.

Same—Legal Capacity to Sue. — A demurrer ore tenus to the complaint upon the ground of defect of parties, or that the plaintiff did not have the legal capacity to sue, will not be sustained, as such defense is deemed waived unless taken by a written answer or demurrer. Kochs Co. v. Jackson, 156 N. C. 326, 72 S. E. 382. See also, Fisher v. Traders' Mut. Life Ins. Co., 136 N. C. 217, 220, 48 S. E. 667. See also, ante, sec. 511, cls. 2 and 4, and annotations thereto.

Arrest of Judgment for Defective Causes. — The provisions of this section as regards complaints which do not contain facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, are satisfied by arresting the judgment in cases where they apply. Love v. Commissioners, 64 N. C. 706.

Premature Institution of Action. — In an action against an executor the objection that the action is prematurely commenced should be set up by the defendant in his answer. Clements v. Rogers, 91 N. C. 63, 64.

Demurrer after Answer. — A demurrer to the jurisdiction of the court or that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, may be entered after answer filed, and the principle upon which it is ordinarily required that the answer be first withdrawn with leave of the court before demurring to the complaint, does not apply. Cherry v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 185 N. C. 90, 116 S. E. 192.

Cited in Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 258, 148 S. E. 253; Roebuck v. Short, 196 N. C. 61, 144 S. E. 515; Tallassee Power Co. v. Peacock, 197 N. C. 735, 737, 150 S. E. 510; Mountain Park Institute v. Lovill, 198 N. C. 642, 153 S. E. 114; Begnell v. Safety Coach Line, 198 N. C. 688, 691, 153 S. E. 264; Brewer v. Brewer, 198 N. C. 669, 671, 153 S. Art. 15. Answer

§ 519. Contents.—The answer of the defendant must contain—

1. A general or specific denial of each material allegation of the complaint controverted by the defendant, or of any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief.

2. A statement of any new matter constituting a defense or counterclaim, in ordinary and concise language, without repetition. (Rev., s. 479; Code, s. 243; C. C. P., s. 100.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Any Defense Available under Old System, Available under the New.—Under the Code the defendant may avail himself of any defense that would have been available under the old mode of procedure, either legal or equitable. Clark v. Clark, 65 N. C. 655, 660.

Must State Facts. — The answer, like the complaint, must state facts upon which the validity of the defense rests. An averment of a general principle of law will not do. Knight v. Killebrew, 86 N. C. 400, 403.

Statement in Plain and Intelligible Manner. — The defendant must state his grounds of defense in a plain, strong and intelligible manner. McLaurin v. Cronly, 90 N. C. 50, 52.

Precision and Particularity in Alleging Defenses. — The defendant's defense must be alleged with the same precision and certainty as if alleged in a complaint. American Nat. Bank v. Hill, 169 N. C. 235, 85 S. E. 209.

Although an answer to a complaint in an action on a note does not set out the allegations of fraud with that particularity that the rules of pleading ordinarily require, yet, if it seems intended to raise a serious question of fraud, it will not be stricken out as frivolous, for, if filed in good faith, the defendant is entitled to have the facts alleged in it either admitted by demurrer or tried by a jury. Campbell v. Patton, 113 N. C. 481, 18 S. E. 687.

Allegata and Probata Must Correspond. — No defense which is not set up in the answer may be introduced at terms and proved. The rule that the allegata and probata must correspond prevails as much under the Code as under the old system. McLaurin v. Cronly, 90 N. C. 50.

Stated in Bourne v. Board of Financial Control, 207 N. C. 170, 178, 176 S. E. 306.

Cited in Jeffreys v. Hocutt, 195 N. C. 339, 344, 142 S. E. 226; Shemwell v. Lethco, 198 N. C. 346, 348, 151 S. E. 729; Hutchins v. Mangum, 198 N. C. 774, 775, 153 S. E. 409.

II. DENIALS.

A. General and Specific Denials.

Old General Issue and Denials under the Code. — One principal object of the new system was to abolish or restrict the use of the general issue; to require of plaintiffs, as far as it was practicable, a statement of the facts as they were, and not according to their legal effect; and thus both to enable and to require defendants to specify the particular facts which they intended to controvert. To permit a denial of the facts of the complaint en masse, would be to lose this object and to allow and extend, at least where the answer is not under oath, and abuse the general issue, which formerly existed. It would seem also to ignore the requirements that the denial shall be of each material allegation. The requirement seems to demand that the defendant should separately answer each material allegation by a general denial either of the whole allegation (not the whole complaint), or by a specific denial of some selected and specific part of the allegation. Heyer v. Beatty, 76 N. C. 28, 30.

Nature of Denials under the Code and Purpose Thereof.— The denials referred to in this section may be a general denial—that is that the allegation is not true, or specific—that is, that it is true in some respects but not true in others. The purpose is to require the defendant frankly to deny the truth of the allegations of the complaint, if he can, or, if he can not, then to admit the truth of them, or to specifically admit the truth of them, so far as they are true within his knowledge and deny the truth of the same in particular respects, so far as he may be warranted in doing so by the facts; and he is further required to state such knowledge and information as he may have as to the allegations sufficient to form a belief. Such denials, admissions and statements of facts should be direct, positive and unequivocal—not argumentative and evasive. Rumbough v. Southern Improve. Co., 106 N. C. 461, 464, 11 S. E. 528.

General Denial. — It has been repeatedly held that a general denial, that "no allegation of the complaint is true," is not a sufficient answer under this section, because such a plea may put in one issue several matters of fact, some of which are triable by the court, and others by the jury. Flack v. Dawson, 69 N. C. 42; Brown v. Cooper, 89 N. C. 237.

Specific Denial. — An answer denying "the truth of the averments contained in the first, second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth paragraphs of the complaint" (being the number contained in the complaint), is a specific denial of each allegation and a sufficient compliance with this section. Brown v. Cooper, 89 N. C. 237.

Effect of Failure to Deny. — If an allegation in the complaint is not denied in the answer, it is admitted, and is as effectual as if found by a jury. Bonham v. Craig, 80 N. C. 224.

Where the only controverted fact has no bearing on the rights of the parties, judgment may be rendered on the pleadings upon the facts admitted. Jeffreys v. Boston Ins. Co., 202 N. C. 368, 162 S. E. 761.

B. Denial of Information or Knowledge.

Denial of Both Knowledge and Information Necessary.— A denial of knowledge without a denial of information sufficient to form a belief is not sufficient to fulfill the requirement of this section. Durden v. Simmons, 84 N. C. 555; Fagg v. Southern Bldg., etc., Ass'n., 113 N. C. 364, 368, 18 S. E. 655.

Denial upon Information and Belief. — Where an allegation in a complaint is within the personal knowledge of the defendant, a statement in the answer that he is informed and believes that the allegations of the complaint are not true, and therefore denies the same, is not, under this section, sufficient to raise an issue. The answer may, however, be amended in the discretion of the court. Avery v. Stewart, 134 N. C. 287, 299, 46 S. E. 519.

An allegation in an answer that defendant has no information of facts alleged in a certain paragraph of the complaint, and demands proof thereof, is not sufficient to put such facts in issue. Woodcock v. Bostic, 128 N. C. 243, 38 S. E. 881; Flagg v. Southern Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 113 N. C. 364, 18 S. E. 655.

A denial of the allegations of the complaint, made in the form prescribed, i. e., of any knowledge or information thereof, sufficient to form a belief, being allowed by the Code of Civil Procedure, raises, when interposed, a sufficient issue; and such answer is not subject to the objection of being insufficient or frivolous. Farmers, etc., Bank v. Board, 75 N. C. 45.

However where a complaint alleges a matter to be within the personal knowledge of defendant an answer "that defendant has no knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief" stated no defense and was an admission of the truth of the allegation of the complaint. Lay Gas Mach. Co. v. Falls, etc., Mfg. Co., 91 N. C. 74.

In an action on notes given for the price of land, denial on information and belief of a count of the complaint alleging that the notes were indorsed for valuable consideration was sufficient. Willis v. Williams, 174 N. C. 769, 94 S. E. 513.

In an action for specific performance of a lost bond for title, which denies that the bond embraces the land in controversy according to defendant's best recollection and belief, is sufficient and raises an issue of fact. Conder v. Stallings, 161 N. C. 17, 76 S. E. 627.

III. NEW MATTER IN DEFENSE.

New Matter Equitable or Legal. — The answer may contain new matter in defense whether equitable or legal. Bean v. Western, etc., R. Co., 107 N. C. 731, 741, 12 S. E. 600.

Matters in Justification. — Under the old system of pleading, upon the general issue matter in justification could not be proved; it must be pleaded specially. Barker v. Burham, 3 Wilson, 368, on pages 370, and 371; Bush v. Parker, 1 Bing, N. C. 312; Brown v. Burnett, 5 Cowen, 181; 1 Chitty on Pl., 501. Under the Code practice the principle is not changed. A defense which can not be maintained by a denial of the allegations in the complaint, must be set up as new matter in the answer. Raynor v. Wilmington Seacoast R. Co., 129 N. C. 195, 198, 39 S. E. 821.

Time of Existence of New Matter in Defense. — This section does not require that new matter constituting a defense must exist at the time of the commencement of the action, and a defense arising thereafter was recognized in Puffer v. Lucas, 101 N. C. 281, 285, 7 S. E. 734, and in the later case of Smith & Co. v. French, 141 N. C. 1, 2, 53 S. E. 435, it was held that, "A counterclaim connected with the plaintiff's cause of action or with the subject of the same should not necessarily or entirely mature before action commenced, nor even before answer filed." Williams v. Hutton, etc., Co., 164 N. C. 216, 223, 80 S. E. 257. But as to this latter conclusion, see section 521 class (2) and annotations thereto.

§ 520. Debt for purchase money of land denied. —If the defendant shall deny in his answer that the obligation sued on was for the purchase money of the land described in the complaint, it shall be the duty of the court to submit the issue so joined to the jury. (Rev., s. 480; Code, s. 235; 1879, c. 217; 1921. c. 45.)

Editor's Note. — The amendment of 1921, substituted the words "shall deny," near the beginning of this section, for the word "denies."

For a similar provision requiring the plaintiff to state that the consideration of debt was the purchase money of land, see section 506 clause 4.

Defendant Entitled to Have Issue Determined by Jury. — In an action on a note alleged to have been given for the purchase-money of land, the defendant, if he demands it in apt time and tenders an appropriate issue, has the right to have the question submitted to the jury as to whether or not the note was given for the purchase-money of the land. Davis v. Evans, 142 N. C. 464, 55 S. E. 344.

Waiver of Right of Jury Trial. — Although the defendant is under this section, entitled to have the issue whether the debt sued on was contracted for the purchase of land, tried by a jury, yet, if after being duly summoned, he fails to appear and answer, he waives that right. Durham v. Wilson, 104 N. C. 595, 10 S. E. 683.

§ 521. Counterclaim.—The counterclaim mentioned in this article must be one existing in favor of a defendant and against a plaintiff between whom a several judgment might be had in the action, and arising out of one of the following causes of action:

1. A cause of action arising out of the contract or transaction set forth in the complaint as the foundation of the plaintiff's claim, or connected with the subject of the action.

2. In an action arising on contract, any other cause of action arising also on contract, and existing at the commencement of the action. (Rev., s. 481; Code, s. 244; C. C. P., s. 101.)

I. IN GENERAL.

A. Editor's Note.

Settlement of two independent disputes between the same parties in the action was beyond the conception of the common law system of pleading and practice. Claims in favor of defendant arising out of the same transaction as sued upon by the plaintiff, for example a breach of warranty of soundness of personalty sold to the defendants, in an action by the plaintiff upon the purchase price of the property sold, could be set up to defeat plaintiff's claim, and this was known as recoupment. The characteristic features of recoupment were (1) that the defense must arise out of the plaintiff's action on which it is based, (2) it need not be liquidated, (3) could not be used against sealed instruments, (4) and could not be an equitable defense, and (5) no recovery over be had thereon.

While those claims of the defendant which arose out of the same transaction were available in the same action by way of recoupment, subject to the features just enumerated, the defendant could not avail himself of any claim which he might have against the plaintiff and which arose out of a different transaction, and had to bring an independent action therefor. But the inefficiency involved in this method of procedure and the injustices resulting therefrom soon lead to the enactment of the statute of set-off, under which liquidated claims arising out of different transactions could be availed of by the defendant against the plaintiff's demand in the same action. As in the case of recoupment, no recovery over the plaintiff's claim could be had. Another distinction of defenses available by way of counterclaim and those available by way of set-off consisted in the fact that in the former case if the defenses were not pleaded in the same action it was concluded and could not be made the subject of an independent subsequent action; whereas in the latter case it was optional with the defendant to avail himself of his claim, so that in case he did not avail himself in the same action, an independent subsequent action could be maintained thereon.

The effect of the Code is to consolidate the common law recoupment and the statutory set-off, by abolishing all differences that existed between them, by treating the two under the name of counterclaim, with a liberal tendency in favor of the defendant.

The consequence of this consolidation is to enable the defendant to avail himself of his claim in the same action, whether such claim arises out of the same transaction, or different transactions, and whether or not it exceeds the claim of the plaintiff, as recovery for the excess is now permissible.

Cited in Shemwell v. Lethco, 198 N. C. 346, 348, 151 S. E. 729; English Drug Co. v. Helms, 199 N. C. 755, 757, 155 S. E. 871.

B. General Constructions.

Liberal Construction.—This section is very broad in its scope and terms, and should be liberally construed by the court in furtherance of the most desirable and beneficial purpose for which it is enacted. Smith v. French, 141 N. C. 1, 6, 53 S. E. 435; Smith v. Young Bros., 109 N. C. 224, 226, 13 S. E. 735; Garrett v. Love, 89 N. C. 205, 207.

This section on counterclaim is very broad in its scope and terms, is designed to enable parties litigant to settle well-nigh any and every phase of a given controversy in one and the same action, and should be liberally construed by the court in furtherance of this most desirable and beneficial purpose. Bourne v. Board of Financial Control, 207 N. C. 170, 178, 176 S. E. 306.

More Comprehensive Than the Old Set Off.—The counterclaim, in an action on contract, embraces not only matter that under the old practice was termed a set-off, but every other cause of action arising out of contract, whether legal or equitable, between the plaintiff and defendant. Where there are more than one plaintiff or defendant it is further extended so that not only mutual debts between the plaintiffs and defendants, but every claim by the defendants, or any one of them, against the plaintiffs, or any of them, between whom a several judgment might be had in the action, is embraced. Neal v. Lea, 64 N. C. 678.

Subject to the limitations expressed in this section, a counterclaim includes practically every kind of cross-demand existing in favor of defedant against the plaintiff in the same right, whether said demand be of a legal or an equitable nature. It is said to be broader in meaning than set-off, recoupment, or cross-action, and includes them all, and secures to defendant the full relief which a separate action at law, or a bill in chancery, or a cross-bill would have secured on the same state of facts. Smith v. French, 141 N. C. 1, 7, 53 S. E. 435, followed in Aetna Life Ins. v. Griffin, 200 N. C. 251, 253, 156 S. E. 515; Bourne v. Board of Financial Control, 207 N. C. 170, 178, 176 S. E. 306.

Enumeration of Grounds Exclusive.—A defendant cannot set up as a defense or counterclaim any and every cause of action he may have against the plaintiff. He may set up only such causes as counterclaims, that fall within one of the subdivisions of this section. Byerly v. Humphrey, 95 N. C. 151.

Criterion to Determine a Valid Counterclaim.—The criterion, for determining whether a defense set up can be maintained as a counterclaim, is whether there is a cause of action upon which the defendant might have sustained a suit against the plaintiff; and if there is, then such cause of action is a counterclaim. Battle v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 406, 408.

Payment and Counterclaim Compared. — A payment pro tanto extinguishes the debt eo instanti and is itself thereby extinguished, so that neither remains any longer the subject of an action. On the contrary, a counterclaim which now includes a set-off, is the assertion by the defendant of an independent demand which might be maintained in an independent action. General Elect. Co. v. Williams, 123 N. C. 51, 31 S. E. 288.

Cannot Be Set against the State.—A person, indebted to the State and sued on such indebtedness, cannot offer as a set-off or counterclaim the indebtedness of the State to him. The reason being that a counterclaim is allowed to avoid circuity of actions, and as none of its citizens can bring suit against the State, the counterclaim is not permissible. Battle v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 406.

With a few exceptions, growing out of public policy, the rules of law which apply to the government and individuals are the same. McKnight v. United States, 98 U. S. 179, 186, 25 L. Ed. 115.

Waiver of Exemption by United States.—Although direct suits cannot be maintained against the United States, yet, when the United States institutes a suit, they waive their exemption so far as to allow a presentation by the defendant of set-offs, legal or equitable, to the extent of the demand made or property claimed. The Siren, 7 Wall. 152, 154, 19 L. Ed. 129; United States v. Ringgold, 8 Pet. 150, 8 L. Ed. 899.

Against an Action for Tax.—A set-off is not pleadable to an action for recovery of taxes. Wilmington v. Bryan, 141 N. C. 666, 681, 54 S. E. 543.

Equitable Counterclaim.—An equitable cause of action may be set up as a counterclaim against a legal cause of action. Dempsey v. Rhodes, 93 N. C. 120, 127.

Counterclaim Where Lien upon Property Involved.—In an action upon a contract, though a lien upon property is involved, it is competent for the defendant to extinguish the debt. due from him, by a proof of counterclaim. Poston v. Rose, 87 N. C. 279.

II. CLAIMS ARISING OUT OF PLAINTIFF'S DEMAND.

A. General Rules and Instances.

Counterclaim for Independent Tort Not Allowed.—Under this section a counterclaim is not permissible for a distinct and independent tort, and applying the principle, in an action to recover a tract of land alleged to belong to the plaintiff, a counterclaim for a trespass by the plaintiff on a different tract of land belonging to defendant is not maintainable. Louisville, etc., R. Co., Nichols, 187 N. C. 153, 155, 120 S. E. 819.

Same—But Permissible if it Grows Out of Same Transaction.—The contention that a tort can not under any circumstances constitute a counterclaim although "connected with the subject of the action" contained in the complaint is unfounded. The contrary is decided in Walsh v. Hall, 66 N. C. 233, and Bitting v. Thaxton, 72 N .C. 541; Lee v. Eure, 93 N. C. 5, 9.

Tort against Contract Claim.—If it arises out of the same transaction or is connected with the subject of the action, a tort claim may be pleaded as a counterclaim against a contract claim. McKinnon v. Morrison, 104 N. C. 354, 360, 10 S. E. 513; Smith v. Old Dominion Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 119 N. C. 257, 26 S. E. 40; Branch v. Chappell, 119 N. C. 81, 25 S. E. 783. The same rule applies to tort claims as against tort actions. Branch v. Chappell, supra.

Damages for slander cannot be set up as a counterclaim to an action for debt. Merritt Milling Co. v. Finlay, 110 N. C. 411, 15 S. E. 4.

Contract against Tort Claim.—In giving effect to this clause it has been held that not only the defendant could plead a counterclaim grown out of the contract sued on, but that where action is brought for what would have been formerly denominated a tort, the defendant may set up a claim arising out of contract, if it also arises out of the same transaction or vice versa. Bitting v. Thaxton, 72 N. C. 541; Walsh v. Hall, 66 N. C. 233. Smith v. Young Bros., 109 N. C. 224, 226, 13 S. E. 735.

Contract against Contract Claims Arising Out of Same Transaction.—In an action upon a primissory note given in pursuance of a contract for the sale by payee of a specific article of merchandise, the maker may set up by way of counterclaim that the article furnished was not in compliance with the contract of sale, and that he was thereby damaged. Patapsco Guano Co. v. Tillery, 110 N. C. 29, 14 S. E. 639.

Recovery of Excess.—See section 588 and the notes thereto; particularly the Editor's note.

Same—In Tort Action.—If a person be sued in tort, he may, under this section set up a counterclaim for any damages arising out of the same transaction disclosed in the complaint, and if his damages exceed those of the complaint he is entitled to a judgment for the excess. Bitting v. Thaxton, 72 N. C. 541; McKinnon v. Morrison, 104 N. C. 354, 10 S. E. 513; Brown v. Brown, 121 N. C. 8, 10, 27 S. E. 998.

Nature of Transaction Not Determined by What Plaintiff Calls His Action.—When the plaintiff files his complaint, setting forth the "transaction," whether it be a tort or a contract, the defendant may set up any claim which he has against the plaintiff, connected with the transaction set up in the complaint. In this state there being only one form of action, when the plaintiff states the "transaction" in his complaint he cannot by calling it one name or another—as tort or contract—cut off the defendant's counterclaim growing out of the same transaction. It is the transaction that is to be investigated, without regard to its form or name. Walsh v. Hall, 66 N. C. 233; Bitting Thaxton, 72 N. C. 541, 549.

What Constitutes "Subject of the Action"—Example.—In an action for trespass for wrongful entry on land and cutting timber, the defendants filed a counterclaim, alleging that the plaintiffs had wrongfully raised a dam and caused water to back on defendant's land, which was part of the land described in the complaint as that on which the alleged trespass had been committed: Held, that the subject of the action was the trespass committed, and not the land, and hence the counterclaim was not connected with the cause of action, and hence it was not permissible. Bazemore v. Bridgers, 105 N. C. 191, 10 S. E. 888.

What Constitutes "Arising Out of Same Transaction" Examples.—Where the cause of action alleged was an obstruction placed by the defendant on the upper edge of his land, and the counterclaim attempted to be set up was that the plaintiff had placed an obstruction on the lower edge of his own land, it was held that these were two separate and distinct torts, and that the latter did not " arise out of the transaction set forth in the complaint," nor was it "connected with the subject of the section." Street v. Andrews, 115 N. C. 417, 422, 20 S. E. 450.

Same—Breach of Warranty of Soundness. — In an action for the specific recovery of a horse, the defendant pleaded as a counterclaim, that the plaintiff sold the horse to the defendant, and, at the time of the sale, warranted that it was sound, which warranty was false, and in consequence of which the defendant had been damaged; Held, that the counterclaim arose out of the transaction set out in the complaint and was properly pleaded as a counterclaim. Wilson v. Hughes, 94 N. C. 182.

Same—Action for Libel and Counterclaim for Slander.—Where the plaintiff sued the defendant for libel, and the defendant set out as counterclaim slanderous words uttered by the plaintiff, it was held that the counterclaim did not fall within the first subdivision of this section. Knott v. Burwell, 96 N. C. 272, 273, 2 S. E. 588.

B. Time of Existence.

See post, this note, "Time of Existence" III, B.

The counterclaims referred to in this clause must be existent and continue to exist between the same parties in the same right at the time they are offered and they must be due at the time the answer is filed, that is, not demands to become due in the future, but they need not be due at the time of commencement of the action. And they must arise out of the same contract or transaction which is the foundation of plaintiff's claim, or they must be connected with the subject of the action that is, generally speaking, the interest involved in the litigation, and very frequently this is the property itself. Smith v. French, 141 N. C. 1, 8, 53 S. E. 435.

III. CLAIMS ARISING OUT OF INDEPENDENT CONTRACT.

A. General Rules and Instances.

Relation to Original Cause.—This section goes beyond the common-law pleading and practice, and under its provisions a defendant in an action on contract may file a counterclaim arising on a contract unrelated to the cause of action sued on when the required mutuality exists, so that two independent disputes between the parties may be settled in one action. Bourne v. Board of Financial Control, 207 N. C. 170, 176 S. E. 306.

Need Not Arise out of Same Transaction.—Under this clause a counterclaim need not arise out of the same transaction if it existed at the commencement of the action. Brown v. Carter, 111 N. C. 183, 186, 15 S. E. 934; Bitting v. Thaxton, 72 N. C. 541, 549.

Must Be a Debt—Tax Not a Debt.—A counterclaim or set-off is a defense to an action, and exists only in favor of a defendant under this subdivision. It arises when the demand, both of the plaintiff and the defendant, is a debt, arising out of contract and existing at the commencement of the action. A tax is not a debt. Gatling v. Commissioners, 92 N. C. 536.

Store Account against Action for Services of Minor.—In an action to recover for services of minor children, a counterclaim of a store account against plaintiff which had been assigned to defendant, is proper under this clause. Lynn v. Stanly Creek Cotton Mills, 130 N. C. 621, 41 S. E. 877.

Action on Note by Bank Deposit Counterclaimed. — A depositor in a bank may set off amounts due him as deposits in an action by the bank against him to recover on a promissory note. Graham v. Proctorville Warehouse, 139 N. C. 533, 127 S. E. 540.

Share in Stock against Indebtedness upon Note.—Where a bank was in course of liquidation, and a stockholder was indebted to the bank by a note secured by a pledge of stock, his supposed share in the assets was held not to be available as a set-off, legal or equitable, in a suit upon the note. First Nat. Bank v. Riggins, 124 N. C. 534, 32 S. E. 801.

Damages for Assault in Action or Note.—Damages for an alleged assault by an officer in taking goods under claim and delivery or false arrest by him, cannot be maintained as a counterclaim in an action upon a note given by the defendant to the plaintiff for fertilizer sold to him, as it does not arise out of, and is not connected with the subject-matter of the action, and does not accrue until after the commencement of the main action. Godwin v. Kennedy, 196 N. C. 244, 145 S. E. 229.

Damages for Slander of Title in Action to Establish Title.—Where the plaintiff's action is to establish their title to and recover possession of mineral interest in a described 5-acre tract of land, and defendants set up as a counterclaim damages alleged to have been caused by the plaintiff's slander of their title in 500-acre tract: Held, the cross-action alleged is for damages founded upon a tort, and not on contract, and does not fall within the equitable principle of a suit to quiet title, under the provisions of this section and §§ 519, 522, and a demurer thereto is good. Thompson v. Buchanan, 195 N. C. 155, 141 S. E. 580.

An unpaid judgment in favor of a party to an action rendered previously to the commencement of the present action is in legal effect a contract upon which a counterclaim may be pleaded in an action by the opposing party brought against him to recover on a promissory note. McClure v. Fulbright, 196 N. C. 450, 146 S. E. 74.

Other Instances.—See 11 N. C. Enc. Dig. 179.

Where a corporation gives its note to its president to secure him against any loss he might sustain by reason of his endorsement of the corporation's notes, and the president transfers the note to a third person, who brings suit, the corporation may not set up as a counterclaim in the action indebtedness due the corporation by the president. Wellons v. Johnston, 196 N. C. 94, 144 S. E. 521.

Where the owner of lands living thereon abandons his wife and children, and leaves the state, and his wife and minor children without support, and another took and supported them and has purchased the lands from the purchaser under an execution sale, taking deed with full covenants and warranty of title, upon the return of the execution debtor and his successfully maintaining his suit to have the deeds declared void: Held, the one who took and supported them is entitled in the settlement to the moneys he has reasonably expended for the support and maintenance of the wife and children, and this may be set up as a counterclaim against a recovery for the rents and profits, and judgment may be rendered in the same action. Jeffreys v. Hocutt, 195 N. C. 339, 142 S. E. 226.

B. Time of Existence.

See paragraphs under preceding analysis line.

In General.—The requirement restricting a counterclaim to one that exists at the time the action was commenced is only stated in reference to the class of counterclaims described in this clause. Such is the law, for the very just and obvious reason that, when a plaintiff rightfully sues a defendant who owes him at the time the action is commenced, he shall not be put in the wrong and subjected to costs by allowing defendant to buy up claims sufficient or more than sufficient to off-set his debt. But this limitation is not expressed with reference to counterclaim in the first clause of this section. Smith v. French, 141 N. C. 1, 7, 53 S. E. 535. See also, Griffin v. Thomas, 128 N. C. 310, 38 S. E. 903; Bank v. Wilson, 124 N. C. 561, 570, 32 S. E. 889; Riddick v. Moore, 65 N. C. 382, 385.

Under this section a counterclaim must exist at the commencement of the action. The defendant "is not obliged to set up such counterclaim. He may omit it and bring another action. He has his election. But when he does set up his counterclaim, it becomes a cross-action, and both opposing claims must be adjudicated. The plaintiff then has the right to the determination of the court of all matters brought in issue, and naturally the defendant has the same right, and neither has the right to go out of court before a complete determination of all the matters in controversy without or against the consent of the other." McGee v. Frohman, 207 N. C. 475, 480, 177 S. E. 327.

Collateral Demand against Assignee of Note. — The defense of set-off has, by this section, been merged in that of counterclaim, the effect of which, in one respect, is that a defendant is not allowed to off-set the claim of a plaintiff as assignee of a note past due when assigned, by showing that the assignor was indebted to such defendant at the time of the assignment, unless such counterclaim had attached itself to the note before the assignment. Haywood v. McNair, 19 N. C. 283; Wharton v. Hopkins, 33 N. C. 505; McConnaughey v. Chambers, 64 N. C. 284, approved. Neal v. Lea, 64 N. C. 678.

In Neal v. Lea, 64 N. C. 678, it is held that by the proper construction of this section, no collateral demand against the assignor of a note can be set up against the assignee, and "that to make it available, the demand must have attached itself to the note in the hands of the assignor; for instance, a payment made to him not entered on the note, or a claim, which the assignor had agreed should be taken in satisfaction." The doctrine of Haywood v. McNair, 19 N. C. 283, was repudiated and that of Borough v. Moss, 10 B. & C. 558 adopted. Harris v. Burwell, 65 N. C. 584, 585.

A set-off at law must exist when the plaintiff's action is brought; in equity, every set-off or counterclaim must be shown before decree, and this is also the case under the Code. Hogan v. Kirkland, 64 N. C. 250, 253.

IV. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

For a treatment of the general rules of pleading, see 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 150.

A. Rules of Pleading.

Allegation of Facts.—The counterclaim must disclose such a state of facts as would entitle the defendant to his action, as if he was plaintiff in the prosecution of his suit, and should contain the substance of a complaint, and contain a plain and concise statement of the facts constituting a cause of action. There is no formula prescribed and in determining its effects, its allegations shall be liberally construed with a view to substantial justice. Battle v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 406, 408. It is held in the United States Supreme Court that a counterclaim is unavailable unless set up by defendant in his pleading. McGovern v. American Pressed Tan Bark Co., 121 U. S. 575, 30 L. Ed. 1027.

Same—Demand of Relief.—Strictly, a counterclaim is a cross-action against the plaintiff in which the defendant may have affirmative relief; but it must, like a complaint, state the cause of action and demand the relief to which the defendant alleges he is entitled. Hurst, etc., Co. v. Everett, 91 N. C. 399, 400.

Particularity in Alleging.—A counterclaim is in substance a cross-action and it should be set out with the same particularity and accuracy required in stating a cause of action in the complaint. State v. Scott, 84 N. C. 184, 187.

For instance a counterclaim which only alleges that the plaintiff is indebted to the defendant, without alleging further the nature, extent, and kind of indebtedness, and how it arose, is imperfectly pleaded, and should be disregarded. American Nat. Bank v. Northcutt, 169 N. C. 219, 85 S. E. 210.

Allegation as to Time of Existence. — An answer setting up a counterclaim, but which fails to show that the same subsisted between the parties when the action was begun, or that it arose out of, or was connected with the subject of the plaintiff's action, is demurrable. Reynolds v. Smathers, 87 N. C. 24, 25.

Replication to Counterclaim. — Whenever a counterclaim is pleaded the plaintiff must make a replication, or else it will be treated as admitted. Davison v. West Oxford Land Co., 121 N. C. 146, 28 S. E. 266.

B. Nonsuit.

When Counterclaim Is Pleaded, a Nonsuit Cannot Be Taken.—McGee v. Frohman, 207 N. C. 475, 480, 177 S. E. 327.

Nonsuit by Plaintiff. — Where a defendant sets up a counterclaim which does not arise out of the same transaction as the cause of action of the plaintiff, the plaintiff may submit to a nonsuit. Olmsted v. Smith, 133 N. C. 584, 45 S. E. 953.

Same—Nonsuit in United States Courts. — It has been repeatedly decided that the courts of the United States have no power to order a peremptory nonsuit, against the will of the plaintiff, unless the right is given by a state statute in which case it will be followed in that state, or unless it is given by a federal statute, or by agreement of parties. Meehan v. Valentine, 145 N. C. 611, 618, 36 L. Ed. 835; Thompson v. Selden, 20 How. 194, 15 L. Ed. 1001; Elmore v. Grymes, 1 Pet. 469, 7 L. Ed. 224.

Same—Where Counterclaim Arises out of Same Transaction.—When the defendant pleads, as a counterclaim, a cause of action arising out of a contract or transaction set forth in the complaint as a foundation of the plaintiff's cause of action, the plaintiff cannot be permitted to take a nonsuit, without the consent of the defendant, for the reason that, as it is a connected transaction and cause of action, the whole matter is controversy between the parties should be determined by the one action. But when the counterclaim does not arise out of the same transaction as the plaintiff's cause of action but falls under subdivision 2 of this section, the plaintiff may submit to a nonsuit. In such case the defendant may either withdraw his counterclaim, when the action will be at an end, or he may proceed to try it, at his election. Whedbee v. Leggett, 92 N. C. 465, 469. Nor can he take a nonsuit where the defendant has acquired in an equitable action any other right or advantage which he is entitled to have tried and settled in the action. Bynum v. Powe, 97 N. C. 374, 2 S. E. 170.

Same—As to Parties Not Necessary. — As to persons who are not necessary or proper parties, and who have been joined as defendants, the plaintiff may be permitted at any time to enter a nonsuit, or nol pros. notwithstanding the fact that they have filed answers asserting counterclaims and asking for affirmative relief. Lee v. Eure, 93 N. C. 5.

Same—Against One of Several Defendants. — And where there are several defendants against whom the charge is joint and several, there cannot be, at common law, a nonsuit as to one and verdict against the others, although the verdict may be against one and in favor of the others. Castle v. Bullard, 23 How. 172, 183, 184, 16 L. Ed. 424.

Nonsuit by Defendant. — Where the defendant has set up a counterclaim as allowed by this section, as to the cause of action arising on contract, existing at the commencement of the action, and not embraced within the first subdivision of this section, he may, as a matter of right, take a nonsuit thereon at any stage of the trial before verdict. Cahoon v. Cooper, 186 N. C. 26, 118 S. E. 834.

But where the defendant's answer sets up a counterclaim arising out of the contract or transaction set forth in the complaint as the foundation of the plaintiff's claim, or connected with the subject of his action, existing at the commencement thereof, it becomes a cross-action, and both opposing claims must be adjusted in the action, and he may not take a nonsuit thereon as a matter of right, without the plaintiff's consent. Cahoon v. Cooper, supra.

Same—After Verdict.—Where the jury have returned their verdict into court upon the issue as to defendant's counterclaim, and as to the others except one to which the judge has held no response was required, the defendant may not take a voluntary nonsuit as to the counterclaim he has set up in his answer. Cahoon v. Cooper, 186 N. C. 26, 118 S. E. 834.

C. Jurisdictional Amount.

Jurisdictional Amount for Counterclaims. — As to the power of court to render judgment in favor of the defendant upon a counterclaim involving an amount exceeding the jurisdictional amount of the court, see 1 N. C. Law Rev. 224; and annotations to section 588.

Same—In Several Counterclaims.—Where several counter claims are pleaded in the same action, their aggregate sum will be taken as the jurisdictional amount. General Elect. Co. v. Williams, 123 N. C. 51, 31 S. E. 288.

Jurisdictional Amount in Justice's Court. — The counterclaim must be one on which judgment might be had in action, and must therefore come within the jurisdiction of the court. It cannot exceed $200 in a justice's court. General Elect. Co. v. Williams, 123 N. C. 51, 31 S. E. 288.

§ 522. Several defenses.—The defendant may set forth by answer as many defenses and counterclaims as he has, whether they are of a legal or equitable nature, or both. They must be separately stated and numbered, and refer to the cause of action which they are intended to answer in such manner that they may be intelligibly distinguished. (Rev., s. 482; Code, s. 245; C. C. P., s. 102.)

Reference. — For more particular phases of this subject see 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 171. See also note under sec. 521.

Same Certainty as Complaint Required. — The defenses in the answer must be as certain as the allegations of the complaint, so that the jury may separately determine the merits of each issue. See Gossler v. Wood, 120 N. C. 69, 73, 27 S. E. 33.

All matters equitable in their nature should be alleged in the pleadings with such reasonable fullness, and particularly as to the constituent facts which will enable the court to see clearly the character of the equity alleged, the purpose of the pleading and the issues raised. Bean v. Western, etc., R. Co., 107 N. C. 731, 741, 12 S. E. 600.

Contradictory Defenses. — Under this section even contradictory defenses are permissible to be pleaded. Upton v. R. R. 128 N. C. 173, 178, 38 S. E. 736; Bean v. Western, etc., R. Co., 107 N. C. 731, 12 S. E. 600; Reed v. Reed, 93 N. C. 462, 465; Williams v. Hutton, etc., Co., 164 N. C. 216, 80 S. E. 257; McLamb v. McPhail, 126 N. C. 218, 35 S. E. 426. But see, Fayetteville Waterworks Co. v. Tillinghast, 119 N. C. 343, 25 S. E. 960.

Hence, where the answer denies the allegations of the complaint and for further defense to the action pleads matters in avoidance, it is error for the court below to disregard the denials and adjudge that the answer admits the instrument sued upon. Reed v. Reed, 93 N. C. 462.

Upon the same principle where the answer sets up defenses in bar, and also asks an account between plaintiff and defendant, the demand for an account can not be construed as a waiver of such defenses, but is merely contingent on their failure. Mull v. Walker, 100 N. C. 46, 6 S. E. 685.

The inconsistent defenses, however, must be separately stated. McLamb v. McPhail, 126 N. C. 218, 35 S. E. 426.

Both Equitable or Legal Defenses—Affirmative Relief.— The defendant may set up as many defenses as he might have, whether denominated legal or equitable, or both, and to have such relief, affirmative or negative, as may be legally authorized on the facts constituting his defense. Covington v. Ingram, 64 N. C. 123; Melvin v. Stephens, 82 N. C. 284, 288.

An equitable counterclaim may be asserted in an answer to a complaint containing a purely legal cause of action. Dempsey v. Rhodes, 93 N. C. 120.

No Leave of Court Necessary. — The defendant may plead several defenses without asking the leave of the court. Whitaker v. Freeman, 12 N. C. 271, 279.

Cited in Jeffreys v. Hocutt, 195 N. C. 339, 344, 142 S. E. 226; Shemwell v. Lethco, 198 N. C. 346, 348, 151 S. E. 729.

§ 523. Contributory negligence pleaded and proved.—In all actions to recover damages by reason of the negligence of the defendant, where contributory negligence is relied upon as a defense, it must be set up in the answer and proved on the trial. (Rev., s. 483; 1887, c. 33.)

For substantive law of contributory negligence, see 9 N. C. Enc. Dig. 672. See 13 N. C. Law Rev., 256, for comment on Contributory Negligence as evidence relevant to damages.

Editor's Note. — Prior to the enactment of this section there was some doubt as to whether the fact of contributory negligence was in the first instance to be negatived by the plaintiff, or to be pleaded by the defendant in bar. But the cases are now uniform in holding that whatever doubt that may have existed upon the question, is removed by the enactment of this section, which imposes the burden of both pleading and proving it upon the defendant.

Constitutionality — Impairs No Vested Right. — This section placing the burden of proving contributory negligence upon the defendant affects only the remedy and impairs no vested right. It was competent for the Legislature to enact it. Wallace v. Western etc., R. Co., 104 N. C. 442, 450, 10 S. E. 552.

The general rule inculcated by this section is that the defendant must properly plead the negligence of the plaintiff as a defense, and he must also assume the burden of proving his allegation of contributory negligence. Moore v. Chicago Bridge, etc., Works, 183 N. C. 438, 440, 111 S. E. 776.

Same — Where Complaint Negatives Contributory Negligence. — The defendant can avail himself of anything appearing in plaintiff's evidence which tends to disprove contributory negligence, but this does not change the burden of proof as fixed by this section. Wallace v. Western, etc., R. Co., 104 N. C. 442, 450, 10 S. E. 552.

Applies to Actions of Employee against Employer. — This section applies to actions brought by an employee against his employer. Hudson v. Charleston, etc., R. Co., 104 N. C. 491, 10 S. E. 669.

In an action for wrongful death, where defendant fails to plead contributory negligence it is not entitled to have the issue submitted to jury under this section. Murphy v. Power Co., 196 N. C. 484, 146 S. E. 204, citing Fleming v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 196, 76 S. E. 212.

Presumption against Contributory Negligence. — Where there is no evidence of the fact, the presumption is against contributory negligence, even in the absence of a statute making it a matter of affirmative defense. Norton v. North Carolina R. Co., 122 N. C. 910, 29 S. E. 886, cited in note in 33 L. R. A., N. S., 1116.

Same — Burden of Proof in Supreme Court. — The Federal Supreme Court has held repeatedly that the burden of proving contributory negligence rests on the defendant; hence, it is not to be negatived or disproved by the plaintiff. Union Pacific R. Co. v. O'Brien, 161 U. S. 451, 456, 40 L. Ed. 766; Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Volk, 151 U. S. 73, 77, 38 L. Ed. 78.

The law presumes that a person found dead and killed by the alleged negligence of another has exercised due care himself. Cogdell v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 132 N. C. 852, 44 S. E. 618.

How the Burden of Negligence Shifts. — The burden of proof is on the plaintiff to show that his injury was caused by the negligence of the defendant. After the plaintiff has shown such negligence if the defendant wishes to plead contributory negligence as a defense, the burden is on him to show that the plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence. After the defendant has shown this, if the plaintiff wishes to take advantage of the doctrine of last clear chance, the burden is on him. 5 N. C. L. R. 63. Cox v. Norfolk, etc., Railroad, 123 N. C. 604, 31 S. E. 848.

A plaintiff in the first instance must show negligence on the part of the defendant. Having done this he need not go further in those jurisdictions where the burden of proof is on the defendant to show contributory negligence. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Landrigan, 191 U. S. 461, 48 L. Ed. 262; Looney v. Metropolitan R. Co., 200 U. S. 480, 487, 50 L. Ed. 564.

Assumption of Risk. — While there is a marked distinction between the doctrines of assumption of risks and contributory negligence, it is proper, in pertinent cases, to consider the application of the law relating to an assumption of risk under the issue of contributory negligence, with the burden of proof on the defendant pleading it. Pigford v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 94, 75 S. E. 860.

Motion to Nonsuit — Scintilla of Evidence. — This section imposes the burden of proving contributory negligence upon the defendant. It therefore follows, that on a motion to nonsuit the court can only consider the evidence relating to the negligence of the defendant, and if there is more than a mere scintilla of evidence tending to prove such negligence, the motion must be denied and the case submitted to the jury. Cox v. Norfolk & etc., Railroad, 123 N. C. 604, 31 S. E. 848.

Question for Jury. — The question whether the plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence is to be determined by the jury upon proof offered at the trial pursuant to this section. Miller v. Scott, 185 N. C. 93, 116 S. E. 86.

Hence the trial judge cannot submit a verdict on a plea of contributory negligence, but must submit the issue to the jury. United States Leather Co. v. Howell, 151 Fed. 445.

It is not error, even when contributory negligence is pleaded, since the enactment of this section, to submit only the question whether the injury was caused by the defendant's negligence, and instruct the jury to respond in the negative if they find that the plaintiff, by concurrent carelessness, contributed to cause the injury. McAdoo v. Richmond & etc., R. Co., 105 N. C. 140, 11 S. E. 316.

Same—Where Court Explains to the Jury the Testimony. —While it is better practice to submit an issue in regard to contributory negligence, when pleaded, and there is evidence to sustain the plea, the omission to submit the issue is not reversible error, where the court fully explained to the jury the several phases of the testimony relied upon to show contributory negligence and it was apparent that defendant had been given the benefit of such testimony with its application. Ruffin v. R., 142 N. C. 120, 55 S. E. 86.

A Specific Application. — The plea that an employee of the plaintiff had negligently failed to see that he had entirely extinguished a fire started by the locomotive of the defendant railroad company, and that the fire rekindled and caused the plaintiff the damages complained of in his action, is one of contributory negligence which is required by this section to be pleaded. Kearney v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 177 N. C. 251, 98 S. E. 710.

What Law Governs — Federal or State. — The procedure for the establishment of contributory negligence has been defined and approved under numerous decisions construing the State statutes which control contributory negligence, as referred to in the Federal Statutes, and it has been declared that it should be considered and treated as a partial defense, coming within the terms of the local law, and to make the same available it must be set up in the answer and proved as required by this section. Fleming v. Norfolk etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 197, 76 S. E. 212.

As the Federal act makes no specific regulations as to the methods by which the fact of contributory negligence should be established, when the action is brought in the State court, the procedure should conform as near as may be to that of the State law applicable, including the "character of action, the order and manner of trial, the rules of pleading and evidence, etc." Fleming v. Norfolk. etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 197, 76 S. E. 212.

The Rule the Same in Federal Courts. — The same rule as to the burden of proof of contributory negligence which prevails in the courts of this state, also prevails in Federal Courts, Cox v. Norfolk etc., Railroad, 123 N. C. 613, 31 S. E. 848; Coasting Co. v. Tolson 139 U. S. 551.

Applied in Butner v. Atlantic, etc., Ry. Co., 199 N. C. 695, 696, 155 S. E. 601; Farrell v. Thomas, etc., Co., 204 N. C. 631, 169 S. E. 224.

Art. 16. Reply

§ 524. Demurrer or reply to answer; where answer contains a counterclaim.—If the answer contains a counterclaim against the plaintiff or plaintiffs, or any of them, such answer shall be served upon the plaintiff or plaintiffs against whom such counterclaim is plead, or against the attorney or attorneys of record of such plaintiff or plaintiffs; the plaintiff or plaintiffs against whom such counterclaim shall be plead shall have twenty (20) days after the service thereof within which to answer or reply to such counterclaim: Provided, for good cause shown, the clerk may extend the time of filing such answer or reply to a day certain. If a counterclaim is plead against any of the plaintiffs and no copy of the answer containing such counterclaim shall be served upon the plaintiff or plaintiffs or his or their attorneys of record, such counterclaim shall be deemed to be denied as fully as if the plaintiff or plaintiffs had filed an answer or reply denying the same. All other replies, if any, shall be filed within twenty (20) days from the filing of the answer: Provided, for good cause shown, the clerk or judge, in the event the cause shall have been transferred to the civil issue docket, may extend the time to a day certain. (Rev., s. 484; Code, s. 208; 1870-71, c. 42, s. 5; 1919, c. 304; 1921, c. 92, s. 54; 1924, c. 18.)

Cross References. — As to provisions for the hearing of the demurrer, see section 513 et seq. As to replies in particular, see 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 177; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 212. See also notes to secs. 509, 536.

Editor's Note. — The acts of 1919, ch. 304, which effected certain changes in the time of filing the complaint, the demurrer and the answer, contained no provision with respect to the time of filing the reply; but the Consolidated Statutes carried out the general meaning of the plan by requiring the reply, when necessary, to be filed within twenty days after the answer. But this time was subsequently changed to ten days by the acts of 1920 and 1921. See 1 N. C. Law Rev. 12. The same acts inserted a proviso to the effect that the clerk for good cause shown may extend the time to a day certain which proviso was subsequently modified by acts 1924 c. 18 to provide that the extension by the clerk for good cause could be effected in the event the cause shall have been transferred to the civil issue docket. The acts of 1924, c. 18, extended the time of filing the reply to twenty days beginning from the filing of the answer, as the section has provided before the amendment of 1921.

But the most radical effect of the amendment of 1924 was to enlarge the provisions of the section. Thus the provision at the beginning of the section, requiring service of the counterclaim upon the plaintiff, etc., with the proviso annexed thereto; and the provision prescribing the effect of failure to serve the counterclaim as required, has been introduced by the amendment of 1924, see 3 N. C. Law Rev. 24.

Powers of Court under Section 536 Not Affected. — The restriction put upon the power of the clerk to extend the time of filing, does not affect the broad powers conferred upon the court by section 536. Roberts v. Merritt, 189 N. C. 194, 126 S. E. 513.

Failure to Serve Copy of Answer Setting up Counterclaim. —It is proper for the judge of the Superior Court to set aside a judgment by default on defendant's counterclaim under this section when the plaintiff, or his attorney, is not served with a copy thereof, since the law denies the allegations of the counterclaim when such service is not made. Williams-Fulghun Lumber Co. v. Welch, 197 N. C. 249, 148 S. E. 250.

Applied in Kassler v. Tinsley, 198 N. C. 781, 153 S. E. 411.

§ 525. Content; demurrer to answer. — When the answer contains new matter constituting a counterclaim, the plaintiff may reply to the new matter, denying generally or specifically each allegation controverted by him or any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief; and he may allege in ordinary and concise language, without repetition, any new matter not inconsistent with the complaint, constituting a defense to the new matter in the answer. The plaintiff may in all cases demur to an answer containing new matter, where, upon its face, it does not constitute a counterclaim or defense; and he may demur to one or more of such defenses or counterclaims, and reply to the residue. Such demurrer shall be heard and determined as provided for demurrers to the complaint. In other cases, when an answer contains new matter constituting a defense by way of avoidance, the court may in its discretion, on the defendant's motion, require a reply to such new matter, and such reply shall be subject to the same rules as a reply to a counterclaim. (Rev., s. 485; Code, s. 248; C. C. P., s. 105; 1919, c. 304.)

See 10 N.C. Enc. Dig. 177.

Matter in Defense Deemed as Denial Without Replication. — If the new matter in the answer does not constitute a counterclaim, even in the absence of a replication such new matter is to be deemed controverted by the plaintiff as upon a direct denial. Wilson v. Brown, 134 N. C. 400, 407, 46 S. E. 762; Fitzgerald v. Shelton, 95 N. C. 519; Williams v. Hutton, etc., Co., 164 N. C. 216, 80 S. E. 257; Smith v. Bruton, 137 N. C. 79, 49 S. E. 64.

For in such a case no replication is necessary, unless required by the court. Simon v. Masters, 192 N. C. 731, 135 S. E. 861; Fishblate v. Fidelity Co., 140 N. C. 589, 594, 53 S. E. 354; Jones v. Cohen, 82 N. C. 75, 80. It is only when a counterclaim is relied on that the plaintiff's failure to reply may afford ground for a judgment for want of a replication, but not when the matter constitutes a defense to the action merely. Barnhardt v. Smith, 86 N. C. 473, 483.

The Court May Require Reply.—Though no counterclaim is pleaded the court can order a reply to be filed to any defence set up in the answer or may allow it to be filed as a matter of discretion. James v. Western, etc., R. Co., 121 N. C. 530, 28 S. E. 537.

May Contain New Matter.—The plaintiff may not only reply to a counterclaim, but may allege "new matter" which has no connection with the matter alleged in the complaint or the new matter alleged in the counterclaim, the requirement being that it shall not be inconsistent with the complaint. Boyett v. Vaughan, 79 N. C. 528, S. C. 85 N. C. 364.

Reply Only to New Matter in Answer.—A reply can be made only to new matter brought out in the answer. Olmstead v. Raleigh, 130 N. C. 243, 41 S. E. 292.

Must Not be Radically Inconsistent.—A party will not be allowed to maintain radically inconsistent positions, or to state one cause of action in the complaint and in the replication state another which is entirely inconsistent. Berry v. Hyde County Land, etc., Co., 183 N. C. 384, 386, 111 S. E. 707.

Waiver by Failure to Demur.—Where an answer is defective in failing to allege that the plaintiff had knowledge of the fraud, a failure to demur thereto will have the effect of waiving such defect. Printing Co. v. McAden, 131 N. C. 178, 184, 42 S. E. 575.

Sufficient Denial in Replication.—An answer having alleged a set-off, the replication thereto alleged that such answer is "untrue and denied" and reiterated the cause of action stated in the complaint: Held, sufficient to put the plea of set-off in issue and require evidence in its support. Gregg v. Mallett, 111 N. C. 74, 15 S. E. 936.

Statute of Limitations.—Formerly a replication was required to be filed whenever the statute of limitation was pleaded; but now a replication is necessary, only in the event the plaintiff has some matter in avoidance, such as a new promise, etc. Stubbs v. Motz, 113 N. C. 458, 18 S. E. 387.

§ 526. Demurrer to reply.—If a reply of the plaintiff to a defense set up by the answer of the defendant is insufficient, the defendant may demur thereto, and must state the grounds thereof. (Rev., s. 486; Code, s. 250; C. C. P., s. 107.)

Amended Reply.—A judgment will not be reversed for error in sustaining a demurrer to the reply when the plaintiff, on leave, files an amended reply, presenting, in addition to others, the same issues, and the same proceeds to trial and final judgment upon the issues thus presented. 22 Ohio St. Reports. Construing a similar section of the Ohio Code.

Reply Set up New Matter.—In construing the Ohio statute it was held that where a reply, which sets up new matter sufficient in law to avoid the defense, is, on demurrer, erroneously held insufficient, and the case is finally disposed of by a finding against the plaintiff on issues of fact, under which the special matter in the reply is not available to the plaintiff, the error of the court in sustaining the demurrer constitutes a good ground for reversing the final judgment, and awaiting a new trial, unless the records show such error to have been otherwise. 18 Ohio State Reports 353.

If Reply Is a Departure.—If reply is a departure, demurrer should be sustained. 1 Cincinnati Superior Court Reporter 12. It was so held in construing the Ohio Code.

Failure to Demur to Reply. — A failure to demur to a reply that does not contain matter sufficient to avoid a defense set up in the answer, is not a waiver of the right to object to the sufficiency of the reply, and will not affect the judgment to be rendered. 31 Ohio State Reporter 492. So held in construing the Ohio Code.

Art. 17. Pleadings, General Provisions

§ 527. Forms of pleading.—The forms of pleading in civil actions in courts of record, and the rules by which the sufficiency of the pleadings is to be determined, are those prescribed by this chapter. (Rev., s. 487; Code, s. 231; C. C. P., s. 91.)

For abolition of the differences between actions at law and suits in equity, see section 399. As to uniform practice in inferior courts where summons issues to run outside of county, see § 478(a).

General Effect of New Form of Procedure.—The subtle science of pleading heretofore in use is not merely relaxed but abolished by the Code, so that the forms of pleading in civil actions, and the rules by which their sufficiency is to be determined, are those prescribed in this chapter. The new system inaugurated thereby is such that few, if any, of the ancient rules are now applicable. Moore v. Edmiston, 70 N. C. 510, 518.

In construing the Ohio Code, it was held that when the facts set out in the petition entitled the plaintiff to judgment, it is immaterial what the form of action would have been at law. 21 Ohio State Reporter 596, 603.

Same—Rules for Certainty Not Abolished.—While the distinction between actions at law and suits in equity and all feigned issues have been abolished, and there is now but one form of action for the enforcement or protection of private rights or the redress of private wrongs, which is denominated a civil action, and while new rules have been prescribed by the chapter for determining the sufficiency of a pleading, it was not intended to repeal those rules of pleading which are essential to produce certainty of statement and issue between the parties. Turner v. McKee, 137 N. C. 251, 259, 49 S. E. 330.

Forms of Actions Abolished.—All the forms of pleading heretofore existing are abolished, and under the present system there is but one form of action. Bitting v. Thaxton, 72 N. C. 541, 548.

Thus the forms of action trespass vi et armis or trespass on the case have been abolished and a civil action for all cases has been substituted therefor. Sneeden v. Harris, 109 N. C. 349, 357, 13 S. E. 920.

Pleading Should Be in Writing.—In the United States Courts it is held that pleadings should be in writing, at law as in equity. McFaul v. Ramsey, 20 How. 523, 15 L. Ed. 1010.

What They Must Contain in General.—Pleadings should clearly, distinctly and succinctly state the nature of the wrong complained of, the remedy sought, and the defense set up. Bradford v. Southern R. Co., 195 U. S. 243, 49 L. Ed. 178: Cheaspeake, etc., R. Co., v. Dixon, 179 U. S. 131, 45 L. Ed. 121.

Meaning of the Pleader.—In construing the Ohio Code it was held that the meaning of the pleader must be fairly ascertained from the whole instrument without regard to technical rules. If legal or technical words are used they are to be taken in their recognized sense, unless the context shows another sense was intended. 42 Ohio State Reporter 625, 9 Circuit Court Reports 421.

§ 528. Subscription and verification of pleading.—Every pleading in a court of record must be subscribed by the party or his attorney, and when any pleading is verified, every subsequent pleading, except a demurrer, must be verified also. (Rev., s. 488; Code, s. 257; C. C. P., s. 116.)

For authorities dealing with verification of pleadings, see, 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 202, et seq.; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 221.

When Verification Necessary.—The provisions of this section which are applicable also to special proceedings, do not require that the petition (or any other pleading) be, at all events, verified. It simply requires that when one pleading is verified every subsequent one, except a demurrer, be verified. Lindsay v. Beaman, 128 N. C. 189, 190, 38 S. E. 811.

Requirement One of Substance.—The requirement as to the verification of pleadings is one of substanec, and not of form, and a defect therein is jurisdictional. Martin v. Martin, 130 N. C. 27, 40 S. E. 822; Holloman v. Holloman, 127 N. C. 15, 37 S. E. 68; Nichols v. Nichols, 128 N. C. 108, 38 S. E. 296.

The object of the verification is, that if the defendant does not deny the allegations, the cause shall stand as if the jury had been empaneled, and the allegations put in proof without denial, the purpose being to avoid the delay of trial upon uncontroverted points. Griffin v. Ashville Light Co., 111 N. C. 434, 16 S. E. 423.

It is to give the pleader a convenient substitute for the old bill of discovery in equity, and to eliminate all issues of fact that the parties are not willing to raise under oath. Miller v. Curl, 162 N. C. 1, 77 S. E. 952.

Want of Verification Fatal Defect.—Where a statute directs that the complaint of the petitioner "shall be sworn to as in other actions," the want of a proper verification is a fatal defect for which judgment will be arrested. Cowles v. Hardin, 79 N. C. 577.

Effect of Non-Verification. — Where a pleading is not verified in compliance with this and the two succeeding sections, the other party has a right to file an unverified pleading, and it is error to deny him such right. See Reynolds v. Smathers, 87 N. C. 24.

In construing this section the court has repeatedly held that if a pleading be verified and the subsequent pleading be not, the latter may be set aside and disregarded. Harkey v. Houston, 65 N. C. 137; Alspaugh v. Winstead, 79 N. C. 526; Wynne v. Prairie, 86 N. C. 73; Rogers v. Moore, 86 N. C. 86; Alford v. McCormac, 90 N. C. 151, 152.

Upon this principle if the plaintiff verify his complaint and the defendant fail to verify his answer, the plaintiff is entitled to judgment. Alford v. McCormac, supra; Griffin v. Asheville Light Co., 111 N. C. 434, 438, 16 S. E. 423.

Substantial Compliance.—The requirements of this section must be substantially complied with. Miller v. Curl, 162 N. C. 1, 77 S. E. 952.

Applicable to Courts of Record Only.—The requirements of this section with regard to verification applies only to courts of record, and have no application to pleading in a justice's court, which is not a court of record. Van Smith Building, etc., Co. v. Pender, 173 N. C. 55, 91 S. E. 524.

Amended Complaint.—A complaint amended in a material part after being verified is, in effect, unverified; and the answer to it is not required to be verified. Rankin v. Allison, 64 N. C. 673.

§ 529. Form of verification.—The verification must be in substance that the same is true to the knowledge of the person making it, except as to those matters stated on information and belief, and as to those matters he believes it to be true; and must be by affidavit of the party, or if there are several parties united in interest and pleading together, by one at least of such parties acquainted with the facts, if the party is in the county where the attorney resides and is capable of making the affidavit. (Rev., s. 489; Code, s. 258; C. C. P., s. 117; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 7.)

Cross References.—See generally, 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 202, et seq; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 221. For verification in divorce cases, see section 1661.

Amendment to Insufficient Verification.—Where the verification of an answer was insufficient, it is not error for the trial court to allow an amended verification, where such allowance tends to a fair trial of the case on the merits, and the adverse party is given a reasonable time to meet the amended pleadings. Best v. Dunn, 126 N. C. 560, 36 S. E. 126.

No Literal Formula Required.—This section provides that the verification must be in "substance" as therein prescribed. Hence a verbal and literal following of the formula prescribed is not necessary. McLamb v. McPhail, 126 N. C. 218, 220, 35 S. E. 426.

Same—But Following the Terms of Section Recommended.—With reference to the contents and forms of verification, the court in Cole v. Boyd, 125 N. C. 496, 498, 34 S. E. 557, said: "We do not wish to be understood as insisting upon a literal compliance. Such a requirement would be contrary to the spirit of our present system. Any form of words that is equivalent thereto will be sufficient. We may even go further and say that we should permit any form of verification that, taken in connection with the form of statement in the pleading, clearly distinguishes between personal knowledge and information so as to render the affiant legally responsible for the truth of every material allegation. But the object of verification is to verify. If it fails to do this, it is worse than useless. If a party wishes to bind his opponent with the obligations of a verified pleading, he must bind himself, and must so state every material allegation that it will not only rest under the moral sanctity of an oath, but that its falsity will fasten upon him the penalties of perjury. This is the object of a verification and the true test of its sufficiency. While it is not necessary to follow the exact words of the statute, it is always safe to do so, and we would strongly advise such course in preference to mere experimental practice, which is always dangerous."

Instances of Sufficient Verification. — An allegation that plaintiff has "reason to believe," and therefore "alleges," etc., is sufficient under this section, requiring matter to be alleged as of plaintiff's knowledge or upon "information and belief." Ware-Kramer Tobacco Co. v. American Tobacco Co., 180 Fed. 160.

So, where an instrument in writing is charged to have been executed by a person other than the deceased, the affidavit will be sufficient if it states that the affiant has reason to believe that such instrument was not executed by the decedent or by his authority. Apache County v. Barth, 177 U. S. 538, 44 L. Ed. 878, construing an Arizona statute of similar import.

The verification of the answer in the words following, "The foregoing answer of the defendants is true of his own knowledge, except those matters stated on information and belief, and he believes those to be true," is a substantial compliance with this section. McLamb v. McPhail, 126 N. C. 218, 220, 35 S. E. 426.

Same—Insufficient Verifications. — A verification in the words following: "he has read the foregoing answer and knows the contents thereof; that the facts setforth therein of his own knowledge are true, and that those stated on information and belief he believes to be true," is held insufficient. Carroll v. McMillan, 133 N. C. 141, 45 S. E. 530.

A verification in the words "sworn and subscribed to" is not sufficient in an ordinary action, and a fortiori in a divorce action which the law does not favor. Martin v. Martin, 130 N. C. 27, 40 S. E. 822; see section 1661.

Subscribing the Verification by Affiant.—This section does not in terms or specifically require that the verification of the pleading shall be subscribed by the affiant, and it need not be so signed unless an affidavit is incomplete and inoperative without it. Alford v. McCormac, 90 N. C. 151, 152. Though the signing by him is commendable. Cahoon v. Everton, 187 N. C. 369, 121 S. E. 612.

Oath by Whom Administered.—It is sufficient if the oath is administered by one authorized to administer oaths. Alford v. McCormas, 90 N. C. 151.

§ 530. Verification by agent or attorney.—The affidavit may also be made by the agent or attorney, if the action or defense is founded upon a written instrument for the payment of money only and the instrument is in the possession of the agent or attorney, or if all the material allegations of the pleadings are within the personal knowledge of the agent or attorney. When the pleading is verified by any other person than the party, he shall set forth in the affidavit his knowledge or the grounds of his belief on the subject, and the reasons why it is not made by the party. (Rev., s. 490; Code, s. 258; C. C. P., s. 117; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 7.)

Cross References.—See generally, 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 202, et seq; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 221.

Editor's Note.—This section contemplates only two cases where the affidavit may be made by the attorney. The one, when the action is founded upon a written instrument for the payment of money only, and such instrument is in the possession of the attorney; and the other, when the material allegations are within the personal knowledge of the attorney. The one or the other of these facts are essential to the validity of a verification by an agent or attorney. See Hammerslaugh v. Farrior, 95 N. C. 135, 136.

Not Applicable to Ancillary Remedies.—The provisions of this section, requiring that verifications made by agents shall state why they are not made by the principals, and that the material facts are personally known to the agent, apply only to actions in which the responsive pleadings must also be under oath, and not to those ancillary remedies intended merely to secure the fruits of an ultimate recovery, in seeking which greater latitude is allowed. Bruff v. Stern, 81 N. C. 183.

The pleadings of a non-resident may be verified by an agent or attorney, if either one of the two requiremets of this section be present. Griffin v. Ashville Light Co., 111 N. C. 434, 436, 16 S. E. 423.

Verification by Corporate Officer Need Not State Knowledge, etc.—A verification to a complaint made by an officer of a corporation need not set forth "his knowledge or the grounds of his belief on the subject and the reason why it was made by the party." A corporation acts only through its officers and agents, and such verification is the verification of the corporation itself. Bank v. Hutchison, 87 N. C. 22. See generally the annotations to the succeeding section.

Instances of Good and Defective Verifications by Agents.—A verification to a complaint, made by an agent or attorney of a non-resident, to the effect that the claim sued on is in writing and in his possession for collection, giving facts in his personal knowledge and sources of other information, meets the substantial requirements of this section. Clark & Co. v. Maxwell, 87 N. C. 18.

A verification of a complaint made by an attorney of the plaintiff, setting forth in the affidavit "that the facts set forth * * * as of his own knowledge are true, and those stated on information and belief he believes to be true * * * ; that the action is based on a written instrument for the payment of money, and that said instrument is in his possession, and he therefore makes this verification pursuant to the provisions of this section," does not comply with the requisites of the statute, and is defective in not stating the grounds of his belief and the reason why the party himself did not make the verification. Miller v. Curl, 162 N. C. 1, 77 S. E. 952.

In a proceeding to restore certain records destroyed by fire, an affidavit by the agent of the petitioner that the facts set forth in the complaint "are true to the best of his knowledge, information and belief," is an insufficient verification. Cowles v. Hardin, 79 N. C. 577.

§ 531. Verification by corporation or the state. —When a corporation is a party the verification may be made by any officer, or managing or local agent thereof upon whom summons might be served; and when the state or any officer thereof in its behalf is a party, the verification may be made by any person acquainted with the facts. (Rev., s. 491; Code, s. 258; 1901, c. 610; C. C. P., s. 117; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 7.)

Editor's Note.—Formerly it was held that a verification by an "agent" of a corporation was inoperative, and that it must be made by a corporate officer. Banks v. Gay Mfg. Co., 108 N. C. 282, 12 S. E. 741; Phifer v. Traveler's Ins. Co., 123 N. C. 405, 406, 31 S. E. 715. But now, this section in terms provides for verification by "managing or local agent." To this latter effect, see Godwin v. Carolina Tel., etc., Co., 136 N. C. 258, 48 S. E. 636. And see § 483 and notes thereto.

The managing director of a foreign corporation may verify its pleadings. Best v. British, etc., Montg. Co., 131 N. C. 70, 42 S. E. 456.

Knowledge or Ground of Belief of Corporate Agent. — See Bank v. Hutchison, 87 N. C. 22, in the annotations to the preceding section.

§ 532. Verification before what officer. — Any officer competent to take the acknowledgment of deeds, and any judge or clerk of the superior court, notary public, in or out of the state, or justice of the peace, is competent to take affidavits for the verification of pleadings, in any court or county in the state, and for general purposes. (Rev., s. 492; Code, s. 258; 1891, c. 140; C. C. P., s. 117; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 7.)

Editor's Note.—Many decisions of the supreme court had formerly declared that the notaries public authorized to take affidavits for the verification of the pleadings were those of this, and not of some other state. Benedict, etc., Co. v. Hall, 76 N. C. 113; Hinton v. Life Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 22, 24, 21 S. E. 201. But this has now been changed by the express terms of this section which permit verification to be taken by notaries in as well as out of the state. See Hinton v. Life Ins. Co., supra.

And it seems that the phrase "in or out of the state" immediately succeeding the words "notary public," has reference not only to notaries, but to the other officers designated in the section. Thus in Hinton v. Life Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 22, 21 S. E. 201, the verification was made before the clerk of the Hustings Court of Richmond, Va., and it was held valid, the court announcing the general rule that courts take judicial notice of the seal of the courts of other states just as they do of the seals of foreign courts of admiralty and notaries public.

§ 533. When verification omitted; use in criminal prosecutions.—The verification may be omitted when an admission of the truth of the allegation might subject the party to prosecution for felony. No pleading can be used in a criminal prosecution against the party as proof of a fact admitted or alleged in it. (Rev., s. 493; Code, s. 258; C. C. P., s. 117; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 7.)

In a prosecution for embezzlement the admission in evidence over defendant's objection of pleadings in civil actions against defendant, involving the funds he is alleged to have embezzled, is erroneous in view of this section. State v. Ray, 206 N. C. 736, 175 S. E. 109.

Applied in State v. Dula, 204 N. C. 535, 168 S. E. 836.

§ 534. Items of account; bill of particulars.— It is not necessary for a party to set forth in a pleading the items of an account alleged in it; but he must deliver to the adverse party, within ten days after a demand therefor in writing, a copy of the account, which, if the pleading is verified, must be verified by his own oath or that of his agent or attorney if within the personal knowledge of the agent or attorney, to the effect that he believes it to be true, or be precluded from giving evidence thereof. The court or judge may order a further account when the one delivered is defective, and may, in all cases, order a bill of particulars of the claim of either party to be furnished. (Rev., s. 494; Code, s. 259; C. C. P., s. 118.)

Cross References.—As to kindred provisions applicable to proceedings before justices of the peace, see section 1500, rule 10; as to proof of items of book accounts under sixty dollars, see section 1786, et seq. See also, generally 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 207.

Purpose and Effect of Section. — This section, which, in case of a disregard of the demand, shuts out all proof of the items of the claim coming from any witness (and does not close the mouth of the party making it), is intended to meet the case of a complaint that does not set out the particulars, and confines the evidence at the trial to such as are set forth. Its aim is to supply an omission to give them in the pleadings, and hence, when furnished, they become substantially and in legal effect a part of the complaint itself. Wiggins v. Guthrie, 101 N. C. 661, 675, 7 S. E. 761.

Indefiniteness as to Dates, Locality, etc.—For indefiniteness of the complaint as to dates, etc., the defendant may ask for a bill of particulars. Lumber Co. v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 141 N. C. 171, 179, 53 S. E. 823. The same rule applies to indefiniteness of locality. Lucas v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 121 N. C. 506, 509, 28 S. E. 265; Bryan v. Spivey, 106 N. C. 95, 11 S. E. 510; Fulps v. Mock, 108 N. C. 601, 13 S. E. 92.

Indefinite Statement of Cause.—An uncertain or an indefinite statement of a cause of action may be corrected by an application for a bill of particulars under this section. Bristol v. Carolina, etc., R. Co., 175 N. C. 509, 95 S. E. 850.

Time of Application for Bill of Particulars.—The application for a bill of particulars should always be made in time to avoid any delay being caused in the trial. If too long delayed, the court will refuse the application. State v. Brady, 107 N. C. 822, 827, 12 S. E. 325; Wiggins v. Guthrie, 101 N. C. 661, 7 S. E. 761.

Same—Before Trial.—The better practice, for a party who intends to preclude his adversary from proving an account on the ground that he has not complied with a demand or an order for the particulars of such account, is to apply for an order to that effect before the trial, so as to have the question settled before the trial. Wiggins v. Guthrie, 101 N. C. 661, 675, 7 S. E. 761.

Discretion of Court as to Bill of Particulars.—A motion for a bill of particulars under this section rests in the discretion of the presiding judge, and its grant or refusal is not reviewable. State v. Bryant, 111 N. C. 693, 16 S. E. 326. While this is true, yet such motions should be liberally allowed by trial courts when made in time to avoid any delay in the trial, unless clearly useless or merely for the purpose of annoyance. Townsend v. Williams, 117 N. C. 330, 337, 23 S. E. 461. See also Savage v. Currin, 207 N. C. 222, 176 S. E. 569.

The court has the discretionary power to allow an application for a bill of particulars, under this section, or to grant a motion to require a pleading to be made more definite and certain under section 537, or to strike out in its discretion orders previously made under the statutes, and no appeal will lie from such discretionary orders. Temple v. Western Union Tel. Co., 205 N. C. 441, 171 S. E. 630.

Defective Bill of Particulars—How Taken Advantage. — If the bill of particulars be defective the remedy is not by a demurrer thereto, for its sufficiency or insufficiency rests with the presiding judge, but by an application to the court to order a more definite bill. Townsend v. Williams, 117 N. C. 330, 337, 23 S. E. 461.

Demand for Account Where Bill of Particulars Filed. —

A demand for a copy of the account is not warranted where the plaintiff attaches a bill of particulars to his complaint, and has made it a part thereof by reference. Wiggins v. Guthrie, 101 N. C. 661, 7 S. E. 761.

Motion to Make Complaint More Definite. — Under the provision of this section and section 537, the Superior Court judge may, in his sound discretion, allow defendant's motion, after answer filed, to make the complaint more definite and certain as to the grounds upon which the relief is sought, especially when it affects book records and other written data easily accessible to the plaintiff. Elizabeth City Water, etc., Co. v. Elizabeth City, 188 N. C. 278, 124 S. E. 611.

Evidence Must Relate to Items in Bill.—When a bill of particulars is required or allowed the evidence at the trial must be confined to the specific items set forth in such bill. Savage v. Currin, 207 N. C. 222, 225, 176 S. E. 569.

Effect of Destruction of Records by Fire.—Where plaintiff's failure to comply with an order of the court, as provided by this section, to file an itemized statement of the account sued on is due to the fact that his records had been destroyed by fire, plaintiff is not precluded by his failure to comply with the order from establishing the debt by competent evidence. Savage v. Currin, 207 N. C. 222, 176 S. E. 569.

In Criminal Proceedings. — For the procedure in obtaining a bill of particulars in criminal proceedings, and its similarity to that in civil actions, see State v. Brady, 107 N. C. 822, 827, 12 S. E. 325. See also, section 4613.

§ 535. Pleadings construed liberally.—In the construction of a pleading for the purpose of determining its effect its allegations shall be liberally construed with a view to substantial justice between the parties. (Rev., s. 495; Code, s. 260; C. C. P., s. 119.)

Cross References. — For an exhaustive digest treatment of the general rules of the construction of pleadings, see 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 163; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 208; for specific instances, see the different title in N. C. Enc. Digest.

Editor's Note. — Under the common-law rules of pleading, the requirement of accuracy and precision was often pushed to the extreme, and the rights of litigants were determined not on the merits of the controversy but on sheer technicalities such as using the verb "to have" in the past tense, instead of in the present. These ideas were entirely abrogated in this country by the Codes of Civil Procedure wherever adopted. In England, after a series of improvements, beginning in 1834, when the celebrated "Rules of Hilary Term" were adopted, the British Parliament has swept them out of the English law also and has introduced the substance of the American Reformed Civil Procedure.

The object of the procedure under the Code is to try cases on their merits and not on technicalities and refined distinctions of the old system of pleading, under which the victory depended too much upon the skill of the pleader, rather than upon the merits of the successful party's case. The present system is far more liberal, and seeks first of all things, to try each case upon its facts and without so much regard to form. Its main purpose is to avoid miscarriages of justice by mere slips in pleadings, and, therefore, it requires that pleadings be construed sensibly, "with a view to substantial justice between the parties," as prescribed in this section.

Common Law Rule of Construction Modified—Reasonable Construction. — The common law rule requiring every pleading to be construed against the pleader has been materially modified by this section. Sexton v. Farrington, 185 N. C. 339, 117 S. E. 172. Hence a pleading will be upheld if any part presents sufficient facts; or if such facts may be gathered from the whole pleading by a liberal and reasonable construction, the pleading will be sustained. Pridgen v. Pridgen, 190 N. C. 102, 105, 129 S. E. 419.

In Favor of Pleader.—The court is required on demurrer to construe the complaint liberally "with a view to substantial justice between the parties," under this section, and, contrary to the common-law rule, every reasonable intendment is to be made in favor of the pleader. Joyner v. Woodard, 201 N. C. 315, 317, 160 S. E. 288.

Construction in View of Merits. — The pleadings must be liberally construed, with a view to present the case upon its real merits. Lyon v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 165 N. C. 143, 81 S. E. 1.

Statement of Cause of Action. — If the facts alleged are sufficient for a cause of action when liberally construed, however inartificially the complaint may have been drawn, it will be sustained. Renn v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 170 N. C. 128, 86 S. E. 964; Conrad v. Board, 190 N. C. 389, 130 S. E. 53. Same rule applies to an answer. Pridgen v. Pridgen, 190 N. C. 102, 129 S. E. 419; Dixon v. Green, 178 N. C. 205, 100 S. E. 262. See also Farrell v. Thomas, etc., Co. 204 N. C. 631, 633, 169 S. E. 224.

But there should be at least a substantial accuracy in the averments of pleadings, and a compliance therein with the essential rules of pleading so that the real issues may be evolved from the controversy. New Bern Banking, etc., Co. v. Duffy, 156 N. C. 83, 72 S. E. 96.

Upon the inquiry as to whether the complaint states a cause of action, it will be liberally construed with every reasonable intendment therefrom in the plaintiff's favor, however uncertain, defective and redundant its allegations may be drawn. Enloe v. Ragle, 195 N. C. 38, 141 S. E. 477; Sewell v. Chas. Cole & Co., 194 N. C. 546, 140 S. E. 85, citing S. v. Bank, 193 N. C. 513, 527, 137 S. E. 587; Foy v. Stephens, 168 N. C. 438, 84 S. E. 758; S. v. Trust Co., 192 N. C. 246, 134 S. E. 656; Elam v. Barnes, 110 N. C. 73, 14 S. E. 621.

A complaint cannot be overthrown by a demurrer unless it be wholly insufficient. If in any portion of it, or to any extent, it presents facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or if facts sufficient for that purpose can be fairly gathered from it, the pleading will stand, however inartificially it may have been drawn, or however uncertain, defective, or redundant may be its statements, for, contrary to the common-law rule, every reasonable intendment and presumption must be made in favor of the pleader. It must be fatally defective before it will be rejected as insufficient. Fairbanks, etc., Co. v. Murdock Co., 207 N. C. 348, 351, 177 S. E. 122.

Same—Judged from Whole Pleading. — When it is apparent from the whole pleading that the complaint alleges a good cause of action, it will be sustained under the rule of liberal construction. Muse v. Ford Motor Co., 175 N. C. 466, 95 S. E. 900; Dixon v. Green, 178 N. C. 205, 100 S. E. 262.

Extent of Liberal Construction Rule. — The rule of liberal construction does not mean that a pleading shall be construed to say what it does not say, but that if it can be seen from its general scope that a party has a cause of action or defense he will not be deprived thereof merely because he has not stated it with technical accuracy. Chesson v. Lynch, 186 N. C. 625, 626, 120 S. E. 198. Nor does it mean that the court shall supply the necessary allegations; nor is it intended thereby to repeal those rules of pleading which are essential to produce certainty of issues. Turner v. McKee, 137 N. C. 251, 259, 49 S. E. 330. See also Fairbanks, etc., Co. v. Murdock Co., 207 N. C. 348, 351, 177 S. E. 122.

Errors in Language and Use of Words. — A plea that a cause of action did not "arise" within the time prescribed by the statute for the commencement of an action, while not strictly accurate, will be construed under the liberal system of pleading in force under this section, to mean that it did not "accrue" within that time. Stubbs v. Motz, 113 N. C. 458, 18 S. E. 387.

Conflicts of Laws. — The rules of construction of the pleadings are governed by the lex fori, i. e. by the law of the state in which the cause is being litigated. McNinch v. American Trust Co., 183 N. C. 33, 110 S. E. 663.

Variances. — Under the liberal principle which this section inculcates, a variance between the pleadings and proof will not be regarded as material unless it misleads the complaining party to his prejudice in maintaining his action upon its merits. Renn v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 170 N. C. 128, 86 S. E. 964; Muse v. Ford Motor Co., 175 N. C. 466, 95 S. E. 900. And where the variance is not material the judge may direct the fact to be found according to the evidence. Dorsey v. Corbett, 190 N. C. 783, 130 S. E. 842.

A demurrer to the evidence will not be sustained if it is sufficient under a liberal construction to sustain the plaintiff's action. State v. National Bank, 193 N. C. 524, 137 S. E. 593.

§ 536. Time for pleading enlarged. — The judge may likewise, in his discretion, and upon such terms as may be just, allow an answer or reply to be made, or other act to be done, after the time limited, or by an order to enlarge the time. (Rev., s. 512; Code, s. 274; C. C. P., s. 133.)

Cross References. — As to provisions relating to amendments, see sections 545-553; as to power of judge to set aside judgments for mistake, surprise or excusable neglect, see section 600. As to extention of time for filing the pleadings, see generally 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 169, 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 210. See also note under sec. 505.

Editor's Note. — It will be noticed that this section confers upon the judge two supplementary powers: (a) To allow an answer to be filed after the time limited for their filing, which presupposes that the power is to be exercised after the expiration of such time; (b) a power to extend the time of filing the answer or reply, which presupposes that the power is to be exercised before the expiration of the time limited for the filing of the answer of reply.

While it is true the line of cases cited under this section, refer more particularly to filing answer, no sound reason occurs why the same power does not exist for enlarging the time for filing complaint. Smith v. New York Life Ins. Co., 208 N. C. 99, 102, 179 S. E. 457.

Inherent Power to Extend Time. — Even independent of this section, and a fortiori under this section, the superior court possesses an inherent discretionary power to amend pleadings or allow them to be filed at any time, unless prohibited by some statute, or unless vested rights are interferred with. Gilchrist v. Kitchen, 86 N. C. 20.

Review of Discretion. — It is generally held that whenever the judge is vested with a discretion, his doing or refusal to do the act in question is not reviewable upon appeal. United Am., etc., Baptist Church v. United Am., etc., Baptist Church, 158 N. C. 564, 74 S. E. 14; Wilmington v. McDonald, 133 N. C. 548, 45 S. E. 864; Beck v. Bellamy, 93 N. C. 129; Best v. British, etc., Mortg. Co., 131 N. C. 70, 42 S. E. 456. This discretion however is not an arbitrary but a legal discretion. Hudgins v. White, 65 N. C. 393.

Ample Power in Questions of Pleading and Practice. — In Austin v. Clarke, 70 N. C. 458, 459, the court said that this section invests the Court with ample powers, in all questions of practice and procedure, to be exercised at the discretion of the judge presiding, who is presumed, to know best what orders and what indulgence will promote the ends of justice, in each particular case. With the exercise of discretion, we cannot interfere, and it is not the subject of appeal.

Extension Not to Be Encouraged. — After the defendant has failed to file a verified answer, the court may in its discretion extend the time for filing it, though such extension of time is a practice not to be encouraged. Griffin v, Asheville Light Co., 111 N. C. 434, 438, 16 S. E. 423.

Extension beyond Next Term. — The trial court cannot extend the time for pleading beyond the next term of court, unless by consent of the parties. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 266, 37 S. E. 334.

Extension after Supreme Court's Decision. — The trial court cannot permit an answer to be filed after the Supreme Court has decided that judgment should have been entered by default for the plaintiff. Cook v. American Exch. Bank, 130 N. C. 183, 41 S. E. 67.

Enlarging Time for Filing Answer.—The judge of the Superior Court where a civil action has been brought has the discretionary power to enlarge the time in which an answer may be filed to the complaint beyond that limited before the clerk, upon such terms as may be just, by an order to that effect. Aldridge v. Greensboro Fire Ins. Co., 194 S. E. 683, 140 S. E. 706. See also Vann v. Coleman, 206 N. C. 451, 174 S. E. 301.

Same—Setting Aside Default.—On an appeal from an order of the clerk of the superior court denying motion to set aside a default judgment the judge of such court has jurisdiction under this and § 637 to set aside the judgment and enlarge the time for filing the defendant's answer. Acme Mfg. Co. v. Kornegay, 195 N. C. 373, 142 S. E. 224, citing Caldwell v. Caldwell, 189 N. C. 805, 128 S. E. 329.

Upon a proper finding of a meritorious defense and excusable neglect, the judge of the Superior Court, on appeal from the clerk, has authority under § 600 to set aside a judgment rendered by the clerk, against the defendant by default of an answer, to which exception has been duly entered before the clerk, and to permit an answer to be filed under this section. Dunn v. Jones, 195 N. C. 354, 142 S. E. 320.

At the Time of Trial. — It is in the discretion of the court to allow filing of the answer or demurrer even where the case is reached for trial. Morgan v. Harris, 141 N. C. 358, 360, 54 S. E. 381.

Allowance to File Answer after Five Years. — In Mallard v. Patterson, 108 N. C. 255, 13 S. E. 93, the defendant filed an unverified answer, the complaint in the action having been verified, and the defendant, after a lapse of five years, asked to be allowed to file a new answer, properly verified, and the court allowed him the leave, though he was not entitled to it as a matter of right. The Supreme Court approved of the order, and declared that the exercise of the discretion by the judge was not reviewable. Best v. British, etc., Mortg. Co., 131 N. C. 70, 42 S. E. 456.

Irrespective of Laches. — Even if the delay in filing the pleading is due to the pleaders laches, it is in the discretion of the presiding judge to permit it to be filed. McMillan v. Baxley, 112 N. C. 578, 583, 16 S. E. 845.

Filing Defense Bond. — A trial judge may at any time extend the time for filing a defense bond. Timber Co. v. Butler, 134 N. C. 50, 45 S. E. 956; Dunn v. Marks, 141 N. C. 232, 53 S. E. 845.

Delay in Motion for Judgment May Be Considered. — In passing on a motion to file or verify an answer after the time limit, the court may in its discretion consider the delay of the plaintiff in moving for judgment. Horney v. Mills, 189 N. C. 724, 128 S. E. 324.

Answer to Amended Complaint. — The trial judge has the discretionary power conferred on him by this section to allow the defendant to file an answer to the amended complaint during the term, and his action will not be reviewed on appeal when an abuse of this discretion has not been shown. Brown v. Hillsboro, 185 N. C. 368, 117 S. E. 41.

Effect of Section 509. — Section 509 prohibits the clerk of the court only from extending the time for defendant to answer, and does not impair the broad powers conferred by this section upon the judge. McNair v. Yarboro, 186 N. C. 111, 118 S. E. 913.

Effect of Section 524 on Power of Court. — The restrictions in section 524 do not impair the discretion of the court in allowing an answer to be filed after the time limited. Roberts v. Merritt, 189 N. C. 194, 126 S. E. 513.

§§ 524 and 2593(a) have reference to the clerk, and were not intended to impair the broad powers conferred on the judge under this section. Aldridge v. Greensboro Fire Ins. Co., 194 N. C. 683, 140 S. E. 706.

Applied in Bailey v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 388, 27 S. E. 28.

Cited in Carolina Power & Light Co. v. Reeves, 198 N. C. 404, 410, 151 S. E. 871.

§ 537. Irrelevant, redundant, indefinite pleadings.—If irrelevant or redundant matter is inserted in a pleading, it may be stricken out on motion of any person aggrieved thereby, but this motion must be made before answer or demurrer, or before an extension of time to plead is granted. When the allegations of a pleading are so indefinite or uncertain that the precise nature of the charge or defense is not apparent, the court may require the pleading to be made definite and certain by amendment. (Rev., s. 496; Code, s. 261; C. C. P., s. 120.)

Cross References.—For more particular phases of motions to strike out or make the pleadings more certain, see 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 213, et seq.; 15 Enc. Dig. 223, et seq.

As to power of Superior Court to determine on appeal order of clerk refusing motion to strike out answer as frivolous see § 510 and the note thereto.

Editor's Note.—The true doctrine to be gathered from all the cases is that, if the substantial facts which constitute a cause of action are stated in the complaint or can be inferred therefrom by reasonable intendment, though the allegations are imperfect, incomplete and defective, and such insufficiency pertains rather to the form than to the substance, the proper mode of correction is not by demurrer nor by excluding evidence at the trial but by a motion, before the trial, to make the averments more definite by amendment. To this effect see, Moore v. Edmiston, 70 N. C. 510; Stokes v. Taylor, 104 N. C. 394, 397, 10 S. E. 566; Nye v. Williams, 190 N. C. 129, 129 S. E. 193; Fulps v. Mock, 108 N. C. 601, 605, 13 S. E. 92. E. 874; Bristol v. Carolina, etc., R. Co., 175 N. C. 509, 95 S. E. 850.

Power to Strike.—Under this section or under section 633, the superior court has power to strike out an answer whenever it appears to the satisfaction of the court that it is irrelevant or frivolous. Commissioners v. Piercy, 72 N. C. 181; Dail & Bro. v. Harper, 83 N. C. 5, 7.

The Test of Right to Have Allegation Stricken.—Whether evidence in support of an allegation would be competent upon the trial does not determine plaintiff's right to have it stricken out upon motion under this section, the test being whether the allegation is of a probative or of an ultimate fact. Revis v. Asheville, 207 N. C. 237, 176 S. E. 738.

The allegation as to a city carrying accident and liability insurance was an allegation of an evidential and probative fact and not of a material, essential, or ultimate fact, and there was no error in the trial court's ordering it stricken out under this section. Id.

Equitable matters in defense relevant only upon the motion to confirm a foreclosupre sale are properly stricken from the answer upon motion, under this section, since plaintiff seeks a legal remedy only and invokes no equitable jurisdiction of the court, and the foreclosure sale cannot be collaterally attacked in plaintiff's action to recover the deficiency after foreclosure. First Carolina's Joint-Stock Land Bank v. Stewart, 208 N. C. 139, 179 S. E. 463.

Power to Make Explicit Ex Mero Motu.—The court has a right ex mero motu to direct that the pleadings shall be more explicit. Martin v. Goode, 111 N. C. 288, 16 S. E. 232; Allen v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 120 N. C. 548, 550, 27 S. E. 76. Or it may direct the same upon the application of a party interested. Buie v. Brown, 104 N. C. 335, 336, 337, 10 S. E. 465.

Manner of Correction May Not Be Directed.—While the trial judge is authorized in the exercise of his discretion to order that a pleading be made more definite under the provisions of this section, he may not direct the manner in which this may be done. Hensley v. McDowell Furniture Co., 164 N. C. 148, 80 S. E. 154.

Argumentative, Hypothetical or Alternative Pleading. — The proper method of taking advantage of an argumentative, hypothetical or an alternative pleading is not by demurrer but by a motion under this section to make more explicit. Daniels v. Baxter, 120 N. C. 14, 18, 26 S. E. 635.

Discretion of Court.—A motion to make a pleading more definite and certain is addressed to the discretion of the court. Womack v. Carter, 160 N. C. 286, 75 S. E. 1102. See also, Allen v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 120 N. C. 548, 27 S. E. 76; Smith v. Summerfield, 108 N. C. 284, 12 S. E. 997; Conley v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 692, 14 S. E. 303. See also Temple v. Western Union Tel. Co., 205 N. C. 441, 171 S. E. 630.

If the pleader thinks that it is impossible to make the allegations of his pleading more definite, this fact must be addressed to the judge who has a large discretion in such matters, and if it appears to him that such was the case, he will disallow a motion to make such pleading more definite and certain. Bristol v. Carolina, etc., R. Co., 175 N. C. 509, 95 S. E. 850.

Waiver or Cure of Defects in Absence of Motion.—If the defect of uncertainty or indefiniteness is not raised by a motion to make more certain, and an answer is filed, such defect will be deemed as waived or cured. Ricks v. Brooks, 179 N. C. 204, 102 S. E. 207.

The defect in the statement of locality may be raised either by a motion for a bill of particulars or a motion under this section to make the pleading more specific. Lucas v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 121 N. C. 506, 509, 28 S. E. 265.

Scandalous and Impertinent Matter.—Where "impertinent" matter is introduced into the pleadings, it may be stricken out at the expense of the party introducing it. Powell v. Cobb, 56 N. C. 1.

Application to Justice's Court.—The provision of this section, as to motions to make pleadings more certain, applies to justices' courts as well as to the superior courts. Wilson v. Batchelor, 182 N. C. 92, 108 S. E. 355.

Time of Motion.—Under this section the motion must be made in apt time before answer or demurrer, and if not made within time the granting of the motion rests within the discretion of the judge. Hensley v. McDowell Furniture Co., 164 N. C. 148, 80 S. E. 154.

Motion to strike matter from an answer comes too late, when filed after the jury is impaneled. Roller v. McKinney, 159 N. C. 319, 74 S. E. 966.

A motion to strike out alleged improper matter from a complaint will not be considered after an answer to demurrer is filed, or after an order for time to plead. Lee v. Thornton, 171 N. C. 209, 88 S. E. 232.

It was held not an abuse of discretion for the trial court to order the complaint made more definite and certain, although the complaint was filed at October term, 1916, and the motion was made at the December term, 1917, immediately before trial. Bristol v. Carolina, etc., R. Co., 175 N. C. 509, 95 S. E. 850.

Where a motion is made on the eve of the trial, it should be granted with great caution, if the moving party has been very dilatory. Bristol v. Carolina, etc., R. Co., 175 N. C. 509, 95 S. E. 850.

Review of Refusal of Motion to Strike.—The refusal of a motion to strike out certain portions of a bill of particulars as irrelevant and immaterial, under this section, will be affirmed where it appears that defendant was not prejudiced thereby, the matter lending itself to an easier determination by correct rulings on the admissibility of evidence offered in support of such allegations. Pemberton v. Greensboro, 205 N. C. 599, 172 S. E. 196.

Applied in McCarley v. Council, 205 N. C. 370, 375, 171 S. E. 323.

Cited in Cole v. Wagner, 197 N. C. 692, 150 S. E. 339; Tar Heel Hosiery Mill v. Durham Hosiery Mills, 198 N. C. 596, 152 S. E. 794; Ellis v. Ellis, 198 N. C. 767, 153 S. E. 449; Hutchins v. Mangum, 198 N. C. 774, 153 S. E. 409; Yonge v. New York Life Ins. Co., 199 N. C. 16, 18, 153 S. E. 630; Hood v. Love, 203 N. C. 583, 166 S. E. 743.

§ 538. Pleading judgments. — In pleading a judgment or other determination of a court or of an officer of special jurisdiction, it is not necessary to state the facts conferring jurisdiction, but the judgment or determination may be stated to have been duly given or made. If this allegation is controverted, the party pleading must establish, on the trial, the facts conferring jurisdiction. (Rev., s. 497; Code, s. 262; C. C. P., s. 121.)

References.—As to pleading of judgments as res adjudicata, see generally, 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 289 et seq.; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 587.

§ 539. How conditions precedent pleaded.— In pleading the performance of conditions precedent in a contract, it is not necessary to state the facts showing performance, but it may be stated generally that the party duly performed all the conditions on his part. If this allegation is controverted, the party pleading must establish, on the trial, the facts showing performance. (Rev., s. 498; Code, s. 263; C. C. P., s. 122.)

In Actions upon Insurance Policy.—In Britt v. Mutual Ben. Life Ins. Co., 105 N. C. 175, 178, 10 S. E. 896, it was held under this section that, in an action upon an insurance policy, the truth of the representations in the application as conditions precedent may be averred generally by stating that the party duly performed all the conditions on his part.

§ 540. How instrument for payment of money pleaded.—In an action or defense founded upon an instrument for the payment of money only, it is sufficient for the party pleading to give a copy of the instrument, and to state that there is due to him thereon, from the adverse party, a specified sum which he claims. (Rev., s. 499; Code, s. 263; C. C. P., s. 122.)

§ 541. How private statutes pleaded. — In pleading a private statute or right derived therefrom it is sufficient to refer to the statute by its title or the day of its ratification, and the court shall thereupon take judicial notice of it. (Rev., s. 500; Code, s. 264; C. C. P., s. 123.)

Public Law Published in Private Laws, and Vice Versa.— Notwithstanding the fact that a public statute is erroneously published in the private laws, the court will take judicial notice thereof without the necessity of its being pleaded. Hancock v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 124 N. C. 222, 32 S. E. 679. And conversed, the fact that a private statute is published among the public statutes will not make it a public statute so as to do away with the necessity of pleading and proving it. Durham v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 402, 12 S. E. 1040, 13 S. E. 1.

Private Statute with Public Provisions.—A private statute does not assume the character of a public statute because of the fact that it contains public statutory provisions. Upon this principle the charter of a corporation which contains public statutory provisions is not a public statute. Carrow v. Washington Toll-Bridge Co., 61 N. C. 118; Durham v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 402, 12 S. E. 1040, 13 S. E. 1. (A fortiori where it does not contain such provisions) and must be specifically pleaded. Corporation Comm. v. Seaboard Air Line System, 127 N. C. 283, 37 S. E. 266.

Nature of Statute is a Question of Law. — Whether a statute is public or private is a question of law which the courts must determine in the absence of a statutory enactment declaring and settling its nature. Humphries v. Baxter, 28 N. C. 437; State v. Wallace, 94 N. C. 827.

Qualification of the Rule in Supreme Court.—While the courts will not as a general rule, take judicial notice of a private statute or its terms and will require that it shall be specially pleaded in the manner required by this section, this rule will not be allowed to prevail when a private statute relating to and effectually settling the matter in controversy has, after due notice, been formally brought to the attention of the Supreme Court; for then only an abstract proposition would be left for the Court's determination, which will not be entertained. Reid v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 162 N. C. 355, 78 S. E. 306.

Proof of Private Statutes. — Private statutes must not only be pleaded as provided by this section, but also proved when they become necessary as evidence. Durham v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 402, 12 S. E. 1040, 13 S. E. 1.

§ 542. Pleadings in libel and slander.—In an action for libel or slander it is not necessary to state in the complaint any extrinsic facts for the purpose of showing the application to the plaintiff of the defamatory matter out of which the cause of action arose, but it is sufficient to state generally that the same was published or spoken concerning the plaintiff; and if such allegation is controverted, the plaintiff is bound to establish on trial that it was so published or spoken.

The defendant may in his answer allege both the truth of the matter charged as defamatory, and any mitigating circumstances to reduce the amount of damages; and whether he proves the justification or not, he may give in evidence the mitigating circumstances. (Rev., ss. 501-2; Code, ss. 265-6; C. C. P., ss. 124-5.)

References.—For provisions on libel and slander in general, see section 2429 et seq.; for a full treatment of the pleadings in actions for slander and libel, see 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 675 et seq.

For an article entitled "Restrictions on a Free Press," wherein various phases of rights arising out of libel are discussed, see 4 N. C. Law Rev. 24.

Plea Prerequisite to Evidence of Truth.—A plea of justification or of mitigation is a prerequisite to the allowance of evidence of the truth of the charge. Without it such evidence is incompetent. Burris v. Bush, 170 N. C. 394, 87 S. E. 97; Upchurch v. Robertson, 127 N. C. 127, 128, 37 S. E. 157; Dickerson v. Dail, 159 N. C. 541, 75 S. E. 803.

Where the truth of words alleged to be slanderous is not specifically pleaded, evidence thereof was held properly rejected. Elmore v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 189 N. C. 658, 127 S. E. 710.

Sufficient Averment.—It is material only to aver in the complaint that the slanderous words were spoken of the plaintiff, the facts which point to them and convey to the hearer the sense in which they are used, are matters of proof before the jury. Wozelka v. Hettrick, 93 N. C. 10.

Sufficient Publication.—Under this section where the complaint in an action for libel alleges that the defendant sent the plaintiff an open post card through the mails containing libelous matter, without an allegation that such matter was read by some third person, the allegation of publication is insufficient. McKeel v. Latham, 202 N. C. 318, 162 S. E. 747.

Evidence of Justification under General Issue.—When the defendant pleads the general issue, he may not introduce evidence in justification or mitigation. Upchurch v. Robertson, 127 N. C. 127, 37 S. E. 157.

§ 543. Allegations not denied, deemed true.—Every material allegation of the complaint not controverted by the answer, and every material allegation of new matter in the answer, constituting a counterclaim, not controverted by the reply is, for the purposes of the action. taken as true. But the allegation of new matter in the answer, not relating to a counterclaim, or of new matter in reply, is to be deemed controverted by the adverse party as upon a direct denial or avoidance, as the case requires. (Rev., s. 503; Code, s. 268; C. C. P., s. 127.)

References.—For the application of the principles of admissions by failure to deny, to particular circumstances, see 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 174; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 174; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 211.

Editor's Note.—The rule established by this section disposed of the necessity of submitting to the jury matters which the law deems as admitted in the absence of denial.

New Matter Not Amounting to Counterclaimed.—If the new matter in the answer does not amount to a counterclaim such matter will be deemed as denied by the operation of law. Wagon Co. v. Byrd, 119 N. C. 460, 26 S. E. 144; McQueen v. People's Nat. Bank, 111 N. C. 509, 513, 16 S. E. 270. Thus in an action for the purchase price of land sold, the allegation of defective title is a matter of defense, and not a counterclaim, and hence the burden is on defendant, even though not specifically denied by the operation of law. Bank v. Loughran, 122 N. C. 668, 674, 30 S. E. 17.

The allegations of the complaint, and every material allegation of new matter constituting a counterclaim in an answer, directly admitted or not denied, have the effect of a finding by a jury. Bonham v. Craig, 80 N. C. 224; Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 262, 11 S. E. 470.

As a corollary to this general principle it follows that new matter in the answer not amounting to counterclaim disposes of the necessity of a replication. McLamb v. McPhail, 126 N. C. 218, 221, 35 S. E. 426; Wilson v. Brown, 134 N. C. 400, 408, 46 S. E. 762; Smith v. Bruton, 137 N. C. 79, 80, 49 S. E. 64; Askew v. Koonce, 118 N. C. 526, 24 S. E. 218.

Admission as Basis for Referee's Finding.—Allegations in a complaint, not denied in the answer, are a sufficient basis for the referee's findings of fact; but allegations not so admitted and not sustained by proof, are not evidence, unless put in evidence. Stephenson v. Felton, 106 N. C. 114, 11 S. E. 255.

Application in Divorce Actions.—Divorces are granted only when the facts constituting a sufficient cause, under a proper construction of the law, are pleaded, proved and found by the jury. McQueen v. McQueen ,82 N. C. 471. The admissions of the parties are not competent evidence, as in other actions, of the truth of the material allegations of the pleadings. Perkins v. Perkins, 88 N. C. 41. But when a defendant demurs to a petition for divorce the court here must consider the demurrer as a concession, not only that the facts alleged are true, but that they can and will be proved, so as to secure the verdict of the jury. Steele v. Steele, 104 N. C. 631, 634, 10 S. E. 707.

Admissions as Evidence in other Actions.—Admissions implied under this section by failure to controvert allegations of the opposite pleading constitute evidence against the party making them in all actions and proceedings against him, wherein they may be pertinent and competent, just as are admissions and declarations of a party made adverse to his right on any occasion. Their weight depends always upon whether or not they were made with deliberation or incautiously, and they are subject to proper explanation. Mason v. McCormick, 85 N. C. 226; Adams v. Utley, 87 N. C. 356; Guy v. Manuel, 89 N. C. 83; Brooks v. Brooks, 90 N. C. 142; White v. Beaman, 96 N. C. 122, 1 S. E. 789; Smith v. Nimocks, 94 N. C. 243. And the fact that the former action was decided in favor of the party admitting can not affect his admissions as evidence in the subsequent action. Grant v. Gooch, 105 N. C. 278, 282, 11 S. E. 571. See also Lowder v. Smith, 201 N. C. 642, 648, 161 S. E. 223.

Cited in Brewer v. Brewer, 198 N. C. 669, 671, 153 S. E. 163.

§ 544. Pleading lost, copy used.—If an original pleading or paper is lost or withheld by any person, the court may authorize a copy to be filed and used instead of the original. (Rev., s. 504; Code, s. 600; C. C. P., s. 357.)

Before Cause Argued in Supreme Court.—The lost pleading or paper should always be supplied by a copy, before the cause is argued in the supreme court. Blackmore v. Winders, 144 N. C. 212, 219, 56 S. E. 874.

Order of Substitution Not Reviewable. — Judgments of trial courts permitting lost pleadings to be substituted, are not reviewable. Bray v. Creekmore, 109 N. C. 49, 13 S. E. 723.

Art. 18. Amendments

§ 545. Amendment as of course.—Any pleading may be once amended of course, without costs, and without prejudice to the proceedings already had, at any time before the period for answering it expires; or it can be so amended at any time, unless it is made to appear to the court that it was done for the purpose of delay, and the plaintiff or defendant will thereby lose the benefit of a term for which the cause is, or may be, docketed for trial; and if it appears to the court or judge that the amendment was made for that purpose, it may be stricken out, and such terms imposed as seem just to the court or judge. (Rev., s. 505; Code, s. 272; C. C. P., s. 131.)

Cross Reference.—As to allowing an amendment to make the defense plea more specific, see § 547 and the note thereto. See 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 189.

Editor's Note.—The resultant frustration of justice from the absurb technicalities of the common law system of pleading and practice aroused from the very early days of its history a liberal movement towards the emancipation of the rules of procedure from needless and cumbersome formalities. The movement originated with the gradual development in England of courts of equity which "delight to disregard from and look into the substance," and was supplemented by the statute of Jeofails which provided for the cure and disregard of formal defects.

In this country this liberal tendency expressed itself in the form of express enactments towards the adaptation of the rules of pleading and procedure, for the protection of substantive rights and for a speedy and effective administration of justice.

In accord with what one may justly call the "renaissance" of the procedural law, the legislative policy of this state has been so prone to respond to the calls of a more rational administration of justice independent of technicalities and form, that in this state it may now be well said that "anything may be amended at any time," with the qualifications to be hereafter noted.

These statutory provisions authorizing amendments may generally be classified under two principal categories: (A) Provisions authorizing amendments as a matter of right, and (B) Provisions authorizing amendments within the discretion of the court to subserve the ends of justice.

The former category (A) may be further analyzed by dividing it into (a) amendments made before the time for answering the pleading has expired, and (b) amendments after such time has expired. In the former case there is no limitation or condition upon the right to amend, except the condition that it must be exercised without prejudice to the proceedings already had; in the latter case the right to amend as a matter of course does not exist, see Goodwin v. Caraleigh, etc., Fertilizer Works, 121 N. C. 91, 28 S. E. 192; Kron v. Smith, 96 N. C. 389, 2 S. E. 532; Commissioners v. Blair, 76 N. C. 136. From the doctrine of these cases the inference is deduced that the phrase "or it can be so amended at any time" appearing in the first part of the section, has no reference to the right to amend as a matter of course, and that it simply means that the pleading may be amended after the period for answering it has expired, "without costs and without prejudice to the proceedings already had."

The scope and the extent of the latter category (B) is entirely dependent upon the discretion of the court, which is subject only to the usual limitation upon the exercise of discretionary powers, viz., that it must not be abused.

Time of Amendment as a Matter of Right.—Where the motion to amend is made after the time for answering has expired, and after an answer has been filed, it will be too late to amend as a matter of course; after such time the privilege of amending the pleadings is at the discretion of the court which is not reviewable. Commissioners v. Blair, 76 N. C. 136; Kron v. Smith, 96 N. C. 389; 2 S. E. 532; Goodwin v. Caraleigh, etc., Fertilizer Works, 121 N. C. 91, 28 S. E. 192.

Practice of Allowing Amendments at All Times Is Becoming Liberal.—Under this and subsequent sections, and under the liberal practice as set out in § 535, the court below, in its sound discretion, in furtherance of justice, can amend the pleading, before and after judgment, to conform to the facts proved, keeping in mind always that an amendment cannot change substantially the nature of the action or defense, without consent. The system is broadening and expanding more and more, with the view at all times that a trial should be had on the merits and to prevent injustice. Lipe v. Citizens' Bank, etc., Co., 206 N. C. 24, 29, 173 S. E. 316.

Form and Notice of Motion to Amend.—After the time for answering has expired it has been the uniform practice to apply to the court for permission to amend. This application may be oral or written, but notice of such motion is required unless made during a term of court at which the action stands for trial. Carolina Discount Corp. v. Butler, 200 N. C. 709, 712, 158 S. E. 249.

§ 546. Pleading over after demurrer.—After the decision on a demurrer, the judge shall, if it appear that the demurrer was interposed in good faith, allow the party to plead over upon such terms as may be just. (Rev., s. 506; Code, s. 272; C. C. P., s. 131; 1871-2, c. 173.)

Cross References.—See sections, 510, 599 as to frivolous and sham defenses, 513 as to amendments and hearing, and 515 as to procedure after judgment on demurrer. For a digest treatment, see also, 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 189 et seq.

Formerly Section Discretionary—Now Mandatory.—Prior to the act of 1872, it was discretionary with the judge to permit any amendment the provision being: the judge "may in his discretion" etc. Matthews v. Copeland, 80 N. C. 30, 33. But now the requirement is mandatory under proper circumstances. See Moore v. Hobbs, 77 N. C. 65 66.

Application to Contracts Prior to C. C. P.—This section, which provides that after the decision of a demurrer interposed in good faith the judge shall allow the party to plead over, has no application to actions on contracts entered into prior to the ratification of the C. C. P. Matthews v. Copeland, 80 N. C. 30.

Not Applicable to Plaintiff.—This section has been often construed to give to the defendant, after a demurrer interposed by him in good faith has been overruled, the right to answer over, but it has never been extended to the plaintiff as a right to amend his complaint. Barnes v. Crawford, 115 N. C. 76, 79, 20 S. E. 386.

Request at the Same Term.—Where a demurrer, being interposed in good faith, is overruled, the defendant is entitled to plead over, if the request to do so is made at that term, and he may also appeal from the overruling of the demurrer. Perry v. Board, 130 N. C. 558, 41 S. E. 787; Gore v. Davis, 124 N. C. 234, 32 S. E. 554.

Demurrer Must Have Been Interposed in Good Faith. — The right to put in an answer after the overruling of a demurrer, as created by this section, is subject to the qualification that it shall appear that the demurrer was interposed in good faith. Bronson v. Wilmington N. C. Life Ins. Co., 85 N. C. 411, 415.

Hence where the demurrer is frivolous, the plaintiff is entitled to judgment, unless the court in the exercise of a sound discretion permits the defendant to answer over. Morgan v. Harris, 141 N. C. 358, 360, 54 S. E. 381.

Time of Answering.—Upon the overruling of the demurrer the defendant is entitled under this section to answer, but he must answer at that term, and the allowance of further time is in the discretion of the court. Gore v. Davis, 124 N. C. 234, 32 S. E. 554.

Leave to Amend Must Be Obtained.—Where a demurrer is overruled the party may not as a matter of course answer or reply; but the case is open for judgment, as if the party had made no defense, unless he obtains leave to amend his pleadings by putting in an answer or reply as authorized by this section. Ranson v. McClees, 64 N. C. 17, 21.

Cited in Morris v. Cleve, 194 N. C. 202, 139 S. E. 290.

§ 547. Amendments in discretion of courts.—The judge or court may, before and after judgment, in furtherance of justice, and on such terms as may be proper, amend any pleading, process or proceeding, by adding or striking out the name of any party; by correcting a mistake in the name of a party, or a mistake in any other respect; by inserting other allegations material to the case; or when the amendment does not change substantially the claim or defense, by conforming the pleading or proceeding to the fact proved. When a proceeding taken by a party fails to conform to law in any respect, the trial judge may permit an amendment of the proceeding so as to make it conformable thereto. (Rev., ss. 507, 512; Code, ss. 273, 274; C. C. P., ss. 132, 133.)

I. IN GENERAL.

See notes under §§ 513, 515.

Amplest Powers of Amendment.—In civil actions, the amplest powers of amendment are given to the courts to amend any process, pleading or proceeding in such actions either in form or substance for the furtherance of justice, on such terms as shall be just, at any time before or after judgment rendered therein. State v. Vaughan, 91 N. C. 532, 535.

Power to Amend Independent of Statute.—Even independently of the Code, the superior courts possess an inherent discretionary power to amend pleadings or allow them to be filed at any time unless prohibited by some statute, or unless vested rights are interfered with, and a fortiori under the liberal provisions of the Code which have uniformly been beneficially construed by the Supreme Court. Gilchrist v. Kitchen, 86 N. C. 20; Cantwell v. Herring, 127 N. C. 81, 82, 37 S. E. 140.

Inherent Power of Amendment.—The superior courts possess an inherent discretionary power to amend pleadings or allow them to be filed at any time, unless prohibited by some statute, or unless vested rights are interfered with. Gilchrist v. Kitchen, 86 N. C. 20.

To the same effect in Gilchrist v. Kitchen, 86 N. C., 20, the Court says: "But, independent of the Code, we hold that the right to amend pleadings in the cause and allow answers or other pleadings to be filed at any time, is an inherent power of the superior courts which they may exercise at their discretion. The judge presiding is presumed to know best what orders and what indulgence as to filing of pleadings will promote the ends of justice as they arise in each particular case, and with the exercise of this discretion this Court cannot interfere because it is not the subject of appeal." Autin v. Clarke, 70 N. C. 458; Woodcock v. Merrimon, 122 N. C. 731, 735, 30 S. E. 321.

It has been held that the allowance of amendments is incidental to the exercise of all judicial power, and is indispensable to the ends of justice. Bank v. Sherman, 101 U. S. 403, 25 L. Ed. 866.

Liberal Allowance on Proper Terms—Exception.—Amendments to pleadings which further justice, speed the trial of controversies or prevent unnecessary circuity of action and unnecessary expense, should be liberally allowed on proper terms, Commissioners v. Blair, 76 N. C. 136, except when the effect of the amendment is to allege substantially a new cause of action. Dosenbacher v. Martin, 170 N. C. 236, 86 S. E. 785. See post, this note, "Introducing New Cause of Action or Defense", III.

Allowance in the Liberal Spirit of the Code.—The whole scope and design of the new Code is to discountenance all dilatory pleas, and to afford the parties a cheap and speedy trial upon the merits of their matter in controversy. To effect this end it is the duty of all the courts to allow amendments in the liberal spirit clearly indicated in the Code. Wilson v. Moore, 72 N. C. 558, 562.

"Anything May Be Amended at Any Time."—The scale of amendments is so liberal that it may well be said that "anything may be amended at any time." Garrett v. Trotter, 65 N. C. 430.

Power to Make Any Conceivable Amendment.—In Moore v. Edmiston, 70 N. C. 510, 619, the court speaking of this section says: "By a sweeping curative supplement to this most curative system of pleading, this section confers upon the court the power, both before and after judgment, to make almost any conceivable amendment so as to conform the pleadings to the facts proved."

Powers to be Exercised Freely.—While the court cannot, without the consent of the parties, so amend, change or modify the pleadings in a pending action so as to make it substantially a new one, Merrill v. Merrill, 92 N. C. 657; McNair v. Board, 93 N. C. 364, (see post "Introducing new cause of action") its general powers, and especially those expressly conferred by this and the following sections, to allow amendments of the pleadings "in furtherance of justice," are broad and comprehensive, and in all proper cases should be exercised freely by the court, having due regard to fairness and the rights of the parties. Ely v. Early, 94 N. C. 1, 4.

Object to Try Cases upon Their Merits.—It is the policy of our Code system to be liberal in allowing amendments of process, pleadings, and proceedings, so that causes may be tried upon their merits, and to prevent a failure of justice for reasons which may be technical or frivolous, not affecting the substantial rights of the parties. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

This provision and numerous others of the C. C. P. show that its purpose is to prevent actions from being defeated on grounds that do not affect the merits of the controversy, whenever it can be done by amending such actions. The pervading idea being to settle controversies by one action, and thereby prevent the loss of the labor and money expended in that action, and the necessity for incurring like labor and expense in a second. Bullard v. Johnson, 65 N. C. 436, 438.

The purpose and scope of the new system is to facilitate the trial and disposition of causes upon their merits; and to this end, when necessary, the process and pleadings are liberally reformed by amendments which do not substantially change the claim or defense. Cheatham v. Crews, 81 N. C. 343, 345.

Time of Amendment.—Formerly this section applied only to amendments made before or at the trial, and not at a time subsequent. Askew v. Capehart, 79 N. C. 17, 19. But now it in terms provides for amendments after judgment as well as before. Ed. Note.

There is no force in the argument, that an amendment which removes the objections must be made before they are taken, and can not be made afterwards, since it is precisely for such a purpose the power is conferred to be exercised in furthering the ends of justice, at the discretion of the judge, in order that such as are trivial, and do not affect the substantial and understood matters in controversy, may be removed. State v. Giles, 103 N. C. 391, 393, 9 S. E. 433.

Amendment after Judgment.—If necessary, the pleadings may be reformed even after judgment to conform to the facts proved. Hendon v. North Carolina R. Co., 127 N. C. 110, 113, 37 S. E. 155.

Same—The Answer.—The court may in its discretion even after judgment allow an answer to be amended to conform to the proof. Waters v. Waters, 125 N. C. 590, 593, 34 S. E. 548.

Amendment after Verdict.—The court has power to allow an amendment after verdict, so as to supply the omission of an averment in the pleading. Pearce v. Mason, 78 N. C. 37; Penny v. Smith, 61 N. C. 35; Roberson v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 49, 11 S. E. 263.

After Reversal.—Under this section upon the receipt of a certificate of reversal of judgment overruling a demurrer, the lower court may allow an amendment of the summons and complaint in accordance with the opinion. Commissioner of Banks v. Harvey, 202 N. C. 380, 162 S. E. 894.

Amendment after Order and Confirmation of Sale.—In Stafford v. Harris, 72 N. C. 198, the court held that the Probate Court (now the clerk of the superior court) had no authority, after order of sale and confirmation of sale and order to make title, to entertain a motion in the cause on the part of the purchaser to so amend the pleadings as to include another tract of land not mentioned, and that the judge would have no power to amend the petition upon parol evidence that a tract of land had been omitted therefrom through mistake.

Presumption of Facts Supporting Amendment.—The trial judge will be presumed to have found the facts necessary to support his order allowing an amendment to the pleading, when no facts are stated in the record. Patterson v. Champion Lumber Co., 175 N. C. 90, 94 S. E. 692.

Relation Back Doctrine.—An amendment when properly allowed will date back to the time of the institution of the suit. Lefler v. Lane & Co., 170 N. C. 181, 86 S. E. 1022.

Jurisdiction.—In order to allow an amendment, the court must have jurisdiction of the cause. An amendment presupposes jurisdiction of the case. Hodge v. Williams, 22 How. 87, 88, 16 L. Ed. 237.

Power of Clerk of Court.—The clerk of the court acting as and for the court has authority, out of term time, to allow all proper amendments. Cushing v. Styron, 104 N. C. 338, 340, 10 S. E. 258.

Verification of Answer by Amendment.—An unverified answer may be allowed to be verified by amendment in the discretion of the court. Banks v. Gay Mfg. Co., 108 N. C. 282, 283, 12 S. E. 741.

Void Proceedings not Curable by Amendment.—If the proceedings are so defective in form and substance that they are void upon their faces, no amendment can cure them. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 524, 20 S. E. 765.

In the Supreme Court.—In proper cases the Supreme Court will allow an amendment to the complaint for the furtherance of justice. Deligny v. Tate Furniture Co., 170 N. C. 189, 190, 86 S. E. 980. See section 1414.

On appeal from a motion to dismiss, on the ground of the insufficiency of the complaint to allege a cause of action, where merely a good cause has been defectively stated, the action will not be dismissed in the Supreme Court on motion made there, but if necessary, an amendment will be allowed to conform the pleadings to the facts proved. Ricks v. Brooks, 179 N. C. 204, 250, 102 S. E. 207.

Cited in Bridgeman v. Pilot Life Ins. Co., 197 N. C. 599, 150 S. E. 15; Pierce v. Mallard, 197 N. C. 679, 181, 150 S. E. 342; Hargett v. Lee, 206 N. C. 536, 539, 174 S. E. 498.

II. DISCRETIONARY POWERS OF THE COURT.

Powers Discretionary—When Reviewable.—It has been well settled in this State that no appeal lies to the supreme court from the exercise of a discretionary power of the superior court. But if the exercise of a discretion by that court is refused upon the ground that it has no power to grant a motion addressed to its discretion, the ruling of that court is reviewable. Gilchrist v. Kitchen, 86 N. C. 20, 21. See Life Ins. Co. v. Edgerton, 206 N. C. 402, 174 S. E. 96; Smith v. New York Life Ins. Co., 208 N. C. 99, 101, 179 S. E. 457.

Discretionary, with or without Terms.—The judge can, in his discretion, refuse the motion to amend or grant it with or without terms. Maggett v. Roberts, 108 N. C. 174, 177, 12 S. E. 890.

Not Reviewable Except for Palpable Abuse.—The discretion is not reviewable in the absence of palpable abuse. Gordon v. Pintsch Gas Co., 178 N. C. 435, 436, 100 S. E. 878.

Discretion Not Arbitrary but Legal.—This discretion however is not arbitrary, but implies a legal discretion. Hudgins v. White, 65 N. C. 393.

Changing Affidavit into Complaint.—While the action of the trial judge in refusing to permit an amendment to the pleadings is usually a matter within his discretion and not reviewable, it was held error, under the circumstances of the case, for the judge to refuse an amendment in effect to change the affidavit into the form of a complaint. Mason v. Stephens, 168 N. C. 369, 84 S. E. 528.

Verification to an Answer.—It is discretionary with the trial court to allow an amendment of a verification to an answer. Cantwell v. Herring, 127 N. C. 81, 37 S. E. 140.

Amendment Setting Up Statute of Limitation.—It is discretionary with the court whether or not to allow an amendment setting up the statute of limitations. Smith v. Smith, 123 N. C. 229, 31 S. E. 471; Balk v. Harris, 130 N. C. 381, 383, 41 S. E. 940.

Reinstatement of Nonsuited Causes.—Where plaintiff voluntarily amends his complaint by entering a nol pros as to certain causes of action, it is a matter of discretion in the court, whether he shall reinstate them. Grant v. Burgwyn, 88 N. C. 95.

Costs.—When the superior court has power to amend, the question of costs is entirely in its discretion. Robinson v. Willoughby, 67 N. C. 84.

III. INTRODUCING NEW CAUSE OF ACTION, DEFENSE OR RELIEF.

Permissible When It Introduces No New Cause.—Unless its effect is to add a new cause of action or change the subject-matter of the original action, no objection can successfully be urged where the amendment is germane to the original action, involving substantially the same transaction and presenting no real departure from the demand as originally stated. Lefler v. Lane & Co., 170 N. C. 181, 86 S. E. 1022.

The judge of the Superior Court has within his sound discretion the statutory authortiy to permit the plaintiff to amend his complaint when thereby the ground of the alleged cause is not so substantially changed as to become a new or different cause of action. Goins v. Sargent, 196 N. C. 478, 146 S. E. 131.

Amendment by Referee.—It would seem that this section is broad enough to warrant the action of the referee in allowing partner to come in as party plaintiff and adopt complaint previously filed by copartner. Sheffield v. Alexander, 194 N. C. 744, 745, 140 S. E. 726. See note under § 576.

Instances of New Cause Not Introduced.—In an action to recover damages for a conspiracy to prevent the employment by others of a discharged employee, under §§ 4477, 4478, the cause of action alleged was not substantially changed by allowing an amendment to the effect that the plaintiff had been employed by the defendant prior to the time of the alleged conspiracy. Goins v. Sargent, 196 N. C. 478, 146 S. E. 131.

An amendment to a complaint in an action to set aside a conveyance of land for fraud is not substantially changed by an amendment allowed the plaintiff in the discretion of the trial court, to allege damages sustained and provable as directly resulting therefrom. Parker v. Mecklenburg Realty, etc., Co., 195 N. C. 644, 143 S. E. 254.

Where the complaint in an action for nonpayment of draft alleged that defendant failed to pay when it was received, it was held not error to allow an amendment alleging that defendant had in fact accepted the draft by entering it on its books and had held it for more than 24 hours thereafter during which time it failed and refused to return it accepted or nonaccepted. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253.

Same—Amendatory Summons.—Where one administratrix has renounced her right, and a second has been appointed, and the second administratrix has brought action and made her mark to the complaint, the action of the trial judge in correcting a mistake in the summons and complaint by changing the name of the first administratrix to that of the second does not change the cause of action, and does not constitute error. Hill v. Norfolk So. Ry. Co., 195 N. C. 605, 143 S. E. 129.

Consent Necessary when New Cause Introduced.—The court cannot, except by consent, allow an amendment which changes the pleadings so as to make it substantially a new action, but an amendment which only adds to the original cause of action is not of this nature, and may be allowed. Ely v. Early, 94 N. C. 1.

Tests as to When New Cause Introduced.—In construing the similar statute in other code states, two tests are given by which it may be determined whether a second petition (or complaint) is an amendment or a substitution of a new cause of action: (1) that the same evidence will support both petitions (or complaints); (2) that the same measure of damages will apply to both. If both these tests fail the new pleading is not an amendment. Lumpkin v. Collier, 69 Mo. 170; Scoville v. Glasner, 79 Mo. 449.

Defective Statement of a Good Cause.—A defective statement of a good cause of action, as distinguished from a failure to state a good cause of action, is a defect which is curable by amendment, even after verdict. Blalock v. Clark, 133 N. C. 306, 308, 45 S. E. 642. To the same effect see also, Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Jordan, 134 N. C. 236, 244, 46 S. E. 496.

Adding New Plea after Appeal Reached Supreme Court.—The power and duty of the judge in respect to amendments after the appeal has reached this court depend on these sections, and there is nothing in these sections requiring the judge to allow a new plea to be put in, though he may do so on payment of all costs up to that time. The Code is liberal in allowing amendments, but the adding of a new plea stands on different grounds from the amending of a formal or even a substantial defect in a plea which does not introduce a substantially new defence. Hinton v. Deans, 75 N. C. 18, 20.

Changing the Form of Action.—In Oates, etc., Co. v. Kendall, 67 N. C. 241, 243, the main objection to the recovery was that the plaintiff, in his complaints, had alleged and set out a case in trover, when the case, as proved on the trial, showed that it should have been in the nature of an assumpsit for money had and received, the court said: "It would be in violation of one of the most important provisions of the New Code to permit a party to defeat a recovery, upon the sole ground that the form of the complaint is not just as it should have been, from the facts established by the proofs in the case. To allow such an objection now to avail a party would be to defeat that great and vital principle of the Code and Constitution which declares that there shall be but one form of action, and it would incorporate into our new system all the mischief and intricacies touching the form of action intended to be obviated by that provision. No such objection can be permitted to defeat a recovery."

Same—Changing the Cause from Contract to Tort.—It is not error to allow a plaintiff to amend his complaint, assumed to state a cause of action on contract, so as to declare on a tort arising out of the same transaction. Reynolds v. Mt. Airy, etc., R. Co., 136 N. C. 345, 48 S. E. 765.

Amendment Changing the Relief Sought.—A complaint in an action for the possession of the land under a deed absolute which has been declared to be a mortgage may be so amended as to allow a demand for a judgment of foreclosure of the mortgage. Robinson v. Willoughby, 67 N. C. 84.

Statute of Limitation.—Where a distinct cause of action is allowed to be inserted in a complaint, by amendment, it is tantamount to bringing a new action, and the statute of limitation runs to the time when the amendment is allowed; but this rule does not apply when the new matter allowed by the amendment constitutes a part of the original cause of action. Ely v. Early, 94 N. C. 1.

So where, in an action to recover land, the Court allowed the plaintiff to amend, so as to set up a mutual mistake in a deed, the statute only runs against the relief demanded by the amended complaint to the time when the action was commenced. Ely v. Early, 94 N. C. 1.

Amendment of Insufficient Affidavit.—The Court has the power to allow the amendment of an affidavit upon which a warrant of attachment had issued, although the former affidavit is wholly insufficient. Brown, etc., Co. v. Hawkins, 65 N. C. 645.

IV. CONFORMING PLEADINGS TO FACTS FOUND.

See sections 549, 552.

Leave to Amend to Conform Pleadings to Facts.—Under this section and section 552, a plaintiff may sue for a horse and recover a cow; but in order to do this, when the variance appears, the plaintiff must obtain leave to amend by striking out "horse" and inserting "cow", or else the jury must find the facts specially or the case must be submitted to the jury "on issues," so that the pleading may be amended and be made to conform to the facts proved on such terms as the judge may deem proper, "unless the amendment affects the merits and substantially changes the claim or defense." Shelton v. Davis, 69 N. C. 324, 328.

Evidence Cannot Be Considered Without Amendment.—Where, in an action for the alleged conversion of money, the complaint did not state that funds were received by the person charged with the conversion as trustee or agent, evidence tending to show that they were so received cannot be considered in the absence of an amendment, under this section, conforming the complaint to the evidence. Parker v. Harden, 121 N. C. 57, 28 S. E. 20.

In Dickens v. Perkins, 134 N. C. 220, 223, 46 S. E. 490, the court said: "If the plaintiffs were unable to show by their proof that the contract was made as alleged, and by the evidence established a different agreement, they could have availed themselves of the latter and have enforced the same only by an amendment, provided the cause of action was not thereby substantially changed."

Conforming Complaint to Facts Found by Referee.—Under this section the trial court may, upon the coming in of a referee's report, permit an amendment to the complaint to conform to the facts found if the amendment does not change substantially the cause of action. Nims Mfg. Co. v. Blythe, 127 N. C. 325, 37 S. E. 455.

V. AMENDMENTS OF PROCESS.
